Services Held Monday for Anna Moores

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon in the First Baptist Church for Anna Moores with Rev. W. R. Lawrence, pastor, officiating.

Miss Moores died Sunday morning in Adair Hospital here following a very short illness. She had been a resident of Clarendon 35 years and had been prominent in social and business affairs throughout that time.

Anna Moores was born at Atlanta, Texas and came to the Panhandle at an early age. She moved to Clarendon from Memphis. She taught music and expression at Memphis and here in Clarendon and later taught in Beaumont, Victoria and Ennis, Texas.

She joined the staff of the Farmers State Bank twenty-eight years ago as Assistant Cashier and was later made a director of the bank. She served in this capacity throughout the years and always met customers of the bank and her many friends with a friendly smile and a heart-warming welcome.

Miss Moores helped organize music and art clubs here and was active in club work along with her business activities. She was a member of the First Baptist Church, serving that organization as choir director for many years. She was a member of the Order of the Eastern Star here also.

Survivors include one sister, Mrs. J. D. Swift of Clarendon; one niece, Mrs. Emmett Simmons of Clarendon; and one nephew, Dr. James Swift of Wichita Falls.

Palbearers were Van Kennedy, Lloyd Benson, D. E. Leathers, Joe Lovell, W. W. Taylor and George Benson.

Burial was in Fairview Cemetery at Memphis, Texas with the Murphy Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Dwayne Phillips, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Phillips is in St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo, following an accident in which a horse fell on him and broke his pelvis. He is doing very well at this time, but will be laid up for quite a while.

The purpose of this contest is to select a slogan to be used on the membership plaques that each member will display for the coming year. All Donley County residents are eligible for the $25.00 prize that is to be given. It is intended that your Chamber of Commerce serve the needs of the whole county, therefore, the slogan should convey the message which would fit this purpose. The Contest Rules are as follows:

1. The contest is open to any resident of the county.
2. Maximum of 5 words for the slogan.
3. Entry must be made on an official entry form.
4. Entry to be mailed to Clarendon Chamber of Commerce, Box 143, Clarendon, Texas.

Plans Progressing for County Fair

Plans are just about ready for the Donley County Fair and Quarter Horse show, says County Agent Flip Breedlove. The 1961 Fair Catalog will be distributed in the next few days and all committees are being contacted now and set up for the preparing of exhibits for the fair.

The premium money for the fair will be made possible by the business firms and individuals who have bought advertising in the Fair Catalog.

The fair will be held on Sept. 15 and 16 at the fair grounds in Clarendon Texas. The Quarter Horse Show will be held on the afternoon of Sept. 15 at 1:00 at the rodeo grounds.

All departments of the fair to be on exhibit must be set up on Sept. 14 so that they will be ready for the opening of the fair on Sept. 15. All judging of the different departments of the fair will be done on Sept. 15.

County Agent Breedlove will take the Donley County fair exhibit to the Amarillo Tri-State Fair on Sept. 17 and set up the county exhibit there from products taken from the community agriculture exhibits in the county fair.

Catalogs will be given to the committees in the next few days and some areas in the county are already working on their community displays for the county fair.

City Notice Regarding Solicitors, Peddlers

A report has just come in to us today (Tuesday, Aug. 22) stating that insurance salesmen are peddling insurance from house to house in the residential district. There is a city ordinance against soliciting or peddling from house to house in the residential area, without having been invited or requested to do so.

This Ordinance reads as follows:

"An ordinance regulating solicitors, peddlers, hawkers, itinerant merchants, or transient vendors of merchandise in the city of Clarendon, Texas: declaring it to be a nuisance for those engaging in such pursuits to go in or upon private residences without having been requested or invited to do so; providing penalties for the violation hereof; repealing all ordinances in conflict herewith."

The provisions of this ordinance shall not apply to the sale or soliciting of order for sale of milk, eggs, vegetables, poultry or other farm or garden produce.

The penalty for violation of this ordinance is not more than $100.00 and 30 days imprisonment or both.

If such solicitors or peddlers are reported to us at the City Hall, we will send an officer to take care of the matter.

Foxworth-Galbraith Reports Good Response To Reliance Homes

Foxworth - Galbraith Lumber Company officials have reported an enthusiastic public response to the firm's Reliance Homes program.

Reliance Homes, a new innovation in economical primary and vacation housing, were introduced by Foxworth-Galbraith in 41 North and West Texas communities on July 25.

"We have learned from the many inquiries, that the Reliance Homes' greatest appeal lies in the fact that they are built by the purchaser's own hometown lumber dealer," said J. L. Foxworth, Dallas, president of Foxworth-Galbraith. "People realize the many advantages of dealing with a long-established, local firm. For example, the Reliance Home purchaser receives Foxworth-Galbraith's written warranty against defective materials and workmanship."

Reliance Homes, ranging in price from $1,495.00 to $6,480.00, are built on the owner's lot for no down payment, no closing costs and as little as $29.50 per month. There are many different basic designs which can be built to any stage of completion, from semi-finished to finished. Additional designs are in the planning stage and will be offered to the public from time to time, according to Mr. Foxworth.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Patients as of Wed., August 23
Mrs. May Kennedy, Mrs. Pearl Teague, Mrs. Homer Hill, Miss Mary Howren, Mrs. Emmett Bryson.

Dismissals — Barbara Cospier, Neopolen Eckford, Mrs. Luther Hall, Tony Hernandez, Homer Parson, Buster Watts, Mrs. G. W. Wood.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Thomas and Clyde of Denver, Colo. are visiting a few days this week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Thomas.

Registration for the 1961-62 school year in Clarendon will begin today, August 24, according to an announcement by Supt. J. R. Cox.

Due to a delay in materials, registration will be held in the old building as will the first week of school. Plans now call for buying the high school wing of the new building on August 31 and if there are no further delays or interruptions, regular school will start in the new building on September 5. The college registration does not start until September 11 so there will be no conflict or inconvenience to instructors or students the first week in the old building.

