WES HENSON, judge and one of the sponsors of the traditional, annual Turtle Race, watches as a passle of turtles scuttle along toward the finish line. The tortoise managed by Patrick Owen McAnear, son of Russell and Tammy McAnear of Clarendon, won the 0-4 Division. Stephanie Fowler, granddaughter of Gene and Doris White picked the winning reptile in the 5-8 category, while Elizabeth Simmons, daughter of Jem and Karen Simmons had the speediest entry in the 9-14 age group. The tortoises are released unharmed after the annual event.

Clarendon's Carhart Built One of the First Automobiles By A.C. Greene

Several Vehicles inventors are credited with building the first reliably operable american automobile, but an excellent case can be made for the steam car built and operated in 1871 by John Wesly Carhart, a Methodist minister who later changed his affiliation to Presbyterian. Although Carhart vehicle was assembled in Racine, Wis., the New York native lived many more years in Texas than in any other state.

After visiting as a minister in 1878, he left the ministry, graduated from medical school in 1883 and moved to Texas permanently to join his son, Edward E., and cousins, Lewis Henry (also a Methodist minister), at the religious colony named Clarendon in honor of the latter's wife Clara.

Carhart later moved to Lampasas, LaGrange, Austin and finally San Antonio where he practiced medicine and was a well-known medical and Texas fiction writer until his death in 1917.

Carhart's car, the Spark, was the first self-propelled vehicle in Wisconsin. The J.I. Case Co. of Racine made some of the parts for the engine and the Button Steam Fire Engine Co., of Watertown, N.Y. made the body. J.W. Carhart gave much credit for its success to his brother and co-designer, H.S. Carhart, a professor of physics at Northwestern University and later the University of Michigan.

The Spark sparked such interest in Wisconsin that in 1875 the state Legislature offered a prize of $10,000 "to any citizen of Wisconsin who shall invent and ... produce a machine ... which will be a cheap and practical substitute for the use of horses and other animals on the highway and farm." In 1878, $5,000 was awarded an Oskosh machine, possibly a copy of Carhart's, as he had moved his family there. The Carhart family's importance to Texas far exceeded the Spark. Not only did Lewis Henry [Carhart] found Clarendon, Edward D. helped his uncle publish The Clarendon News, the first paper in the Panhandle, then became an important resident and official in the town of Panhandle and of Carson County. As for Spark, it was reportedly seen in 1942 in a Racine garage. Later efforts to locate it failed.

A.C. Greene is a writer and historian living in Salado, Texas.

Pow, Cow!

Several cows have escaped through fences in recent weeks in various parts of the county and wandered on to roads or highways. At least two of these learned about cars rather abruptly.

Authorities recommend that folks watch their fences and that drivers use caution.

Walker Surrenders after Break-in, Standoff

Wendell Wayne Walker, a white male, 40 years old, surrendered to law enforcement officers and was taken to the Pavilion after a standoff of about nine hours.

About just after midnight on the morning of June 30, Joe L. Lewis, Steven Ballard and Raymond Ballard were driving down the main street when they saw the suspect break the window of Poor Boy's Antiques and remove a pistol and holster. They recognized the suspect, but did not know his name. The pistol was later determined to

The three witnesses hurried over to the Sheriff's Office and told the dispatcher about the break-in. Sheriff Jimmy Thompson responded to the call, and the witnesses took him to the suspect's residence at the corner of 6th

The suspect met the Sheriff at the door with gun in hand, then fled to the back of the house. The officer called for assistance from the Department's deputies, from the Department of Public Safety, the Texas Rangers, and Warden Gary Hunt. Officers secured the area.

The Sheriff and other officers then began almost constant negotiations with the suspect. The man reportedly claimed at various times that he was President Clinton, President Bush and that he rode around on spaceships. Finally, about 9:00 a.m., the man surrendered himself and his weapon. The Sheriff took Walker to Northwest

Walker had lived in Clarendon about two months. He is thought to have been in the mental hospital in Vernon before that time.

