$7,176.45 to pay the February 1984 gas bill [picture on the right]. The February 1975 light bill was $670.84 and the February 1984 bill was $1,400.98. The December 1983, January and February 1984 gas bills for the school totaled $20,170.27. If taxes had to be raised to pay for the past three months bill, taxes would be raised 3 cents on each $100 valuation.

Sign-up period extended

Sign-up Period Extended

The sign-up period for 1984 wheat, feed grain and cotton programs has been extended from February 24th through March 16, 1984 enabling producers more time to plan their 1984 crops. Producers wishing to participate in the 1984 Farm Program need to be sure and sign up as soon as possible to avoid the rush. Signatures on all agreements will now be needed by March 30, 1984 for the contracts to be approved.

Revision and Update for Acreage Conservation Acres (ACR)

It is recommended that adequate cover be established or maintained to keep wind and water erosion at or below soil loss tolerance levels. Cover may be approved annual crops planted and managed as cover crops; annual, biennial, or perennial grasses and legumes; residues from previous high residue crops; volunteer crop; or mulch. (Annual approved crops include sweet sorghums, millet, and sudan. This also includes all hybrid crosses, listed in Column II through V, of the Sorghum Classification Guide, dated February 15, 1983, as updated.) Land tillage operations may be used that control the growth of weeds, enhance soil moisture collection and conservation, and prevent wind and water erosion. This includes, but is not limited to, stubble mulching, mechanical or minimal tillage, chiseling, etc. Tillage operations are to be done with equipment normally used in the area and in a manner that will utilize crop residue for wind and water conservation purposes. Removed is the requirement of a cover crop for skip row ACR.

EDB Emergency Suspension

On February 3, 1984, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) suspended all uses of ethylene dibromide (EDB) for the fumigation of stored grain and for spot treatment of grain milling equipment. This action followed an earlier September 30, 1983, decision to suspend EDB uses for soil fumigation. The county office has posted an alphabetical list of products which includes the manufacturers and registration numbers to help you recognize those products which can no longer be used on grain or milling equipment. If you have stocks of any of the products on the list, we encourage you to return these stocks to your supplier. While your supplier is not required to take these products back from you, we feel that most suppliers will do so as a service to their valued customers. You should obtain from the supplier a record of the name and amount of product returned. If you cannot return these stocks to your supplier, please store them in a safe location and await further instructions about their final disposition. If you have any questions in regards to these or other products, please contact EPA.

Emergency Feed Assistance Program

Eligible producers who wish to purchase Emergency feed Assistance corn need to remember that the corn must be fed by April 15, 1984. There should be no more than a 10 day supply of corn on hand on April 15th. If you are interested in purchasing corn come by the county office and we will compute your eligibility.

Cancer units

need driver

volunteers

In the coming months, units across the state will launch a stepped-up campaign to recruit volunteer drivers.

The program, "Road to Recovery," will help unit Service/Rehabilitation volunteers provide necessary transportation to cancer patients in need of treatment.

Volunteers assisted cancer patients with 10,265 trips last year. Drivers specify the times they are available and are trained for what to expect and briefed on the Society's Service program. A volunteer coordinator then matches drivers available with patients needing transportation.

If you would like to help someone down the Road to Recovery, contact your unit Service/Rehabilitation chairman or your district staff representative, A.R. Henson, (806) 874-3517.

GOD'S COMFORT

One of my favorite passages of scripture is II Corinthians 1:3-4, "...the Father of mercies, and the God of all comfort; who comforteth us in all our tribulation, that we may be able to comfort them which are in any trouble, by the comfort wherewith we ourselves are comforted of God."

Round steak is generally a tough cut of meat, requiring at least an hour of simmering to make it tender. The butcher, however, can run it through his "tenderizing" unit and in a few seconds, transform it into a tender "minute steak."

Many a person, having undergone severe testings, laments, "I feel as though I've gone through a meat grinder." The smiles are comparable. Both the steak and the person have been put through a severe process, from which they emerge completely crushed.

For the steak, the value of the process is obvious. But not all the people, and especially Christians, recognize the worth of trouble, suffering, testing.

When all goes well, we tend toward becoming arrogant, self-sufficient, hard-hearted, cold. But after affliction and sorrow, we become mellow, gentle and much more responsive to God.

This "tenderizing" process is definitely beneficial to us personally. But it also makes us a greater blessing to others by the principle stated in the Scripture above.

"I know how you feel," we say to the bereaved and afflicted, "I've gone through this myself."

Even in the secular realm, we can lighten burdens of others of the strictly human level. But the Christian who has become tenderized because of his trial and has been sustained and supported by God, can pass on the comforting message, "God took me through. He can do the same for you. Trust Him."

Xi Lambda Xi met

Meeting in the home of Sandra Mooring, Xi Lambda Xi gathered together for a regular, brief meeting. We are very proud of our Sweetheart Charity Ball and thank everyone for the creative, hard work that made it a giant success.

Nancy Newhouse presented our program as Charlene Mays' guest. Charlene read each of us a resume about ourselves and some of us were surprised at how great we are!

Nancy selected Susan and Dee as models as she demonstrated how colors can affect your total person. Many of us were astonished at how drastically Susan and Dee reacted to various colors. Nancy is a color consultant for Amway.

Hostess and co-hostess were Genella Eads and Sandra Mooring. Attending were: Carol Hinton, Dee Cox, Susan Henson, Gloria Gage, Pat McCombs, Katie Dvorak, Betty Veach, Roxanne Strickland, Becky Hill and Charlene Mays.

Roxanne received her Preceptor badge in a beautiful candlelight ceremony.

Farewell luncheon

Several members of Xi Lambda Xi Sorority met at Amiga's restaurant Thursday, March 1, to bid Katie Dvorak farewell. The sorority presented their departing sister with a perfect gift of silver jewelry. Katie gave each of her adopted family a cuddly "I love you" teddy bear and a card.

Those attending were Peggy Anderson, Genella Eads, Beth Walker, Dee Cox, Susan Henson, Betty Veach, Carol Hinton, Frankie Henson and guest of honor Katie Dvorak.

"I shall treasure the memories of this sorority," Dvorak said, "and thank you all for being so special."

Katie's exact location is still uncertain but we suspect she will reappear in the area on occasion. Good luck Katie.

BAKING TIPS from Betty Crocker

Kids In The Kitchen

"Did you make this all by yourself?" That question is music to the ears of a junior baker. And today, home chefs are younger than ever as family members of all ages increasingly share grocery shopping and culinary duties.

Many children are preparing their own breakfasts and lunches and helping after school by starting dinner. They are discovering that cooking is fun! They can see and taste the results quickly and have the bonus of sharing their talents with appreciative family and friends.

Now that school is back in session, it's an ideal time for youngsters to put textbooks to practical use — in the kitchen. Their mathematical skills, for instance, will suddenly become very practical as they measure ingredients, halve or double recipes and divide their creations into portions for serving. As they learn the fundamentals of meal preparation — kitchen safety, menu planning, nutrition, following recipes and using appliances properly — they will understand even more clearly the importance of following directions and reading instructions carefully.

We are all inspired by success, and children are no exception. So their first attempts to cook should focus on simple recipes for foods they enjoy eating.

