waterbeds, etc.) and do not go under them. They may fall down through a weakened floor and crush you.

- In a house with no basement, a dorm, or an apartment: Avoid windows. Go to the lowest floor, small center room (like a bathroom or closet), under a stairwell, or in an interior hallway with no windows. Crouch as low as possible to the floor, facing down, and cover your head with your hands. A bathtub may offer a shell of partial protection. Even in an interior room, you should cover yourself with some sort of thick padding (mattress, blankets, etc.), to protect against falling debris in case the roof and ceiling fail.

- In an office building, hospital, or nursing home: Go directly to an enclosed, windowless area in the center of the building — away from glass. Then, crouch down and cover your head. Interior stairwells are usually good places to take shelter, and if not crowded, allow you to get to a lower level quickly. Stay off the elevators; you could be trapped in them if the power is lost.

- In a mobile home: Get out. Even if your home is tied down, you are probably safer outside, even if the only alternative is to seek shelter out in the open. Most tornadoes can destroy even tied-down mobile homes, and it is best not to play the low odds that your mobile home will survive. If you are in a mobile home, get out. If you are in a mobile home, get out. If you are in a mobile home, get out.

- In a car or truck: Vehicles are extremely dangerous in a tornado. If the tornado is visible, far away, and the traffic is light, you may be able to drive out of its path by moving at right angles to the tornado. Otherwise, park the car as quickly and safely as possible — out of the traffic lanes. [It is safer to get the car out of mud later if necessary than to cause a crash.] Get out and seek shelter in a sturdy building. If in the open country, run to low ground away from any cars (which may roll over on you). Lie flat and face down, protecting the back of your head with your arms. Avoid seeking shelter under bridges, which can create deadly traffic hazards while offering little protection against flying debris.

- In the open outdoors: If possible, seek shelter in a sturdy building. If not, lie flat and face down on low ground, protecting the back of your head with your arms. Get as far away from trees and cars as you can; they may be blown onto you in a tornado.

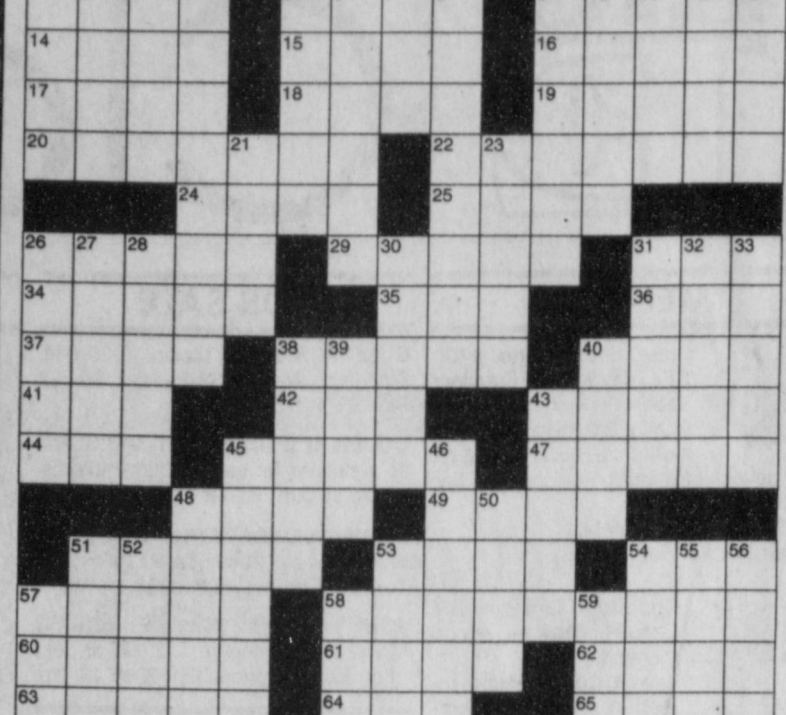

- In a large store: Do not panic. Watch for others. Move as quickly as possible to an interior small, enclosed area, away from windows.

After a tornado: Keep your family together and wait for emergency personnel to arrive. Carefully render aid to those who are injured. Stay away from power lines and puddles with wires in them; they may still be carrying electricity. Watch your step to avoid broken glass, nails, and other sharp objects. Stay out of any heavily damaged houses or buildings; they could collapse at any time. Do not use matches or lighters, in case of leaking natural gas pipes or fuel tanks nearby. Remain calm and alert, and listen for information and instructions from emergency crews.

Getting a new shine

Twenty inmates from the T.L. Roach Unit in Childress were in town over several days last week to perform community service. The men painted the pens and stands at the Clarendon Outdoor Entertainment Arena and also worked in City Park. Plans currently call for the men to return to help clean streets for the July Fourth festivities.

Animal ordinance returns as topic for city aldermen

The meeting of the Clarendon Board of Aldermen became heated last week as the city again faced criticism of its new animal ordinance.

"I won't pay one red cent to keep a horse on my property," said resident Carl Larsen, who claimed the ordinance violates his property rights.

Ordinance 340 requires landowners to obtain a $20 land license and a $10 per head permit in order to keep livestock in the city limits. The law also prescribes space requirements and other rules for keeping livestock in the city.

Alderman Michael Tibbets thanked Larsen for addressing the board and said he had erred in voting for the measure last month.

"I made a mistake voting for this ordinance," Tibbets said. "It wasn't the first mistake I have made, and it likely won't be the last if I'm fortunate enough to keep living."

Tibbets raised questions about the provision of the ordinance which specifies that violators may have their stock seized and said he thinks it violates state caps on what the city is allowed to confiscate.

"It would be just like the 21st Amendment," Tibbets explained.

Other aldermen bristled at the idea of repealing the ordinance.

"What are we going to do without this?" Mayor Pro-tem Mark White asked. "We're going to be in the same situation we were before with animals in the city limits."

Alderman Bob Watson echoed White's statement saying the council had spent a great deal of time on the new law and that it should stand.

Watson moved, seconded by Alderman Janice Knopp to table the ordinance until the May 28 meeting.

