Clarendon Elementary rated as 'Recognized'

In this last week's news article about the Texas Education Agency's ratings for Clarendon ISD, the fourth paragraph incorrectly states that the Clarendon Elementary campus was rated as "Acceptable" by the state. Clarendon Elementary was in fact rated "Recognized," which is TEA's second highest rating, for the fourth year in a row.

As the story correctly reads, Clarendon Jr. High was also rated as Recognized while Clarendon High School and the school district itself were rated as Acceptable.

The ENTERPRISE apologizes for the error, and we regret any confusion the article may have caused.

County okays abatement on wind farm

Donley County Commissioners approved a ten-year tax abatement agreement for a $90 million wind farm project on the Trew Ranch during their regular meeting Monday.

Dale Cummings, a tax attorney who represents wind farm developer Iberdrola, said the agreement means good things for both parties.

"I think it's a good deal for us and for the county," Cummings said. "Hopefully it opens the door to a lot of wind power developments in Donley County."

The Trew Ranch project, which includes 57 turbines generating 85.5 megawatts in Donley and Gray counties, was originally developed by Maryland-based Competitive Power Ventures. Earlier this year, CPV sold its wind portfolio to Iberdrola, a European firm that says it is the largest wind development company in the world.

The terms of the abatement are dependent on where the power from the wind farm is ultimately sold, giving the company more incentives if the power goes into the less lucrative SPP or Southwest Power Pool grid and less incentives if the power goes in the more competitive ERCOT grid that services much of East Texas.

If the power is sold in the SPP, Iberdrola would receive an abatement as follows: 90 percent for years one and two, 80 percent in year three, 70 percent in year four, and 60 percent in years five through ten. But if the power is sold into ERCOT, the company's abatement would be 60 percent in years one through five and 40 percent in years six through ten.

The Trew Ranch project was designed with existing transmission lines tied to the SPP in mind, Cummings said. But if efforts are successful to build a new transmission line through Donley County and the Texas Panhandle that would link this area's wind generation to the ERCOT market, then the local farm could take advantage of that.

"If something happens, the terms of the agreement are geared so that if the company gets a better deal, Donley County gets a better deal," Cummings said.

Judge Jack Hall said the commissioners' court was happy to get the abatement signed and that he hoped the project would get started soon.

