Services held for Bromley

This past weekend, Clarendon lost a lady who put the town on the map for more than two decades as travelers stopped to enjoy fine dining.

Ruby Mae Bromley died Saturday, January 8, 2000, in Amarillo. She was 93.

Graveside services were held at 10:00 a.m., Tuesday, January 11, 2000, in Citizens Cemetery with Rev. Truman Ledbetter, Pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiating. Burial was held in Citizens Cemetery under the direction of Robertson Funeral Directors, Inc.

Mrs. Bromley was born October 22, 1906, in Donley County and was a lifetime resident of Donley County.

She worked her entire life. While a wife and mother, she did whatever needed to be done on the ranch: cooking for everyone, riding the range, helping throw and brand the calves, etc.

She was a beautician, real estate and insurance salesperson before opening Mrs. Bromley's Boarding House in the late 1950's. The boarding house began as lodging for basketball players from Clarendon College.

The next year, Mrs. Bromley opened her dining room. Her homecooking was second to none. She not only gained fame as a superb cook locally and in Texas, but she was recognized for her accomplishments by in national travel publications and at least two books sold across the US. Her business was listed as one of the outstanding restaurants in Texas.

She retired in 1984. She was inducted into "Texas Women - A Celebration of History" at the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum in Canyon in June 1982.

She was a Baptist. Mrs. Bromley was preceded in death by a son, Billy Milton "Pete" Bromley, in 1982 and by a daughter, Mary Ann Riley, in 1998.

Survivors include six grandchildren: Elizabeth, Bill, Ed, Vickie, Jimmy, and Janice; several great grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews.

Extension Service bringing computer courses to Clarendon

AMARILLO - The popular "have computer will travel" software training workshops sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will be returning to the Panhandle next month. Area farmers and ranchers can start registering now for upcoming courses.

The Extension Service uses its "traveling laptop computer laboratory" to teach farm and ranch operators records management and the use of futures and options in marketing agriculture commodities.

Each short course will be taught by Dr. Steve Amosson, farm and ranch management economist.

This year's series will feature Quicken 2000 for Windows, a convenient, easy-to-learn financial management tool widely used by producers, offered in two-day workshops. Also offered are one-day workshops with BUDPRO for Windows. The BUDPRO program aids producers in making key management decisions for profit in their operations.

"There's always a high level of interest in these particular programs," Amosson said.

Each session will begin at 9 a.m. and end by 3:30 p.m. The software applications are powered by the WINDOWS 95 operating system.

The two-day Quicken 2000 course fee is $75. The one-day BUDPRO course is $50, which includes the software, a $100 value. All fees cover teaching materials for the courses and computer lease payments. Payment must accompany the registration form to be accepted. Forms are available through Amosson or any county Extension office in the Panhandle.

"We also encourage couples to come as a team. They can pay one registration fee when sharing a computer," Amosson explained. Registration will be limited to 14 in order to provide hands-on experience for all participants.

The Quicken 2000 workshops begin in Dumas on February 2 and 3, then move to Perryton on February 14-15, and to Dalhart on February 17-18. Amarillo will be the site of the final two-day session on February 21-22.

Governor, Mayor declare School Board Recognition Month

Governor George W. Bush has proclaimed January 2000 as School Board Recognition Month, and districts across the state will use this opportunity to bolster understanding of the crucial role elected boards of education play in their communities and schools.

Clarendon Mayor Tex Selvidge signed a proclamation Tuesday morning stating his appreciation for school board members and declaring January 2000 as School Board Recognition Month.

Clarendon's school board members are Wayne Hardin, Weldon Sears, Renee Betts, Marvin Thompson, Lance Thornberry, Joe Lemley, and Jim Shelton.

Hedley's school board members are Carole Ward, Cary Don Neeley, Anthony Knowles, Jan Farris, Rhonda Shaw, Troy Monroe, and Mike Wallendorf.

Gov. Bush says Texas leads the nation when it comes to improving public education, and he credits school board members with that success.

"Texas stays on the leading edge of education reform and academic excellence by giving local school districts the freedom to innovate and the power to design programs to meet their communities' needs," Bush said.