In other city business, Mayor Tex Selvig administered the oath of office to newly elected Aldermen Tommy Hill, Janice Knopp, and Mark White and presided over the selection of a new mayor pro-tem. Nominations for Watson and Tibbets both failed to receive support before White was nominated and was unanimously elected.

White took charge of the meeting, allowing the mayor to return home to continue his recovery from a recent surgery.

The board discussed the city's ranking of engineering proposals for a street improvement plan. The board agreed that not enough time was taken in reviewing the proposals at the previous city meeting. Board consultant Colby Waters said that the ranking was done under state procurement guidelines and therefore the city must move forward with its selection or risk violating those rules.

David Pitts reported on the city's emergency sirens and radios. He asked the board to consider getting a See 'City' on page 3.

Not all household molds are created equal, expert says

COLLEGE STATION — By now most Texans know their homeowner's insurance is going up, by how much, and when. The why is also well known: Most have heard horror stories of how some residents have been driven from their homes by something as common and ordinary as mold. And many are wondering how that can happen.

Not all molds are created equal, according to Janie Harris, Texas Cooperative Extension housing and environment specialist. "While some molds can be a serious health threat, others — like the ones responsible for creating cheese and penicillin — are beneficial," she said.

"All mold are fungi. Molds produce microscopic cells called spores, which spread easily through the air. Mold spores are present everywhere — in indoor as well as outdoor air."

However, something like 10 percent of the population develop severe allergies to mold, she said. These allergies produce flu-like symptoms, including breathing problems, nasal and sinus congestion, watery eyes, coughing and sore throat, and skin irritations.

Some of these allergies can trigger asthma attacks, Harris said.

"Children, the elderly, pregnant women, people with existing respiratory sensitivities and those whose immune systems are impaired are at higher risk for adverse health effects from mold," Harris said.

And not all reactions to mold are the same either. "Some people are affected when exposed to very little mold, while others may show no adverse health symptoms when exposed to mold. Exposure to high mold spore levels can cause development of an allergy to mold," she said.

"People can react to mold whether it is living or dead. Even when mold has dried out and has stopped growing, the toxins can still be harmful."

The most common problem-causing mold is called "black mold," Harris said.

Most people are advised to pack up and move because of mold. So how do they protect their families' health and their homes? To eliminate mold in the home, homeowners must understand what mold needs to grow and survive.

"Mold needs a food source, moisture, mild to warm temperatures, and mold spores to grow," Harris said.

Food sources for mold include anything organic, such as dust, books, paper and paper products, animal dander, soap scum — anything that contains organic materials, she said. The best way to fight mold is to thoroughly clean the areas where it might grow, Harris pointed out.

Experts who studied mold and mildew in homes "found that mold in mildew contamination was significantly reduced in treatment homes where surfaces were routinely cleaned and disinfected," she said.

These experts suggested steps for controlling mold growth:

- Control the amount of moisture in the home's air by maintaining and repairing the plumbing system, air conditioning, roof, etc.
- Clean up potential mold food sources, such as dust and soil.
- After cleaning a site where mold has been found, use an appropriate disinfectant to prevent it from growing back.
- Prevent mold from entering the house again by keeping possible sites cleaned and disinfected.
- Since people react to mold differently, see 'Mold' on page 3.

Sports banquet names top Clarendon athletes

By Sandy Anderson

"United We Stand" was the theme for the 2001-2002 All Sports Banquet that was held May 18 at the Clarendon College Barfield Activity Center. Many awards were given for the year's accomplishments.

In another year of adversity, the Broncos and Lady Broncos have learned to endure. They have had to learn how to reach deep within themselves to draw on their inner strengths to emerge as winners. Not necessarily always winners on the scoreboard or in the record books but always winners in their hearts.

Sometimes the Broncos' and Lady Broncos' successes aren't "pretty," but they're successes nonetheless.

They were recognized for their many accomplishments as a team and individually at the All Sports Banquet given in their honor.

The Lady Broncos' Fighting Heart Award went to senior Kelley Lemley and junior Lacey Anderson. Next year will be even greater.

On Wednesday, May 15, the students reached their goal of collecting and counting one million tabs. On Thursday, May 23, at 9:00 a.m. in the Bronco Gym, all of Mrs. Hankins' classes from 1997 to now will help present the tabs to the Ronald McDonald House. The total amount is now 1,008,389.

Livestock law needs fixing, not abolishing

The Clarendon Board of Aldermen has found itself in a not so unique situation where they are in the middle of folks who keep livestock in the city limits and their neighbors who don't want the animals next door.

I say "not so unique" because in many respects the disagreement is as old as the city itself. Old newspaper articles refer to a "large town pasture" where "town cows" grazed. But as the town grew and began to take on a more civilized air, citizens began agitating against the town cows. Clarendon incorporated in 1901, and the city aldermen outlawed livestock running at large in the city limits in 1908. Other laws were passed further regulating animals in the city in later years.

Responding to citizens' complaints in 1996, the city once again tackled the animal question with Ordinance 309, which set out to generally prohibit livestock in the city limits with certain exceptions. Among other things, the law provided that livestock could be kept in the city if there were 300 feet between the stock and a neighbor's home or business if that neighbor did not object.

Well, as you might guess, some neighbors did object, and that's when it hit the fan. The city has gotten tangled up in two court cases trying to enforce the ordinance, and those cases appear to be going nowhere. Meanwhile, I can tell you, as a regular observer of the meetings at City Hall, there has been a perennial parade of citizens complaining to their city fathers, imploring them to do something about the nuisance, the smell, the possible health hazard, and the generally disagreeable proposition of having a small cow lot next to their homes.

It is with that background the aldermen passed Ordinance 340 last month to solve, once and for all, the vexing problems associated with having livestock in the city limits. In a nutshell, the law requires property owners to have a license to keep livestock on their property and requires a permit for each head of livestock. The license costs $20 annually, and each permit costs $10 annually. The law sets space requirements for keeping animals, and violators face fines and the possible impoundment of the livestock.

The city and its attorney spent several months crafting the law in a manner they felt would be fair to all involved while setting reasonable limits. They debated in open session what the fees would be, what the penalties would be, and when the law should take effect. Most importantly, they debated whether the new law - which overrides the old laws - would be enforceable.