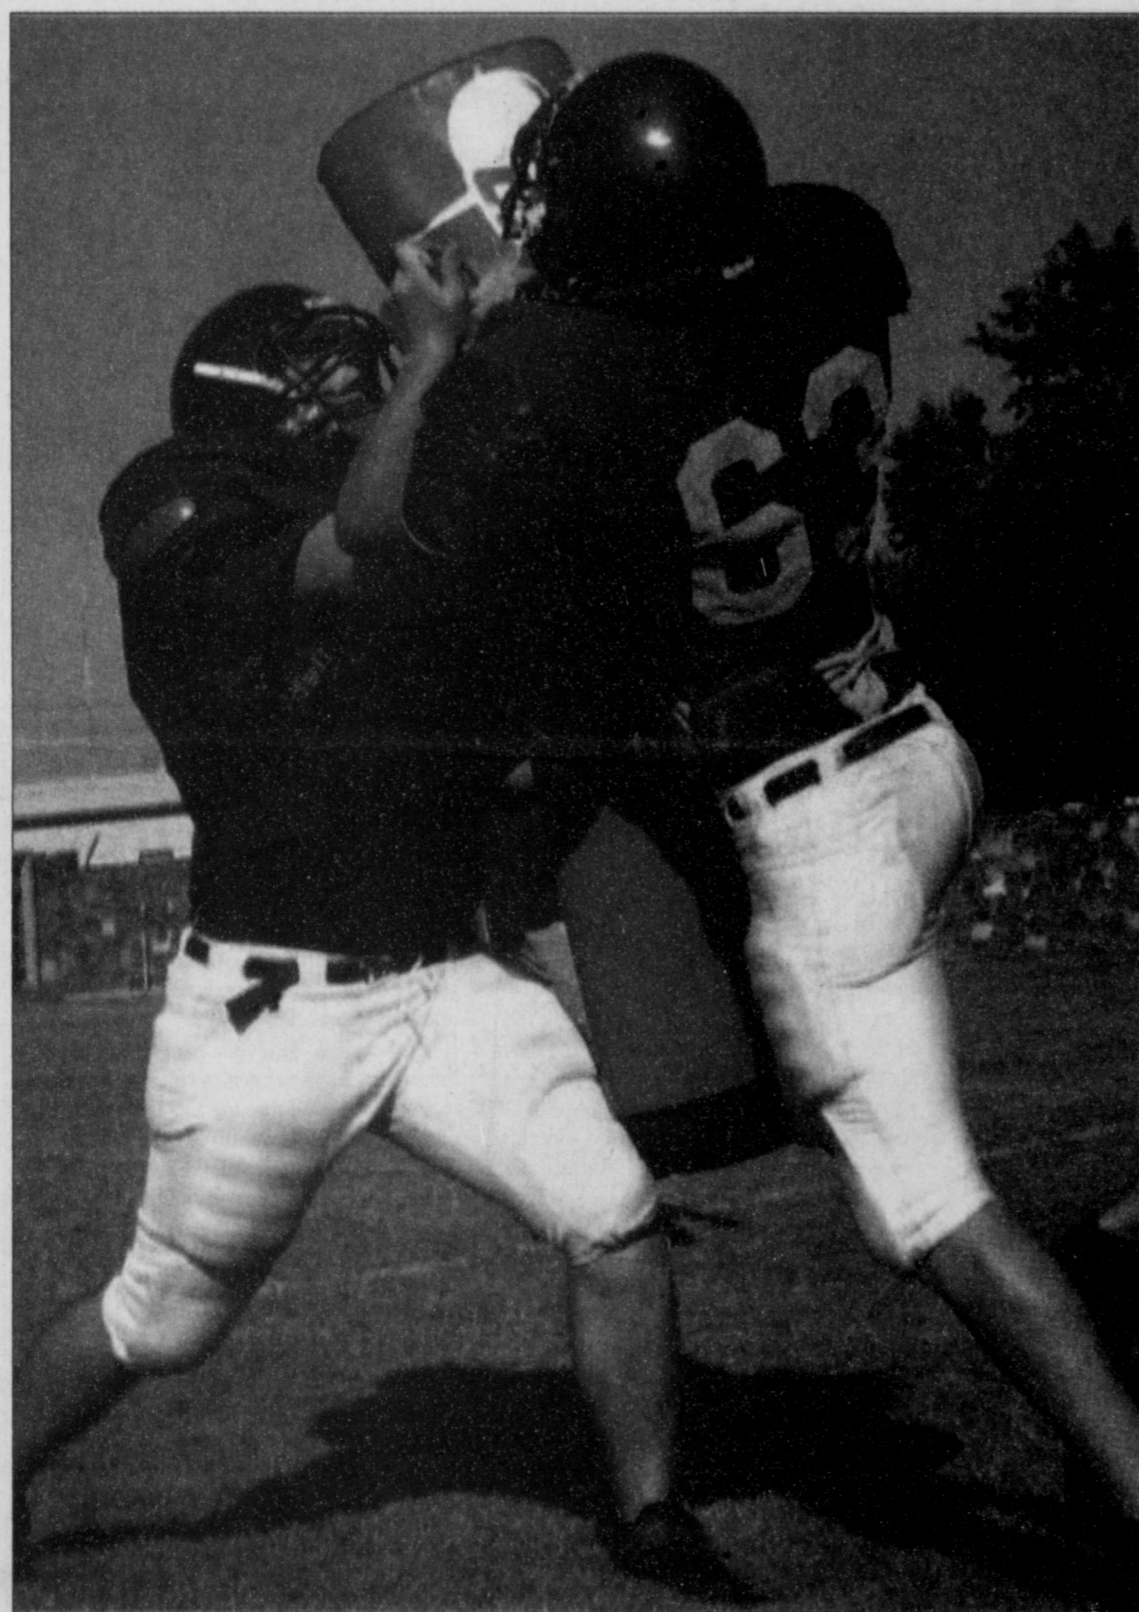

Cummings said he did not know when work would begin on the Trew Ranch wind farm but that it would be sometime next year.

"It's been delayed because of the change in developers," he said, noting that the tax incentive is just one piece of a puzzle that includes construction, transmission connection agreements, power purchase agreements, and other details.

Hall said Sweetwater attorney Alan Carmichael represented the county in negotiations on the abatement. The deal is similar to what other counties have done, and Carmichael is well known for his work regarding wind farms, Hall said.

Cummings was scheduled to meet with Clarendon ISD Trustees Monday night to discuss school tax incentives. The company will also be seeking agreements with the Clarendon College District and the Donley County Hospital District.

Car chase stops when tires shot

An investigation is underway this week after a Brownsville man received a gunshot wound while trying to evade arrest by Donley and Collingsworth county lawmen.

DPS Trooper Daniel Hawthorne said 22-year-old Jose Colon was pulled over in Hedley at 10:24 p.m. Friday for a minor traffic violation by Donley County Constable Tony Sellers; but when Sellers stepped out of his patrol truck, Colon took off north on State Highway 203 toward Quail.

Sellers began pursuit and notified authorities in Clarendon and Wellington. Collingsworth County officers joined Sellers, and the suspect fled on US 83 toward Shamrock. At one point Hawthorne said Colon's vehicle made contact with a patrol car driven by Collingsworth Sheriff Joe Stewart.

Later, shots were fired to take out Colon's tires. Upon being taken into custody, it was discovered that Colon had suffered a gunshot wound to his right arm, Hawthorne said. The suspect was taken to Shamrock General Hospital where he was treated and released back into the custody of the Collingsworth County Sheriff's Office.

Colon was transferred to Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo for further treatment and remained there Tuesday morning. He is facing three counts of assaulting a peace officer and one count of evading arrest with a vehicle, and both charges are third degree felonies.

The Collingsworth County Sheriff's Office and the Texas Rangers are investigating the case.

Stewart was treated and released following the collision and was reported to be doing well but sore.

Colon is also facing a charge of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon in Randall County, according to a report in Tuesday's AMARILLO GLOBE-NEWS.

The Randall County Sheriff's Office told the GLOBE-NEWS that Colon allegedly stabbed a man who had picked the suspect up to give him a ride. Colon stole the man's vehicle before showing up in Donley County and being reported to the local sheriff's office for speeding through Clarendon.

City sales tax revenue up

Sales tax revenue for the City of Clarendon grew for the first time since April when Texas Comptroller Susan Combs distributed August allocations last Friday.

Clarendon's allocation of $30,096.19 was an 8.85 percent increase over last August. That brings the city's allocation for the year-to-date to $198,336.18, which up 2.43 percent for this point last year.

The news was not as good in Hedley and Howardwick. Both of those cities saw their allocations drop this month. Hedley fell 25.64 percent to $797.31, and Howardwick dropped 42.46 percent to $963.95.

Howardwick is still ahead 4.83 percent for the year-to-date, but Hedley is behind more than 23 percent for the year.

Statewide, Combs said her office collected $1.6 billion in sales tax revenue in July, up 5.3 percent compared to July 2006.

July state sales tax revenue and August allocations to local governments represent sales taxes collected in June by businesses that report sales taxes monthly, and sales taxes collected in April, May and June by quarterly filers.

The Comptroller's next sales tax allocation will be September 14.

Emergency farm loans available for two 2007 incidents

Agricultural producers in Donley County are eligible to apply for emergency loans for two separate incidents this summer, according to Larry Goetze with the Farm Services Agency.

In the first incident, applications for emergency farm loans for damages and losses caused by excessive rain, flash flooding, flooding, hail, high winds, and lightning on June 2, 2007, through June 3, 2007, are being accepted. Donley County is one of 13 recently named by the Secretary of Agriculture eligible for loans to cover physical and production losses resulting from the rains, flooding, winds, and lightning.

"Applications for loans under this emergency designation will be accepted until March 31, 2008; but farmers should apply as soon as possible. Delays in applying could create backlogs in processing, with possible delays into the new farming season," Goetze said.

In the second incident, applications are also being accepted for emergency farm loans for damages and losses caused by high winds on June 20, 2007. Donley County is one of six counties eligible for severe physical losses only resulting from the high winds.

"Applications for loans under this emergency designation will be accepted until March 28, 2008," Goetze said.

Goetze said farmers may be eligible for loans of up to 100 percent of their actual losses or the operating loan needed to continue the agriculture business, whichever is less. For farmers unable to obtain credit from private commercial lenders, the interest is 3.75 percent.

"As a general rule, a farmer must have suffered at least a 30 percent loss of production to be eligible for an FSA emergency loan," Goetze said. Farmers participating in the Federal Crop Insurance program will have to consider proceeds from those programs in determining their loss.

