Clarendon artist - Margaret Smith

By Jeanice Weatherly

Clarendon claims as her own artist Margaret Cushing Smith, who grew up on Texas ranches sprawled under sun drenched skies and from an early age found time to commune with

Margaret was born on a ranch near Big Spring and at a very early age moved with her parents to another one located between Kermit and Odessa. This is an area of sparse vegetation, white sand and one of natures most beautifully reflected rainbow of colors all done with sky, sand and clouds. With the addition of the rare commodity, rain, nature's colors become spectacular. This early environment perhaps is one of the reasons for the soft almost iridescent color tones which are part of Margaret's oil paintings. This quality is a perfect background for her well known bird pictures and the animals she

Living in an isolated area on a large ranch Margaret learned to entertain herself in the way children have with what was at hand. At hand were wild flowers, birds, cattle and small wild animals which inhabit the outdoors. These came under the close scrunity of Margaret and her mother, lone Cushing, who started the enjoyable custom of bird walks. The two would locate and watch, from mating season to the nestlings' first chased by Carl E. Thomas. CLARENDON season to the nestlings lirst hatched and fed and how they grew. In this way bird lore was learned in a never to be forgotten way.

Birds were not the only interest and even today Margaret Smith loves Indian lore and artifacts. A favorite pastime now is to go arrowhead hunting with her mother on a warm spring day.

Margaret got her first taste of formal art instruction at about age 10 from a teacher in fourth grade. She was introduced to pastels and watercolors. She recalls the time well enough to be certain the R's did not get too much attention but her art career was launched.

The family moved to the Texas panhandle in 1950 and Margaret was enrolled in the Clarendon schools although the Cushing Ranch is located in Briscoe County. They moved just after an agreement with Brisco County had been agreed upon which concerned the residents of the county who resided below the caprock. Involvement with school as a teenager took up so much time there was a skip of seven or eight years before art came to the surface for Margaret again. She received a gift of oil paints for Christmas and worked deligently with them, not so inspired, she admitted, with art as she was with the desire to create something to cover her walls that looked bare.

After graduating from Clarendon High School Margaret attended T.C.U. qorking toward a degree in business. She attended two years before she and Mike Smith were married. Mike and Margaret made their home south of Brice near Margaret's parents and Margaret began married life still living where the Herefords. Mesquite trees, and scrub cedars kept company with coveys of bob-whites and blue quail, roadrunners, thrashers, cardinals, indigo buntings and many more feathered friends.

Again there were several years when art was pushed aside and the Mike Smiths had two sons who required a lot of time. When her son entered kindergarten she went back to her painting. Dixie Howard was a lot of help and offered encouragement.

Another painter and devotee of Indian lore, Otho Stubbs is both a friend and an inspiration to Margaret Smith. Her first teacher as an adult was Mrs. Turman, with whom she studied several months. She attended two of Don Ray's workshops, one in Clarendon and one in Memphis. Don Ray helped her develop a palette and stressed the importance of painting from real life instead of photographs. She paints with a fairly limited palette and mixes her own colors. When Margaret first began painting she gave her pictures to relatives and her minatures to friends as gifts. She still has a vivid recollection of the first sale she made and the $15 she was paid by a customer from Turkey. That sale inspired her! From that time she had an objective in mind and a time limit also, to realize an ambition. Margaret

Smith does not take her objective lightly. She rises at 5 a.m. and wearing Levis and an oversized shirt of husband Mike's or her elder son Bill's she works until there is just barely enough time to do light housework and cook lunch by

She has her subjects conveniently at hand with most of the birds coming into the yard to feed. Not satisfied with her knowledge of feather patterns she has several birds, among them a mallard and a teel, in the deep freeze with feathers intact which she uses as studies. Friends like John Grady and Jack Bell who are ranchers within a few miles of the Cushing-Smith Ranch bring birds and offer constructive criticism. Wild turkeys feed as a neighboring place and she knows where to find them if she Painting with the seasons, it is natural to look outside and see what belongs in a picture. Usually Margaret has several she works on at the same time, a large one and three or four smaller ones eliminate the waiting for paint to dry.

