County will review tax rate petition

A petition regarding the property tax rate in Donley County was officially presented to the Commissioners' Court Tuesday morning.

Don Smith was sworn in by County Judge Jack Hall during the court's regular meeting. Hall asked Smith several questions about the petition, which had previously been left at the judge's office on October 31. Smith answered in the affirmative when asked if he had followed the tax code in preparing the petition and said there were no duplicate pages that he knew of.

The court voted unanimously to accept the submission of the petition and to meet within 20 days to adopt a resolution on the petition's validity.

Water authority begins upgrade project

Improvements are getting underway at Greenbelt Water Authority which will change the way Clarendon's drinking water is treated.

Greenbelt General Manager Bobbie Kidd said work on the $2.3 million project at the filter plant north of Clarendon will be performed by the firm of R.M. Wright of El Paso.

"They have already been here and rented two houses for their workers to stay in," Kidd said. "They are just waiting for material to be delivered to get started."

The project will completely change Greenbelt's chemical feed system, disinfecting system, filtering process, and reporting process, Kidd said. Half of the money spent at the plant will go toward replacing the old filters which have been in place for 35 years.

The water authority has until 2004 to comply with more stringent standards set by the federal government. Kidd said Greenbelt started the process of upgrading several years ago.

"Three years ago in October we started with a 12-month evaluation to identify any problems and what needs to be done to meet the new standards," he said. "We also tried to anticipate the regulations which might be enacted in the next 20 years."

The new system will change the treatment of Greenbelt water from a chlorine method to a new treatment by chloramines, which uses both chlorine and ammonia. The system will also stop using dry bulk chemicals and move to liquid chemicals.

Other changes include doubling the electrical service at the plant from 500 KVA to 1,000 KVA and upgrading the computer system in the plant which controls treatment of the water and delivery of the water from the Greenbelt Reservoir from here to Crowell. The present controls were last upgraded 19 years ago, and some parts date back to 1965.

Kidd said the contractor expects to be finished by May 1, 2003, although the contract allows for 56 weeks to complete the job.

Local residents should not have any disruption in their water service during most of the work. But Kidd did say there will be one day next spring that water won't be pumped to Clarendon. The authority will work with the City of Clarendon to notify customers before that happens.

"If we can pick that day and can pump the water tanks full ahead of time, there should be no problem."

Greenbelt is also building a new storage tank at Childress as part of the upgrade. The Natgun Corporation was awarded the $1.7 million contract for that job and expects to be finished next July, although they also have a 56-week contract.

Natgun, which is based in Wakefield, Mass., with offices in Dallas, is constructing a new six million gallon concrete tank to replace the old four million gallon steel tank presently in Childress.

Site work has already been completed on that job, Kidd said.

Financing for the project was secured for the project in 2001, and Kidd said the bids have come in lower than expected, which will allow Greenbelt to do some additional work.

Engineering for the filter upgrade and the new tank is under the supervision of Freeze and Nichols, Inc. - the same firm which designed the Greenbelt Reservoir and the filter plant in the 1960s.

Not forgotten

VFW Post 7782 Commander Dale O. Powers salutes after laying a flower on the Donley County War Memorial Monday morning as part of the annual Veterans Day service. Ceremonies recognizing the contribution of men and women who have worn their country's uniform were held by the VFW and the American Legion this year.

Ceremonies honor veteran's sacrifices

Citizens in Donley County gathered on two separate occasions over the weekend to remember the sacrifices of America's veterans.

The Adamson-Lane Post 287 of the American Legion hosted special services in the Rowe Cemetery near Hedley Saturday for the second year. Connie Debord gave the invocation, and the colors were posted by J.D. Skaggs and Doyle Messer. The National Anthem and the Pledge of Allegiance followed.

Donley County Judge Jack Hall spoke on the history of Veterans Day and its origins with the Armistice which ended World War I. Hall also recited the poem, "In Flanders Fields." Legion Post Commander Jack Moreman remembered the 50th anniversary of the Korean War and recited an inscription from a New Mexico war memorial entitled "What is a Soldier?"

Barbara Collins sang "God Bless America," and Kristen Dwight performed "Taps."

A good crowd braved the cold and near rainy weather Monday for the fourth annual Veterans Day service at the Donley County War Memorial hosted by VFW Post 7782.

Visiting groups and organizations amassed their flags, and the colors were posted by James Thomas and T.C. Saye. VFW Chaplain Jimmy Swinney gave the invocation, and the

Bronco Band played "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The Hedley School Choir performed "Where the Stars & Stripes and the Eagle Fly," and the VFW's Bill Holden gave the introduction and spoke on the symbolism of Old Glory. The Bronco Band played its award-winning medley of war tunes from throughout our nation's history, featuring songs such as "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," "Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy," and "The Ballad of the Green Berets."

Jack Moreman discussed the Korean War anniversary and noted that the men and women serving there today are not much older than the students in the band and choir.

The Bronco Band then played snippets from the service songs of each branch of the US military. Veterans stood as their service song was played.

Speakers for the morning included Judge Hall, Holden, and VFW District Commander Paul DeWolfe.

The VFW held its customary memorial service followed by "Taps" as played by Vanna Holton.

A wreath was laid at the War Memorial, and the benediction was given.

The service ended with visitors placing flags near the names of loved ones on the walkway of the memorial.

FSA taking emergency farm loan applications

Applications for emergency farm loans for losses caused by drought and excessive temperatures that occurred from January 1, 2002, and continuing are being accepted at the Farm Service Agency (FSA) office located at 321 Sully Street in Clarendon.

