"A Paper Dedicated To Building A Better Future For Clarendon And All Of Donley County"

Veterans memorial dedicated

Donley County pulled out all the stops last Thursday as hundreds gathered on the courthouse square to dedicate the county's Veterans Memorial and to listen to one of World War II's greatest heroes.

The formal ceremony was opened by the chairman of the Memorial Committee, Jack Moreman; and welcoming remarks were given by County Judge W. R. Christal and Clarendon's Mayor Steve Smith.

Bailey Estes, chaplain of VFW Post 7782, delivered the invocation. An Honor Guard made up of representatives from all the armed forces of the United States presented the colors, and local Eagle Scout Louis Ellerbrook led the "Pledge of Allegiance." Jim Shadle then sang the National Anthem.

U.S. Rep. Mac Thornberry praised the soldiers who gave their lives saying, "Nothing I could say today could speak as loudly or as forcefully as what these men have said."

Corinne Lucius presented a selection of patriotic songs.

The highlight of the ceremony was the keynote address delivered by Major John Keith Wells.

Wells, a Lakeview native, led the group of Marines that took Iwo Jima and raised the American flag on Mt. Suribachi. That moment has come to symbolize U.S. victory in the war with Japan. It has been immortalized in one of the war's most famous photographs and with a monument in Washington, DC.

Wells led his platoon of Marines against entrenched Japanese forces and ultimately defeated them. He told the audience that he was wounded in the battle and that his troops carried him to the top of the mountain so he could oversee the securing of the island.

Wells said that when he joined the Marines he always felt the United States was some far off, distant thing. That was not why he was fighting; he was fighting for home.

"I'd fight the whole Japanese army for Lakeview, Texas, and the surrounding area," Wells said.

After Wells' speech, the most solemn occasion of the afternoon came.

Committee members laid a Memorial Wreath before the monument, and "Taps" was played by high school band instructor Todd Baker.

The dedication ceremony added extra meaning to the annual celebration of Independence Day, showing without a doubt the true value of our Liberties.

Clarendon petition approved by PUC

Clarendon's petition for Expanded Local Calling received the recommendation of the Public Utility Commission's ELC coordinator, Linda Hymans, this week.

A memorandum from Hymans states that she has recommended approval of the petition for ELC service to Amarillo, Pampa, Lakeview, Memphis, and Wellington.

The next step in this process is for GTE customers in Clarendon to be balloted. The ballots will most likely appear in August phone bills.

ICA issue plea on behalf of Texas cattle industry

AUSTIN — The Independent Cattlemen's Association of Texas (ICA) is appealing to the Texas congressional delegation for help in fending off federal banking regulators who have imposed strict cashflow lending guidelines that are strangling the state's family ranchers.

In a letter to the delegation, ICA President Jim Selman notes that Texas ranchers are currently facing an unprecedented threat to their livelihoods due to the extreme drought, low cattle prices, record feed grain prices, foreign competition, and possible market and price controls by the meat packing industry.

Selman's letter warns the delegation that, "If we stand idly by and do nothing, a principal part of the heritage of Texas - our family farmers - the guardians of our most precious renewable resources will no longer be on the land and may be lost."

Selman states that banking regulators are imposing strict, arbitrary cashflow lending guidelines that are creating new lending barriers - preventing ranchers from getting the money they need to get past the crises they now face.

While acknowledging cashflow lending may make sense in overheated speculation-driven industries, the letter points out that it does not make sense in a capital-intensive, low-margin industry such as cattle ranching.

"Ranchers are having to resort to borrowing cash to avert liquidating their principal productive asset, their 'mamma cows,' an asset the market has devaluated by up to 80 percent because of the combination of disasters facing us," Selman said.

"We are not asking for a handout," Selman emphasizes in his letter. "We are asking you to take whatever steps necessary to authorize direct lending at a rate of interest in excess of inflation. As long as sufficient value is present to insure repayment, there is no danger to the taxpayer and no danger to the Treasury.

"We ask your assistance," Selman adds, "to avert a disaster that does not have to happen."