With the sales of more and

Several of her oils are at Marrs Gailery in Amarillo. Others are at the Clarendon Press and her sales go all the way to Florida. She spends most of her time painting now and after several years of attending shows and adding to her collection of ribbons she has given up the arduous task of Margaret and Mike have two sons. Bill, 18 years old, is a student at A&M and 10-year old Lee is a student in the Clarendon Elementary School. Mike is also her very best friend, she declares and she loves her life on the ranch.

Plans for other than painting at home are not definite at this time although Margaret has had workshops this year and has been asked to plan others.

CC Cosmetology Dept. hosts demonstration

The Vocational Cosmetology Program at Clarendon College was presented a special demonstration on "The Proper Care of Black Hair" by Jhermiack of Amarillo last week. The guest artist for the all-day presentation was Donna Williams of Oakland, California. Williams serves in the capacity of educator for Jhermiack Products, Redding, California. Part of the presentation was the introduction of a new product available for use on "Black Hair" for body, control, and style. Pearly Butler of Clarendon served as the model for a demonstration on permanent waving emphasizing how custom permanents can be spe-

Mistletoe isn't just for Christmas kissing means an excuse to steal a kiss at Christmas time. But that's just one of many traditions that have been associated with this curious, parasitic plant, according to the current issue of National Wildlife magazine.

"For centures, people all over the world have considered mistletoe to be a charm against disease, witchcraft, and infertility." says the bi-monthly publication of the National Wildlife Federation. Mistletoe superstitions probably came about because of the unusual and rather eerie way in which the plant grows.

Mistletoe flourishes in clumps on the trunks and branches of various hardwood trees, where it robs its host tree of water and nutrients. Often, the host tree is so weakened that it dies. But since mistletoe can produce its own food when necessary, the parasite remains green and

Because they were unable to explain how mistletoe grew, ancient civilizations believed the plant had supernatural powers, says National Wildlife. Peasants in both England and Japan believed that barren women would be able to conceive after eating mistletoe. The Walos of Africa attached mistletoe leaves to their bodies, confident that they would then be protected from injury. The Swedes carved sword handles from mistletoe branches to ward off witches, while other Europeans wore mistletoe corsages to guarantee a successful hunt.

Mistletoe is not a very tasty plant. In fact, although there are more than a thousand varieties throughout the world, only one animal--the tiny Australian mistletoe bird--relies solely on mistletoe for food. But medical taste, mistletoe was often fed to ailing patients by physicians who thought it had curative

French physicians used mistletoe as an antidote for poisons. And one 17th century British physician observed that the plant is "good for the grief of itch, sores, toothache, and the biting of mad dogs and venemous beasts."

Even as late as the mid-1700's, National Wildlife reports, many European medical authorities thought mistletoe would cure epilepsy. Since mistletoe attaches itself so firmly to a tree that it cannot be blown down, they reasoned, an epileptic could not fall down if he consumed the plant regu-

The Joseph Henry Hurn family

The Joseph Henry Hurn family moved to Clarendon in January, 1916, from Wheeler County primarily for the benefits that Clarendon College could give their daughters.

Joe Hurn was born in England May 29, 1868, but was brought to this country at a very early age, settling in Pennsylvania first. When Joe was of teen age, his father moved to Clay County, Texas, and bought a farm north of Henrietta in Clay County. The little community of Hurnbille developed taking its name from this family. It was here in 1896 that Joe Hurn met and married Margaret Rush, anearby neighbor who had migrated to Texas by way of Missouri from Tennessee. The young couple made their home in the Indian Territory of Oklahoma, and here their first daughter, Evadne, was born. In 1900 they moved up Sweetwater creek to Wheeler County, Texter, Mary Hazel, was born. They Evadne later graduated from

As the engine exhausted the steam directly into the smoke stack. which consisted of a joint of 6 inch pipe which stood up above the level of the seat of the vehicle, and as I had to use hard coal as fuel, there was a formidable stream of fire and smoke ascending from the smoke stack, which gave the thing a rather frightening aspect. When it was known I was out with my "Steam Buggy", everything else left the streets.

After a few months, Dr. Carhart either bowed to public opposition or tired of playing with his invention. He had proved his point, that a small and efficient steam powered vehicle would be built which would operate on the public roads. When he moved to a new church in Oshkosh, Wisconsin, in 1874, he took his "Steam Buggy. "The Spark". He turn ed it over to another Wisconsin inventor. Anse Ferrand, who used it as the basis for developing a larger steam automobile, "The Oshkosh", which, in 1878, won the $10,000 prize in a race from Greenbay to Madison. "The Spark" was dismantled around 1876 and its power system was put to working turning the presses of a commercial printer.