That hard work was nearly undone at last week's city meeting.

One citizen passed out and read excerpts from the United States Constitution and declared he would not pay anything to keep a horse on his property. He also claimed the city had violated the Fourteenth Amendment's equal protection clause when the ordinance didn't treat iguanas and goldfish the same as it treated horses and cattle.

Alderman Michael Tibbetts cited Texas law, which he said places a cap of $5,000 on the value of property that can be seized by the city. He went on to say that he had made a mistake in voting for Ordinance 340. Then the other shoe dropped when newly elected Alderman Tommy Hill made a motion to repeal the animal ordinance.

Fortunately, the city alderman cannot simply vote out of the blue to repeal an ordinance. Certain procedures must be followed. Those procedures take time, and the board of aldermen should make good use of this time to think this thing through. The ordinance has not even taken effect yet. That won't happen until the middle part of June.

The city is on solid ground with Ordinance 340. Based on my reading of it and the research the city attorney put into it, I would guess that it would withstand any court challenges on constitutional grounds. Arguing that the city has no right to require animal owners to buy a permit doesn't hold. City residents have to buy a tag for their dogs. Saying the city can't seize property valued at more than $5,000 doesn't seem right either. If a structure - such as a home or other building - becomes a public safety hazard, the city, through due process, can condemn such property and seize it from its owner.

The solution here is to amend the law in order to satisfy everyone. The $10 per head per year permit and the $20 per year property license should be replaced with a simple $10 per year land-use permit. That permit would still limit the number of head on the property but would not put a hardship on anyone.

I'm a big private property rights advocate, and I sympathize with landowners who have livestock on isolated acreage within the city limits. We must be fair, however, and in order to do so, those landowners must be treated the same as a landowner in the middle of the city.

Repealing the livestock ordinance will solve nothing. For reasons of public health and in order to maintain a certain quality of life, reasonable restrictions must be in place on livestock within the city limits. This law does not outright ban animals in the city; it merely set limits on them. It is a good law for the most part. It can be improved, but it should not be abolished.

Pickens must follow water district rules

By C.E. Williams

The newspapers, radio, and television stations all across the state had varying versions of "Pickens Gets the Permit" in their lines and lead-in's. It concerns me greatly that this is all the people hear or understand about the process. I would like to tell, as Paul Harvey says, "The Rest of the Story."

The Board and Staff of the Panhandle Groundwater District have spent the last 20 months working diligently to put safeguards in place to protect the aquifer and the citizens of the District, and especially the people of Roberts County, from possible negative impacts of the proposed Mesa, Courson, QUIXX water transport projects. The District hired Dr. Alan Dutton, with the Bureau of Economic Geology at the University of Texas, to do detailed modeling of the aquifer in Roberts County, so the Board would have good knowledge of the impacts to the aquifer. The District also hired Booth, Ahrens, and Werkenthin Law Firm of Austin, to represent the District on legal issues.

We are given the authority by the Texas Legislature, though Chapter 36 of the Texas Water Code, to regulate the well spacing and production of water within the boundaries of our District. However, it's also clear in the Code that we cannot prohibit the export of water from the District. With this authority, we have provided several specific protections for those of us in the District, and I would like to describe them for you.

The most important protection is that the permits require the producers to adhere to the District Rules and Management Plan, which states that they may not produce more than 50 percent of their water by the year 2048. Before any well drilling or production, the permit issued requires the applicants to identify Destination users, which must be a municipal user within the State of Texas, and accomplish this within five years or the permit is terminated. Each Destination user must file water conservation and drought management plans with the District and agree to abide by those plans.

The District has over-depletion rules that permittees agreed to abide by. Each permit requires the producers to adhere to the District Rules and Management Plan that state they may not produce more than 50 percent of their water by the year 2048. The permittees will be assessed an export fee, and the money will be used to do monitoring and recharge projects and may be used to assist affected neighboring landowners to deepen or re-drill domestic and livestock wells.

The permittees must, at their own expense, construct a minimum of 25 monitoring wells, for all of the projects. These wells and others, will be used by District Staff to continually monitor and, if necessary, further regulate permittees' production back to acceptable levels.

The permittees agreed to not drill wells closer than 1/2 mile from any project boundary and will not drill more than two wells per section.

Importantly, the permit was issued

"subject to the rules of the District as may be amended thereafter and to the continuing right of the District to supervise and regulate the depletion of the aquifer within the boundaries, as authorized by Chapter 36, Texas Water Code, as amended." This clause gives the District the right, ability, and authority to see that permittees produce their water appropriately.

The District is continually working on win-win situations that allow the permittees to sell their water to others here in the Panhandle and keep the water in this area. I believe that if we "think out of the box," we can come up with some creative solutions.

The Board of Directors realizes that the permittees, as landowners and water rights holders, have the legal right to produce their owned water under Texas Law. The Directors, after almost two years of legal wrangling and negotiating, came to the agonizing decision that adequate protections were in place and, by a 6 to 3 vote, issued the permits.

In my opinion, local control works. Panhandle Groundwater Conservation District's Board of Directors and Staff have done their statutorily mandated function, and I guarantee you that we will continue to do so.

A critical issue to remember is these are only proposed projects with many obstacles to overcome before one drop of water leaves Roberts County.

C.E. Williams is the General Manager for Panhandle Groundwater Conservation District in White Deer.

Buddy Poppy sales support VFW programs

As a veteran I know the importance of the Buddy Poppy program throughout this great land. For hundreds of long-term disabled veterans and Veterans' Administration hospitals and in state veterans homes, every day is VFW Buddy Poppy Day. These are the men who assemble the poppies, tie them in bunches of 10 and pack them in boxes of 500, 1000, or 2000 for shipment to the 10,000 VFW posts and auxiliaries throughout the nation.

Poppy assembly is a year-round project for some 10 veterans facilities and a part-time program and others. Some are under the direction of the VFW organization in the state in which they are located, and others are supervised and directed by the National VFW Buddy Poppy Department.