Beginning with a mix for cake, cookies or brownies is an ideal introduction to kitchen techniques. The directions are concise and easy to follow, few extra ingredients are necessary and chances of failure are minimal.

For example, the Stir 'n Frost cake mixes are not only simple to prepare, but clean-up is a breeze because the batter is stirred right in its own disposable pan. With layer cake mixes like SuperMoist, steps are slightly more advanced, requiring use of a beater or mixer, pan preparation and other important basics.

And it's never too early to appreciate the appeal of attractive as well as tasty foods. Encourage attractive presentation such as a simple powdered sugar sprinkling over brownies, a chopped nut garnish on ready-to-spread frosting or a dollop of strawberry yogurt and a few choice berries on a wedge of angel food cake.

Personal safety and healthful precautions are always of prime importance, so encourage particular care with recipes that require use of large and small appliances, sharp utensils and ingredients that must be heated.

Special occasions provide incentives to whip up a batch of brownies or bake a cake — Grandma's birthday, a sleep-over or a camping trip. Just thinking of all those compliments to come is enough to transform even the hesitant novice into a fledgling gourmet.

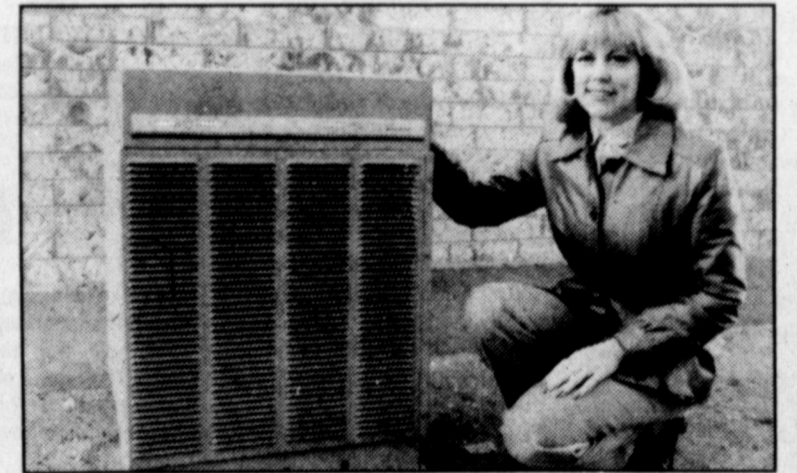

Stir 'n Frost and SuperMoist are registered trademarks of General Mills, Inc.

The only time in United States history that the President and Vice President were members of different political parties occurred when Thomas Jefferson, a Republican, became Vice President under John Adams, a Federalist, in 1797.

The most efficient, the most economical heating and cooling system for your home.

THE Electric heat pump.

It's part of "the plan" — the Energy Saving Plan

THE ELECTRIC HEAT PUMP: It can save you money on your home energy bills. And when it's used along with other WTU-recommended energy conservation measures according to the ENERGY SAVING PLAN, you can save even more. WTU will pay YOU money when your home meets all the E.S.P. requirements that ensure your home to be energy efficient. That's where the ELECTRIC HEAT PUMP comes in — it's part of "the plan" because it's the most efficient system for heating and cooling. During the winter it removes heat from the outside air and pumps it into your home. In the summer it reverses the process and becomes an air conditioner, so you get even comfort year-round. CALL YOUR LOCAL WTU OFFICE OR A FACTORY-TRAINED ELECTRIC HEAT PUMP DEALER TODAY TO FIND OUT MORE ABOUT SAVING ENERGY AND MONEY ON YOUR HOME ELECTRIC BILLS.

Remember, REDDY supplies the energy — but only YOU can use it wisely!

R.C. "Clif" Cobb, president of Rolling Plains Production Credit Association, was among Farm Credit officials throughout Texas who gathered in Austin for the 1984 Annual PCA Presidents Conference, March 1-2.

According to Cobb, the meeting serves as a place for PCA presidents to exchange ideas and gather information on the status of the Tenth Farm Credit District. Presentations revolved around the theme, "Where are we? Where are we going?"

Sessions included a micro computer workshop, techniques for improving growth, image and professionalism and an update on Project 1995.

Project 1995 is a nationwide study being conducted by the Farm Credit System to assess its operating environment in the 1990s. Results will provide a basis for strategic planning in each of the 12 Farm Credit districts. Rolling Plains PCA is a member-owned agricultural finance cooperative which serves the credit needs of 1,032 farmers and ranchers in a 17 county area.

Rolling Plains PCA is one of 29 PCAs in Texas. Collectively they serve more than 15,000 agricultural producers and aquatic harvesters. Last year over $2 billion was loaned through Texas PCAs.

PCAs have been a source of agricultural loans since 1933. Nationally they serve the credit needs of almost 341,000 farmers, ranchers and commercial fishermen, with more than $19 billion in loans outstanding.

Howardwick News

By ALICE HOOD

Ed and Grace Castner have been very ill with flu virus. Mr. Castner was in the Memphis Hospital for several days. He came home Thursday and they took Mrs. Castner to the hospital, also in Memphis. A granddaughter of the Castners stayed with Mrs. Castner while Mr. Castner was in the hospital. Their children are with him now.

The Castners have sold their home in Howardwick to Kim and Nancy McClelland and are moving to Lubbock. They will be leaving the 1st of April or there about. We will miss them and wish them happiness and good health.

Ralph Singletery has been transferred from High Plains Baptist Hospital to the Bivins Rehabilitation Center to recover from a stroke. Report is that he is responding very well to treatment and hopefully will be home soon.

Leon and Mable May are reported to be very sick with the flu that has attacked many residents of Howardwick and elsewhere. Hope they recover soon.

Marie Dunn passed away Thursday, March 1st in Amarillo hospital. Survivors are a son, a step-son and a step-daughter. Mr. Dunn died in 1982. She had lived in Howardwick for ten years, moving here from Amarillo.

James Wesley Smith died of a heart attack Thursday, March 1st. The Smiths moved to Howardwick from Dumas. They have three children, James Wesley Jr. of Dallas, Harry of Benton, Ark., and Phyles Mitchel of Borger. Services are pending.

Billie and Vern Watkins experienced a terrible tragedy Saturday, Feb. 3. Billie's father, William G. "Bill" Crowson was ill, and their daughter, Leslie Forshagen, of Midland was traveling to Pampa to be with her grandfather and had a fatal accident in Lubbock. When her grandfather learned of her death, he passed away shortly thereafter. Both were buried Monday in the Miami Cemetery by Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Home.

The Watkins have a summer home on the lake front in Howardwick.

Ann Boling died Saturday, March 3rd in Amarillo where she had moved to a few years ago. She had cancer for several years and was undergoing chemotherapy treatments. She had sold her business and rented out her place in Howardwick. She had requested no flowers, just donate memorials to the Cancer Society and the Hospice Foundation.

Deepest and heartfelt sympathy is extended to all of those families in their time of sorrow.

Lou Hausen is back home from the hospital. He came home and played bingo Saturday night. Lou fell and broke a bone near her hip, which had to have pins about a year ago, so she has just had them removed and is happy to be home again. Always nice to see people recover from their injuries or illnesses.

Larinda Pettit went to White Deer Saturday to a track meet.