Applications for these loans are being accepted at the FSA office at 321 Sully Street in Clarendon from 7:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Monday thru Friday. Call 874-3561 for information.

'Net expands the meaning of 'free press'

By Gene Policinski
First Amendment Center

For most of the nation's history, much of the public's attention – and much of the legal contention – regarding a free press has been on the “free” part.

But of late, figuring out the “press” portion has gotten a bit tougher, often as the result of the work of Internet entrepreneurs.

There's no specific definition of “press” in the 45 words of the First Amendment. So who might be bound by responsibilities that go along with the role of a free press? Are bloggers and other Web users part of a broadly defined “press” even though they certainly could not have been envisioned by the Colonial-era Founders who wrote the First Amendment? And what of those who aren't defined by traditional measures of circulation and ratings, but who may well have global audiences?

There are occasional contributors to Web sites, often as a result of their random presence at news events such as the tragic killings at Virginia Tech. Within minutes of the first reports of the campus shootings, even as news organizations were rushing staff to the scene, amateur cell-phone images and video were featured prominently on television and the Web.

The bloggers and “citizen journalist” contributors raise serious legal issues. One example: A proposed federal “shield law” would protect reporters in many circumstances from having to reveal confidential news sources to federal grand jurors. The law would mirror provisions in nearly all states. But opponents say defining who is a journalist – who is “press” – must be accomplished first, so that every citizen is not someday sheltered from testifying.

It may be that such a definition ultimately may include anyone, in any medium, who takes on a meaningful news-reporting function – as opposed to simply writing a diary entry or composing a personal letter.

Other issues raised have less legal bite, but nonetheless bear watching. There is the innovative (and shocking, to some) idea advanced by the editor and publisher of Pasadena Now, an online news site focused on that California city. James Macpherson proposed hiring two reporters living in India to watch Pasadena City Council meetings via a regular webcast and then write news reports. The intercontinental arrangement's cost was reported to be much less than the expense of hiring a local reporter to do the same.

The situation poses yet more perplexing New Age questions: Can and should technology substitute for “being there”?

On its Web site, Pasadena Now pledges to use the advantages of digital media – the “immediacy ... of interactivity ... audio and visual” – to better inform its readers. And there's no reason to doubt that reporters based in India or elsewhere could not write fully and fairly on what they saw on a webcast – but is that a news story?

Now before traditional journalists just write off the idea of such remote staffing, they ought to consider that many mainstream U.S. news operations – seeking to cut costs or curry favor with a new generation of readers – have curtailed or don't bother with regular reporting on so-called “process” stories like city council meetings. At least Macpherson's plan would have a report of council activities posted in a timely fashion.

Still, as a young journalist, I honed my reporting skills – and in the process, informed readers at several newspapers in Indiana (not India) – of the workings of our city and county councils and agencies. Legions of reporters similarly have spent hard time in locales nationwide, perched on wooden benches or plastic chairs in stuffy, fluorescent-lit chambers, recording and reporting on proposed tax hikes, street-paving plans and school board budgets. Those stories alerted readers to a host of ordinary but necessary aspects of daily life and not incidentally kept politicians and bureaucrats connected to constituencies – and perhaps reminded them that citizens were watching.

Does not the role of a “free press” include more than reporting accurately what happened? Does it not also include the freedom to ask questions – in person – about what did not? To fully report those local Indiana stories, it sometimes was important to ask why, with no open discussion, a vote was delayed. Occasionally the story might be more about the whispered comments made between two council members away from the microphone than about the recorded action.

An accurate account of a government meeting, – whether written from a building down the street or one halfway around the globe – does have some value, of course, especially when the alternative is no story at all.

But surely the First Amendment's provision for a free press counsels practitioners and product to be more than a transcription service.

Yoga just adds to some people's stress

In high school, my basketball coach once pulled me into his office for our yearly athletic DTR, if you will, an appointment to “define the relationship.”

While he was relatively pleased with my mildly successful JV cross country career, he was concerned that I wasn't making my best effort.

“Carrie,” he said, “you never look like you're really in pain.”

To which my response was, “Ummmm... I threw up at the meet last Saturday.”

“And I'm proud of you for that, really,” he said, “but I'm talking about on a daily basis. If you were really giving it all you've got, surely you would make a noise, you'd sweat, you'd...”

“Grimace?” I offered.

We both agreed, after no lengthy discussion, that perhaps team sports were not for me.

Even now, as I am working my way back into the athletic world, I have little tolerance for noise making, sweating, and grimacing.

I ended up next to the Darth Vader of mouth-breathers in yoga last week.

She began with very loud cleansing breaths, wheezing on the inhaled, and groaning on the exhale. In, out, in,

out. “heeeeee, phwoooo.”

I admit, I was a little distracted at first, which poses a problem in yoga (no pun intended) whose tenets are focus and meditation.

I was hoping the theatrics would end when the real work began, but I soon realized the show was only just beginning.

Each change of pose was accompanied by a sound effect: downward-facing dog, “ohhhhh,” plank, “ughhhh,” crocodile, “eehhhh.” Cobra was the most interesting, because it was a little staccato “uh-uh-uhhhh!”

After repeating the series once more, she was apparently tuckered out. She curled up into the fetal position, panting and whining like a Labrador while the rest of the class moved into a different series.

She perked up enough to join in a minute later but soon fell with a dramatic “ooph” and a stumble from her tree pose.

Now I was not only distracted but irritated, a feeling utterly at odds with finding inner peace and universal balance, the principle aims of yoga.

life's lessons
by Carrie Tippen

This continued for an hour and a half. Wheezing, groaning, grunting, panting and whining, stomping off to get a drink of water, grunting, more panting in the fetal position, “ohhh,” “eehhhh,” “ughh,” “phwo!”

And while this Oscar winning performance would have pleased my high school basketball coach, it hardly seemed a genuine effort. Can you really have an effective workout when you only do half the exercises?

There's an old expression I don't really understand, but it seems to fit here. The proof is in the pudding, they say.

I don't know anything about English puddings, which I assume is the bearer of real labor, in the gym and out of it, are not just noisy and sweaty. The evidence is not on the outside.

You know you've worked hard when you feel the exhilaration stretching further than you have ever stretched before, running farther than you've ever run before. That's the pudding. That's the proof.

When you use that philosophy at the core of your life, you aren't fooled by appearances. When you use it in your workout, people don't scramble to get the place furthest from you in yoga class.