The assembly procedure varies from facility to facility, depending upon the emphasis given to the various aspects of the program by the project director.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars pays the disabled veteran for his work. In most cases, the money provides extra income for the disabled veterans to pay for the little luxuries which make hospital life tolerable.

Sometimes the poppy assembly is used as a therapy program, under direct supervision of hospital personnel, to provide exercise for fingers and hands crippled by wounds, disease, and the effects of old age.

One of the most successful adaptations of the Buddy Poppy assembly program is its use as a step toward the rehabilitation of psychiatric patients. The experience and training in concentration and supervised work in assembling poppies has led to more complicated duties and eventual discharge.

From the time it leaves the hospital until it graces the coat lapel or dress front of the individual citizen, the poppy provides care for the widow and orphans of the deceased veterans at the VFW National Home in Eaton Rapids, Mich., provides funds for veterans' rehabilitation services at the state and national levels; pays for direct relief to the families of needy and deceased veterans; and served as a memorial to the dead of all wars of the U.S.

More than 16 million Buddy Poppies will be assembled this year. Each of them will have traveled a long way and each will have helped to make someone happy.

The annual distribution of Buddy Poppies is the only public solicitation conducted by the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The distribution in this area will be on Friday, May 24, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

All of the net proceeds received remain here in our own community to meet the calls of the Veterans. The local post maintains a relief fund into which is placed all net proceeds from the distribution of Buddy Poppies. This fund is available to meet all calls for relief from all our veterans.

As in previous years, this symbolic flower in Flanders fields will be distributed on the streets by a group of volunteer members of the post and its auxiliary. They will be assisted by volunteer workers from youth groups in the community. Most of the money we collect with this campaign will remain right here in our own community to help finance the relief and welfare work which we have undertaken on behalf of our own veterans in need and their dependents.

The balance of the proceeds of the annual Buddy Poppy campaign is used to help maintain the nationwide rehabilitation service of the organization.

When you're asked to donate to the Buddy Poppy campaign, do this with a great smile and please remember that this is the most grateful investment of your loose change that you can ever make!

Let me remind you that in the wake of 9-11, your help is needed more than ever. We are at war and we need your help to provide those services to our hospitalized veterans. Thank you once again for your support to our local veterans and to the VFW programs.

The board also discussed the basement of City Hall and its use as a public shelter. The basement needs to be cleaned out, and new lighting needs to be installed.

An agreement providing for regulating subdivisions by the county within the extraterritorial jurisdiction of a municipality was discussed. The board approved a motion to let the county handle the matter.

The board approved Ordinance 341 which codifies all the ordinances passed by the city since 1901. The action has the effect of organizing the ordinances for easier reference and easier enforcement. It also eliminates some obsolete provisions and laws.

it is living or dead, mold needs to be removed," Harris said. "Small areas of mold - less than a couple of square feet - can be cleaned by the homeowner. Extensive contamination - 30 or more square feet - should be assessed by an experienced health and safety professional and remediated by personnel with training and experience handling environmentally contaminated material."

First things first, she said. Since moisture is necessary for mold to grow, any leaks or constantly moist areas must be repaired. "To get rid of the mold for good, it is necessary to solve the moisture or leakage problem. Since there are some mold spores everywhere, and since mold grows on any wet organic surface, the only way to prevent mold growth is to keep things dry."

"The underlying moisture problem must be identified and fixed!" Harris said.

Dr. Chip Lee, Extension plant pathologist in Stephenville, agreed.

"Points to consider in the prevention of house mold deal primarily with the prevention of free moisture in the house," he said. "The most common moisture traces from bottom to top in the house must be investigated and the specific source eliminated before any control or remediation is attempted."

Senior Citizens enjoy trip to Little Theatre

By Vida O'Neal

Sunday afternoon we had eleven go to the Amarillo Little Theatre to see Will Rogers Follies. We enjoyed the show and stopped to have a little ice cream treat before coming back to Clarendon.

Our next trip will be to the Gem Theatre on June 1 to see Bobby Wynn and The Kings of Western Swing. Tickets will be $8.00, and the deadline will be May 23. If you want a ticket, please call by noon on May 23.

We have been enjoying a beautiful bouquet that has brightened up the lobby. We appreciate the flowers from Carolyn Hamilton. They are still beautiful and have lasted so long, we are still enjoying them.

Let's go see TEXAS in June. The second night of the performance for this year will be Friday, June 7. We will leave at 6 p.m. or maybe a little earlier. You can eat barbecue or take your own sack supper if you would like. Tickets are $17 for the show and $7.50 for the supper if you wish to eat there. You do not have to be a senior citizen to join us for this fun filled evening. The deadline will be May 27 at noon. If you sign-up, you are responsible for that ticket. If you cannot go, you will need to find someone to use your ticket. The sales are final after you sign up. We possibly could get a few tickets after this date, but the seats will not be with our group.

We sent get-well wishes out to Pat McCombs, Blackie Hartwick, and Jitter Graham.

Our condolences to Jack Hall and family on the loss of his mother, Rose Hall.

Reminders:
May 27: Deadline for TEXAS; Dance Club, 7 p.m.
May 28: Birthday/Anniversary Supper, 6 p.m.
May 29: Water Aerobics, 5 p.m.

Adamson-Lane Legion Post named for young, brave Hedley soldiers

The small American flags stand beside the graves and wave their noble colors in the wind that blows across the cemetery. Silk flowers of many colors decorate the somber, gray headstones. The voice of a man, who once served his country, begins to announce the names of 192 other men who also served their country, and are buried nearby. The annual Memorial Day Ceremony at Rowe Cemetery in Hedley begins.

"It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this," stated Lincoln in his famous speech at Gettysburg, as he dedicated part of a battlefield that had become a cemetery. The Adamson-Lane American Legion Post 287 is also doing the "fitting and proper" thing as they honor their veterans, and celebrate the lives of two young boys who have indirectly been a part of their organization for over eighty years.

