Beef Cattle Ass'n. Holds First 1960 Meet

The Rolling Plains Registered Beef Cattle Association held its first meeting of 1960 at the Country Club in Clarendon, Texas, on the evening of the 30th of April. A western style dinner was served to 150 persons, among this group were the consignors of bulls to last years sale, directors of the association and officers and guests of the association. The Farmers State Bank of Clarendon, Texas, was the host of the group and put on the barbecue for the occasion. Flip Breedlove, County Agent, and Secretary of the Association, with his crew did the barbecuing and cooking.

After the barbecue was served the group met in the club house and held a business session with President W. H. Cooke, III, presiding. Mr. Cooke introduced Mr. J. D. Swift, President of the Farmers State Bank; Mr. Van Kennedy, Vice President; Mr. Walter Taylor, Vice President, and Mr. E. Simmons, Vice President, who made a talk for the bank and stated that the Farmers State Bank was always ready to assist in the progress of Donley County and the Panhandle of Texas. He complimented the organization on their last year's bull sale and pledged the support of the bank for the 1960 sale to be held this coming December.

The financial report was made by Mr. H. A. Green and a secretary's report by H. M. (Flip) Breedlove. Election of officers was held for 1960 and Mr. W. H. Cooke, III, was re-elected president, Bill Bradley of Memphis was elected Vice President, H. A. Green of Clarendon was elected Treasurer, John Knorpp of Clarendon was elected Sales Manager and H. M. Breedlove was elected Secretary.

The organization will hold another meeting in late May to select directors for 1960 and to set up the dates and complete organization for the bull sale in December. Last year 61 bulls were in the sale and in 1960 the organization expects around 100 bulls to be entered for sale.

IMPROVED RURAL LIVING AIDED BY COMM. EFFORT
 More than 900 rural communities in Texas are finding community improvement projects easier to accomplish when everyone joins hands in helping each other. Reagan Brown, extension rural sociologist, says 213 of these communities are now participating in the Texas Community Improvement Program sponsored by electric utility companies in the State and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

All over Texas neighbors are working to help make their community a better place in which to live, Brown continues. It is hard to tell the difference in Texas communities because they all have the same aim — improvement. The goal of each is to help their neighbors and themselves to brighten their community life.

"When I attend a community improvement meeting, the faces look the same, whether in East Texas, the Panhandle or along the Rio Grande," Brown says. "They all look happy and you find yourself thinking, 'This is a good neighborhood in which to live and raise a family.' These words mean a lot. In fact, no greater compliment can be paid a community than to say it's a good place to live."

Improving a neighborhood is hard work, Brown points out. It's a job that's never completed. Improvement requires vision, study, ingenuity, initiative, a cooperative spirit, and plenty of elbow grease. The reward in neighborhood development, the sociologist concludes, is seeing your community go forward and become a better place in which to live.

Messer - Neeley Vows Exchanged

Thirteenth and Bowie St. Church of Christ in Wellington was the setting for the wedding of Miss Virginia Ellen Messer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Messer of Wellington, and Jack R. Neeley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Z. J. Neeley, Sr., of Quail, at five o'clock in the afternoon April 23.

Minister John Gay read the double ring ceremony before a background of greenery and lighted tapers in branched candelabra.

Music was provided by an A capella group using traditional wedding songs.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of white dull lustre satin. Designed by the bride and made by her mother, it featured a princess style skirt slightly gathered at the hipline to a fitted bodice. The draped neckline above a pleated front inset was held in place by a satin rose, the center of which held a 48-year-old locket belonging to the maternal grandmother. Side gores of the skirt were attached to a shirred center front panel and featured bias bands with hand rolled edge which were held in place by clusters of hand made satin roses at the hipline. A larger cluster of full-blown roses accented the center back below the row of tiny self covered buttons which fastened the back of the bodice. Elbow length sleeves were caught up with a satin rosebud. A coronet of satin roses and leaves held her elbow-length veil of tulle. She wore white satin mitts and carried an orchid atop a white Bible surrounded by white feathered carnation with satin streamers. She carried out the traditional something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue, and wore a lucky coin in her shoe.

Mrs. Billy Hill of Clarendon, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmatrons were Mrs. Z. J. Neeley, Jr., of Amarillo and Mrs. John Alf Thomas of Shamrock. All wore street length dresses of blue cotton satin designed with shawl collars and side-gathered skirts. They wore blue cotton satin mitts and carried blue carnation on a white fan arrangement.