Social Security News

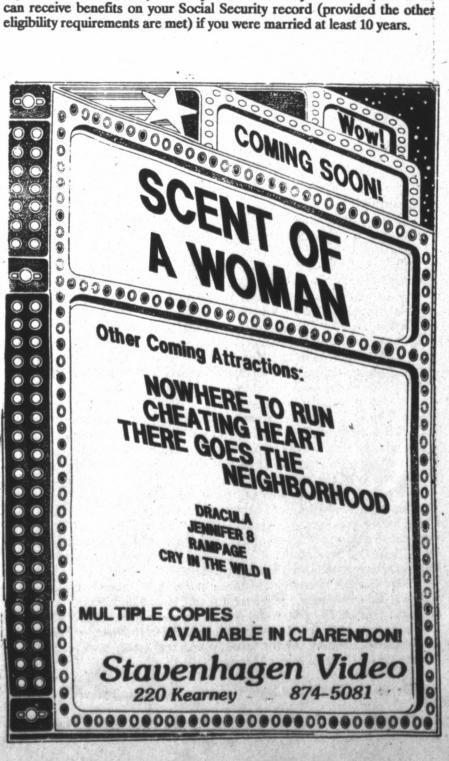

by Jim Talbot

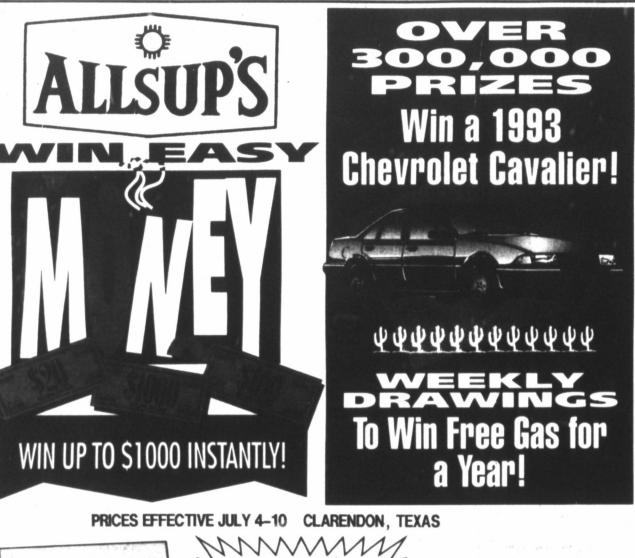

Here's a little Social Security quiz about the affect that one family member's benefit can have on another: (1) If you receive Social Security retirement or disability benefits, will any dependent's benefits due your wife or husband reduce your monthly payment? (2) Can benefits paid to your spouse or child reduce those paid to other family members who also receive benefits on your record? (3) Will your current spouse lose any benefits because your ex-spouse also will be eligible for Social Security benefits on your record?

The answer to question 1 is "no." There are No other Social Security benefits that reduce the amount we pay you if you worked and earned a retirement or disability benefit. If you are eligible for your own Social Security benefit, you will receive the full amount you are entitled to no matter how many other people receive benefits on your account.

the answer to question 2 is "yes." There is a limit to the amount of money that can be paid to all other family members on your Social Security record. The limit varies, but is generally equal to about 150 to 180 percent of your basic benefit. If the sum of benefits due your family exceeds this limit, the benefits to all family members, except yours, will be reduced proportionately.

The answer to question 3 is "no." Benefits payable to a divorced spouse who is 62 or older are not affected by the family limit provisions mentioned above. So any dependent's benefits due your ex-spouse will not reduce the payments made to your current spouse or to any of your children who are receiving benefits. When you die, the same rule applies to widows benefits if your ex-spouse is 60 or older (50 or older if disabled). Generally, if you are divorced and your ex-spouse is currently unmarried, she or he can receive benefits on your Social Security record (provided the other

Smokey The Fireman

Smokey is back from School at Aggie Land. He is fired up and ready to tackle the world of fire. Chief warns Smokey that while all of the techniques they taught at school are excellent and will usually work in a given situation but must remember that those fires were staged the person setting them knew exactly what and how much of each substance was burning in each instance.

One day they practiced fighting a grease pit fire you know like an oil or gasoline spill that caught fire. They had dug a long ditch filled it with water than poured oil and gasoline on it and lit it. They started one end and actually pushed the fire off the other end.

Another day they blindfolded him put him in a house full of smoke and expected him to find his way out while dragging a sack if sand. Third day they was up on top of a two story building some nut locked the roof door and set the building on fire, they had to get down over the side with their ropes.

Next to last day of school everything had gone pretty good then the instructor who weighed close to 200 pounds climbed up to the top of a ladder and Smokey had to go up and bring him down like he had passed out. Did you ever try to move 200 pounds of limp anything and not drop it.

They thought they had it made last day of school and was ready to graduate somebody hollered there a fire outside everybody rushed out and sure nuff that dang instructor had built a fire under the propane tank and they had to go put it out. Don't believe Smokey will ever not be scared of that type of fire. Fire fighting is dangerous training helps reduce it although manufactures install safety devices in such things as propane tanks anything man made can malfunction each year fireman are hurt and sometimes die fight-already discovered a Children's Literature course which is require sometime during the completion of your degree. The course involves the reading of several children's books. Why? Obviously, to acquaint you with books which will be favorites of your future students.