I, the reporter, would like to make a correction. Last week the John McVicker's children went on a ski trip, not skin trip. Thank you! Oh well, we do have to put a little humor in once in a while.

There will be a "candidates get acquainted" pie supper Friday, March 23rd at City Hall at 7 p.m. Take a pie and enjoy the company. Public is invited.

Lisa Hollaard, granddaughter of Jim and Connie

Milam, will have the cast removed March 12th and will be back in braces and start therapy.

A speedy recovery to everyone who is ill.

The Lakers Homemakers will meet Monday, March 12, at 1:30 p.m. in the Howardwick City Hall.

Career Opportunities

Preparing For A Computer Career

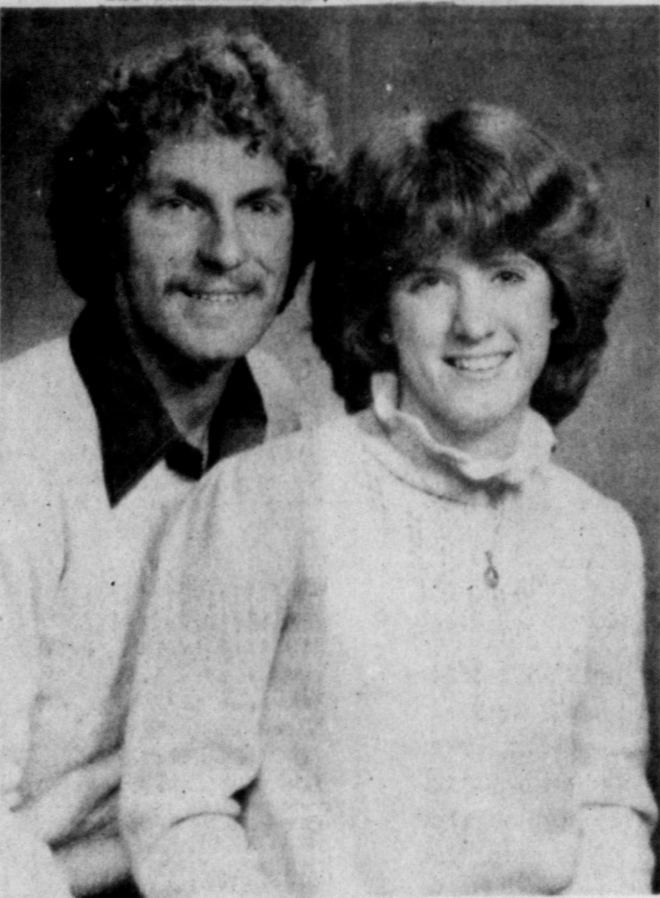

Experts calculate that jobs requiring computer skills will increase 50 percent by 1990. For those with a combination of academic knowledge and practical experience, the door will be open to a career as a hardware designer, software programmer, researcher, industrial engineer or sales representative.

A booklet is now available that helps answer questions about computer careers.

How does one prepare for a job in the computer industry?

The first thing to do is give some thought to where you might fit in. Talk to people you know who already use computers, or try to get a chance to use one yourself. Career counselors in high schools and universities also can give you guidance.

Second, take as much science and math in school as you can. An interesting booklet has been published called "Computer Careers—Putting The World At Your Fingertips." It helps answer questions about what a career in the computer industry can offer and what career path to follow. Copies of the book can be obtained by sending a check payable to CBEMA for $3.00 (DC residents must add six percent sales tax) to: Computer and Business Equipment Manufacturers Association, 311 First Street, NW, Suite 500, Washington, DC 20001.

Veteran's jobs training program could help Texas economy

A little-known but already functioning veterans' jobs training program could pump as much as $21 million into the Texas economy during the next two years -- provided the idea catches on with potential employers.

The program, implemented under the Emergency Veterans' Job Training Act of 1983, is aimed at finding jobs for unemployed Vietnam and Korean-era veterans, and disabled veterans. Employers are paid half the veteran's salary, up to a $10,000 limit, for training required for the job.

"This is probably the best jobs program to come along as far as employers are concerned because it provides direct payment to an employer to hire an unemployed vet," said J.J. Apodaca, Waco VA Regional Office jobs program coordinator.

The VA funnels the money to eligible employers and the Labor Department helps identify eligible veterans through the Texas Employment Commission offices. Texas' effort is being coordinated by the Waco VA Regional Office.

But while the money is waiting to be tapped, said Apodaca, just how much finds its way to Texas depends on how many companies are willing to hire unemployed veterans into training positions.

At a time when many companies are considering hiring more workers because of an improving economy, in 1982. She had been a resident of Howardwick since 1974 moving here from Amarillo. She had previously been a resident of Durant, Oklahoma where she taught Sunday School for 40 years and was a Deaconess in the Christian Church. She had worked as a secretary and homemaker and had owned her own business as an Interior Decorator and China Painter. She was a member of the First Christian Church in Clarendon.

Survivors include one son, Kenneth Lee Morris of Milwaukee, Wisconsin; one step-daughter, Mrs. Sherra N. McGaughy of Amarillo; one step-son, Jay Dunn of Denton; and three step-grandchildren.

Casket bearers were Carl Pittman, Woodrow Argo, Davis Lowrie, Charlie Prickett, Stony Craft, and W.F. Mazey.

tionally on a first-come, first-served basis. The program was implemented in December when funds were released by the Office of Management and Budget. Apodaca said word is just beginning to get out to employers about the program. "Once they hear about it, they're ready to sign on," he said.

To qualify, a veteran must have been unemployed for 15 of the previous 20 weeks. About 2700 veterans have been approved for the program statewide, but only 1064 job slots have been found.

"We know we have plenty of out of work veterans who can be put to work under this program," Apodaca said. "Now we have to reach employers and show them how they can benefit. There's a considerable sum of money at stake and we want to bring as much of it to Texas as possible."

For more information about the veterans' jobs training program contact your local TEC office or call the VA, toll free, at the number listed in the telephone directory.

Special Plates Honor 150th Birthday

Travel and Information Division
State Department of Highways and Public Transportation

AUSTIN — Around this time next year, you'll be able to buy those special red, white and blue license plates that commemorate the Texas Sesquicentennial.

Only twice before has the state allowed slogans on vehicle license plates, once in 1936 to commemorate the Texas Centennial and again in 1968 to recognize the HemisFair.

In honor of Texas' 150th birthday, the State Highway and Public Transportation Commission directed that approximately 7.5 million sets of plates be produced during the next biennium bearing the Sesquicentennial slogan.

When the Sesquicentennial license plates are ready, they will be issued for new vehicles and for out-of-state vehicles being registered in Texas for the first time. In addition, they will be issued at the time of registration if current plates are at least five years old and the owner wants new plates. The special plates will also be issued as replacement plates and annual license plates.

Individuals who wish to get personalized Sesquicentennial plates for the year 1986 can order them beginning August 1, 1984.

Plans for the state's 150th birthday celebration began in 1979 when the 66th Texas Legislature created a special commission to coordinate the observance. The highway commission approved the issuance of the special plates at the request of the Sesquicentennial Commission who appeared before them last August.

PRESENTED BY THE STATE BAR OF TEXAS

Q: Are there any Texas laws that deal with entering and winning sweepstakes?

