Indian Trouble.

The Ute Indians are on the war path and news from Aravada, Wyo., states that the rebellious Indians are entrenched in a strong position in the hills and that the Tenth and Sixth Cavalry are reconnoitering the country preparatory to closing in on them. Apparently the intention is to awe the Indians with a display of superior force and thus secure their surrender without bloodshed.

The Utes are determined not to give in until compelled, believing surrender will mean their return to Utah, where, they say, they can not secure enough to eat. The Utes have been active in laying in a large supply of ammunition at Cheyenne and Gillette and if the temper of the leading tribesmen can be taken as an indication, they propose to fight and will make a show of resistance and secure concessions from the soldiers pending an appeal to Washington.

Moorehead advices state that a panic is on hand and the women and children are being removed from the scene. It is feared that in the event of a clash between the soldiers and Indians, the Indians will scatter and work their vengeance upon the settlers. The ranches are being converted into fortresses.

A dozen white men are said to have joined the Utes.

Presidential By-Play.

It is announced that the president will devote a large part of his annual message to the advocacy of a heavy inheritance tax and demand the passage of a law that will limit the amount that any one individual can inherit. That will be a much more radical innovation than the income tax, which the supreme court has pronounced unconstitutional.

An income tax was enacted in 1861, when all incomes in excess of $800 a year were taxed at the rate of 3 per cent. Later the tax was increased, so that incomes between $600 and $5,000 were taxed at 5 per cent, and incomes above $5,000 were taxed 10 per cent. In 1866 this tax was levied upon 460,000 persons, and secured an income to the government in that year of nearly $73,000,000. Moreover, the constitutionality of the tax was sustained by a decision of the supreme court. The law was repealed a few years after the war.

Another income tax law was passed in 1894. That was a time when plutocracy was making arrangements to take charge of the whole government and run it in the interest of the rich. The court, influenced by the environment that surround it, reversed all former decisions and decided that the tax was unconstitutional. Has the president satisfied himself that the court would now decide that such a radical measure as he advocates was constitutional? An inheritance tax is so closely associated in principle with an income tax that it cannot be separated from it. The argument by which the court sustained its last decision was that it was a direct tax and therefore unconstitutional. If an income tax is a direct tax, so is an inheritance tax. That conclusion cannot be avoided.

Is it just a little by-play that the president is engaged in to keep the people voting the republican ticket?—The Investigator.

Railroads Fear Rate Legislation.

An item from Chicago says that passenger officials, especially those of Western lines, are concerned over the spread and the increase in strength of the agitation for a 2-cent passenger fare. There are few Northern States east of the foothills of the Rocky Mountains in which the rate is more than 2 cents, in which a more or less vigorous and well-organized effort is not being made to get it reduced by statute.

A deluge of 2 cent rate laws is expected to come with the meeting of the State legislature this winter, unless a decided change is meantime wrought in public sentiment.

In order to allay the popular demand for a 2-cent rate in Pennsylvania and Indiana, the Central Railways Thursday will put all their rates east of the Indiana Illinois line on the basis of 2 1/2 cents or less. Few officials believe, however, that the reduction will prevent the legislatures of these two States from following the example set by the Ohio Legislature last winter, and passing a 2-cent rate law.

A Reminiscent Birthday.

On last Saturday the editor of the Journal rounded out a full half century of earthly existence. And as we pass the fiftieth milestone on the great highway of life we feel just a little older than we have ever felt, and, indeed, we presume we are a little older. We also feel more inclined to be reminiscent than at the passage of any other milestone hitherto passed. Figuring up a little I find I have eaten 54,750 meals, which, at 25 cents a meal—and I always eat that much when I can get it—would amount to $13,687, while a bed for the 18,250 nights which I have lived, at 25 cents, would amount to $4,562 more, a grand total of $18,249 for these two items alone. Then when I figure up for clothing, schooling, laundry bills, barber bills, doctor bills, fool bills (the greatest ones of all) and all other kinds of bills, I am astonished at the enormous expense I have been to myself and friends and wonder if it wouldn't have been cheaper to die.—Arlington Journal.

Editor Draws Big Pay.

