Ex-Senator Vest Dead.

After lingering for weeks between life and death, former Senator G. G. Vest passed peacefully away Tuesday at his home at Sweet Springs, Mo. He had been near death's door for the past three days and the end came without a struggle. He was conscious until about 2 a. m. Sunday morning, when he sank into a state of coma, from which he was never aroused.

At his bedside when the end came was his wife, Dr. Jarvice, the family physician; Senator Vest's son Alexander, his daughter, Mrs. George G. Jackson, and her husband and Mrs. Thompson, a niece of Mrs. Vest.

The remains were taken to St. Louis in the private car of the general manager of the Katy railroad for interment there.

Senator Vest was born at Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 6, 1830, and graduated from Center college, Kentucky, in 1848. He completed his law course at the Transylvania University in 1853 and moved to Missouri the same year. He was in the Missouri senate when the war broke out. He went with the south and became a confederate soldier.

He was elected to the United States senate in 1879 and served until December, 1903, when, on account of failing health, he retired to his daughter's home, at St. Louis. He made the same gallant fight for life that has always marked his battles in public but odds were against him.

He was small in stature, slow and deliberate in movement and never lost his temper. In the senate he was regarded with veneration and whenever he arose to speak every member hurried to his place to listen.

Vest was always old-fashion in his ideas and dress. He lived simply and was a poor man. He was addicted to old-style frock coats, broad slouch hats and long ties. His linen was aggressively immaculate and his ties invariably black.

During the last year he had been sinking rapidly. All day long he sat in his great leathern chair, his pallid face on his breast, his ashen hands folded in his lap. Once in a while his great mind—once titanic in its power—flashed up again for a moment only to fade again.

In Washington, as in his home state, he will always be remembered as the "Little Giant," a term given him by loving friends who admired his prowess when, in the heyday of his health and strength, he made campaign speeches all over Missouri.

RUSSO-JAPAN WAR NEWS.

Dash For the Sea Repulsed.

TOKIO, Aug. 11.—Evidently driven to sea by the fire of the Japanese land batteries, the Russian fleet emerged from Port Arthur yesterday morning. Admiral Togo immediately closed in and opened a severe engagement. It is thought here that the Russians attempted to escape seaward, from a base which is no longer tenable, but that they again refused to attempt to force Admiral Togo's line.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—The Japanese legation received the following cablegram dated Tokio today:

"Various reports from Talien Bay say the Russian squadron emerged from Port Arthur on the morning of Aug. 10. A severe battle ensued lasting until sunset. In the night our flotilla was seen to attack the enemy's squadron for a demonstration on Aug. 11. The Retvizan and another battleship of the Peobieda type appeared to be taking flight toward Port Arthur.

CHEFFO, Aug. 11.—It is reported the Japanese protected cruiser Kasaga was sunk off Round Island in the recent engagement. The Russian ships, before leaving Port Arthur, took on board heavy stores and materials for ship rebuilding. The torpedo boat destroyer Ritsitelin has been dismantled by removal of the breaches of her guns.

The Japanese are reported to be lacking in sufficient large guns. The present supply is mostly from the fleet.

Nebraska Populists

In the Nebraska populist state convention Bryan and the democrat leaders were present and put in hard work for fusion. First, the only division consented to by the populists was on state officers, conditioned that the democrats support the pop. national ticket. This the dems. would not do, and after an all-night wrangle they agreed on five of the best officers for the pops, the other three to go to the democrats, and each to support there own national ticket.

The completed ticket follows: Governor—George W. Berg, populist.

Lieutenant Governor—Dr. A. Townsend, democrat.

State Treasurer—John M. Osborne, populist.

Auditor—J. S. Canady, populist. Attorney Gen.—Edward Whalen, democrat.

On account of the large cotton crop in Comanche county, Ok., school will not open until Nov. 1, the children being required in the fields.

No candidate for the presidency was ever more seriously handicapped than Judge Parker, and yet all good democrats hope for his election. Here in Texas he is forced to carry Geo. Clark and James Stephen Hogg, while nationally he is loaded down with William Jennings Bryan and Grover Cleveland. To cap the whole the leading republican paper of Texas is lending its mighty support to the man from Esopus. Truly would the gentleman be justified in exclaiming, "Save me from any friends." —Claude News.