A: Most contests called "sweepstakes" are perfectly legal in Texas, although most raffles and lotteries are not. If you enter a sweepstakes in which no purchase is necessary, there is nothing illegal in winning the prize. But the Texas Constitution prohibits schemes in which the winner is determined by the outcome of a game or contest or where one has to pay for a chance to win. As a consequence, most raffles, pools, and lotteries are illegal, even if sponsored by churches or other charitable organizations. For example, selling a raffle ticket to raise money for a charity is a third degree felony, carrying a possible punishment of up to ten years in state prison.

BACKGROUND ON BUSINESS

Two Swiss Watch Leaders Join Forces

Where do the world's best watches come from? If you guessed Switzerland, you're correct. It's the nation known for its technological superiority when it comes to watchmaking. Recently, the two largest of that nation's leading watchmakers decided to merge, and the watch industry considers it a case of perfect timing.

The merger will put such well-known brands as Omega, Rado, Longines, Hamilton, Certina, as well as the "Swatch," under the same corporate umbrella.

The new company, "ASUAG-SSIH," has net assets exceeding $250 million and annual sales of more than $750 million. According to Ulrich Spycher, member of the board of ASUAG-SSIH and chief executive officer of the Finished Watches Division, the new company will produce about half of Switzerland's output of watches and components, with two thirds in quartz electronic.

Good timing: the merger of two top Swiss watchmakers helps keep Swiss-made watches the world's best.

Studies show that consumers are becoming increasingly aware of the importance of styling and craftsmanship when it comes to choosing a watch, Spycher said, and those are qualities Swiss watchmaking is known for. The new Swatch watch, for instance, has less than half the parts of competitive models and is considered a showpiece of advanced technology—good quality at a budget price.

Further evidence, experts say, of the ASUAG-SSIH continued leadership in technology is the fact that Longines has been chosen the official timekeeper for the upcoming Summer Olympics in Los Angeles. In addition, the company noted that the Omega "Speedmaster" professional was used during the December Spacelab flight. This is the 34th time that this Omega model has been chosen for space duty.

Pointers For Parents

"Contract For Life" Combats Drunk Driving

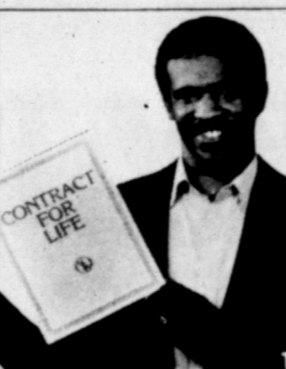

A major multi-media education effort to fight teenage drunk driving has been launched by a coalition of pro-football players, educators, students and the liquor industry.

The campaign is aimed at stimulating what is termed "the most effective, untapped weapon against drunk driving"—the American family. Public service messages reaching millions of Americans are appearing during televised National Football League games, on other broadcasts and in major magazines.

Centerpiece of the campaign is a "Contract for Life," developed by Students Against Driving Drunk (SADD), a Massachusetts-based network of students in some 6,000 high schools coast to coast. The Contract calls on parents and teenagers to agree that either may call home for help at any time if they or their driver has had too much to drink to drive safely.

According to Robert Anastas, SADD founder, "communities where the Contract has been widely used have seen a noticeable reduction in teenage highway deaths."

Dallas Cowboy wide-receiver Drew Pearson stars in the campaign messages, Dallas Cowboy Drew Pearson tells about the Contract for Life that's designed to reduce teenage drunk driving accidents.

which were developed for the program by the Distilled Spirits Council of the U.S. (DISCUS).

DISCUS spokesmen point out that "teachers, police, judges and jailers all play an important role in stopping drunk driving but they can't do the whole job. Families are the cornerstone of our social structure and must play a more active role in solving the problem."

The liquor industry has pledged to send a Contract to every American family asking for one. To obtain a copy, write to SADD Contract, Corbin Plaza, Marlboro, Mass. 01752.

SPORTS SHORTS

Athletes from some 45 countries will gather in the U.S. June 16-30 for the International Games for the Disabled. The two week Olympic-style event will take place in Nassau County, N.Y., and will feature world-class blind, amputee and cerebral palsy athletes.

You or your organization can help the 1,500 disabled athletes who'll participate in the games by becoming a sponsor. Your $500 tax-deductible donation will help defray costs of feeding, housing and support services for these outstanding athletes.

YOUR HEALTH

Facts From The American Dental Hygienists' Association

What we eat and how much we eat affects the way we look and feel. Like the rest of the body, your teeth and gums need proper food to stay healthy.

In the 4th century B.C., Aristotle noticed that people who ate lots of ripe figs had more tooth decay than people who did not.

It wasn't until the 1950s that scientists started to see the relationship between food and tooth decay. Decay occurs because of plaque, a sticky, colorless layer of harmful bacteria that forms on everyone's teeth. The bacteria in plaque feed on sugars and produce acids that attack your teeth and gums. The plaque holds these acids on to the teeth. After many such attacks, the tooth enamel breaks down, forming a cavity.

It would be difficult to eliminate all sugar-containing foods from your diet. The object is to cut down on the number of times plaque bacteria can go to work producing harmful acids.

The American Dental Hygienists' Association offers these tips on diet for better dental health:

- Eat balanced meals daily.
- Don't snack between meals. Each time you eat, acids attack tooth enamel for twenty minutes.
- Remove plaque by brushing and flossing thoroughly at least once a day.

STYE IN THE EYE

Eye problems can be very painful and annoying. The pain and discomfort are especially bothersome if eye sight is also limited by the problem. One of the more common eye problems is called a "stye". The medical term for this bacterial infection involving the eye lid is hordeolum. A stye results when either the hair follicle of the eyelash or the oil-secreting gland in the eyelid becomes red and swollen and may also become tender, painful and filled with pus.

Styes are usually self-limiting and therefore, do not always require a visit to the physician. A warm, moist compress of tap water applied three or four times a day is often effective. A weak boric acid solution, which can be obtained at most pharmacies, is used occasionally to bring the stye to a "head" and promote drainage.

Sometimes a prescription eye ointment will be needed to clear the infection. When using eye ointments remember not to touch the end of the tube against the face or fingers.

Touching or squeezing the stye with the fingernails may cause the infection to spread and should be avoided. If the warm compress doesn't provide relief, it is wise to see a physician.

Notices

AGENCY: Soil Conservation Service, Department of Agriculture

ACTION: Notice of a Finding of No Significant Impact

SUMMARY: Pursuant to Section 102(2) (C) of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969; the Council on Environmental Quality Guidelines (40 CFR Part 1500); and the Soil Conservation Service, Guidelines, (7 CFR Part 650); the Soil Conservation Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture gives notice that an environmental impact statement is not being prepared for the Donley Critical Area Treatment RC&D Measure, Donley County, Texas.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Billy C. Griffin, State Conservationist, Soil Conservation Service, W.R. Poage Federal Building, 101 South Main, Temple, Texas 76501-7682, telephone 817-774-1214.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The environmental assessment of this federally assisted action indicates that the project will not cause significant local, regional, or national impacts on the environment. As a result of these findings, Billy C. Griffin, State Conservationist, has determined that the preparation and review of an environmental impact statement are not needed for this project.