Jamboree to be held Saturday

The Saints' Roost Jamboree will be held July 13, 1996, at the Bairfield Activity Center on the Clarendon College Campus in Clarendon. The program is scheduled to begin at 7:00 p.m. and admission is free.

The Jamboree is held the second Saturday of each month. Musical entertainment consists of area and local musicians who play and sing gospel, blue grass, and country/western music.

The Jamboree is sponsored by the Clarendon Chamber of Commerce. The entertainment is for all age groups; and young people, as well as older adults, are urged to participate by being a member of the audience or as talent in the show.

Numerous door prizes will be awarded. Those who attend will receive a numbered ticket which will be randomly drawn throughout the evening to select prize winners.

If you like good music, come join the fun at the Saints' Roost Jamboree on July 13.

Sts. Roost Celebration successful

Clarendon and visitors enjoy delicious barbeque & fine parade

This year's Saints' Roost Celebration was very successful all around.

The events began on Thursday, July 4th, when the Al Morah Shrine served a delicious barbecue lunch to an estimated 1,400 people on the courthouse square.

The Clarendon-Donley County Chamber of Commerce parade committee, Frank Amon, chairman, Debbie Howard, and Bobbie Thornberry, recruited numerous entrants for the July 4 parade. A large number of floats traveled this year's parade route.

Military groups represented all branches of the service. There were also a number of antique cars, buggies, fire equipment, and riding groups such as the Cal Farley's Boys Ranch Riders.

This year's float winner was Patients First Home Health Care of Wellington, Texas. Congressman Mac Thornberry served as Grand Marshal.

In addition to parade participation, the Chamber of Commerce sponsored the Tri-State Attractions Carnival. Committee members for arrangements were Gerald Owens, Gerald Mulanax, Don Stone, and Pat Archuleta. Twenty percent of the proceeds go to benefit the Chamber of Commerce as sponsoring organization.

Wes Thomas, chairman for the Old Settlers Reunion and music, arranged for musical presentations throughout the morning. Local and area musicians provided a variety of selections for entertainment. Approximately twenty people participated.

Cow Patty Bingo was somewhat less successful. Although the cow remained in the pen for several hours, it chose not to perform until re-entering its trailer for the ride home. It is with much regret that there was no winner.

As always, the Outdoor Entertainment Association did a great job with the rodeo and dances.

On Friday, July 5th, the Clarendon Merchants Association held their Fourth Annual Bicycle/Tricycle Parade and Depression Lunch.

Andrew Burns, Shawna Barker, Corey Barker, and Jessi Jo Lewis were the winners of the kids' parade, and more than 200 people were served at the beans and cornbread Depression Lunch.

On Saturday, July 6, Hensons hosted the annual Turtle Race with a total of 223 entries in three age groups. Dakota Lindsey, Cody Scrivner-Thomas, and Otis Scrivner-Thomas had the champion terrapins.

The Saints' Roost Museum also had a fine turnout for its open house and free Sloppy Joe Supper.

Winners in the 4th Annual Merchants Bicycle/Tricycle Parade were Andrew Burns, age five; Shawna Barker, age eight; Corey Barker, age 21 months; and Jessi Jo Lewis, age 4. Each of the winners will receive a $50 savings bond courtesy of First Bank and Trust and The Donley County State Bank.

CISD hires new athletic director

Clarendon CISD superintendent Phil Barefield has announced the employment of Darrell "Tooter" Draper as the school's new athletic director and head football coach.

Coach Draper comes to Clarendon after serving as athletic director/head coach of the Tahoka schools for two years. He and his wife, Shelia, have two sons, Ryan (age 3½) and Heath (age two).

Draper was reared in Crane, Texas, and completed his Bachelor of Science in Physical Education at Sul Ross State University in 1990. He started his teaching and coaching career with a two-year stint in the Grandfalls-Royalty ISD. He then served one year in the Culberson county ISD in Van Horn, Texas, before completing three years in the Tahoka system.

Coach Draper is in the process of getting settled in and completing his coaching staff. He encourages both students and community members to drop by the field house and get acquainted.

