TEA Releases Survey

Four and a half years after the enactment of sweeping reforms in the state's public schools, an average of nearly 80 percent of Texas citizens believe the reforms have had a positive effect on education.

A survey commissioned by the Texas Education Agency and conducted in November as part of the statewide Texas Poll also revealed that 56.1 percent of Texans favor increasing state taxes to improve equity in school finance, while 35.9 percent oppose higher taxes for educational equity.

The poll asked some 1,000 individuals whether specific reforms had a very positive effect, slight positive effect, no effect, slight negative effect or very negative effect on the education of students in Texas public schools.

The results showed 84 percent of Texans believe the TEAMS exit-level exam a basic skills test required for graduation, had a very positive or slight positive effect on education. Very positive and slight positive effects also were noted for the 22 to 1 class size limitation in kindergarten through fourth grade (80.1 percent); increased salaries and the career ladder for teachers (78.2 percent); annual appraisal of teachers (80.2 percent); the no-pass/no-play rule (80.6 percent); prekindergarten (79.9 percent); and the limitation of five unexcused absences to receive course credit (65.5 percent).

"We believe the reforms initiated by the Legislature in House Bill 72 and implemented by the State Board of Education over the past four and a half years have had a positive effect on student learning," said Commissioner of Education W. N. Kirby, "but more important than the opinions of educators and policy-makers are the opinions of Texas citizens, whose tax dollars support public education. We are pleased to see that the poll shows Texas citizens agree that the reforms have had favorite results."

The poll also asked for opinions on several other possible actions to improve education that have been suggested by educators, professional organizations, governmental bodies and committees.

Results showed a significant majority of Texans believe a longer school year and longer school day would have a negative effect on education (59.1 percent and 69.9 percent respectively). The poll indicated 84.3 percent of Texans think the addition of writing, social studies and science tests to the exit-level exam would positively affect education; 66.3 percent believe mandatory kindergarten for five-year-olds would have a positive effect; and 67 percent think performance incentives for school districts would be positive.

Citizens split almost evenly on the question of whether student performance gains should be used as a basis for teacher pay with 42.3 percent believing it would have a positive effect on education and 41.5 percent thinking it would have a negative effect.

An almost-even split also was shown on the question of whether state funds should be allotted to districts to help pay for school construction; 44.9 percent said the state should provide construction funds and 47.1 percent said it should be left to the districts.

If funds are increased to improve equity, 70.2 percent of Texans say additional state funds should be allotted to all school districts while 25 percent said additional funds should go only to poorer districts.

WTU News

West Texas Utilities Co. today received permission to recover the cost of a replacement fuel contract at its Rio Pecos Power station. The station near McCamey Texas is one of nine power stations operated by the utility. The plant has been burning the higher-priced replacement gas since late December.

"A residential customer using 1000 kilowatt hours of electricity a month will see his average bill go from $78.42 to $82.77," WTU local manager Jerry Chambliss said. The actual increase in a customer's bill will vary depending on usage level, the customer group and time of year.

The company has different summer and winter rates as directed by the Public Utility Commission of Texas. The PUCT regulates utility rates in Texas, and it was this state agency which authorized today's actions.

Although the average cost of fuel on the company's many fuel contracts has not changed significantly, the replacement costs on this pre-oil embargo gas contract were nine times higher than the old price. The old contract at 22 cents per million BTUx had saved customers $350 million over its 20-year life.

"We would like to have kept those prices and not changed any of our fuel costs to customers, but the contract expired," Chambliss said. The local manager added that WTU has lowered its fuel factor five times since 1985, and had six refunds totaling almost $50 million as the result of other contract changes.

Fuel is burned at power stations to produce electricity. It makes up approximately 36 percent of the cost of electricity. They are passed through directly to the customer, Chambliss said, with the utility making no profit on fuel costs.

WTU customers will see the increase starting on February bills. The company in September initially asked for permission to change the fuel factor portion of the bill. This provided four months for regulatory review before the higher fuel charges were needed.

Comptroller of Public Accounts

Austin, Texas.. State Comptroller Bob Bullock Tuesday proposed a multi-million dollar, low interest state bond program to help local school districts build needed classrooms.

"Where our kids are educated is just as important as textbooks and lesson plans," Bullock said. The plan to issue $750 million in revenue bonds would require legislative approval.

Bullock said the money saved by local schools through a state-sponsored bond program to build educational facilities could be used to upgrade educational programs or provide property tax relief.

He said Texas is only one of 10 states that don't provide financial assistance to local schools to build classrooms.

"High local property taxes are killing education and it's time for the state to help. Our state desperately needs an educated work force to compete in tomorrow's economy," Bullock said.

He said bond money could also be used to refund any costly outstanding school bond debts and the resulting savings could be applied to each district's basic education program.

"Texas needs classrooms, laboratories and libraries. I'm not talking about building football stadiums, gymnasiums or swimming pools," Bullock said, pointing out that many districts can't afford to build needed facilities because their limited local tax resources have been exhausted.

Texas' 1100 school districts paid almost $900 million in 1988 on more than $6.5 billion in bond debt interest and principle. Texas, according to Bullock, has the highest public school bond debt in the nation.