Donley County was recently named by President Bush eligible for loans to cover losses resulting from the drought.

FSA Farm Loan Manager Larry Goetze said farmers may be eligible for loans of up to 80 percent of their actual losses or the loan needed to continue in business, whichever is less. For farmers unable to obtain credit from private commercial lenders, the interest is 3.75 percent.

"As a general rule, a farmer must have suffered at least a 30 percent loss to be eligible for an FSA emergency loan," Goetze said. Insurance proceeds will have to be included in the figures in determining their loss.

"Applications for loans under this emergency designation will be accepted until June 23, 2003, but farmers should apply as soon as possible. Delays in applying could create backlogs in processing and possibly into the new farming season," Goetze said.

FSA is a credit agency of the US Department of Agriculture. It is authorized to provide disaster emergency loans to recognized farmers who work at and rely on farming for a substantial part of their living. Eligibility is extended to individual farmers who are US citizens and to farming partnerships, corporations, or cooperatives in which US citizens hold a majority interest.

The FSA office in Clarendon is open from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Hong Kong influenza bug will bite this season

HOUSTON - An influenza B virus that was epidemic in the United States in 1988 is expected to return this winter. Although this time it's not expected to pack the same punch, experts say it's best to get a flu shot.

"This virus showed up here last spring and in the Southern Hemisphere this past summer. It will likely spread to the Northern Hemisphere this winter," said Dr. William Glezen, professor of virology and microbiology at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

"We don't expect this year's Hong Kong B variant to be as potent as the one that was epidemic a decade ago, but it is of the same lineage. It still has the power to make people miserably ill - particularly children less than 12 years of age."

It's important that people get flu shots as soon as possible. This year for the first time, parents are urged to get the vaccine for infants and young children 6 to 23 months of age. Unlike adults who get a one-time shot, kids who are first-time recipients will need a booster shot a month later. Children 2 years and younger often end up in the hospital with flu complications.

Federal officials say the flu vaccine is in good supply with 94 million doses available. Those at highest risk should be first in line to get the shot. They include: anyone over age 50; children age 6 months to 2 years, adults or children with chronic health conditions that would make them more vulnerable to the flu, and women in their second or third trimester of pregnancy.

Influenza, one of the most severe illnesses of winter, is a highly contagious viral infection of the nose, throat and lungs. It spreads easily from one person to another through coughs and sneezes. Outbreaks usually occur in December through February.

Even in a light flu season, statistics show that 114,000 people go to the hospital and 20,000 die.

Watch out below

A chimney on the northwest side of the 1890 Donley County Courthouse collapsed last Friday, and officials say they are still investigating the cause. The 22-foot chimney had originally been removed many decades ago and had been reconstructed as part of the ongoing restoration of the courthouse. Friday morning the structure fell over and broke into three pieces. The top piece, weighing 8,000 pounds, knocked a hole in the roof and then rolled off and crashed into the scaffolding surrounding the building. It hung up in the top level of the scaffold. No one was injured in the collapse, and other reconstructed chimneys - including an identical 22-foot structure - are receiving added bracing as a precaution.

Sniper brings snap judgement for gun control

By James Dark, Texas State Rifle Association

In the flurry of news reports emerging after the arrests of two men who have allegedly committed the Beltway Sniper attacks, gun control advocates are quick to take up the call for stricter measures aimed at controlling the types of weapons used in the shootings.

Salivating like Pavlov's dogs, gun control advocates took note that the firearm in question resembles an assault weapon and then decided that the marksman must have coupled some sort of supernatural talent with extreme intelligence and cunning. The emerging facts of the case indicate that the gun is not an assault weapon (by Federal law), the military marksmanship award in question is actually fairly common, and the lawbreaker himself providing the case-breaking information to the police indicates that he is probably not a rocket scientist.

No sooner had the weapon been identified as a Bushmaster XM15 Carbine, than the spokesman for the Violence Policy Center, Tom Diaz, set the world's land speed record for holding a press conference. He called for immediate government control on "sniper weapons," as he warned of a "sniper sub-culture" that needed to be reined in, lest we all face the dire consequences.

Diaz even stated that "tougher restrictions must be placed on so-called sniper rifles, such as the .50, .308, and .223 calibers;" the latter being the type used in the Beltway attacks.

In the wake of the grotesque acts by a pair of psychopaths, Diaz is calling for what is in effect not even "gun control," but "bullet control." A dash to grab any available microphone time is irresistible to a gun control movement still reeling from being identified as the primary cause of the Democratic Party's loss of the 2000 Presidential election. The VPC is pushing a hastily thought out plan to which even a cursory examination will reveal its fatally flawed maxim. Is he really serious about singling out certain calibers for control?

What is a sniper weapon? Some are already leaping all over the Bushmaster's assault weapon-like appearance. Being manufactured only last June, it complies with the federal assault weapons ban and therefore does not even meet the government's own definition of "assault weapon." The only "assault weapon" characteristics it has are a detachable magazine and a pistol grip. Neither of these superficial characteristics would have assisted the Beltway shooters in accomplishing their evil goals.

The fact is that these one-shot attacks could have just as easily been committed with a bolt or lever-action hunting rifle. If an effort is made to regulate "sniper weapons," there will never be an easy answer on where to begin, much less where to end. If an attempt is made to regulate weapons for their accuracy, its boundaries will encompass every sporting and target weapon in the nation. Frankly, the American public should never be asked to tolerate this type of invasive government control.

