among the more successful farmers for a number of years that most field seeds acclimated to our semieast. As Mr. Doherty began selling field seeds by mail and otherwise of corn, cane, etc, and checking up on the results obtained by other farmers, he felt that he was supplying a real demand for mor production on less acreage. Certain varieties of corn and cane were found to produce much more than others and to stand the extra dry years better than others. This seed grower began to push such corn varieties as Daybreak, Reese Drouth-Resister, Golden Dent and Hastings Prolific. Most any one could grow common June. corn but it was not a very desirable product after grown. The newer varieties named above had some faults and Mr. Doherty makes some exceptions in his recommendations.

Daybreak matures early, is soft and is principally grown for early roasting ears for which we always have a ready nearby market. Golden Dent is a midseason variety and Mr. Doherty considers it his best all-round variety tho a yellow corn. Hastings produces wonderfully if there is plenty of rain to make it profitable, and more ties fail. Of the two leading varieties of all purpose cane, Mr. Doherty has finally decided on Japanese Honeydrip. This is sometimes called seeded ribbon cane. Makes an excellent syrup Brice Crossed Bats With but must be planted early as it is a late maturing variety. Makes a good feed if cut in the boot. If the soil is too dry for early planting, then Sugardrip is recommended. This is an early, long jointed variety. Makes good feed and is grown quite extensively by Donley county farmers and is a favorite thru-out the Panhandle.

Platnters are giving far more thought to variety now than ever before. More experimenting is being done and this information is furnished the Leader by several farmers as well as Mr. Doherty. If you have been successful with any particular variety of field seeds, kindly let us know about it that we may pass the information along and help the other fellow.

ELY SCHOOL WILL PUT ON PLAY FRIDAY NIGHT

The teachers and patrons of the Ely school will put on a play Friday night, the 19th. The title of the play is "A Fighting Chance". IN INCUBATORS

Eggs Given Same Treatment as the Ordinary Hen.

It takes 28 days but turkey eggs can be hatched in incubators just the same as hens' eggs. Turkey raisers in several parts of Colorado are saving hours and days of hard labor that way and in the eastern part of Wyoming it is almost the universal practice.

The big job is to get enough eggs together at one time for a full-sized setting. They should not be held for more than ten days, according to Charles N. Keen of the Colorado Agricultural college, should be kept at a temperature of from 50 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit, and turned daily. The incubator should be thoroughly cleaned and disinfected, then warmed to the correct temper-

The temperature of hatching turkeys' eggs in the case of small machines, where the heat is at the top, may be one-half degree to one degree lower average than for As a guide for those who do not have the instructions for their machines, the average temperature starts at about 101 degrees and increases to about 103 or 104 degrees the last week. If the eggs carry good fertility, the body heat from the developed poults will gradually bring up the temperature

Additional moisture is needed as with hens' eggs. (A tray of sand kept wet will supply it.) Turkey poults should not be taken from the incubator until they are thoroughly dried off and appear strong on their

When the eggs are set under hens or turkey hens, steps should be taken to insure freedom from lice or mites as these parasites cause very serious losses among the young poults. The nest boxes should be sprayed before the eggs are set. The setting hen should be dusted thoroughly with saponified sodium fluoride or some other good lice powder at least three times dur-ing the latter part of the setting period, but prior to the twenty-fifth

Define Good Litter for Brooder House

There is no best litter to use in the brooder house, but there are certain requirements a litter must meet to be satisfactory. It should be light in weight, thus allowing the droppings and dirt to work to the floor so the chicks are less likely to come in contact with contaminated material; it should be absorbent, and therefore capable of keeping the floor of the brooder dry; cheap, so one can afford to replace it every five days after the first four weeks; and ould be clean, which means free from mold, mustiness and dust.