"Although the State Board of Education and the Texas Education Agency provide leadership and guidelines, the ultimate responsibility for fulfilling the public trust lies with more than 1,000 local school districts in Texas. More than 7,000 publicly elected school board members make decisions that affect the education of almost four million young Texans.

"These men and women, the largest group of publicly elected officials in Texas, define policy, prepare budgets and oversee local school sin accordance with the will of the people. School boards provide local control over education where it counts - at a point closest to the parent and the child," Bush said.

Texas Association of School Boards Executive Director James B. Crow says school board members serve as advocates for children first and foremost, protecting each child's opportunity to maximize his or her potential.

"Trustees offer vision, knowledge, leadership, and dedication and See "School Board" on page 8.

CISD Trustee Weldon Sears and CISD Superintendent Monty Hysinger flank Clarendon Mayor Tex Selvidge as he proclaims January to be School Board recognition month.

Cuban boy should stay in America away from Castro

What becomes of six-year-old Elian Gonzalez will say a lot about the character of our nation. It will determine whether America will conform to the desires of a dictator or whether she will truly be a beacon of hope and freedom to people around the world.

On Thanksgiving Day, Elian was found on an inner tube off the coast of Florida. Two days earlier, a boat, carrying Elian and eleven other Cubans, capsized as they attempted to escape the tyranny of a communist regime and reach the land of milk and honey — America. The boy's mother and stepfather and nine other people died. Elian was the sole survivor.

What has ensued since then has been a political battle over whether the boy should be allowed to stay in the United States or be returned to Cuba. Elian's natural father and Fidel Castro want the boy in Cuba, but his extended family and the Cuban-American population in Florida want him to stay here.

The impeached president and his administration decided to let the Immigration and Naturalization Service determine the boy's fate. Not surprisingly, the INS did just what Clinton and Attorney General Janet Reno wanted them to do. They sided with the communists.

Last Friday, Congressman Dan Barton (R-Indiana) pulled a masterful political move to keep the boy in the US. He subpoenaed the kid to testify before the House Government Reform Committee. It was a delaying tactic to allow the state court system time to review Elian's case.

This week in Florida, Circuit Judge Rosa Rodriguez handed down a ruling that would allow the boy's American relatives to seek full custody of Elian in a hearing set for March 6.

The only issue in this case ought to be what is in the best interest of the boy. Some argue that his natural father should have custody of him, but that ignores the fact that his mother sacrificed her life trying to bring her child to a land of freedom.

That freedom is better than oppression ought to be self-evident.

When Elian's father says he wants his son to come back to Cuba, we can't be sure that he really means that. We can't be sure that he's just saying what his communist dictator wants him to say. The man has no free will while he is in Cuba.

Elian reportedly wants to stay in this country, and our government ought to do whatever it takes to keep him here.

Clinton and his administration would like to make nice with communist governments like the ones in Cuba and China, and they would desperately like to "improve" relations with Fidel Castro. But we should not be cow-towing to oppressive, totalitarian regimes whose philosophies are diametrically opposed to liberty and self-determination.

Frankly, I've never understood why America tolerates Fidel Castro. The United States sends forces all over the globe to fight dictators in places like Yugoslavia and Iraq, but this little pipsqueak a few miles off our shore can do whatever he wants.

Is Castro really so threatening that when he "demands" a young boy be returned to oppression, the leader of the free world bows down and kisses his foot? Is he such a great military or political power that he can tell America what to do? I don't think so.

It's time for the United States to tell Castro to shove off. Let the old tyrant holler all he wants. He is in no position to dictate terms to the United States of America.

Let the little boy live in freedom. He will probably make a fine American.

Meanwhile...

The United States Postal Service is getting ready to stick it to the American people again.

On Tuesday, the Associated Press reported that the USPS Board of Governors has started the process to attempt to raise postal rates by early next year.

The price of a first class stamp went up one cent last January, and despite huge profits the postal service still wants more. For fiscal year 1999, the postal service reportedly had profits totaling $363 million. That's pretty good for an agency that is just supposed to break even.

A private enterprise would not be able to justify repeated rate hikes while service remains at or below the level it was 20 or 30 years ago. But a government-protected monopoly can do pretty much whatever it wants.

