County approved for CRP extension

Donley County has gotten an extension for Emergency Grazing for certain Conservation Reserve Program acres.

The required payment reduction is 25 percent of the per acre annual rental payment rate times the number of acres actually grazed. This authorization is in effect from now until February 28, 2002.

Additional guidelines include:

- Temporary cover or dead litter crops are not eligible for this program.

- Only fields established to permanent cover will be eligible.

- You must contact FSA and NRCS before any grazing takes place.

- CRP may be leased to an eligible livestock producer located in an approved county.

- CRP participants must leave at least 25 percent of each field ungrazed for wildlife.

For more information, call 874-3561. This extension is for grazing only.

Sheriff's office wraps up several cases

The Donley County Sheriff's Department wrapped up the old year and started the new one with several significant arrests recently.

According to Sheriff Butch Blackburn, officers exercised a search warrant on the Clarendon home of Shannon Thomas on January 2 at 4:45 a.m. and arrested him. Thomas was charged with two counts of possession of methamphetamines, sexual assault, sexual performance by a child, and possession and/or promotion of child pornography.

Thomas was arraigned by County Judge Jack Hall on January 2 and was released January 4 on $90,000 bond.

Also arrested was Tommy Thompson, who was charged with possession of marijuana.

As a result of the search at Thomas' house, Blackburn said more than 100 items were logged into evidence, including several items that had been stolen in Donley County over the last six months.

Among the items found by officers were a printer and computer scanner taken from the Saints' Roost Museum, a 1999 Polaris 4-wheeler, and a Sea-Doo personal watercraft.

"This was part of an ongoing investigation over the last three months," said Blackburn. "We've cleared up four church burglaries, the museum burglary, and the burglary of eight vehicles."

The sheriff said his department arrested Stephen Randall and Billy Aaron Curry on November 27, 2001, in connection with the museum break-in and burglaries at the Assembly of God, Methodist, Nazarene, and Presbyterian churches. Mac Dunham was arrested on November 20, 2001, on charges related to the vehicle burglaries.

All three men are now out on bond, and Sheriff Blackburn said Monday that Dunham is now wanted on other charges as well.

The sheriff says he expects several indictments to result from these and other cases and says the arrests should help deter burglaries in Clarendon for a while.

"We had a lot of luck at the end of 2001, and I want to commend the officers for their hard work," he said. "This also could not have been done without a good working relationship with District Attorney Stuart Messer and County Attorney [pro tem] Kaye Messer and being able to call them at 3 a.m. for warrants."

Officers participating in the arrests were Sheriff Blackburn, Deputies Randy Bond, Bruce Burrell, Joe Stewart, Reserve Deputy Mike Spier, and Texas Ranger Gary Henderson.

A 'boring' job

Porfirio Hernandez of Dallas and David Perry of Clarendon bore a hole through the foundation stone of the Donley County Courthouse to make room for water lines for the building's new heating and cooling system. Progress continues on the restoration of the 1890 structure, and job superintendent Juan Salas says scaffolding will soon be going up as workers prepare to open the roof and rebuild the third story tower and dormers.

Local man will carry 2002 Olympic torch

The 2002 Olympic Torch passes through Amarillo on Saturday morning, January 12, on its way to the Winter Olympics, February 8-24, 2002 in Salt Lake City.

Clarendon resident Clint Green will carry the torch. Green is the son of Katherine and Don Williams and the grandson of Naomi Green of Clarendon.

The 2002 Olympic Torch is like a fiery icicle in motion, its curvature representing the dynamics of speed and fluidity. It is 33 inches long, 3 inches wide at top and 1/2 inch wide at the bottom. Each torch bearer will cover two-tenths of mile and will be escorted by a caravan of official vehicles and two attendants.

The celebration in Amarillo will begin at 7 p.m. Friday night, January 11 when the Amarillo Rattlers face off against the Tulsa Oilers. Then a variety of activities will be offered throughout the evening leading up to the arrival of the Olympic Torch.

Green is scheduled to carry the torch at approximately 2:42 a.m. north on Amarillo's Buchanan Street.

Other torch bearers include Kati Artho, Dustin Holladay, and Cheryl Hukill, all of Canyon; Ron Lee II, Cindy Miller, Greg Mitchell, Eveline Rivers, and Andy Justice, all of Amarillo; Leta Payne of Lubbock; Randy Adams, Jr. of Odessa; James Burleson of Snyder; Scotty Gorley of Wichita Falls; Stanley Graff of Dallas; Steven McHenry of Enid, OK; and John Slider of Odessa.

For more information on the Torch Run in Amarillo and activities leading up to it, contact Kris Miller at 806-378-4297.

County hires new agents

The Donley County Commissioners' Court has hired two new county extension agents following called meetings on January 3 and 7.

Dawn Landrum Watson of Memphis was hired to be the new County FSA Agent on January 3. She holds a B.S. in Home Economics from Texas Tech University and a Master of Education from Sul Ross State University.

Watson taught Home Economics for three years at Loop, Texas, and held positions as principal of schools at Meadow, Saratoga, and currently in Memphis.

Gary Rudolph of Amarillo was hired Monday as Donley County's new Agriculture Extension Agent. He holds a B.S. in Business and Finance from the University of Southern Colorado and an M.S. in Agriculture from West Texas A&M University.

Rudolph was previously an agriculture loan officer for a bank in Colorado, spent six years as feedyard owner and rancher, and has been a research assistant at WT since 2000.

County Judge Jack Hall says Rudolph will begin working this week. Watson will begin her duties January 14.

Incumbents face challengers this fall

Filing for local offices closed last Wednesday with all but three local incumbents drawing opponents.

The Democratic and Republican primaries will be held March 12, 2002, and early voting by personal appearance in the county clerk's office will be February 25 through March 8. No local candidates are contested in the primary elections however.