Best man was Glen Harris of Quail. Groomsmen were Gano Wilson of Quail and Benton Wander of Wellington.

Candle lighters were Ann Messer, sister of the bride, who wore a dress of blue crystalline with a self-fabric rose at the midriff and a wristlet of blue roses and David Handley of Amarillo, nephew of the groom.

Flower girl was Angela Messer of Hedley. She wore a dress of white flocked nylon with blue sash, a headband of blue roses and tiny blue mitts.

Ringbearer was Jackie Brack of Wellington, nephew of the groom. He carried a white satin heart shaped pillow holding the rings on a satin rosebud.

Bride's mother wore blue lace with white accessories. Groom's mother wore a dress of navy darcron with black accessories. Both wore corsages of white carnations.

Reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Brock in Wellington. The three tiered wedding cake was cut by the bride and groom and then served by Mrs. Ronald Kersten. Mrs. Troy Marsh poured punch. Guests received miniature bags of rice tied with blue ribbon.

For traveling the bride wore a black sheath dress with black and white checked jacket with white accessories and the orchid from her bouquet.

The bride was graduated from Quail High School in 1957 and from Clarendon Junior College in 1959. She was an outstanding 4-H Club and FHA member while in high school. While attending Clarendon College she was a member of Phi Theta Kappa and was employed at Adair Hospital. Prior to her marriage she was employed as secretary of the radiology department at Hendrick Memorial Hospital in Abilene, Texas, under Dr. V. H. Shultz.

The groom, also a graduate of Quail High School and Clarendon Junior College, is employed at the Wellington State Bank, where the couple will make their home.

The bride is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Simmons and Mrs. T. N. Messer of Hedley.

Dear Will:

Thanks for your letter. Yes, I have seen one of the pamphlets your opponent is distributing which quotes you in a statement about big business and free enterprize. According to the pamphlet your statement was made in this newspaper on December 12, 1957.

As you asked, I have carefully examined the issue of this paper which was published on December 12, 1957. THERE IS NO SUCH STATEMENT IN THAT PAPER. My permanent files are on record here for anyone to examine.

I certainly do not appreciate your opponent's use of this newspaper in his political propaganda, particularly when it is not true.

Truly yours,

BLOWIN' Out the CORNERS

"Fetching up" our children should be a full time job, and one of the most serious responsibilities that we as parents have in this busy and confused world we call today. In thinking about this subject we remembered the old expression we would hear when some young person turned out to be wayward and unruly. Folks would say that he had had no "fetching up."

Even though we hadn't heard the expression in a long time it seemed to hold a hidden meaning for us. We decided to see what the dictionary had to say about it. One of the first meanings of the word "fetch" is to "bring to a desired state." Come to think of it, in that light, perhaps we should never have dropped the expression.

Realizing that the greatest blessing that can come into our lives would be that of children. With this wonderful blessing comes the responsibility of taking that little "bundle from heaven" in that given state which we receive it, and "bring to a desired state." It's sort of like being given the ball and told to carry it forward toward a certain goal. To do this we need to have a set goal, and we need to put in the necessary time and training to do the job.

In this busy, complex, and prosperous world it is so much easier to express our parental love with a car and an expense account rather than companionship and training by example. It seems excusable sometimes to busy ourselves with their financial future, leaving the moral and spiritual to the churches, schools, and organizations of society. We shouldn't do it. Our children, being our greatest joy of today, our only hope for tomorrow, means that they rate our very best in "fetching up."

We wonder if, we the people, remember the good that folks do during their life for a longer time than we do the bad or, do we just remember more of the bad for a shorter length of time? This question has bothered me for a long time and we never seem able to fully convince our own self which statement is true.

For instance, take George Washington and Abraham Lincoln, who had their troubles, ups and downs, along with the best of them, and now we mostly remember only the good things about their life.

Then, take the modern day presidents and statesmen and we can hardly mention anyone of them in any group without stirring up a tirade of unfavorable comments from a large percent of the group. Lately, we have thought that more and more nice things are being said about President Wilson and his administration, and even the much talked about President Hoover is being quoted more and more, especially his bits of philosophy.