It's time to start holding the postal service accountable. The Postal Rate Commission should reject these proposed increases and insist that future rate hikes be tied to marked improvement in delivery of the mail.

Flu bug more trouble than any Y2K problem

The Y2K bug may have passed us by, but the flu bug has decided to hit instead. It seems like everyone around here has been bitten by the flu bug...everyone but us. And I want it to stay that way.

So, since the first of the year we've been hiding out at home and getting rid of our Y2K food supplies.

I didn't really go overboard with stocking up for Y2K. I just made sure our pantry was full and filled large plastic containers full of flour, sugar, tea, coffee, and other dry goods.

Now, I'm glad I don't have to venture

on the Mark with Christi Ross

out of the house. National news reports have claimed that this year's Sydney-flu strain is even worse than years past and is in epidemic proportions in some areas of the country.

Even though I planned ahead and got my flue shot last October, I'm still going to be a hermit for awhile. As my grandmother used to say, there's no reason for getting out and trying to get sick. And if anyone would know, she surely did. An influenza outbreak in 1918 claimed the life of her mother.

Some may call my plan absurd, but that's okay. While everyone else is busy running around, I'll be at home catching up on laundry and dusting. And, maybe I'll even clean out a few closets while I'm at it.

But hey, anything is more fun than getting the flu.

Senator seeks input on America's role

Future historians will have a hard time describing America's role in the world today. That is because no single country has ever exercised as much economic, cultural, and military power as America does.

Our nation is often called upon to help settle conflicts, assist in natural disasters, and make financial contributions.

Deciding how to best use our global power is one of the most important issues we face. We must prioritize our military missions. If we do not, our troops' combat edge may be dulled, and military funds needed to maintain our armed forces' technological edge will be diverted.

So I hope you will complete the following survey questions on key military and foreign policy issues. Your answers will help me better understand the kind of role you believe America should shoulder in the world.

As always, I am grateful for this newspaper's help in printing this survey.

1) This year Congress passed the National Missile Defense Act, a law that makes it the policy of this country to deploy a network of missile interceptors able to shoot down enemy ballistic missiles. More than two dozen countries have ballistic missile technology, and nations like Iran and North Korea are building missiles with longer and longer ranges. Some may soon be able to strike the US with missiles that can carry nuclear, chemical, and biological warheads.

The US has been prohibited from building a shield against such threats

capitol Comment by Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison

because of the 1972 anti-Ballistic Missile treaty signed with the Soviet Union which intentionally left both nations vulnerable to each other's nuclear arsenal. But the Cold War is over, and new threats are growing.

On a scale of 1-10, "1" being the most important and "10" being the least, how important is it for the United States to go ahead and build a missile defense system to protect the nation?

2) The US is the world's last remaining superpower. We are capable of deploying troops to almost every crisis in the world. But if we are not careful, we could over-extend our troops and weaken our ability to respond to the big crises that demand a superpower's attention.

Please rank the importance of the following regions, with "10" being the most important and "1" being the least important region:

— EUROPE — Our 50-year involvement in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) and our historic ties to Western Europe.

— ASIA — Our long-standing treaties with allies Japan and South Korea, our special commitment to Taiwan and the rise of a more powerful China.

— RUSSIA — Helping Russia's transition from communism to democracy and a free market and trying to continue the proliferation of its nuclear arsenal.

— LATIN AMERICA — Anti-drug assistance to Mexico and Columbia and ensuring the security of the Panama Canal.

— MIDDLE EAST — Our long-time commitment to Arab-Israeli peace and our protection of Persian Gulf oil supplies.

3) The US has deployed troops to humanitarian crises in countries like Somalia, Haiti, Kosovo, and Bosnia which do not directly threaten our national security interests. Our leadership on these missions is expected by other nations and has temporarily stopped civil wars. But it has come at a cost, diminishing our military readiness. Recently, for example, two Army divisions were declared unfit for combat partly because of their peacekeeping duties.

Which is most important (you may choose more than one):

- Participate in more peacekeeping missions
- Guard our troops' combat edge
- Urge allies to handle more peacekeeping

4) In your opinion, what is the most important foreign or national security matter now facing the United States?