Let the truth lead the way for US in Iraq

By Congressman Mac Thornberry

Recently, I was one of the House and Senate members asked to go to the Pentagon for a classified briefing from General Petraeus and Ambassador Crocker in Baghdad. As I walked out of the tunnel-like hallways in the basement of the Pentagon, I was struck by the contrast between the factual report I had just heard and the debate going on in Congress. It was truly two different worlds.

Not that the news from Baghdad was all positive. It was not. There were areas where clear, significant progress is being made, and there were other areas that have been disappointing. But that report was based on the facts on the ground. The debate in Congress seems to be based on something else.

Henry Kissinger recently wrote “Vietnam and Iraq are different conflicts in different times, but there is an important similarity: A point was reached during the Vietnam War when the domestic debate became so bitter as to preclude rational discussion of hard choices.” My biggest concern is that we are approaching a point in the debate on Iraq where facts no longer matter.

Take a moment to think about what that means. Political partisanship and passions get so inflated that rational decision making is not possible. Positions get so locked-in that no amount of evidence can change someone's mind. Decisions are based not on truth, but on politics, emotions, and what someone wants the truth to be.

There are ominous signs. Once it became clear last month that there were not enough votes to force our troops to leave Iraq, the Senate Majority Leader took the entire Defense Authorization Bill off the floor. If his position on Iraq was not going to prevail, he would not permit there to be any defense bill at all for the first time in 45 years. In the House, staff strains their imaginations to come up with new ways to vote on the Iraq issue every week. The impact of these acts on what the troops are trying to accomplish are brushed aside.

Of course, the danger of ignoring facts can apply to both sides in the Iraq debate. Just as there are those who pronounced the new strategy a failure before it was ever tried, there may be those who resist change even when a different course makes sense. Those of us who believe the strategy should be given a chance must be willing to objectively consider any evidence that it is not working. But the key is to be open to the facts, not locked into a partisan position.

General Petraeus and Ambassador Crocker reported that all of the troops needed to implement their new strategy have been in place only since mid-June. The planned increase of civilians to help with reconstruction is only about one-half complete. There has been a remarkable turn-around in some provinces that had been seen as lost but were now rejecting Al Qaeda foreign fighters. Sectarian deaths have been dramatically reduced while the more spectacular vehicle bombings have gotten most of the attention. On the other hand, the government of Iraq is moving too slowly to pass the reforms needed for reconciliation and rebuilding.

Of course, Al Qaeda is expert at using the media for their own purposes. It was recently revealed that the top Iraqi in the organization never really existed. He was a fictitious character invented for the media. Our soldiers have learned that the truck bombs we hear about are carefully placed in locations where the American media is sure to cover it. Innocent lives are expendable to terrorists.

Iraq is a pivotal piece in the increasingly complex war on terrorism. General Petraeus will come back to Washington in mid-September to report on where we are and what the prospects are for success. We should all expect that his report will again include some good news, some not-so-good. Will we be able to listen to his professional military judgment objectively, or are the bitterness and divisions too deep?

There are well-intentioned people on both sides of the debate, and there are clearly no simple answers. That is why we must stay focused on the facts, put partisanship aside, and let the truth lead the way.

Congressman Mac Thornberry (R-Clarendon) is a senior Republican member of the House Armed Services Committee and the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence.

Info sought on Collinson

I am writing a screenplay about the life of Walter James (Frank) Collinson who emigrated to Texas in 1872 from Yorkshire, England. I am most anxious to contact any relatives of his who may live in your circulation area. It is particularly important to get details of his marriage to Jessamine Bremmer in 1887 in Lamar, Colorado. A photograph and description of the wedding service would be particularly welcome.

Frank was buried in Clarendon cemetery in 1943. If anyone can help, I'd be most grateful. My email address is elstree2002@yahoo.co.uk. Home address is: 83 Epworth Road, Cottingham, East Yorkshire, HU16 5YG, England.

Drugs in the News

Limited Use of Zelnorm Allowed

Earlier this year, the FDA asked the manufacturer of Zelnorm (tegaserod maleate), a prescription drug for Irritable Bowel Syndrome (IBS), to discontinue selling the drug in the U.S. Sales and marketing for the drug were suspended because a safety analysis of the drug indicated that its use increased the risk of stroke and heart-related problems in persons who took it. However, the actual number of serious events reported was reported as "small." Last month, the FDA announced that Zelnorm would be allowed for use by some individuals, but under tight restrictions. In general, the drug is allowed for doctors to prescribe under investigational new drug protocols for IBS that occurs with constipation and in women under the age of 55 who have a condition called chronic idiopathic constipation.

IBS is a gastrointestinal condition in which there may be complaints of cramping, abdominal pain, constipation, bloating, and diarrhea. IBS most often occurs in people in their late teens and twenties. The exact cause is unknown, but a hereditary link may be involved in certain instances.

the lion's tale

The Clarendon Lions Club held their regular Tuesday noon meeting August 14, 2007, with Boss Lion Richard Sheppard handling the gavel.

We had 19 members and six guests: Brooke and Trent Smith, guests of Lion David Smith; Sheila White, guest of Lion Mark C. White; Greg Collins, guest of Lion Jim Shelton; Ashlee Estlack, guest of Lion Roger Estlack; and Minnie Buckhaults, guest of the club, who presented our program.

Lion White reminded members that sign-up sheets for the upcoming Dove Hunt are available in the Lions Hall.

Brochures are now available for prospective members who would like to learn more about Lionism. Contact any member to obtain a brochure.

The club voted to purchase 15 Lions vests for use at club functions. Individual Lions who wish to purchase their own vest can buy one through the club treasurer.

Miss Buckhaults, whose father, grandfather, and great grandfather were all Lions, told the club about the People to People Ambassador Program, which originated with President Dwight Eisenhower. As part of this program, she will be going to Washington, DC, next April to learn leadership skills during visits to Capitol Hill and other points of interest. The club agreed to sponsor Minnie as she raises funds for this trip.

There being no further business, we were adjourned.

Activities picking up at Clarendon College

As the fall semester gets closer, activities are picking up on campus. Bulldogs Days was this past weekend, and we had about 35 students and their families attend. New students, their families, and the faculty and staff at CC enjoyed a cookout on Sunday night as well as Twister and a game of kick ball. The library was full of students testing on Monday morning, and the faculty and staff kept busy advising and registering the students for the fall semester.

