"A Paper Dedicated To Building A Better Future For Clarendon And All Of Donley County"

Home's fate now rests with voters

The future of the Medical Center Nursing Home now lies in the hands of the voters of Donley County and ballots are already being cast. At question is whether the board of directors of the Donley County Hospital District should sell the Medical Center or not. Earlier this year, the board voted to sell the facility, which will be paid off in February 1999. A petition by citizens of the district, however, put a hold on the sale and has forced the district to let the voters decide the nursing home's fate.

Early voting began last week and continues through August 4, 1998, in the clerk's office in the Courthouse Annex. The actual election will be on August 8 in three locations: the Bairfield Activity Center on the college campus, the Howardwick City Hall, and the Hedley Lions Den.

As of Tuesday morning, only 20 people had cast their ballots according to County Clerk Fay Vargas.

Donley County CRP haying, grazing okayed

Donley County has been approved for emergency haying and grazing of CRP acreage.

"Producers must come by the county office, complete a request, and obtain a haying/grazing plan from NRCS before any haying or grazing begins," said Steven Orr, FSA County Executive Director. "Failure to do so could result in a violation of the CRP contract."

In order to participate a producer must 1) Have a livestock operation located in Donley County or rent or lease the haying or grazing privileges to an eligible livestock producer located in Donley County. 2) Agree to a haying or grazing plan developed by NRCS. 3) Agree to pay for the cost of haying or grazing in advance or have the CRP Annual Rental Payment reduced by 25 percent for each acre hayed or grazed.