Leo Lloyd Lane was the son of J. Walker Lane of Hedley. He joined the regular Army shortly after the United States declared war on Germany in 1917. His letters home during his training were always full of good spirit. He wrote, "The training is hard but leaves no time to get despondent. I am in the best of health. Tell everyone to be cheerful and try not to have depressing thoughts." He was prepared to "go over the top" (climb out of the trenches) when he was sent to the front lines in France, but he remained optimistic. "I am well and doing fine," he wrote his family. "We are taking things as they come." In another letter Lloyd talked about a group who had come to entertain them. "There were three American women...it was good to hear women speak English for a change. But I like the French language. I think I'll marry a French woman just to hear her talk." He was popular with his comrades because he was always cheerful with a quick smile and a joke, or a word of encouragement. He was advanced to the level of Sargent in a short time.

During the night of October 8, 1918 Lloyd led a reconnaissance party inside "no man's land" on a battlefield near Compiègne, France. His orders were to locate allied and enemy lines. The men were under heavy barrage and machine gun sniping. As they moved out on a deserted field, the party was attacked by gunfire. "Lloyd was mortally wounded by machine gun bullets and died within two hours. He was conscious until the last and did not suffer great pain," wrote a fellow officer to the Lane family. He was buried by the battlefield with his other fallen comrades.

Wesley Adamson was raised in Hedley and the son of S. L. Adamson. He joined the National Guard before his eighteenth birthday and was sent to Camp Bowie to train. He was part of a group that was organized in Clarendon by Capt. E.A. Simpson from volunteers in Donley County and several surrounding counties. Wesley was a solid soldier with leadership qualities. He never complained or shirked a duty that was given him and carried his load, as well as the load of his comrades. The Hedley men trained for several months then were mobilized in Houston with other NG units and shipped together to the Western Front in France for combat.

One night, before the men were to move into the trenches the next day, Alva Simmons, another Hedley boy, talked with Wesley. "He did not seem to be a bit scared," Alva wrote later. "But he talked to me like he felt he would never go back home. I tried to cheer him up, but I had the same feeling. A fellow feels like he will be the next to go when the machine gun bullets are cutting out over his head and shrapnel is bursting all around and covering him up with dirt and time will Tell

By Jean Staverhagen

every minute you can see your comrades falling. I suppose it's all just luck for a man to get out alive."

Wesley Adamson was killed in the battle the next day October 8th, 1918 at St. Etienne, France. He was one of the firsts to "go over the top." He went forward like the brave man he was, until overhead shrapnel burst near him and he was wounded. But he did not stop. "He fought furiously on, like a man who seemed willing to give his life," wrote Capt. Simpson. "He finally ran into the fire from a machine gun and was killed instantly."

The chaplain took special pains to identify and bury Wesley and his comrades. A memorial service was held for them on the battlefield. Wesley was only nineteen years old, but he died a hero's death.

Three months after the war ended, a memorial service was held in the Hedley Baptist Church for Wesley and Lloyd. Dozens of flowers crowded around two large photos of the young men. National and State flags stood by a service flag with two gold stars in its center. As the last prayer was said, eight men in uniform saluted the photos of the two men. In June 1921 the parents of Wesley Adamson received posthumously, the Croix de Guerre (Cross of War) and the Silver Star in recogniton of Wesley's acts of bravery.

The ex-servicemen of the Hedley area met in January 1921 and organized an American Legion Post. They elected officers and received their charter on March 4, 1921 with thirty-eight members. The name they chose was the Adamson-Lane American Legion Post 287.

Three years after the war ended, the Adamson family was notified that Wesley's body would be brought back to the United States. An impressive, military burial was held at Rowe Cemetery on September 16, 1921 with the American Legion in charge of the service.

Leo Lloyd Lane still sleeps in a foreign land, perhaps in the folds of the same flag that was placed around him when he died. He lies on the quiet, sunlit plains of France and over him nod the lilies of that country he went to save.

Two young men left their homes in Hedley to fight on the fields of France, never knowing what the future held for them. They fought their battles on separate grounds, but lost their lives on the same day, and although their final resting places are many miles apart, Lloyd and Wesley have been joined together in a way that allows their comrades to honor their memory as their names live on.

On May 25 the Adamson-Lane American Legion Post will again place their flags on the gravestones of Rowe Cemetery. The names of Hedley's courageous men will be called and the Memorial Day Ceremony will begin.

CEDC to discuss hogs, dairies, and tourism

The Clarendon Economic Development Board (CEDC) met on Tuesday, May 14 in the Newhouse Building. A public hearing on the proposed expenditures of funds on the Donley County Courthouse Restoration Fund Project was held. Mrs. Jean Stavenhagen and two Donley County Commissioners spoke for the project, and there was no opposition. The CEDC Board then met in regular session and adopted the project.

The Clarendon Outdoor Entertainment Association requested $1,500 for the upcoming Fourth of July celebration. The Board felt that any request for funds should follow the City of Clarendon's guidelines and asked that the CEOA furnish the information on their budget, financial statement, and the activities that the money will be used for. They authorized a donation of $1,000 when the information was furnished.

I asked for a credit card for the CEDC and was granted one with a limited dollar amount. The card will be used for the purchase of supplies and for expenses incurred on trips.

Howardwick swears in new alderman

The Howardwick City Council met in regular session on Tuesday, May 14, 2002 at 7 p.m., in Howardwick City Hall.

After some discussion, the board voted to move $3,000.00 from the cash management account to the checking account.

It was decided not to start the mowing until the wildlife has hatched out and the wildflowers have bloomed.

The new ordinances are not ready yet. Alderman Nancy Davis told the council that Clarendon was getting PRPC to go over their ordinances and bring them up to date and suggested that the council check into doing the same for Howardwick.

After some discussion, Alderman Lynn Dishong made a motion to have a sign made that says "No Pets in City Storm Shelter (service dogs exception)." Motion carried. Alderman Mike Rowland made a motion to let a RV be put on #732 and 733 Red Feather on a three year bases. Motion carried.

Davis made a motion to order cold mix. Motion carried.

Dishong told the council that he had talked with John Kiehl and was to meet with him about the siren systems.

Bobby Murdock, Donald Holladay, and Sam Grider were sworn into office and then took their place at the council table.

Last Week's Solutions

The board requires receipt for each bill before payment.