High School Juniors and Seniors will register today, August 24 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The Sophomores and Freshmen will register during the same hours on Friday. Regular classes will begin Monday, August 28.

Junior High and Elementary students will report on Monday, August 28 to their respective rooms.

Supt. Cox reported that a general faculty meeting will be held in the College Auditorium beginning at 9 a.m. on August 26.

Busses will start their regular runs on Monday, August 28 and will be at the school by 8:15 in time for classes to start at 8:26. The Cafeteria will start serving meals on Monday also.

Supt. Cox said that the High School would run seven classes this year instead of the six in previous years and Jr. High will have eight classes per day instead of the usual seven.

Clarendon Jr. College To Have Own Building

Officials of Clarendon Junior College are making ready for what will possibly be their largest enrollment in recent years. According to information from Dean Oliver Abel's office, high school transcripts of prospective students have been coming in at a faster pace than usual and a definite increase in enrollment is almost assured. Registration has been scheduled for Sept. 11.

For the first time since 1927, Clarendon Junior College will be housed in a building all its own. Since the local school district assumed the operation of the college in the fall of 1927, the college and high school have occupied the same building. This situation necessarily limited the enrollment of the college. However, on July 9 of this year, the local school district voted a $750,000 bond issue for the erection of a new public school plant and improve the old college building. The new high school building is due to be ready for the fall term which means that the college will have all to itself the old building which has undergone considerable face-lifting during the summer.

The college now has facilities to accommodate a much larger enrollment than in past years. This information, which was published earlier in the summer, has apparently led to the increased number of enrollment applications. The administration and board of trustees of the college have been making every effort to be able to offer an excellent educational program for the youth of this area. New equipment in science and business administration along with improved library facilities and additional faculty members are among the recent improvements of the plant.

Week end guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Watson were Mr. and Mrs. Gale Ledbetter and Gary of Amarillo, Rex Watson of Colorado Springs, and Mr. and Mrs. Tren Stargel of Oklahoma City.

FOOTBALL TIME — Pictured above is the 1961 football edition of Clarendon High School. The Bronchos have been getting into shape with two practice periods daily, Monday through Friday, since August 14 in preparation for their first game September 1, with Snettett here at Broncho Stadium at 8:00 p.m. Coach Tom Jinks is looking forward to great things from this group with 11 returning lettermen. Fred Hedgecoke is assistant coach. Bottom row, left to right, Buddy Wooten, Bobby Cain, Bernie Green, Freddie McAnear, Kenneth Price, Loyd McCord, Douglas Bradshaw, Richard Bell,

The Next Steps in Space Exploration

After Mercury has demonstrated man's capability for space missions, the next step is to launch vehicles capable of carrying more than one man and capable of moving farther from earth. Project Apollo, a multi-man vehicle, is a follow-on to Mercury already under way, and later programs are contemplated. Among the missions planned for multi-man vehicles is the "space laboratory" concept, in which men would orbit earth performing a number of scientific observations which cannot be conducted on the surface. The Saturn vehicle, to be available in 1964, can launch a 25,000-pound laboratory into orbit. With mighty Nova, the United States will be able to launch a 290,000-pound space laboratory occupied by several individuals. This will probably come late in the 1960's.

During the decade, it is also planned to send manned missions around the moon. Finally, some time after 1970, hopes are to place man on the moon.

At the same time, research will continue with a variety of unmanned vehicles, aimed primarily at lunar exploration. First attempts will be lunar orbiting satellites, followed by the so-called "hard" landings of instrument packages which can send back basic data about the moon. After that will come "soft" landings with more fragile and more comprehensive instrumentation. One plan is to send a mobile instrument station, powered by solar batteries, to crawl about the surface of the moon sending back information to earth. Although this would be a very large payload, Nova is theoretically capable of sending 100,000 pounds to the moon.

The lunar exploration program will enable the space administration to perfect communications, guidance and propulsion systems preparatory to sending probes to other planets. Objectives of these planetary probes include studies of the origin and evolution of the solar system, the nature of the surfaces and atmospheres of other planets, and the most fascinating quest of all, the search for other life within the universe.

While the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is pursuing the peaceful approach to space exploration during the coming decade, the military services will investigate manned and unmanned space weaponry. Concepts already under study include controlled orbiting hydrogen bombs, manned hypersonic bombers circling the earth every 90 minutes, maneuverable space interceptors which could destroy enemy orbiting bombs or ballistic missiles, and manned reconnaissance satellites.

The prototype of the first manned space weapons system is already in development. Expected to fly in 1964, it is a one-man hypersonic glide bomber called Dyna-Soar which will be rocket-boosted into space to coast several times around the earth on its own momentum at speeds of more than 15,000 miles an hour.

Since little is known, even theoretically, about space warfare, the military space vehicle program is not yet clearly defined. It appears probable, however, that it will progress along lines similar to NASA's vehicle development outline. After the one-man prototype should come larger, multi-man spacecraft and, much later, orbiting "space bases," military versions of the space laboratory.

As space development progresses, NASA and the military services will maintain close coordination to insure maximum gains in both military and peaceful areas of space research. Working in concert with both groups will be the aerospace industry, the manufacturers of aircraft, missiles and spacecraft and their associated equipment.

The Role of the Aerospace Industry

The execution of the Long-Range Plan and its military counterpart in space research will require a major national effort. A particular requirement is close and harmonious teamwork between the various groups involved in the program.

The United States' space exploration team consists of three major members.

There is the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, whose job it is to plan and direct projects aimed at peaceful exploration of space and reap therefrom the scientific knowledge that will lead to betterment of the national way of life.

There is the Department of Defense, charged with investigating the military potential of space exploration.

The third member of the team, with co-equal status, is the aerospace industry, which has the responsibility for providing the "hardware" for both civil and military space programs. The most perfect organization, planning and direction of the space programs cannot produce the desired results if the equipment is not available.