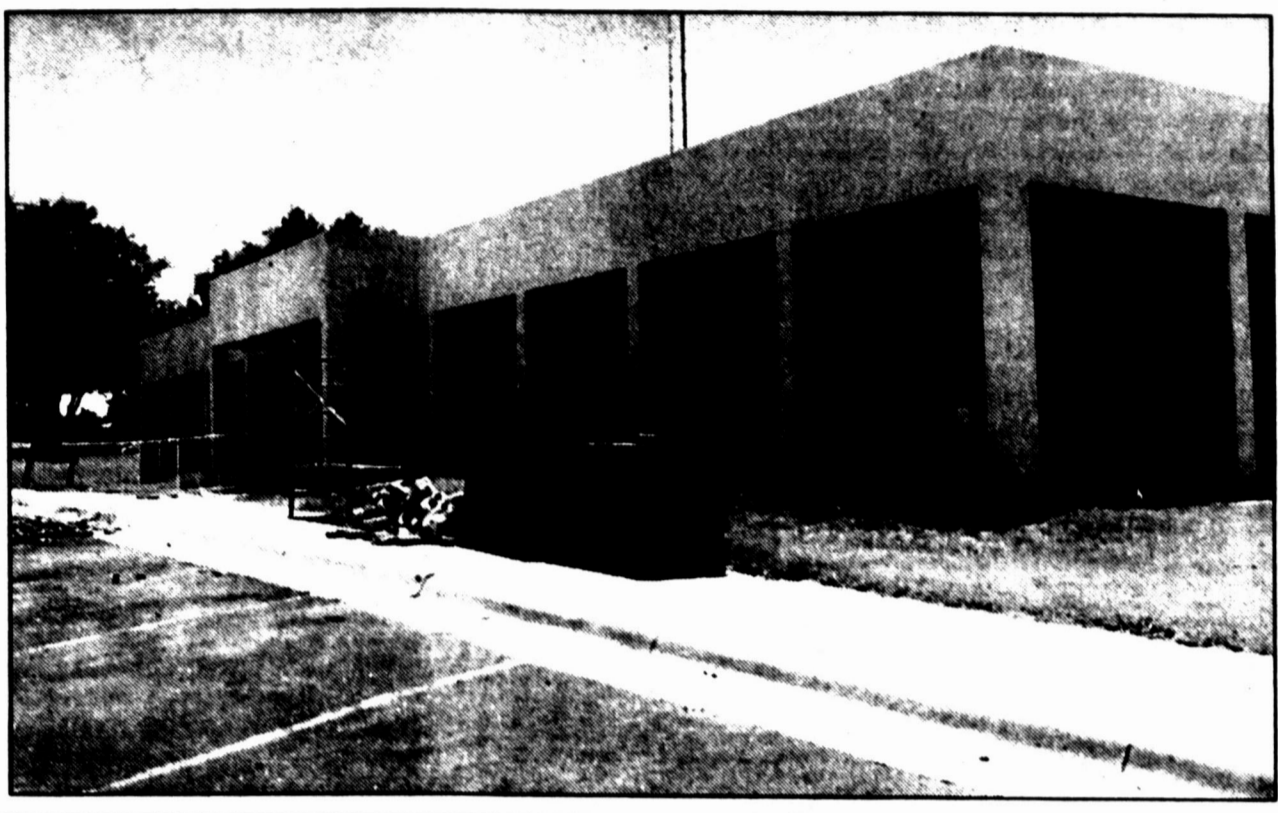

"Producers should call for an appointment since we expect a large volume of requests in a short period of time," Orr said. For more information contact the Donley County FSA Office at 806-874-3561

Two men drown at Greenbelt

Two Amarillo men lost their lives in separate accidents last weekend at Lake Greenbelt.

Preliminary autopsy results indicate that both men died from drowning according to Donley County Sheriff Jimmy Thompson.

Deputies responded to a call Saturday night that Richard Clay Anderson, age 17, of Amarillo had drowned near the bluffs at the lake according to officer reports.

Witnesses told officers that Anderson had been swimming and appeared to be in trouble. Two friends, Chris Propes and James Smith, tried unsuccessfully to save the young man. The victim's body was recovered by the Amarillo Police Department Search and Recovery Team at 2:21 a.m. Sunday.

In an unrelated accident, 38-year-old Curtis Fields, Jr., was reported missing about 6:00 a.m. Sunday morning by his wife.

Lake patrol officer Faylon Watson said Fields and his wife frequently visited the lake to camp and fish.

The Amarillo man had been sleeping and fishing near water's edge when she went to bed the night before but was gone the next morning, Watson said.

Game Wardens Robert Greenwalt of Shamrock and Gary Self of Childress recovered Fields' body about 30 feet from shore at 2:55 p.m.

Regional impact of drought may hit $462 million

AMARILLO — Area farmers and ranchers aren't the only ones getting burned by this summer's drought. Recalculating incoming crop and livestock loss figures that change almost daily is keeping the phones humming and the calculators hot, says James D. Sarwelle, III, risk management economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in Amarillo.

"Unless the rains start coming, it will stay that way, too," he said.

According to Sarwelle, the damage that has been done to date will cause an estimated $137.5 million in direct losses to producers. In turn, losses in the Panhandle are projected to reach $462.5 million. These figures include producer loss and resulting losses for industries associated with harvesting, transporting, processing, and marketing of agricultural and food products.

"The area's corn crop is being hit hardest by the drought," Sarwelle said. Damage done to irrigated corn crops has reached the 20 percent mark, while dryland corn crops received unlimited losses. The total direct loss to producers is an estimated $79 million.

For other crops, direct losses are projected at: sorghum - $24.2 million, cotton - $28.8 million, soybeans - $2.5 million, and peanuts - $3 million.

Lack of moisture has affected range and pasture conditions to the point many cattle producers are faced with procuring additional pasture for their stock, supplemental feeding, or herd reductions. According to the recent USDA crop condition report, 68 percent of area pasture and rangeland received a poor to very poor rating.

"To date, widespread supplemental feeding or liquidation has yet to occur, so the cost of these activities aren't included in the loss estimates for the region," he said.

"In the absence of timely rains in the very near future, area cattle producers face tough decision soon," Sarwelle concluded.

Beth Barbee is a summer communications intern at the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center at Amarillo.

Ambulance Authority to hold variance meeting

There will be a variance meeting for Associated Ambulance Authority on August 4, 1998, at the Fire Station at 7:00 p.m., and the public is invited to attend.

The purpose of a variance is when a community is unable to meet specific staffing and/or equipment requirements as set forth by the laws of Texas and EMS rules the Texas Department of Health may issue a "Variance."

Such variances allow licensed providers to operate EMS systems while they strive to comply with the laws and EMS rules of Texas. At this time the Authority has little coverage during day time hours because of personal job commitments. For this reason, they have asked the Department of Health for this variance.

They ask that the public be at this meeting to give support to this issue.

NFU hails labeling of imported meat

WACO—The Texas Farmers Union praised the Senate passage two weeks ago of legislation to require labeling of imported lamb and beef products.