Mr. Diaz also cited three specific calibers. Why? There are hundreds of different calibers available for sport shooters, and regulating a couple of popular choices is a classically lame example of a feel-good measure that will accomplish nothing but to drive criminals to simply obtain a different caliber firearm.

Mr. Diaz further attacks what he calls "sniper schools" that teach long-range shooting, which is a valid competitive sport practiced in Texas, the rest of the United States, and around the world. Learning to shoot long-distance does not teach one the arts of cover, concealment and tactics necessary for successful snipers. Learning to shoot long-distance is simply an extremely challenging (some say humbling) sport that pushes marksmanship skills to their limits, as the shooter must struggle to maintain accuracy in all weather conditions with a bullet that falls over forty feet on its way to the target. The fact is Mr. Diaz' insinuations about "sniper schools" cast slanderous aspersions on a group of law abiding sport shooters.

Once again, gun control advocates' answer is to focus on an inanimate object rather than blame the psychopaths who pulled the triggers. They take out their rage and anger on the tool rather than the criminal; and, furthermore, the laws recently passed to regulate assault weapons, magazine capacity and the like did not even apply to this case.

Emerging facts indicate that an ineligible person purchased the weapon in question, and this problem was likely the fault of poorly maintained computer records in one of the states. With NRA support, the U.S. House passed on a voice vote an appropriations measure to fund the updating of this type of records. Perhaps the Violence Policy Center could join in helping remedy this situation rather than calling for more ineffective and unenforced laws.

The Violence Policy Center is in the business of capitalizing on tragedy. It is their trademark. Through the use of misguided notions, half-baked ideas, and skewed statistics, they constantly present their case for draconian government regulations to the American people, and they are almost constantly rejected.

They just don't seem to get it. We have lots of gun laws, and some of them are enforced, but most of them are not. In just about every case where a criminal uses a firearm, one will find that he is already guilty of a serious transgression on an already existing gun law.

Is the answer really more laws that nobody seems to have the desire to enforce?

James Dark is the Executive Director of the Richardson based Texas State Rifle Association.

College can change lives of non-Texans

I was born and bred Texas all the way to the bone. Unfortunately, we are not all that lucky. A lot of my new friends are not Texans by birth, or they are "city slickers" who just cannot reconcile themselves to the fact that they are the HSU "Cowboys." It is funny because cowboys is in quotations on the Historical marker.

My dearest and best friend, soon to be my roommate, recently had a life-altering Texas experience. In one day, she ate barbecue, dressed as a cowboy with a three-foot-long wooden pistol, and attended a "hootenanny" otherwise known as a barn dance.

It was Chuckwagon day at the cafeteria. They served barbecue, and all the servers had on paper vests with fringe and plastic Sheriff badges. It was tons of fun, complete with hay and a blue grass kind of live music.

Maybe barbecue is not necessarily a Texas tradition, but it is the definitive meal for a large group of people, and Texans love to get together. Jesus fed the five thousand with bread and fish, but today we use brisket and potato salad. The Bible says they were all satisfied, but I bet the five thousand probably had a hankering for some ketchup or some apricot jelly while life's Lessons

By Carrie Helms

they were munching on old fish and dry bread (not beautiful, buttery Texas toast). I almost feel sorry for them.

Hardin-Simmons is famous for two things, The World-Famous Cowboy Band and the Cowboy Mascot. The girl who is the mascot played on the same intramural football team with my friend. She had a family emergency and had to go home for the weekend, so she asked my friend to fill in for her. She had never ever been a mascot or a cheerleader or even really been to a lot of football games. She was about the same size as the other girl and could wear the outfit, so she was recruited. It was the very last football game, and the football team simply could not perform without THE Cowboy.

The Cowboy has no name, as far as I know, but he does have a large head with a big black moustache, a foam rubber cowboy hat, and a large wooden gun. She sort of stood around through the whole game talking to the cheerleaders and brandishing her weapon. I got it all on video tape so she could show her mother.

The funny thing is, when she showed up, the cheerleader/mascot coach person asked if she would like to continue to be the mascot for the rest of the season. She said, "Ummm... Okay." So now she is the mascot.

The evening concluded with the Behrens Barn Dance and Date Auction. Everyone got all dolled up in their Wranglers and boots with their hair in pigtails and braids. She spiked her hair, donned her funky vintage Western shirt, belt-buckle, and red tennis shoes and headed off to the hoodown.

Of course, it was nothing but country music and country dancing. She tried to do the line-dancing thing, but failed. Two-stepping was not really her bag either.

The only time I think I was ever truly insulted was when I was two-stepping with a professed non-dancer. He said that after dancing with me, he didn't feel so bad about not being able to dance. I took that to mean he was no longer the worst dancer in the world. I was. So now I can't dance? Am I not a true Texan? Maybe it's because I'm a Baptist. God must not want me to dance.

Bush should get federal government in check

By Sheldon Richman

President Bush says he's got the economy under control. That's supposed to comfort us. I'd feel better if he said he had the federal government under control. It's spending wildly - and it can't blame the "war on terrorism" for it all. That's just the latest spending.

We are in for a soaking for as far as the eye can see. Social Security, Medicare: those two programs alone have created a $25 trillion unfunded liability. The people hoping for those benefits have to pray the taxpayers will continue to be chumps.

It shrinks Enron and WorldCom back into perspective, doesn't it? The government wrote the book on cooking the books. The politicians talk the talk, but they never seem to walk the walk. That's because unlike businessmen, politicians first legalize their crimes. To appropriate Mel

Brooks' great movie line, "It's good to be the president or congressman."

