ONE OR TWO-HOUSE LEGISLATURE

AUSTIN.—Judging from my mailbox the most popular question of the month is this: "Would the one-house legislature remedy the evils of the present two-house system?"

A great majority of those writing me think it would. Others while admitting the deficiencies of the present legislature ask pertinent questions about the unicameral (one-house legislature. Senator George Norris of Nebraska, father of the unicameral plan, has answered these questions in a speech printed in the Congressional Record.

The questions given below are typical of those in letters to me. The answers are those of Senator Norris as taken from his speech.

1. Isn't the one-house legislature more representative of the people than the present system?

"The adoption of a one-house legislature is a progressive step toward greater democracy. The idea of the present two-branch legislature was copied from England. One of these branches—the House of Commons represented the common people; the other branch—the House of Lords—represented the aristocracy, men of wealth. The original idea was that the monarchy needed a house of lords to protect one class against the inroads of another. It has no place in a democratic form of government where class distinction has been abolished. The greater wonder is that it has been maintained so long in a democracy like ours.

"The two-house legislature must be condemned as out of date and permitting the control of legislation by special interests which through the instrumentality of shrewd paid lobbyists are able to defeat the will of the people at every session of a legislature consisting of two houses."

2. Isn't it easier for the lobbyists to control a one-house legislature than both the house and senate?

"The reverse is absolutely true. The professional lobbyist would find his occupation gone, because his success depends upon his ability to assist the unworthy legislator to make such a record that his constituents cannot easily determine just what it is. This is also shown by the fact that in any attempt to adopt a one-house legislature, the proposition is always bitterly fought by trusts, monopolies, lobbyists, and special interests.

"In a one-house legislature where one member of the body has the right to secure a roll call on every vote, it is impossible for anything to be done in secret. Every act of the legislature and every act of each individual must be transacted in the spotlight of publicity.

"In a two-house legislature, with its necessary conference committee, all kinds of opportunities are offered to perform public business in secret and to cover up the record so the people will not know just who is to blame for the defeat of good laws or for the inclusion of junkers.

"In a one-house legislature, the faithful servant would find his record understood by his people, and it would be impossible for the unworthy legislator to cover up his tracks. No legislation will take place in the dark. There will be no item of legislation without a public record. Legislative matters will be so simplified that the ordinary person will see through them and understand them perfectly. The people would be able, without any difficulty, to punish and reward according to the record."

3. What are the evils of the free conference committee under the present two-house system and will the unicameral plan remedy such evils?

"A bill to become law in a two-house legislature must pass both branches in exactly the same form. Where there is a disagreement between the two houses, it is referred to a conference committee. This committee is more powerful in all matters referred to it than either house.

"Its meetings are held in secret; there is no such thing as a roll-call vote; and there is no record of its proceedings. A bill, once referred to a conference committee, cannot become a law unless it is agreed to by a majority of the conferees representing each house.

"Thus, it is within the power of the committee, in secret and without a record vote, and without any public record whatever, to absolutely prevent legislation, and to kill or to modify, at its pleasure, any proposed legislation within its jurisdiction.

"If a report is agreed to, it is then reported to the house and to the senate, and the bill thus reported cannot be amended. It must either be accepted as a whole or rejected in its entirety. Thus, members of the senate and the house are compelled, without an opportunity to offer amendments, to vote for or against the conference bill as a whole. In order to get the good they must accept the bad. If they think the bad predominates, then, in order to reject the bad, they must likewise reject the good.

(Note: The outstanding example of this evil occurred in 1933 when the free conference committee tacked on to the departmental appropriation bill the rider authorizing race track gambling which had not been considered.)

"It must be understood in considering this question, that special interests, corporations and monopolies are not as a rule interested in securing the passage of legislation. They are almost universally interested in preventing legislation—which in one way or another regulates their activities and prevents injustice by means of monopolistic control.

"In order to prevent passage of legislation it is not necessary to control both the house and the senate. It is only necessary to control one house, or to control the conference committee, or to control members of the conference committee from either house.

"Nothing of this kind could happen in a one-house legislature for there will be no such thing as a conference committee."

4. Would the unicameral system be less expensive to the taxpayers than the two-house system?

"There are a hundred different ways and means by which the one-house legislature will be much less expensive than a two-house legislature. We could increase the individual salary of the member and yet in the aggregate save a great amount of money in salaries alone. Logrolling, delays, and deadlocks (which are expensive procedures) between the two houses cannot occur."