It was logical that the aerospace industry should inherit the task of turning out space equipment. In more than five decades of building aircraft and missiles, the industry accumulated a tremendous storehouse of knowledge about flight within and out of the atmosphere.

Such knowledge provided a base for the development and construction of vehicles for space exploration.

Today, manufacture of equipment for both the civilian and military space programs is a rapidly growing segment of the aerospace industry's total work load. An example of industry's versatility is found in the fact that the company which has prime responsibility for Dyna-Soar, the manned space weapons system, is also manufacturing jet-powered airliners for commercial use. Dyna-Soar or any of the unmanned space projects would serve as an excellent illustration of the extent to which industry is engaged in the national space exploration program, but, because it is farthest along from the standpoint of hardware deliveries, let us consider the aerospace industry's contribution to the Mercury program.

The capsule in which the first American astronaut will soar through space is manufactured by a company known for a long time as a top producer of Navy and Air Force aircraft.

The launching vehicle for Project Mercury is a modified intercontinental ballistic missile, built by one of the leading aerospace companies which has for many years been producing aircraft and missiles.

The mighty rocket power plant which provides the "push" to put the capsule in orbit is manufactured by an old-line aircraft company which has in recent years diversified its products to include rocket power guidance systems and other products of the Space Age.

Another company, for years engaged in the production of aircraft systems and components, is responsible for the construction and maintenance of the tracking stations on the ground, ground-space communications, and the telemetry of data from the capsule back to earth, including the all important biomedical information as to the physical condition of the astronaut.

These are just the major elements of Mercury. Within the capsule, the launch vehicle and on the ground there are thousands of systems and sub-systems turned out by industry. The elaborate testing program for Project Mercury involved hundreds of articles — ground check-out equipment, small boosters, escape mechanisms, parachutes, training devices, etc. — provided by industry. Each major contractor in Mercury has hundreds of suppliers and subcontractors and altogether there are several thousand companies participating in the program. It is estimated that 90 per cent of all the equipment in Project Mercury is industry-supplied.

A further indication of the importance of industry's role in space research is contained in a statement by an official of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration:

"Our intention is to utilize industrial and educational and other non-profit institutions to accomplish the major part of our task. More than 75 per cent of our budget is spent with industry, while we retain 'in-house' only enough research and project activity to enable our people to work at the forefront of the field and thus to be able to manage effectively the technical efforts of our contractors."

To date, manufacture of spacecraft and their associated equipment constitutes only a minor portion of the industry's work load, but it is growing significantly. "Manufacture," as far as the aerospace industry is concerned, is a word whose meaning has changed considerably. It no longer denotes just the construction of a product, because fabrication of an aircraft, missile or a space vehicle is the lesser portion of the total job. More exacting is the expensive and time-consuming research and development of the extraordinarily complex products of modern aerospace technology and the extensive testing and re-testing required to make them completely reliable.

Reliability has always been an important factor in aerospace products, but with each leap in technology it becomes more important. Consider the degree of reliability required for a manned vehicle operating for long periods in the vacuum of space where malfunction of any part can be disastrous.

The need for such reliability in space hardware, coupled with the ever-growing emphasis on research, development and test, places severe demands on the capabilities of the aerospace industry. The industry must maintain large staffs of scientists and engineers to meet the new technological demands, increasing payroll costs. It must continually divert large portions of its meager earnings to the construction of new facilities to keep pace with technological progress. And, at the same time, it must constantly search for new methods of reducing costs to allow the nation to reap the most benefit from the funds available for space research.

Its role as producing partner of the space exploration team presents a real challenge to the aerospace industry, but it has demonstrated in the past its ability to rise to challenge. The accomplishments of the industry in the early years of space flight indicate its capability to carry out its part in the greater national effort that is to come.

A WORLD OF DISTRACTIONS

If there is one word which describes the condition under which we and all civilized peoples live today, it is the word "Distraction".

This is a common enough word, but it has wide and significant meanings. For one thing, the dictionary tells us, it means a drawing off or diversion of the mind. It means confusion and perplexity. Then, at the far end of the spectrum, it means aberration, frenzy, even madness.

We have a plentitude of distractions these days. The cold war goes on and on, ever-broadening, with no end in sight. The world's eyes were recently riveted on an unprecedented meeting of chiefs of state at the United Nations in New York where, literally, one well-aimed rifle shot could have marked the beginning of World War III. We have just gone through a political campaign of unique intensity, in which the decision was agonizingly close. We have witnessed a reign of terror in Africa which reads like a chapter from the Dark Ages. We have seen the establishment of what amounts to a Communist-dominated state a few miles from the Southeastern tip of this nation. And — in a single year — some 40 new countries with their own flags, parliaments, aspirations, and latent and unknown powers, have come into being.

On top of all this, we have our deep and passionate controversies at home — as to what should be done in such diverse fields as education, medical care for the old and indigent, the production of electric power in the nuclear age and, above all, the proper role of government in ordering and directing the lives of the people.

So "Distraction" is the symbolic word. Our minds are torn in a hundred fragments. The problem has been compounded to an enormous degree by magical progress in the arts of communication, visual and verbal. In a matter of seconds, some event taking place half a world away is made known to us, in words and pictures. In a matter of hours, we ourselves can physically travel half a world away from our homes.

It is no wonder that, living as we must in this turmoil, it becomes, as the old French proverb has it, more and more difficult to see the forest because of the trees. Fundamentals become dim and may even be lost beneath the cruel and blinding light of changing and threatening events.

But some things do not change. That is what we, because of our heritage and because of our inescapable position as leader of a free world confronted by a slave world which wants to destroy us, cannot afford to forget.

The question is: What is it all for, this spending of almost unimaginable resources of energy and treasure on a scale never before so much as approximated in history? Why may we be asked, as a people, for personal, material sacrifices greater than any we have yet known?