The Meat Labeling Act was adopted by unanimous consent as an amendment to the fiscal year 1999 agriculture appropriations bill.

The legislation will require identifying labels on imported, U.S.-produced and blended products of both U.S. and foreign origin. The legislation also provides for voluntary labeling for ground beef and lamb, as well as study of ground-meat labeling practices, due to the difficulty in determining the source country of ground meat.

"Mandatory meat labeling is long overdue for farmers and consumers alike," said Texas Farmers Union President Sims. "Consumers know where their car, their clothes and their computers come from. They also have a right to know where their food is produced," he said.

"Moreover, our farmers produce the safest and highest quality food supply in the world. Labeling will allow consumers to support that proud tradition," added Sims.

Hedley graduate serving his country in Lithuania

by Robert K. Fredericks, staff writer, Navy Public Affairs Center in Va

KLAIPEDA, LITHUANIA — In a country far from their homeport in Cherry Point, North Carolina, a detachment of Marines, elements of the Seabees, and Army National Guard construction engineers have traveled to assist Lithuanian engineers on a variety of projects on Lithuanian military bases and in the nearby town of Klaipeda.

Located near the Baltic Sea, in a country that just recently gained its independence, these highly trained men and women are here for one reason to make a difference.

Johnny B. Hoggatt, son of Johnny and Kathy Hoggatt of Clarendon, and 21 other Marines from 2nd Marine Air Wing Support Squadron 271 are participating in Operation Baltic Castle 1998. The operation is in conjunction with the international Partnership for Peace.

Having just graduated from Hedley High School, Hoggatt didn't feel ready for college, but he now feels that he is learning a valuable trade and many other lessons of life in the Marine Corps.

"I am a combat engineer. I do mostly construction, but I also do demolition," said the 21-year-old lance corporal. While serving in the Marine Corps, Hoggatt has also gained many valuable life-coping skills. "The Marine Corps have taught me leadership, honor, and commitment," he said. Although being a Marine has helped Hoggatt grow personally and professionally, he may not opt to stay in the Corps. "I plan to enlist in the reserves and beyond that I don't know what I will do." Long after Hoggatt leaves the Marines the teachers and students of the local schools, the people who visit the clinics and the children in the orphanage will continue to appreciate his hard work. In return, Hoggatt will have the satisfaction of a job well done and fond memories of his time spent helping others.

Historic Texas courthouses among 11 most endangered US sites

AUSTIN — Last month, the National Trust for Historic Preservation added 225 historic Texas courthouses to its 1998 list of "America's 11 Most Endangered Historic Places." The National Trust concluded that historic Texas courthouses are national treasures threatened by neglect, deterioration, lack of maintenance, insufficient funds, inappropriate development or insensitive public policy.

The Donley County Courthouse is included among Texas' most historic courthouses.

Governor George W. Bush, citing the need to preserve historic county courthouses, unveiled his Texas Courthouse Preservation Project initiative during the National Trust announcement. As part of this initiative, a newly created Courthouse Preservation Working Group was named. The group, along with the Texas Historical Commission (THC), will be seeking broad statewide input on ways to assist and support communities in restoring and renovating their county courthouses.

Texas has more historic county courthouses than any other state, with 225 that are 50 years old or older. More than 200 still serve as the hub of county government, despite the fact that many of the buildings are in various stages of disrepair. Comprehensive information about historic Texas courthouses, including a detailed listing of all historic courthouses in the state, can be found on the THC's web site: www.thc.state.tx.us. For more information, contact Stan Graves, Division of Architecture, Texas Historical Commission, (512) 463-6099.

Stavenhagen also reported that she and Judge Hall had contacted Brad Patterson with the THC to obtain information for organizing local efforts to begin the work needed to preserve the courthouse. Patterson recommended that a master plan be developed with the help of a preservation

Reader encourages people to vote during Medical Center election

Dear Editor,

I would like to encourage the property owners of Donley County to practice their right to vote on August 8, 1998, concerning the possible sale of the nursing home. You, as property owners, are the ones who bear the burden of subsidizing the operation of MCNH. While it is true that things are improving at the nursing home, the fact remains that the home cannot support itself apart from your local tax dollars.

This binding vote gives you, the voters and property owners, the final decision on whether or not to sell the facility. Please do not make this important decision based on fear or gossip, but rather please educate yourselves as to the facts of the options.

