Collins at Clarendon.

Texas Stock and Farm Journal. Clarendon is not as large as Fort Worth, nor as old as Dallas, but what it lacks in size and age is very well made up in quality. Its people have big ways in everything they do. Sunday morning the Journal's missionary attended Sunday school at the M. E. church South. The superintendent reported 144 scholars and teachers present—a good showing for a town of not more than 1500 population, where there are at least four other institutions of the same kind. I then went over the way and attended upon the ministrations of "the Word" with the M. E. church. The congregation was not large, but its members have big ways, for they worship in one of the prettiest little churches I've found in Texas. It is as pretty as a cage with a red bird in it. Hard by is the graded school building, and while it is a frame, yet it is a splendid specimen of modern architecture and, as another witness to the big ways of this people, they support a nine months' free school each year, and there is in regular attendance at the writing 200 pupils, living witnesses to the fact that the Panhandle produces other stuff besides lambs, calves, Kaffir corn, grass and sorghum, and as additional proof of the ways of this people the merchants have as big stocks of hardware, dry goods, groceries, drugs, farming implements and saddlery as can be found in Denton, Sherman, Gainesville and Abilene. And as to saloons, Chas. Eyer's place will compare favorably in size, elegance and richness of furniture with any place of the same kind in New Orleans or St. Louis. This being the end of the Fort Worth division of the great Denver road, this alone being the means of distributing $7000 per month, and added to this the trade that comes here for ranch and farm supplies from a radius of not less than fifty miles, no wonder that this people have big ways, with not an empty dwelling or business house in the city.

The city is right in the neighborhood of 3900 feet above sea level, hence the ozone laden air is too thin and pure for malaria to live and thrive, and is just the place for people disposed to lung troubles and asthma, but people with sore noses had better not follow them into this country for catarrh does a flourishing business, and the architectural construction of the organ is no legal bar to its operations, for it tackles the Roman, Greek, Hebrew, snub and turned up nose all alike.

Donley county is bounded on the south by Red River, and on the north by Prairie Dog fork of the same and is one of the foot-stools and water sheds of the Llano-Estacado, pronounced for me by a Mexican senorita, "Yano Estacarro," but in plain United States, is Staked Plains. It is a country of swells, swags, draws, hills valleys and deep cut canyons, well set with gama and mesquite grasses—an ideal cowman's country.

I find that prices for all kinds of cattle are holding stiff, but owing to the timidity of money in times of war, few sales are being made.

I learn that those operators in live stock in these parts who were spread out when the Spanish-American war came up are, as a rule, in the hands of concerns that are well able and well disposed to tide them over, but for this slight "constipation" in the workings of the machinery of the great mogul finance, the people up this way wouldn't know that the monster, war, is in the saddle, but after all, it will pan out a blessing to all the people. First, it will blot out sectional lines between the North and the South, establish the patriotism of the people and the stability of the American government in the minds of those who control the money that moves the commerce of the country, cure Mr. National Finance of his chronic case of constipation, and prosperity will walk with gigantic strides all over our common country. R. M. COLLINS. Clarendon, Tex., May 12, 1898.

Wou An Elephant.

With regard to Commodore Dewey's victory at Manila we are somewhat in the condition of the boy who won the elephant in a lottery raffle. The young man could scarcely sleep o' nights for fear he would not be the lucky winner, and when finally he won the elephant he did not know what to do with it and begged his friends to take his prize off his hands on any terms.

We have won a great victory in Manila bay and totally destroyed the Spanish fleet in those waters, but what to do with Manila and the Philippines is now the question. To hold and occupy the islands with their mongrel, half civilized population will require more warships in those waters and a large force of troops. It is a long and round-about way to the Philippines—10,000 miles or more.

To occupy these islands with a sufficient force of soldiers—variously estimated at 10,000 to 30,000, and to maintain a sufficient navy in those waters will be an expensive and tedious undertaking and besides, will be almost sure to lead us into complications with Germany, France, Russia and possibly other European powers, resulting in war, probably, unless we back down and out. It seems to us that with the destruction of the Spanish fleet Commodore Dewey should have steamed away to aid in the search for the rest of the Spanish navy—the Cape de Verde fleet—and in conjunction with Admiral Sampson have bent every energy to the annihilation of Spain's navy. With the complete destruction of Spain's navy she would be helpless and hopeless, and the war ended on our own terms.

The longer the war is prolonged the more danger of European help. We do not believe that the Spanish fleet has any intention of chancing all in a combat with Sampson. The Spanish commander of the Cape de Verde fleet knows where to find Admiral Sampson when he wants to meet him.