Savvier socialists understand that less is more. To engineer a society, you don't need to run everything - just hold a few key command posts. The top three posts are the money supply, people's incomes, and education. Hence, we have the Federal Reserve System, the income tax, and the so-called public schools.

Here's the Fed's legacy: what you could buy for a dollar in 1913, when the Fed was created, would cost about $18 today. By inflating the money supply, the government can manipulate the economy for political gain and tax us in the process.

The income tax gives the government unlimited access to our wealth. There were only two reasons for passing the income tax in 1913: envy and the politicians' lust for money. In recent years some politicians have learned that tax rates above a certain level are counterproductive and revenues fall. So we've had modest tax-rate cuts. Nevertheless, the government sucks up a record percentage of our wealth, not counting levels reached during the world wars.

Finally, the government runs the schools mainly to assure we don't object to the other two interventions and to make us believe it's protecting us - rather than itself - when it goes to war. Public schools began local, but note how federal "influence" has accelerated for decades. This lets Washington set the agenda.

The upshot is that when Mr. Bush says he has the economy under control, he's given us a rare moment of candor. But we shouldn't be calmed.

Sheldon Richman is senior fellow at The Future of Freedom Foundation in Fairfax, Va., and editor of IDEAS ON LIBERTY magazine.

Helms' column is informative, hip, and funny

I am from Louisiana and recently subscribed to THE CLARENDON ENTERPRISE. I can't wait to get the paper every week. My paper comes a week or two late sometimes because the post office sucks. When that happens, I find myself frantically checking the mail every day when I get home to see if this is my lucky day.

I absolutely love Carrie Helms. She is informative and hip and downright funny. I wish my local paper was this interesting; maybe then I would actually read it. Instead, I find myself waiting for my weekly paper from Clarendon, a small town a far ways away. I couldn't find any email address for Carrie, therefore I hope you can get this to her. Keep up the great work. I love learning "Life's Lessons."

palatable. I feel that we do not get portions large enough to feed growing minds and bodies, and the amount of fruits and vegetables we are served is very small. I understand that most children enjoy food items like pizza and tacos, but we are fed these items almost every day. It appears there are not many choices (for example-pizza or a peanut butter and jelly sandwich).

I wish we were offered healthier menu selections, with more fruits and vegetables and less greasy main dishes. I have tried numerous times to speak with Mr. Word about the quality of the food being served, but he tells me the food comes pre-prepared and he cannot do anything about it.

I'm hoping that I can raise awareness within the community and the children in school will be fed healthier meals.

Street paving should be top priority for city aldermen

This is in regards to the newscast on Channel 7 Thursday night, October 24, and Friday morning, October 25. Carl Willis was interviewing Alderman Tommy Hill in reference to paving the city streets and the repair to the municipal airport. It appears only a hand full of people are in favor of repairs to the airport, and that seems to be taking priority over street paving. The street paving has been voted on and approved by the aldermen in the past, but nothing has ever been done.

We thought when Alderman Knorpp put the survey in THE CLARENDON ENTERPRISE several times and the street paving of the city was #1 on the survey that the city aldermen would put this their main priority. We strongly suggest that the aldermen drive over the many unpaved streets in our town to see the shape they are in. How many more times does it have to be approved by the aldermen before something is finally done?

Joan McAfee and Wanda Smith,
Clarendon

Editor's Note: While I strongly agree that the city must make paving a priority, I also know that the municipal airport is a vital asset for the city. The aldermen would be foolish to pass up more than $800,000 in state funds to make these repairs and improvements. And furthermore, $80,000 would just be a drop in the pthole on our streets. What we really need is a 25-year, multi-million dollar project to pave and curb every block in this town.

Fall colds sweep up residents around town

I hardly know what to write about. Last week was a somewhat slow one in Clarendon.

The Broncos played their last football game, and the Bronco Band gave its last marching performance of 2002 on Thursday night before a good-sized crowd of fans who trekked all the way to Wheeler to watch them.

Last Thursday was a gorgeous day, and a number of fans allowed that to fool them into thinking the football game would be warm. Temperature-wise, it actually wasn't that cold, but a strong wind made it feel that way.

Playing the Friday-night football game on Thursday made the week feel shorter. Yes, people still had to go to school and work on Friday, but somehow, since the game had been the night before, it still felt more like the weekend.

Even with the "longer" weekend, local folks seemed content to spend time at home or on their own activities. With Thanksgiving approaching, I'm sure everyone else has as much to do as we do, but part of the recent hibernation may be due to the first sweep of fall colds. I understand from my own call to the clinic that they've been slightly busy down there.

I realize that sharing is a virtue we try to teach our children and try to model in our own lives, but sharing should not be totally indiscriminate. There are some things we should not

around Town
By Gall Shelton

be so generous with. Like germs for instance.

I frequently tell my husband that I do not want to share his cold. I tell him that the vow in the wedding ceremony, the one that says "In sickness and health" does not mean that we have to actually share each other's sickness. But does he listen? No.

Too bad the pharmacy doesn't have a bulk rate on cold medicine. Let's just hope that all the high school kids who have been out sick get well soon and have their voices back in time for the fall musical. They have a month, so it should be fine.

Beginning in December, the concerts and things will come fast and furious, so be sure to get them on your calendars. December 8 is the college choir and jazz band concert. December 13, 14 and 15 is the high school play, and the school band concert will be on Sunday the 15 before the play.