Please make your votes count on August 8 or in early voting.

Rippetoe named CC Computer Tech Instructor

Lee Rippetoe has been named Clarendon College's instructor of Computer Technology, according to CC Dean of Instruction Dr. Myrna Cassel.

Rippetoe joins Clarendon College after serving as a drafter designer for the Zachary Corporation at Phillips Petroleum in Borger and with the CDI Corporation at Celanese in Pampa.

As Computer Technology instructor, Rippetoe will prepare students for careers in computer networking and maintenance.

"Computer technology is the key to the future in business and industry."

Rippetoe said. "Network administration is growing rapidly in all areas. My goal is to provide students with hands-on and academic computer skills necessary to enter the workforce or to continue in a computer related field at a four-year university."

Rippetoe attended Texas State Technical College, where he earned an associate's degree in computer-aided drafting and design. He is currently pursuing his bachelor of applied arts and sciences degree with an emphasis in Computer Information Systems from West Texas A&M University.

Put politics aside and help areas hit hard by the drought

Ask a lot of folks in our part of the country what they need most right now and they're likely to tell you a good rain and higher commodity prices.

The drought is putting a real squeeze on farmers and ranchers trying to make a living. Economically, it's figuring to be even worse than the drought we had back in 1996.

I think we've finally convinced some people in Washington how serious the situation is. I've worked with other members of Congress from agricultural districts to write a bill that would make over $5 billion dollars available to farmers later this fall. The plan works like this:

Issue Update with Mac Thornberry

Each year, farmers receive two transition payments from the federal government as part of the 1996 farm bill. The plan would move next year's payment up, giving farmers the option of receiving their contract payment for 1999 in one lump sum as early as October 1, 1998. The plan would serve as kind of an interest free loan, and would put money in farmers' pockets sooner than other proposals being discussed.

The House of Representatives should pass the bill in the next two weeks. Clearly, this isn't everything we need. But it is a start. Perhaps more important, it's a sign that we're finally getting through in convincing people that something needs to be done to help farmers in our area deal with the drought.

Up until now, some people have been trying to play politics with this crisis. That is wrong. Congress and the Clinton Administration need to work together to do what's right for farmers. The government can't make it rain. But it can help farmers cope with a major national disaster.

This plan is the first step in doing that, and will likely be the first of other agriculture-related proposals coming out of Congress in the coming weeks.

AAF awards scholarships to Donley County students

The Amarillo Area Foundation has awarded scholarships and awards to 193 area students totaling over $198,000 for the 1998-99 academic school year, announced Sandra Gilliland, Chairman of the Foundation's Scholarship Committee.

The scholarships award represent a variety of donor interests including academic, accounting, athletics, medical, and service.

Eighty-four of the recipients are renewal scholarships from the previous year, and 109 students are new recipients, Ms. Gilliland said.

Students from 24 of the 26 counties of the Texas Panhandle were chosen to receive the awards. The following students residing in Donley County have been awarded scholarships from the Foundation.

Thomas W. Justiss was awarded a renewal of the Bush Accounting Scholarship. He was one of ten previous recipients that were approved for renewals. Mr. Justiss is attending West Texas A&M University.

Ms. Alicia D'Womack was given a renewal of the Senator Grady and Andrine Hazlewood Scholarship. Ms. Womack is attending West Texas A&M University.

architect. The plan should account for long range renovations starting with the repairs that need the most immediate attention.

Patterson also suggested that the local historical commission assist the county by seeking monies from grants and foundations.

Moore County Judge Schumacher, who was recently appointed to the Governor's Courthouse Preservation Working Group, has been contacted regarding the needs of Donley County's courthouse. A copy of the report from the THC was mailed to Schumacher to examine before her meeting with the Governor's Group in August. Stavenhagen will be attending a four-day grant writing workshop in Austin which will cover all aspects of fund raising, including where to find funding, how to approach foundations, and how to write convincing proposals.

Runyon's $82,000 parties mean same attitude at USPS

WASHINGTON — The combination of elegant expensive farewell parties for former Postmaster General Marvin Runyon and approving a billion-dollar first class mail hike while "thumbing their noses at Congress," means Postal Service executives are continuing their reckless attitude about our money, according to the nation's largest coalition of first class mail consumers.

The Washington Post reported (7/3) that two farewell parties for Runyon — one at grand Union Station complete with a band, wine and a two-entree dinner — cost $82,508.