A special friend of mine, Triva Denney, informed me during our conversation last week that she has begun reading the hundred books which are required in the course she plans to take this fall. (Smart girl! Getting a head start!) She's finding numerous choices at Burton Memorial Library.

There are so many good books! Caldecott awards books are always in demand. This award is presented each year to books with outstanding illustrations. They are briefly written with special appeal for pre-schoolers through third grade. Four of the many Caldecott books are Madeline's Resue by Ludwig Bemelmans; Song And Dance Man by Karen Ackerman; Rachel Field's Prayer For A Child and The Girl Who Loved Wild Horses by Paul Gable.

Another prestigious award is the Newberry, presented to the best children's book that has been written each year. The Newberry books include grade levels two through Junior High. Miss Hickory by Carolyn Sherwin Bailey; Dear Mr. Henshaw by Beverly Cleary; Shen Of The Sea, Chinese Stories for Children by Author Bowie Chrisman; and Matchlock Gun by Walter D. Edmonds are only a few of the library's various choices.

It's a well-known fact that most children love to read to, even when they become old enough to read for themselves. Hopefully, beginning teachers from Kindergarten through Eighth Grade will make time to read to their students. During my thirty years of teaching. I found it to be a daily rewarding pleasure for both students and teacher. Some fourth, fifth, and sixth grade favorites are My Side Of The Mountain by Jean George; Old Yeller by Fred Gibson; Caddie Woodlawn by Carol Ryrie Brink; and Where The Red Fern Grows by Wilson Rawls. After reading the books, my classes and I sometimes viewed the videos for comparison. It was interesting to note that the students nearly always preferred the book. So much was omitted in the video.

Good luck to you, Triva and other Elementary Education Majors, through this enjoyable course and others as you pursue your career. Incidentally, may I suggest keeping a file as you read these books? I think you'll find it to be one of those important worthwhile timesavers as you enter the classroom. Why not check it out?

The Shocking Truth

(NAPS)—Many pool owners may be shocked to discover that clear pool water is not necessarily clean pool water. In fact, crystal clear pool water is often a dwelling place for hordes of invisible bacteria and other contaminants.

Regular shock treatment—the addition of an extra dose of chlorine to pool water—kills bacteria; it can also prevent common pool problems such as algae, chlorine odor or discolored water from developing.

Shock treatment should be done weekly, according to the pool

Medical Center News

June was a busy month at the Medical Center Nursing Home. Residents at the Medical Center gathered for their monthly resident's Birthday Party. Celebrating a birthday was Myrtle Reeves. They also sang Happy Birthday to Tina Davis, Their Activity Director. After wishing these two Happy Birthday, residents enjoyed punch and cake. Everyone had a real nice time.

Residents gathered outside in the patio for afternoon cool drinks and alot of fun on June 24th. Residents cheer them on as they made preparations in the yard for their family picnic, Saturday the 26th. The patio area was full with their residents out for the fun and fresh air. Residents really enjoyed the yard and the activity of their feathered friends who seem to enjoy putting on air shows for them. Their family picnic held June 26th was a big Smash Hit! They want to thank everyone for their support to their family members. Residents, families, and guest all had a great time. They would like to thank the Good Timers band f or playing for them. When the music started so did the dancing. A dance floor was provided and well used. There was a lot of clapping and cheering going on for the dancers. The smiles and laughter was very continuous, as everyone got into the mood for a really fantastic time. They all hated to see the party end and are already looking forward to the next one.

The room was filled with festive red, white and blue balloons and streamers. They proudly showed our flag and flag in the patio area. There are so many people to thank for all they did to make this picnic such a hugh success. Thank you to Betty Muse for her donation. Big thank you to their cooks for cooking the hamburgers, they were Lloyd and Betty Molder their grandson Chris Garrison, Charlie and Daphene Sullivan.

Thank you to Hugh Mahaffey for letting them us his American Flag. A big thank you to their dietary staff for all the help and support, couldn't have done it without them. A very big and special thank you to everyone who (NAPS)—The mouthwatering scents of charcoal-broiled foods wafting through the warm air is a sure sign that the season is wellunder way. Outdoor grilling, a traditional American summer pastime, enhances the freedom and relaxation of the season.

While barbecuing is a wonderful excuse to spend time outside after a long day, it can also be a healthy alternative to indoor cooking methods that require extra oil or butter," says Gail L. Becker, registered dietitian and nutrition consultant to Butter Buds all natural butter-flavored granulated Sprinkles and Mix. "The first step in lowering your risk of some forms of cancer or heart disease is by reducing your intake of dietary fat.'

