Roll over

Clarendon Alderman Mac Stavenhagen was uninjured last Thursday when his pickup rolled over west of Lelia Lake. DPS Trooper Chad Simpson said an uneven distribution of weight in the fertilizer trailer Stavenhagen was pulling combined with his lightweight pickup was the cause of the rollover. The trailer put an upward force on the pickup's rear tires before fishtailing wildly, spinning the truck 180°, then causing it to roll, Simpson said. Speed is not considered a factor in the accident.

County files request for more funds

Donley County filed a request with the Texas Historical Commission (THC) on Friday, seeking an additional $73,159.50 in state funding for the restoration of the 1890 courthouse.

The commissioners' court voted unanimously to make the request in a called session Friday morning.

The money would be used to restore a third story masonry gable on the building's south façade and a cast iron fireplace in the district courtroom.

Both items were original to the courthouse, but they were unknown at the time the restoration Master Plan was put together in 1999 and were only recently rediscovered. Commissioners agree the missing elements need to be replaced to make any restoration more complete.

If approved, the supplemental grant would cost the county an additional $12,910.50. A decision is expected from the THC by on April 19, 2001.

Additional money from THC became possible when Archer County, which had received a courthouse grant last fall during Round II funding, recently turned back the state money.

Also on Friday, county commissioners discussed the budget of the courthouse project, and a conference call was held with architect Chris Hutson of Volz & Associates in Austin.

Hutson told the court that he is including "deductive alternates" into the construction bid packages, which would give the county options if bids come in over budget. The alternatives would allow the county to eliminate items from the project that would have the least impact on the restoration.

Estimates for the local project are being made based on going rates for historic restorations in the Austin and San Antonio areas. The cost of using construction companies in the Panhandle region may be cheaper.

"This may go to bid and everything be fine," Hutson said. "but I would rather prepare for it now than [the county] be hit with sticker shock when the bids come in."

County residents to rid roadways of litter Saturday

Everything is bigger in Texas, and community cleanups are no exception as more than 100,000 volunteers take to the streets on Saturday, April 7, 2001, to declare war on trash.

In Donley County, the Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT) says there are five Adopt-a-Highway groups who keep twenty miles of road clean during the year. The groups participating in the Trash-Off on April 7 are Clarendon College Cultural Club, Clarendon College Block & Bridle/Phi Theta Kappa Clubs, Hedley Homemakers, and Clarendon Masonic Lodge.

As participants in the 16th annual Don't

Mess with Texas Trash-Off, these proud Texans will be going to extreme measures to pick up after those who have dared to trash the Lone Star State.

"We are extremely grateful for the way our Trash-Off volunteers demonstrate their Texas pride, but it's hard work for 100,000 volunteers to pick up after 17 million people," said TxDOT Travel Division Director Doris Howdeshell.

"Other Texans talk about their state pride, and I challenge them to put that pride into action year-round by keeping our highways litter-free."

"Currently Adopt-a-Highway volunteers clean only ten percent of the state's roadways, and state tax dollars must be used to keep the remaining stretches clean," said Barbara Seal, Childress TxDOT Adopt-a-Highway Coordinator. "Adopting a highway not only helps keep or state beautiful, but it also allows tax dollars to be used for road improvements and beautification instead of trash pickup."

Don't mess with Texas Trash-Off volunteers will pick up an estimated 2 million tons of litter in time for the spring wildflower season. This massive statewide cleanup is organized by TxDOT and is fueled by volunteers from Adopt-a-Highway groups and Keep Texas Beautiful (KTB) communities around the state.

Along with the Don't Mess With Texas Trash-Off, TxDOT's litter prevention programs have reversed a trend in the increase of trash on Texas highways, resulting in a 72 percent reduction in litter. TxDOT's grassroots partner, Keep Texas Beautiful, is a nonprofit, environmental organization consisting of a network of private citizens, communities, industries, civic groups, schools, and government agencies.

For more information, call Barbara Seal, TxDOT Adopt-a-Highway Coordinator at 940-937-7145.

Couple finds explosive gel in trailer at Hedley

An investigation is ongoing after two Hedley residents turned over an explosive compound to local authorities.

Melody Johnson and Santiago Rodriguez found a one-pound package of explosive Detagel in an abandoned semi-trailer near their home in Hedley, according to Donley County Sheriff Butch Blackburn. The couple brought the explosive to the sheriff's office last Friday.

Officers took the Detagel to the old Clarendon landfill where it was kept under guard by a deputy.

Assistance was called in from Texas Ranger Gary Henderson and federal ATF agents from Lubbock. The gel was turned over to Edward Smith of the Amarillo Police Department's bomb squad for safekeeping.