Shavings, cut straw and cut hay meet these requirements. These are not the only materials that one can use, but they are among the Straw or hay used for litter, should always be cut. If the straw or hay is not cut it becomes matted and covered with droppings, and is therefore of no value for lit-

Bacillary white diarrhea, coccidiosis and intestinal worms are spread to a large extent by dirty litter, the Cornell experiment station warns. One rule in brooding chicks that should be followed, if all others are forgotten, is "clean the brooder house every five days." This means removing the litter, sweeping the floor of the brooder house, and putting in clean litter.

POULTRY HINTS

The vitamine A content of eggs may be increased by feeding the hens greens.

Keep pullets away from the old hens so that they can be fed and handled differently.

Do not condemn the late molting ld hens, for they are very often our best and most continuous lay-

The use of cod liver oil in rawell established.

Heavy egg production, like heavy milk production, can only be secured by liberal feeding of a well balanced ration.

Egg-shell formation necessitates the use of large amounts of lime. Poor egg-shell texture is due to faulty supply or utilization of lime for the purpose.

Fewer chicks on new ground with ood management will bring better returns than many chicks hatched and but few saved, by raising them with the flock on old ground.

Provide plenty of hopper space give each chick a chance to eat. f the chicks are raised with hens here should be a feed coop that he large chickens cannot get into.

Demonstration Club Met Friday

The Home Demonstration club met in the club room of the municipal building Friday, April 5th. Ten members were present. The subject for the lesson was "Refinishing Furniture". Miss Harvey Thompson gave a demonstration on varnishing furniture, also how to remove varnish to best advantage. She also gave some valuable ideas on the culture of strawberries, this being a climate especially suited to the production of strawberries of exceptional merit altho very few are grown at this time in this section.

Mrs. W. H. Youngblood and Mrs. J. C. Estlack acted as joint hostesses and served refreshments to Mmes. W. L. Crane, A. H. Baker, Major Hudson, W. D. Van Eaton, J. A. Meador and Misses Thompson and Katie Meador, Mrs. Joe McMurtry being an invited

Home Grown Fruits Taste The Best Yard and Garden Contest Entrants Say

SAVING money at canning time and providing delicious filling for tasty deserts are among the results of Yard and Garden Contests, for the wisdom of planting a few fruit trees and some small fruit in the unused part of the back yard is shown the average home owner. Depending on the climate and on the nature of the soil, or on the individual preferences of the owner, a wide variety of fruit can be set out. The new varieties come into bearing soon and by their bountiful church grafter who sold as for a crops, year after year, they put themselves in the class of permanent bulletin board for the Baptist improvements.

Sixty pieces of printed cardboard which cost $9.25 including the printing, were sold to business people of Shamrock last week for $54. You ask, "how come?" The answer is "advertising," that magical word which smooth talking grafters purr into ears and get the same results as bolder members of the profession obtain by sticking a gun in the ribs of their clients.

This time it was hotel directory. State hotel rules and the state prohibition law as affecting hotel guests were printed in the center of the card. Around this was a border of ten advertisements. The management of the three hotels is not to be blamed. They knew nothing of the advertising rates to be charged and they were in no way connected with the scheme. They were presented the cards by the promoter. Collecting $54 from the merchants and paying $9.25 for the printing the grafter earned $44.75 for his day's work.

Shamrock is not the only town that is being victimized by these unscrupulous so called avertising men. Here is an editorial which appeared in the Rockdale Report-

The school authorities knew nothing about it, and now nobody knows where the grafter went, and the blotters were never seen.

The Rosebud News tells of the printing of a church directory. A strange couple came to town, got the church to help them solicit ads to the tune of 84.00. The church ladies got $10.00 for the job, and the man and woman carried away Mrs. Brown: So your husband $64.00, leaving a few cheap card-

"For five years," Mr. Lawson countinued, "I suffered from sto mach trouble, constipation and bloating spells. I had a fair appetite but never enjoyed anything would eat. I was sluggish and tired most all the time and had a shortness of breath caused from gas that would make me feel very uncomfortable. I suffered from constipation and would get all tired out and couldn't throw off this worn out feeling at all.