The availability of state bond funds for local school construction would be a tremendous benefit to those districts in the greatest need, Bullock said.

"We need to give these schools some relief on expensive, big-ticket items like classrooms," Bullock said.

He said a state-sponsored bond program should be able to raise money for education at a lower cost. It would be run by the state's Bond Review Board which could have broad latitude to establish eligibility requirements.

"These savings will be passed on to local school districts, letting them concentrate on their main goal of providing a good education," he said.

Bullock said the lack of state support for school facilities was a major factor in a lawsuit that was filed against the Texas school system.

"I think the bond program is a workable alternative that the Legislature can endorse in spite of the fact that the state is facing a tight budget," he said.

Bullock unveiled the plan in a letter to the members of the 71st Legislature.

Getting Your Social Security Check on Time

by Jim Talbot

Social Security Manager in Amarillo

People who receive Social Security checks or supplemental security income (SSI) checks sometimes become alarmed if they do not get their checks in the mail on time.

More than 38 million Social Security and 4.4 million SSI payments are issued in a timely fashion every month from the U.S. Department of the Treasury.

Social Security checks are usually delivered on the 3rd of the month. If the 3rd of the month falls on a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday, generally the checks are delivered on the last banking day of the preceding Friday.

If your SSI check does not arrive on the expected delivery date (usually the 1st of the month), wait until the 4th day of the month before contacting the local Social Security office.

If your Social Security or SSI payment is deposited directly into your checking or savings account in a bank, credit union or other financial institution, you do not have to worry about when your check is delivered. Your payment will be deposited automatically into your account every month.

In 1989, June 3rd falls on a Saturday; September 3rd and December 3rd fall on a Sunday. Social Security checks should arrive the preceding Friday.

Sometimes, checks can get lost or stolen. You should allow 3 full days from the expected delivery date for your Social Security check to arrive. If you don't receive your check by the 6th of the month, then by all means contact any Social Security office so that we can resolve the problem.

If you receive supplementary security income (SSI), your check should arrive in the mail at the beginning of the month, usually on the 1st. If the 1st falls on a weekend or legal holiday, you will usually receive your check on the Friday before.

For example, January 1, 1989, falls on a Sunday so you should receive your SSI check on Friday, December 30. Also in 1989, the 1st of April and the 1st of July fall on a Saturday, and October 1 falls on a Sunday. Your check should arrive before then.

FINANCIAL RESOLUTIONS

REVIEW FINANCES FOR 1989 PLANNING

If it's January, it must be time for new year's resolutions. Lose weight. Balance the checkbook. Visit your mother. Plan your funeral.

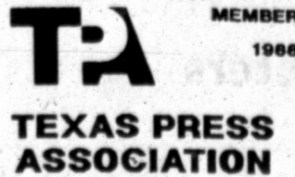

Plan your funeral? According to family finance expert Nancy Granovsky, that's not a morbid resolution.

Considering what would happen to your family if you or any other wage-earner should die suddenly should be a normal part of an annual review of the family's finances, she said.

Granovsky, a specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Texas A & M University, said January is an ideal time to go through what she calls a "financial contingency day".

The purpose is simply to review all aspects of your family finances, update need information and set goals for the coming year, she said.

It's side benefits are helping you get records organized for tax purposes and having ready the financial information you'd need in case of a death, accident or major family crisis.

The specialist suggested several items to consider on a financial contingency agenda:

- Write out a new worth statement. That means listing the value of all your assets, and listing all your debts. The difference between the two is your net worth.

- Plan your financial goals for the next year. Those could include such things as reducing your debt load, saving a certain amount in a college fund for the children, or financing a new car.

- Establish a household budget or revise last year's to reflect new financial goals and/or changes in the family's economic status. If one spouse is going back to work, going from part-time to full time employment or retiring, for example, it will have a great impact on income and expenses.

- Check with your lawyer to have a will drawn up or to see that existing wills are up-to-date. Review how assets and property will be handled in case of a death.

- Prepare or review a letter of last instruction. This letter informs survivors of financial matters needing immediate attention and also describes what funeral plans, if any, you have made.

- Re-calculate survivor's income and expenses in case of a death of a wage-earner. Make out a tentative budget for survivors and list all sources of income they can depend upon.

Granovsky said younger couples are often especially reluctant to go through this process, although they may need it most.

Young families often have higher debt loads, more dependents and are less likely to have substantial resources to carry survivors through until they can get back on their feet financially. That makes some planning all the more important.

Most families won't have to put their contingency plans into action, but going through the process will help them get a grip on their family finances for 1989.

AFTER THE HOLIDAY FEASTING -

CHOOSING THE RIGHT DIET

So you overdid it on the holiday eating and now it's time to hop on the diet bandwagon.

To help fulfill your New Year's vow to lose weight, the magazines will be filled with diet plans and the commercial weight loss programs will advertise heavily during January. The question is, how to choose.

You may not need a "special diet" at all. People with an extra 2 to 5 pounds from overdoing it during the holidays can probably drop the weight just by cutting back on extra calories and getting on an exercise program, such as walking a mile or two each day.