"Without a detonator, the stuff is relatively safe," Blackburn said. "But a build up of static electricity or any electric charge could set it off."

Detagel is an industrial explosive used in gravel pits, oil well drilling, and other industrial uses. Blackburn said. It is a federal crime to possess the explosive without a license.

"We don't believe any more of the stuff is in Donley County," he said. "We think we've found the source was in Hall County, and we have reason to believe there is more of it in Hall County."

Citizens should contact authorities immediately if they come across something they believe to be an explosive or something marked as such.

"Call us and do not touch it," Blackburn said.

CC student dies in dorm room

A Clarendon College freshman was found dead in his residence hall room Sunday morning.

A preliminary investigation has ruled out alcohol, drugs, or foul play as being the cause of death.

Donley County Sheriff Butch Blackburn said the body of 19-year-old Bobby Joe Givens was discovered by Vaughan Hall resident advisor Zachary Walker at 10:50 a.m.

Walker reportedly called 911, and local emergency personnel responded. Justice of the Peace Jimmy Johnson pronounced Givens dead at 11:15 a.m. An autopsy has been ordered.

"Everything indicates he was one of the most straight-laced kids, and he attended services regularly at the Methodist Church."

Givens was a graduate of Olton High School, where he played basketball. His family recently moved to Happy.

CC Dean of Students Jay Caldwell said he understood Givens came to Clarendon to play basketball but couldn't for health reasons.

Caldwell thought Givens had hoped to pursue a coaching career.

Local memorial services were pending at press time.

Federal estate tax should be put to death

Fox News reported this week that opponents of the death tax have found a new ally – billionaire Robert Johnson. At face value, this may not be surprising. After all, what billionaire would want to have 55 percent of his estate taxed after his death? But Johnson is unique in his reasoning.

You see, Johnson is a black entrepreneur, and he founded Black Entertainment Television (BET). He's worth an estimated $1.5 billion, and he says the death tax is unfair to racial minorities, specifically black business owners.

"These companies that have started up mainly since the civil rights movement have had to grow their businesses under some very tough circumstances," Johnson told Fox.

"These are people who worked hard in many cases in a system where they face economic discrimination in access to education, access to equal opportunity, access to capital. These are individuals who have recently only become wealthy with the return of the civil rights movement who are now saying 'why should government tax us twice to take our hard-earned money.'"

It's a powerful argument from a registered Democrat and one that liberals aren't likely to enjoy hearing. Other billionaires have come forward ahead of Johnson to protest the repeal of the death tax. Rich liberal fat cats like Ted Turner think the government has a right to come in and take a person's property and wealth and do with it what they want.

Johnson strongly disagrees.

"It's confiscation of your wealth, and there is no justification for it," he said.

He's right. If a man or woman works their whole life to build up a business, where does the government get the right to take that away? It doesn't matter if your estate is worth $1,000 or $1.5 billion. If you've made that money, it should be your decision what happens to it. Whether it's a ranch that has been in your family for a hundred years, a farm your grandpa homesteaded, or a small business for which you and your spouse sacrificed summer vacations for 15 years, what you have is yours. And no one – not your neighbor, not your enemy, and certainly not your government – no one should be able to take that away solely because you have slipped into the hereafter. Life, Liberty, and Property are fundamental to the American way of life. None of those three things can be taken without due cause.

That's a thing we call "freedom," and while Ted Turner and others like him don't really appreciate it, freedom is what allowed them to make their wealth in the first place.

If Turner or Ted Kennedy don't think their heirs should get their accumulations of wealth after their demise, they can bequeath it to someone else or give it away to their favorite charity (like the Bill Clinton Legal Defense Fund, for example).

Johnson, by contrast, recognizes that he has earned his money by the sweat of his own brow and by his own ingenuity. What's he going to do with a $1.5 billion estate? What will his heirs do with it? I don't know, and I don't care. It's none of my business, and I don't begrudge him his wealth. Under the free enterprise system, Johnson can spend the money, invest it, give it away, roll around in it, or pass it down to the next generation of his family.

Unfortunately, the federal government doesn't share that point of view. Our government still thinks it knows better than we do what's good for us. But it doesn't. It never has, and it never will. The people know what is best for their lives, and America should trust its citizens to make the right decisions about their own estates.

Meanwhile...

In case you thought America has a monopoly on crazy lawsuits, brace yourself for this one.

Helen Studd of THE TIMES in London is reporting that 350 British veterans are suing Her Majesty's Ministry of Defense for... get this... "stress suffered during combat."

Well, now don't that beat all? Stress in combat? Who ever heard of such?