The small town of Racine, Wisconsin, was thrown in to a turmoil one summer day in 1873 by the awesome spectacle of a horseless, "Steam Buggy" navigating its streets at the rate of four or five miles an hour. At the helm was the town's dashing young Methodist minister. Rev. Dr. John Wesley Carhart, who had designed the contraption and put it together in a shop on the lot of his backer, aging and crippled lumber tycoon, George Slawson.

Residents of Racine had been forewarned in an article in the Rachine Journal, May 7, 1873, which described the building of the device and predicted that 'their new buggy will, within the course of a few days, be rushing up and down the streets or dashing to the rate of four or five miles an hour over the roads that lead to Milwaukee, Union Grove and other rural towns."

Dr. Carhart related in San Antonio forty years later, There was great excitement in Racine when the machine first

There is a unique feature to the Hip-O Ranch

By JUDY BROWN

There is a unique feature to the Hip O Ranch located outside Ashtola. Bob and Vera Lee Andis, owners of this ranch, not only raise cattle there but also raise and train cattle dogs to work their herds. These are not just ordinary dogs but a breed so specialized, there are only "800 pure bred registered with ACDC of America in the United States" of which they are members of this club as quoted by Bob in regard to his Blue heelers. Along with the Australian Blue Heelers, the Andis raise Rottweilers, Shetland Sheepdogs and Catlahoula Leopards.

'These are my best cowboys," said Bob Andis referring to his Australian cattle dogs, the Blue Heelers according to records. It seems Heelers are a descendent from the Australian Dingo. When the early settlers of Australia found that the dogs they had brought from Ireland could not withstand the harshness of that country's climate. they turned them out. Through the years these abandoned dogs cross-bred with the wild Dingos. The ranchers noticed this new breed and noting their stamina and endurance started domesticating the dogs to work their

Before the Andis dogs are allowed to work the herds, they must first attend and pass an obedience course with Bob and Vera Lee. Bob stressed the importance of attending this class with their dogs. Just as a parent relates his instructions to, a child with certain words, looks and signals, so too does Bob command his dogs. He stated his reluctance to train a dog in due to the importance of establishing a dog-owner relationship as to knowing each other's personality. The Andis dogs are hard workers but do get a day off occasionally. That is the time they hit the road for competition. They are also show dogs.

Bob and Vera Lee belong to the Panhandle Kennel and Amarillo Obedience Training Club in Amarillo. They make approximately 20 shows a year. A dog can score as high as 200 points in these shows which is considered a perfect score. The Andis' dogs usually place in the 180 to 190 category. A score of 175 is passing. Vera Lee keeps portfolios on each dog they own compiled of their ribbons, pictures, registration and any information concerning that dog. Even through they take pride in their dogs' performance in these shows Bob lets it be known that the dog shows are secondary in his purpose of raising and perfecting the breed.

The initial investment is expensive for getting started with cattle dogs, but Bob and Vera Lee do not resent the expense, time nor hard work that is constantly required. They will spend a large part of their work day putting the dogs through their paces, working as many as six or seven in one day. To them it is an enjoyable means for exercise and a health

When asked if the dogs ever interfered with his ranching. Bob chuckled, then replied. Ranching interferes with the

This was a great cattle country and the great Diamond Tail ranch controlled most of the surrounding country and owned thousands of head of the whitefaced longhorn cattle and Perry Owens got a job as a cowboy on this ranch and in the late fall of the year they would round up the cattle and drive them into Giles to the great stockyards where they would brand the yearling calves and separate them from their mothers to wean and of all the bawling of

Grandmother Owens had passed away a number of years before. And Louvenua had married a Mr. George Coursey and to this union four children were born. Perry, who had never married and was now an old bachelor, and Grandpa had't married so they finally loaded up their covered wagons and moved to New Mexico and settled just across the Texas line south of Texaco, New Mexico where they started farming. Grandpa finally passed away and was laid to rest in a little country cemetery near their home. Perry then married Annie Boss. To this union one son was most of the surrounding country. They had no fences at that time and the thousands of longhorn white-face cattle roamed at will.