Following the low-fat recipes from a magazine diet plan may help some people do that. But if you're already 20 to 30 pounds overweight and have added even more over the holidays, it's time for a significant diet.

Although a post-holiday fad diet may help in the short run, research indicates that 95 percent of the people who go on them regain the weight within a year.

Before choosing a diet book, class or plan in hopes that it will help you with significant and permanent weight loss, ask yourself the following questions:

- What's the source of the diet? Is it a reliable health organization?

- How is the effectiveness of the diet documented? Be wary of testimonials by "successful" clients. Ask for figures on long-term maintenance as well.

- Are sensational claims made for the diet? Does it make sense that you can "lose ten pounds overnight" or "eat all you want" and still lose weight?

- Is the program supervised by qualified personnel, such as a physician or a registered dietitian?

- Along with calorie reduction, does the diet include instruction in behavior and lifestyle modification to help maintain the weight loss?

- Is this a one-food diet or a liquid diet? In addition to being boring, these diets omit necessary nutrients and can be a danger to your health.

- Is the diet nutritionally balanced? It should include foods from the major food groups of meat, poultry, and fish; fruits and vegetables; dairy products; and grains and cereals.

- What is the cost of the diet? If you have to buy special foods, devices, supplements or books will it be worth it?

RECORDS CRITICAL FOR TAX FILING

With another tax filing season approaching, it's time to start collecting cancelled checks, receipts and numerous forms and miscellaneous items. But rather than taking a helter-skelter approach, a little advance planning regarding recordkeeping could pay dividends.

Generally, collect all records that will help you prepare an accurate tax return, according to Dr. Wayne Haynega, an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. You want to do the best job you can in filing your return so that you pay only the proper tax. And you also need to have good records in case your return is audited by the IRS.

Without proper tax records, you may lose some sleep as well as be subjected to additional taxes, interest and penalties if you can't back up your claims on your tax return.

Information on the following is critical for every tax return:

- Income: Keep copies of Form W-2 (Wages and Tax Statement), Form W-2-P (Statement for Recipients of Annuities, Pensions, Retired Pay or IRA payments), any of the Form 1099 Series for interest, dividends and other distributions plus other documents proving amounts of income.

- Deductions: Keep all sales slips, invoices, receipts, cancelled checks and other documents that support deductions claimed. It's even a smart move to keep receipts and cancelled checks for non-deductible items because sometimes new laws give certain retroactive tax breaks.

For instance, the new Technical and Miscellaneous Revenue Act of 1988 allows taxpayers to claim charitable deductions for 80 percent of payments to colleges and universities. The IRS had ruled these payments non-deductible because they entitled the payer to buy seating at athletic events. With proper records, these deductions can be claimed as far back as 1984.

- Past returns: Keep copies of all tax returns in case it's necessary to file an amended return. Also, a copy serves as a backup if the original never reaches the IRS.

Hayenga also outlined a number of other steps to make tax filing a "less taxing" time.

- Special handling: Taking the extra step to send your tax return by registered or certified mail can bring peace of mind by providing evidence of delivery.

- Interest deductions: Along with statements, notes and cancelled checks to prove interest payments on loans, mortgages and credit cards, keep records to support the type of interest deductions being claimed (investment interest, personal interest or home mortgage interest).

- Charitable contributions: For a cash contribution, keep a cancelled check or receipt showing the charity's name, amount of contribution and date. For property, a similar receipt is needed which also shows the location and description of the property.

A receipt may not be needed for property donation if it's unreasonable to get one, such as depositing used clothing in a drop box. However, every property donation must be supported by detailed written records that include the property's fair market value and the method used to establish it.

Taxpayers performing volunteer services for a charitable organization must keep records of

Because this reporter has spent her time gallivanting and painting cabinets she lacks much local news, therefore she is going to share with you a letter from granddaughter Jennifer, who is an exchange student in Sweden. I hope that you enjoy this young journalist description of her Christmas in Sweden as much as the family has.

Hej!

I'm not sure how well it's going to work typing on this kind of paper, but since I have a lot to tell about, I'll see what happens. This typewriter is pretty strange. I cannot type so fast because it controls the speed.

Well, anyway - First, I'll tell you about Lucia. Lucia is celebrated on Dec. 13, and the holiday comes from Italy. A legend tells of a young woman who in the year 304 was to be burned to death in a fire because of her Christian belief. However, the flames did not hurt her, but burned around her like a halo. Therefore, she was stabbed to death instead. I do not know why this christian holiday is so important in Protestant Sweden, but it is a very big deal. On the 13th, there are choirs throughout Sweden. The choir members wear long, white robes, and girls wear silver tinsel on their heads and carry candles, while boys wear white cone hats with gold stars pasted on them and carry gold stars on long sticks. One girl (most always with long, blonde hair) is the Saint Lucia, and she wears a crown of five candles on her head and a red sash which symbolizes Lucia's blood.

The Lucia celebration at my school was magnificent. The choir performances went much better than the basketball game!! We came to school at 7:30 to get dressed. The crazy guys were changing clothes right in the middle of the music room. The students here certainly don't care so much about privacy as Americans. We performed first in the auditorium. It was so beautiful. It was dark and snowing outside, and the only light was from the candles. We sang 15 songs, and it was really nice. I almost forgot what fun I had trying to learn them all in the four weeks before the performance. It was great to be part of something so beautiful and so special.