Winners in the 1996 Hensons' Turtle Race were Otis Scrivner-Thomas, Dakota Lindsey, and Cody Scrivner-Thomas. Each of the young men will receive a $50 savings bond from Hensons.

Ag conference outlines issues facing farmers in the twenty-first century

A score of critical issues facing agriculture, together with dozens of steps to help address them, were identified by leaders from all parts of Texas during the recent two-day conference in Lubbock on "The Farm Bill and Beyond."

Top issues discussed were education and assistance in managing risks of production, learning to deal effectively with volatile and unpredictable changes in supply and demand, conserving and developing natural and human resources, and working together to strengthen financial support for agriculture.

The conference was held to help producers, others in agribusiness, public officials, and community leaders understand implications of the recent overhaul of federal farm policy and find ways to adapt. It was hosted by the Texas Agricultural and Natural Resources Summit. Other sponsors were the Texas Agricultural Forum, the Agriculture Program of the Texas A&M University System, Texas Tech University, and the V.G. Young Institute of Government.

Agricultural and environmental leaders will gather again November 14-15 in Kerrville for the Texas Agricultural and Natural Resources

Summit III. It will focus on resource use and environmental policy for the 21st Century.

The more than 300 participants at the Lubbock conference divided into five discussion groups to hammer out the list of major concerns and suggest possible answers. Each group focused on a particular area: livestock; crop production of cotton, rice, peanuts and sugar; crop production of wheat, feedgrains, oil seeds, forages, fruit, vegetables and other crops; lenders, suppliers and processors; and community and natural resources.

Each group prioritized its issues, selected the top four or five, and proposed strategies to address those.

For livestock, the key issue was the "volatility and unpredictability of grain supplies and prices," reported chairman Pierce Miller of San Angelo. Among the suggested strategies for addressing this were to encourage elected officials to eliminate programs which prevent free market determination of grain prices and educating livestock producers to use available purchasing and risk management tools.

The group considering cotton, rice, and other crops "had about 29 issues... which we honed down to the main issues," said chairman J.B. Cooper of Roscoe. Heading their list was helping producers deal with risk management. Strategies called for research into revenue assurance options for commodities and research "to qualify and quantify" risk management strategies before they are implemented.

The big issue for the wheat, feedgrains crop group, said chairman Jack Eberspacher of Abernathy, was "flexibility to plant alternative crops, specifically dry cowpeas, on disaster acres." One strategy called for the conference leaders to ask the secretary of agriculture why dry cowpeas was included as a vegetable commodity.

Lenders, suppliers, and processors tagged as their key issue improvement in federal service and broader participation in guaranteed loans. To achieve this, they urged the financial community to approach the Farm Services Agency and offer support and assistance in training of agency employees.

"In the restructuring and reorganization of the FSA there is a potential for people who are in production as opposed to the former operations to be mixed into the lending Farmers Home Administration

Cost of Govt. Day No Reason for Fireworks

By Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison

"Cost of Government Day" arrived on July 3 this year, but none of us should be celebrating. This grim date marked the point, counting from January 1, when Americans had earned enough in gross income to pay off all direct and hidden taxes — the cost of their federal, state, and local governments, plus the cost of regulation.

The total cost of government in 1996 is estimated at nearly $3.38 trillion — nearly a third of which is hidden regulation — or more than $13,000 for every man, woman, and child in America.

How has this happened? It is the result of government's mistaken notion that it can put Americans' money to wiser and better use than they can. "Tax and spend" is by now a familiar refrain that reveals an uncomfortable truth — government raises taxes to increase spending. Federal spending and tax rates have increased consistently and steadily for the past 40 years. The federal government will spend about $200 billion this year over and above what it takes in, and that still doesn't satisfy government's insatiable appetite.

It has become far too easy for government to spend money and even easier to tax families for more. Congress is trying to reverse this trend. Had Congress' Balanced Budget Act been signed into law, American families would have enjoyed real tax relief; nearly 29 million families would have been able to keep more of what they earn this year.