Arthur Brisbane, who writes many of the editorials published in the Hearst newspapers throughout the country, is said to be the highest salaried newspaper man in America. In a current magazine article James Creelman states that Mr. Brisbane's salary is $52,000, and there are other reports that $100,000 is the sum he receives. Mr. Brisbane is forty-two years of age. He entered journalism on the New York Sun when he was twenty as a reporter. Two years later he was the Sun's correspondent in London, and at the age of twenty-four he was recalled to become managing editor of the Evening Sun.

A DOUBTFUL INFLUENCE.

"Do you think music has a refining influence?"
"Not to judge by the language used in some of the popular songs."
—Washington Star.

To Make Fuel Alcohol.

Ozona will raise alcohol. Something of a sensation was caused in that burg Saturday by the announcement that the Ozona Ice, Light and Power Company had completed preparations to make its own fuel in the shape of denatured alcohol, and not only its own, but surrounding country for light, fuel and power. President John D. Young of the company is now in San Antonio making the necessary arrangements for the new departure. The company has definitely determined as the result of exhaustive experiments, that sotal, which grows in such enormous quantities on almost every hill of the West, is one of the best producers of alcohol.—West Texas News.

A Superb Life.

The life of the farmer is fitted to be the ideal life.

Farming is suited to give occupation to all man's best powers. Here we find science and art going hand in hand most happily.

The work cannot justly be said to be of a taxing sort for the most part, if at all. It is mostly in the open air and is usually promotive of health and long life.

The service is with nature in her most fascinating and instructive moods. There is no important work on the farm that does not exhibit many pleasing points.

Here we may have the perfection of that Mother Earth from which life of every kind must be supported. Just think of what every farmer can have on his table from his own farm or garden—all the fruits and vegetables that can be grown in the climate, all the dishes that can be made from fresh milk, butter and eggs, honey and syrup, all the meals and flours.

The farmer is allowed these goods all fresh, and so that he knows what he is getting exactly.

Pause to think what it is to be absolutely sure about such materials. The feeding of the stock can be regulated so as to have the choicest afforded on this account. This is particularly worthy of note as regards poultry and swine.

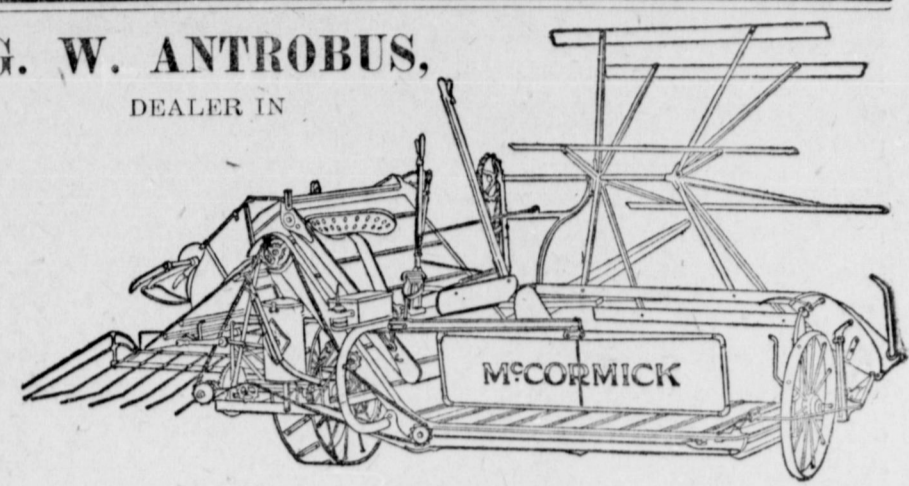

We clearly see that if there is a living for any person there is surely one for the farmer. "We venture to say," says a person thinking comprehensively on the subject, "that never in the history of the world had people the opportunity for luxurious living that American farmers possess today, and it only requires a little aptness to take and enjoy all that is so provided. Long life attends such diet and work."—Home & Farm.

The state democratic committee is not as powerful as it would have the people believe it is. The people created it and they can kick it down stairs if they want to. They have enough of the senatorial trust, enough of the congressional trust, and the party boss trust had better go slow.—Tyler Courier.