Despite the fact that the students could chose whether to attend the performance or sleep later, the auditorium was filled to capacity, so we did another show in the cafeteria for those who did not get to see the first one. After that, we went to another school and to a school for the mentally retarded. It was lots of fun. After four performances, the poor girl who was Lucia had so much wax in her hair!

Now I'll tell you about Christmas, as you are probably curious. Paul Jr., Isabella, Ellica, Isabella's brother Tomas, and Monique's grandfather all came to visit and share the holiday. We had lots of fun. Since we were out of school Friday, "Pappa", Monique, her grandfather, Ellica, a dutch family who was in Rattvik for the holidays, and I went to Tomteland (Santa World). (Told you I got sent to the North Pole!) It was nice, and I now have met Santa Claus at his house. Christmas eve is the big celebration time here in Sweden.

After brunch at 11:00, we gathered all the presents from all over the house, finished the wrapping, and put them under the tree. We had thought of doing it sooner, but we were afraid Bromietje (the kitten) would have too much fun with these new attractions. However, he was more interested in sitting in the middle of the manger scene and stealing decorations from the tree.

Around 2:30, just after dark, we had cookies, bread, cinnamon rolls, and a hot wine call glogg (glug). Then we began opening the presents. Since only one person at a time opened a present, this took a great deal of time. There was a great deal of laughing too, as Paul Sr. wore a chef's hat to pass out the gifts.

Also, Monique's grandfather tried on her new underwear as a hat, and Marjan had bought Paul Jr. some socks which don't slip on the wooden floors. Isabella laughed so hard at those, so you can imagine everyone's amusement when it was discovered that everyone got a pair of the socks, including Isabella!

In the midst of opening the gifts we were interrupted twice by visits from Jultomte (Santa). Tomas especially enjoyed that, as he is mentally retarded.

At 9:00 we had Christmas dinner. First we had fish. I discovered that eel is pretty good, but I wasn't fond of the seal! Then we had ham, sausage, Swedish meatballs, potatoes, mushroom pot pie, Dutch cheese, various kinds of bread, and many other tasty things to eat. After the meal, we had coffee and chocolate mint foam cookies of some sort.

I went to bed at midnight, but woke up at 2:15 a.m. to go to church with Paul Sr. and "Opa" (Monique's grandpa). Although the service did not start until 4:00, we had to arrive early in order to find a place to sit. The service was absolutely beautiful. There was fiddle and organ music, and the church was lit only by candles. It felt nice to come in out of the cold (2 degrees F), dark night to the bright church and the wonderful music.

Fortunately, I was allowed to sleep as late as I cared to Christmas day. In the afternoon, Monique, Ellica, and I went sledding. That evening some friends came over, and we watched movies and talked until midnight. And most importantly, it snowed!! (A white Christmas!) It's been snowing continuously for two days now.

Everyone was pleased with the presents you sent. Monique and I (and everyone) thought the sweaters were very nice, and we didn't trade, as Monique has a brown miniskirt hers goes well with.

I still haven't cooked anything, but would like to cook and give everyone the Texas stuff sometime in the next few months when Paul and Isabella come again. I've decided that tacos are about the cheapest and best thing to make now (We may try barbecue this summer), so could you please tell me what I should do to make them. I can buy El Paso taco shells here, and I believe I can buy hot sauce as well.

I can hardly believe it, but the first semester of school is already over. We got grades Thursday, and I did ok first term. The grades are from one to four this semester, and 4 is 90 to 100, 3 (average) is 80-90, 2 is 70-80, and 1 is failing. I only got grades in math (3), gym (3), typing (4) and Spanish (4). (No, I could not believe the Spanish grade either!!!) I believe the reason I did not get a four in math was because our grades were based only on two tests (no semester tests here Elena!), and I did not do so well on the first one because I did not understand the Swedish. I did not get a grade in English, but must have one for credit next year, so I must go talk to my "dear friend" the student director about that when we get back after the holidays. (I say dear friend because the exchange students are always in his office. I really don't know how he get anything done for always having to take care of us! Therefore, we all know him quite well by now.) I do not know what kind of schedule I will have next term, but it will be a bit more difficult. I can no longer sleep late on Tuesday and Wednesday, as I will have psychology, and I believe I am going to have another English class or two, and possibly cook with the cooking line a little when I do not have class. Also, I will only have 8 classes of Swedish instead of 10, so I believe I will have music once a week.

Somewhere I believe I was supposed to explain a bit more about lines in school. It may be easier to understand if you keep in mind that I am not actually in high school at all, but in a junior college.

Therefore, choosing a line is similar to choosing a major in college. Students try to chose a line which most prepares them for what they want to do in college or when they get out of the gymnasium (what the school I'm in is called). For example, students who are interested in a job where they will have to communicate with foreigners may chose the Humanistic line. In this line, students study lots of foreign languages (4 I believe). My line (Social) is for those who are interested in journalism, psychology, tourist industry (hotels, tourist bureaus, etc.), law, social science, pharmacy, veterinary science, and so forth. However, we have everything from music majors to teachers to prelaw students in that line, so there is quite a variety. Maybe you understand more about lines now.

