Preventing Sleeping Sickness in Horses

By T.M. Devin, DVM, Deyhle Veterinary Services

In horses, there are three types of "Sleeping Sickness" disease found. Of the three, currently two are present in the United States.

Eastern Equine encephalomyelitis (EEE) is an acute, often fatal disease of horses, humans, pheasants, Chukar partridges, and in recently times Emu (large bird similar to the Ostrich). The causative agent is an RNA virus. Incidence of the disease is sporadic and seasonal except in Florida, where clinical disease is often reported year round. The disease is maintained in migratory birds and rodents, is picked up by a biting insect, and then transmitted to the horse (or human, etc.) by the biting insect. Mosquitoes are the most common vector transmitting EEE to horses.

Western Equine Encephalitis is potentially fatal to donkeys, horses, mules, and humans. It principally occurs west of the Mississippi River Valley and in Western Canada.

The disease has a seasonal occurrence that is dependent on the life cycle of its principal vector, the mosquito. Sporadic outbreaks occur during the early summer, with most cases seen during August and September. Like EEE, the reservoir for WEE is infected wild and domestic birds.

Clinical signs of either EEE or WEE, like other diseases that affect the nervous system of the horse (such as Rabies), may have a wide range. Usually there is a period of excitability and hyperactivity which may be initiated by noise, light, or other stimuli. A stage of depression may follow, characterized by hanging head, and poor control of the limbs. The animal may wander aimlessly about, or stand with the head pressed into the corner of the pen or stall.

As control of the limbs is lost, the animal may be seen "dog sitting" or may be on it's side either paddling or resting quietly. Paralysis and death will usually follow within two to four days.

Equine encephalitis is easily preventable with vaccination. Most vaccines recommend an initial vaccination, followed by a booster within two to three weeks. In subsequent years, an annual booster is required. Many preparations are on the market, usually containing combinations of Eastern and Western Encephalitis with Tetanus. Animals should be immunized prior to the onset of mosquito season (April or May), or as soon after that time as possible.

Loans for Small Businesses

The First Bank and Trust is committed to our community. That includes the small businesses that are the backbone of our local economy.

Businesses have come to the First Bank and Trust for years. And for years we have worked together to build sound enterprises.

Businessmen and businesswomen have taken out loans for new facilities. They have enlarged their inventory and branched out into more profitable areas. And the First Bank was there to help.

But the bank has provided other valuable help as well. Loan officers have offered informal counseling that sharpened merchants' competitive skills. Bank people have suggested additional markets and other possible opportunities.

The bank is still committed to helping businesses grow, for as such businesses grow, they create new jobs, they bring new money into our community and ultimately they benefit all of us.

Social Security News

by Jim Talbot

"What's in it for me?" That's a commonly asked question -- and human nature being what it is, an understandable one. I hear it a lot when it comes to Social Security, especially from younger workers. Normally I respond by telling them the benefits of Social Security -- but I don't just talk about retirement. Instead, I stress the often overlooked benefits of Social Security provides younger people -- disability benefits, payments to the spouse of children of someone with a disability, and survivors benefits for the members of a deceased worker's family.

But today I'd like to pose a different question. Instead of "What's in it for me?", how about if I ask: "What's in it for all of us?" the answer to that question goes well beyond the bounds of assessing each American's personal investment in the Social Security system. When you consider that Social Security has brought generations of American's from the brink of poverty to a safe plateau of financial independence, it's easy to understand why it is often regarded as one of the most successful of all government programs.

Social Security is a complex "Social insurance" system that embodies elements of group term insurance, pension policies and income redistribution. Unlike private retirement plans, social objectives are an integral part of Social Security. I've already hinted at one of those objectives: ensuring that workers and their families are covered not only in their retirement years, but also in the case of disability or death. In addition, the Social Security benefit formula is weighted in favor of workers with lower earnings who have less opportunity to save during their working years. They receive a Social Security benefit that represents a greater percentage of their average earnings than do their higher-salaried counterparts.

Some would argue that they could realize a greater return on their taxes if they were permitted to invest in their own retirement funds. It is reasonable to assume that some individuals might invest their money profitably, avoid crippling disability or early death, and generally remain immune to all ill fortune. These people would eventually be able to retire financially secure. But how does one determine before the fact who those fortunate few will be? Disability and death are equal opportunity occurrences, striking men and women of all ages. In fact, statistics show that about 42% of all men and 30% of women entering the workforce today will die or become disabled before reaching retirement age.

One of the advantages of requiring all workers to invest in a national pension program like Social Security is that the financial risks associated with life's misfortunes are spread throughout the population. In addition, a broad-based social insurance system reduces the impact that inflation and other economic setbacks can have on individual contributors.

Rather than considering private investments as an alternative to Social Security, they should be regarded as supplements to the program -- especially since Social Security was never intended to be a retiree's only source of income.

So -- what's in it for all of us? Considering what Social Security means to individuals in terms of retirement, disability, survivors, and family benefits and what it means to the country in terms of a better standard of living for many of its citizens, Social Security is one of the most important and far-reaching investments Americans -- and America -- can make.

Show Team Gains Points

Christel R. Green, Jerry Green Jr., and Herdsman Robert Allemand attended the Texas Jr. Shorthorn Association Preview Show at Lubbock, which was held June 10th through 13th. The show team had a very successful weekend. Allemand was awarded third place in the Senior Showmanship Division. Allemand brought home a blue ribbon from the Art Contest. His entry was a five minute video, "Shorthorn: The Breed of the Future". Allemand and J. Green won the Fitting Team Contest. In this event the team must dress a calf for a show in a twenty minute time period. The team was commended for being consistent and for not "running around like chickens with their heads cut off". Allemand and C. Green got second place in the Salesmanship Contest. In this contest the exhibitors bring a steer or heifer to the competition area and present, promote, and generally sell the entry judge panel. The steer used in the showmanship contest was a Robinson Show Steer that has proved herself many times in the showing. "Rush" was reserve champion British Baby in the Fall Classic at Belton, and also won his class at the Oklahoma Beef Expo in April. C. Green exhibited, "Rush", a progress steer that placed second in his class and, a prospective steer, "Pierre Xavier", who was third in his class.