There is a simple answer — that we must defend ourselves and our friends among the nations against the forces of darkness which are our enemies. But that is not the whole answer by any means.

The real answer is that we are doing this — if it is to have any real and permanent meaning at all — in order to preserve the best and oldest ideal that history knows, which is freedom. Freedom means many things. It means a high degree of personal responsibility and pride, in which one cares for himself and his family without looking to government for aid unless no other avenue is open. It means, in the fine old sense of the phrase, a government which is the servant and never the master of the people. It means that leadership and national purpose come from the people and not imposed upon them from above. It means a deep spiritual belief that every man is important, as a person and entity — and that men in the mass can never be allowed to become powerless, driven pawn in a game played by rulers — everything worth-while will be lost too.

BLOWIN' Out the CORNERS
by Uncle Zeb

It is always nice to have a ready-made excuse for doing the things we want to do. Spending several week-ends in the mountains of New Mexico is certainly one of our most looked-for experiences. We take off when most any occasion gives us an excuse.

Our little booklet, "Along the Trails in Red River with Uncle Zeb" gives us that wanted excuse to run back and forth. We can always imagine that just about every souvenir shop in the valley is out of the book and needing to be supplied. This makes the perfect excuse.

On our last trip to Red River it seemed the whole hometown was there also. One of our friends remarked that he had more visits from neighbors there on vacation than he would have had in the same length of time back home. It is unusual, come to think of it, that we pass folks on the street and scarcely nod.

But, when we meet on vacation, it almost seems as if some lost relative had suddenly been found. We practically stop the traffic in order to talk with them. Speaking of the above book, and we like to do just that, we still have some left. We were pleased to find that many who bought a copy last year bought another this year and mailed it to a friend back home. If you already have one copy and would like to send one to someone you at a future date just send us your request along with the all would like to meet in Red River important One Dollar and we will write your name and message on the fly leaf along with a special word from Uncle Zeb and then mail first class.

EDITORS by and large are a mighty nice group of folks. We feel qualified to make this statement from experience because we have been thrown out of several editorial offices in the kindest and most gentle way possible. This would happen when we approached them with the idea of using this column. We still maintain they are a nice sort even on work days. On vacation time they are even finer.

On a recent week-end in Red River we had fun and fellowship with two of the above folks. One from our own hometown and the other from way over in Newkirk, Okla. He was Bruce Heydenburk, publisher of the Newkirk Herald Journal. We soon worked out a trade whereby we gave him a newspaper which we had borrowed from the other for a copy of his last issue. In his column "Jots And Dashes" we found the following interesting information on the Federal Aid to Education set-up. We quote in part.

"We have heard it said by supporters of aid-to-education from Washington that they will release this money without any strings attached. A check by the United States Chamber of Commerce shows otherwise. A federal employee in Minnesota threatened to remove an adding machine from a school if it should be used for any subject other than science. In Illinois a school could only use a room for modern languages—it could not be used for Latin. In another case the government dictated minimum wages which could be paid on a building where federal funds were used."

Editor Bruce further stated that, "Even the courts have held that the government can regulate that which it subsidizes." Even ole Dizzy Dean would say, "Ya don't hardly ever get anything for nothing." Of course Dizzy wasn't thinking of a fellow who traded a borrowed paper and then swiped a column from "other" one.

The Challenging Adolescent is the theme of the 16th Annual Institute on Children and Youth to be held near Hunt, Texas between August 28 and September 2. Judge Craven Beard of the Domestic Relations Court of Smith County, highlights the thinking of the meeting with the following paragraph.

"A three-legged stool with one leg missing is something less than secure. The three legs that undergird the adolescent are said to be Love, Limitations, and Permissive Growing Up in the Home." Without knowing the text of Judge Craven's talk we can venture into the field with our own thoughts. Each of us thinking of our own life as a youngster, and also our experiences as a parent. It would be a good idea if at least once each day the father and mother in each family would hold an institute, and when practical also include the children.

Love as the first leg to the stool is a must. No child can be expected to keep proper balance while growing up unless he has the feeling of being loved. Love becomes the Go-Sign for successful beginning to the journey through childhood. We believe that most children are loved.

Limitations could well be the leg that is usually missing. Often parents feel that love keeps them from being able to say no. Our love needs to be strong enough to overcome the this-hurts-me-more-than-it-does-you obstacle. We need only to think back to our own childhood to know that children respect discipline.

Permissive Growing Up in the Home could mean so many things. The family being together, working together, and praying together. It could mean that growing up our family was life's most important task. That our children need the best we have to offer as their parents.

Thompson-Kotara Nuptials Solemnized in Church Ceremony

Nuptial vows were solemnized Saturday evening, August 19th, in St. Mary's Catholic Church in Groom for Miss Judy Harlin Thompson and Mr. Dennis Raymond Kotara. Mr. and Mrs. George McClellan Thompson, Jr. of Clarendon, Texas are parents of the bride, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Stanley Kotara of Groom, Texas.

Officiating at the double ring ceremony was the Rev. J. Arnold Carlson, pastor of the church. Music for the wedding ceremony and the nuptial mass that followed was provided by Rose Mary Eakins, organist, and St. Mary's Choir.

The altar was adorned with arrangements of white pom poms, and white cloth covered the bridal isle. The pews were marked with white mums and gladioli.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, wore a gown of Alecon re-embroidered lace and silk peau de soie. The molded bodice was fashioned with a petal neckline and long tapered sleeves.

VISIT

Mrs. Bromley's FOR THE FINEST IN HOME PREPARED FOOD

Featuring a large selection of meats, vegetables, breads and desserts, served buffet style.

Five Blocks South of Palmer Motor Co.