I do not want to downplay the horrors that some veterans have faced, but is war supposed to be all peaches and cream now? I'm not sure what could possibly prepare a person to face the things our honored military have faced.

The veterans in question served in conflicts in the Falkland Islands, Northern Ireland, Bosnia, and the Gulf War. Their lawsuit alleges the Defense Ministry "failed to adequately prepare Service personnel for their exposure to the horrors of conflict, or deal with the results of that exposure."

Not disclosed was the number of British pounds it will take to help the former servicemen unwind from their stress.

I wonder if the boys who liberated continental Europe received stress training prior to D-Day.

Bush's team will steer us right in China

With the emergency landing of an American surveillance plane in hostile Chinese territory, government officials are scrambling to find a scenario which will allow us to recover our plane and crew without causing a military standoff.

The EP-3 aircraft is able to intercept a variety of communications, such as phone, fax, and email as well as radio and television broadcasts. In essence, this is our Navy's most advanced spy plane.

Although the plane was in international airspace, two Chinese fighter jets played a "cat and mouse" game which eventually ended with one downed Chinese plane and the American craft being clipped and having to make an emergency landing on China's Hainan Island.

Now, that our sensitive spy plane is downed in enemy territory, what do we do? The craft's crew of 24 has been removed and is being held by the Chinese. As of press time, US officials are not being allowed to even talk to the crew.

This plane is a treasure trove for the Chinese, due to its immense amount of

on the Mark with Christi Ross

cryptographic equipment and surveillance records. The Chinese are surely proud to have captured the plane, even at the loss of just one of their billions of countrymen.

Although this is a tragedy and an unknown path for us, at least it is comforting to know that President Bush and his experienced Cabinet members are in charge of the situation. For all we know, good ole' Billy Jeff Clinton could have just told the Red Chinese, "Y'all just keep that plane; we've got another. Plus, it'll go good with all of those secrets y'all got from Los Alamos."

Bush and his staff will take a stand and not allow the Chinese to celebrate this occasion. Maybe they will scare the Chinese by increasing the sale of arms and weapons to nearby Taiwan, which would allow this breakaway island nation to defend itself from Chinese missiles. Perhaps a suspension of all trade with China would be another bargaining tool.

Whatever happens, China must not be allowed to enter the EP-3 spy plane. Although it is resting on foreign soil, the plane is sovereign United States property, and trespassing must not be tolerated. If the Chinese manage to enter the plane and recover its wealth of information, then the United States must be swift and just with punishment.

China has the bomb as well as an endless supply of manpower for troops. Let's not encourage a war, but communist China must not be allowed to have its way with America like it did when Clinton was in office.

It's about time that we put an end to China's pushing and stand up again to Communism. And with experienced staffers such as Collin Powell, Donald Rumsfeld, Condoleezza Rice, and Dick Cheney, we will succeed.

BRACKINS PHOENIX TIMES DISPATCH 3/01

Texas must think long term about H<sub>2</sub>O needs

By State Senator David Bernsen, District 4

In the coming years, Texas will be faced with fierce challenges and difficult decisions regarding water. We'll look differently at the water that flows from our faucets, that we sprinkle on our lawns, and use to irrigate our fields.

Decisions are being made today in Austin about that future, and, if successful, will put our great state further behind the curve, not ahead, in solving our water concerns.

In the Texas Senate, Senate Bill 2 (SB 2) has been filed for the purpose of "the development and management of the water resources of the state." If passed by the legislature, and signed by Governor Perry, SB 2 will negatively affect fellow Texans and possibly delay or even prevent solutions to an eventual water crisis.

Proponents of SB 2 advocate the need to remove surface water protection, also known as junior water rights, to relieve pressure on groundwater.

This misguided, dangerous and short-sighted attempt has no place in our state-wide water policy and drives a wedge of fear between groundwater and surface water users. All existing water users -- surface and groundwater -- should be protected from transfers that move water away from their areas.

This goes for Lake Meredith and Lake Greenbelt, just as it does for transfers from the Ogallala Aquifer. The same is also true for the many river basins across Texas.

Providing water to an expanding economy and population ranks as one of the most difficult issues facing this state in recent years. Emotions are high, and the consequences of failure are great.

It is imperative that we address this task with our eyes open and our minds clear. We must provide long-term solutions that benefit everyone, rather than quick fixes that benefit one sector of the economy and cause irreparable harm to another.

Simply stated, we must create new water for the new millennium, making sure that all of the needs in the state are met. Solutions are needed that go farther than moving water from place to place.