The measure concerns a plan for critical area treatment on 30 eroded areas in Donley County. Planned works of improvements include installing grade stabilization structures, constructing diversion terraces above eroded areas, shaping eroded areas, vegetating treated areas, and fencing areas where needed to protect vegetation. This will involve 30 acres of rangeland, 4 acres of cropland, and 101 acres of gullied land.

The Notice of a Finding of No Significant Impact [FONSI] has been forwarded to the environmental Protection Agency and to various Federal, State, and local agencies and interested parties. A limited number of copies of the FONSI are available to fill single copy requests at the above address. Basic data developed during the environmental assessment are on file and may be reviewed by contacting Billy C. Griffin.

No administrative action on implementation of the proposal will be taken until 30 days after the date of this publication in the Federal Register.

Childhood poisoning continues to increase

Your child comes running to you coughing and spitting a red, cherry-smelling liquid out of his mouth - he has been under the kitchen sink and has gotten into the scented lamp oil. What do you do? "This type of call comes to us daily," said Michael Ellis, Director of the Texas State Poison Center. "And some of these cases can lead to fatalities. This lamp oil looks like strawberry soda, smells good, and if swallowed and gotten into the lungs can cause disastrous results. Products like liquid furniture polish, kerosene, gasoline, and lighter fluid - are all derived from petroleum. As little as a few drops, gotten into the lungs, can coat the lungs. This can cause the child to suffocate - because he can't get oxygen through the oil coating," noted Ellis.

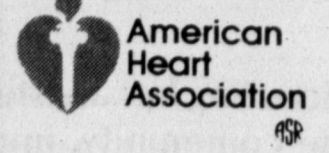

During 1983 over 29,000 poisoning cases were handled by the Texas State Poison Center - over 25,000 of them involving children under the age of 5 years. "Prescription and over-the-counter medicines, plants, perfumes, and petroleum products - make up about 60% of the poisoning cases handled by the Poison Center," Ellis stated, "that is why it is so important that adults use and store household products and medicines very carefully."

March 18-24 is National Poison Prevention Week, and provides an excellent opportunity for parents, grandparents, and everyone who has small children in the house to survey their surroundings and see that potential poisons are stored carefully. "The common practice of storing cleaning and polishing agents under the sink and keeping medications in medicine cabinets with sliding doors - begs for problems," commented Ellis, "cleaning products and medicines should be stored on high shelves and out of sight."

But even the most careful parent can still run into poisoning problems. "Child-have nothing but time, and are quite inventive when it comes to getting into things," Ellis noted, "the vast majority of these emergencies can be handled at home, but some do require medical attention." Should a poisoning emergency occur, call the Texas State Poison Center at (409) 765-1420. REMEMBER - children act fast... so do poisons.

Help Your Heart

Dangers of Excess Weight

Do I weigh too much? Does excess weight increase my risk of developing a disease? These questions are particularly pertinent now because many Americans have stepped on the bathroom scales and watched their register a new high. The price of scrumptious meals consumed during the holiday season. Most people attain their full height and ideal weight between age 18 and 21. Weight varies according to body build, age, and other factors. Most of all, weight varies according to caloric intake of foods. Many calories consumed and few calories "burned" equals an excess deposited as fat.

The American Heart Association's Nutrition Committee, under chairman Scott M. Grundy, M.D., Ph.D., is constantly surveying the scientific literature to come up with recommendations for the public. Dr. Grundy, director of the Center for Human Nutrition at the University of Texas Health Science Center at Dallas, points out that AHA's basic recommendation about weight is that Americans should consume "a caloric intake adjusted to achieve and maintain ideal body weight."

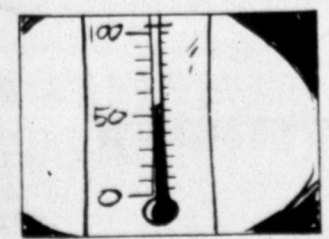

Being overweight can contribute to a number of diseases. It may increase the severity of existing heart disease because it makes the heart work harder and pump more blood, Dr. Grundy says. Excess weight can also worsen heart pain and increase the chances of damage to the heart muscle. It can drive up your blood pressure and increase the level of cholesterol and other fats circulating in your blood, he adds.

Obesity may trigger diabetes in adults with a defect in their ability to metabolize sugar, Dr. Grundy continues. Diabetics have an increased

Dr. Scott M. Grundy risk of cardiovascular disease. Too much weight also promotes the degeneration of weight-bearing joints, accentuates back pain, aggravates diseases of the veins, and often has adverse psychological effects, Dr. Grundy says.

Help your heart! Maintain an ideal weight for your body build and height by following a prudent diet that includes fresh fruits and vegetables, carbohydrates, and lean cuts of meat, fish and poultry. If you drink, do so in moderation because alcoholic beverages are high in calories. "The best way to control your weight is to control your intake of calories," says Dr. Grundy.

A man named Gabriel Daniel Fahrenheit developed the temperature scale that bears his name. He was born in Germany in 1686.

Pre-Columbian Indians believed that earthquakes were caused by the creator shaking the earth to see if his handiwork was still around. The Indians would shout "Here I am," to reassure him.

Technology Makes Heart Shock Gentle

Robert Cope, a 67-year-old retired accountant, was traveling with his wife in Belgium when he suddenly felt weak, nauseous, and dizzy. His wife, Mary, a nurse, led him into the lounge of a nearby museum and took his pulse. She found his heart to be beating dangerously fast. Mary quickly gave him medicine prescribed following a heart attack several years before, and luckily, the pill was effective. But this first episode of ventricular tachycardia (VT) was enough to keep the Copes thereafter close to home and specialized medical care.

Robert Cope, recipient of the world's first implantable cardioverter, and his wife Mary Ventricular tachycardia, a heart rhythm disorder in which the lower heart beats too rapidly, is not always life threatening, yet it is a serious medical problem. It not only incapacitates its victims, but it can on occasion progress to ventricular fibrillation - a wild and chaotic heartbeat which is fatal without immediate medical intervention. Some 400,000 people experience sudden death episodes in the United States each year, many of these linked to VT.

The most common way of treating VT is with drugs. However, if drug therapy fails, or produces unacceptable side effects, the VT may be terminated with a technique called transthoracic cardioversion. With this technique, an electrical device device uses a tiny amount of electricity, one two-hundredth the amount used by the paddles, and it detects and stops VT automatically.

Robert and Mary Cope were dining with friends when the cardioverter took over automatically for the first time. A friend sitting across from Robert saw him jump slightly as he raised a forkful of food to his mouth. "What's the matter?" he asked Robert. "My cardioverter just worked!" responded Robert, surprised by the sudden twinge he had just experienced. Cope says that the feeling he gets when his heart is being cardioverted feels like a hiccup and always takes him by surprise. "But it is over before you can appreciate what happened!" he says.

The Cope family would quickly agree that technology has improved the quality of their lives since Robert received his cardioverter. "It's such a relief!" says Mary Cope. There is no rush to the hospital. We can plan trips now. The anxiety is gone!

The implantable cardioverter was developed by Medtronic, Inc., an international biomedical company headquartered in Minneapolis, in conjunction with Douglas P. Zipes, M.D., of the Indiana University School of Medicine. Already, the company is working on a more advanced device which would also be capable of controlling ventricular fibrillation, the fatal heart rhythm which can follow an uncontrolled VT.