Mostly, we seem inclined to believe that the good sticks in our minds and hearts for a longer time, and the bad tends to play out after awhile. Even during the lifetime of one of our neighbors we sometimes magnify his faults to the point of even talking about them. When we pass for their body in the church, after their death, we remember only the good. At least the good stands out more predominantly.

If this be true, it would seem that we should try harder to see the good in a brother when we just pass in the aisle; alive, that is.

Are you the old-fashioned type cook?

Perhaps there are slight variations from this rule but it seems that cooks fall into at least three types or maybe we should say models. Take the 1959 model for instance; she can whip up a meal in no time at all with a simple twist of the biscuit can, a package of cake mix, and a serving or so of some delicious one-dish frozen dinners. Some of them may even know how to cook otherwise but they are at their best when they let loose on all these modern inventions.

Then, let's go back to say about the 1929 model. She started out by learning all that she could from grandma and then kept collecting and trying new recipes until her cabinet looked like the auditing department of a country store. Believe me she could cook with the best of them, and still can.

Going back another 30 years we see the grand old model which so many of us call mother or grandmother. She didn't go in much for written out recipes but baked from a long time of experience by trial and error. Not long ago we heard one of the 1959 models ask the old-fashioned cooks how she went about making one of her most successful dishes and this was her answer; "Oh, I just put in a dab of this, and a pinch of that, along with a lot of the things that make it good. Just sort of like you would make so and so only richer." My, but we love all cooking by each and every fashion.

Smile and the world smiles with you, get hurt and you groan alone.

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE 18TH DISTRICT

By Congressman Walter Rogers

One Bureaucracy Leads To Another

As many of you know, the Congress again faces a series of measures which would put another nail in the coffin of individualistic government. I've received a good many letters from folks who are understandably concerned about the craving that many of our leaders have for bigger and better bureaucracies. Many of you protest legislation which would put the federal government more and more directly into the affairs of the towns, cities, and counties of the 18th District. But efforts to centralize and enlarge the government in Washington seem to have become so commonplace that many forget just what a big-and-getting-bigger central government can really mean. Many people all over the country seem to have grown so accustomed to seeing new bureaucracies in Washington that they no longer grasp even the fundamentals and causes of the basic problem.

Now I've never said that local governments should only do the things they want to do with no regard for all the people. I think that the idea which brands everything in the federal government corrupt, insincere, or foolhardy is highly undesirable. I've seen our country's political system, working properly as it usually does, carry out some of the finest measures that history has ever seen a government produce.

But whatever else might be said about the size to which government has grown, two things are painfully clear. The first is that NO agency or bureau can successfully work in the best interests of all the people. When a job is turned over to the federal government you may be sure that a great many people somewhere will be short changed. Second, and perhaps most important, federal bureaucratic control almost inevitably becomes and end in itself and means a disheartening reduction of millions of people to the "average." Our people always get either more than they want or need, or they are not allowed to get as much as they could if left to themselves. Not many folks fit the "median" which the government seems to so habitually establish.

There are, of course, many reasons for the agitation favoring more of this government manhandling. These reasons are all derived from commonplace developments and features of our life, but are quite deceptive in ways they are then applied to support this or that legislation.

First, since more and more families are moving from one state to another, the advocates of centralism argue that the federal government should establish laws, educational systems or whatnot, thus placing conditions in one state on a level with all the others. This ignores the fact that many families aren't moving across a state boundary every six months.

A second impulse behind the call for more government is the notion that an individual state can't or won't do something on its own. In most cases this is pure nonsense. The people of Texas can be proud of the advances which have been made in their own ways and without coaching by Uncle Sam's hopeful salesmen of more "this is good for you" legislation.

Third, many parts of the country are forced under the federal wing simply because people in another region genuinely need help. Powerful interests in one section of the country may be so strong that the Congress is drawn into the belief that a certain program would be good for everyone. But I have always felt that the people who really need help could get it faster and better from a government closer to the problem than Washington ever could be.

Finally, we have the familiar "special" or "emergency" measures which are urged on us to help solve some short range difficulty. They somehow always seem to be around years later. The "wartime" transportation and communication taxes are an example of this situation. The government often seems to be so captivated with "temporary" interference that it can't bear to part with even an outdated parti-

PREVENT COTTON SEEDLING DISEASE

From $15 to $20 net profit an acre may be expected when in-the-furrow fungicides are used at cotton planting time to control seedling disease.