Coach Tony Starnes and his staff are holding Bulldog Basketball Camp this week, and about 24 kids are in attendance. Campers in kindergarten through sixth grade are at the camp, which will continue until Thursday. To take a break from the heat of the basketball gym Monday afternoon, kids were taken on a scavenger hunt around campus and stopped by the main office on their route to the finish. All of the campers seemed to be having a good time, and we were glad to have them on campus.

The Donley County Relay for Life will be held on the CC campus this Friday, August 17, from 6 p.m. to midnight. The event will take place at the college track with teams from around town walking to raise awareness and funds for cancer research for the American Cancer Society.

If you haven't yet registered for fall classes, you will have several opportunities over the next couple of weeks.

Registration will start in Pampa on Wednesday, August 22, and Thursday, August 23, from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Clarendon College - Pampa Center at 1601 Kentucky in Pampa. Evening registration in Childress will be held on Wednesday, August 22, from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Clarendon College - Childress Center at 1902

Ave G. NW Suite 1A in Childress.

Registration will continue at both CCPC and CCCC from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Friday, August 24.

Registration in Clarendon will be held on Monday, August 27, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. in the administration building on campus. Registration will wrap up in Pampa on Monday, August 27, and Tuesday, August 28, from 6 to 8 p.m. and in Childress on Tuesday, August 28, from 6 to 8 p.m.

Anyone needing a schedule of the fall classes can visit our website at www.clarendoncollege.edu.

Bulldog Volleyball will get started on August 24 and 25 at the Eastfield College Tournament in Mesquite. The ladies are scheduled to play Galveston College at 9:15 a.m., Eastfield at 11:45 a.m., and Bacone College at 3:15 p.m. on August 24. The ladies will wrap up on August 25 against Allen County Community College at 8 a.m.

Look out for the students on campus starting Sunday, August 26, when dorms open at 2 p.m. A welcome barbecue will be held at 6 p.m. Sunday night at the BAC for all new students and their families.

Classes will begin Wednesday, August 29; and a community ice cream social will be held at 7 p.m. that evening. The churches in town are providing the ice cream, and we invite everyone in the community to come out and welcome our students to campus.

Extension tips to get ready for school year

By MaryRuth Bishop, County Agent

Summer Changes. Back-to-school struggles still surprise many parents. After all, kids go back to school every year - why don't they know what to expect?

Well, consider this: The growth rate of kids is so fast that going back to the previous year's routine can seem pretty stale. Kids either dread or look forward to a new school year depending on what they remember from last year. Expectations are nearly everything. What's it like to go back to school? Imagine a job change for you. Your kids also may be in a new building this year, which makes it even harder to feel comfortable.

Get a Grip. Your relationship with your children has a great effect on them. So it's important not to act too crazed about the return to school. Build in extra time, put irrelevant projects on hold, stay rested, and try to stick closer to your kids. Dads need to listen up, too. Many jobs seem to pick up at this time of year, and it's easy to get sucked down by the undertow.

Case the Joint. Even if your child knows the school well, it still feels good to get reacquainted. My third-grade daughter was always crabby until she saw her classroom, thought about the schedule, met her teacher, and picked out her clothes. Your kids may enjoy getting a "sneak preview" with another child from her school or class. Call before you go, since school buildings may be open the Saturday before opening day.

Don't Clean the Slate. Fresh starts are so promising that we tend to overdo them. This may seem like a great time to clean up, sort out, and set new ground rules for family life. Chores are reassigned, allowances renegotiated, and afterschool sports and activities scheduled.

While change is good, the timing requires some reflection. Too much too soon can make even the most cooperative child balk. Focus on the start of school, and revisit the other issues after your kids feel more settled.

Be Reassuring. Tell your kids that they'll be fine! Before school starts, encourage them to reconnect with school buddies they may not have seen over the summer. This may take some brokering, depending on the particular social appetite of your child, but it's money in the bank for reducing fears of isolation in the new classroom. If they want to, let them take part of their sticker or baseball card collection to school (with the teacher's approval).

Set the Stage. Shopping for supplies and clothes should be fun, but overdoing this can be boring and a little scary to kids. Spend time thinking together about quiet time and reading and work space in the house. Choose special places, like corners of rooms, or certain tables or chairs, to show your kids that you'll help them find space where they can do the things that matter, like reading and homework.

Meet the Teacher. Your child is still young enough to feel comforted by an open communication between parent and teacher. In fact, when parents and teachers have regular discussions about school and home events, kids feel a more trusting connection with the school as a whole and tend to try harder both socially and academically. Check-ins about new or recently lost pets, family moves, births, and deaths can help a teacher fathom something in your child that might otherwise seem mysterious. Most schools would rather know sooner than later if you are worried about your child's experience.

Final Discover Donley County Clue. Thank you for participating in this fun summer activity. We had many who participated and won Radio Shack movie rentals or Sonic ice cream cards.

The final clue is: Of all the historical markers in town which one is for the oldest building? Remember to turn in your answer to the library.

Coming up: Quilt Quest - third Thursday of each month, 5:30-6:30 pm Library. Contact MaryRuth at the Extension office 874-2141.

Check out great fiction works in Burton Library

Burton Memorial Library congratulates THE CLARENDON ENTERPRISE on numerous honors received during West Texas Press Association's 2006 Better Newspaper Contest two weeks ago.

Not only did the ENTERPRISE receive first place in General Excellence, but also Editor Roger Estlack was awarded first place in the Column Writing category. Second and third honors in other categories were also awarded to THE CLARENDON ENTERPRISE. In addition to Roger's past service as the organization's 2006-2007 President, he was named board chairman for the coming year.

Roger, our community is proud of you and your staff's effort to make Clarendon's newspaper one of the best in West Texas.

To all of you who are ready to get involved in more good fiction, you may want to try best selling authors Rosamund Pilcher, Maeve Binchey, Lori Wick, and Jan Karon. No, many of their books are not brand new, but I can almost guarantee they contain wonderful stories with unforgettable characters in whose lives readers can become absorbed.

Pilcher's writings take place in her native Scotland. Many of you are acquainted with her novel, Shell-seekers, which became a "publishing phenomenon" after sales of almost four million copies worldwide, and was on the bestseller list for two years. She followed this novel with September, another best seller. She has written numerous other novels and two books of short stories. New York Times comments, "When you've finished one of Rosamund Pilcher's novels, you're ready for another one."

Readers will discover an additional understanding of human feeling in Maeve Binchey's Light a Penny Candle, Circle of Friends, The Copper Beech, and Echos presented against an Irish setting.