"I felt that something had to be done and finally I resorted to Orgatone and just let me say I have found it the proper thing for me. It started my troubles on the retreat in just a few days and now I am able to eat anything and enjoy it. I have overcome that indigestion and bloating and my nerves are as strong as anybody's and my vitality is splendid. I sleep fine all night and get up in the morning feeling rested and fit for my work. I feel stronger and have nore vim and energy than I have had in years. I cheerfuly recommend Orgatone to anyone needing a general all-round straightening

This rule will no doubt serve as a deterent to those who feel Attorney David Fitzgerald of that they can ignore our laws or be entertained at public expense while plying their nefarius trade.

TRUSTEE ELECTION There was no change made in the school board in the election of Saturday. This speaks well for the present board in that the majority are satisfied with the manner in which school matters have been handled during the past year.

Mrs. E. M. Ozier passed the information to the Leader this week ceived from San Antonio in which the sad news of the passing of W. W. Massey is noted. Citizen Evangelist of Good Cheer Spreads Optimism Daily

When not busy with his own affairs, H. J. Edington visits around looking over the town spreading good cheer among the fellows who are building and boosting. Just Monday he came into the Leader office enthused and perspiring after having made a trip round town to see the new buildings going up. He stated that the city well was almost done and casing being set, Buntin building running the concrete floor, Bennett building crew doing the same thing, John Bass ready for the brick veneer on his duplex, Weatherly and Hunt running the foundation on the J. J. Goldston home, found the Finks had moved into their new home, also that Will Montgomery was reroofing and otherwise building his home over, the Hurd home about done and a nice looking job up to the Clampitt standard of workmanship, Chase home with roof on and going right along and wound up by saying that the Holland building was a dandy garage building and that they would move into it in a few days and Harp's auto hospital will have a real shop.

It does one good to meet up with an optomist daily. This man does a world of good cheering the other fellow on and has a wonderful fund of practical ideas at the same time. Just now he is talking up a sidewalk building program from his home on east first to the first walk near Kearney-and he'll do it too. He puts over his own problems and then helps the other fellow. He also goes over big on committee programs and has never failed to do his part in every forward movement. Great is the

ONE FLOOR LEVEL.

The new Plymouth auto manufacturing plant, at Lynch Road and Mt. Elliot Ave., Detroit, has been thrown open to the inspection of visitors interested in the most modern methods of motor car production.

This huge manufactory, only recently in operation, is one of the most modern and completely equipped in the country. It occupies twenty-three acres of floor space and is the largest single floor structure of its kind in the country. The plant itself is ,490 feet long and with the forty acre plot on which it stands represents an investment of over $10,000,000.00.

Due to this single floor plan, it has been made possible, through the use of twelve miles of conveyor machinery to produce 1,000 cars a day, when operations are on a single shift basis and 2,000 cars on a two-shift basis.

Two thousand nine hundred and forty individual machine tools, all operating under their own motor power, perform the myriad of functions necessary to make the various parts of the engines, con trol and running gear.

One hundred tons of standard steel were used to construct the ovens in which fenders are enam bled. There are 200 running-in stands to handle the engines tha are constantly being tested prior to installation in their chassis.

So perfectly is the plant laid out and the work of the employees arranged that there is no evidence of unusual hurry and bustle, no sign of confusion or of wasted movements.

In adition to the manufacturing plant the building has a completely equipped kitchen, cafeteria, dining rooms and hospital. Specially equipped lunch wagons have also been installed which run throughthe plant conveying food to the employees.

BUT HE TOOK WONDERFUL ADVANTAGE OF THEM

A N outdoor living room in every back yard is the ideal of the Yard and Garden Contest. It is easy to see from the above illusrations how such a living room can be created even on a small city lot. Leave an open space and then plant in masses around the borders. A variety of shrubs, a tree or two, some flowers and one has another room added to his home during the summer months. These outdoor living rooms are assets to any home, especially in the crowded cities. The regular monthly business meeting of the B. Y. P. U. was held Monay night. The first thirty minutes was spent in an April Fool party. Following the period of fun the young people separated into their various departments for the serious business of reports and committee meetings.