Please clip this survey from the newspaper and mail it to me at 284 Russell Senate Office Building, Washington, DC 20510. I always look forward to hearing from you.

Mrs. Janie Farnsworth from the Ivy Cottage in Memphis spent a major part of her day helping Treva Rowland, Amanda Woodard, and Lydia Hartman of Troop 43 work on requirements of their Artistic Craft badge. She taught them the importance of balance and color when setting up vignettes and matting pictures. They toured the Ivy Cottage and saw the ways that balance and color emphasize the displays.

They then went to Memphis Glass Company where Mrs. Farnsworth and her husband taught the girls how to cut glass by hand using a glass cutter and how to set the computer in order to cut out mats for pictures. The girls had a lot of fun and realized that even though they live in the computer age,

New Year's resolutions are serious business

It's a new year - a clean slate - a time for new beginnings.

Have you made any New Year's Resolutions? Resolutions are serious things, and I decided on New Year's Day (while attending the "Stone King" in the hospital) not to rush into anything. After a week of serious thought, I came up with a few things that need changing.

First of all, I resolve to lose some weight. You don't have to be a rocket scientist to know that carrying around too much weight is bad for you. There are hundreds of diets out there, and I have tried them all. They just don't work. Well, they might work if I kept following them, but it's hard to diet when your mate won't eat anything considered to be a vegetable. I mean, if I cook fried chicken, mashed potatoes, and fried okra for him, am I expected to sit there and eat one ounce of cheese and cup of lettuce with no dressing? I'm sorry, I just can't do that. Obviously, I cannot diet until he does too, so this resolution may have to wait for a while - and it's not my fault! What a relief!

Well, I can resolve to wash my dishes after every meal. Of course, I know that within four or five hours of one meal, there's going to be another one. So, if I just let the dishes alone until the end of the day, then I can wash them all at once - thereby saving time and effort. Good idea! No use to get into a great big hurry on this one either.

I definitely resolve to keep my house vacuumed and dusted from here on out. No more excuses. Except, the windy days of spring are coming soon, and everyone knows what that means. Dust! So, if I clean up everyday, the house will be just as dusty again the next day. It would probably be smart just to wait until the wind quits blowing before doing any deep cleaning. Yep - that's what I need to do. I mean, it would be foolish to do a job, knowing full well you would have to do it again the very next day, and my mamma didn't raise no fool!

There is the matter of balancing my checkbook. I resolve to do this everytime I receive my statement. It may be a while before I can start this one because I have four months of statements that I haven't opened yet. I'm afraid they will contain information I don't want to know. In fact, I've read that really bad news can cause stress, and stress can cause heart palpitations. I sure don't want to have a heart attack. I better wait on the checkbook thing until I get myself into better physical condition.

Speaking of physical condition, I resolve to exercise everyday. If I walked to my mailbox, I would cover almost a mile and a half round trip.

That would be good for the heart and circulation. But, part of that distance is up hill - a steep hill. You know, I've read that you should exercise gradually - not do too much at once. I better start out a little at a time - like walking to my garage. I can drive to the mailbox, then walk back to the house from my garage when I get home. Sounds like a plan to me! If I walk briskly, I ought to be able to build up my stamina within six months. I'm pretty sure this is what Jane Fonda would recommend.

It's becoming clear to me that resolutions take some advance planning. You can't just rush right into them. I think I will start now and make my plans. That way, when January 1 rolls around next year, I will be all set. Now don't think I am putting off my resolutions - I'm not! I'm just being cautious. I mean, you shouldn't make a promise you can't keep. That's not the right thing to do, and above all else, I resolve to do the right thing!

New Arrival

Mr. and Mrs. James Hoggatt and son Jesse are proud to announce the arrival of Battle Ronald Hope Hoggatt. Battle was born on December 30, 1999, weighing in at 7 lbs. and 15.4 oz.

The family resides in Oceanside, California, where James is stationed at Camp Pendleton.

Hedley students have no trouble with TAAS test

Mother and I went to Post last week and spent a night with my kids, Leon and Linda Couch. I can't believe how much the grandchildren, Langly and Mariah, have grown since I last saw them. Langly will be 14 next month, and Mariah was 12 in October. I've said it many times...kids don't stay little long enough.