Newer pacemakers are also being developed to treat tachycardias in addition to their traditional use in treating too-slow heartbeats, or bradycardias. One model of Symbios pacemaker manufactured by Medtronic, Inc., will treat tachycardias occurring in the upper heart chambers. This and other pacemakers currently being tested and developed seem to indicate a trend predicted by Dr. Zipes when he said, "There will be a veritable explosion of devices applied to treat tachyarrhythmias."

Due to technology, the design and capabilities of cardioverters and pacemakers alike are increasingly responsive to heart problems. These "physiologic" implantable devices, able to synchronize their function with the body, are giving patients back more active, comfortable lives. The life-style that Robert and Mary Cope lead since Robert has received his implantable cardioverter exemplifies humanizing technology that has broken a continuous cycle of pain and anxiety.

The transvenous cardioverter is implanted in the chest. A lead runs through a vein into the ventricle or lower chamber of the heart where it delivers a small pulse of electricity.

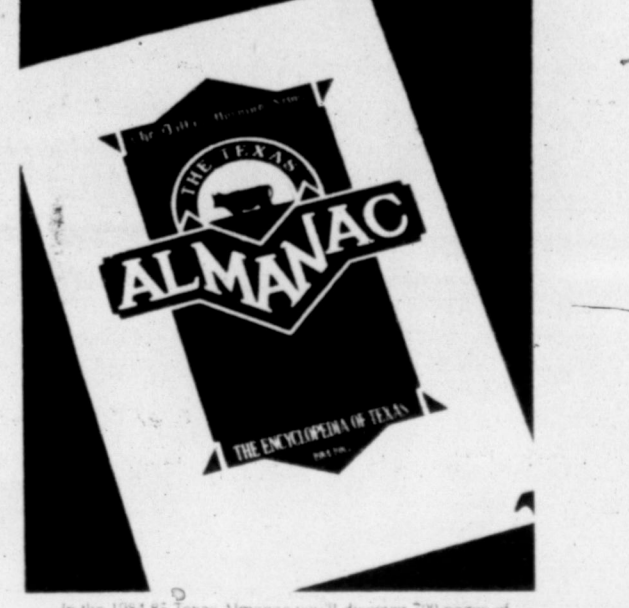

with paddles is placed on the patient's chest and the rapidly beating heart is shocked back to normal. Because transthoracic cardioversion requires a powerful charge of electricity to terminate the tachycardia (enough power to light a 60-watt bulb for 6 or 7 seconds), cardioversion is usually done in the hospital with the patient anesthetized.

In Cope's case, the rapid heartbeat was resistant to drug therapy, but could be controlled using paddles. In 1982 and 1983, Robert Cope had his heart shocked into normal rhythm eight times. Repeated late night trips to the emergency room left the Copes continually anxious, wondering when the next episode would occur. And each shock treatment was a dreaded experience.

Robert vividly remembers one occasion when time did not permit administration of an anesthesia. "It was landing hard on the table that hurt more than being jolted off it," he jokes. He also describes the shocks as a "hard kick in the chest" or "feeling as if huge, strong hands were crushing my chest."

Then, in August 1983, Robert Cope became one of the first recipients of a new type of cardioverter just then approved for clinical investigation. Like a pacemaker, it is implantable and delivers its electrical stimulus directly to the interior of the heart. The

Your Wheat needs nitrogen now. Topdress with Urea or Liquid nitrogen now to increase yields and profits.

Fertilizer prices have risen from last years levels, but not to the highs predicted by most magazines. Yellow Herbicides are quite a bit cheaper.

We have fairly good moisture for this time of the year, so how about getting ahead of the rush.

HAPPY 72nd BIRTHDAY

Since its founding 72 years ago, Girl Scouting has assisted young women in becoming involved, vital citizens of the community, imparting values and encouragement that last a lifetime.

Through a variety of projects and services, Girl Scouts develop respect for others and an awareness of themselves as individuals with unique capabilities. Girl Scouts have helped our community in hundreds of ways.

We want to salute the Girl Scouts and their fine achievements over the years. Let us recognize and support them in the years ahead! Happy Anniversary to all those involved in this fine organization.

Troop 213
Next week, March 12, is the 72nd birthday of the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A.

Troop #213 says Happy Birthday: Julie Altman, Beth Barbee, Amy Chastain, Cricket Carmichael, Mandy Floyd, Haley Hamilton, Jamie Hutcherson, Robbie Longan, Dorinda Plummer, Amanda Ward, Suzy Williams, Kimberly Wootten.

In honor of this birthday, the troop will be traveling to Pampa for a Council Wide Event on Saturday. They will also join the other Clarendon troops on Sunday to attend church services.

March 11th is Girl Scout Sunday - all the Girl Scouts everywhere will attend church together to honor God. Clarendon Scouts plan to attend the First Christian Church services. Please have your daughter at the church before 11 a.m.

March 12 is the Girl Scout birthday. Juliette Gordon Low, nicknamed "Daisy" organized the first Scout meeting on March 12, 1912. The girls wore homemade uniforms with handmade patches - they studied nature and participated in group sports, learning through play.

Today Girl Scouts belong to a "family" that has members in every part of the United States and nearly 100 other countries. As a Girl Scout, each member is a sister to every other Girl Scout in the world.

In the United States, girls who are 6 through 17 or in the first through twelfth grade can be Girl Scouts. Girl Scouts are of all races and include all religious groups.

Join us in our birthday celebration - we Girl Scouts owe the parents and all in our community a debt of thanks for supporting us.

Medicine Heading Towards 'Real' Personal Computer

Imagine a world where the blind can be made to see, the deaf can hear, the dumb to speak, and the paraplegic to walk. Where the chronically ill can be monitored at home instead of the hospital, and chronic pain no longer plagues the lives of millions. Where the emotionally disturbed can rejoin society, and sick hearts are made to beat normally again.

This world is not just a novelist's dream. Some of it is already reality and all of it is achievable in many of our lifetimes.

What makes it all possible is technology — computer technology applied to growing medical knowledge. The computers we are struggling to apply to our work and bring into our homes are already serving a far more "personal" purpose — inside the human body. This is the real "personal computer," and it's doing much more than balancing check books and departmental accounts — it's keeping people alive and active.

These personal computers are tiny, with sophisticated sensors. Implanted in the body, they can be used to a life-sustaining device, but permitted little physical exercise. Pacemakers have since evolved into sophisticated computers the size of thick silver dollars that can sense and respond to the heart's natural activities, and can be reprogrammed from outside the body as the patient's needs change. An example of one of the most advanced of these devices is the Symbios pacemaker, designed by Medtronic, Inc., in Minneapolis, Minnesota.

The Symbios pacemaker is what physicians refer to as a "physiologic" pacemaker, because it paces the heart so that the upper and lower chambers beat in a natural rhythm. It also will be one of the first pacemakers capable of detecting and treating very rapid heartbeats, or tachycardias, bringing help to a new patient group who previously could only be treated by drugs.