I got some winter shoes, socks, and another shirt. However, I am now in need of some money. It's amazing how much more I pay for things here. Also, train trips are about $20 to $25 one way, so that's not cheap either despite the fact I have a discount card.

The drinking age here in Sweden is 20, or 18 in bars and clubs, so I'm really not sure where everyone gets alcohol before the discos. I do not think there are so many rules about selling to minors here as there are in the US. However, what surprises me most is the fact that so many parents allow and even encourage their children to drink alcohol. When I was at Jonas's house, his mom came in and out of the room all the time, so I asked Jonas if she cared if he and his friends were drinking, as they hadn't made any effort to cover up what they were doing. He told me, "She isn't thrilled with the idea, but she can't say anything because she and my dad drink too." Evidentially, that is the same in many families.

There aren't so many fads here as in the US I don't think, but it is a little hard for me to tell, as I haven't been here long enough to know what is commonplace and what is just passing through. However, the hair barretts like I sent Elena are very popular, and the wilder, the better. Also, those clown-like tennis shoes (NIKE I think) which are red, yellow, green, polka-dotted, etc. were popular before it got too cold to wear them, and when I first got here, jean jackets were a really big thing.

Well, guess I should go and get some other things done. I'm supposed to be reading a book for Swedish lessons, and I have some correspondence to catch up on as a result of Christmas.

1989 Wheat Producer Board Biennial Election and Vote to Change Assessment Limit

Texas wheat producers will vote in late February and early March to elect 5 board members. Producers will also decide on a proposal to change the wheat check-off assessment limit to 1 cent per bushel for research, market development, and service.

To learn more about the upcoming election and assessment vote, producers in Donley and surrounding counties will want to attend an informational meeting sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service on January 25 at Vernon, Tx., says Tim Trimble, county Extension agent. The meeting will be at the Research and Ext. Center and will start at 1:30 p.m.

Producers will hear from an Extension economist regarding the current wheat situation, outlook and changing wheat production trends in the state, says Tim. Also, the mechanics and timing of the voting process will be presented.

Following these discussions, Texas Wheat Producers Board representatives will report on the current use of assessment funds and plans for the future. There will be ample time for questions and input from producers regarding the program.

For additional information, please contact the county Extension office, says agent Trimble.

The Lions Tale

by Gene Alderson

The Clarendon Lions Club held its regular meeting at noon on Tuesday at the Lions Hall with 27 members and guests present. Following the regular opening ceremony Liontamer Henson introduced our guests including Raymond Hodges, a bank advisor from Wellington, and Arthur Shields, a farmer from Lelia Lake. They were the guests of Lion Garland. Boss Lion Hicks called on Lion Wilbert Bernabe for a bingo report. Lion Sharrar, club secretary, presented Lion Henson with a "Lions Grow" pin from the former district governor for securing a new member during a contest period last year. Lion Bently mentioned a seminar on Christian Principles in Business to be held in Amarillo in March and invited local business people who might be interested in attending to contact him for more information. Program Chairman Smith introduced Arthur Harris, a freshman at Clarendon College and President of Area 1 F.F.A. who brought us a humorous program. Meeting was adjourned.

Dear Editor,

There is an important meeting being held Thursday, Jan. 26 at 7:30 p.m. in the Clarendon School Cafeteria called "Parents for Sexual Responsibility."

The program will be presented by women from the Amarillo Crisis Pregnancy Center. I urge all parents and any others who work with youth in our community to attend. Here's why:

Clarendon, like many other places, has a serious and growing problem with teenage pregnancy. Our youth are bombarded with sexual pressure and innuendoes from many sources; television, music, movies, peers, etc. There has been a national push to "educate" youth with sexual information at "family planning" clinics. Most of this sex-education focuses on providing birth control. Unfortunately, as we have taken a morally neutral stance, the problems and pregnancies have increased! Providing freer access to birth control information and devices simply is not the solution. If we really care about our children, we must have the courage to tell them the truth about love, marriage and sex.

Consider the information they receive from other sources. I called the local Planned Parenthood office and requested books for adolescents to read about sexuality. I was shocked as I read literature advising adolescents to "feel good" about their sexual behavior, however they wanted to "explore" it. The books condone and encourage teenagers to participate in sexual encounters with many partners, including homosexual activity, incest (only between brothers and sisters; it's harmful with an older relative), and bestiality (sodomy with an animal). All of this sexual activity was presented as "normal" sexual behavior for adolescents! I realize that my moral, political and religious beliefs are conservative, but I truly do not believe that this information is in line with our community's standards of normalcy or decency.

We must be willing to take a stand and present to our youth an alternative which will protect them from the consequences of becoming sexually active-abstinence! We cannot continue to give them sexual information in a moral vacuum and expect them to act responsibly. Please attend the meeting and discover how we can accomplish this!

Sincerely,
Jeanette Lovelless

Native Texas Plants is divided into thirteen sections of varying lengths. The first section describes the various geographical areas of the state and the appropriate plants for each. Donley county residents will probably want to study the sections on the High Plains, West Texas and possibly others.