Seed pearls and sequins accented the lace bodice and front panel of the skirt fashioned of unpressed pleats and sweeping into a graceful chapel train. Soft folds of peau de soie nipped the waist and formed a bustle bow at the back. Her triple tiered veil of imported illusion was attached to a shell hat of re-embroidered Alecon lace daintily trimmed in seed pearls and sequins. She carried a colonial bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids and stephanotis atop a white prayer book, a gift from the groom's mother. All of the traditions of something old, new, borrowed, and blue were carried out.

Miss Jackie McClellan was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Donna Estlack, Miss Frances Wallace, and Mrs. Roddy Seago, all of Clarendon, and Miss Nancy Helton of Groom. They wore sheath dresses of lavender peau de soie with matching embroidered overskirts and wide sashes forming bows at the center back. Their matching hats were Dior bows with hand-blocked nose veils. They carried colonial bouquets of shaded lavender asters. Sandra Kotara of Groom, sister of the bridegroom, served as junior bridesmaid. She was dressed in a modified version of the other attendants. Each attendant was wearing a gold bracelet, a gift of the bride.

Jerry Kotara of Groom, served as best man, and groomsmen were Ronald Kotara of Panhandle, Wayne Kotara of Groom, Wayne Stroope of Groom, and George Thompson III of Lubbock. Ushers were Maynard Kotara of White Deer and Jim Garland of Goodnight.

The bride's mother wore a sheath dress of imported mauve lace with matching velvet hat and accessories. Her corsage was of phalaenopsis orchids. Mother of the groom wore a champagne lace with elbow sleeves and full skirt. She wore a matching hat and accessories. Her corsage was of green cymbidium orchids.

When the couple left for a wedding trip to Colorado Springs and Denver, Colorado, the bride was wearing a Mr. Blackwell original of bone imported silk. The sheath dress with scooped neckline and cap sleeves was covered with a matching, walking length cut-away coat. She wore a velvet hat and matching accessories and orchids from her bridal bouquet.

Mrs. Kotara was an honor graduate with the spring class of Clarendon High School. She was Drum Major of the band, band sweetheart, editor of the annual, Who's Who in F.H.A., most outstanding band student, and member of the National Honor Society.

Mr. Kotara is a graduate of Groom High School, attended Amarillo Junior College and Texas Technological College in Lubbock. He is engaged in farming and ranching near Panhandle where the couple will be at home after September 1st.

The bride's parents were hosts for a reception in the Parish Hall following the wedding ceremony.

Mrs. Wallie Kayton of Amarillo greeted and registered the guests who were received by the parents, bride and groom, and their attendants.

The bride's table was covered with an imported linen cloth and centered with candelabra bearing white twisted tapers entwined with white asters and smilax. Mrs. Chauncey Hommel, sister of the bride, served the three-tiered wedding cake and Mrs. Odell LaGrone of Canyon, also a sister, poured punch. Mrs. Joe Pfeiffer, pianist, furnished soft music during the reception, and Miss Sharon Henson presented the guests with miniature rice bags.

Others assisting in the house-party were Mrs. John McClellan, Mrs. Bill Cushing, Mrs. Homer Estlack, Mrs. Lee Bell, Mrs. Harold Thomas, and Miss Janis Smith.

Following the reception the groom's parents were hosts for a wedding dance at the Legion Groom.

Lavender candles and asters centered the tables and place cards with miniature rice bags marked each guest's place.

The bride and groom exchanged gifts and remembered their attendants with gifts.

The Advantages of Attending a Jr. College

Accessibility
Having an institution of higher education within commuting distance means that more people are able to take advantage of education beyond high school. It has been found in states possessing a number of junior colleges that a much larger percent of people attend college than in states possessing a small number of senior colleges and universities. Many states now have accepted the idea that all its people are entitled to an opportunity of securing two years of college work within commuting distance of their home.

Environment
High school graduates are generally younger and less mature than those of a generation ago and most of them can profit measurably from a continuation of living in the home atmosphere. The faculty of a junior college is better able to adjust its teaching to a group with a small spread in age than can the senior college faculty with a greater spread in age and maturity.

Individual Help
The smaller enrollment of a junior college and its smaller classes make it easier for the faculty to arrange instruction to care for individual help for students in need of it. Often the teacher in a small class is able to detect and correct difficulties that might lead later to the student's failure and withdrawal from college. Special classes are organized in some subject matter fields to assist weaker students in making up deficiencies.

Counseling
The college counselors, faculty, and administrators have a much better opportunity to become acquainted with the student as an individual and to assist him in a much better manner to adjust himself to college life.

Student Activities
In a small college the student has a much better opportunity to participate in college activities and secure training in leadership, self-reliance, and cooperation with others so desirable in good citizenship. In the larger school, so many of the student body must, of necessity, sit on the sidelines, thus losing valuable experience of leadership and participation.

Preparation Fundamentals
Statistics show that junior college graduates are successful in their work at senior colleges. In fact, nearly all studies which have been made indicate that their grades are generally higher during the last two years of college than those of students who spent their first two years in a university. A recent study of the success of Clarendon Junior College graduates at senior colleges indicate that their grade point average increases after transfer. During the last three years we have had several students at North Texas, Texas Tech, Texas A&M, and West Texas State colleges who made the Dean's honor roll at those colleges with higher grades than they achieved at Clarendon Junior College.

Make-Up Work
Many students graduate from high school and find that they have a deficiency in background, courses to undertake senior college work. Many students, also because of the interruption of their educational progress by armed service experience, marriage, or other causes find that they need to review courses which they have already completed. The junior college, where the student may attend classes of his own age group, is the logical place for this make-up work to be done, rather than returning to high school.

Expenses
The small tuition charge of most public junior colleges represents a large saving over the living expenses, fees and tuition charges of senior colleges and universities. This saving will assist in meeting expenses of the last two years of attending a senior college away from home.

Vocational & Technical Preparation
Many technical and vocational fields do not require more than two years of junior college preparation. The titles carried by some of these programs are: secretarial, stenographic, clerical, bookkeeping, accounting, drafting technology, etc. These programs are usually tailored to meet the demands of the constituency of the junior college.