There is a vast amount of difference between what a man can do and what a man will do. When a man has been successful for a series of years in any given line of work there is always something to be learned from studying his peculiar methods.—Ex.

Champion Typewriter.

Mary D. Carrington of Springfield, Mass., champion blindfolded typewriter of the world, broke her own records in the National Business show in New York. She wrote 115 words in a minute from dictation and 197 words from memory in the same time while blindfolded and without mistake. Miss Carrington's previous records for similar tests were made last year, and the figures were 113 and 190 a minute respectively. As the new figures were made in exhibition and not in competition the last year's record will stand as the best.

WANTED, A WIFE.

An amusing letter has been received by the editor of a New York paper, from a bachelor at North Lochaber, N. S. From this misisive it appears that the writer desires the assistance of that journal in securing a suitable wife. He describes himself as "A Presbyterian, 5ft. 7in. 130 lbs., 35 years (past)," and adds: "I will send a full description if I hear from a lady through you. Please have a nice one write to me, or send her address. I should like to get acquainted with a Presbyterian, girl about 5ft. 5in. or thereabout, weight 125 lbs., between the age of 25 and 32."

From a weight-for-age point of view, his requirements are fairly clear, but he goes on to say: "Please send me a sample copy or two of your paper, as I want a nice wife." Does he think (asks our contemporary) we give away a wife with every copy?

There are three amendments to vote on Tuesday. Two of them probably should pass. The ones relating to non-taxing of endowment funds for purely educational purposes, the other for a tax to pay jurors. The jurors have to be paid anyhow and it is better to have a fund for the purpose. But the last amendment to increase the pay of legislators should be defeated. Chiefly politicians go to the legislature and it would be just the same if the pay was increased. So far as the free pass is concerned, they have broken their platform pledges for two terms, and they have coupled the two propositions thinking the voters will favor the higher pay in order to stop the free pass business. This should be an insult to the voter. The new rate bill will knock the pass business, so scratch the amendment.

CLARENDON COLLEGE ENROLLMENT

Friends of the institution may be interested in the number of students actually listed since the beginning of the present session. While numbers do not always indicate great growth, one is naturally concerned to know the actual status of affairs in the work of the training school. It is not a lack of pupils that embarrasses us on the hill, it is the lack of adequate facilities with which to give these eager young people the instruction they so much prize. Our prosperity is really a source of peril. Friends must help us to put up better buildings or the inevitable will happen; and that is, some will go to other parts where the congested condition is not so great.

Enrolled in College proper.....	180
In Primary Department.....	40
In Music Department.....	82
Elocution Department.....	15
Art Department.....	15
Total.....	332

This is the actual count at the close of the second month of scholastic work. There is a constant demand for catalogues and information about our work, making it probable that the number for the year will be well beyond the 400 mark. In Clarendon College, with its large territory to draw on and its hearty support from ministers and members of the Methodist Church in the Panhandle, and, best of all, the enthusiastic interest of the citizens of the town, there is the best opportunity for real practical education to be found in the whole Southwest.

How to Keep A Good Job.

Have you a good job? Don't forget that a lot of hungry-eyed individuals are standing around waiting more or less patiently to drop into it whenever you get a better one or when you get "fired." The way to keep a good job is to be better than the present job; the way to get on the toboggan is to get it into your head that you are indispensable to the office and to begin acting independent and "bossy."—Lawrence (Kansas) World.

EASILY WON WAGER.

Jerome K. Jerome once figured in what the reporters call a "mysterious disappearance." On a wager he agreed to vanish, and took himself off while his friends were still on the alert. He disappeared while they were reading a mysterious letter which he handed to one of the party. When last seen he was stepping aboard a houseboat on the Thames. Then for a month he seemed to have gone out of existence. His friends put the police on his track, calling for his arrest for stealing the boat. A month passed, and then the novelist and the boat appeared at the latter's old moorings. What he had done was simply to take the boat a little up stream, then during the night erase her name and substitute another, and change the color of the paint here and there so as to render her as unlike her former self as possible. His scheme was a success in every particular.