The Board will contract for the CEDC web page construction. This will give us an expanded web page. We have not had a fully operational web page in several months. This new page will have good local pictures and information on Clarendon and Donley County. The Clarendon/Donley County Chamber of Commerce will also share this site. It will also allow linking to other pages of interest. Take a look at www.clarendonedc.org. It will look better when we are able to get it redone.

The Board authorized a Town Hall meeting on "Hogs, Dairies, or Tourism." This is a very important meeting and we urge everyone to attend. The date, place, and time will be announced as soon as we can get it set up. These are some issues that are facing other Panhandle counties and cities that my face us in the near future. I personally, nor is any board member, in favor of Dairies or Hogs but we need to talk about these issues before it happens.

The CEDC only received one proposal for the Executive Director position. It involved a one-week month counseling service. After consideration it was turned down. The Board decided to advertise for a part time position for the present. Please see the ad in The Clarendon Enterprise classifieds section.

The Board is requesting an opinion from our attorney on the failure of Renee's Diner to repay their $10,000 job grant loan.

I personally want to say how much we appreciate board member Dee Dee Aury for all the volunteer hours that she is contributing to get the CEDC moved and back into full operation. She has been putting in 30 plus hours each week. As a member of the board, she cannot receive any salary; however, we can pay her expenses.

Board members Jerry Woodard, Miles Shelton, and Mac Stavenhagen, along with editor Roger Estlack, made a trip to Shamrock recently to look at their new motel. They came back very impressed with the facility. Negotiations for the land are still ongoing. We need a motel. There are approximately 8,300 cars and trucks that pass through Clarendon each 24 hours (not local TxDOT 1999 figures). The college has expressed a need for a larger new motel. Many citizens and other organizations are in support. A new motel would bring a lot of money to our community. More on this next time.

Feel free to contact me with CEDC or city questions or suggestions at 874-9787 (CEDC), 874-9001 (home), or jackwatson1@juno.com.

Stuttering video now available at Burton Library

Parents eagerly anticipate the moment when their child first begins to talk. But for some parents, it is a time of anxiety because their child struggles to get words out.

A new videotape, Stuttering and The Preschool Child: Help for Families, helps parents detect stuttering and take action toward helping their child; it is available at the Burton Memorial Library in Clarendon.

"Stuttering typically begins between the ages of two and five," says Barry Guitar, Ph.D., professor and chair of Communications Sciences at the University of Vermont in Burlington. "It may begin gradually or suddenly, and many of these children outgrow their disfluencies naturally. However, if a child continues to stutter for several months, or appears to be frustrated by it, parents should seek assistance."

Experts in the video address common concerns that parents have about their child, such as how to help the child at home and whether to seek the advice of a speech pathologist.

WE SALUTE OUR VETERANS

This Is My Grave

*I am a veteran laid under the sod,
I'm in good company; I'm up here with God.
Come to my grave and visit with me,
I gave my life so you could be free.
Today is Memorial Day throughout this great land,
There's avenue of flags, parades, and bands.
I can hear music, the firing squad and taps,
Here comes my comrades, the legionaries, the bluecaps.
One of them just put a flag on my stone,
Some day he'll have one by his own.
Some think of this day as just a day free from toil,
While others are busy working the soil.
They say they have plans, other things to do,
Don't put us aside as you would an old shoe.
Come visit my grave in this cemetery so clean,
This is what Memorial Day means.
There are many of us lying in wakeless sleep,
In cemeteries of green and oceans deep.
It's sad that for many who fought so brave,
Now no one comes to their grave.
They died so you could have one more year free,
Now can't you save this one day for me?
There are soldiers, sailors, airmen up here,
Who went into battle despite their fear.
I've been talking up here to all those women and men,
If they had to do it over, they'd do it again.
Look, someone is coming to visit my grave,
It's my family, for them my life I gave.
My wife, I remember our last embrace,
As I left the tears streamed down your face.
I think you knew the day I shipped out,
I wouldn't return, your lives be turned about.
There's my daughter that I used to hold,
Can it be that you're nearly twenty years old?
Next month is to be your wedding day,
I wish I could be there to give you away.*

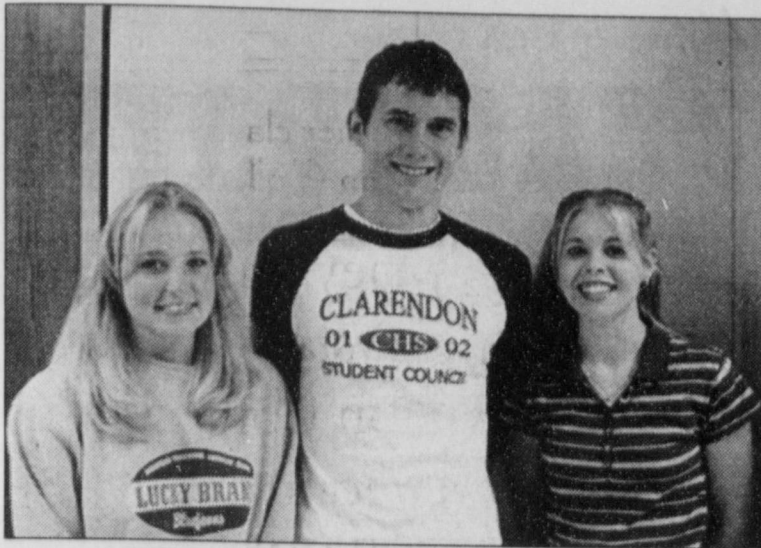

*My son's here too, dad's little man,
Always love your country, do for it what you can.
There is one thing that really did bother,
Is seeing you grow up without the aid of a father.
I wish you could all hear me from up above,
That's a father's best gift to his children is love.
And what better way to prove my love to the end,
Is that a man lay down his life for his friends.
I see its time for you to go home,
Your visit made it easier to remain here alone.
Don't cry honey, you look so sad,
Our children are free you should be glad,
Daughter, thanks for the bouquet so cute,
Thank you son, for that sharp salute.
Come again, I forgot, you can't hear me from up here,
But I know you'll come visit me next year.
I hope all veterans are treated this way,
On this day to remember, Memorial Day.