In countywide races this year, incumbent Democrat Jack Hall will face Republican challenger William J.

"Jimmy" Thompson for the office of county judge. Democratic incumbent Fay Vargas is opposed by Republican Vicki Knowles to be county/district clerk. The incumbent county treasurer, Republican Becky Jackson, will face Democrat Vicki Sloan.

Justices of the Peace Jimmy Johnson (R) and Ann Kennedy (D) drew no opponents this year. County Commissioner Pct. 2 Don Hall (R) is also unchallenged.

The incumbent Pct. 4 commissioner, Democrat Bob Trout, will face Republican Wayne Riggs in the general election.

In other offices of local interest, District 13 Congressman Mac Thornberry (R) of Clarendon will be challenged by Democrat Zane Reese of Crosby County and Libertarian Dale Sutherland of Sheppard Air Force Base near Wichita Falls. State Rep. Warren Chisum (R) of Pampa is unopposed as is State Sen. Robert L. Duncan (R) of Lubbock.

Eradication producing returns to Texas producers

Boll weevil eradication produces significant returns to cotton growers, according to the Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation.

This impact has been documented in cotton-growing states that have eradicated the weevil, but the effect in Texas is just becoming clear. Two recent studies draw a stark contrast between areas in eradication and those still struggling with the damage caused by cotton's most consistent enemy.

A report prepared by John Robinson, an agricultural economist for Texas A&M, compared cotton production in the South Texas/Winter Garden Eradication Zone with production in nearby counties that are not conducting eradication activities.

His report, taken from data provided by the Texas Agricultural Statistics Service, shows the South Texas zone greatly outperformed the counties not in eradication.

The ST/WG showed an average increase in production of 119 pounds per acre, a 24 percent gain, from 1997-2000 compared with the four previous years. Fort Bend, Jackson, Matagorda and Wharton counties, which are not in eradication, posted an average loss of 38 pounds of cotton per acre, or a 7 percent decrease, over the same time span.

"We can't explain the difference other than the boll weevil eradication program," Robinson said at a recent meeting with growers in the Upper Coastal Bend Eradication Zone.

The zone is composed of the four counties in Robinson's study, along with Austin, Colorado and Brazoria counties and part of Waller County. Growers in the zone will vote this month on beginning eradication activities.

The economist said the yield increase translates to a benefit to South Texas cotton growers of $75 per acre, or a return of $6.40 for every dollar spent on eradication.

"Any region that does not eradicate the boll weevil will find itself in a competitive disadvantage," Robinson said in a recent Southwest Farm Press article. "It's a good investment."

The South Texas/Winter Garden zone began eradication in 1996 and recently reaffirmed its commitment to eradication when almost 88 percent of growers in the region approved a

editor's Commentary

WARNING: The following column is an editorial (i.e. an opinion, a point of view) and may contain ideas or positions with which some readers may freely disagree. It could be harmful to liberals, socialists, and other small mammals. Read at your own risk.

Rules change for election year letters

As promised last issue, this week marks the end of our old Letters to the Editor policy. The response you see to your right from the county treasurer is the last letter of its kind. (Please note, county judge candidate Jimmy Thompson was told we would accept another letter from him this week, but he apparently chose not to write one.) Our new policy can be summed up simply - "No letters will be printed from candidates for political office."

Additionally, no letters will be printed from anyone endorsing or attacking candidates for local office.

The new policy is borne from the chaos of the 2000 sheriff's election in which letters to the editor - from both sides - got completely out of hand. Some of those letters were well thought out, some were just plain mean-spirited, and others were attempts at subterfuge.

Last year's "debate" became ridiculous. During the course of the election, we received letters from candidates, letters from the wife of a candidate, one letter from a man who later claimed he didn't write the letter, and another letter from a woman who it later turned out was a resident of the cemetery in Lakeview. Some letters were factually inaccurate, and other letters were unsigned or contained a cryptic address, such as "Formerly of Donley County."

Not all of those letters were printed, but sorting them out and trying to be fair to both sides became a troublesome task. But the bigger headache was listening to supporters on both sides moan and bellyache. One person would come in with their letter and take 15 minutes complaining; then another person with the opposite point of view would do the same thing. There went 30 minutes of my life. Frankly, I've got better things to do than to be the arbiter of spats in the letters column.

It should be noted that the ENTERPRISE didn't just dream up its new policy. We solicited the opinions of a dozen newspapers from around the State of Texas. None of them printed letters from political candidates, and only one allowed "endorsement" letters.

So how will candidates get their message out and how will people express their preference for one candidate or another? Simple: Buy a political ad. Also, as we have done for the past several years, we will be printing profiles of candidates as we get closer to the election. Each local candidate will then be given an opportunity to state their position on issues and briefly outline their goals and reasons for running for office.

What letters will be accepted? We print almost every letter we get when it complies with our established policies. Letters cannot be libelous or slanderous. All letters must be signed by the author and must include an address and phone number. Preferably, letters should be signed in the presence of the editor or the office director. Anonymous letters will not, will not, will not be printed so don't even bother sending one in. Those go directly in to what Cyndi Roberson of the JACKSON COUNTY HERALD-TRIBUNE calls "the circular file under the desk."

We will still accept letters that deal with the issues facing our county. If you want to debate the pros and cons of the courthouse project, the budget, or the condition of your county road, that's fine. Just don't attack or offer your support for someone running for office.

We prefer that letters be typed, double-spaced, and less than two pages in length. Also, no letters about county issues will be printed just prior to the election. As always, we reserve the right to edit any letter we receive; and remember, letters submitted to the editor become the property of the ENTERPRISE and will not be returned.

These rules should help keep the race for county offices clean while being fair to both sides. Of course, if you don't like the new policy, you're free to write a letter about that too... unless you're a candidate.

Meanwhile up on the Hill...