Adult Education
This term is used to describe many of the programs offered especially for the convenience of adults who are already employed in a trade, occupation or profession and who have a desire to upgrade themselves in their work. For convenience, most of these programs are offered in the evening division of the junior college.

Mrs. James Smith of this city, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Fowler and granddaughter Judy Fowler of Memphis attended the Evans Reunion at Lubbock recently. There were 45 relatives and friends present. They also visited the Fowler's daughter, Mrs. Sam Martinez, who was in Methodist hospital due to injuries received Sunday while on her way to church. She was reported improving at last report.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Noblet, Jr. of Oklahoma City announce the arrival of a daughter, Jennifer Lynn, August 18. The young lady weighed 8 lbs., 1 oz. and is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Noblet of Clarendon and Mrs. C. R. Guthrie of Oklahoma City.

Visitors in the W. C. Scott home Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hefner, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Scott, Cheryl and Chet, Mr. and Mrs. Don Barker and Brenda, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Harlan and Latrice, all of Amarillo and Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Hefner of Clarendon.

Mrs. W. W. Noblet returned home Monday after a visit with her son and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Noblet, Jr. at Oklahoma City.

Toby Jack Ray of Lubbock is visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jackson.

Our heartfelt thanks to all who extended comforting sympathy and helped in our recent sorrow. For the beautiful service, floral offerings, and other kindnesses, we are deeply grateful.

The family of Charles H. Darling.

I wish to thank my friends for their prayers, letters, beautiful cards, flowers and gifts sent during the time I was recovering from surgery. Abbye Warner.

Ben Ramsey's appointment as Railroad Commissioner — after a decade in which his name has been synonymous with the Lieutenant Governorship — carries with it several major political implications.

First, it's a pretty safe bet that the quiet-spoken East Texan will not be in the field of contenders for the Governor's chair. Pre-campaign speculation has had Ramsey in practically every gubernatorial race in recent years. Second, it leaves the 1962 race for the Lieutenant Governorship wide open. At least a half-dozen likely prospects already have been mentioned.

Third, it puts Sen. Bruce Reagan of Corpus Christi automatically in charge of the Lieutenant Governor's duties. He was elected by his colleagues as President Pro Tempore of the Senate shortly before Gov. Price Daniel's announcement of Ramsey's appointment.

There could be several "Lieutenant Governors" before the election this year. This depends on how many legislative sessions occur between now and then. Texas' Constitution provides that a President Pro Tempore shall be elected at the beginning and at the end of each session.

Governor Daniel has announced that he will call another special session before the end of the year. So it will be up to the Senate to elect a man who will assume the duties of Lieutenant Governor for that session. Then another will be chosen for the interim between its windup and the beginning of the next one. And so on!

Meanwhile, Reagan is first in line of succession to the Governor's office.

Ramsey's appointment to the $17,500 a year Railroad Commission post came as no surprise in political circles.

Appointment is for the unexpired term of the late Olin Culberson, which runs until January 1, 1963. Then, if Ramsey desires a full six-year term, he will have to stand for election.

Ramsey joins Ernest O. Thompson and William J. Murray, the present chairman, on one of the most important agencies in the state government. The Railroad Commission not only regulates all Texas oil and gas production, but all highway and railroad freight and passenger rates in the state. Another Special Session Assured

At the close of the called special session which voted a teachers' pay raise averaging $810 per year, Governor Daniel announced he will call another session sometime before the end of the year, to act on several matters.

He said he will submit such subjects as loan shark control legislation, a law to include banks in the recently-passed abandoned property act, juvenile delinquency legislation, and controls over municipal annexation.

The short session, in addition to the teachers' pay raise, also provided additional money for the operation and maintenance of school buses and for administration.

A law requiring runoffs in congressional elections when one candidate doesn't receive a majority was passed in the dying moments of the session.

Although the major objectives of the Texas State Teachers Association have been reached, there are more to come.

These include a sick leave plan for teachers; provision for assistant superintendent unit for large school systems; using average daily attendance, instead of scholastic census, as the factor for determining distribution of the State's available school funds to local districts; more driver education teachers; compulsory attendance for all children, six through 16, for the whole school year; and creation of regional film libraries.

Incidentally, the $810 teacher pay raise doesn't necessarily mean every teacher in the state will get such a raise. Some districts already are paying their teachers more than the state minimum. In such cases it's up to the districts to decide whether a raise is in order.

Sales Tax Explained

Prime targets of the state's new two per cent sales tax, which become effective September 1, are furniture, household and kitchen appliances, clothing with some exceptions, household supplies, toys, restaurant meals and gas and electric utility bills.

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE 18TH DISTRICT

By Congressman Walter Rogers

The Stupidest Animal

When God created the world, He no doubt experienced much difficulty in deciding upon which animal He would entrust with the thinking apparatus. He finally decided upon Man. Surely He has asked himself many times, "why?" He must have often wondered what would have happened had He entrusted some other animal with this ability. Would some other animal have spent substantial periods of each century trying to devise some weapon with which to destroy himself and create emotional reactions that would bring it into play? Perhaps He has reasoned, each time that Man has set upon himself and his brother, that these were growing pains in civilization; that Man would soon learn the futility of war and combat and would focus his attentions upon peaceful pursuits designed toward the betterment of mankind, rather than its destruction. Let us test the soundness of this reasoning on the scales of the last 100 years. Let us use this country as an example as the most advanced civilized nation. During the past century this country has engaged in five wars, including the one which we fought among ourselves. During this century our country has been at war 14 percent of the time. During the last 50 years, we have been at war almost 20 percent of the time. The casualties in the Civil War were 646,392 on the Union side and 133,821 estimated on the Confederate side. The Spanish-American War resulted in casualties of 4,108 to this country. World War I produced a casualty list of 320,518 (notice the difference between this and the Civil War). World War II produced casualties of 1,076,245 and the Korean War 157,530. I do not have actual costs in material wealth, but it is estimated that World War II cost this country upwards of $300 billion.