Book Club members (and all those who like to read) should recall that the November/December meeting will be next week, the 21st, and the book is Little Women by Louisa May Alcott. But if you don't get it read, no one will scold you. We'll just give away the ending when we discuss it.

4-H hold annual Food Show

On October 26, Donley County 4-H held their County Food Show. Eight members competed in the junior age group. Five members competed in the intermediate age group.

Project goals for this year's food and nutrition project were: learn how to read labels and compare prices, to measure and use the oven safely, make cookies and healthy snacks, food safety, food pyramid and nutrients, and how to properly set a table.

There are four categories that 4-H members may choose from to compete in. These categories are: Nutritious Snacks, Main Dish, Bread and Cereal, and Fruit and Vegetable. The winners from each age group in each category will advance to the District Food Show in Amarillo. In the Junior age division the following people placed first and will advance to district: Savannah Thackeray, Nutritious Snacks; Dominique Mason, Main Dish; Brandi Mays, Fruit and Vegetables; and Jacob Landrum, Bread and Cereal.

In the Intermediate age division the following people placed first and will advance to district: Abby Patten, Fruit and Vegetables; Danielle Smith, Nutritious Snacks; and Elizabeth Hrbacek, Bread and Cereal.

If anyone has any questions about the Food and Nutrition Program, or if you are interested in joining 4-H, please call the Donley County Extension Office at 874-2141.

Small crowd gathers for Rowe veterans' ceremony

The weather has been absolutely perfect October weather. The sun has been shining, the temperature balmy, and the wind has been howling. I love it.

The wind was certainly blowing at the cemetery Saturday at the Veteran's Day ceremony. I thought we'd blow away.

Adamson-Lane Post 287 presided over the program. Connie DeBord gave the invocation. J.D. Skaggs and Doyle Messer posted the colors as the National Anthem was played. I cried, as always. Tommie Saye led the Pledge of Allegiance.

The Honorable Jack Hall brought the Veteran's address, and Barbara Collins sang "God Bless America." Jack Moreman gave a short talk, and young Kristen Dwight played "Taps."

There were fewer people in attendance than usual, but it might have been because of the wind. I did see Roger Estlack there with his camera. Rhonda Shaw helped with the program and the placing of flags of 195 veteran's graves. Other members of the Hedley American Legion present were Buford Holland, Raymond Hopper, and M.O. Weatherly.

The warm weather has brought out the wasps. Helen Lamberson got stung a few days ago, and her hand was swollen and painful at church Sunday. They were buzzing around the sanctuary of the Methodist Church Sunday morning at worship service. I'm always careful when wasps are swarming. I'm highly allergic to wasp venom. I'm also allergic to Benadryl.

I talked with Kathy Spier a few days ago, and she said she was improving after her neck surgery.

Eunice Ward and Tonya Smith are getting ready to move into town.

The Ward family has lived out east of town on what is known as White Hill since I can't remember when, virtually all of Tonya's life.

Kay Miller is visiting her mother, Mrs. Juanita Brown. I think Kay lives at May, Texas.

By the way, will the person who borrowed my little wooden rocking chair please bring it home? Christian is growing pretty fast and will be needing it before long.

We extend our sympathy to Jack Stafford on the loss of his wife, Jackie, and to Paul Baker, Callie Stephens, Zora Stephens, and Rosie Wright on the loss of their sister, Lillie Hook.

Simple steps can reduce risk of developing arthritis

Arthritis is a major national health problem according to the Arthritis Foundation. The pain, stiffness and swelling in or around the joints that is caused by arthritis prevents people from engaging in the simplest activities including walking or performing everyday tasks. Arthritis is second only to heart disease in keeping people out of work.

Since the incidence of arthritis increases with age, some might think it is a normal process, and this is why more than half who are diagnosed with arthritis are not receiving any kind of treatment. More than half of the people who have it are under 65.

Although "arthritis" is a general term for "pain in the joints", there are different forms of arthritis and related diseases. The most common are: Osteoarthritis (20.7 million people) - also known as "wear and tear" arthritis that affects the fingers and weight-bearing joints such as those in the knees, hips and back.

Fibromyalgia (affects 3.7 million people) - causes fatigue and widespread pain sensitivity at different "tender points" on the body, most notably around the neck.

Rheumatoid Arthritis (2.1 million people) - causes painful joint stiffness and swelling.

Gout (2.1 million people) - results when a substance called uric acid accumulates and crystallizes in the joints especially those in the big toe, knee, and wrist.

Lupus (239,000 people) - can damage the skin, kidneys, heart and lungs along with joints.

Arthritis pain is not inevitable; in fact, it is possible to reduce your risk of developing some forms of the disease. Here's how:

1. Maintain a healthy weight. Men who are overweight boost their risk of developing gout. Excess weight can also increase a woman's risk of developing osteoarthritis, particularly in the knees. Excess weight can cause extra pain because of extra weight on the joints.

2. Protect injured joints from further damage by strengthening the muscles around them. Persons who have an injured joint are at greater risk for osteoarthritis. Strength training or low-impact activities like bike riding or walking can help to prevent wear and tear on joints.

3. Seek a doctor's advice as soon as you notice swelling or difficulty moving a joint. Getting prompt treatment can help to slow or prevent damage that might progress if you just "let it go". Medication and hot/cold packs can relieve pain and stiffness.

4. Take advantage of assistance devices like canes, walkers, or special kitchen utensils which can help to reduce stress on certain joints.

Cancer center unveils new mobile mammography unit

Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center introduces the new PlanMed Sophie Classic Mobile mammography unit. It gives top results, is lightweight and is on the cutting edge of technology.