While unwitting postal customers were picking up that check, the agency's executives were in the midst of claiming they needed to raise first class mail rates by a billion dollars despite four years of record profits. Now approved, that increase will take effect Jan. 10, 1999.

"The non-stop parade of Postal Service events that demonstrate a complete lack of respect for spending controls or guidelines at the agency is appalling," said Earl Heath, chairman of the board of the Association of Retired Americans which is a member of the Coalition to Make Our First Class Mail FIRST CLASS.

"The source of this attitude obviously comes from the very top of the organization as we have watched the Postal Service Board of Governors thumb their collective noses at Congress — which passed a no-stamp hike resolution 393-12 — and approve their billion dollar increase in first class mail rates.

"These new revelations of hugely expensive galas thrown at our expense should finally make Congress aware that the final authority over first class mail rates, and consequently influence over the Postal Service purse strings, must be given to the independent Postal Rate Commission."

Among numerous examples of wasteful spending, the coalition has previously criticized the nearly quarter of a million dollar swearing-in ceremony and office remodeling for the new Atlanta postmaster, $266 million in 1997 for 'image' advertising and $7 million spent on a new logo.

More information on the coalition is available at www.firstclassmail.org.

The Coalition to Make Our First Class Mail FIRST CLASS has more than 200 member organizations representing more than five million Americans. They include the National Association of Realtors, National Grange, National Minority Business Council, (NMBC), American GI Forum, National Federation of the Blind and the American Farm Bureau Federation.

mittee, which consists of agricultural science teachers from each FFA area, five representatives of the agricultural industry, and two teacher educators appointed by the Texas Education Agency. The selected students all demonstrated academic excellence and strong leadership skills throughout their high school careers. All Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo FFA scholarship recipients must pursue a degree in agriculture or life sciences at a Texas college or university.

Vet Notes

by Guy Ellis, DVM, Clarendon Veterinary Hospital

Howdy folks! We at Clarendon Veterinary Hospital hope you are having a wonderful, hOT summer. These drought conditions are tough on everyone including our animals, and the future is not looking bright. In our livestock, let's keep in mind certain soil born diseases including Blackleg and Tetanus. These problems are prevented with vaccination. Blackleg most commonly will affect your best looking calves. This is why an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure!

Forage toxicities can be disastrous as well during drought conditions. Certain sorghum and weeds can accumulate nitrate and cyanide during these times and sample testing prior to turnout may be beneficial.

Finally, our dreaded enemy rabies. Rabies is a viral disease that can affect most of our domestic pets and livestock.

It is an untreatable disease that affects the central nervous system of animals and people alike. It is transmitted from several wild animals including skunks, coyotes, racoons, and the fox. Most people that have contracted rabies get it from pets or livestock that were bitten by one of these animals.

There are two forms of rabies, the "furious" form which we are all aware of because of the vicious nature of these animals, and the "dumb" form where an animal is in a state of more or less depression. Either of these forms of rabies is deadly in animals as well as in humans.

This hit close to home the past few months when two cases were diagnosed in Canyon (a puppy and a kitten) and most recently two cases around Friona (a horse, and I believe a skunk). The puppy in Canyon was initially thought to have a neck injury before the diagnosis of rabies was made. Thank goodness for the rare diagnosis because one of the owners was in labor having a child at the time. All people that came in contact with the puppy received treatment and are fine today. Although most of the rabies problem in Texas is in the southern region near San Antonio, it is still alive and well here. Let's prevent problems with vaccination once a year and hopefully keep this deadly disease under control.

If you have any questions regarding these or any problems you may have, please feel free to call us at 874-3544.

Twenty-five individuals have been accepted into the 1998-99 Clarendon College Ranch & Feedlot Operations program, according to Jerry C. Gage, RFO Director.

"I'm very satisfied with the young people we have selected," Gage said. "We feel our program is well-received in the agricultural industry, and we strive to formulate our courses to fit the business."