Sections two through eleven describe various classes of plants available to Texas gardeners: ground covers, grasses, annuals, perennials, shrubs, ornamental trees, conifers, shade trees, vines and water plants. There are a few curious omissions. Ashe juniper (Juniperus ashei), and One-seed juniper (Juniperus monosperma) are described, but Donley County's other juniper (Juniperus pinchoti) is not covered. Yet pinchoti may be the prettiest of the three, with its bright red berries. Omitting an occasional possibility does not weaken the book very much however. It contains a wealth of information.

The last two sections are very short sections on "Who's Who in Native Plant Landscaping" and "Public Native Landscapes." Interspersed throughout the book are plans for example yards or gardens. For some readers, these alone are worth the price of the book.

The book has a bibliography and a good index.

Native Texas Plants is well written in a witty, Texas style. For example, one plant is said not to transplant well because "it has a taproot about eighty miles long". Yet wit and humor aside, the book contains a wealth of useful information.

Donley County residents may order the book through their favorite bookstore or from Texas Monthly Press, P.O. Box 1569, Austin, Tx 78767.

Developing Wildlife Habitat

Overhead cover, an important habitat component for many wildlife species is being overlooked in much of the cropland currently being planted to grass in Texas.

Upland game birds, such as quail and pheasant, need this type cover for evading predators and loafing during the day.

When developing habitat on these grass areas, the use of wildlife packets from the Texas Forest Service works well in creating overhead cover. They offer four different species. The four groups of species are 1) quail and dove, 2) turkey and deer, 3) pheasant and 4) squirrel. Each packet contains 100 plants of four different species, and contains instructions for planting, design of planting and location of planting.

Local Soil and Water Conservation Districts that sell trees are able to obtain these packets. Landowners can contact the local SWCD for information on wildlife packets.

It is good to remember that the Soil Conservation Service personnel at Clarendon assist landowners and operators through the Donley County SWCD in planning wildlife habitat development. For assistance, call the local office of the Soil Conservation Service.

To keep peanuts at their munching best, store in a cool, dry place. They'll keep indefinitely frozen in a tightly closed container.

NEW BOOK of interest to Clarendon readers.

New Book for Clarendon Gardeners

Landscaping and gardening can be frustrating for Clarendon residents. The happy gardener sees a beautiful plant in a garden magazine or catalog, and orders it, expecting it to grow up like the picture. But beautiful, exotic plants that thrive in England or Pennsylvania often die in West Texas. Or worse, they survive as struggling, sickly eye sores.

While exotic plants are suffering or dying, native vegetation grows and thrives. And many native grasses, shrubs and trees have the potential to become first-class landscape plants.

On February 1, Texas Monthly

Press will release a new book that Donley County residents should relish. The new book describes how to landscape with native Texas plants that are adapted to the area.

The new book was written by Sally and Andy Wasowski. It is called Native Texas Plants: Landscaping Region by Region.

The section on grasses is especially significant. Most people think of lawns, shrubs and trees in planning a landscape. Yet grasses were the dominant vegetation in this region and in much of the rest of Texas. Grasses can be dramatic landscape elements. The book even presents the possibility of an all-grass garden. Why not? It could be as attractive as any other - and far more natural to the area.

Curbing Births, Not Pregnancies

By Stan E. Weed

More than a million teenagers—most of them unmarried—become pregnant each year, and the number is rising. The belief is widespread that the number will be reduced by opening more "family planning" clinics and making them more accessible to teens. However, research a colleague and I have done suggests otherwise.

As the number and proportion of teenage family planning clients increased, we observed a corresponding increase in the teenage pregnancy and abortion rates: 50 to 120 more pregnancies per thousand clients, rather than the 200 to 300 fewer pregnancies as estimated by researchers at the Alan Guttmacher Institute (formerly the research arm of the Planned Parenthood Federation). We did find that greater teenage participation in such clinics led to lower teen birthrates. However, the impact on the abortion and total pregnancy rates was exactly opposite the stated intentions of the program. The original problems appear to have grown worse.

We have but to look at the last 20 years of teaching. "If it feels good do it, but use birth control" to prove this is not working for our good.

The Family of V. T. McPherson Celebrated 1988 Christmas With a Trip to Puerto Vallarta, Jalisco, Mexico at the Club Meza Del Mar.

Enjoying the trip were: V. T. & Opal McPherson of Hedley, James and Carolyn Kirkland of Clarendon and Amarillo. Kathy Richardson of Lawton, Okla., Beverly Ray of Ozark, Missouri.

All arrived at the beautiful Pacific beach of Puerto Vallarta on 12-16-88 at 5 p.m. The temperature was 86. Everyone enjoyed resting on the beach, market shopping and shopping on the beach.

The next day was enjoyed by an all day cruise to island of Yelapa, where all enjoyed the outdoor restaurant "Lagunita", more shopping, meeting local natives, observing their ancient ways of life, eating fish cooked outside and drinking "Poco Locos". Playing on the beautiful white sand beach and watching exciting "Parachute Rides" over the Pacific Ocean.