The value of seed treatment to prevent seed rot has been known for many years. However, seed cle. This sort of thing is not only unnecessary, but grossly unfair as well. Resisting the almost incessant efforts to enlarge the federal government's share in local affairs is more than a matter of sheer determination on the part of a few people. It rests primarily on the ability of all of us to be willing to depend on ourselves once again.

HELIUM

You may recall that one of my recent newsletters dealt with the subject of legislation I introduced which, if enacted into law, would make it possible for private industry to develop facilities for the extraction and conservation of helium. This bill passed the first major hurdle last week when it was reported favorably from the full House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs.

treatment does not prevent seedling disease. This disease, more commonly known as "soreshin" or "damping-off," each year takes its toll of cotton seedlings and thus reduces stands and yields later in the year. It is caused by fungi which live in the soil and attack young seedlings from the time of germination until true leaves begin to appear on the young cotton plants.

In 1953 research was started by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station on the use of fungicides in the furrow and covering soil at planting time. From this work, a new method of control for seedling disease was developed. The method helps reduce risks and helps take guesswork out of cotton farming. Cotton growers who have fields where seedling disease in the past has been a problem should consider the practice.

The purpose of using in-the-furrow fungicides at planting time is to provide disease protection for the young sprout before and after it comes through the soil. A combination of captan, zineb and PCNB is suggested for general use in all areas. This combination can be applied as a spray or dust. Nabam is applied as a spray and can be used where soils have a pH of 7.3 or below.

Here are other practices which are also helpful in reducing seedling disease. Plant high quality seed which have been properly treated; plant in a good seedbed at proper depth and rate for the area; use recommended fertilizer placement and plant when soil temperature and moisture are favorable.

Local county agents can supply detailed information on the in-the-furrow method and also on other subjects related to cotton production and disease control.

A large crowd turned out for the Candidate Rally Thursday night at the Goldston Community Center. Mr. W. H. McDonald was Master of Ceremonies and introduced the candidates. Each made a short speech, and a bid for his election.

FACTS ABOUT SCHOOLS

In view of aggressive efforts to pass federal aid-to-education bills, a statement made last September by Senator Goldwater, ranking minority member of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee, deserves national attention:

"During the past 5 years, the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee has held many days of hearings on bills which would provide Federal aid to the States for the construction of schools. And yet, there has never been one State school officer, when closely questioned by members of the committee, who admitted that his State could not adequately take care of its own classroom shortage. This point is well illustrated by the fact that during the past 10 years, 500,000 classroom have been built in the United States, 71,600 alone in the school year of 1957-58 . . . It is obvious that the States and local communities are doing an excellent job in maintaining the pace required to house adequately our growing school-age population and they are doing this job without the help of the Federal Government. It is also obvious that the States and local communities can continue to meet their school building requirements without any assistance whatsoever from the Federal Government."

GEORGE'S WIFE
By "Sarah"

"Public Relations or Peasantry" is the name of a booklet written by Ed Lipscomb, Director of Public Relations, National Cotton Council of America.

One chapter "I'm Not Involved" . . . involves us all. Here in part are Mr. Lipscomb's ideas.

Since less than half of the nation's farmers are directly concerned with the programs and crops which are the most prominent target of current attacks, it would be natural for many of the remainder to feel that they have no major interest in the matter, and no reason for special fuss or bother about it.

To yield to such a temptation is to take a head-in-the-sand position which leaves vital and tender parts conspicuously exposed. A man does not need to grow cotton or corn or wheat in order to share the consequences of continued public antagonism toward agriculture. The public is going to determine not only what happens to particular farm programs, but it will determine the treatment farmers receive on all sorts of subjects from foreign trade policies to marketing rules to rural roads.

This is no rifle-shooting situation in which clear distinctions are being made between one kind of farmer and another. It is more of a buckshot barrage. When newspapers excite subscribers with tables of figures showing food costs in 1959 as compared with 1939, they do not bother to explain that bread is made from wheat which has a price support and that liver comes from live stock which do not. We have even seen coffee and tea prices included, with the implication that U.S. farmers are responsible for these, too.

City people are concerned with taxes, installment payments, places to park, the cold war, and the high cost of high living standards. They do become interested, it is true, but only when a farmer's problem becomes, quite concretely, their problem. An excellent example is the present interest of the public in agriculture surpluses. If the man in the street had been concerned over these as a problem for farmers, he would have been concerned long ago. He would not have withheld his complaints until he found that these surpluses represent several billion dollars of tax liability, that it takes another billion or so each year to store them, and that the end is not yet in sight.