The coaches from District 6-2A have named the 2002 Softball All District Team. Players from the participating teams are nominated by the coaches and then voted on for that position.

Receiving All District honors were pitchers Janey Aduddell and Destiny Weatheron. Brandi Betts was selected as an infielder and Lacey Eads made the team as hitter. Outfielders Christine Holden and Britney Hall were also named to the team.

"These girls are very deserving of this recognition and honor," Coach Kathy Barton said. "They all did a great job this year and we're looking for greater things next year."

Correction:

Jeremy Howard was accidentally left off of the Bronco All District Team as listed in last week's Enterprise. He was selected to the 6-2A All District 2nd Team as an infielder. We apologize for this oversight.

Fires 66 Ranch joins American Angus Association

Fires 66 Ranch in Clarendon is a new member of the American Angus Association, reports John Crouch, executive vice president of the national breed registry organization in St. Joseph, Missouri.

The American Angus Association, with more than 35,000 active adult and junior members, is the largest beef cattle registry association in the world. Its computerized records include detailed information on more than 14 million registered Angus.

Hedley native signs to play basketball for Clarendon College

By Sandy Anderberg

Four-year Hedley basketball standout Josh Collins has signed to play for Coach Tony Starnes' Clarendon College Bulldogs.

Collins was a key player for the Hedley Owls his four years in high school and helped his team to many District Championships. Some of his individual basketball accomplishments include All District Honorable Mention 1998-1999, 1st Team All District 1999-2000 and 2000-2001, District MVP 2001-2002, 2nd Team All Region 2000-2001, 1st Team All Region 2001-2002, and 2nd Team Six Man All State 2001-2002.

Collins also earned many track awards during his high school career. He was a two-time District Champion in the long jump, as well as a three-year Area Qualifier and two-year Regional qualifier in that event. He was part of the 400-meter relay that was a Regional qualifier in 2000 and was a member of both the Area qualifying 400-meter and mile relay in 2002.

As with many high school standouts, Collins has achieved many academic honors, also. He was Academic All-State his senior year and qualified for Regional UIL on the calculator team. This year he was a state alternate in Computer Aided Graphics in Business Professionals of America and was named to the All District Academic teams 1998-1999 and 1999-2000. Collins also received many best actor awards in One Act Play competition. He was named Clarendon Chamber of Commerce's Young Man of the Year in 2002.

Before choosing CC, Collins looked at other colleges. He feels Clarendon College is the best choice at this time and he is excited to get started.

"I looked at other colleges," Collins said. "But the coaches just didn't seem to have the morals that Coach Starnes has. I really liked what I saw. Coach Starnes is a good guy and I respect him and his program."

Head Bulldog Basketball Coach Tony Starnes is pleased with Collins' decision to play basketball at CC. Collins' athletic ability, academic capabilities, and character are exactly what Starnes is looking for in building his 2002-2003 Bulldog team. He feels Collins will be an asset to the team.

"We are very excited about Josh," Starnes said. "The kind of person and player he is will really give our program a boost."

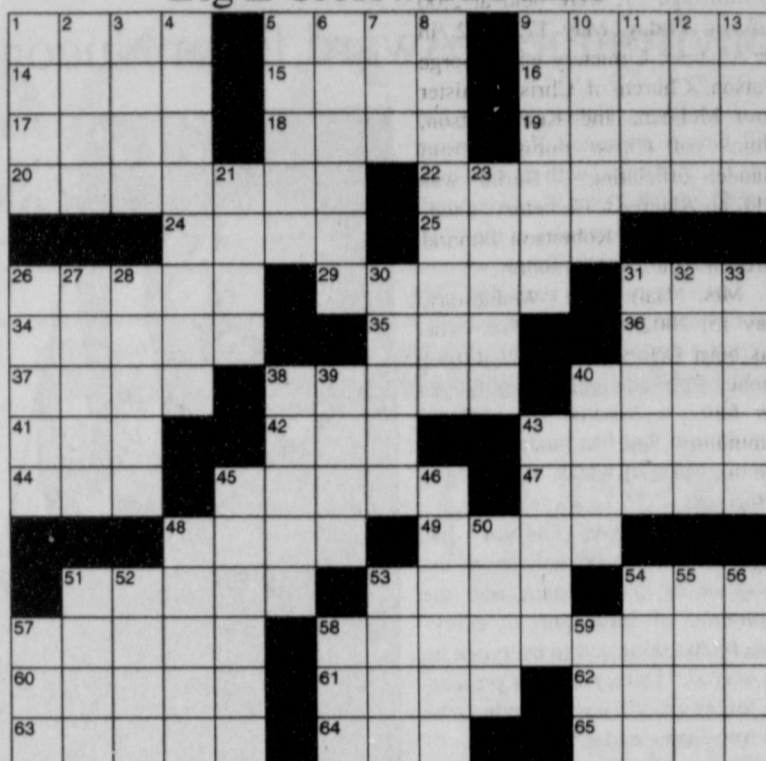

Also signing letters of intent to play for Clarendon College are: Beto Flores 6'7" of Durango, Mexico;

Josh Collins

Jordan Banks 6'6" of Willingboro, New Jersey; Marshall Winfrey 6'5" of Lake Charles, Louisiana; Thaddeus Washington 6'5" of Houston; Austin Sherman 5'10" of Dimmitt; Dee Norman 6'3" of Dimmitt; and Luke Ruach 6'1" of Ft. Worth.

More Texans able to buy homes with low interest rates

COLLEGE STATION - Who can afford a home? With interest rates below 7 percent, the answer is lots of Texans. According to the Real Estate Center at Texas A&M University, 64 percent of Texas households can afford a median-priced home. Using a comparable index, 55 percent of U.S. households can afford a median-priced home.

First quarter's average mortgage interest rate in Texas edged up about one-eighth of a percentage point from the previous quarter to 6.92 percent, but that is still lower than interest rates were at the beginning of 2001 (7.08 percent).