For a healthier barbecue, Ms. Becker recommends removing all excess fat from meats, which will drip onto the hot coals and create smoke. This smoke rises to the surface of the grill and chars the food, which has been linked as a possible cancer risk according to some studies.

To decrease this occurrence and ensure safer grilling without sacrificing flavor or juiciness, replace an excess of fat with a rich-tasting, cholesterol free alternative such as Butter Buds Sprinkles or Mix. For safer, successful grilling every time, consider these tips:

· Reduce cooking time on the grill by pre-cooking foods in the microwave or oven. Drain any excess juices, which contain fat, off meats before barbecuing.

•Minimize contact with heavy smoke by wrapping food in foil, or cover the grill grid with foil and punch several holes.

•To catch excess fat dripping from poultry and meats, move the coals to the sides of the grill and position an aluminum pan underneath the food.

•To prevent drying out, baste foods frequently with lowfat or nonfat marinades and barbecue sauces, or a butter alternative such as Butter Buds Mix.

•To avoid charring or overcooking foods, dampen charcoal and shift the food around the grill. Remove any fatty skin and charred

It recipe book features several recipes for grilling with Butter Buds, including Teriyaki Beef Kabobs, Lemon Barbecued Chicken and the following recipe for Corn on the Cob in the Husk. To order a copy, send $5.95 to Cumberland Packing Corporation, 2 Cumberland Avenue, Brooklyn, NY 11205.

For more information on lowfat eating, consumers can call the Butter Buds Hotline, 800-231-1123 (in New York State: 800-336-0363). Monday-Friday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Keep Romance Going Strong

Living For Your Teenager

(NAPS)—The statistics are alarming: By senior year in high school, seven out of ten students have taken drugs. Eighty percent of the population has used illegal drugs by their mid-20s.

A majority of teenagers routinely drink at parties and only eight percent report no alcohol use. More than one third of American alcoholics are under the legal drinking age.

With drug and alcohol use so widespread, millions of families will be touched by the problem. Many parents fear saying the wrong thing. Teenagers may fear getting into trouble if they talk about drug and alcohol use. Not so. "More communication, not less, is the answer," says author and humanitarian L. Ron Hubbard.

Communicating some straight facts about drugs from Hubbard's book "Clear Body, Clear Mind: The Effective Purification Program" may help save a life.

"Drugs are essentially poisons. This is true of any drug. Each has a different amount at which it can kill," Hubbard writes.

Because drug use often starts as a means of suppressing pain from an actual physical affliction, good general health and proper care of any illness or injury are important.

With good communication and facts about drugs, teenagers and parents can together work toward a happy and productive life.

A "BUG" in MS-DOS 6.0 can interfere with the installation of optional programs included with the operating system. The problem occurs when users who first load DOS without some or all of these options (such as Anti-Virus, Backup, or Undelete) later add them using the suggested Setup/E command. If the directory that contains MS-Dos is listed on your path in lowercase letters, Setup will be unable to find it, causing it to display an error message and terminate installation? To correct the problem, users should quit Setup and then use the PATH command to change the directory name to all uppercase letters.

We're curious as to how many. of you out there in Clarendon land are "Windows" users. If you currently run Microsoft Windows full or: even part time on your computer we would love to here from you. In: the coming weeks we'll be running some user tips for Windows 3.1 if you have discovered something new while using Windows please write to us and we'll pass it along to: our other readers.

"Tip of The Week" Windows has keyboard equivalents for everything, and using them is often faster. In Program Manager group, for example, select a program by typing the first letter of the icon's name. Want to jump to the Cardfile icon in your Accessories group? Just move to the Accessories group and press C until Cardfile's selected. (Each press moves you to the next most recently selected icon whose description begins with C.) Press <ENTER>, and the program launches. Easy, quick, and mnemonic.

the ability of U.S. business to hold its own in the global marketplace and the need for upgrading basic education skills in the work force. This has caused a dramatic increase in the number of workplace education programs across the United States. Research Drug Free suggests that workers learn at a much faster rate when programs are focused on job-related reading rather than on "general" literacy.

Workplace education programs have a handsome pay-off in both improved worker performance and bottom line gains. This translates into improvements in productivity, customer satisfaction, delivery time, scrap and error rates, and worker morale. Gains also are noted in employee motivation, self esteem, willingness to take responsibility, ability to perform well in teams, communication, and problem solving.

At the present time, 3 to 5 percent of small businesses in the U.S. have workplace education programs, serving between 200,000 and 300,000 workers each year. The vast majority of workplace education programs are taught at the worksite.

Participation by the employee is usually voluntary; the most frequent pattern is a 50/50 donation of time by employer and employee. Community colleges are the education partners of choice for most small busi-