What difference would the Balanced Budget Act have made?

Many would have enjoyed a $500 per child tax cut. Newlyweds wouldn't have had to learn the unpleasant truth about the marriage penalty. Families who bear the responsibility for taking care of elderly grandparents would have received a $1,000 credit for a custodial care. Homemakers would have been able to set aside $2,000 per year, tax free, in individual retirement accounts. Students who pay interest on their schools loans would have benefited from as much as a $2,500 deduction for their annual interest payments. Those who are paying on home mortgages would have saved an average of $1,880 a year as a result of lower interest rates a balanced budget would produce.

The cost of regulation is the other factor in this government-out-of-control equation. This is the hidden tax — the stealth tax.

Washington University Center for the Study of American Business reports that the United States now employs the largest regulatory workforce in the history of our country 130,929 people — a 28 percent jump from the 1985 level of 96,000 people.

Government regulations cost US businesses $600 billion a year to comply with all the red tape — and smaller firms bear a proportionately greater share of this burden.

The federal government, alone, is responsible for more than $739 billion in hidden regulatory taxes this year.

"Cost of Government Day" this year, July 3, 1996, was just one day earlier than "Cost of Government Day" 1995 when Americans stopped working for the government on July 4. At this rate it will be 2075 before we can stop working to support our government and begin working for ourselves on the day we pay our taxes, April 15.

Clarendon School Tax Rate Compared

By Phil Barefield

From time to time the burden of our local tax rates are compared to other entities within the Panhandle area. This is a common practice no matter where you live. It is, however, quite troubling when you hear someone say that they are not going to locate in our community because our tax rates are too high, comparatively speaking.

While it is necessary to maintain an adequate tax rate in order to provide the services and personnel needed to provide a quality school system, Clarendon CISD has maintained a relatively low tax rate.

Listed below are the results of a survey of school districts in the upper Panhandle rural counties recently completed for 1995.

Dear Editor,

You've seen them on our highways and streets, the notorious menaces of public safety that make you want to scream when you see them. They aren't highway robbers but the pokey motor operators or "Sunday Drivers" off on a joy ride, plodding along at moped speed on the fast lane of the freeway. They come out unexpectedly and seem to frequent the highways when urgency is upon us. The severity of the need dictates the number of sluggish drivers dispatched en route to your destination, ruining any chances you have to arrive promptly.

If you are a few minutes behind schedule, and need to be at work or at a scheduled appointment, it never fails to find yourself behind one of these "Sunday Drivers" cobbling up the passing lane of the highway. This is not directed to all the safe and courteous drivers of this good city, but there are the few that ruin it for the rest of us. Based on theory, somehow these drivers are dispatched by radio in stages along different points of your route to antagonize you further. The more urgent the need, the more slow drivers are released into traffic.

If anyone falls into this sub-turtle driver category, please be considerate of your fellow drivers and get into the lane designated for you. There are people on the road who have a valid need to arrive at their destination in a timely manner. We don't have the need to gawk at roadside objects, draw pictures of the scenery, or read the billboards. If you insist on going at a snail's speed, please take the slow lane or maybe take the back roads that are less traveled. That way nobody would ever suspect that you are a "Sunday Driver."

"It's a Cow Patty, Daddy"

By Scott Elliott

Life is serious business. But, thank goodness, it can also be funny business sometimes, especially if we're willing to laugh at ourselves.

Take for instance a telephone call I received early last week from an old friend back in Florida. He's a wild and crazy guy named Ray right out of the 1960s. Calls everybody "Daddy," a la Maynard Crebs of the old Dobie Gillis Show. (Maynard, played by Bob Denver, later became Gilligan of Gilligan's Island.)

But back to my telephone conversation... "What's happening out there, Daddy?" Ray quizzed. "Oh, I'm doing okay, Ray. How's 'bout you?" I responded.

"You know, same ole, same ole, Daddy," he said. "What's cookin' on the 4th for you and Miss Claudia?" "Oh, the 4th is big out here, Ray - parade, bar-b-que, rodeo, carnival, cow patty bingo. They've got everything out here," I bragged.