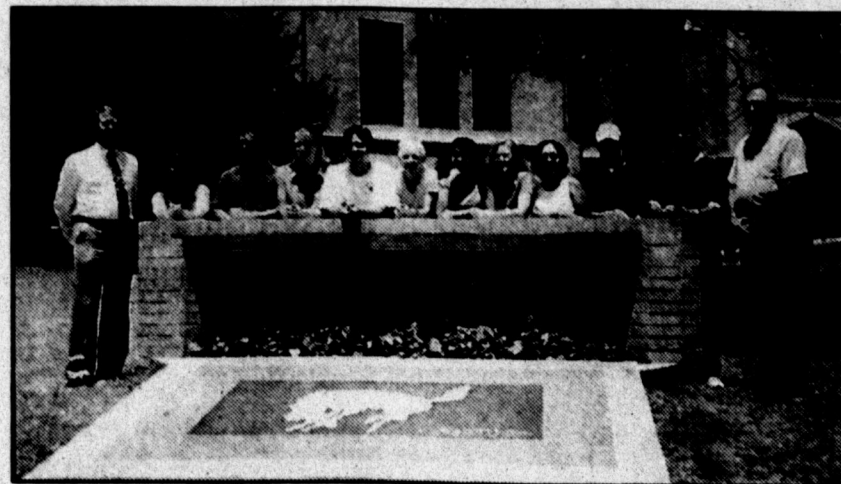

Individuals accepted into Clarendon College's RFO program include: Eric Bartlett, Lockney; Brenda Barrett, Hereford; Brian Barrett, Hereford; Jackie Bell, Wellington; Michael Blount, Plains; J.C. Bridges, Dimmitt; Keith Bronikowski, Hempstead; Jason Davis, Boys Ranch; Austin Dunn, Tulia; Cliff Foster, Snyder; Justin Gray, Las Cruces, NM; Ronnie Hale Jr., Jayton; Ryan Harkins, Hereford; Ben Hight, Tucumcari, NM; Kevin Hill, Boys Ranch; Dustin Johannsen, Beaver, OK; Jerome Johnson, Burns

Flat, OK; Jorae Salas, Wheeler; Vavle Scargrough, Sierra Blanca; Jeremy Schumacher, Hereford; Cody Self, Sulphur Bluff; Shannon Sides, Canyon; Shea Weatherly, Wheeler; Jason Wheeler, Pampa; and Zia Yniguez of Silver City, NM.

Established in 1974, the CC Ranch & Feedlot Operations program allows students who are interested in ranch or feedyard-related careers to gain new knowledge and technical skills to meet the needs of coping with today's complex agricultural programs.

An exclusive program, RFO students must complete academic coursework, as well as, extensive fieldwork conducted on ranches and feedlots.

During the program, it is not unusual for a RFO student to have logged more than 8,000 miles across Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, and New Mexico by visiting top ranches, feedyards and agricultural centers.

Physicals for all athletes set for Aug. 1

Physicals for all athletes are scheduled to be at the fieldhouse on Saturday, August 1. Boys' physicals will be from 9:00-11:00 a.m. and girls' will be from 11:00-1:00 p.m.

Cost of the physical will be $5.00. You will need to bring your form with you and make sure all the appropriate information is filled in. It must be signed by your parent or guardian and turned in before you will be allowed to practice.

Physicals are required for all incoming 7th graders and 9th graders and anyone who required surgery or was hospitalized during the past year. If you are an incoming 9th grader or 10th-12 grader and already have a physical on file, it will still be necessary for you to fill out the Medical History on the back side of the physical form. You will also need to fill out and sign with your parents the Acknowledgment of Rules form. Everyone must fill and sign it. It has nothing to do with your physical or medical history form.

This is not just a football physical. Anyone who participates in a UIL athletic sport must have a physical on file. If you are playing football, it would be best to turn in these forms before practice starts on Wednesday, August 5.

Two-a-day football practices will begin on Wednesday, August 5, at 7:30 a.m. You will need to show up earlier so that you can check out your clothes, helmet, and shoes. Our two-a-day workouts will actually be finished by lunch time. Make note of the schedule: first practice, 7:30-9:30 a.m.; break, 9:30-10:15 a.m.; second practice, 10:30-12:30 p.m.

High school practice schedule will be from 7:30-9:30 a.m. and 10:30 a.m.-12:00 p.m. on the following days: Wed, Aug. 5 through Sat., Aug. 8, and Tues., Aug. 11, through Wed., Aug. 12. One evening practice will be held on Monday, Aug. 10. Practice on this day will be in the evening only. School begins on Thursday, August 13.

Practice will not start for junior high football players (incoming seventh and eighth graders) until the first day of school.