The costs associated with the solutions offered by SB 2 -- the loss of farms and ranches and environmental and economic damage -- are too great and don't do enough to provide for future needs. A recent report noted that a decision to move water, surface water and groundwater, from a rural area to a city would force a decline in agriculture productivity and the farming community; facilitate more rapid growth in the importing area; prevent future development in the exporting area; curtail recreational opportunities; make sewage treatment more difficult as diluting stream flows are diminished; deprive the exporting area of groundwater recharge, and cause ecological changes in both areas.

Furthermore, a document entitled "Third Party Compensation for Interbasin Transfers of Water in Texas: Alternatives for Funding and Payment," a study developed recently for the Texas Water Development Board, refers to agriculture as a "marginal" use for water. It says, "It is clear that agriculture will be generally the most impacted party since agriculture is by and large the 'marginal valued' user of water for irrigation and will in the final analysis be the source of water transferred to other basins."

With the passage of SB 1 by the 75th Texas Legislature, recognition by our lawmakers that the provision of water for years to come requires long-term planning is evident. Unfortunately, SB 2 retreats from that long-term vision by reducing the earlier absolute protections created by the junior water rights provision.

Again, the junior water rights provision is the only protection in times of drought for the counties, cities, businesses, farms, and ranches, located in the exporting river basin. It requires a would-be buyer to develop its project ensuring that the existing water users in the basin will not be injured. Junior water rights do not prevent new permits or the construction of new reservoirs for interbasin transfers, the movement of water from one part of the state to another.

Rural Texas -- small communities, farming, and ranching--have been the backbone of our heritage and our state. The repeal of the junior water rights provision, as called for in SB 2, not only jeopardizes the future of many areas of our state, it also potentially cripples the agriculture industry.

The water profiteers, who urge repeal of this protection, argue that water should be a commodity flowing to the highest bidder. They believe in the Rule of Gold; in other words, those with the gold make the rules.

It is my profound fear that if this philosophy prevails, then rural and agricultural Texas will always lose. The water needs of Texas' large population centers must be met, but not at the expense of rural Texas.

Our state must have a greater vision -- one founded upon the protection of water rights to farms and ranches, small cities, and rural communities -- which strives for the development of new water supplies to help meet the demand created by growing population centers and areas of economic growth.

To create this new water, the state must develop a deep and sustained commitment to a comprehensive plan of strategic reservoir construction, reservoir management, conservation, reclamation and reuse, and the development of new technology, such as desalination.

Additionally, SB 1 required new water availability studies, so that adequate data on existing water uses and supplies may be developed. Until the results of these important studies are known, the state will not be able to accurately calculate the impact of interbasin transfers.

It would be a tragic mistake to put existing water right users and regional economics at risk by repealing the junior priority provision, and allowing a gold rush mentality to prevail until these studies are complete. The vital first step is to determine the impacts to all regions and basins.

For instance, every in-basin use has a return flow to the basin of origin. This return flow benefits downstream users. However, if water is transferred to another basin, the return flow is obviously altered and the downstream users are adversely affected. For river basins that are fully appropriated or possibly over appropriated, the results could be devastating.

We must think long term now, about what's best for the future of all Texans. I ask you to take part in this fight to protect our environment, preserve our heritage, and work to ensure a bright future for all Texans, in every region and in every community in the state. The first hearing to be held on SB 2 by the Senate Natural Resources Committee is scheduled for Tuesday, March 27.

If you have further questions, please contact my office, toll-free, at (877)800-2312, or visit our website, www.senate.state.tx.us for a broader explanation of the issue. United, we can make Texas stronger.

Senator Bernsen, D-Beaumont, represents Jefferson, Chambers, Orange and Liberty Counties, and portions of Galveston, Harris and Montgomery Counties. He is a former Chairman of the Texas Transportation Commission.

Jeter back on top; One turkey is lynched

Turkey King candidate Vic Jeter has surged ahead in the latest ENTERPRISE / Gobbler Poll.

The local banker had slipped behind Clarendon Mayor Tex Selvidge last week by a margin of $5.02 following the mysterious disappearance of Jeter's money jar at Duckwall's. But as of Monday, Jeter had overcome that deficit and gained $18.22 on the mayor.

The Jeter forces are everywhere in this campaign. One bumper sticker has been seen touting his candidacy; and, although the real money jar is still missing, election judge Linda Gray says something strange has been going on at the polling place.

"We've had about 20 jars with Jeter's name on it being brought to the store by all different people," Gray said. "I don't know what they're doing."

Election analysts speculated that the Jeter campaign might be trying to change the rules after the election has started by increasing the number of jars for their candidate.