Harold and Mary Ruth White enjoyed their daughter and granddaughters, Tanya, Tara, and Tamra Gibson over the weekend. The Gibsons live in Perryton.

Don and Erma Lee Young of Wichita Falls spent several days last week and her mother, Mrs. Ora Pearl Farris.

A few weeks ago Karen and her mother, Helen Ford, gave me some barn cats. I think there were six of them. After a few days one of them went missing. We thought a coyote had got her, but about two weeks after she was missing, she returned to Helen's house. It's twenty miles from my house to Clarendon, and I don't know how she got there, but Helen told me she came home and she was going to keep her. I still have five cats in my barn.

I saw on television a few days ago that some people had filed suit protesting the TAAS test that the kids have to take before they can graduate from high school. I called Bryan Hill, and he told me that the grades of the kids at Hedley were above the state average and that they were close to the top grades in the region. I understand there are about sixty schools in the Panhandle and that the region scores are the highest in the state.

I guess most people in Hedley were watching football Sunday. The Dallas Cowboys were playing the Minnesota Vikings. I thought the Minnesota team was called the Twins, but Daniel Bolin told me the Twins played baseball.

Oh, well, I don't watch football. I've seen two games in my long life. Years ago Fred and I attended a game at Childress when they played Clarendon. Helen Woody spent the entire time explaining the game to me, and I didn't know anymore about it when it was over than I did to start with.

We also saw a game at Quanah when Leon and Linda lived there. The only way I knew when Langly was playing was when I could see the number on the back of his uniform.

Professional football is big business. I've read how much the professional players are paid, and it's outrageous. Many of the players make more in one season than a farmer makes in his lifetime.

I've also heard how some of them get in trouble with the law for doing drugs and other serious crimes. They should realize that children make heroes of them and then try to live their lives so that they would be a good influence on the children.

Anyway, Dallas is out of the playoffs because they lost.

School gets going again with start of new semester

School is getting back into the swing of things with basketball season in full roar. The college administration is gearing up for spring registration next week, so the college kids are still home. The dorms in Clarendon won't fill up till Sunday. Things are either half-done and won't be finished for months yet (like basketball), or they haven't quite begun yet. It's almost like being in limbo.

Or maybe that's just the after-effect of the holiday season. We're still a little stunned, perhaps from an excess of turkey. Y2K certainly turned out to be the big non-event of the year.

Most of those I've spoken with saw the New Year in with small, family gatherings. One of my friends was asked to de-bug her father's computer at fifteen minutes till midnight and celebrated while downloading a patch from a software website. She is not bragging about her New Year's celebration. So I doubt the quiet in Clarendon is due to too much champagne at 12:01 a.m. on January 1.

A few things have taken place. The Art Club had their annual salad luncheon and reading of the by-laws last Friday. This Tuesday, Sue Church met with potential Master Clothing Construction volunteers to discuss the requirements and obligations of the position. This should provide new opportunities for anyone interested to learn more about making their own clothes, whether for the new volunteers or those they work with in the future.

It's also about time for the Girl Scouts to be marketing their wonderful diet ambushes more familiarly known as Girl Scout Cookies. For everyone who has made the New Year's resolution to lose weight, there's a cookie out there with your name on it. I should know. Whole cases of them have ambushed me in past years.

Bill Holden had heart bypass surgery last week. He's home and doing well. I know all of Clarendon joins me in wishing him well and healthy soon.

So what else is going on in town? I do not know. Somebody please tell me. Is anything happening? Or did I just miss it?

Renovation begins at senior citizens center

By Tammy Christopher

Well, at the time I am writing this article, the renovation on the dining room area has begun!

They have been scraping, hammering, and everything of the sort. These men are working hard and fast, and I wouldn't want their job for the world. They are expecting to be through by the end of the week, but you never know when a problem may arise. Hopefully be next week we will have our new tile and ceiling. This work is courtesy of the Housing Authority. Meanwhile, we are all set up in the front lobby and ready to serve, so don't let it stop you from coming. We'll just be an even "tighter" family this week.