GRASSROOTS OPINION

Victorville, Calif., News-Herald: "To spenders, all government projects are important. But are they always as important as the private spending they prevent? Excess taxes represent un-built factories, new businesses not started, new clothes for the kiddies not bought, operations postponed and many other things that 'might have been' were taxes not so high."

A memorial fund has been given in memory of Mr. Jeff Talley. Even if we are not interested in prison reforms and prisoner rehabilitation because it is humane, we should be for such a program because of the savings in dollars and cents. That is, how much more it costs to maintain our antiquated prisons and punishment for the sake of revenge, than an enlightened program. For those who are interested or who would like to become interested we have "The Presidio" the Iowa State Prison monthly magazine. Erle Stanley Gardner once wrote that no one could read this fine magazine for a few months and ever be able to again think of people in prison as belonging to a race apart. Two books written by men in prison: "In For Life" by Tom Runyon and John Resko's "Reprieve," give a good picture of prison life and some of the men in them. Before you have time to think, "since those are written by prisoners, of course, they are going to be biased," there are three written by men and a woman from the other side: Warden Lewis E. Law's "Twenty Thousand Years in Sing Sing," "The San Quentin Story" by Warden C. Duffy and "Warden's Wife" by Gladys Duffy. Can we accuse them of slanting the case for better buildings, etc., and sound rehabilitation programs? Is there something shameful in trying to make a person a better man while he is paying his debt to society?

We are not only a Christian nation but believe in human rights yet this is what Ann Landers, author of America's most popular human relations column wrote about Russia's penal system after a recent visit: "When I inquired about the penal system in Russia, I learned it is one of the most enlightened and advanced in the world. This represented a challenging adjustment in my thinking. It was astonishing that a country whose archaic laws trample on the basic rights of the people should be so advanced in terms of punishment."

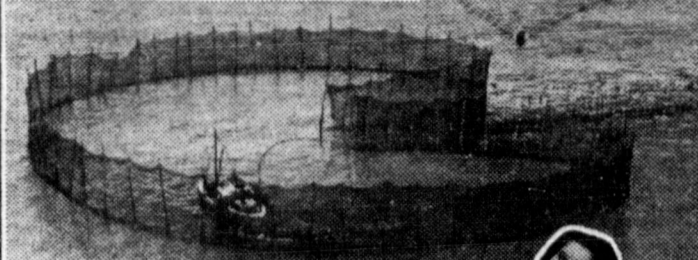

"Russian prisoners are often rehabilitated. They work and learn. They are paid $100 a month, $80 of which goes to the family. Thus a prisoner's family does not become the ward of the state. If a prisoner has no trade when he enters he has one when he leaves and is well equipped to be a useful citizen. The cell system has long been abolished and prisoners sleep in dormitories."

Writers must be a patient lot as they keep pounding away at public unconcern and disinterest until they finally get enough interested to make a start.

A. Pollard, vice president of Council for Financial Aid to Education.

GRASSROOTS OPINION Clarissa, Minn., Independent: "The swelling population will be needing new buildings, new roads, new products, new services — more of everything. And it will take more workers to supply these needs. But it will also take more money, much more money, to pay for them. "The best way to provide growth money without inflation is through a combination of individual savings and prudent government spending." Leader—Local rate, $3.00 a year

"CUSTOMER CONTROL" OF EDUCATION

Writing in Nation's Business, Felix Morley says that the decade we have just entered will probably show much-needed improvement in the quality of public education. Throughout the country school discipline is becoming more firm and instruction more exacting. Then he makes this significant observation: "The movement up from educational decadence, it should be emphasized, has not come as a result of federal aid. The effort to have public instruction increasingly financed, and therefore increasingly controlled, from Washington continues. But this year it seems more feeble. There are no longer any valid arguments for taking the financing of education away from the localities, where the knowledge of both school needs and school accomplishment is naturally most complete."

Taxpayers everywhere have shown, by their vote, that they are willing to put up whatever money is needed for first-class public education. But they are also demanding, in every increasing numbers, that frills and extravagance be eliminated — whether they consist of ridiculously expensive physical plants or "life adjustment" courses that would bore any intelligent and ambitious student to death and that have no place in a meaningful educational system.