Meanwhile, Jeter's official jar — the new one — has been the subject of tampering again. The new jar was glued to a rock to keep it from wandering off like the old one did, Gray said. But one day after the jar was put out it had been pulled loose from the rock.

"We've got to get better glue," she said.

Gray reports Jeter — the self-acclaimed "Candidate of the Common Man" — continues to check on his jar regularly and is now saying he wants to be present when the final votes are tallied. But Gray thinks Jeter's time could be better spent.

"He ought to be out campaigning."

While the race for Turkey King seems to be down to Jeter and Selvidge, some minor candidates aren't giving up hope. In fact, one may be planning an offensive.

"Word has it that a contingency from Floydada may be coming up here to for [Monty] Hysinger," Gray said.

The local school superintendent was formerly a resident of Floydada, and people from that city were in Duckwall's recently to vote for their man. They reportedly said they were going to tell other people from their hometown to come vote for Hysinger.

The Floydada influence in a Donley County election troubles local analysts, but they agree with Gray who said, "Their money is as good as anybody's."

Still others say a vote for anyone other than the top two candidates is money down the drain. Hysinger is currently in seventh place with only $8.72.

In other Turkey Festival news, anti-poultry forces have made their point known by taking the life of one of the wooden turkeys making their way around town.

The bird was found Monday morning in the yard of Tessie Robinson. It had been hanged by the neck from a tree and had a note on it that read "Guy Ellis, RIP."

Local officials were in conflict over whether any laws were broken.

"Other than dealing with the Texas Parks & Wildlife or People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals, I'd say it was alright to hang it," Sheriff Butch Blackburn said, "but I would refer it to Gary Hunt."

Hunt, a local game warden, disagreed with the sheriff.

"I'd say [the turkey's] status definitely puts it on the threatened list," Hunt said, stopping short of classifying the bird as endangered.

Hunt said he had never seen a turkey hanged like that before and lamented the bird's fate. "I think they're kind of pretty," he said. "If I got one, I'd probably keep it."

Anyone can have a turkey put in someone's yard for a birthday, anniversary, or gag gift for a $5 donation to the Tourism Council. Call Carolyn Blackerby at the Burton Library at 874-3685 for your order and delivery.

The election for Donley County's King Turkey continues, and pictures of all 12 turkey candidates are on money jars at Duckwall's. The winner will be the turkey with the most money at the end of the contest.

The king will be crowned during the Turkey Strut Festival on April 21-22.

Money raised goes to the Donley County Tourism Council to help promote our fair county. Vote early and vote often.

Students become teachers

Ashley Horton (right) tutors Ann Burton on the computer at Clarendon High School. Horton is a member of the CHS yearbook class, which is offering basic computer tutoring to interested senior citizens from 2:20-3:20 each afternoon Monday through Friday in Room 305. Senior Citizens tell the students what they are interested in learning more about, and the students help them. Attendees set their own schedule and come on days it is convenient for them. For more information, contact Melody Hysinger at 874-2181.

National Library Week recalls growing up with the love of books

April 1 through 7 is National Library Week. Even the very word "Library" brings wonderful memories for me.

As a very young child growing up in Amarillo, I was introduced to the public library by my mother. The library in those days was housed in an old mansion. The smell when you entered was one of thousands of books. If you are a "library person" like me, you know what I mean. Books have their own special aroma - somewhat musty, yet pleasing. The old library had winding stairs and creaky floors. The children's department was on the main level. Mother would help me pick out a book, and I would sit at the child-sized table and look at the pictures while she went to the adult section and selected books for herself.

It was a proud day for me when I received a Library Card of my own. I must have spent literally hundreds of hours making book selections, carrying the books up to the front desk, and showing them my library card. The lady would remove the paper card from the book, stamp the due date on it and off I would go. I could hardly wait for my mother to pick out her books so that I could get home and start reading.

Burton Library offers outstanding selection for young readers

Well! We certainly won't have to worry about unconcerned future Texans if Mrs. Gribble, Mrs. Tubbs, and their first grade students are any indication. You'll understand what I'm talking about when you visit Burton Memorial Library this week and discover the informative, attractive posters produced by these precious children. Winning posters are displayed in front library windows. Others adorn library walls. Special congratulations to first place winner, Trevela Dronzek; second place winner, Brandon McAfee; and third place winner, Andrew Tiedeman. Another "Congratulations" to all student participants in this worthwhile project. You did a beautiful job! To Mrs. Gribble and Mrs. Tubbs: It's great to know that historical pride and respect are being planted in these young minds. Thanks!