The new technology also simplifies the physician's role. Although the circuitry inside is more complex, these new pacemakers are as easy to use as a calculator. They communicate clearly to the physician about what they and the heart are doing through a printout of the heart's and the pacemaker's activities. This makes patient evaluation and the programming of these minicomputers a much simpler and quicker process than before.

Pacemakers of the future may be able to emit a beeping sound when a patient over exerts to help prevent the heart attacks that occur following every snowstorm or during a weekend athlete's tennis match. Pacemakers could also take on other roles, measuring and responding to other physiologic functions such as hypertension.

Building on the knowledge gained from pacemaker technology, several manufacturers and some universities are testing new drug pump delivery systems which will also make use of the "personal computer." Improving drug delivery to the body represents a step in medicine comparable in significance to moving from incantations and drumbeating to the penicillin shot. This has special significance in the treatment of cancer and diabetes. Instead of giving themselves injections, diabetics could have these devices implanted in their abdomen to deliver precise dosages of insulin at appropriate programmed intervals. This may help to reduce the long-range debilitating effects of the disease by eliminating the extreme variation of insulin levels in the blood stream produced by injections.

The device is also being studied for use in cancer patients, for delivering pain-killing drugs, and the application of chemotherapy, as well as the treatment of many other chronic diseases.

Another condition that often leads to the over use and abuse of drugs is the mysterious, but all too common problem of chronic pain. Over 75 million Americans suffer from chronic pain, and little is understood about its causes or treatment.

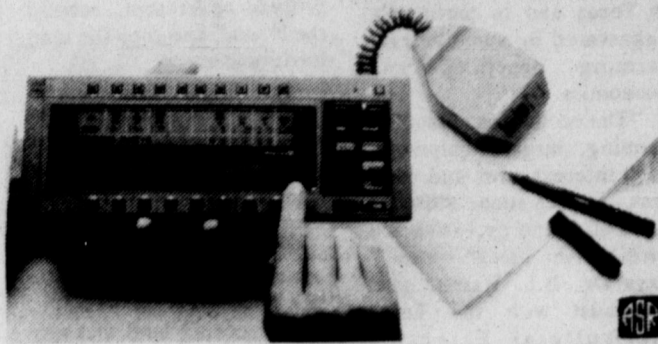

One new treatment that is effective with many patients is electrical stimulation devices, both external and implantable. These small "personal pain killer computers" use bursts of electrical energy to relieve pain, and are activated by the patient as needed.

Electrical stimulation also has other applications, such as physical therapy and rehabilitation. It has been used to help speed up the mending of broken bones and to help "exercise" muscles in patients whose movement is restricted following surgery.

Electrical stimulation technology could eventually lead to many life enhancing advances including the ability to stimulate the muscles of quadriplegics to recreate movement in the arms and legs.

Still in the earlier stages of research are devices that heat not only the body, they also heat the mind. One example is a device under study at the University of Minnesota that mimics the way that brain cells communicate to help patients with mental illness or nervous system disorders. By sending a synthetic form of an essential brain chemical to areas of the brain that lack the natural substance, the device could treat Parkinson's disease or schizophrenia. Both disorders have been linked to an imbalance of this natural substance in the brain.

Up until now, we've learned more about the functions of the body than our brain's ability to understand it. As the workings of the mind become better understood, the "personal computer" could find endless applications, helping stroke or accident victims, epileptics, and even people with congenital brain damage or learning disabilities. So where are medical technology and the "personal computer" ultimately taking us? They may be leading to a world more challenging than frightening — a world where our achievements are limited only by the imagination, perseverance, and wisdom we've acquired, and not by a physical handicap we were born with.

Bicycles, or "swift walkers," were first imported to the U.S. in 1819. The New York City Common Council passed a law that year preventing their use in public places and on sidewalks.

DID YOU KNOW?

Now that Medicare and Medicaid have been functioning for nearly 20 years, most people know the difference. Right? Wrong, says the Health Insurance Association of America. Many people still think the two programs are the same.

There is a difference between Medicare and Medicaid.

Though both programs pay for health care, they definitely are not the same. Medicare is the federal program that helps pay for basic health care services for almost everyone aged 65 and over and for certain disabled persons under 65. Medicaid, a Federal-state partnership, pays for health care for needy and low-income people, without regard to age.

While Medicaid pays all of a person's health care bills, Medicare pays only a portion of them. Thus, the need for private health insurance to supplement Medicare.

Farmers can "lick" soil erosion

Soil erosion by both wind and water is a major problem in Texas and is continually aggravated by some current farming practices and economics.

"The economics of modern farming, larger equipment, high interest rates and careless conservation attitudes have all led to excessive soil erosion in recent years," says Dr. B.L. Harris, soils specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Many farmers are faced with a tough choice—practicing conservation or economics—with the result being biased towards economics out of basic sense of survival, notes the specialist.

"Farmers generally can't afford to practice all needed conservation methods. Many are in extreme financial straits, so economics determine to a great extent what they can or cannot do, regardless of the recommended conservation practices," says Harris.

Farmers now use larger equipment and cultivate more, leading to increased erosion. Few maintain or install new terraces because of economics.

Absentee landlords are also a factor in soil erosion, would benefit all concerned. It would be a way to slow the process or erosion, rebuild the topsoil, and save the land for future use," notes Harris. Farmers leasing cropland often cannot afford soil conservation practices. And, unless a leasee has a long-term agreement, he has no guarantee that he will obtain adequate benefit from the soil conservation work.

"Improving land management practices is the key to solving soil erosion problems," believes Harris. "If farmers believe they must continue to farm erodible land, they should follow farming practices that help cut down on erosion."

Contouring and terracing can cut erosion losses in half. Leaving crop residue on the ground can reduce erosion by another 40 percent. Conservation tillage and double cropping also help. Some farmers shy away from these practices because of the costs involved, notes the specialist.

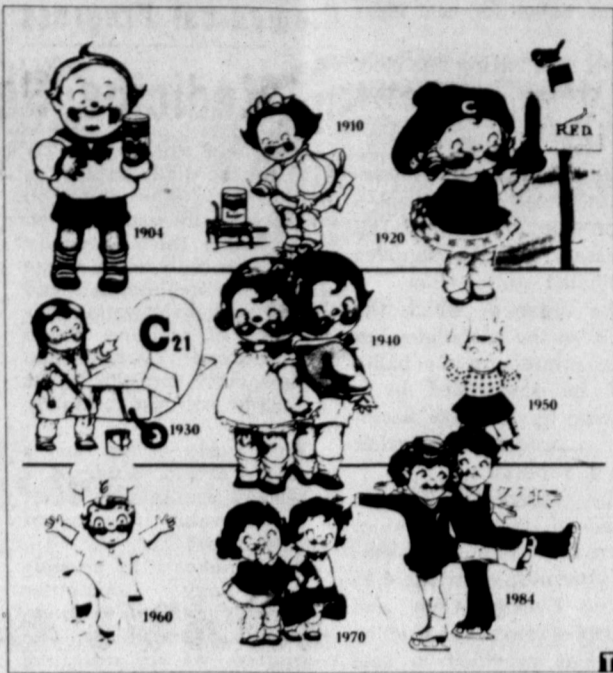

"The best solution is to use each acre for what it is best adapted to produce," Harris emphasizes. "Soil erosion has increased in areas where more sloping pasture land is now used to grow crops. Returning such land to its original state

Local soil and water conservation districts and conservationists with the Soil Conservation Service can provide excellent advice on erosion control and technical expertise for installing practices, says the specialist. The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service provides some "cost-share" funds for selected conservation practices, and the Farmers Home Administration provides loans to assist with conservation programs.