What do you think?

Who Benefits Most In Texas Oil Development

Figures from the office of Comptroller George H. Sheppard, checked by State Auditor Tom King, show that out of 6,988,294,564 gallons of gasoline produced in Texas refineries in one year, this state received direct taxes on only the 1,164,395,626 gallons consumed by Texas motorists, who paid the $46,575,825.04 in 4c per gallon levy at the pumps. Deducting the 12,356,542 gallons of Texas refined gasoline used by the federal government, and therefore not taxable, the United States pulled down the neat sum of $69,759,380.22 on the 1c per gallon tax on this Texas product. State Highway department records show Texas received but $12,273,957.00 in federal aid for all kinds of highway purposes for the one year period. Thus some 57½ millions of Texas produced tax dollars went to build highways in the other 47 states. For each dollar received Texas produced $6 of the fund.

Jim Bourland and daughter, Mary Kate, of Pampa visited relatives here Sunday.

* By the Apostle *

In the old days of the "fascinator," handkerchiefs were seldom found necessary.

Then there was a time when a lot of folks slept with a "nooby" on their heads because, perhaps, the article was meant for the head.

Nobody seems to know the exact meaning of the word "tolerable," but the word "few" is defined in the Bible. See Peter 3:20.

What could be better than spare-ribs and turnips. Our good friends J. B. Estes supplied the spare-ribs, and J. R. Dale the turnips. Thanks a lot, neighbors, thanks a lot.

More Oddities.
Douglas F. Wadsworth depot master of the Denver, and the Hommel brothers, Ollie and Frank, were born in the same neighborhood down in Clay county near Bellevue. Alfred Estlack and Cecil Killough, one of the live wire in the Clarendon Food store, were born in Bowie, Montague county almost at the same time.

Salvationist.
Mayor La Guardia was presented last week at a New York meeting for General Evangeline Booth, head of the Salvation Army. Praising the Army's methods, the Mayor said: "You feed them first and save them afterwards." Then he warned the Salvationists: "Don't ever get too scientific lest you lose the human touch. Christ did not hand the calories in the bread He handed out."

Plains Metropolis Reforms.
A city, like an individual, should be commended upon evidence of having reformed. Not many months back the police system of Amarillo was so gummed up with politics that the suffering public just had to suffer. Out-of-town buyers could not leave their cars unguarded on the main streets in broad daylight, so bold were robbers. Some autostists carried guns for personal protection. In one instance a safe was shoved out on the sidewalk and trucked away as real citizens were gathering for church services nearby. In the Sunday edition of the News, it proudly announces that four out of six citizens are honest. At least four purses out of six found on the streets were returned to their owners with money intact. That's mighty fine, mighty fine. It is a great relief to one to realize that no longer must one commit murder or permit one's self being robbed in the daylight of the Metropolis of the Plains. Durned if we don't take to visiting up there oftener.

Termites, like republicans, are ever with us. The ravages of the tiny insects are plainly to be seen on petrified wood of the Mesozoic age.

Gold Placer Mine Was Worked In Moore County

Believe it or not, but J. T. Brown was the name of the party who worked the placer sands of Blue creek up in Moore county, and actually collected gold which he marketed in Amarillo, but carried the secret of his 'diggings' into the hereafter.

Brown had a small 'lay' about four miles north of Plemmons where he resided until his death about 1917. There were times when Brown found time dragging and weather too dry to grow a crop on his small holdings. Being of an energetic disposition, Brown gathered to himself mining pan, and made a sluice box after a fashion. He evidently had mined some place becoming to the Panhandle. His work on Blue creek netted him fair wages, he told A. H. Baker, a neighbor who passes this information on to our readers.

"Thar is gold on them creeks" up in Moore county." Besides gold, the Panhandle has copper, lead and silver in the same limited quantities.

Holiday Accidents Kill Five; Injure Twelve

AMARILLO, Dec. 1.—Five persons died in the North Panhandle as the result of automobile crashes on Thanksgiving Day.

Three Amarillo women were fatally injured in an accident near Borger Thursday night, and the lives of two persons were claimed in collisions near Dalhart.