The State Blind Institute.

To THE CHRONICLE:

The many inquiries that have come to me from all over the State about the nature of this institution, some of them from newspapers, have induced me to offer a general reply through the State press. Your generosity in publishing the following facts will be appreciated by the public, and valued by the blind as a class. I have simply taken up questions asked in person and by letter from time to time during my administration as Superintendent of the institution, and have answered these consecutively. The question of educating the blind is one of public importance, and it ought to be encouraged in every possible way. The institution was established in 1856, and enrolled only seven children that school year. It has had twelve superintendents, whose terms have covered periods of time all the way from a few months to twenty years.

The real nature of the institution is simply a large boarding school for the education of blind children or those with defective eyes. We do not receive and care for grown-up blind men and women, it is strictly a school with boarding facilities for ages from 7 to 21.

If a child of six is unusually bright, has good health, is able to dress himself, and attend to his ordinary wants, we do sometimes receive at that age. If a pupil has entered school before 21, and has not finished his education until after that age, he is allowed to remain longer. In a few cases pupils have been continued for post-graduate work beyond the age limit. But all these are special concessions.

The course of study is about the same as that of the best high schools in Texas, and is graded like the public schools. In geography they have relief maps and globes, and with these they get as good an idea of topography and location and configuration as the seeing child does. In arithmetic they have little fonts of type, very much like the fonts of a printing office, only each cell of the font holds one figure or type and no more, and this is set up endwise, so that the face of it may be felt with the palmar surface of the finger. In examples, they set up the type in precisely the same relations as seeing people write their figures with a pencil.

In geometry they have cushions in which they stick wires with pointed ends, the wires making the lines where we use pencil or chalk. Three wires make a triangle, and thus they follow the wires as we follow drawn lines on paper or blackboard. For circles they use circular wires pinned down to the cushion, and for diameters, chords, tangents, etc., they use the wire rods. They learn it all quite well.

The boys learn to make brooms with machinery. They make over ten thousand in the school every year. When they go away from the school, they make a living at this trade. They also learn to seat chairs with cane, and their work is superior to that found in the chairs at the furniture store. They also make mattresses, and their work here also is fine. They also learn to tune pianos and repair them. There are no better tuners than the boys taught here. They also teach music to the seeing people. This is considered impossible, but it is quite practicable, and some of our boys are making good money here in Texas at this business. Some of the boys are pipe-organists, and do well in that line. Some of them teach literary schools for seeing children. The girls learn to do beautiful crochet work, zephyr work, basket weaving, ham-mock weaving, and many other useful things. They also learn music on various instruments, and make a living teaching mandolin, guitar, piano, organ and voice to seeing people. They also act as organists in churches. Some of them do orchestral work, and orchestra in the institution is one of the best in the country. Our exhibit of work at the St. Louis Exposition has taken the medal over all schools in America.

Music is written in raised characters, and they learn it with their fingers. They can copy in raised characters any piece of music in the world, and they can play the music of the masters constantly. They simply cultivate the faculty more than seeing persons.

The fingers can not detect color in a piece of goods, as some suppose.

The course of study now embraces eleven years but many take two years in one, and others require two years in one grade, so that the time depends on ability and application. They come in the middle of September and go home in the middle of June, just as seeing children do in any boarding school.

Some of them go on to the State University. One of our boys has graduated in a German University. Of course here their books are read to them by a seeing person.

If a child's eyes are so weak, and the vision so defective that he can not attend ordinary schools, he may come here. Sometimes a cure is made of the eyes that have been blind for many years. Often they are cured so as to see as well as other people. Of course they are then dismissed.

If a child does not want to go to the blind school, but to come simply for treatment, we do not receive him.

This is a school, and not a hospital or infirmary.

If a child enters school as a pupil, his eyes are treated as often as necessary. We treat the eyes of about one hundred children several times every day. The State Oculists perform many operations of all kinds, and in many cases restore the sight.

The younger the child to be admitted the better. We have placed the age limit at 7, but would take them still younger if they could care for themselves a little more. Ladies are employed to act in the capacity of mothers to look after them in all their needs, seeing to their beds, clothing, persons and everything else they need, accompanying them to the table and waiting on them there. A very excellent kindergarten department, in charge of a mother who understands children thoroughly. The department is well equipped.