"Cow patty bingo? What's that, Daddy?" Ray inquired, a bit mystified.

"Well, it's this game where you bet $5 that a cow will hit your square," I replied. "And if it does, then you win $500."

"Hit your square? With what, Daddy, a hoof?" Ray queried, even more confused.

"Uh, well, no, er...well, you see, Ray, the cow goes to the bathroom," I explained, as diplomatically as possible.

"Say what?"

"Number two," I said, squirming.

"Huh?"

"Takes a dump, man. Do I have to draw you a dad gummed picture?" I blurted, somehow embarrassed.

"You've got to be kiddin'," he bellowed. "No, man. You see, they feed the cow, then they put the cow in this pen that's marked off like a bingo card, and if the cow hits your square, then you win. That's it," I said.

"Aw, come on, Daddy. Gimme a common break," Ray said, starting to giggle.

"Yeah, man, it's kind of fun. I bought two chances last year, but the cow didn't hit my squares," I said.

"Oh, too bad, man. Too bad. Nothing like a cow with a poor aim," Ray said, chuckling ever harder. "Hey, what happens if the cow just doesn't need to go, Daddy?"

"Well, in that case, the money goes to the sponsor," I said.

"Hal," he laughed, "so somebody's hoping the cow's constipated!"

"Well, yeah, kind of, I guess," I stammered. "Hey, it's really kind of exciting. People go over to the pen and try to coax the cow over to their square. Some people try to buy a square in the shade 'cause they figure that's where the cow is going to go."

"Oh, yeah, that's completely understandable," Ray said, now roaring.

"Hey, it's just good clean fun, Ray," I retorted.

"For everybody but the poor slob who cleans up afterward, huh?" Ray challenged, still chuckling.

And so the conversation proceeded, kind of like a Bob Newhart routine. Ray even said he was going to send me $5.00 in the mail next year to get a bet down for him. Said he definitely wanted a square in the shade, too.

Ray thought that would be real "cool."

White attends Lions Camp

Holli White, the 15 year-old child of Patricia White of Hedley, recently attended the Texas Lions Camp in Kerrville. Sponsored by the Hedley Lions Club, this camper participated in summer camp activities including horseback riding, swimming, field sports, and a challenge course program.

Established in 1949, the Texas Lions Camp has given more than 40,000 children with physical disabilities the opportunity to experience the joys of summer camp. Children between the ages of 7-16 attend at no cost to their parents. The camping program is specially adapted in order to accommodate each child's individual needs. A well-trained staff supervises each camp activity with a ratio of one counselor to two campers.

The Texas Lions Camp is a non-profit organization funded by Lions and private donations. For more information, contact your local Lions Club or the Texas Lions Camp at P.O. Box 247, Kerrville, Texas, 78029-02747, (210) 896-0247.

Obituaries

Wanda J. Yeatman
Services for Wanda J. Yeatman, age 65 of Juniata, Nebraska, were held on July 3, 1996, at 2:00 p.m. at First St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Juniata with Rev. Harold D. Stromer officiating. Burial was held in Juniata Cemetery under the direction of Butler-Volland Funeral Home in Hastings, Nebraska.

Mrs. Yeatman died on Sunday, June 30, 1996, at Mary Lanning Memorial Hospital. She was born August 11, 1930, in Hastings to Harry and Buda Songster, Sr. She attended Hastings Public Schools and married Alvin G. Yeatman on November 3, 1951. He preceded her in death on February 13, 1987. She was a homemaker and a member of the Hastings Women Bowling Association "600" Club, American Legion Auxiliary in Juniata, and a past member of the Pythian Sisters.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Alvin G. Yeatman; her father, Harry Songster, Sr.; and one brother.

Survivors include five daughters: Sandy Anderberg of Clarendon; Karen Treadway of Lincoln, NE; Sharon Coats of San Angelo; Linda Hurd of Ayr, NE; and Trudy Woodard of Casper, WY; her mother, Buda Songster, Hastings, NE; four brothers: Harry Songster, Jr. of Hastings, NE; Rex Songster of Hemet, CA; Leonard Songster of Hemet, CA; Leonard Sonster of Concord, CA; and Bob Songster of Hastings, NE; and nine grandchildren.