Yet today, with this history written in the lifetime of most of us, or so close thereto that we are all well aware of the tremendous price that had to be paid in life and property in all of these conflicts, we are presently standing on the threshold of another conflagration. Should this come, and God forbid that it does, it would provide the proving ground for the most recent innovation in military hardware with which Man has so long sought to destroy himself. One school of thought seems to be that Man will not be satisfied until he has tried out nuclear weapons. What is he trying to prove? That Man can destroy himself, despite his failure to do so throughout the ages? Is he trying to prove to God that he should not have been entrusted with the thinking apparatus in the first instance, or is he like a child who wants to see how far he can go in playing with fire before he gets burnt?

Had the same blood, sweat, brainpower, and material wealth that were sacrificed in any one of these wars, or all of them, been utilized for the progress of civilization, it is impossible to conceive of the achievements which could have been produced. Our probing into outer space would be far, far ahead. In fact, we would probably have made contact with the moon and the planets in outer space. We would have undoubtedly solved the problem of separating salt from sea and brackish waters. The deserts would probably be in bloom and the peoples of this earth would have available the food and water for the sustenance of life. Cancer, heart disease, and many other ailments of Man would no doubt have been defeated. There would have been many, many other accomplishments that would serve Man and make for a much better world.

A brief look at the budgets of this country over the past several decades will reflect that well over 50 percent of the tax dollar of the individual citizen goes for the payment of previous wars, expenditures for immediate military needs, and expenditures and commitments in preparation for possible future wars. In fact, this requirement on the sorely burdened taxpayer has constituted approximately two-thirds of the taxes that have been collected from the individual U. S. citizen.

Man has had many successes and has moved forward with great strides since the beginning of time. And certainly nothing should be said by one man about another to detract from this splendid progress. However, with the evidence that can be gathered in the last 50 years on our many failures, a serious indictment could be written. How would you vote on the question of whether or not Man has fulfilled his responsibilities as the proper animal to have been entrusted with a brain?

HOT WEATHER TIP FOR KEEPING FLOCK ON JOB

Hens, like a lot of people, slow down when the temperature climbs. This slow down, says Bill Cawley, assistant extension poultry husbandman, results in a drop in egg production; lower income for the producer and fewer eggs for consumers.

Hens perform best when the temperature ranges between 55 and 75 degrees F. Egg production takes a noticeable dip when the thermometer hits 80 degrees and many hens will die when the 100 and above mark is reached.

But Cawley says flock owners can do something about the weather in this case. Here are his suggestions: give the hens plenty of cool 70°, clean water and a continual flow waterer is recommended; all sides of the house should be open to permit cross ventilation; exhaust or circulating fans will aid in air movement; all vegetation within 50 feet of the poultry house should be kept mowed and grass around the houses will cut down on heat from reflection; a fine mist of water sprayed on the house roof will reduce temperature through evaporation; actually spraying the birds on extremely hot days with a garden hose will pay; if the roof on the house is a dark color, a coat of whitewash is a good investment.

Also avoid built-up litter during the hot months. Use only about two inches of floor litter. Use lights at night to encourage water and feed consumption and using pelleted feeds will increase consumption and help improve egg production.

from the County ASC Committee

ASCS COMMITTEE ELECTION SET

Farmers of Donley County are being urged to take part in the election of their local Community ASCS Committee, which is scheduled for this coming September.

Mr. W. H. Cooke, III, chairman, Donley ASCS County Committee, points out that this annual election is one in which all eligible farmers should feel a duty to participate.

The Community ASCS Committee to be elected consists of three regular members and two alternates. The chairman and vice chairman of the elected committee will serve as delegate and alternate delegate to the county convention where the county

ASCS committee will be chosen.

Any person may vote in the community election who is eligible to participate in any program administered by the county committee. There are some limitations on voting. Each voter is entitled to only one vote on any one ballot. If a voter has an interest in a farm, or farms in more than one community in a county, he or she may select the community in which he or she wishes to vote, but the vote may be cast in only one community of the county. In the case of partnership farms, the vote may be cast by either partner, and a corporation's vote may be cast by any authorized officer of the corporation.

1962 WHEAT PROGRAM

Farmers will vote in a referendum Aug. 24, 1961, on whether or not marketing quotas will be in effect for the 1962 wheat program. This vote also will decide whether the special wheat stabilization program is available in 1962. As in other years, at least two thirds of the farmers voting must approve the quotas if they are to be put into effect.

You are eligible to vote in the August 24 wheat quota referendum if you produced more than 13.5 acres of wheat in at least one of the 3 years, 1959, 1960, or 1961. Any producer who signed applications under the feed wheat provisions permitting them to grow wheat for feed use on the farm for 1961 will not be eligible to vote.

If marketing quotas are approved for the 1962 wheat crop by at least two-thirds of the growers voting in the Aug. 24 referendum, the following program will be in effect:

1. Price support at a national average of $2 a bushel will be available on the 1962 wheat crop to those producers who comply with their 1962 farm wheat allotments and who participate in the special wheat stabilization program for 1962 to the extent prescribed by the Secretary.

2. Wheat growers who cooperate with the special 1962 wheat stabilization program may earn payments for diverting a portion of their wheat acreage to conservation uses.

3. All farm wheat allotments for 1962 will be reduced 10 percent below the farm allotments.

4. Farms subject to wheat marketing quotas for 1962 will be those on which the acreage of wheat exceeds the smaller of 13.5 acres or the highest acreage planted to wheat on the farm for harvest in any of the calendar years 1959, 1960, or 1961.

If more than one-third of the growers voting in the referendum oppose marketing quotas for the 1962 wheat crop:

1. Price support at only one-half of the parity price will be available only to those farmers who comply with their 1962 farm wheat allotments.