We had a surprise visit from Sandra and Kenneth last week. They stopped by on their way to Pampa to visit her folks. They would love to have seen everyone, but said to tell you all hello. Their Judith is doing well and is on her way up the ladder for that transplant. Keep praying.

Everyday last week it seemed someone else came down with this bug that is going around. I'll tell you, I'm tired of it. I want you all well and back down here.

Vida and I will be getting a new computer system installed from the Amarillo office on Friday. It will be a new and improved way of keeping up with all of business. We expect everything to go smoothly.

Get well wishes go out to all our friends who are not well either at home or in the hospital. We hope everyone gets better soon, and we have been missing you all.

Our condolences go out to Eda Wallin and Vida O'Neal on the loss of Eda's brother. We also send our condolences to the families of L.D. Moore and Keith Pittman. We are sure they will be missed.

Plug-ins expand Internet web browser capabilities

If you've been on the Internet very long, no doubt you've heard of "plug-ins." But what are they and what do they plug into? To understand, you need to know a little about web browsers. You'll remember from earlier columns that a web browser is the program used to view web pages.

Browsers are great at looking at web pages, viewing images, and listening to certain sound files. But they don't know how to handle many other file formats. Enter, the plug-in. When a company develops a new and innovative data type (like being able to put motion video on a web page), they have to come up with a way for people to view it. Basically, a plug-in is a program that "attaches" itself or "plugs in" to a browser giving it added functionality. In our example, by downloading that company's plug-in, you've given Netscape or IE the ability to view those video files.

Hundreds of plug-ins exist, but I only have three on my system. They are, in no particular order, Acrobat Reader, Real Player, and Shockwave.

The Acrobat Reader is made by Adobe Systems, Inc. It came about as a result of one of the weaknesses of web pages. Have you ever noticed that web pages can look different depending on which computer you are using or what browser you have? Even the size of your computer monitor can change the layout of a web page. Many companies have been reluctant to put all of their documentation on the Internet because of these layout inconsistencies.

Adobe created a file format that would guarantee layout standards no matter what browser, computer, or monitor was being used. They called their standard "Acrobat." All Acrobat files end in a ".pdf" file extension. The plug-in to view Acrobat files is free to anyone that downloads it. However, if you want to make your own Acrobat files, you will have to pay for the authoring software.

Many large organizations and companies use Acrobat files on their

internet 101

By Eric Spellmann

web sites. One of the largest (and the reason I got Acrobat) is the Internal Revenue Service (<http://www.irs.ustreas.gov>). Here, you can download and print out any of the IRS's thousands of tax forms. Because the layout is guaranteed, you may use these printed forms in submitting your tax return. This service has saved me many trips to the Library. To get the Acrobat Reader plug-in, surf over to: <http://www.adobe.com/acrobat>

The Real Player plug-in also takes advantage of a web weakness. Larger files take longer to download. Sometimes, when you visit a web site, they have a link that you can click to hear a welcome message or a song. Audio and video files are much larger than web pages and, therefore, take longer to download. A 30-second video clip can take over 30 minutes to transfer to your system. Real, Inc. came up with a way to "stream" information to a computer. In other words, if you click on a specially prepared audio or video file link at a web site, it starts transferring to your system.

But instead of having to download the entire file before listening to it, you only have to receive the first few seconds or so. You can start to view or listen to the file while the rest of it is being transferred to your system. We call that "streaming data." Using this technology, you can watch live TV or listen to live radio broadcasts from all around the world.

Real, Inc. offers two versions of its software: one that is free and one that is not. They claim that the "pay" version has better quality and some neat bells and whistles. Take my word for it, though. I've tried both and can't tell any difference in quality. Get the free one. Once you've downloaded and installed it, a great place to try it out is <http://www.broadcast.com>. Here, you'll find links to TV and radio stations worldwide that use the Real technology. To download the plug-in, go to: <http://www.real.com>

Finally, get the Shockwave plug-in. Shockwave energizes your web browser with incredible audio, video, and animation. With this plug-in, the web becomes a multimedia feast! Macromedia, Incorporated makes the Shockwave plug-in and has some of the best examples of its use.