Thornberry receives award from food distributors

WASHINGTON, DC — US Representative Mac Thornberry (R-Clarendon) was honored Tuesday at a ceremony hosted by Food Distributors International, a trade group representing more than 260 companies.

Representative Thornberry was presented with the food distribution industry's 1998 Thomas Jefferson Award, given to members of Congress who have voted consistently in support of sound fiscal policy, minimal government regulation, and other free-market principles crucial to the health of the food distribution industry and our nation's economy as a whole.

Of the several hundred votes cast during the 105th Congress in 1997-98, Food Distributors International selected nine votes on issues that it considers critical to the interest of the food distribution industry and to the economic well-being of the nation. Recipients of the 1998 Thomas Jefferson Award voted favorably on at least 75 percent of these votes.

Among the key issues were the balanced budget, the tax limitation amendment to make it more difficult for Congress to raise taxes, and legislation to grant inside sales employees an exemption from the overtime requirements.

"The Thomas Jefferson Award is our opportunity to recognize the members of Congress who have shown their support for business and have worked to create a government that allows our industry to prosper," said Robert Stauch, Chairman & CEO, Fleming Cos., and FDI Chairman.

In addition to Representative Thornberry, 214 other members of the House of Representatives received the 1998 Thomas Jefferson Award.

National quilt designer featured at seminar Aug. 19

by Sue Church, County FCS Agent

Quilts by contemporary artists or those of bygone days are considered masterpieces today and can be seen in museums around the world.

"A single design can have infinite variations in terms of color, fabric texture, and placement in any quilt creation," said Sharon Heidingsfelder of Little Rock, AK, who will be the feature speaker at a quilting seminar "Setting Your Imagination Free" at the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center, August 19th, from 10 a.m. to noon.

Admission is $5.00 with proceeds going to the Eveline Rivers Christmas Project. The event is sponsored by the Potter County Extension Family and Consumer Science Committee.

Noted for achievement in contemporary quilt design and creation, Heidingsfelder's a nationally recognized expert and book author in this specialized area of creative crafts.

Her topics will include discussion of techniques and procedures for entering shows, differences between juried and judged competitions, and the qualities judges look for in award-winning quilts. Tips will be offered to participants wanting to sharpen their quilting skills.

Heidingsfelder's a professional educator with the Arkansas Cooperative Extension Service and a specialist in human environment education. She creates and markets her own contemporary quilts throughout the country in her spare time. Among the museums displaying her work is the Arkansas Art Center's Decorative Arts Museum in Little Rock. She's also the recipient of fellowship grant from the Arkansas Arts Council.

For more information, contact Alby Peters, family and consumer sciences agent with the Potter County Extension Service at (806) 373-0713.

Unclaimed Property Auction catalogs now available on-line

AUSTIN — "About 185,000 unclaimed items with an appraised value of approximately $525,000 will be auctioned on August 15 in Austin. A catalog listing all of the items for sale is now available from my office," State Comptroller John Sharp announced.

"The Unclaimed Property Auction Catalog is also available at my Window on State Government site <http://www.window.state.tx.us>," Sharp said.

"The web site allows potential auction bidders to quickly search for items they are interested in. For example, a fountain pen collector could learn from the computer which of the more than 600 auction lots contain fountain pens — even a particular brand of fountain pen," Sharp said.

"With a click of the mouse, computer users can see pictures of many items in the auction. Due to printing costs, more photos are available on-line than in the printed version of the auction catalog," Sharp said.

The Unclaimed Property Auction will be held at 10 a.m. on August 15 at the Travis County Exposition Center, located at 7311 Decker Lane in Austin. Interested bidders may preview the items in the sale on August 13 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and on August 14 from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

"Just a few examples of the items to be sold include 162,913 collectible coins and currency, 392 gold coins, 4,521 stamps and paper items, 178 pocket watches, and 2,065 rings," Sharp said.

"The items to be auctioned come from abandoned safe deposit boxes that have been turned over to the state by banks and financial institutions that have been unable to locate the box renters for five years," Sharp said.

To receive a copy of the Unclaimed Property Auction Catalog, send a check or money order for $5 to: Comptroller of Public Accounts; Attn: Auction Catalog Sales, Room 233; 200 East 10th Street; Austin, Texas 78701.