The Sophie Classic Mobile is generously equipped with the very latest imaging technology and features. It is available as a screening, or a full diagnostic unit, including upright stereotactics. With its compact size and ease of mobility, the Sophie Classic Mobile is the most versatile mammography unit on the market.

"These units will replace the three old ones and provide the latest technology in mobile screening. Our Outreach Program consists of three units that travel a four-state area," said Paula Gibson, Program Director of the Comprehensive Breast Center at the Harrington Cancer Center.

Sophie Classic Mobile is a lightweight compact size with four large wheels providing easy access to limited spaces.

Harrington Cancer purchased three machines, and each will be located in our traveling Mammography vans. The Sophie Classic Mobile will be available in Clarendon on Monday, November 18, at the Medical Center Nursing Home on Hwy. 70 North, courtesy of the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center.

Participants will receive a low-cost screening mammogram. Each woman screened will receive a breast health risk appraisal and individual instruction in breast self-examination by a registered nurse.

Funding is available through the Texas Department of Health for residents who qualify for assistance. All exams are done by appointment only. Call 356-1905 for more information.

WIC offering cooking class

Beginning this fall, Outreach Health Services (OHS) is offering a free cooking and food education program in communities across the state. Called Neighborhood Café, the quarterly classes will provide helpful information for everyone in the community.

"Those who attend the class will learn to use the USDA Food Pyramid to plan, select, and prepare delicious, healthy, and economical foods," said Ann Latham, registered licensed dietitian and an assistant director for the OHS Women, Infants, and Children (WIC) program. "An OHS nutritionist will lead the classes, which will last 90 minutes."

Each quarterly Neighborhood Café class will focus on a particular food group. "Grains: the Foundation of Eating Well" is the topic of the first class. A "grains" dish will be prepared and participants will leave with recipes, spices, and confidence to practice their new cooking skills. Future class topics are "Meats, Fish, and Protein Foods," "Diary Foods/Calcium Rich Foods," and "Variety with Vegetables/Cooking with Herbs."

To learn when the Neighborhood Café is coming to your community, call the Outreach Health Services Clarendon WIC Clinic at 874-3011.

County Soil Conservation District selling trees for use as windbreaks

The Donley County Soil and Water Conservation District office in Clarendon is taking order for trees for windbreaks.

It is common knowledge among farmers and gardeners that windbreaks have a positive effect on crop growth. By retarding the wind, these barriers start a chain of favorable growing conditions. For instance, less moisture is lost through evaporation, the temperature is lowered, and there is an increase in the relative humidity.

According to a report by the US Department of Agriculture, a mature windbreak will cut a 30 mile per hour wind to less than 15 miles per hour, greatly reducing its power to erode soil and damage crops. Furthermore, the wind is slowed down wind for a distance of 15 to 20 times the height of the trees.

In addition to benefiting crops, windbreaks also reduce heating and cooling costs for homes and buildings.

In fact, a study by researchers at Kansas State University indicates that an unprotected house exposed to 20 mile per hour winds requires almost 2½ times as much heat as the same house exposed to a 5 mile per hour wind under identical temperatures.

Windbreaks also increase comfort around feedlots, barns, and water tanks and are effective in sheltering livestock on the range or pasture.

To order your trees for windbreaks, call the Donley County Soil and Water Conservation District Office at 874-3576, ext. 3 or come by at 321 S. Sully.

Trees are limited, so hurry and place your order.

Outdoor drama available for tour

Originally created as an "Outreach Program" whose goal was to re-educate local audiences about the TEXAS Musical Drama located in Palo Duro Canyon in the Texas Panhandle, the performing group became so popular in its own right that it was renamed TEXAS-Express, recorded its own CD, and was given its own "off-season" venue - the Fair Theatre in Plainview. While TEXAS-Express shares many of the cultural and historical roots as its "parent" show, TEXAS, the touring ensemble is a self-contained, stand-alone musical variety show.

TEXAS-Express members have all been involved in the TEXAS Musical at one time or another and keep themselves focused on the goals of spreading the word about TEXAS while creating an entertainment experience that is separate but second-to-none.

TEXAS-Express features songs of the "Old West" as well as a few new "western" songs, all laced together with stories, narratives, and tall-tales, including an occasional historical and educational reference thrown in the mix.

Whatever the venue, whatever the audience, if it's western heritage, good, clean American music, and a knee-slapping good time you're after, TEXAS-Express is the show.

Expert says producers hold key in biosecurity efforts

"It's like closing the cupboard and knowing who has been there and who hasn't."

That's how Dr. Garry Adams described ways that cattle feeders can protect themselves and their animals from either an intentional or accidental introduction of pathogens. Adams, associate dean for research and graduate studies at the College of Veterinary Medicine at Texas A&M University, spoke on biosecurity during the 35th Anniversary Convention of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association today in Amarillo.

"Animal agriculture is vulnerable to attack by bioterrorists. And animal agriculture is also vulnerable to accidental introduction of pathogens," he told cattle feeders. The obvious response, he noted, is to ask the question, "How can we prevent or at least minimize the possibility of an incidental or intentional introduction of an animal disease?"

"The first thing is to educate ourselves—consumers as well as producers—about methods to prevent introduction. Knowledge is one of the most powerful tools we have that we can exploit for the least amount of input."

Adams says that education should center around understanding the avenues of entrance that pathogens can take and how to close the pathways of entrance into animal agricultural systems. However, he told cattle feeders, it's one thing to know, it's another to implement.