With over a million copies in print, Lori Wick's pioneer fiction and contemporary writings remain favorites with readers. Four of her series: Californians, Rocky Mountain Memories, English Gardens, and A Place Called Home include such titles as Promise Me Tomorrow, Whispers of Moonlight, The Visitor, Wings of the Morning and What Tomorrow Brings.

Jan Karon's Mitford Years series: A Light in the Window, These High Green Hills, and Out to Canaan will delight readers as they become acquainted with father Tim, the local rector; Miss Rose; Hoppy Harper; Sadie Baxter, last surviving member of Mitford's oldest family; Dooly, a hostile boy left in Father Tim's care; Cynthia Coppersmith, the rector's attractive neighbor; Hal Owen, country vet; and Barnabas, a dog which becomes a great concern for everyone. A hint of mystery also confronts the community.

Since your children will soon be settled into school, and before you become busily involved in school activities, you might want to give yourself a leisurely break with these outstanding authors.

Beautification Club holds successful fundraiser

The weather was hot Saturday night, but it was cool inside the Community Center for the spaghetti supper sponsored by the Beautification Club.

It was hard to compete with vacations and a golf tournament, but everyone agreed we had the best spaghetti around. The workers were Greta Byars, Diana Knight, Trudy Miller, Leona Lingerfelter, Rosemary Winters, Peggy Cockerham, and Peggy Gaston.

We could not have made it without the donations of meat and fresh vegetables for the salads, Mac Miller with the music, and our husbands for the muscles. Greta made the fabulous peach cobbles, and Trudy was the official spaghetti sauce tester. She got it just right. We appreciate everyone's support, and maybe we can get some heat in the building.

August 17, 18, and 19 are sales tax holidays this year with backpacks added to the list along with clothing. I wish school supplies were included. Did you know the average parent spends around $400 per child for supplies?

Take a look at the supply list on the back page of the ENTERPRISE last week, and you will see why.

You can't help but wonder why a kindergarten student would need three bottles of Elmer's school glue, white only, plus six large glue sticks. I think I said my piece last year about all the Kleenex, and where do they store them? What happens to the left-overs? What happens if you don't bring a floppy binder but a regular binder?

One class is to bring 36 pencils. What in the world do you do with 36 pencils? I think I would have to rebel on some of this. It is ridiculous. I know kids. If they have a box of map pencils, they are going to mess with them, lose half, and Mom has another box to buy when they have that assignment. I think the teachers need to reevaluate the supply list and simplify.

I'm glad my four were in school when supplies were a Big Chief tablet or note book paper, a couple of pencils, a box of crayons, scissors, and an eraser. I still don't know what that AR folder is, but it must be important. Every child in elementary school brings $1.50 to buy one.

Our condolences to the family of Betty Linley who lost her fight against cancer on August 10. Please put her husband Dewey and son Mark on the prayer list.

Classy Dames Red Hatters visit Claude

Ten members of the "Classy Dames of Clarendon" Red Hat Club traveled to Claude for their meeting on August 4.

The Dames ate at Hole in the Wall BBQ and enjoyed a very good meal. The Dames celebrated Pink Hat Jeanne Molder's birthday even though she was unable to make the trip. Then they enjoyed a concert at the Gem Theatre featuring the "Bunkhouse Boys."

It was a very enjoyable meeting. The Dames are looking forward to the Christmas Party in December, and many more trips to fun destinations in the Panhandle, and maybe even Oklahoma!

Agriculture adds fuel to food, feed, fiber supply

BUSHLAND – Agriculture has a challenge in front of it: the opportunity to help meet the energy needs of the future, said the director of Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

Dr. Mark Hussey, speaking at the "Alternative Energy Sources from Agriculture" field tour on August 8 at research facilities near Bushland, said agricultural research has helped meet the food, feed and fiber needs of this nation for more than a century.

Now it is being called on to help meet another need.

"I'm confident, as we look to the future, agriculture will be looked to as a provider of food, feed, fiber and fuel," Hussey said.

The challenge by President George W. Bush is to replace 30 percent of the current petroleum use in his country by 2030, he said.

Grain-based ethanol production will begin in the Texas Panhandle early next year, Hussey said. This, and other ethanol production nationwide, is important in meeting the country's short-term need for renewable fuels.

But the entire corn crop produced in the nation is not enough to meet the president's goal, he said.

It is going to require the conversion of biomass from grasslands, shrublands and dedicated energy crops, such as sweet and high biomass sorghums.

Meeting the 30 percent goal will take 1 billion tons of biomass per year, Hussey said. That is 140,000 tractor-trailer loads full of biomass delivered to a refinery 365 days a year.

"It's a tremendous challenge,"

he said. "Some folks liken it to the Manhattan Project."

"The research we saw today was really setting the stage."

Issues such as logistics still have to be researched and worked out, Hussey said. "How do you move those feedstocks to the refinery, and how do we store, pretreated and convert it to liquid fuels efficiently?"

How long before conversion of these grasses and sorghums into ethanol is realistically possible?

"Some folks think three to six years," he said.

Pilot plants are going to be in place soon and once the logistics of harvesting, moving, and storing biomass are determined, it will happen, Hussey said.

What's beyond that? Within 15 years, he said, these feedstocks and bio-based fuels will be converted directly to gasoline and diesel. Ethanol will continue to be essential, playing a role in oxygenating the fuels.

"Today we saw dedicated feedstocks – sorghum, perennial wheat – and the conversion of byproducts such as distiller's grains in support of the feeding industry," Hussey said. "We had a chance to look at native grasslands and shrublands."

No single crop or method of fuel conversion is the answer to meeting future energy needs, he said. Regional-based solutions will be best, with a combination of feedstocks considered.

"We talk about agriculture being from field to fork," Hussey said. "In the future, I think we'll be talking about field to fuel tank."

Producing quality product focus of beef short course

COLLEGE STATION – While beef demand continues at a brisk pace, consumers are paying close attention to its source and cattle producers are taking note, said one Texas Cooperative Extension expert.

"This is leading to some new emerging markets such as source and process – verified beef," said Dr. Jason Cleere, Extension beef cattle specialist and conference coordinator of the 53rd Texas A&M Beef Cattle Short Course. "(Consumers) are wanting to know where their product comes from and that it's 100 percent safe."

Several management and production issues are the focus of this week's short course in College Station, billed as the largest in the nation. Some 1,475 beef producers are attending the event, conference organizers said.

Ethanol production and the impact on corn and grain markets, plus rising fuel and fertilizer prices are other key issues cattle producers are facing, Cleere said.