One day was dedicated to a "Tropical Tour" which consisted of touring the city and jungle. We saw the sights of the city, beautiful churches, building, home of Elizabeth Taylor. Several farming communities and observing their way of life and lots of visiting with people in the area. Touring the jungle area we saw the "Garden of Eden", having lunch in their beautiful restaurant by the pool, more shopping, beautiful water fall, observing natives bathing in the streams, more shopping at a modern mall. Seeing new and beautiful condos.

Attended the Bullfights at the bullring "La Paloma". The matadors were Alejandro Silveti and Pepe Luiz Vazquez, they faced the brave bulls in the bullring in the deadly spanish style. Us Texans were cheering for the bull, he never had a chance. All came away grateful that the United States does not allow this type of cruelty to animals. It cost 50,000 pesos to attend the bullfights.

All will never forget the beautiful "Mexican Fiesta" with folkloric ballet, Mariachi, a trio for dancing, style show with all leather from Nieman-Marcus, games played by Kathy doing the "Limbo" V. T. &

Kathy dancing the "Mexican Hat Dance". James & Carolyn passing apple under chin to three other couples and James trying to finish a baby bottle of orange juice before three other guys. Beverly showed everyone the correct way to wear the hugh Mexican sombrero. The food buffet consisted of fifteen different Mexican dishes, all delicious, no one came away hungry.

V. T. McPherson & James Kirkland enjoyed a tour on horseback where they observed the native Mexicans doing their wash on a river bank and washing their dishes, scrubbing their pans with rocks. Mexican children diving in the ocean for pesos.

Several checked out the night life and discovered several discos that feature American music. All enjoyed the "Taxi" rides to shopping areas. This was an experience in itself. The cobble streets are very narrow and very rough and the Taxi's go every which way.

The food was absolutely fantastic, especially the ice cream, the coconut was out of this world. Great people from all over the world were there, Canada, Hawaii, Oklahoma, and lots of Texans, everyone made new friends and everyone was so friendly.

The last night all celebrated "Christmas", as all were going separate ways when arriving back in Dallas. We went to the restaurant "Cafe Buena Vista" and gave each one a "Christmas Gift", which consisted of drawing names and giving the gift of telling the one whose name they drew of something good about them.

The eight days and seven nights were gone in the blink of an eye and arrived back in Amarillo at midnight 12-23-88. Opal was already checking with the travel agencies for tours on Christmas 1989.

Kirklands Had "Old Fashioned Christmas"

The family of James L. Kirkland had an "Old Fashioned Christmas" at his farm home in Clarendon. Those present were:

James & Carolyn Kirkland of Clarendon and Amarillo. Carrie Kirkland, Joyce Stevens, and Butch and Jimmy Stevens, Ricky & Debra Johnson and L.B. Johnson, Froy and Barbara Escamilla and Junior and Karrie Escamilla, Georgia Forkner, Brad and Dianne Cannon and Whitney Cannon, all of Amarillo. Bobby Johnson and Crickett and Dustin Johnson of Slaton. Lee and Joan Wagner of Vega. Jimi and Darla Kirkland and Shiloh, Nathan, Shayna and Cheyenne of Austin, R.E. Maddux of Nashville, Tenn., V. T. and Opal McPherson of Hedley, Kathy Richardson of Lawton Oklahoma.

Everyone enjoyed the great food, visiting, games and fellowship, but most of the "Old Fashioned Hayride".

Deuteronomy 6:7-9

Jubilee

by Jon Leggett

Leviticus 25:8-19 is the strange and fascinating instruction to the Israelites concerning the observance of the year of Jubilee. Every fiftieth year, the people were to free all slaves, let the land lay fallow, and return all land to the original owner. Like so many other passages in the Word, it has a spiritual meaning and a more immediate, day-by-day application.

Spiritually, the year of Jubilee may be likened to the freedom given to slaves of sin by the grace of God. In that year, all mortgages were canceled; in Jesus Christ the debt for our sin is completely paid. Further, Jubilee taught the people that they could trust the Lord. They were to plant no crops that year—they were to live from volunteer crops—and had to trust the Lord for their living.

From a more down-to-earth standpoint, Jubilee provided hope for a man who had sold himself into slavery, a period of recovery for the soil, and assured that the Promised Land would remain in the hands of the Chosen People.

It is, of course, that statute dealing with the return of land to its original owner that sounds strangest to us. "It shall be a year when all the family estates sold to others shall be returned to the original owners or heirs"(verse 10, The Living Bible). Did you ever hear of anything more un-American? Can't you just hear screams of "Unconstitutional!", "Unlawful seizure!", if someone were to suggest such a thing? But is there a lesson in economics for us here? Did God "depression-proof" His people?

Think about it for a moment. What would it do to prices, to interest rates, to a bank's willingness to make large loans, if we knew every fiftieth year all land would revert to the original owner? "If the Jubilee is many years away, the price will be high; if few years, the price will be low; for what you are really doing is selling the number of crops the owner will get from the land before it is returned to you" (verse 16, The Living Bible). Instead of ever-increasing prices, growing debt burden, and spiraling interest rates, which are some of the causes of depression, shouldn't the reverse be true here? I don't know—I'm not an economist. And could we apply the practices of a simple, agriculture-based economy to our highly technical society? Again, I don't know. But two questions persist in my mind. Did God make His people depression-proof? I'm inclined to believe the answer is yes. Can we learn anything from their ancient system? Again, I think we must say yes. If we could somehow manage to limit our debt—personal and national—it seems to me that it could only help.