Classes start next week on College Hill, and with a new semester comes a new action verb from Coach Tony Starnes. The man who has urged us to "Jam the Gym" and "Pack the Palace" now wants all Bulldog fans everywhere to "Cram the Coliseum."

All elementary students in the continental United States will get in free next Monday night when CC takes on New Mexico Junior College in their first conference game of the season. The women start at 6 p.m., and the men follow at 7:50.

If you haven't seen these teams play, don't delay any longer. Come support the Green & White and enjoy an all-action game.

— Winston Churchill

Book-burning isn't good, neither is Potter

I came across your website a number of months ago and have been a regular reader of the "e-version" of your paper since that time. In particular, I have enjoyed your editorials and, for the most part, have found myself in agreement with them. However, your recent comments on the Harry Potter books compel me to write a response.

With respect, I believe that you have missed the point behind much of the criticism of the Potter series. No, I am not going to defend the tactics of Pastor Brock. Book-burning, just like unquestioning devotion, distorts proper consideration of the merits of a literary work. And, by flamboyantly focusing on the books and any alleged influence that they may have on children, such protestors may diminish the ultimate responsibility that rests on parents.

However, just because the reaction against the books in some circles might be a bit flaky, it does not, in itself, mean that the series is good. We still have to ask of the books "Are they good literature?" or simply "Are they good?"

Problems and conflict with the Potter series become apparent if one looks at life with a Christian philosophy. This is the perspective from which I now write. The Potter books offer no place for God, as we know Him. They send a distorted view of good and evil, where the victory of good over evil is left in doubt. The mix of religion that results sends conflicting signals to children who are taught a Christian perspective of life.

We teach the redeeming work of Jesus Christ and the defeat of Satan. Harry Potter shows a powerful evil force that may yet win at the end. We teach the omnipotence of a benevolent, loving God. Harry Potter shows good and evil as opposing, though equal, forces. We teach reliance on a heavenly Father and a covenant with Him through Jesus Christ. Harry Potter shows power centered in self. We teach a relationship with a living Savior. Harry Potter says that people only need to learn how to manipulate an impersonal force, whether good or evil.

I am not going to say that exposure to certain materials necessarily sends someone to hell. However, when parents are trying to teach their children Christian values - a Godly perspective of life - then the Potter series does conflict with that task. If parents are serious about imparting that perspective, then it seems only wise to weed out other influences or distractions that conflict with that goal - no matter how innocuous those influences or distractions may seem.

Does this make me intolerant? Perhaps, but in raising children, all parents make decisions that are intolerant to a degree - protecting them from influences that the parents deem unworthy. Absolute tolerance is not a virtue in itself, but rather a tool that we can use selectively in the pursuit of other true virtues. Tolerating everything would be just as foolish as tolerating nothing.

It also does no good to say, as I believe you did, that at least it gets the kids to read. You could use that same argument to distribute pornography to hormonal teenage boys - at least it would get them to read.

I have not read the Potter books. But, one does not have to experience something first-hand to know whether or not its effect on our lives will be beneficial or not. In our home, we will not allow the Potter books, or any similar material, for the simple reason that we do not approve of the message that they would send out to our children. Does that make us a "self-righteous, witch-hunting, nail-biting, finger-pointing moron?" Some might think so. But as far as our daughters go, I guess that is our right - and our responsibility - as parents.

Lee Cutforth, Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, Canada

Thank you for your well-reasoned letter. I still disagree with the criticism of Potter books, but I wholeheartedly agree about your rights and responsibilities as a parent. If more parents took such a keen interest in their kids, our society would be greatly improved.

Jackson: 'Why is Thompson attacking courthouse effort?'

This will be my final response to Mr. Thompson on his previous subject matter - the Courthouse grant and budget. Mr. Thompson, this response is not to straighten you out, but to inform the public of the true and accurate facts. In last week's paper you stated my figures were off. I beg to differ, but it would help if you looked at the 2001-2002 Budget year that we are now operating out of. This is where I am getting my figures. Where are you getting yours? I said that there were six years of payments left. That is in this year's budget, and the amounts are clearly stated by the year and the amount of the payment on the note in this budget. This year's payment is, as I stated in the week before last paper, $100,312.50, not the amount you quoted, which is grossly incorrect. And where are you getting that interest? The payments have the interest included. The first payment made last year was $82,187.50 plus interest of $12,413.19, making a total payment of $94,600.69. I make these payments and am well aware of the amounts to be paid.

You stated you were going to give me the facts so I will remember and not bring it up again. Well, where do you think a financial report is generated, sir? I produce the financial statements every month for the Commissioners' Court for their review, and then it is filed in the County Clerk's office. I not only produce reports that reflect revenue compared to budget, but also reports for each office with expenditures for current and year to date and then compared to their operating budgets. You see, sir, I very well understand the financial reports that are produced.

I would like to ask Mr. Thompson a question: "Why are you attacking the efforts to save our Courthouse?" It would have cost us many times the amount that we borrowed to build another building that the law requires to hold court in. We have a very unique building, and I feel that Donley County along with the whole region will be able to take great pride in this significant structure of a monument and operating building, which will exceed all expectations. The people of Donley County will be able to reflect back to the past with their families.

I am proud to be a part of this County, and I also take great pride in the work I do as County Treasurer. I appreciate the Citizens of Donley County for allowing me to serve you.

Mr. Thompson, I do believe that "right" will prevail!

Becky Jackson, Donley County Treasurer

Emission proposal recipe for economic disaster

By Bill Hammond

Planet Earth seems to be getting warmer - but is it anyone's fault, or is it just the result of a natural planetary cycle?

Through the ages, Earth has undergone drastic swings in temperature. The Great Lakes were carved out by glaciers. In Texas, great swaths of West Texas were once ocean floor. These shifts from ice age to tropical climates took place eons before any human activity could have been responsible.

The scientific community is divided and uncertain as to the cause of today's warming trend. Some believe industrial activities are at fault; others say there's no conclusive evidence.