"Implementation (of methods to prevent and control pathogens) is probably more difficult because of the investments we have to make in time and resources. But we need to think in terms of investing in methods to reduce the likelihood of an organism entering our operations."

At the producer level, that means reducing the amount of traffic in and out of the operation and controlling access for possible routes of entry. "That may mean everything from a padlock on the gate to improved lighting. It may mean vaccination or disinfection. It may be several types of barriers—biological, chemical, physical and so on. It would be the whole complex of methods to prevent the entry of a pathogen into the system." That begins at the point of entry into the country, extends to the marketplace, and finally to individual operations.

Producers, he told cattle feeders, are key to the early detection of any pathogen because they know their animals and they see them regularly. He encouraged all cattle producers to watch for any abnormal behavior and to have it investigated immediately.

However, he said that producers are not alone in their concern or their desire to protect American agriculture.

"It will take all the producer groups, working in conjunction with local authorities, such as the county judge and other local authorities, state animal health officials, and federal officials with APHIS and other agencies. That network is what will make the greatest difference in detection and prevention. It won't be one group by itself. It will be a heavily linked, functional web of people responding that will make our system the least vulnerable we can make it."

Gene Watson to perform in Turkey

Gene Watson will sing his hits at the old Turkey High School Gymnasium on November 16 at 7:00 p.m.

A widening circle of admirers led to recording contracts with such regional labels as Wide World, Stoneway, and Resco. In 1974 his Resco single of "Love in the Hot Afternoon" was picked up for national distribution by Capital Records, igniting a firestorm of national hits. "Farewell Party," "Fourteen Carat Mind," "Paper Rosie," and others took Gene Watson into the hearts of country music lovers around the world.

Tickets are still available for $20.00 each. Call 806-423-1273 to get your tickets. Ticket holders will be let in first and not have to wait in line behind those waiting to buy tickets.

Natural Progesterone & Women's Health
Under the normal, healthy circumstances of hormone production, "Natural Estrogen" is balanced by "Natural Progesterone." Problems arise when we introduce foreign estrogens that interfere with natural hormone production and liver function and when we lower progesterone levels with Stress, Petrochemical Compounds and/or Synthetic Hormones. Where do these foreign or "bad" Estrogens come from? Commercially grown meats and dairy products, most prescription hormones, petrochemical compounds, and stress are primary contributors to the hormone related health problems that challenge women's health today.
ESTROGEN DOMINANCE
Natural Progesterone is produced by the ovaries after ovulation, the adrenal glands and fat cells after menopause. This balances the side effects of otherwise unopposed estrogen. (Many women experience weight gain from the lack of progesterone which is required for proper thyroid function). It is also important to distinguish Natural Progesterone from its pharmaceutical counter-part PROGESTINS. Although these drugs are commonly referred to as progesterone by the medical community, this is a misnomer. In some ways progestin mimic the effects of natural progesterone in the body. However, in other important ways synthetic hormones gravely interfere with natural hormones which create and exacerbate hormone related health problems and are a primary contributor to a condition referred to as Estrogen Dominance.

ORCA to facilitate federal rural water project

AUSTIN - The Office of Rural Community Affairs (ORCA) today announced that it will work with a new federal project designed to educate rural Texans about local, regional, and state water issues. The recently formed agency will work with the US Army Corps of Engineers to implement projects designed to develop initiatives that prepare the state for future water needs, which, according to the Corps, will increase 10.6 percent by the year 2030.

"This joint project between ORCA and the US Army Corps of Engineers will help rural Texas communities plan for their future," explained Robt. J. "Sam" Tessen, MS, ORCA's Executive Director. "The project will help give local leaders the skills and expertise they need to understand and deal with the complex and diverse water issues facing their rural communities. Combined with projects of other agencies, it will help increase the level of awareness of water issues in rural areas."

The project promises to reach beyond the local leadership level with all rural Texans being encouraged to participate in the effort. Rural residents throughout the state will be invited to learn about local, regional, and state water issues, including supply, conservation, drought planning, and recycling. "Through education and practice, rural Texans will be more able to ensure their water supply is available for generations to come," Tessen noted.

The goals of the project, dubbed "Water: Preparing Today for Texas' Future in the 21st Century," include:

- Conducting an inventory of small water projects and technologies;
- Hosting a conference on small size water technology;
- Providing leadership development to help educate local leaders on the various aspects of water issues; and
- Outreach.

ORCA's primary role will be to organize and facilitate discussions between key players and policy makers and develop leadership training and education tools for rural Texans.

Tessen said the agency will be looking to partner with any public, non-profit, for profit, faith-based, social service, private organizations, and other state agencies that want to join the Project in developing, distributing, and teaching others about water issues.

Preliminary activities for the project have already begun. For information, call 800-544-2042.

NAP native grass, improved pastures application deadline nears

Bruce Ferguson, County Executive Director for the Donley County Farm Service Agency (FSA), reminds local farmers and ranchers that the application closing date to sign up for the Non-Insured Assistance Program (NAP) for native grass and improved pastures is December 1, 2002.

NAP covers crops damaged by severe weather that result in a loss of 50 percent or greater. Losses are generally determined by percentage of loss compared to the producer's actual yield history. Lost production eligible for payment is paid at 55 percent of crop value.

"Producers interested in obtaining crop insurance on perennial pastures should visit their local USDA Service Center as soon as possible to complete an application for their 2003 acres," said Ferguson.

"Producers with acres in multiple counties should be aware that carrying capacities for pasture acres covered under NAP may vary by state and by county, so they need to check with their local FSA offices for details," he added.