Mr. Morley also says, "If funds for the public schools were derived from federal taxation . . . there would be no need for county or municipal bond issues in this field and therefore no customer control over educational vagaries." The result would be waste of money on a gigantic scale — and, worse, declining educational standards as the Washington bureaucrats put their pet theories into practice. "Customer control" is essential both to good and fundamental education and to properly-priced education.

GRASSROOTS OPINION

El Dorado, Kans., Times: "It is incredible that in less than six years the federal highway program should have snowballed so far out of hand that now its estimated cost is 73 per cent over the original staggering figure of $23 billion."

"The 40,000-mile interstate highway program was a glittering dream — one worthy and appealing. But, like other before it, it has turned into a spending nightmare."

"All those starry-eyed enthusiasts who believed that the one-cent additional federal gasoline tax which Congress imposed not long ago to 'save' this program was 'temporary,' can now go stand on their dizzy heads."

Elect ASSOCIATE JUSTICE

ROBERT W. CALVERT

Chief Justice TEXAS SUPREME COURT

★ Member of the Texas Supreme Court since 1950
★ Only candidate with Supreme Court experience
★ Preference of lawyers of Texas in Bar poll by nearly 2 to 1 (Pd. Tol. Ad.)

From a bank balance of $50,000,000 in 1956, the last Legislature has plunged the State of Texas to $80,000,000 in the red. To operate at a deficit is even against the State Constitution.

The 1959 "do nothing" Legislature left the State government in a mess. They got carried away with the new air conditioning system and wanted to remain in session continuously. And the present representative who is seeking a third term, did nothing to speed up the legislative process in spite of the fact that he was ready to vote for just any tax bill as was publicly stated in the Official House Journal.

It is time to return the State to the "true Democrats" and honest representation.

DPS RELEASES ANNUAL STATISTICAL REPORT

Fifteen of every one-thousand Texans were injured in traffic accidents during 1959, the Texas Department of Public Safety reported in the release of its annual statistical report booklet on motor vehicle accidents.

In presenting the 1959 "fact book" Col. Homer Garrison, Jr., DPS director, said that 2453 persons died in traffic collisions in Ben Talley and children visited Mr. and Mrs. Alton Webb and family Saturday night and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Ivey visited Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Hott Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Williams spent last Sunday in Borger visiting his brother, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Heathington visited Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Ivey Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Ivey and Jannie visited their children, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Ivey and family and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hall and family of Pampa Sunday.

Texas during the year 1959. He said death took a holiday only one day, with Dec. 2 being the state's only motorcade free day. The state's worst tragedy of the year he said was a two-car head-on collision in Hidalgo County Feb. 15 killing 10 persons which occurred not far from Alamo where the most disastrous traffic accident ever recorded took the lives of 29 persons in 1940.

The statistical report was prepared by department Statistician N. K. Woerner who kept records on more than 340-thousand accidents during the year. The traffic accidents occurred at the rate of one every 92 seconds; a person was injured every 4 minutes, and a person was killed every 3 hours and 34 minutes.

In referring to the "death calendar" as one of the most interesting portions of the booklet, Garrison pointed out that Nov. 14 was the most deadly traffic day of the year with 24 persons killed in 8 fatal accidents. He also said there were 23 days when 15 or more motorcades occurred.

Motorists traveled more than 125-million miles per day in Texas last year. This rate jumped the year-long total up five per cent to an all time high of 46,052,600,000 vehicle miles.

Candidates are not in sufficient abundance this year to impress this fact upon the voters. Now with only a short period remaining, many of them are surprised to learn that not one out of a hundred voters know when the elections are to be held.

Those who are campaigning have not failed to stress the earlier voting dates. First primary will be held on Saturday, May 7. The run-off, if any should be necessary, is scheduled for June 4.

If you are going to be out of town during the first primary election, May 7, you have from now until May 3 to vote absentee for that election.

After May 3 you must go to the polls if you want to vote. For those living in a county seat town, the simplest procedure is to go by the county clerk's office. If you do not live in the county seat, you can write the county clerk for the necessary forms.

Voting in the Democratic primaries is essential to participation in other Democratic party activities this year. No one will be allowed to take part in a Democratic precinct convention unless he has a poll tax that has been stamped "Democratic." Poll tax holders must vote in the primary, absentee or at the polls, to get their poll taxes stamped.