Suppose the Spanish fleet, after steaming about in West Indian waters—all the time dodging our fleet—should suddenly turn about, steam around Cape Horn, across the Pacific attack and crush Dewey in the waters of the Philippines and thus transfer the seat of war to those islands, which would be almost certain to involve us in trouble with Europe. War is a game between two or more nations, and poor old Spain may yet lead us a sorry chase. It seems to us that we have no earthly use for the Philippines and should let go at once, release Dewey's fleet and let him unite with Sampson, and Selhey to hunt down and destroy the Spanish fleet wherever found, at the same time throw an army into Cuba strong enough to boost Blanco and his spanish army out of Cuba as quickly as possible. However, the powers that be, at Washington, are managing this affair, while the rest of us are expected to pay for the dance and the fiddlers.—Real Republic.

If the democratic party can be trusted to carry out the reforms for which the people's party stands, there can be no longer any excuse for the existence of the latter party. If the democratic party cannot be so trusted, then the populist who dares attempt to injure the People's party by any misalliance with the democratic party is a traitor to the principles of populism.—Tulare Valley (Cal.) Citizen.

Political Facts From New Era.

Give the facts to the people and they will reach right conclusions. The man who loves himself too much cannot really love anyone else. Party idolatry is not always confined to the members of dominant parties.

Progress without liberty is as impossible as growth without nourishment. Time spent in debating which reform is the greatest is time utterly wasted.

Whenever the right of any individual is infringed the liberty of all is endangered. Happiness is a privilege, a duty and a habit. Like other habits it can be cultivated.

Men are never quite equal to their ideals, but the loftier the ideal the nobler the man. The man whose ideal of happiness is the gratification of himself never knows what real happiness is.

It is time that government by the people was made a practical fact instead of only a beautiful theory. The fact that we are at war with a foreign foe should not make us willing to surrender to the enemy at home.

Gold would not be worth the cost of mining were it not for the fictitious valuation placed on it by free coinage.

Reformers are in the majority in America, but being divided into a number of parties they are beaten in detail. The man who is only anxious for reform for the sake of his personal profit, is neither a patriot nor a humanitarian.

Give the people a chance to make their own laws and they will be more ready to obey the laws that are made. Greed has neither conscience nor heart. It will defraud a nation, and turn a deaf ear to the cry of the starving.

The schemes of Wall Street governed politicians will cost this nation more in life and property than all the Spanish ships and Spanish soldiers. If nothing is accomplished until all reformers agree as to which reform is the most important, the country will go to ruin while reformers are arguing.

The mass of the people never care to have their money redeemed in gold or silver. All they require in money is something which, by the law of the land, can be used in effecting exchanges. Some of the wise men keep assuring us that the stamp of the government add nothing to the value of the metal on which it is impressed. Well, we are heartily in accord with that statement. But we would like these wise men to explain how it is the stamp of the government on a piece of silver, which can be bought for 40 cents, makes it pass everywhere, without question, for a dollar.

We can explain it from our point of view, and agree that the stamp of the government adds nothing to the value of the metal, but we should like to see these wise financiers explain it from their point of view. When a political party declares for direct legislation, it declares for government by the people and against government by party. If it adds to that declarations in regard to what legislation should be enacted it virtually says that while it knows the people ought to rule, it does not intend they shall, unless they rule as that party dictates. If the people are to rule, political parties will be divested of all power to control legislation. A declaration as to what laws shall be enacted, by a party which stands for direct legislation smacks strongly of false pretenses.

Judge J. L. McCall has leased the Weatherford Leader for two years.

Republicans Throwing Bouquets at Barney Gibbs.

As an independent Republican organ the Intelligencer does not hesitate to advocate the cause of Barnett Gibbs for governor of Texas. Though claimed by Populists, Gibbs is as far above that party as Populism is above Democracy. He is simply an independent man, with original and logical views. He is the man for the place—upon the Republican ticket.

The nomination of Gibbs would preserve the identity of the Republican party, and the embracing of his railroad scheme and the Populist plank requiring the submission of county bond issues to a direct vote of the people would be according to Populists, due recognition. This would be fair to both parties and a blessing to Texas. This kind of a ticket would not only beat fusion, but it would win. By it Populism might be annihilated, but Populists (the real reformers) would not object, as their best views would be embraced in Republicanism and in the bosom of the grand old party they could find a home.—Norton's Intelligencer.

Bryan Defeated for Company Captain.