The show team gained many Texas Club Calf Association points and, is looking forward to more jackpot shows this summer and next fall.

When the Lights Go Out, We Won't Leave You in the Dark

Power outages sometimes happen during this time of year due to problems caused by thunderstorms, lightning, high winds or tornados. When the lights go out, WTU will do whatever it takes to get your power restored as quickly as possible.

If your lights do go out, we need your help!

Here's what you can do:

- First, check with your neighbors to see how widespread the outage is.
- If you're the only house in your area with the light out or if you don't have any close neighbors, check your breaker or fuse box to see if the trouble is there.
- If the trouble isn't on your side of the meter (such as a tripped circuit breaker or a blown fuse), call your area WTU office. Keep trying if the lines are busy. It's important that we hear from you — and we appreciate your patience.
- As soon as we learn of an outage, we call out as many crews as needed and work as long as necessary to make sure your power is restored.

They really appreciated Darrel Harper for driving the van for them.

Save Water, Money

Concern over the rising cost of eliminating yard waste has helped reveal the secret to cost-effectively maintaining a healthy, beautiful landscape: transforming unwanted leaves, grass clippings and other yard debris into mulch. Now, homeowners can easily minimize their waste disposal needs while employing one of nature's most precious gifts.

Less Waste

Our country's landfills are steadily reaching full capacity. In fact, an estimated one-third of our landfills will be topped off within the next five to seven years. To encourage more environmentally-responsible behavior, many municipalities are charging anywhere from 50 cents to three dollars per bag for trash removal, and they often charge for the actual bag, as well.

Therefore, as the crisp, vibrant colors of autumn become scattered masses of unwelcome brown leaves in the yard, homeowners face even greater difficulties as they embark upon their annual struggle to affordably do away with their yard debris. Considering that an average lawn may yield as many as 30 bags of refuse per raking, the price of a beautiful landscape can be exorbitant.

To cope with the expense, many homeowners have opted to recycle their unwanted leaves and grass clippings. A Flowtron Electric Leaf-Eater (model LE-900), for example, makes the task simple and safe. This lightweight, easy-to-use shredder can reduce eleven bags of troublesome yard debris down to one bag of valuable mulch. Garbage disposal needs are practically eliminated; and at a retail price of just over $100, the Flowtron Electric Leaf-Eater quickly pays for itself.

A Richer Landscape

Putting that mulch to use in the yard rather than placing it in bags by the curb is the next step in creating a cost-effective yard. Placing a two-to-four inch layer of mulch around garden beds, trees and shrubs dramatically decreases the amount of water lost through surface evaporation. Seeing as more plants die from lack of sufficient moisture than from any other single cause, mulch has earned a well-deserved reputation as a gardening lifesaver. Plants that would have ordinarily perished now survive, eliminating the need for expensive replacement seedlings.

Mulched plants retain moisture well and often require little, if any, additional watering other than that provided by natural rainfall. This translates into lower water bills for the money-conscious homeowner; not to mention, in this era of heightened environmental awareness, the conservation of a natural resource.

Not only does mulch protect plants from dry spells by helping the soil retain moisture, it cushions plants through all types of harsh weather. Mulch prevents the soil evaporation that commonly results from exposure to gusty winds or strong sun, while shielding soil from the pelting effects of heavy rains.

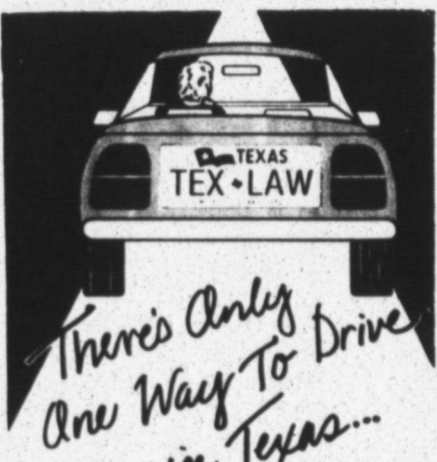

Mulch also helps to keep soil relatively warm throughout the colder winter months. Although it cannot prevent the ground from freezing, it will help protect the delicate roots of perennial plants and trees. Mulch can even extend a plant's growing season by a few weeks.

Weeds spell trouble for all well-kept grounds. While competing with plants for important nutrients and moisture, they lend an image of shabbiness and neglect to a homeowner's property. Mulch often prevents the appearance of these irritating garden pests altogether. On the rare occasion that a few weeds do pop up, they tend to be weak and gangly and are easily removed by hand. Costly chemical weed killers are soon forgotten, as are those tiring afternoons spent removing ugly, bothersome weeds from an otherwise flawless landscape.

Time is a valuable commodity to the busy homeowner. Fortunately, products such as the Flowtron Electric Leaf-Eater make mulching a simple, efficient alternative to back-breaking, time-consuming garden work — without compromising the beauty of a lush, enviable landscape.

While the cost of living has increased dramatically, at least the cost of calling your friends to complain about it hasn't.

It has a familiar ring to it. Food costs up 21%. Housing costs, 25%. Medical costs, 46%. And cable TV costs, 51%. But your local telephone service has gone up just 3%.* And with GTE, the quality and service you