2. There will be no wheat stabilization program providing payments for diverting acreage to conservation uses in 1962.

3. The lower acreage allotments will remain in effect for the 1962 wheat crop as a condition of eligibility for wheat price support.

4. There will be no restrictions on marketing of wheat and no penalties on excess wheat.

RYE PRACTICE

If you intend to plant rye this fall for a cover crop, please let this office know by Sept. 1.

GEORGE'S WIFE

By "Sarah"

We had been reading Mr. Wes Izzard's column about what we in this part of the country should do to attract tourist trade, or rather what Amarillo could do. Thought it was such a good idea that partly by plan but mostly by accident we had a chance to try it last week. Not through the Chamber of Commerce, because we didn't have time. It was on a person-to-person relationship, and those who shared in this experience were some of the finest youth in our community. But let us relate the story just the way it happened.

There were five young ladies all wearing Texas cowboy hats came into our place of business Wednesday of last week for Mexican dinners. Not having too much experience with Mexican food, and mistaking them for Mexican or Spanish speaking people we asked for their opinion. To our astonishment four young ladies were from France, the other one from Brazil. Only one had ever tasted Mexican food, all were just trying out anything they had never eaten.

They were exchange students, some going to the University of New York; others in Pennsylvania. They had pooled their money and were seeing the USA.

We told them of the Editor of the Amarillo paper plugging for a guided tour of our ranch country. They wanted more than anything else on their trip to see a Texas ranch, but had no time, if such a tour was already in operation, to spend that long. They had only the evening and night.

They were able to stay on the rigid schedule they set for themselves. The girl who waited on them, and who lives just inside the RO Ranch, agreed to take them home with her. Willa Rumpy, and sister Jenette, Judy and Carolyn Castner of Lelia Lake and other young girls came to the rescue.

They camped out 15 miles from town on a creek. Our girls gathered roasting ears, watermelons, tomatoes and whatever else was growing in their garden, while the exchange students had their cook stove and all the camping-out equipment needed, including air mattresses and sleeping bags.

This is the excited account of the experience from, first Judy, then Willa, and sometime, both, talking at the same time.

Toured RO Ranch, rode in a buckboard, saw real cowboys, went to drive-in show for the first time, camped on a creek, they sang songs in French, the one from Brazil sang in Portuguese, they asked what a shelter belt was (giggle) asked what grain was and what we used it for. (If I'd been the one to answer that one, I'd have told them to store away) wanted to know what the sun-flower was on the highway and all the other flowers they saw. They bought their cowboy hats in Dallas and all liked Texas best. They called oatmeal porridge. One girl said New York was beautiful, but was made of steak and power and people trying to get ahead with more money, while people here were just friendly ordinary folks who didn't need wealth to have beauty.

Judy bought a watermelon, when all the time her dad had them by the pick-up load. The car got hot and died. Our girls told them the heat killed the motor. They wanted to know why we say, "kill the motor," and is it dead for always?

There are pictures of all this. Just wish we had a recording. They had a lantern lit, and all sat around it until the wee hours of the morning.

Our girls came to work with knots on their heads and sore backs from sleeping on the ground with just one quilt. There will be much writing and picture-exchanging for months to come, and we might hope for years to come.

The students will be Juniors this year. Maybe they will finish in this country. The experience they had with youth their own age will leave a much better taste in their mouths than if we had questioned them as we had started to do. Such as, why did Brazil move their Capitol into the interior; and if New York steel and power; and how about their out-of-this-world new Capitol City. And, could we exchange Charles for Robert, or maybe even John. They were very good ambassadors for their countries; just hope our American students are doing as well.

Cover Crop Essential To Soil Conservation

From now until around the first of October is the time to consider planting your cover crop.

Cover crops are needed most on cotton land and bundle feed land. There is very little residue left from these crops to protect the soil during the winter and spring. This gives way to the hazard of blowing and washing.

A good cover crop such as rye, or rye and vetch, will control the erosion problem and at the same time build up the soil. The moisture that a cover crop uses will be more than made up for in other benefits.

Coleman Shields and Don Altman are already getting their cover crop seed down.

Don Altman has constructed a special inter-row seeder just for planting rye in his cotton middles. This rig plants three 40 inch middles with three drill rows per middle. Altman says he has been practicing this type of cover cropping for seven or eight years.

Coleman Shields is using a different type rig than Altman's. His is a whirlwind type seeder mounted on the front of his tractor. This seeder is used in conjunction with your last cultivation.

Both Altman and Shields agree that the results of cover cropping with rye will show up in increased cotton production.

Shields' seeder is owned by the Donley County Soil Conservation District and is available for use by anyone interested. These rigs are relatively cheap to rent and costs nothing to operate. Simply mount on front of your cultivator, hook it up to the tractor battery and seed your cover crop as you cultivate your cotton. This saves an operation over the row-type seeder.

However both the row type seeder and the whirlwind seeder are available from the local Soil Conservation District.

Next time you are in town drop by the Soil Conservation Service office and see about cover cropping on your land.

BOB SPENCER HONORED AT WENTWORTH MILITARY ACADEMY

Cadet Robert C. Spencer, son of Mrs. Dollie Dee Bain, recently returned home after attending the summer session at Wentworth Military Academy in Lexington, Missouri. The summer school at Wentworth is operated for Cadets who desire to accelerate their academic programs.

Bob was among those honored at the summer session closing exercises at the Academy. During the ceremonies he was presented a certificate for having been named "best drilled new boy," according to William Moses, assistant professor of Military Science at the Academy. Bob was also runnerup for the Best Kept Room and for Department. He will return to Wentworth August 31 for the fall session.

Don't forget that our annual reunion of all ex-students and teachers of Lelia Lake will be held this year on Saturday, September 2. It has been suggested that those exes living in or near Lelia Lake bring a salad and either a pie or a cake.

Remember the time is 6:00 p.m. and the date is September 2.