It's impossible to mention, in detail, the huge reading variety offered to young adults from Burton Memorial Library's outstanding youth library. Numerous fiction and nonfiction books by contemporary authors and the Old masters are available in popular classics, humor, romance, mysteries, Westerns, sports, and science-fiction. Jack London, Mark Twain, Victoria Holt, Vera Clever, among other favorites, provide prose while many poets, including Walt Whitman and Robert Frost, enhance poetry appreciation for your teens.

Authors, Judith Peacock and Julie Endersbe speak directly to teens concerning the sensitive subject and #1 social issue, teen sexuality. Jennifer Leigh Young assists teens with healthy suggestions in her book, Health and Fitness For Teens. Numerous novel series are also obtainable. Gilbert Morris, Chairman of General Education at a Louisiana Christian College, has written sixteen novels. Fifteen of these are The House of Winslow series beginning with The Honorable Imposter, an "unforgettable saga of a family divided by faith, an intrepid band of freedom-seekers, and a man on the brink of destiny." Morris' fictional narratives

When I was older and in school, the "in" place to see and be seen was at the library. We supposedly went there to do research and study, but of course the real reason was to see our friends and flirt with the guys! I did get some studying done at the library, but probably not enough to warrant going there as often as I did. It was the perfect excuse for a teenager back then to get out of the house.

There was nothing better on a Saturday afternoon than to curl up and read. While reading a good book, I could be anything I wanted - a teenage detective like Nancy Drew, a rich lady of London like those portrayed in Black Beauty, a pioneer traveling west like the family in Little House on the Prairie, a young girl hiding from the Nazis like Ann, in The Diary of Ann Frank - anything at all was possible!

"I need to go to the library tonight." I would tell my folks.

against historical backgrounds grab readers' interest from the very first page. The series embodies the Winslow family from the 1600s, when the first generation came to America from England, to Book #15, The Gallant Outlaw, during the last 1880s. After reading Book #1, which includes adventure with a flavor of espionage and a unique love story, and examining the following books in the series, Both young and older adults who prefer historical fiction will find these exciting novel intriguing.

Folks keeping busy with spring activities

It seems as if events are moving faster and more furious as summer and the end of the school year approach, but as I look back over the previous week, I can't think why it would seem that way. Nothing much happened, except for the One-Act Play performance at the High School on Sunday afternoon. I missed it, and I'm disappointed with myself. I'm sure it was wonderful.

Besides the play, there was a track meet or two - warm-ups for the district meet, I think. There was an extra junior high band practice for the contest this week and choir practice for the various Easter musicals at the various churches. Seems as if last week was mostly practice for the weeks ahead, so maybe that's why the pace has seemed to pick up. Everyone is getting ready for upcoming events.

And when those events arrive, I'm sure everyone in town will attend as many of them as possible. I am looking forward to the musical "Celebrate Life!" at the Methodist Church soon, and the college musical "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown" in two more weeks. I have to confess to a slight case of nerves regarding the First Baptist musical "For God So Loved The World" because I'll be singing in it. It will be nice just to sit back and enjoy everything else.

Don't forget the Library Week Reception at the college library on Thursday. I don't know about you, but I hate to miss a chance to party. The libraries in Clarendon are wonderful resources for all sorts of wonderful things. You ought to stop by both of them and see what's there, or what's new. Like the computers at the Burton Library downtown. Part of the state's technology grant, they're in and installed, they're available to the public, and they can do lots of neat things. Just ask somebody to show you.

We all know that video games tend to involve people wiggling their fingers and thumbs and not much else as they zap alien space bugs or maneuver puzzle blocks into position, but I managed to use a video game to get a dozen bags of mulch unloaded and spread on my flower beds. Actual physical labor in exchange for a new game. Some may call it bribery, but I prefer to think of it as wages. Admittedly high wages, but it cut way back on the complaining and worked a lot better than threats and nagging. I still have three bags that need unloading, and I anticipate a complaint or two there, but I don't trust my labor to keep from smothering the baby plants. I had to re-arrange the big piles before the last bags get spread. I'll have to try this again next time I'm begged for a new game. I'm sure I can come up with another project. Something more than bathing the dog.

"Got studying to do there?" they would ask.

"Yep. I have a paper I need to do research for."

Now that I've experienced being the parent of teenagers, I realize that my parents probably knew I was going to the library for something more than just studying. They also knew, however, that there just wasn't a lot of trouble I could get into at the library!

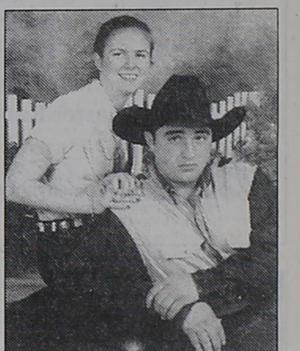

I still visit the library on a regular basis. There simply isn't better free entertainment in the world than a good book. I've even been known to poke around in the "teen" section to reread some of my favorites from years gone by.