In 1997, more than 160 nations, including the United States, met in Kyoto, Japan, to negotiate limits on so-called greenhouse gases (carbon dioxide and methane) from developed nations. Although the United States is a signer to the treaty, the Senate - having received reports of studies that show the called-for reductions would have a catastrophic effect on our nation's economy - is certain to reject ratification.

A 1998 study by the DRI-WEFA, a global economic information company, estimates the Kyoto Protocol would cost the U.S. economy almost $300 billion a year, eliminate 2.5 million jobs by 2010, and reduce the U.S. gross domestic product by more than 3 percent below projections for 2010.

For obvious reasons, the Bush Administration opposes the protocol, while supporting voluntary reductions in emissions.

Despite overwhelming evidence that compliance with the protocol would lead to economic disaster, certain environmental activists would like to impose the Kyoto reductions and economic consequences on Texas. They have petitioned the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission to adopt the reductions mandated by the Kyoto Protocol.

What consequences? By 2010, Texas would lose 124,600 jobs, leading to an unemployment rate of up to 6.3 percent. Because of the reduction in industrial production, the state would lose $6 billion in tax revenue.

Virtually all aspects of the economy would be affected. For example, the mandated CO2 reductions would require the shutdown of the power plants that produce 25 percent of the nation's electricity and almost 30 percent of the electricity produced in Texas, precipitating a crisis of energy shortages and skyrocketing prices. For residential customers, the price of natural gas would increase 69 percent and electricity 71 percent.

Fortunately, the TNRCC staff so far has rejected the idea of mandating any level of emission reductions and may recommend a number of alternate approaches to commissioners. These may include such things as the development of more renewable energy projects, supporting mass transit development, providing incentives for electric technologies, providing grants for reforestation and incentives for recycling, and encouraging participation in the Department of Energy's Climate Challenge program.

Additional scientific research is needed to determine the exact scope of global warming and to identify any remedies that may be effective in halting or reversing the trend.

This is a more realistic approach. These efforts will lead to effective improvements in our environment and, to the extent that human activity may contribute to global warming, will help alleviate that problem - without causing the economic upheaval that would diminish public support for all environmental improvement programs.

It is important that all of us who believe in maintaining a sound economic climate in Texas, while working responsibly for a better environment, convey our thoughts to the TNRCC commissioners.

Hammond is President of the Texas Association of Business and Chambers of Commerce (TABCC).

Townfolk begin recovering from holidays

How were your holidays? Have you recovered yet? Of course it may take some of us longer than others to recover from all the food. When one goes to five family parties in four days, where there are things like chili and cornbread, cheesecake, cherry-chocolate brownies, strawberry cake, cookies, pecan pie, and so on and so forth, to infinity and beyond, it's going to take a really long time to recover.

Some folks went south for the holidays. Lots of them went north, as seen by all the traffic through Clarendon on the way to the ski slopes in New Mexico and Colorado. I did both. I went south for Christmas, then left the rest of the family laboring with paint cans and brushes while I returned to Idaho for the first time in over fifteen years for my nephew's wedding. I graduated high school in Idaho Falls but came back to Texas as soon as I could. My sister stayed up there in the cold northland. And believe me, it was cold!

They tell me that I brought a warm front with me. It got all the way up to 20°, instead of the 20 below zero they'd had the week before. Didn't matter to me. My feet still got cold. But the wedding was beautiful, with a full moon on the snow to add to the beauty of the bride and groom. (Okay, he was handsome, but then I'm his aunt, so prejudice may be inferred.)

I wallowed in the nostalgia of sharing a bed with my sister, just like when we were little girls living in Houston, having wars to see who could knock the other one off the bed onto the floor. (I'm four years older. Guess who won?) We did not have wars during my visit. We are grown ups now. Mostly. We laughed a lot and did not get to visit nearly long enough before I had to leave. The family made it back to Clarendon for New Year's Eve.

We got to town barely in time to run out to Thriftway for black-eyed peas, cook and eat dinner, and get the boy downtown for the New Year's Eve teen lock-in at the Main Street Ministry Center. Parents, siblings, grandparents - anyone who wanted to come was invited for the hour before the New Year arrived. Mostly the attendees were kids from at least three churches, their parents and church leaders. The place was pretty well packed. The "old folks" saw the new year in, turned into pumpkins and went home. The kids - and a few brave parental souls - stayed.

I saw the schedule for the rest of the night. Between the group games, the ping-pong tournament, the table games, and other planned activities, no one was going to get any sleep without either sheer determination or sheer exhaustion. And frankly, in that group, I think it would have been dangerous to sleep for fear of what the non-sleepers might do.

As far as I know, everyone who went came away sleepy but unscathed. I'm not too sure about the adults, but I believe I have seen most of them since then, and they looked as if they were still mostly in the land of the living. If you didn't make it, let me know. Some who went (at least one) didn't sleep for another twelve hours. Others collapsed immediately. And now they're all back in school. I consider it only just that Driver's Education started this week at 7 a.m.

Hawaii Vacation II: Insanity At The Rent-A-Car

When my husband and I landed at Kahului Airport on the island of Maui, we received a real "Panhandle of Texas" style welcome - the wind was blowing about 45 miles per hour! This lovely airport, which takes advantage of the near perfect weather on Maui, has a lot of open spaces and no windows! We breezed down the corridors and sailed right down the escalator to the baggage claim area. From there it was easy to spot the check-in desk for our Rental Car Company. Since I don't want to be sued, I am going to call this company "Pain In The Budget Rentals."

The nice lady behind the desk said we should take our bags and get on their deluxe shuttle bus for a short ride to the pick-up building. We did as requested and headed off to pick up the snazzy convertible that had been reserved and paid for. We were about to learn some important rules when dealing with Pain In The Budget Rentals (PITBR) - and any other rental car company, I suspect.