Ranging from critical to slight injuries, over 12 persons were hurt in Amarillo during the holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Hudson and daughter Gertrude, and Mrs. Mavis Hudson of Sulphur Springs, Texas spent the week end here with their niece, Mrs. C. L. Benson.

F. F. A. Projects Cover Wide Field of Activities

Members of the local F.F.A. chapter have completed plans for their projects for the 1937-1938 year. Three factors featured on the program as adopted by the boys are proper feeding of livestock, improved breeding gilts and sows, and improved seed for crop projects. A large number of calves and pigs are on feed; over twenty registered gilts and pigs are owned by members; and certified seed will be used on all projects.

A summary of the projects for the current school year include: 22 calves for beef and show fed by 16 boys; 750 broilers fed by 9 boys; 69 acres of cotton raised by 12 boys; 141 acres of grain sorghums grown by 22 boys; 7 cows for milk production cared for by 5 boys; 55 hens for egg production cared for by 3 boys; 2 gilts cared for by 25 boys; 96 pigs for pork and show fed by 26 boys; 15 acres of wheat grown by 3 boys, and 20 lambs for mutton and show fed by 8 boys.

Judging Contest

Interest in the annual F.F.A. poultry judging contest held in connection with the local poultry show each year is reaching an unusual peak. 40 high schools were invited to the contest which is open to all vocational agriculture department wishing to enter. The local contest is conceded to be one of the best in the Area each year.

A. A. Tampke, Byers, Texas, whose teams have won the contest for the past four years while he was at McLean and Quail, has entered the contest. Other entries include Tullis, coached by J. M. Hill, former local instructor; Claude and Quail.

A circulating silver loving cup is presented to the winner of the contest each year by the local chamber of commerce. Quail won the contest last year and Miami finished second.

New Coops Purchased For Poultry Show

Ten new double steel coops for use in the local poultry show were purchased last week by the chamber of commerce for the Green Belt Poultry Show. Approximately 50 coops are now owned by the local show. All of the coops are steel and are in excellent condition.

Arrangements have been made with Memphis to secure additional coops for the show if they are needed. Each of the coops are equipped with tin cups for feeding and watering the birds.

Clarendon F.F.A. Observes Project Day

35 members of the local F.F.A. observed the first of a series of project days December 1. The entire group visited the projects of every boy enrolled in the local chapter, and each boy was required to compare his project work to that of his class mate. The trip which took the entire day was made in a local school bus.

The trip revealed a great deal of increased interest on the part of the boys in feeding their stock and preparing them for the spring shows. 40 calves, 110 pigs, and 20 lambs which are being fed for the local, Amarillo and Ft. Worth show were inspected on the tour.

Millions Are Spent On WPA Projects In Panhandle

Expenditures of $3,164,308 were made on WPA projects in 26 counties of the Panhandle administered under the Amarillo office during the past two years, according to a report of A. A. Meredith November 30th.

Donley county consumed $74,823 local sponsors putting up $22,408. Gray county drew $186,770 and spent from local funds $70,496. Collingsworth received from WPA $91,257 and added $29,545 in local funds. Hall county drew $166,746 in WPA funds and matched it with $43,582 of local funds.

Local sponsors spent money, material, etc. included in costs noted above.

Recommendations which will solve the major water problems in the five Texas drainage basins have been forwarded by the Texas Planning Board to the National Resources Committee in Washington for submission to Congress. Recommendations call for the expenditure of approximately $300,000,000 in Texas.

Old Yukon Craft In "The Barrier"

There's at least one group of men who have resisted the increasing commercialism of the age. They are the owners of the "Skagit Chief," an old stern-wheeler which Harry Sherman, film producer, wanted for scenes in Rex Beach's romance, "The Barrier," which opens next Sunday at the Pastime Theatre.

Sherman wanted an authentic old ship, one which had actually been used in the gold-rush trade, but found that no matter how much money he offered, the owners of the "Skagit Chief" wouldn't take her off her regular run to rent her for the picture.

Just as Sherman, defeated, was walking out of the shipping office, one of the owners spoke up. "Wait a minute, Mr. Sherman," he said. "You can't rent the 'Skagit Chief' for money, but I'll tell you what we will do. If you'll give us a print of all the scenes in which the ship appears, so that we can run 'em off here and see her as a movie actress, we'll let you take her."