The technology today is a wonderful thing. Almost every home has a computer. I access the Internet frequently and have even played a few computer games. They're fun, but they don't hold a candle to the pleasure that reading gives me. It's sad really, because our children today are not developing their imagination. It simply doesn't take much brain power to play a computer game and move a joystick around. A book, on the other hand, involves you completely. It wraps itself around you like a soft, warm blanket and allows you to savor it slowly.

In this fast paced computer age, people are stressing out more and more from the pressures of work, family obligations, and the need to always hurry, hurry... hurry! If you really want to relax, take some time for yourself and soothe your weary mind; go to the library, and check out a book. Whether you spend a lunch hour reading in the park or stay up late in the dark, quiet night, reading is the medicine for what ails the harried mind.

Do yourself a favor. Go to the library, and take your kids along! I'll see you there!

Donley County has some of world's best people

It's good to be back. I've missed out on everything and don't know what's been happening.

I spent a week of rest and relaxation with Dr. Bob Clark and the gang at Hall County Hospital and came home to spend one night. I had a doctor's appointment in Amarillo; and when I got there, he decided I'd benefit from a few days in BSA where they ran tests and treatments.

Su-San brought me home Thursday evening, and I was never so glad to be any place in my life. My little apartment looked like heaven to me. Ruth and Marie had cleaned house for me while I was gone. I guess it's a good thing they did because I'm so weak I can hardly walk to be bedroom, much less to the kitchen and bathroom.

They've been bringing my meals and looking after me. I've always said that the best people in the world lived in Donley County and the really nice ones lived in Hedley.

I missed some really wild weather while I was in the hospital. On the first day of spring we had the first sandstorm of the season. I heard some ladies talking about it. One said she thought it was the worst one she had ever seen. The other one told her she was getting old and forgetful. It was no worse than the ones we have every year at this time.

I heard on the television that watt's

Happening
By Peggy Watt
HEDLEY • 856-5919

there was some snow and ice as well as some really cold weather also.

Now it looks as if spring has finally arrived. The mornings have been chilly, and the afternoon has been mild. The wild rye is thriving, and the dandelions are out in profusion. They're almost knee high in the front yard here. The irises are beginning to bud, and the elm trees have seedpods getting ready to drop. Then we'll have elm seedlings in every crack and crevice.

Some of the fruit trees are in bloom, and the rebuds in the yard are beginning to bloom.

I talked to Leon this afternoon, and he told me he was doing well after his heart surgery.

T. Mullins spent a few days in Amarillo but got to go home Saturday. Nancy said he was doing pretty good.

Calvin Holland had some surgery on his foot last week and is home. His grandmother, Jerry Holland, told me he was recuperating fine.

I don't know much of what's happening, so if any of you have any news, call and let me know.

Clarendon first grade Texas poster contest winners were Trevela Dronzek, first place; Brandon McAfee, second place; and Andrew Tiedeman, third place. Pictured with the winners is Mayor Tex Selvidge.

Clarendon first grade students study Texas

Clarendon first graders have been studying Texas the past two weeks and were asked to do a WebQuest on Texas symbols.

A WebQuest requires the students to get on the Internet to a teacher-created site and do the assignment posted there.

Mrs. Tubbs, a local first grade teacher, created a Texas Tour WebQuest. The student had to go to www.clarendon.isd.tenet.edu, click on Elementary, Academics, First Grade, Mrs. Tubbs's class, and then do the WebQuest. This required them to make a poster showing the Texas symbols, listen to the Texas state song, and admire the six flags of Texas.

Last Friday Mayor Tex Selvidge and city librarian Carolyn Blackerby judged the posters. Trevela Dronzek, Brandon McAfee, and Andrew Tiedeman were the winners.

The posters are now on display at the Burton Memorial Library.

HNB Buckaroos leading other local Walk Across Texas troops

By Sue Church, County FCS Agent

Many Walk Across Texas (WAT) teams bemoaned the fact that the weather didn't cooperate with their need to get out and walk the first week of the Donley County WAT campaign.

It didn't seem to pose a problem for the Herring National Bank "Buckaroos," led by captain Gayle Edes. Their eight-member team walked a total of 116 miles. The HNB Buckaroo members in addition to Edes are B. J. Land, Helen Land, Ann Alexander, Jerri Ann Shields, Frances Smith, Sharon Knox, and Janice Barbee. Congratulations, Buckaroos!