While waiting in line, I gathered together all the important papers I needed for obtaining the car. I had my driver's license, another picture ID, my airline ticket, and my birth certificate (just kidding). The most important thing I held in my hand was the receipt showing the car had been paid for in full. When it was our turn at the desk, I confidently handed the clerk my receipt.

"Thank you, madam. Yes, I see that we have a car for you. Now, if you would just sign these 20 pages of documents and hand over your credit card, we will get you on your way."

"What am I signing?" I asked pleasantly. I say pleasantly because I still thought this was going to be easy.

"Forms 1 through 5 are for additional insurance, forms 6 through 10 are affidavits swearing you are who you say you are, forms 11 through..."

"Wait a minute." I was beginning to smell a rat - even if it was a Hawaiian rat.

"Doesn't our car insurance that we carry cover us while driving a rented vehicle?"

"Probably, madam, but many customers want additional insurance."

"Not me. I just was the car."

"Very well, madam. I hope you know what you are doing. Now, just let me have your credit card."

"Why? It's already been paid for."

"Not entirely, madam. We have a damage deposit to add on, as well as 8.5% road tax." The clerk did not seem as friendly at this point.

"What's road tax?" I asked.

"It's for using our roads."

"Excuse me? What else would I want a rent car for, if not to use the roads? What do you think I'm going to do with it, fly it?"

"Very funny, madam. Never the less, we will need another $98.00 to conclude this transaction, so please, just fork over your credit card."

"I don't have a credit card."

The PITBR lady looked at me as if I had just arrived from the planet DumberThanDirt. Beep beep!

"We must have a credit card. I don't understand... I need to get my boss."

Off she went through a door behind the counter.

By this time, my husband was saying things to me like, "Calm down... it will be all right... now honey, don't get so riled up..."

The thing was, I knew my brother, and I knew he would have left no stone unturned when making and paying for these reservations. Since I knew these things, I also knew that PITBR was trying to stick it to me! I also knew one more thing: I wanted to start my vacation! I wanted to get into my little, red convertible and leave! So when the supervisor arrived, I was prepared to be nice.

"Madam, you must pay the road tax, and you must pay the deposit. Do you have any cash?" Ah... the universal language! Cash!

Weekends seem to last forever during the holidays

About the time I thought things were about to get back to normal after the holidays, the weather decided to take charge of things.

The dialysis clinic moved the Monday patients to Sunday and the Tuesday patients to Monday for Christmas and New Year's so that the nurses could have off those days. Then Tuesday night the weather got bad and Wednesday night the roads got icy with snow on top. I called and cancelled my Wednesday treatment, and they scheduled me for Tuesday and Saturday afternoon. Maybe I can get back to normal next week. It seems like weekend for three weeks.

My Christmas tree is still decorated and standing in the corner. I'm waiting for Guy and Oliver to get here. Guy told me he might not get here until Easter, but that's all right. I'm not taking my decorations down until they come.

Harold and Mary Ruth White have a new great granddaughter. Madisen Paige Gay was born in Camp Pendleton, California, on December 28. She is the daughter of Michael and Mandy Gay. Michael is stationed with the Marine Corps there.

Mandy's parents, Bob and Pat White, and Holly were there.

The other grandparent is Debbie Gay of Hedley, and great grandparents are Thomas Gay of Hedley and

I talked with my friend, Ruth Wheeler, a few days ago. She's in Childress recuperating from surgery in the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Margaret Westenburg.

When I moved into town, Ruth and Marie Adams made the move easier for me. Last year after I'd been in the hospital for so long, Ruth was so good to me. I miss her!

State health department warns of wintertime dangers of CO

As Texans try to keep warm indoors, they may risk carbon monoxide poisoning, often without realizing the dangers, warn officials at the Texas Department of Health (TDH).

Invisible, odorless, and tasteless, carbon monoxide (CO) is a highly poisonous gas produced by burning fuel such as gasoline, natural gas, kerosene heaters, fireplaces, or wood stoves. At low concentrations, CO causes fatigue in healthy people and chest pain for those with heart disease. At higher concentrations, however, CO inhalation causes impaired vision and coordination, headaches, dizziness, confusion, nausea, and death.

Without good ventilation during use of fuel-burning appliances, carbon monoxide levels rise and, when breathed in, replace oxygen in the bloodstream. The more CO in the air and the longer a person is exposed, the greater the risk of illness or death.

"With any combustion source, there is a risk," said Kay Soper, TDH indoor air quality specialist.

Dangerous CO problems arise when home appliances are poorly maintained or used incorrectly. Non-vented gas and kerosene appliances have the greatest potential to produce dangerous levels of CO in the home, according to Soper.

In addition to these, smoldering or poorly vented fireplaces, slow burning fuels such as charcoal, and vehicle exhausts also are potentially hazardous. New homes, or newly remodeled homes, have higher risks for CO hazard because often they are sealed tighter than older homes.

TDH offers these precautions to help prevent CO poisoning:

- Be sure all appliances are installed and used according to the manufacturer's instructions.
- Have the heating system inspected annually.
- Don't burn charcoal inside a house, garage, vehicle, or tent - not even in a fireplace.
- Don't use an unvented gas or kerosene heater in enclosed spaces, especially sleeping areas.
- Never leave an automobile running in a closed garage or in a garage attached to the house even with the garage door open.
- Don't leave the rear window or tailgate of a vehicle open while driving. Carbon monoxide from the exhaust can be pulled inside.

The Lion's Tale

By Allen Estlack

Clarendon Lions Club held their regular Tuesday noon meeting on January 8 with Boss Lion Jerry Woodard conducting the meeting.

We had 18 members and two guests: Pearl Hermesmyer, guest of Lion Denise Bertrand and Lion Mark White, guest of the club who will be our newest member as soon as his transfer is processed.