Casket bearers were Carl Anderson, Rein Schutte, Jo-Ed Hurd, Joe Hurd, Bob Schilling, and Butch Janssen. Honorary casket bearers were grandsons and son-in-laws.

Clarendon Aldermen hold regular meeting

The Clarendon Board of Aldermen met in regular session on June 25, 1996, at 7 p.m. in the Board Room of City Hall.

The board heard from Mary Green on library activities, Jim Roberts on city clean up, Bob McCombs on recycling, and Holly Bads on her work in the City Hall flower bed.

Annie Shelton, speaking on behalf of the Saints' Roost Museum, requested funds from the motel-hotel bed tax to advertise the Goodnight Chuck Wagon Cook Off to be held in September. Action was tabled until an exact amount needed could be determined.

Gerald Mulanax, speaking on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce, requested city help to bring a carnival to the July 4th celebration. The board agreed to allow the carnival to share the lots across from the Post Office with the military.

The Lions Tale
By Gene Alderson

The Clarendon Lions Club held its regular meeting at noon on Tuesday, July 9, 1996, at the Lions Hall. Sixteen members, one guest, and pianist Clayton Ferris, were present. A delicious beef stew hit the spot on the cool rainy day. The new Tail Twister, Lion Shelton, got off to roaring start.

Some lively "dinner music" by Clayton was enjoyed by all. Vice president Todd Knorpp called the meeting to order and the regular opening ceremony was observed. Lion Tamer Henson introduced the guest, Russell Estlack.

Lion Todd Knorpp gave a brief report on the rodeo and dance and Lion Henson thanked all those who helped with the Shriner Club's barbecue. He reminded those present that proceeds from their July 4th activities went into a transportation fund to pay for children's transportation to the Shriner's Children's Hospitals in Houston and Galveston. There was no program and the meeting was adjourned.

Sen. Gramm panel passes homemaker retirement bill

US Sens. Phil Gramm and Kay Bailey Hutchison are lauding a key Senate panel decision to establish Individual Retirement Accounts (IRA) for homemakers, calling it a victory for nearly 10 million middle-income women in America.

"Permitting homemakers to save their own money for a safe and secure retirement is long overdue," Gramm said. "I'm proud that we were able to gain a unanimous vote for the Homemaker IRA bill in the Finance Committee, and I look forward to working closely with Sen. Hutchison to gain final Senate approval. The sooner we make this bill a law, the better."

"It is obvious that work inside the home in every bit as important to our society as the work done outside the home," Hutchison said. "I do not think that homemakers who choose to stay home and raise children should have the added disadvantage of retiring with less retirement security."

The Senate Finance Committee last week approved the Homemaker IRA bill, authored by Hutchison and co-sponsored by Gramm, to permit deductible IRA contributions of up to $2,000 for each spouse in a one-income family, the same amount allowed for two-income families. This means the average couple could accumulate $150,000 more over the course of their lifetimes.

Under current law, if both a husband and wife work outside the home, they are allowed to set aside $2,000 each, a total of $4,000 to their retirement nest egg each year. But if one spouse stays home to rear their children and manage the household, the couple is limited to a total tax deduction for IRA contributions of $2,250 - $2,000 for the spouse who works outside and $250 for the spouse who works in the home.

Harrison reunion scheduled

The Hawley A., Sr., and Corrine (Patterson) Harrison family will have a reunion on July 19-21 at the Clarendon Community Center in Clarendon. Several of Hawley's first cousins, all descendants of Robert Dennis and Eviline (Burrow) Harrison plan to attend as well as Patterson and Fowikes family descendants.

Family and friends are welcome to come out and visit. Several of the family members will be staying at the Western Skies Motel in Clarendon if you would like to get in touch.