They read as rapidly as you do. Take a bit of writing paper and put the point of a lead pencil against it pressing hard enough to raise a little point on the other side of the sheet. Now turn the paper over and put your finger end on that point. You can easily feel that there is but one point raised in the paper. That point is the letter "t" in the blind alphabet. Now turn the paper back and make another puncture a little to the right and a little above the first point. That is the letter "e." Now make two punctures a little to the right further on and on a level with the first point. The two points together make the letter "n," and you have the word "ten." This illustrates how it is done. Combinations of these raised points make all the letters.

We also have letters just like these you are reading, only pressed into the paper and raised on the other side.

They write the points above described, and do it rapidly. Of course they write thus only to those who understand how to read it.

To those who can not read this point system, their letters are written for them by teachers and officers.

Many of them use typewriters handsomely, and rarely make mistakes on a typewriter.

They have a library and reading room with volumes of the choicest literature in it, including all the standard works of history, travel, science, fiction, art, etc., including the most recent books, like the "Leopard's Spots," "The Crisis," etc. The requirements for admission are: Age 7 to 21; sound mind; fair health; good moral character.

The daily program is: Rise at 6; exercise; breakfast at 7; light recreation; chapel exercise; school opens at 8:30; recess at 10 to 11; dinner at 12:30; school at 1:30; closing at 3:30; then music practice, recreation on the lawns and galleries, or other forms of amusement; supper at 6; study hall 7 to 8:30; retire at 8:45. A bath and complete change of underwear is required on Wednesdays and Saturdays. On Sunday Sabbath school at 9 a. m.; go out to church in town at 11, if they desire to do so; preaching in the institution by

CHRONICLE Correspondence.

We are still having a pretty good time sight-seeing, but are reminded of one of Mark Twain's sage remarks that there "wasn't so much after all in seeing wonderful sights as in having seen sights." So we trust that by the end of this week we'll have seen sights and turn up in Clarendon. Once more the weather has been matchless for visitors much of the time. It seems as though September must have swapped places on the calendar with August, and a friendly haze has covered old Sols face, so that an umbrella is rarely necessary for shade. A gentle rain fell for an hour or two on last Wednesday, which laid all dust, and a breeze from the north ran the mercury down to 60. We have been much interested in the different races of men here represented. One can study anthropology as he could study it nowhere else on earth. All races and conditions of man can be seen, from the feminine Fijian, arrayed in little besides a broad grin and a string of blue beads; to the fifth avenue New York City belle, dressed in the highest Parisian fashion. Each are about equally a study. We spent much time in the Philippine encampment, which covers an area of forty-seven acres. Here we met, informally of course, over one thousand of our new country cousins, from across the sea, where they are housed in the same kind of huts in which they live in their own country. These huts were built by themselves, and we found them working and living about the same as in their nativity. All grades from the most enlightened Tisayan down to the dog-eating Igorot and Negritos, which are flat-nosed and kinky-headed and strongly resemble the African negro. The Visayan are the most enlightened artists in their work, and as a race have much musical talent. They have developed the art of wood carving to a high degree. Many of the men are fine looking, and the women quite pretty with pleasant address and manners; with just a trace of the almond eye, and a complexion similar to that of the Chinese. We talked with some of the young women who said they had been studying English for only one year, and yet they spoke it very well. Here we visited a native theater. We were highly entertained with the exercises, which consisted in most part of a colloquy carried on in song in the native tongue between the male and the female participants. Their dancing consisted in gracefully keeping time to the music, bowing and gesticulating to each other while the males and females were not in contact with each other, and no approach was made toward the objectionable contact as displayed sometimes in the modern dance of their highly civilized cousins in this country. As their final performance, they all joined in singing with spirit and animation the Star Spangled Banner in English, and as each, at the same instant, drew from seclusion a small American flag and proudly waved it, while a small Philippine girl with a larger native flag and a native boy with the stars and stripes crossed their banners and waived them, they brought forth a rousing applause from the audience. There was throughout the entertainment fine music discoursed by a native band of twenty pieces, including stringed and wind instruments and drums. But we must hasten on and dwell less on particulars. This was the only tribe we visited that were properly dressed or displayed any high degree of intelligence. As we said, each tribe had some theatrical and musical performance that we witnessed, but we will state that as their intelligence dwindled down the scale the entertainments dwindled till finally one bray of a little Mexican burro would have afforded more genuine music than their whole theater. We might tell you much more that would be interesting about the many strange people we saw from the Patagonian giants to the Philippine midgets, Juan and Martina de la Cruz, who are brother and sister, twenty-nine and thirty-one years old respectively, twenty-nine and twenty-seven inches tall.