The Fellowship Club at the Methodist Church was recognized for their help with the Christmas baskets.

We sang "Happy Birthday" to Lion Allen Estlack.

Lion Jeter reported on the Livestock Show this Saturday. There will be 88 hogs, 14 steers and heifers, six lambs, and four goats. There will be a concession stand, a free barbecue supper, and a premium sale at which one animal will be sold from each exhibitor. We voted to support this show with a cash contribution.

Lion Rev. Edwards gave a report on the Something More Program. They have 13 children at this time.

The public school is back in session with ballgames and tests. Chantelle Kelly made all-state band for the second year in a row. Megan Roberts just missed making all-state. Congratulations to these girls.

Weevil: Eradication working in Texas

Another study confirms the benefits of eradication. The 2000 "Cotton Insect Losses" report prepared for the 2001 Beltwide Cotton Conference, sponsored by the National Cotton Council, showed dramatic differences between the Lower Rio Grande Valley and Upper Coastal Bend areas of Texas compared with the South Texas/Winter Garden.

During the 2000 growing season, ST/WG showed no losses because of boll weevil damage, but more than 37,000 bales of cotton were lost to boll weevils in the Upper Coastal Bend. The LRGV, which encompasses the southernmost counties at the tip of Texas, lost more than 15,000 bales.

From a dollars and cents perspective, boll weevils cost the UCB more than $10.8 million, or $42 an acre, and almost $4.5 million, or $18.22 an acre, in the LRGV. Add the expense of insecticides growers applied to control boll weevils, and the cost to the UCB increases to $78.36 per acre and $69.29 per acre in the LRGV. South Texas growers pay an assessment of $23.14 per acre for eradication.

"From the experience in other states, we've always known that eradication benefited cotton growers," said Lindy Patton, executive director for the Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation.

"Now data from Texas cotton fields show that Texas producers can reap the same results."

The Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation is a nonprofit, grower-initiated and funded organization dedicated to the elimination of the cotton boll weevil in the state in the most cost effective and environmentally responsible way possible.

Howardwick woman bags her first buck during 2001 deer season

Deer season came to an end this past weekend. Personally, I never saw a buck that I wanted to shoot. I saw a lot of does through the season, and I saw the biggest 6-point buck I have ever seen. I passed him up thinking, in a year or two who knows how big he will be.

I did shoot a doe this year, so my freezer is happy. With the lack of walleye and crappie filets, my freezer looked a little bare. My wife and kids were beginning to look at their outdoorsman a little funny like asking, "Did you forget how to fish and hunt?"

My family loves deer meat and fish. I believe one old adage is that the man of the family is supposed to "bring home the bacon." I suppose my family was beginning to think there was not going to be any "pork" around. So now with the meat from my deer, we are living "high on the hog!"

Most of my friends have had a hard time finding that trophy buck this year. My friend, Carla Carter of Howardwick, shot the biggest buck I saw this year. She shot a very nice 8-point buck. She and her husband, Wayne, went to their blind near Mobeetie. About 45 minutes later, she spotted the buck about 180 yards away. As he came closer and with some guidance from Wayne, she scoped and fired with a direct hit. This was Carla's first deer, and it was a nice one.

Carla is a very good marksman. I have seen her target shoot and trap shoot. She has the eye and steadiness needed to be a good shot. She also helped gut and clean the deer, so a big "high five" to Carla and the other women hunters of Donley County!

As far as fishing news, I have heard that sand bass are biting slow, but if you can find them under the shad, they are big. Everything else is slow, also.

Recipe from NAFC Members' Cookbook 1997:
Italian Style Fish Filets
Sand bass or white bass filets
Water
1 T baking soda

2 eggs
½ C milk
Soda crackers, crushed
Italian seasoning
Garlic salt
Oil for frying
Soak the fish for 30 minutes in enough water mixed with the baking soda to cover. Rinse the fish and pat dry. Beat the eggs with the milk. Crush the soda crackers very fine with a rolling pin. Dip the fish first in the egg mixture and then in the cracker crumbs. Sprinkle with Italian seasoning and garlic salt. Brown filets in skillet of hot oil until done, turning once.

If you have any comments or information to share, you can contact me at gdol@nts-online.net.

Hunters, may you always be safe and respect the land you hunt. Fishermen, catch a few fish for supper and release a few fish to ensure another great fishing day. Good luck to all!

CC hosts basketball camp for area kids

By Sandy Anderberg

If you want to build a good basketball program, you have to start young. That's just what Head Bulldog Basketball Coach Tony Starnes did over his holiday break. With the help of his assistant G. Garza, Starnes hosted the three-day basketball camp January 3-5 at the Bulldog Gym.

Interest was high as they had 60 campers attend from 1st to 6th grade. Two sessions were held with the younger players attending in the morning and the older players in the afternoon.

Starnes was pleased with the turnout.

"We had a lot of kids that attended our camp. We just wanted something for them to help reinforce the importance of the fundamentals of basketball. This was a kick-off for the basketball program the younger kids will begin in a month or so."

Some of the Bulldog basketball team were also present at the camp and helped Coach Starnes over the three-day period. They entertained the campers with a 'slam-dunk' exhibition that was enjoyed by all.

For information on basketball camps to be held this summer at CC, contact Coach Starnes at the Clarendon College at 874-3571.

Broncos receive All-District Football honors

By Sandy Anderberg

The final selections to the 6 2-A All-District Team have been made, and the Clarendon Broncos have two players representing CISD.

Selected to the All-District 2nd team were Senior Greg Wootten as a receiver and junior James Williams on the offensive line.

Seniors Brian Thompson and Jeremy Ray were honorable mentions in the selection. Thompson played linebacker, and Ray led the Broncos as their quarterback.

All four Bronco football players were beneficial to the Clarendon football team for the 2001 season. According to the coaches, each one was very deserving of their award and the recognition for their play.