"As a whole, input costs are a big concern," he said. "However, it appears the (strong) cattle market is going to hang around, and one of the other biggest factors (we've overcome) is drought."

Cow-calf producers should expect continued steady prices, but profit margins are extremely tight in the feedlot and packing sectors, said Randy Blach, executive vice president of Cattle Fax.

"My biggest fear coming into this year was elevated grain prices and what it would do to calf prices," he said during his market outlook.

However, prices have rebounded after slipping earlier in the year, and "we've been able to sell product."

"We've got record-high retail beef prices and we're asking the consumer to pay more for the beef product. So far, so good. Demand year to date is up."

However, the price of corn – and its relation to ethanol production – has led to much volatility for stocker and feedlot operations.

"We've got a corn crop brewing somewhere (around) 13 billion bushels," he said. "Somewhere in the 12.8 and 13.2 billion bushels (range) is the best estimate I've seen. Remember, we've got a situation going on here that demand for corn is going like this (pointing upward). Next year, we're going to have to be able to grow 13 billion bushels."

While this year's corn harvest projections have been positive and weather conditions have been favorable, Blach said these factors weigh heavily on cattle market pricing.

Dr. Elsa Murano, vice chancellor of agriculture and life sciences at Texas A&M University, told producers that work continues throughout the Texas A&M agriculture program to enhance commodities, particularly beef, through research and Extension.

"Nutrition and animal health are at the heart of such efforts," she said, noting recent approval of a new research veterinarian who will be located in Amarillo to "help the industry better serve that region."

(There's no punch line.)

What do you get when you mix Christianity, Judaism and Islam? In many parts of the world, it's a recipe for disaster. Yet in America, it's a formula that has peacefully endured for over 200 years. In fact, not only has it endured, it's flourished. The pundits may say that the ability for different faiths to coexist here comes from a lack of intensity and passion for any religion in America. But nothing could be further from the truth. Because we are free to choose which religion, if any, we'd like to follow it enables us to have a deeper, more personal relationship with our faith than would otherwise be possible.

And because no one religion needs to feel threatened by another, we can look to the similarities that unite us, instead of focusing on the differences. Two hundred million Christians, Jews, Muslims, Buddhists and Hindus agree. To learn more about freedom of religion, visit rememberfreedom.org. Or, feel free to ask the spiritual leader of your choice.

FREEDOM. APPRECIATE IT. CHERISH IT. PROTECT IT.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Level: Intermediate

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Golfers brave heat in Jack and Jill Tournament

By Sandy Anderberg

Fifty-four golfers made up 27 teams in the Jack and Jill Tournament held August 11-12 at the Clarendon Country Club.

The thirty-six-hole tournament was split into four flights with two places in each flight. Ruth Jackson was closest to the pin on number 15 at 8'2", and Gwen Ware had the longest putt on number nine at 17'7 1/2".

Thomas Maldonado and Whitney Osborn won the championship flight with a 119, and Michael and Jennifer Barnett finished second with a 124.

The first flight winners were Terry and Lynn Leggate with a 130. Butch Schollenbarger and Judy Bland shot a 132 for second place. Joe Davis and Laynae Uttech's 136 was good enough for first in the third flight, and Jerry and Quida Gage turned in a 140 for second.

The third flight ended in a tie and was played off on the card with the number one spot going to Martin Stevens and Elnora Haynes. Dean and Wanda Nazworth finished second, and both teams shot a 148.

Travis Wilson shot a net 63 to take first in the weekly men's game, and Jerry Gage was second with a 64. Tom Stauder and Mike Santos are tied for third with a 69. Eighty-seven year old Dan Ashford shot his age turning in a score of 87.

The women played Pick Two on Thursday, and Maxine McLaughlin took first with a 52. Wanda Nazworth and Susie Dale tied for second with a 55.

The team of Mike Santos, Jana Lemons, Bruce Ferguson, and Larry Lincycomb won the nine-hole scramble at eight under par.

The nine-hole scrambles will be played each Friday night beginning at 6:00 p.m. Call the Pro Shop at 874-2166 for more information concerning the happenings at the CCC.

Give yourself a financial tune up

PHOENIX - Are you in need of some extra cash flow this summer? A financial tune-up could help you squeeze some more cash out of an already stretched budget.

"It's important to reexamine your cash flow on a regular basis," said Mike Sullivan, director of education for Take Charge America, a national non-profit credit counseling agency. "Small moves can yield big savings over time. As our life circumstances change, so do our finances. What worked six months ago may be holding you back now."

Sullivan offers five tips for your mid-year financial tune-up:

Examine Retirement Savings - Forgoing an available 401(k) plan could be considered the cardinal sin of financial planning, especially if you are eligible for an employer match. You are essentially passing up free retirement savings. If you're not enrolled, now is the time. If you are already enrolled, consider upping your contribution if possible. If you aren't eligible to receive a 401(k), consider signing up for a Roth IRA.

Negotiate Credit Card Rates - Your credit card rates are not set in stone. They are negotiable. You can call your credit card company to find out if you qualify for a lower rate. It's as simple as asking. Keep in mind that you will be more likely to receive a lower rate if you pay your bills on time and maintain a low balance.

Adjust Tax Withholding - Did you receive a fat refund check from Uncle Sam this year? Guess what - that's not a good thing. A large refund check likely means you're withholding too much money from each paycheck. To remedy this, adjust your withholding to match your tax liability. You can see how your tax withholding affects your net pay with the free paycheck calculator on www.PaycheckCity.com.

Stock Your Emergency Fund - Everyone needs one, yet many of us don't have them. According to SMR

Research, about 43 percent of U.S. households have less than $1,000 in liquid savings. If you are one of them, a car problem, medical emergency or job loss could blow your entire savings and thrust you further into debt.

This is why it's important to have at least three months worth of expenses on hand. Acquiring the funds may be easier than you think. Track all of your spending for one month. What do you come up with? How much are you spending on eating out, dry cleaning or gas? Cut corners where you can and stash the extra cash in a liquid savings account. It will start to add up quickly.

Seek Professional Help - If your financial situation is overwhelming you or you just need a nudge in the right direction, consider seeking the advice of a professional. Credit counselors and financial advisors can break down the jargon.

To find a reputable financial expert, visit the Better Business Bureau at www.bbb.org.

ALT to present Rounding Third

Amarillo Little Theatre proudly presents the hilarious new comedy, "Rounding Third" as the first Adventure Space production of ALT's 80th Anniversary season. This new play reflects the passions, the joy, and the pain that fills the heart of any person who has ever loved a child who was competing for anything from sports to spelling bees.