Saturday was a big day at the Fair with several special features, which we mustn't stop to describe. It was manufacturer's day and fifty thousand dollars were to be given away by the manufacturers of different lines of goods in prizes. Every purchaser of a ticket to the Fair between the hours of eight and ten o'clock, a. m. was given a slip of paper which might (?) draw a prize which would be a part of this fifty thousand dollars. We got our slip but haven't inquired yet how many thousand we have drawn, but are satisfied it will be a plenty. It was estimated that between 135,000 and 150,000 people were present, although the sunshine was very slight, the autumn haze prevailing and a fine lake breeze blowing that had come all the way from Lake Michigan. A happy thought occurred to one of the manufacturers that he would present World's Fair guests with fans. This same bright idea or one similar had seemed to strike a dozen or two more manufacturers. The result was great numbers of happy but confused looking people wandered around with eleven or fifteen fans apiece and fanned themselves with difficulty.

Saturday night we went to Festival Hall and listened to Prof. von Dusenberry or some other for signer with an outlandish name perform on the largest organ in the world, with 140 speaking stops, 239 movements and 10,059 pipes. The music was wonderful, (we suppose) but Sunday we were present at the Centenary Church in the city and heard Dr. McMurry preach, and we got more music out of the following verse sung by the congregation than we got out of the entire big organ recital:

"I can hear my Savior calling,
In the tenderest accents calling,
On my ear these words are falling:
'Take thy cross and daily follow me.'

But we'll see you later.

REMARKABLY LOW RATES

TO COLORADO

Via the Rock Island.

The lowest round trip rates to Denver, Colorado Springs, Pueblo and Boulder that have ever been in effect from Texas, are announced by the Rock Island Railway. Tickets will be sold August fifteenth. The rate from Fort Worth to Denver is $16.10; from Dallas, $16.75, with a proportionately low rate from other points.

Speak of Colorado, and the chances are someone will say: "Oh! yes, Colorado is all right, but if you want to see real mountains you must go to Switzerland."

Must you? Here are the facts: In the Alps are two peaks more than 14,000 feet high. Colorado has thirty-five. The highest village in Europe is Avers Platz, 7,500 feet. Leadville, with a population of 15,000, is over 10,000 feet above sea level. The highest wagon road in Switzerland is the Stelvio; altitude, 9,170 feet. At four points in Colorado railroads cross the continental divide at a height of more than 10,000 feet.

So much for Switzerland; so much more for Colorado.

Will you not give us an opportunity of placing before you additional information about Colorado—its climate, its resorts, its hotels, its outdoor life—and the way to get there? Also about our low rate excursions to California and Oregon, August 15 to September 10? PHIL. A. AUER, G. P. A., Fort Worth, Tex.

Dragging Pains

2825 Keeley St., CHICAGO, ILL., Oct., 2, 1902.

I suffered with falling and congestion of the womb, with severe pains through the groins. I suffered terribly at the time of menstruation, had blinding headaches and rushing of blood to the brain. What to try I knew not, for it seemed that I had tried all and failed, but I had never tried Wine of Cardui, that blessed remedy for sick women. I found it pleasant to take and soon knew that I had the right medicine. New blood seemed to course through my veins and after using eleven bottles I was a well woman.

Maudie Bush

Mrs. Bush is now in perfect health because she took Wine of Cardui for menstrual disorders, bearing down pains and blinding headaches when all other remedies failed to bring her relief. Any sufferer may secure health by taking Wine of Cardui in her home. The first bottle convinces the patient she is on the road to health.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, "The Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.