Immediately following the Buckaroos were "Who Let the Dawgs Out" (captain Wanda Smith) at 102.75 miles and "Texas Trotters" (captain Lana Topper) at 90.1 miles.

Each week the traveling Walk Across Texas T-shirt is awarded to the team with the greatest 'weighted' mileage for the week. Each team's weighted mileage is determined by deducting the most and least miles walked by a team's members. The weighted mileage then reflects the mileage walked by the six core members of the team. Again, the Buckaroos reported a high of 78 weighted miles and earned the right to keep the traveling T-shirt following Week 1.

Clarendon School District has four teams competing: Elementary I, Elementary II, Clarendon Jr. High and Coach Schmidt and the Senior Has Beens. The Elementary I team, led by captain Tiffany Shadle, has assumed the first week lead at the school with a total of 54.7 miles. The Clarendon Jr. High team is working toward crossing the county line this week.

For an up close, visual representation of weekly results, visit the Walk Across Texas map on display at B&R Thriftway. Also, it's never too late to sign up a team. At present there are 15 teams registered. Contact the Donley County Extension Service at 874-2141 for more information.

CC wins 2 against Howard

By Sandy Anderberg
The Clarendon College Bulldogs hosted Howard College March 30 - 31 and defeated them two out of the four games.

In a great defensive game, the Bulldogs won the first game 3-2. Chris Lawson was credited with pitching the win. Lawson gave up five hits and two runs. Adam Klestinec was 2 for 5 with a double and an RBI. Andrew Graham was perfect from the plate with two doubles. Leon Leyva went 1 for 3 with one double, and Sylvain Pearson was 1 for 2 with one double and one RBI.

The Bulldogs lost the 2nd game by one run. The score was 4-5. The losing pitcher was Terry Stone.

The 3rd game of the series took place on Saturday, March 31. The Bulldogs played hard again, but they came up one run short. The final score was 5-6. The losing pitcher was Simon Walshe. Hitting for the Bulldogs were Graham, who went 3 for 4 from the plate with one double and one RBI, and Michael Pelley, who was 1 for 3 with a double and one RBI.

The Bulldogs showed their strength in the final game of the double header. Graham and Pelley each hit 2 for 4. Pelley added one triple and 3 RBI's. Leyva hit a double and went 2 for 4. Noah Peery was 1 for 2 and had 2 RBI's. The winning pitcher was Simon Trevena, and Josh Adams got the save.

"It was four great games," said Coach Trent Petrie. "The kids played hard all weekend."

The Bulldogs are working toward that trip to the Regional Tournament the first weekend of May. They are still in the hunt with twelve conference games left.

The Bulldogs are 8-8 in conference play, which puts them in 5th place right behind New Mexico. Out of those 8 losses, 5 of them were only by one run. Coach Petrie has got his guys playing good ball, and things are looking good for the Bulldog baseball program.

The Bulldogs will be on the road April 6-7. They will go up against New Mexico Military in Roswell. They'll face Redlands of El Reno, Okla., on April 10.

Skyrockets defeat CHS

By Sandy Anderberg
Say hello to the spring sports: Baseball, softball, golf, tennis, and track. They're all clamoring for attention from our high school athletes.

It's the norm for an athlete to have two or three different events over a one or two day period. That's what happened to the Bronco baseball team Friday, March 30, as they played a District ballgame against the Wellington Skyrockets. The guys played hard, but their numbers were low due to the track meet going in Amarillo. The final score was 4-7.

The game stayed fairly close until the 5th inning, according to Head Coach Danny Brittain.

"We made 4 or 5 mental mistakes and let them score 5 runs."

Only two of those runs were actual earned runs by Wellington.

Clarendon had five hits compared to Wellington's six. The Broncos had seven errors, and Wellington had four.

"On the whole we didn't play bad. That 5th inning just did us in."

Brittain admits that there was a lack of hitting in the game and the errors were costly. Todd Hoeltzel was on the mound, and Brittain felt good about his performance.

The Broncos will go up against Ascension Academy Friday in Amarillo beginning at 4:00 p.m. They will go to Wellington Monday to continue their District schedule.

The Lady Bronco softball team made a clean sweep of the double header they played against Ascension Academy at home March 27.

The Lady Broncos are putting it all together and making things happen in their first year on the softball field.

"The girls played awesome in the cold and rain," said Coach Kathy Barton. "We really appreciated all the people who endured the weather to support us. It was nice to hear the horns honking and people yelling for us even after being there 4 hours. We want to especially thank Eddy Eads who saved our cold hands by supplying our dugout with a propane heater."

The Lady Broncos will hit it hard in practice to get ready for their first District game Monday at home against West Texas.