At the very, very least, two things must be said about this passage, apart from its spiritual application. First, God is interested in, and wants to be a part of, every phase of our lives. Secondly, whatever political or economic system we live under, verses seventeen through nineteen convey an unmistakable message: They were to obey; so are we. God would provide; He still does. "I am Jehovah. Obey my laws if you want to live safely in the land. When you obey, the land will yield bumper crops and you can eat your fill in safety" (The Living Bible).

AGRICULTURE NEWS

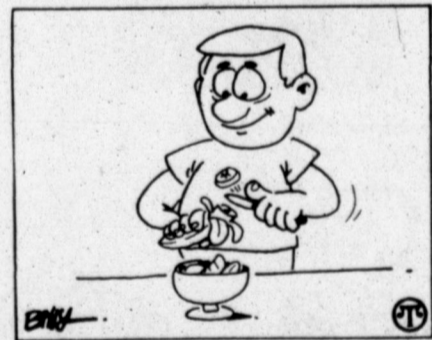

First, I want to take time and say that I am glad to be in Clarendon, Texas, and serving Donley County as one of the County Extension Agents. I am looking forward to working with the folks in Donley County, and my family and I appreciate the many warm welcomes and help getting situated in the county.

I started work here in Donley County on January 16, 1989, and for the short time that I have been here it isn't too hard to figure out that the county needs some rain (or snow, I suppose). Unfortunately, at some time or another in the last several months nearly every Texas County has been in the same shape. Many still are needing some good general rains to get some kind of sub-soil moisture.

Wheat in the area is in poor condition for the most part due to lack of moisture and greenbug damage. Beef producers and stocker operators that were counting on grazing wheat are having to supplement cattle. Stocker operators should keep cattle gaining 1/4 to 1/2 pounds per day on supplementation. Cows need to be kept in good condition to insure a good chance of re-breeding after calving and maintain that twelve month calving interval. Good quality hay will usually provide enough energy and protein for cows but hay should be tested to obtain the real protein content. This enables cattlemen to feed cattle without over and or under feeding and give some idea of what kind of protein supplement is needed, if any.

Some farmers may be wondering about replanting of winter wheat or may be considering spring oats or barley. According to the area Extension Agronomist, Dr. Brent Bean, replanting of winter wheat for grain production is to late but spring oats is a viable option provided that a farmer has place to go with the oats. In Donley County most of the wheat is grazed out, so winter wheat could be replanted for that purpose.

Cotton producers are concerned about much needed moisture and data from years past indicates that in years where five inches or less rain is received prior to planting, cotton yields have been very low. Cotton on cotton land has very little sub-soil moisture and traditionally in this area January and February are relatively dry months. Above average rainfall will likely be needed prior to planting for good yields in cotton to be expected. Cotton producers may want to consider furrow diking this year and this would need to be done as early as possible. Cotton producers will want to mark February 13 on there calendar for a Cotton Production meeting. As soon as all the details are worked out I will let you know about the time and place. Have a nice day and God Bless You!

Compensation for Disabled Veterans Increased

Veterans Administration compensation payments for disabled veterans will be increased by 4.1 percent effective with checks issued Jan. 1, 1989, the VA has announced.

VA Administrator Thomas K. Turnage said that the cost-of-living increase will benefit some 2.2 million veterans and their families, plus some 345,000 survivors of service member or veterans who died from service-connected causes.

The increase is part of the Veterans' Benefit Improvement Act of 1988, signed by President Reagan on Nov. 18.

The law also calls for establishment of a new Court of Veterans Appeals, and revises procedures of the VA's Board of Veterans Appeals.

For a single veteran with a service-connected disability rated at 100 percent, the change means an increase from $1,411 to $1,468 per month. New monthly amounts for other disability ratings are: 90 percent, $883; 80 percent, $784; 70 percent, $678; 60 percent, $537; 50 percent, $426; 40 percent, $300; 30 percent, $210; 20 percent, $138; 10 percent, $73.

In addition to veterans, the 4.1 percent cost-of-living increase applies to Dependency and Indemnity Compensation paid to spouses and children of service-connected illnesses or injuries.

In other provisions of the law:

The newly established Court of Veterans Appeals, whose principal office will be located in Washington, D.C., will hear appeals of decisions of the Board of Veterans Appeals. The court will review cases in which a notice of disagreement to Board of Veterans Appeals decisions is filed with the VA after Nov. 18, 1988.

The Court will consist of a chief judge and two to six associate judges appointed to 15-year terms by the President. The VA will be represented before the Court by the VA General Counsel.

The law authorizes reasonable attorney fees for representation after a Board of Veterans Appeals decision. In certain contingency-fee cases, fees are limited to 20 percent of the value of awards of past-due monetary benefits. Provision is made for challenging legal fees found to be excessive or unreasonable.