"One might have expected affordability to be even better than it is," said Dr. Jack C. Harris, research economist at the Center. "However, the median sales price for a home jumped almost 6 percent last year, more than twice the rate that median household income increased. This nullified the effect of the low interest rate."

The Texas Housing Affordability Index (THAI), compiled by Harris, compares household incomes with current home sales prices and mortgage interest rates. At the end of first quarter 2002, the THAI was 1.34, meaning that the median Texas household income, now $42,960, is 34 percent higher than the minimum income needed to buy a median-priced home, which now costs $121,500. Last quarter, the THAI was 1.36. First quarter last year, it was 1.35.

The index is calculated using prices based on sales during the quarter that were reported through the state's multiple listing services. Financing is assumed at the currently available interest rate on 30-year mortgage loans covering 80 percent of the home's value.

The First-time Homebuyer's Affordability Index is 1.08, which indicates that the median income of a renting Texas household, which is $29,000, is 8 percent higher than needed to buy the median-priced starter home, which now costs $82,620. This index is based on financing with a loan covering 95 percent of home value.

For either index, a home is considered affordable if no more than 29 percent of the household income will go towards house payments, insurance and property taxes.

To find the affordability index for a specific area in Texas, go to <http://recenter.tamu.edu/Data/misc/afford1.htm>.

Texans show individual expressions on road with personalized license plates

AUSTIN - One of the most popular forms of individual expression on the road today is the personalized license plate. TxDOT is featuring the personalized plate as the specialty plate for May.

Since 1965, when TxDOT began issuing personalized plates to Texas drivers, vehicles have displayed vanity plates with names, initials, greetings, or clever phrases on them.

"Personalized plates have proven to be popular among Texans," said Mike Behrens, TxDOT executive director. "They are a creative expression of individuality. Once a driver gets a personalized plate with a phrase that they really like, they can hold onto it forever."

Personalized plates are available through TxDOT or county tax offices for $40 per year, in addition to regular registration fees.

Money raised from personalized license plates goes to the state's General Revenue Fund, where it is used for various state services and programs.

In a one-year period ending on August 31, 2001, personalized plates accounted for approximately $3.2 million of that fund.

Personalized license plates accommodate up to six alpha or numeric characters. Motorists can purchase a set of personalized plates at anytime, regardless of when vehicle registration expires.

Applications for personalized plates are available at county tax offices, on TxDOT's web site (www.dot.state.tx.us), by calling the TxDOT Help Desk at (512) 465-7611, or by calling TxDOT's Fax-On-Demand forms line at (888) 232-7033.

There are more than 70,000 personalized plates on the road in Texas today, making it the state's most visible specialty license plate.

Rep. Chisum receives new Friend of the Texas Environment Award from Nucor Steel Group

PAMPA - Nucor Steel's Bar Mill Group presented Rep. Warren Chisum, R-Pampa, with its first-ever "Friend of the Texas Environment" award during ceremonies at the Phillips facility in Borger, Texas.

Jim Darsey, vice president and general manager of the Jewett-based company, praised Chisum not only for his legislative accomplishments, but also "a lifetime of personal contribution that has made our state a better place in which to work and live."

"Representative Chisum has brought the value of dedication, the discipline of commitment, and the inspiration of leadership to everything he has done and to everyone he has served," Darsey said in presenting the award. "By any standard, he is a true Texas leader."

Darsey singled out Chisum's positive efforts to shape a policy that would enable industry to comply with the federal Clean Air Act without putting their operations - and their employees - at risk.

In the last session of the legislature, there were efforts to impose strict new guidelines on Texas industries that in some cases were so broad, Darsey said, they would have had the "practical effect of shutting down companies throughout our state, eliminating thousands of jobs, and weakening local tax bases."

Chisum, he continued, "developed a strategy to close a loophole for unpermitted air emission sources that will help us meet the goals of the act - but not at the expense of Texas workers and Texas industries."

In addition to that legislation, Darsey also credited Chisum for a number of other environmental successes:

- Toughening auto-emission tailpipe tests in counties where pollution is the greatest.

- Changing the name of the Texas Natural Resources & Conservation Commission to the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality, a name he said "better reflects its mission."

- Ensuring that the agency primarily focuses its regulatory resources on the "bad apples" rather than companies that obey the law and act as responsible environmental stewards.

Rep. Warren Chisum accepts the Friend of the Texas Environment Award from Jim Darsey, VP and General Manager, Nucor Steel-Jewett Division.

- Increasing public involvement in the regulatory process.

He added that these and other achievements are examples of how Chisum "has shaped common-sense policies that protect our natural resources while at the same time preserving our state's ability to grow, create jobs, and be competitive for new investment."

He added, "That is not a simple task. Too often, the winds of politics blow elected officials to one extreme or the other. The rhetoric gets hot, and there is a lot of activity...but not a lot of progress. Representative Chisum has resisted those pressures. And we are better off today because of his efforts."

The comments reflected the proclamation that accompanied the honor, which recognizes Chisum for "his leadership as Chairman of the House Environmental Regulation Committee and his vision for a better future for all of Texas."

The Pampa lawmaker earned additional praise that went beyond his commitment to responsible environmental policies, as his successful efforts to establish a center for rural economic development were also cited.

Noting that the Nucor facility was in a small community in a rural county, Darsey offered his personal thanks to Chisum for "showing the world that our non-urban areas have a lot to offer - like a great quality of life, productive workers, and a strength of character that is uncommon almost anywhere else in the country."

Chisum represents the 88th District, which includes Carson, Childress, Collingsworth, Dallam, Donley, Gray, Hall, Hansford, Hartley, Hemphill, Hutchinson, Lipscomb, Ochiltree, Roberts, Sherman, and Wheeler counties. In addition to chairing the Environmental Regulation Committee, he is also a member of the County Affairs and House Administration committees.

Nucor is the largest recycler in the United States, handling more than 12 million tons of scrap metal each year. Nucor and affiliates are manufacturers of steel and steel products with operating facilities in 10 states, including four sites in Texas. The Nucor Bar Mill Group has been in Jewett for 26 years, and currently produces a wide range of products, including carbon steel angles, rounds, flats, squares, channels, reinforcing bars, and wide-flange beams.