Sherman instantly agreed, shipped the prints the moment they were finished, and added, as a separate gift from himself, the latest model projection machine and screen.

The "Skagit Chief" has been used in scenes featuring the leading members of the cast, including Leo Carillo, Jean Parker and James Ellison.

The film was directed by Les Selander.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Lamberson of Vernon spent Thanksgiving here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Lamberson.

SOME DON'TS FOR HUNTERS

The farmer-landowner is not really the kill-joy many hunters think he is. Approach him in the right way and you will get a lot more fun out of your shooting.

He has certain rights which you should respect. Ask permission to hunt on all lands whether posted or not. Climb through his fences instead of over them. The landowner will not find his fences broken down and have to repair them the next Monday. Valuable livestock may stray into the road if the fence is down.

Do not hunt in an area pastured for livestock. Do not walk where there may be a crop of any kind. Be sure to close gates which you pass through.

If you shoot an extra bird or two, take them around to the farmhouse and offer them to your host. He will probably appreciate it and you will insure your welcome for the next time you come shooting. Allow your dog plenty of time to retrieve a wounded bird. Don't try to annihilate a covey, for the future game supply rests upon the birds you let go.

Do not shoot a small bore gun which is to you a handicap in making clean kills. It is more sportsmanlike to shoot a larger bore gun and retrieve your kill than to "feather" your game with too light a load. And don't shoot at birds out of range in the hope that you may "scratch" one down occasionally.

ARM BROKEN WHILE PLAYING

Accidents just will happen to our little folks when they are playing and romping despite all the care and attention given them. A few days ago George Barkett's arm was broken. George is only six, but he acted like a brave soldier when the doctor set the arm. He's a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Barkett of the Barkett Department store and is getting along nicely.

 There is Always Worship Fellowship :: Service

We have just had a most delightful Thanksgiving season, and now our hearts turn toward that happiest of all periods when we celebrate the birth of Christ. May we carry the Thanksgiving spirit right on into Christmas time, thereby making it doubly delightful. These two seasons are preeminent Christian, in fact products of the Christian religion and should be observed as such. Instead of being bewitched by other things during the next few weeks and staying away from our churches let us put first things first and experience the thrill of a Christian revival during these Christian holidays.

The First Baptist Church is happy to feature Miss Vada Waldron in the evening service Sunday at 7:00 p. m. The multitude of friends in Clarendon and surrounding territory will be happy to be in that service and hear the message this fine consecrated young Christian has for us before departing as a missionary under the Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention, to Argentina. Other services will be as usual. You are welcome, with all that word means, to be in all the services.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Hallmark of Shamrock visited Mr. and Mrs. Fred Buntin and other relatives here Thanksgiving.

 LOYALTY DAY, next Sunday. An effort is being made to secure the presence of every member and friend of the Church possible at the Sunday school and morning services. The theme of the services will be "Loyalty." Addresses will be delivered by some of the laymen and by the pastor. The people will be invited to pledge themselves to the loyal support of the Church during the year just beginning. Let us put more meaning into Church membership.

A BIBLE NIGHT service will be held Sunday night beginning at seven o'clock, the young people giving a program on the use and value of the Bible, and the pastor preaching on the same theme. We invite all the people who have Bibles of unusual interest because of age, size, tradition, or any other reason to bring them to the Sunday night service so that they may be used in the Bible display. Special recognition will be given to such Bibles and their owners. Who can bring the oldest Bible, the largest Bible, the smallest Bible, the quaintest Bible, the most unusual family Bible, etc? We expect a good congregation of Bible lovers for this service.

Deaths In Traffic Exceed War Toll

AUSTIN, Dec. 1.—Death dealing shrapnel is an also ran compared to heedless automobile driving.

Col. H. H. Carmichael, public safety director said today 1,589 Texans were killed on highways and city streets through October—341 more than died in World War trenches under fire.

The gloomy picture promised little improvement.

"By Dec. 1 we fear the traffic death count will be near 1,750 which will exceed by 30 the Texans killed at the front and those who died later of wounds," he said.

The grisly comparison was a prelude to the director's appeal for safe and sane driving during forthcoming holiday periods. He said officers will be "extra vigilant" in curbing careless and drunken drivers.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Sexton and Dorothy, Opal and Bob Hudson of Childress visited their aunt, Mrs. Jim Heckman and family over Sunday.