Sites that take advantage of the Shockwave plug-in are known as "shocked" sites. A huge list of these sites is available from Macromedia's home page. Recently, a new use for Shockwave was discovered. Shocked sites can now offer interactive games and chat rooms. I think you will find the popularity of this plug-in increase over time. To find it, surf over to: <http://www.macromedia.com>

Trust me. If you don't use these three plug-ins, you are missing out on the best the Web has to offer.

Owls, Lady Owls win district openers

By Ashley Hill

On Friday, January 7, the Owls and Lady Owls hosted the Lefors Pirates for their first district game of the season.

In the girls' game, Hedley took a very early lead by outscoring the Lady Pirates 37-0 in the first quarter and 60-6 at halftime. In the second half, Lefors played Hedley a closer game by only letting the Lady Owls outscore them 11 points in both the third and fourth quarters. The Lady Owls won their first district ballgame by a final score of 86-21.

Commissioners vote to rescind motion

The Donley County Commissioners Court met in a called session January 6 at 11 a.m.

The only item of business before the court was the reconsideration of a motion approved on December 13, 1999.

At that previous meeting, DPS Sgt. Richard Gribble had asked the court to look into changing the jurisdiction for traffic tickets along approximately five miles of US 287 between Clarendon and Lelia Lake. As a matter of convenience, Gribble was wanting his troopers to be able to file traffic tickets given along that stretch of highway in the office of Precinct 1 & 2 Justice of the Peace Jimmy Johnson in Clarendon rather than having to drive to Hedley to file the tickets with Precinct 3 & 4 Justice of the Peace Ann Kennedy.

In response to this request, the court approved a motion to "clarify the precinct lines" along US 287 from Clarendon to Lelia Lake and to authorize County Attorney Pro Tem Stuart Messer to draw up the appropriate paperwork.

Since precinct lines cannot be changed until after the US Census this year, the court voted last Thursday to rescind the motion from December 13. Traffic tickets issued along US 287 east of Clarendon will continue to be filed in Judge Kennedy's office.

keeping program that is now widely used by agricultural producers," Amosson said. Participants will use a case study to learn in a hands-on setting. Tasks include entering transactions in the register; write check screens, categorized by type of income and expense, split and saving transactions to help develop meaningful financial reports. No prior computer experience is necessary.

The BUDPRO series starts in Dumas on February 4, and moves to Clarendon on February 7, then Dalhart on February 8, Perryton on February 16 with a final session slated in Amarillo, February 23.

"BUDPRO is a stand-alone, menu-driven package, containing six 'user friendly' programs to project budgets for corn, wheat, sorghum, cotton, stocker cattle and cow-calf enterprises. It also addresses the question of 'to make or not to make money.'"

"This program calculates breakeven prices, provides sensitivity analysis for varying prices and quantities produced," he said. Among the software's many capabilities is an irrigation cost calculator.

To register, send a check with the registration form to reserve a place in the workshop. Checks should be made payable to Texas Agricultural Extension Service and sent to: Steve Amosson, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M Research and Extension Center, 6500 Amarillo Boulevard West, Amarillo, TX 79106.

Information about these and future classes with the Extension Service traveling computer lab is available through any county agriculture agent in the Panhandle, or by calling the Extension Service District Office in Amarillo at (806) 359-5401 and ask for Elizabeth Cagle.

Clarendon Cub Scout Pack #437 would like to announce the successful completion of our fundraising efforts for the coming year. Our Bake Sale just before Thanksgiving did very well, and our popcorn sales this fall set a new record. Our Pack, Cub Scouts, and their families would like to thank all of you for supporting our Cub Scouting program in Clarendon and Donley County. Without your help and support, Cub Scouting would not be able to accomplish all of the goals our Pack has set.

Cub Scouting is one of the most wholesome, goal-oriented family activities our young boys could become involved in. Our area has a long and distinguished history of scouting, and it shows in the support we get from the entire community. Thanks to you, Cub Scouting is very affordable for all of our elementary school age boys. In the past year, we have had up to forty-five boys participating in Cub Scouting. Special thanks go out to businesses giving Cub Scouting their special support. B&R Thriftway again allowed us to have our Bake Sale in their store, as they have done for many years. The Clarendon Enterprise, KEFH, and Channel 11 all gave us needed publicity for our fundraisers.