LINCOLN, Neb., May 23.—There was a secret meeting of the members of company A, (Bryan's) of the Third regiment tonight. Horace Greely Whitmore was elected captain. Bryan was a candidate for captain, but opposition developing against him he withdrew to avoid a bolt of about forty members, all enlisted in the Nebraska artillery. The understanding now is that Governor Holcomb will appoint Bryan colonel of the Third. There is a general belief, even among the party friends of Bryan that he has hurt himself politically by his excursion into military matters.

And Is Sure To.

During the discussion, and around and under all the proposed smoke of battle, the bond syndicate is playing for a chance to get in a Fitzsimmons blow on the American people.—Michigan Messenger.

It is reported that ten million flags have been sold recently and that the manufacturers cannot keep up with the demand. The flags sell at 1 cent up. A silk flag 12x18 feet costs one hundred and fifty dollars. Most flags, such as the government uses, are made of bunting, a woolen material.

We need not anticipate any trouble with England in our fight with Spain. We are paying those fellows too many millions of dollars every year in interest on public and private debts to fear any trouble from that source. With England we are an easy mark.—Nonconformist.

As fast as the army advances after landing in Cuba, telegraph wire will be laid. In connection with this fast yachts, purchased by the government of wealthy New Yorkers, will be utilized, so that there will be speedy communication between the War Department at Washington and the army.

The best money the world has ever used is a full legal tender greenback, and when made receivable for all government revenues they have never been below par.

The democrats of Randall county have made nominations for county officers as follows: L. C. Lair, county judge; A. M. Peeler, county clerk; W. D. Orr, sheriff; S. V. Wirt, treasurer, and J. W. St. Clair for assessor.

The Vermont legislature which adjourned a few days ago voted $7.00 a month for each soldier who volunteers from that state. It is an extra bonus given in addition to the regular pay from the government.

Clipped.

Yoakum shipped a carload of snap beans to Kansas City Saturday.

A new populist journal is to be established at Lockhart.

When you teach a boy that wealth is a mark of honor he will sacrifice manhood and honor to become wealthy.

A West Virginia farmer who was a firm believer and a staunch supporter of the gold standard during the last campaign, found his meat house robbed last week of a thousand pounds of bacon and a note left in its stead bearing these words: "You gold bugs can live on confinement, but it takes bacon at our house." Signed "16 to 1."

Some Battle Losses.

War has become a vast science and has been made more fatal by the invention of terrific death dealing machines. No man can calculate the fearful losses of life that are possible under modern conditions. The present struggle may give us a chance to determine.

The ten battles of the civil war in which the losses were heaviest were in chronological order:

The Seven Days, battle, June 27-July 2, 1862, Federal, 15,200; Confederate, 20,000.

Antietam, Sept. 17, 1862, Federal, 12,410; Confederate, 11,172.

Stone River, Dec. 31, 1862-Jan. 4, 1863, Federal 13,249; Confederate 10,500.

Chancellorsville, May 1-4, 1863, Federal 17,287; Confederate, 12,463.

Gettysburg, July 1-3, 1863, Federal 23,003; Confederate, 20,451.

Chickamauga, Sept. 19-20, 1863, Federal, 16,179; Confederate, 18,000.

Shiloh, April 5-6, 1862, Federal, 13,047; Confederate, 10,694.

Battles in the Wilderness, May 5-6 1864, Federal, 17,666; Confederate, 5,000 (estimated).

Spottsylvania Court House, May 17-21, 1864, Federal 18,399, Confederate 5,000 (estimated).

Cold Harbor, June 1-3, 1864, Federal, 12,737; Confederate 1,700 (estimated).

These figures include the killed, the wounded and the prisoners.

While we are congratulating the country on the action of the senate finance committee in reporting against a bond issue of $500,000,000, let us not forget who should have the credit for the work. The fact is Mr. John P. Jones of Nevada is the man who held the key and cast the deciding vote. He was originally a republican, but when the money question became the dominant issue, he joined the People's Party and is now sometimes so classed and sometimes as a "silver republican." Here is the man with the courage of a hero who dares to stand for his convictions even though it severs party ties formed through long years of service. All honor to Mr. Jones of Nevada.—Nonconformist.

The Wall street banker who wants to draw gold from the treasury can use national bank notes just as well as greenbacks and every banker who understands the law knows this to be a fact. They make a great howl about greenbacks and the "endless chain," but never say a word about the part that national bank notes play in this game.—Chicago Express.

Our fighters are all right, but there is no reason why they should not be properly fed and clothed, except that politicians have charge of that branch of the service.—Ft. Worth Register.