NAP coverage is only available for crops where coverage is not available under the Federal Crop Insurance Program (FCIC).

"For all native grass and improved pastures, producers must report acres and file notices of loss in a timely manner to insure eligibility. However, production evidence is not required for perennial pastures that are grazed only," said Ferguson.

The December 1, 2002, deadline to purchase NAP coverage also applies to persons who have an existing policy and want to renew their coverage for 2003.

For detailed NAP information and applicant eligibility criteria, contact the Donley County Farm Service Agency office in Clarendon at 806-874-3561 or visit FSA on the World Wide Web at <http://www.fsa.usda.gov>

Local woman's quilt to benefit cancer center

The Preceptor Lambda Iota, a chapter of the Beta Sigma Phi, is selling tickets for a chance to win a beautiful quilt made by a cancer patient. Proceeds will benefit the Jolly Trolley at the Harrington Cancer Center.

The quilt top was created by breast cancer patient, Carol Hill. Before Carol passed on, she gave the quilt top to her friend Ann Bunyan of Clarendon. Ann and her pal, Verdie Tipton of Clarendon, transformed the quilt top into a beautiful hand-made quilt in honor of their dear friend Carol and donated it to the Harrington Cancer Center Volunteer Department to help raise funds to stock the Jolly Trolley. The Jolly Trolley is filled with items such as reading and entertainment materials, nutritional snacks, and drinks for patients and their families who are spending time at the center.

Ann's daughter-in-law, Janet Bunyan, is a member of the Preceptor Lambda Iota, and that sorority is offering everyone an opportunity to own the quilt and to donate all the proceeds to the Harrington Cancer Center.

The quilt is on display at the Harrington Cancer rotating between the first and second floors. Tickets are $1.00 each or six for $5.00. The drawing will be held Tuesday, December 10 at 10:30 a.m. at the Harrington Cancer Center Amphitheater.

To purchase a ticket, please see Ann Bunyan or call Patty Henson, Volunteer Coordinator, at the Harrington Cancer Center at 359-4673.

Broncos fall short in bid for a play off spot

By Sandy Anderberg

As head coach Roger Hoeltzel said, the Broncos held their destiny in their own hands. But it was not to be for the Broncos this season as they fell short against Wheeler in their quest to continue in post-season play. Despite the fact that the Broncos played hard, they were defeated by the Mustangs, 28-14.

"We gave up two turnovers," Hoeltzel said. "We gave Wheeler short field position. That hurt us. But our guys never laid down and quit. They kept battling."

Wheeler struck first with two touchdowns, and the Broncos found themselves playing catch up. Junior Dusty Martindale answered with a super 95-yard kick off return to put the Broncos on the scoreboard. The Mustangs and Broncos matched points in the 2nd quarter as Drew Sell caught an 18-yard pass from quarterback Todd Hoeltzel for 6 points. Judge Smith grabbed the extra points on a pass from Hoeltzel to cut into the Wheeler lead going into the break.

It was a scoreless second half for both teams before Wheeler hit again as time was running out in the game. The last score of the game gave the Mustangs the push they needed to jump ahead of Clarendon in the points race for the second play off spot in District.

"We just couldn't get anything going on offense," Hoeltzel said. "We had a chance, but we just couldn't get the score."

Hoeltzel gave credit to the Broncos for a good season.

"We're proud of their finish; they continued to battle through the tough start and finished hard. Obviously, we'd still rather be playing, and the guys and everyone were disappointed with the end, but they exhibited a lot of fight and heart throughout the season. We had a chance at the play-offs, and you just can't ask for more than that."

Wheeler and the District Champion Wellington will represent District 3 1A in post-season play.

Quilt of love

This beautiful quilt will be given away by the Preceptor Lambda Iota sorority on December 10. The quilt top was made by a breast cancer patient, the late Carol Hill. Clarendon residents Ann Bunyan and Verdie Tipton transformed the quilt top into a beautiful quilt. Proceeds from the drawing will benefit the Jolly Trolley at the Harrington Cancer Center.

Seed donation to benefit Adopt-A-Highway

AUSTIN - Motorists will have millions of colorful wildflowers to enjoy this spring thanks to a donation to the Adopt-a-Highway (AAH) program. The Home Depot, Inc., donated $10,000 worth of wildflower seeds to the roadside cleanup program sponsored by the Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT). More than 1,300 groups participated in cleanups during the month of October in order to receive the seeds.

"This is the first major donation of wildflower seeds that the program has received. Everyone involved with the program is ecstatic and looking forward to getting the seeds in the ground. Valuable partnerships like this allow us to reward the volunteers for their dedication and hard work," Canté Bergmann, Texas AAH coordinator, said.

Home Depot donated the wildflowers through the Don't Mess with Texas Partner program. The program allows Texas businesses, schools, families, and organizations to take their desire to keep Texas litter-free a step further through in-kind donations, community education projects, and program signage.

The Childress District received 15 pounds of seed to distribute among 50 AAH groups. The seeds will be planted along the group's adopted section of roadway.

For information contact Barbara Seal in the Childress District office at 940-937-7145.

The Clarendon Cub Scouts would like to thank the EMTs with Associated Ambulance Authority for letting the boys use their coats and blankets during the Veterans Day Memorial Service.

Thank you for the flowers, calls, and visits while in the hospital and all the meals since I've been home. I couldn't have made it without all the prayers. Thank you. A very special thanks you to Mrs. Tubbs' and Mrs. Gribble's first grade class for the get-well cards they sent.

Thanks,