They made them a dugout on the homestead and covered it over with railroad ties that they got from the F.W.&D. (Fort Worth & Denver) railroad for plowing the fire guards. And they covered the ties over with dirt. They lived in this for some two or three years until they could build them a half-dugout.

As years went on they were able to build them a three room house out of cross ties--cross ties were stood on ends to form the walls and that was covered over with a wooden roof. Mother stuffed the cracks between the ties with cotton and covered the inside with newspapers.

When they first came to west Texas there was no work much to be had. Father would work for Alfred E. Rowe at fall time as a cowboy rounding up the cattle and branding the yearlings and weaning the calves from the mothers. For this work he got 50c per day and when needed he would unload coal cars at Clarendon, which was ten miles away, for the F.W. & D.C. Rail Co. which had their coal chutes there for the locomotive engine. For this he was paid 50c a car and he would unload one coal car a night. We had no well for water and Mother would hitch the team of horses to the wagon and with three and four barrels in the wagon would drive down to Lake Creek which was a mile or so from home and would fill the barrels full of good spring water. She would use a bucket to dip up the water out of the spring and had pieces of canvas ducking to cover over the top of the barrels to keep them from splashing over. This would last several days and then it was all to do over. Finally we were able to dig a well near the house by hand. It was about three feet round and about thirty-five or forty feet deep and we would draw water up by hand with a bucket tied onto a long rope.

Merry Christmas To all of you; From all of us at WTU

JEM Simmons

Martin Baptist Church has long history

BY Jeanice Weatherly Where many rural areas have lost all their communities and any identity which might have remained behind, the Martin Community has endured to keep the church which not only has grown to its greatest number at present, but during the years actually changed from the Methodist faith with its beginning to become the Martin Baptist Church in 1911.

Minnie Cannon recalls much of the history of the Martin Community and the church there, which was the heart of small communities all across the United States in the early part of this century.

Her first recollection of a Christmas tree was in 1906 at the Martin church when she helped decorate the tree with strings of popcorn and cranberries.

Mr. Rhoades, father of Hubert Rhoades, took his swing wagon and with Mrs. Rhoades and their girls stopped to get Minnie Pool Cannon and her sister, Vernis Pool Parson, and the group rode in the wagon to the river where they selected a tree. Mr. Rhoades cut the cedar tree from those growing in the brakes along the Salt Fork of the Red River and put it in the wagon for the ride back to Martin.

Each year since there has been a Christmas tree at the Church.

Few years in the church have been easy but members were Crofford, Frank Cannon, George Jr. Bullman, Billy Mix the Martin Baptist Church was duly constituted with 15 members. They were A.H. Halliman, J.C. Wood, S.J. Nicholos, J.C. Major, W.M. Morland, Pearl Moreland, Lelia Morland, B. Major, M.F. Halliman, Carry Wood, Della Wood, Maybell Hall, Sister Nicholos Maudie Jones and J.A. Pool.

Although the record of the Martin Baptist Church reflected the story of struggle and hardship: they always had Sunday School and revivals in the summertime. Sunday School was held in the afternoon so a preacher from Clarendon College could have the services. Ministers from a number of colleges in the surrounding area served the church as well as those from Clarendon College. Each minister through the years endeared himself to the members of the little church as minister and congregation worked together laboring for Christianity. By 1941 the custom of an annual Thanksgiving dinner at the church was begun and still remains in effect.

A milestone was reached in 1952 when the first fulltime minister came to the Martin Baptist Church. He was Earnest Phillips, and one of a number of ministers who served the membership well.

Martin Baptist Church celebrated its 50th anniversary in 1961 and at that time the past of the church was relived for a time. In the late 1930s the community began to breakup. following the national pattern of migration to the towns and cities. The membership dwindled to an alarming few, and the usual conflicts of personality and disagreements happened within the membership. Bad luck plagued the buildings of the church and fire, such a dreaded disaster, was the villain part of the time.

But as has happened so many times during the lifetime of some persons, glorious deeds are performed outliving those responsible to bless the unborn generations. The few who started the church at Martin built solidly enough to leave a church that numbers 165 members in 1978. Many years ago, when communities were completely self sufficient the membership

Other long time memberships belong to Mr. and Mrs. Othel Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Hearn, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Land as well as Minnie Cannon. Tales of extreme hardship and service of one man to another in times of pestilence and death are just part of the history of the congregation.