Greg is the son of Buddy and Regina Wootten. James is the son of Roy and Barbara Williams. Brian is the son of Kevin and Kelly Thompson and Jeremy is the son of Mike and Michelle Ray.

Congratulations to all of the players for their selection or honorable mention to the 6 2-A All-District Team.

I would like to announce my candidacy for Donley County Clerk.

Bronco varsity attempts comeback against Sunray

By Sandy Anderberg

The Broncos battled it out against Sunray Friday night January 4 in their third District game but lost, 55-48.

The Broncos trailed Sunray after the 1st period of play and after a cold-shooting 2nd quarter took a 12-point deficit into the locker room.

The third quarter was more of the same, but the Broncos made a gallant attempt to comeback in the 4th quarter, but time was not on their side. They outscored their opponent by seven points, but it was too little too late for the Broncos.

Coach Callaway was pleased with the Broncos' play for the most part.

"I thought we played really hard for most of the game," he said. "We had a few let downs, and poor perimeter shooting really hurt us. We made it a great game in spite of our lapses."

Scoring were Cody Watson 12, Jarad Lax 10, Judge Smith 10, James Williams 9, Todd Hoeltzel 3, Micah Sparks 2, and Jeremy Ray 2.

Over the holidays, the Broncos hosted the Greenbelt Classic, in which they drew up against Shamrock in the 1st round. The Broncos made short work of the Irish as they completely dominated the floor, defeating them, 81-36.

Scoring were Ray 15, Lax 13, Hoeltzel 13, Smith 12, Antonio Wilson 12, Watson 10, and Cameron Word 4.

In the 2nd round of the tournament, the Broncos took on an aggressive Claude Mustang team. The Broncos took the game into overtime and dominated the four-minute period by outscoring the Mustangs 12-5, giving the Broncos the win and the opportunity to move to the Championship game.

Scoring were Watson 13, Lax 12, Wilson 9, Smith 8, Ray 8, Hoeltzel 7, and Sparks 3.

The first half produced a very close game, as the difference was only one point with the Broncos leading the Mustangs. The 3rd quarter brought about a cold-shooting effort for the Broncos while the Mustangs poured on the heat. The Broncos sent the Mustangs to the charity stripe 20 times in the 4th quarter, and Claude connected on 16 of those attempts compared to only 5 of 9 for the Broncos.

"The 1st half of the Claude game was our best defensive performance of the year. When we maintain that intensity and discipline for 4 quarters, we'll be dangerous."

Scoring were Watson 14, Lax 9, Hoeltzel 9, Smith 7, Wilson 7, and Ray 1.

Senior Jeremy Ray was selected to the All-Tournament Team by the participating coaches.

The Broncos continue district play Friday here against West Texas High and travel to Panhandle January 15. Both games start at 8 p.m.

Lady Bronco JV wins Shamrock Tournament

Two Lady Bronco basketball teams participated in the Shamrock tournament Saturday and placed first and second against two other teams.

The Clarendon White team received first place by defeating Wheeler and Shamrock.

Clarendon ruled the court from the beginning against the Wheeler Lady Mustangs and won, 38-31. Scoring were Jessie Anderberg 9, April Ballard 8, Equilla Weatherton 5, Crystal Lawler 5, Christine Holden 4, Brandi Martindale 4, and Angel Williams 3.

In the second round, the Lady Broncos went up against Shamrock and defeated the Lady Irish, 59-9. Scoring were Williams 11, Holden 10, Anderberg 9, Weatherton 8, Brittany Hall 7, Ballard 6, Lawler 6, and Sarah Ray 2.

The Lady Bronco Maroon team was also successful and defeated Shamrock 50-12 in the first round. Scoring were Jessica Hernandez 11, Shanna Shelton 11, Kayla Martindale 9, Jamie Simmons 7, Cierra Benavidez 6, and Andra Helms 4.

Clarendon went up against Wheeler in the second round and fell, 36-30. Scoring were Hernandez 9, Benavidez 8, Martindale 7, Shelton 4, and Helms 2.

The Lady Bronco JV also went up against Sunray in a regular District game January 4 at home. The Lady Broncos fell short in the last minutes and were defeated, 29-24.

"I hated the loss," said Coach Barton. "But the girls played hard. We need to continue that intensity in the remainder of our District games."

Scoring were Anderberg 5, B. Martindale 4, Lawler 3, Benavidez 3, Holden 2, K. Martindale 2, Shelton 2, Hernandez 1, Williams 1, and Hall 1.

The Lady Broncos will go up against West Texas High Friday, January 11, at home and travel to Panhandle January 15. Both games will begin at 5:00 p.m.

Bronco JV beats Sunray

The Bronco JV battled Sunray at home January 4 and defeated them for their second District win, 54-49.

Sunray took the early lead, but the Broncos fought back to go up by two points at the break. They extended their lead in the 3rd period and held off an attempt by Sunray to come back in the 4th quarter. Sophomore Drew Sell put in an amazing 27 points to aid the Broncos' win.

"Everybody stepped up and played hard," said coach Danny Brittain. "After Dusty (Martindale) got hurt, Matt McCabe jumped in and covered his position really well."

Martindale reinjured a broken wrist and possibly tore his ACL in his knee while playing.

Scoring were Sell 27, Martindale 13, Jeremy Howard 6, Adam Leeper 6, and Richard Anderson 2.