Hallmark of American West may not be what is seems COLLEGE STATION — They used to roam the prairies in thousands, and their profile stood regally on nickels. However, today's bison may not be all that it seems to be.

By testing today's herds, a molecular geneticist at Texas A&M University has found that bison may actually be part cattle. Dr. James Derr began studying the genetics of bison a couple of years ago under a grant from the National Science Foundation. What he discovered is that a number of herds of bison contained animals that looked like bison; however, they had detectable levels of cattle genes.

The genes found were those with mitochondrial DNA, which is only inherited by the daughter from the mother. Derr's research team found that some bison that have domestic cattle mitochondrial DNA. These animals have cattle in their family tree back about 100 years ago.

In the early 1800s, thousands of bison roamed American prairies. However, by the latter part of the century, these had been reduced to a mere handful by Indians, then by hide hunters and governmental mandates to kill off the Indians' main food source.

By the turn of the century, there were only about 20 bison in Yellowstone National Park, and about 200 animals in five private herds. The owners of these five herds were interested in preserving the bison, but also were intrigued by the possibility of producing a better beef animal. Crossbreeding domestic cattle with bison produced offspring; however, the hybrids tended to be "top-heavy" and lacked the improved production characteristics the cattle producers wanted.

"All of the bison we have today in the national parks or the state parks or in private herds, all stem from some bison in those five founding herds that were present around 1890," Derr said.

Today, bison number about 400,000 head in the United States, and through present-day technology, geneticists are able to trace their lineage.

"If you're managing a bison herd to conserve the species, it only seems reasonable that you would want to save the animals and perpetuate the animals that are not hybrids to begin with," Derr said.

By comparing DNA from the tail hairs of present-day bison to DNA found in the long bones and teeth of circa-1850 skeletons from "jump sites" (where bison were run off cliffs to kill them), Derr and his assistants were able to compare the mitochondrial DNA.

"Mitochondrial DNA is a different kind of genetic system than we're usually interested in," Derr said. "After hybridization of a female domestic cow and a bison bull, that hybrid will have complete domestic cattle mitochondrial DNA. As long as that female lineage continues to have daughters, then that mitochondrial DNA from domestic cattle will stay in bison populations forever."

The sire contributes nothing to mitochondrial DNA.

Derr said different herds differ in the amount of hybridization that has occurred. "There's some herds where 100 percent of the animals in the herd have detectable levels of domestic cattle genes. Other herds may be 20 percent or 15 or 5 percent," he said.

The Yellowstone herd is probably, historically at least, the most important herd in the United States. In addition to the 22 animals in the herd at the turn of the century, other bison were added from the Charles Goodnight herd in Texas and other private herds.

Thus far, in all of the 30 to 35 animals tested — and the herd has not been tested extensively — there is no evidence of hybridization, Derr said.

When the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department (TP&WD) inherited bison from the original Charles Goodnight herd, it had the herd tested before it moved the herd to the Caprock Canyon State Park about a year ago. Goodnight, known from his ranching and conservation efforts, also was noted for his crossbreeding efforts.

Six of the 34 animals were hybrids. The animals were removed from the herd and may come to Texas A&M for further research to see if they have any more cattle characteristics, Derr said.

Research will continue to determine how many North American bison are hybrids and the significance of the cattle genes.

Fingerprinting bacteria now made easier

HOUSTON — Better methods for "fingerprinting" the DNA of bacteria are making it easier to quickly identify the source of infectious-disease outbreaks.

Like humans, bacteria have unique DNA, the chemical building blocks comprising their genetic code. Scientists can fingerprint bacterial DNA with a technique called PCR, polymerase chain reaction, which makes millions of copies of DNA from a tiny sample.

Researchers at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston are studying an improved version of PCR fingerprinting called repetitive sequence-based PCR. This technique can make multiple copies of different sizes of DNA fragments. The pattern of fragments acts like a fingerprint, similar to the bar code on products in the grocery store, that identifies the bacterium.

"It's like working with several pieces of a jigsaw puzzle already joined together instead of individual pieces," said Dr. James R. Lupski, a professor of molecular and human genetics and of pediatrics at Baylor.

The specific pattern of DNA fragments, or "fingerprint," increases the likelihood of quickly finding bacteria with matching fingerprints in a DNA reference library, Lupski said.

"This information can save lives when health officials are trying to trace the origin of an infectious disease that makes large numbers of people sick in a hospital or restaurant."