Southwestern Oklahoma State University's 6th annual Middle School Band Camp was held June 23-26 on the Weatherford campus. Around 270 students in grades six through eight from four states attended the camp which concluded with a concert by the four band students. Those attending the camp included Dedra Stevens, John Carroll, and Kelly Linquist, all of Clarendon; and Emily Ehrlich of Perryton.

Vets recommend pets get rabies vaccination

Rabies is a disease that causes a neurological condition in most domestic species of animals including man. The significance of the disease is that all cases, if allowed to progress past the very early stages after exposure, generally result in the death of the individual. This disease is of major public health importance. The majority of the disease in the state of Texas is in the wild animal population. It is most common in foxes, raccoons, skunks, coyotes, and woodchucks. The potential for exposure in domestic animals is high. Cattle, cats, dogs, and horses all have a potential for exposure from wild animals and can then transmit the disease to man.

With the classical form of the disease, the infected animal typically has a notable change in behavior. Friendly animals often become aggressive, and aggressive animals often become friendly. Wildlife often lose fear of humans. The next stage is an either "furious" aggressive stage or a "dumb" stage in which the animal is considered dead headed. Other symptoms include dilated pupils, difficulty in swallowing, changes in the animal's voice, and convulsive seizures.

Rabies, a virus, undergoes transmission from the saliva of an infected animal to an open wound in the skin or a bite wound of an uninfected person or animal. During the initial phases before the virus enters the peripheral nervous system, the immune system of a previously vaccinated animal or quickly treated person can fight off the disease. Once the disease enters the peripheral nervous system on its migration to the central nervous system (brain and spinal cord), it can not be treated very successfully. The earlier and greater the immune system responds, the less likely the disease will be transmitted.

Reducing the chance of disease in pets can be easily done by vaccination once a year. In Texas, veterinarians are required to vaccinate dogs and cats annually with a three year vaccine. The use of a three year vaccination, once a year, allows the animal to have a higher level of protection from their immune system.

If you or your pet gets exposed to a potentially rabid animal, please contact your physician and/or veterinarian, as soon as possible.

Southwest Outdoors: Anchors Away

by Mel Phillips

One of the best kept secrets of fishing the lakes on our wind swept plains is one of the nautical world's oldest tools, the anchor. Radical designs and trendy styles affect most outdoor products, but a trusty anchor is timeless. In fact, lake bottoms across the world are littered with rusting hulks of abandoned, discarded, and stuck anchors.

After several decades of experimenting with various styles and weights of anchors, I have concluded that the classic mushroom shaped hunk of metal weighing about twenty pounds will hold most of the boats that frequent our lakes. Anything less than twenty pounds will be dragged along the bottom, while anchors over twenty pounds are overkill and an invitation to visit the chiropractor.

The key to effectively setting a good anchor is making sure that you deploy enough rope to pull the anchor on its side and dig into the bottom. A good rule of thumb is to let out three times as much rope as depth. In twenty feet of water, let out sixty feet of rope. In water that is thirty feet deep, use ninety feet of rope.

If the wind is over 30 mph, an extra ten or fifteen of rope can make the difference between fishing and drifting.

I have discovered that tying the anchor rope to the anchor bolt located on bottom the hull at the nose of most boats is okay for calm days, but it is an invitation to disaster on the really windy days. To keep the boat facing into the wind, run the rope through that eye but tie off on a cleat located on top of the boat.

The popularity of the modern electric trolling motor has all but destroyed the art of setting a good anchor. However, a little practice will teach most anglers the art of allowing for wind drift when setting out the anchor.

The final suggestion for anchor fishing is to use a small, ten-pound anchor at the back of the boat to stop the "swing" that can occur when the wind makes subtle changes.

By the way, a large black plastic flower pot is an inexpensive storage container for both rope and anchor. Coil the rope in the bottom of the pot and set the anchor on top of the rope. The anchor is ready to deploy when you need it and safely out of the way when you don't.

So next time the wind is blowing hard and the fish are biting soft, anchor away.

This week's best bets for good fishing are sandbass at Lake Greenbelt and catfish at Lake Meredith or Lake White River.

Until next week, good luck and good fishing everybody.