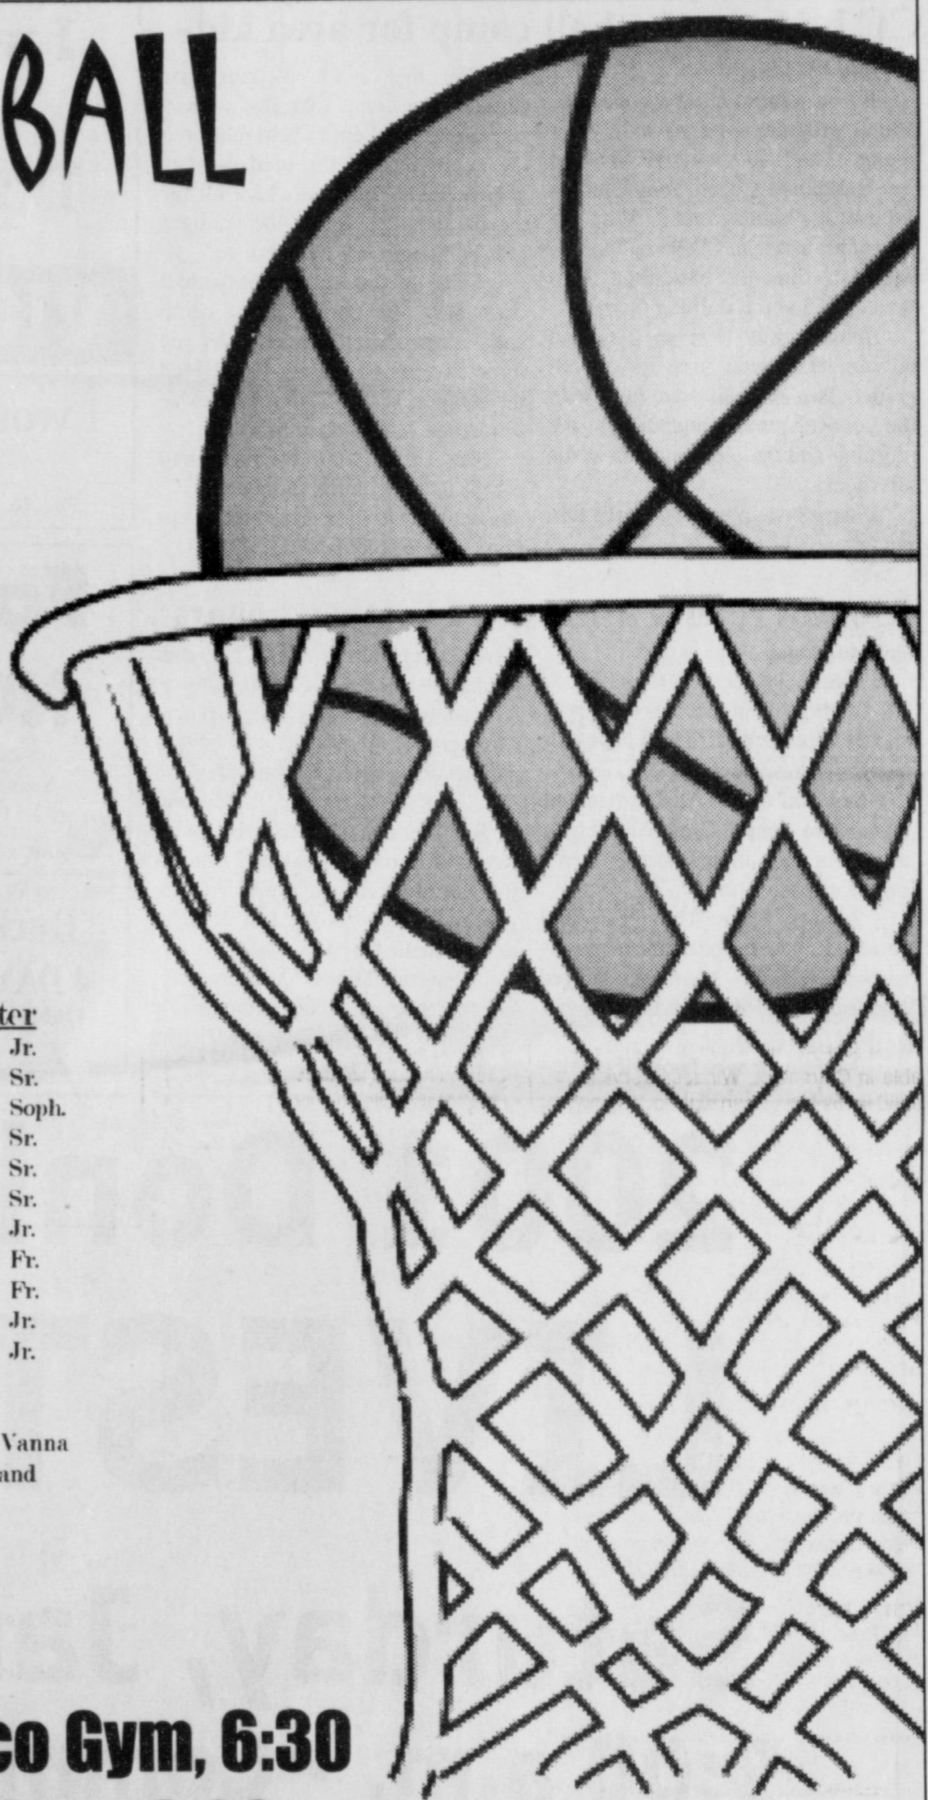

The Broncos traveled to Shamrock January 5 to participate in the Shamrock Tournament. In the first round, the Broncos went up against Wheeler and lost, 53-51. Scoring were Sell 20, Leeper 18, Howard 9, and McCabe 4.

The Broncos went up against Shamrock in the 2nd round and handily defeated the Irish, 59-25. Scoring were Howard 19, Sell 17, A. Leeper 11, Tim Leeper 6, and McCabe 6. Also playing for the Broncos were Zach Childs and Robert Shelton.

The Broncos will continue District play Friday night at home against West Texas High. Tuesday they will travel to Panhandle. Both games will begin at 5:00 p.m.

Businesses in the following counties are eligible to apply Childress, Collingsworth, Donley, Gray, Hall, Wheeler, Beckham (Oklahoma), and Harmon (Oklahoma).