This new section of the election law was designed to keep out so-called "one-day Democrats" who participate in Democratic primaries and conventions and Republican conventions, too. People who go to the GOP precinct conventions will have their poll taxes stamped "Republican."

This shuts the door on their having any part in Democratic Party affairs until they get a new poll tax.

An intensive campaign has been under way for several weeks to educate voters to the new procedures and dates and the importance of their voting and coming to precinct conventions.

DOOR KNOB COSTS CUT — Amid a statewide hullabaloo over the cost of hardware came a quiet explanation that the door knobs in the State Office Building really cost only $3.65, not $36.00 apiece.

H. R. Nieman, executive director of the State Building Commission, said the cost of all the hardware for the building — including automatic closers, locks, keys, hinges and doorstops for 1,000 doors — came to $36,000.

Nieman, who was not with the building commission at the time the State Office Building was constructed, called the hardware cost "well within reason."

Nieman's statement punctured a story that had been the subject of almost as many jokes as Pappy O'Daniel's flour barrel. It got started when a House committee on tax saving investigated the building which had cracks in the lobby's terrazzo floor.

Sightseers had come, almost as to a museum, to look at the highly publicized stainless steel knobs.

TROUBLES EVERYWHERE — If sunny weather and disappearance of the flu has you feeling secure and content, the State Department of Health has bad news. Health officials warn of three separate menaces:

1. Rabies is one the increase — up 33 per cent from this time last year. During the first three months of the year 219 positive cases were diagnosed.

2. It's the measles season with Travis County (Austin) leading the state with 250 cases reported. Nueces County (Corpus Christi) reported 205 and Galveston 172.

3. Stinging caterpillars are about and will be around feeding on trees and shrubs until fall. Health Department officials particularly urge parents to warn their children not to pick up the fuzzy, fascinating moth larvae. Stings should be treated as bee or wasp stings — by cleaning with alcohol and covering with calamine or other soothing lotion.

OIL SLUMPS FURTHER — Texas oil allowable has been further reduced to a permissible flow of 2,574,894 barrels a day for May.

An eight-day producing pattern, as low as at any recent time, was set by the Railroad Commission.

A number of independent producers ask for an even sharper cut to seven days. They said the industry was going into a lower-demand season with too much oil on hand.

Recent crude oil price cuts have intensified the general gloom of the Texas oil industry. It raises, too, the probability that tax revenue from oil will fall substantially below expectations.

CRIMINAL CODE CHANGES — Directors of the State Bar of Texas approved recommendations for extensive changes in the Texas Criminal Code.

But they took a "make haste slowly" view about taking the proposals to the Legislature. If enacted, the revisions would bring about considerable change in the way criminal court trials are conducted.

Bar directors suggested the proposals might be voted upon by lawyers and studied in seminars over the state before presentation to the Legislature in 1963.

Recommended changes would allow 11 jurors to return a verdict if one juror had to drop out and would leave the locking up of juries in criminal cases to the discretion of the judge.

LOAN SHARK INJUNCTION UPHOLD — Texas Supreme Court upheld state action against several loan companies accused of charging excessive interest.

It was the first test in the state's highest court in a field where the state has filed 365 suits against loan companies for charging more than the legal maximum interest.

In other action, the Supreme Court ordered the participants in a fight over grazing rights in the Davis Mountain State Park to start all over with a new trial in district court.

At odds over the matter are the State Parks Board, which leased the land for park use, and owners of grazing rights on the land.

Owners of grazing rights locked the gates to keep the public from using the park for horseback riding. Parks Board declared this impaired its use as a public park.

Supreme Court said there was error on both sides and ordered a fresh start.

In cowboy terminology the box panner is a flat, narrow wooden box, usually covered with green rawhide with the hair on and lashed to the packsaddle to carry camp equipment.

CONDITIONS FAVORABLE FOR MESQUITE CONTROL

College Station — Mesquite robs 55 million acres of Texas rangelands of precious moisture and plant nutrients each year. Often it is necessary to control mesquite in order that the ranch achieve and maintain the highest production.

The ranchman seeks the most economical control of mesquite consistent with highest livestock production, and at the same time conserving natural range resources. A variety of chemical and mechanical methods or a combination of them can be used to solve individual problems.