"Rounding Third" is the tumultuous journey of two Little League coaches through an entire season, from the first tentative meeting to the climactic championship game. One is a tough, blue collar, win at all costs veteran coach. The other is a newcomer both to town and to baseball. He is a corporate executive who has agreed to be the assistant coach only because he wants a special activity with his son, who's never played baseball before.

Performances dates will be August 16, 17, 18, 23, 24, and 25 at 8:00 p.m. and August 26 at 2:30 p.m. For tickets, call 355-9991.

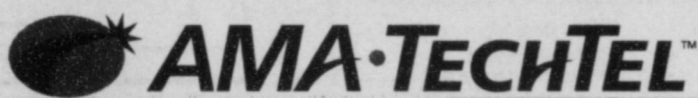

Little Cheerleaders

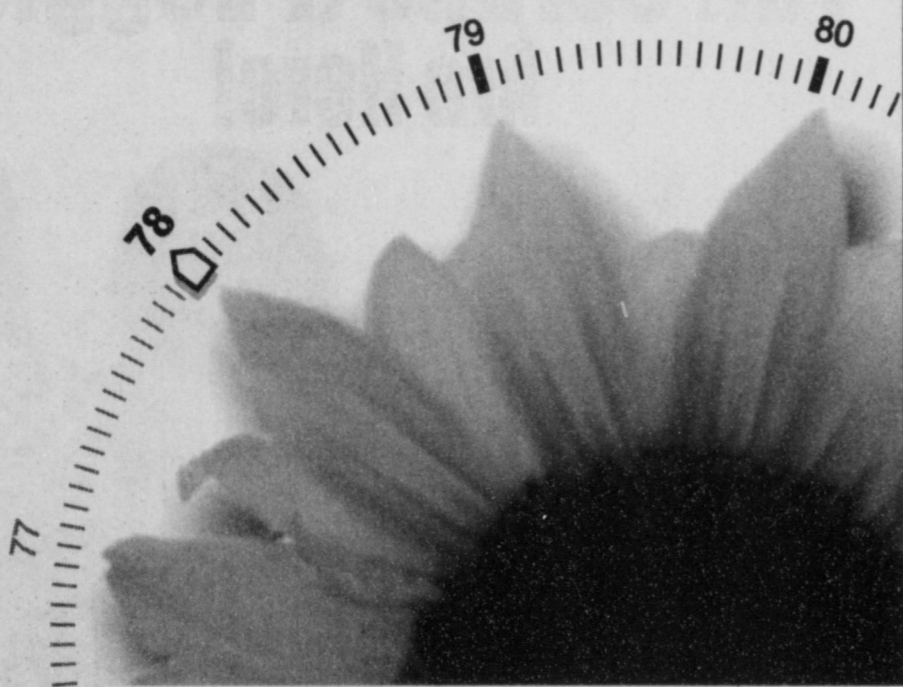

The Bronco Cheerleaders also conducted the annual Little Miss Cheer Camp during the first week in August. Twenty-nine campers learned cheers, chants, dances, stunts, and jumps during the three-day camp. The Little Miss Cheerleaders will perform at half time of the September 28 Bronco game.

2007 Property Tax Rates in Donley County

This notice concerns 2007 property tax rates for Donley County. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Last year's tax rate:	General Fund	Farm to Market/ Flood Control Fund
Last year's operating taxes	$ 552,163	$ 152,250
Last year's debt taxes	$ 145,558	$ 0
Last year's total taxes	$ 697,721	$ 152,250
Last year's tax base	$ 174,546,760	$ 171,549,296
Last year's total tax rate	0.399733 /$100	0.088750 /$100
This year's effective tax rate:
Last year's adjusted taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$ 697,452	$ 152,191
+ This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting value of new property)	$ 170,937,895	$ 168,008,886
= This year's effective tax rate for each fund	0.408014 /$100	0.090585 /$100
Total effective tax rate	0.498599 /$100
(Maximum rate unless unit publishes notices and holds hearings.)
This year's rollback tax rate:
Last year's adjusted operating taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property and adjusting for any transferred function, tax increment financing, state criminal justice mandate, and/or enhanced indigent health care expenditures)	$ 580,290	$ 152,191
+ This year's adjusted tax base	$ 170,937,895	$ 168,008,886
= This year's effective operating rate	0.339474 /$100	0.090585 /$100
x 1.08 = this year's maximum operating rate	0.366631 /$100	0.097831 /$100
+ This year's debt rate	0.085914 /$100	0.000000 /$100
= This year's rollback rate for each fund	0.452545 /$100	0.097831 /$100
This year's total rollback rate	0.550376 /$100

Statement of Increase/Decrease

If Donley County adopts a 2007 tax rate equal to the effective tax rate of $0.498599 per $100 of value, taxes would increase compared to 2006 taxes by $7,559.

Schedule A: General Fund - Unencumbered Fund Balances

Type of Property Tax Fund	Balance
Maintenance & Operations	$0
Interest & Sinking	$73,000
Road & Bridge	$0

Schedule B: General Fund - 2007 Debt Service

The unit plans to pay the following amounts for longterm debts that are secured by property taxes. These amounts will be paid from property tax revenues (or additional sales tax revenues, if applicable).

Description of Debt	Principal or Contract Payment to be Paid from Property Taxes	Interest to be Paid from Property Taxes	Other Amounts to be Paid	Total Payment
Courthouse Note	$90,094	$12,938	$0	$103,032
Software	$0	$0	$7,830	$7,830
Vehicles	$0	$0	$35,000	$35,000
Total Required for 2007 Debt Service				$145,862
- Amount (if any) paid from funds listed in Schedule A				$0
- Amount (if any) paid from other resources				$0
- Excess collections last year				$0
= Total to be paid from taxes in 2007				$145,862
+ Amount added in anticipation that the unit will collect only 98.41% of its taxes in 2007				$2,357
= Total Debt Levy				$148,219

Schedule D - State Criminal Justice Mandate

The Donley County Auditor certifies that Donley County has spent $98,246 in the previous 12 months beginning September 1, 2006, for the maintenance and operations cost of keeping inmates sentenced to the Texas Department of Criminal Justice. Donley County Sheriff has provided information on these costs minus the state revenues received for reimbursement of such costs.

This notice contains a summary of actual effective and rollback tax rates calculations. You can inspect a copy of the full calculations at 307 S Sully, Clarendon Texas.