All of these agencies and more work together to assist landowners and users to protect their basic resources while they reap realistic profits from their production operations. Harris encourages farmers and ranchers to make extensive use of assistance from these state and federal agencies.

"Conservation must first be a well-ingrained attitude in landowners before any long-term improvement in soil resources occurs," contends Harris. "All users of land are encouraged to give serious thought to the quality and condition of lands they will leave to future generations."

HAPPY 80th BIRTHDAY TO THE Campbell Kids

The Campbell Kids, celebrating their 80th birthday in 1984, were created by artist Grace Drayton, of Philadelphia. Using herself as a model, she first sketched the Campbell Kids at her husband's request to be added to his advertising layouts for Campbell Soup Company. They were first used on streetcar cards in Philadelphia in 1904. In the beginning they were just active, healthy looking boys and girls. Later they were portrayed as athletes, police, sailors and soldiers.

Who are the most recognizable kids in the country? The Campbell Kids of course. Their round faces, wide eyes, rosy cheeks and dimpled knees have been symbols of Campbell Soup Company for 80 years.

But the Kids have fewer dimples these days. They're gradually slimming down to support Campbell's commitment to good nutrition, fitness and overall well-being. Most recently, they've joined the U.S. Olympic Team. They've taken up figure skating, speed skating and hockey, bobsledding and skiing because Campbell is sponsoring the U.S. Figure Skating Team and Campbell's Soups have been designated "Official Soups" of the 1984 Winter Olympic Games in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia.

The role and emphasis of the Campbell Kids in the Company's advertising and promotional efforts have varied, but they are still being used and are today one of the most familiar and readily recognized trademarks in America.

News for TEA LOVERS

FAMOUS MEN IN TEA HISTORY

Emperor Shen-Nung. This Chinese ruler was said to have discovered tea in 2737 B.C. when tea leaves accidentally fell into a cauldron of boiling water, and he noticed the pleasing aroma. He tasted the brew and the world has enjoyed his discovery ever since.

Thomas Sullivan was a New York wholesaler who was looking for a cheaper method of distributing samples of tea than the tins that were being used in the early 1900s. He packaged samples in little silk bags—but to his amazement, customers started brewing the tea right in the bag rather than removing the contents. The tea bag was born.

Richard Blechyden. The year was 1904 and the event was the St. Louis World's Fair. Blechyden was a merchant of Indian tea who was trying unsuccessfully to sell hot tea to the sweltering crowds. In desperation, he poured the hot tea over ice and created an instant success with this refreshing new beverage—iced tea.

Sir Thomas Lipton. He started in poverty but became a multimillionaire who owned a chain of grocery stores and eventually was known to millions as "Sir Tea." His interest in the American market really helped to make tea a common beverage in the United States. By purchasing his own tea estates, Lipton was able to sell the freshest, highest quality tea at a fair value directly to his customers. And the company that bears his name today, the Thomas J. Lipton Company, is still known as the seller of the finest quality tea available.

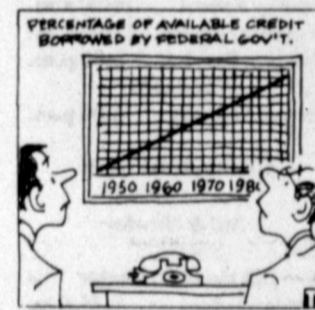

America's first aerial photograph was taken from a balloon over Boston in 1860. Taken by J.W. Black, it was entitled "Boston as the Eagle and the Wild Goose See It."

BY YOUR OWN?

These facts about our economy may be worth your while to know.

• In 1950, the federal government borrowed less than three percent of the money raised in credit markets.

• In 1965, it used less than five percent. In 1970, the government borrowed 20 percent of available credit.

• In 1980, the National Association of Home Builders reports, our government borrowed almost 30 percent.

• At this moment, the government is absorbing more than half of the credit available in the market to finance the current $200 billion deficit.

At today's alarming rate of federal borrowing, the current economic recovery will run out of credit by the end of 1984 or early 1985. When that happens, interest rates will skyrocket, unemployment will rise and the economy will collapse into another recession.

The only way to avoid this credit crunch, according to NAHB, is for the Congress and the Administration to reach a bipartisan accord on a plan to reduce today's $200 billion budget deficit.

Many people are asking their legislators where they stand on the issue of government deficits by writing them at the U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515, and the U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510.

The first television commercial appeared on July 1, 1941. It cost $9.

MARCH IS POISON PREVENTION MONTH

CHECK YOUR HOUSE WITH THIS LIST

Is your home poison-proof? If it's not, someone may get hurt—and soon. But it's easy to poison-proof your home. Help your parents use this checklist. Whatever you answer "no" should be fixed quickly.

POISON-PROOFING THE KITCHEN

- Do all harmful products in the cabinets have child-resistant caps? Products like furniture polishes, drain cleaners and some oven cleaners should have safety packaging to keep little children from accidentally opening the packages.  Yes  No
- Are all potentially harmful products in their original containers? There are two dangers if products aren't stored in their original containers. Labels on the original containers often give first aid information if someone should swallow the product. And if products are stored in containers like drinking glasses or pop bottles, someone may think it is food and swallow it.  Yes  No
- Are harmful products stored away from food? If harmful products are placed next to food, someone may accidentally get a food or a poison mixed up and swallow the poison.  Yes  No
- Have all potentially harmful products been put up high and out of reach of children? The best way to prevent poisoning is making sure that it's impossible to find and get at the poisons. Locking all cabinets that hold dangerous products is the best poison prevention.  Yes  No

POISON-PROOFING THE BATHROOM

- Did you ever stop to think that medicines could poison if used improperly? Many children are poisoned each year by overdoses of aspirin. If aspirin can poison, just think of how many other poisons might be in your medicine cabinet.  Yes  No
- Do your aspirins and other potentially harmful products have child-resistant closures? Aspirins and most prescription drugs come with child-resistant caps. Check to see yours have them.  Yes  No

POISON-PROOFING THE GARAGE OR STORAGE AREA

- Have you thrown out all out-of-date prescriptions? As medicines get older, the chemicals inside them can change. So what was once a good medicine may now be a dangerous poison. Flush all old drugs down the toilet. Rinse the container well, then discard it.  Yes  No
- Do you always give medicine only to the person the doctor prescribed it for? The medicine that worked wonders on one person may harm the next. Give drugs only to the person the doctor told you to give them to.  Yes  No
- Are all medicines in their original containers with the original labels? Prescription medicines may or may not list ingredients. The prescription number on the label will, however, allow rapid identification by the pharmacist of the ingredients should they not be listed. Without the original label and container, you can't be sure of what you're taking. After all, aspirin looks a lot like poisonous roach tablets.  Yes  No

When you can answer all the questions with a "yes," your house is poison-proofed. Then, to make sure your house stays poison-proof, when you buy potentially harmful products make sure they have child-resistant closures and keep these products out of sight and reach.