Changes in the membership are quite dramatic from the early community residents. Memberships have included persons from Lelia Lake, Goldston, Goodnight, Howardwick, near Allenreed, and Clarendon.

Martin Baptist Church has contributed two of its members to the Baptist ministry, Harold Elliott, who is minister of the Parkview Baptist Church in Arlington, Texas and J.M. J. D. Borden - the hand-made boot maker

J.D. Borden, better known as he made himself. Pete, was born May 7, 1913. In October of 1935 he and Opal Redwine were married in Childress County. From this marriage are two daughters, Glenda, now Mrs. Jerry Hawkins, and Regina, now Mrs. Buddy Wootten.

Pete was the hand-made boot maker in Clarendon for almost 30 years: He was taught the art of bootmaking by Teddy Rushing in Childress at the age of 24.

Pete and Opal moved to Clarendon in 1937 to open a boot shop which closed after one year. They returned to Childress and for one year Pete made boots in a harness shop owned by Paul Pierce.

In 1939 they moved again to Clarendon and Pete made boots in the boot and saddle shop owned by B.F. Kirtley. After 9 years with Mr. Kirtley Pete bought the boot shop equipment and was in partnership with T.M. Caldvell who bought the saddle shop stock. The partnership continued until Pete's death in February of 1968. Mrs. Borden continued the business for a year before selling to James Owens, current owner and who had worked with Pete for many years and learned the bootmaking process.

Outside of working with eather, Pete enjoyed collecting antiques, whittling and collecting guns, several of which

Rev. W. R. Lawrence honored on 50th anniversary as a pastor

Rev. William R. Lawrence will be honored Sunday December 31, in Calvary Baptist Church Borger, on his 50th anniversary as a pastor in Southern Baptist churches. Forty-six of these years have been spent in the Panhandle of Texas. He has been pastor of the First Baptist churches in Lefors, Dumas, McLean, Dalhart and Clarendon. He served rural churches in the communities of Magic City, Lela and Lutie.

Rev. Lawrence retired from First Baptist in Clarendon in 1973 after fourteen years with the church. The present church plant was built while he was here. He also taught Bible in Clarendon Junior College each year he was here. The Lawrences still maintain a home in Clarendon.

Since his retirement he has worked with mission churches in Spokane, Washington and with Texas churches on an interim basis. During this time he has served First Baptist, Dalhart. Hobart Baptist in Pampa, and is presently with the Calvary Baptist Church in Borger as interim pastor. In additions he has participated in preaching missions in Korea, France and

A reception is being held in the Calvary Baptist Church. Borger, hosted by his children and grandchildren from 2:30 to 5:00 p.m. on December 31. His friends in Clarendon are cordially invited to attend.

Proposing a new formula for supplemental food program

Agriculture is proposing a new state agencies; formula for distributing funds to states to administer the special supplemental food program for women, infants and children. Basically, the proposal governs the formula used to reimburse states for their administrative costs and recognizes that these costs vary from area to area, that costs to begin a progam are often higher than those to run the program, and that programs serving rural areas and those with high percentages of migrant farm workers are more costly to administer.

The law, signed by the President on Nov. 10. extends and expands food assistance to needy mothers and children. In addition, the new law made permanent the child care food program which provides food and cash assistance for meals served at eligible child care institutions. It also provides added incentives to improve breakfast programs in schools.

USDA invites comments which may be used to alter the formula. Meanwhile, the proposed formula will be used to distribute administrative funds for the second quarter of fiscalyear 1979 to states and Indian tribes which provide special supplemental foods to women and children.

The formula, which was developed earlier this year with the help of interested persons. does the following:

-- provides a minimum grant to permit smaller state agencies to meet operating requirements; -ties a portion of the administrative funding to the amount

The U.S. Department of of food assistance provided for

-directs the remaining funds to areas with higher operating

On a national basis, money for administration of the program will remain at 20 percent of total program funding. The percentage received by states under the more flexible formula will range between 18 and 25

Comments should be addressed to Jennifer R. Nelson. director, supplemental food programs division, Food and Nutrition Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture. Washington, D. C. 20250. Deadline for receiving comments is Feb. 12.

The proposed formula change will appear in the Dec. 12 Federal Register.