"Mesquite Control" is a new extension publication which goes into detail on the different chemical and mechanical methods of control which can be used. Extension Range Specialists G. O. Hoffma and B. J. Ragsdale, author of the publication, point out that grass recovery usually is much slower on mechanically controlled areas than where mesquite is controlled with chemicals. However, some brush plants, generally various kinds of underbrush, cannot be controlled with chemicals because of their resistance to selective herbicides.

When selective herbicides are used for mesquite control, resistant plants may make faster growth and become a greater problem than when mesquite was the dominant brush.

Mechanical methods for mesquite control include hand grubbing, rolling choppers, root cutters, anchor chains, bulldozers, shredders, stingers and root plows. These methods should be practiced during the season when existing turf can make the fastest recovery and obtain the highest degree of brush kill. Reseeding with adapted native grasses at the time of mechanical operations which break the turf is necessary for fast and permanent range recovery.

Chemicals which may be used include kerosene, diesel oil, and growth regulators. Two good growth regulators are 2,4,5-T and monuron. If 2,4,5-T is used, utmost care must be taken in its application. The publication discusses the steps which must be observed.

WASHINGTON AND

"SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

There is growing an uneasy feeling along the Potomac that the farm problem is going to break out into the cause celebre of a big fracas.

With government farm programs taking more and more of the taxpayer's dollar . . .

With government farm programs taking more and more of the taxpayer's dollar . . . of merely storing government owned wheat now approaching the million and a half dollar per day level, many think it inevitable that a show-down will come on this matter.

Recently the Agriculture Department came out with its annual report showing that net farm income last year dropped 16 per cent. This is at a time when the consumers cost for foods reached an all time high.

Many silly things are happening. In the tier of states along the Canadian border, American bakeries are losing their shirts trying to compete with baked bread sent across the border from Canada. The Canadian bakers buy wheat on the open market in Canada. They are cutting under U. S. price as much as 50%.

Now the question becomes quite complex. If the taxpayer is paying more and more to support farm prices, and still the farmer is getting less, yet at the same time, housewives pay more and more for food, things seem quite out of kilter.

Yet at the same time, in the food processing and distribution field, more and more mergers go on. Supposedly, according to the theory that has been touted for many years by the public relations men of Madison Avenue, the bigger something gets the lower prices it can bring the consumer.

Yet despite this huge growth of bigness in the past few years, the farmer gets less net income, the taxpayer pays out more to help him get less income, and the consumer pays more and more for food.

This set of circumstances is the major reason why men like Senator Humphrey, Senator Sparkman, Senator Schoepel, Rep. James Roosevelt and others are hammering at the Federal Trade Commission to do the job that agency was instructed to do by Congress.

That job is a thorough and complete probe of situation existing in the food industry.

It has long gone past the stage of being an open secret that powerful distributive forces in food field are demanding, and getting, amazing concessions in prices, discounts, cumshaws such as free trips abroad, free autos, et al.

This "cumshaw" is not being given to the independent merchant. In addition, the cost of it is being taken out of the farmer's hide, and out of the shopper's basket.

Yet it very much appears FTC is trying in every possible way to avoid carrying out the Congressional instructions. It is not difficult to get the facts. In this particular situation, FTC cannot use usual plea for negligence of duty on basis not enough money is appropriated. Food brokers in practically any city could fill the FTC in on the entire story.

Information in the guide can serve you in two ways. It can be used as a guide for estimating expenses and income for individuals considering starting a cow-calf operation. Also, it can serve as a basis for calculating expenses and income of individuals now operating a cow-calf enterprise.

In a cow-calf operation, the capital investment — money invested in land, buildings, equipment and cattle — usually is high. Research shows that land values have increased at the rate of about 4 percent per year for the past 25 years in the East Texas area. While an individual considering buying land for a cow-calf operation would contemplate changes in land values, no allowance for these changes was made in the calculations in the guide.

Local county agents have copies of the guide. It may also be obtained from the Agricultural Information Office, College Station. When writing, ask for MP-398.

Today's Health, a magazine of general circulation published by the American Medical Association, warns that woolen blankets can be a source of disease in the wintertime. The blankets can harbor disease germs that cause flu, sore throats and similar illnesses because the low-temperature washing recommended is not enough to kill the germs. To combat the danger, the magazine recommends that the blankets be soaked briefly in a water and disinfectant solution before being laundered; that they be laundered regularly; that they be covered with bedspreads while in use, and that they be disinfected after illness.