The annual meeting of the District S. S. and B. Y. P. U. Convention will be held at Wellington April 9, 10 to 11. Several members of the local Baptist church are planning to attend.

Junior Boy's Chorus Entertain on Easter Program

Sunday evening the Junior Boys Chorus, directed by Mrs. Richard Wilkerson, took active part on the Easter program given at the First Baptist church. Three numbers were given, taken form "The Eas- eyes following her every move. ter Glory" by E. A. Clark and were rendered in a very plausable manner. At the colse of the program the boys sang "Christ Arose" and the sanctity of the moment gloriefied the practice of a noted annual event.

The program witnessed a fairly good turn out and the people seemed to appreciate the part taken by a winter of freedom on the range. those on program. The next appearance of the Junior Boy's Choclub given for the benefit of the Ladies club room, and will be given in the near future.

T. E. L. Class Met Tuesday

The members of the T. E. L. class met with Mrs. M. C. Reid Tuesday afternoon. After a short lesson led by Mrs. W. B. Sims, a social hour was spent discussing plans for the future welfare of the class, etc.

Refreshments of a very appetizing nature were served to Mmes. Sims, Draffon, Ballew, Wood, Lane, Whitlock, Hudson, Ticer, Mosley, Ledbetter, Johnson, Lindsey and Dawkins.

The many friends of Mrs. W. B. Sims will be glad to know that she has recovered sufficiently from a recent illness to be able to be herself once again.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—At the Warren ranch, the "Three Bar," on the fringe of the "cow country," a stranger applies for work as a rider. He is engaged by the owner, Williametts Ann Warren—known to all as "Billie." The girl's father, Cal Warren, had been the original owner of the place. The question whether the territory is to remain "cow country" or be opened to settlement is a troublesome one.

CHAPTER II.—Cattle "rustlers" have been troubling the ranch owners, the Three Bar, with a girl boss, having suffered more than others. The new hand gives his name as Cal Harris. By his announcement in favor of "squatters" he incurs the enmity of a rider known as Morrow. The will made by Cal Warren stipulated that half the property should go to the son of his old friend, William Harris, under certain conditions. The new arrival is the man, and he discloses the fact to Billie. The girl is suspicious of her new rider and takes counsel with her friend, the ranch cook. "Waddles."

CHAPTER III.—Harris' method of wearing the inevitable "gun" rather excites the girl's derision, though to herself she admits she is impressed by his manner. Slade, a ranchman with an unsavory reputation 2s a "bad man," visits Billie. He has long wanted to marry her, but she dislikes and fears him. Slade, endeavoring to embrace Billie, is interrupted by Harris. The men, on the verge of gun play, are quieted by Billie, but mutual enmity is established. Harris' half jesting proposal that the girl marry him and so settle the matter of the ranch ownership, is indignantly rejected, but the man declares he will remain on the place and restore its prosperity, waning under Billie's rule. CHAPTER III.-Harris' method of

CHAPTER IV

IT IS said that there comes a day in the life of every handler of bad horses when he will mount one and ride him out, master him and dismount-and forever after decline to ride another. Riley Foster was evidence of this. For three years Riley and Bangs had been inseparable, riding together on every job, and the shaggy youth topped off the animals in Foster's string before the older man would mount As Bangs went about his work his faded blue eyes were ever turned toward the Three Bar boss who stood in the door of the blacksmith shop.

The girl was vaguely troubled as she noted this. Bangs and Foster had returned for their second se son at the Three Bar. All through the previous summer the boy had evidenced his silent adoration, his Cal Harris finished shoeing the colt he was working.

"That's the last touch," he said. "My string is all set to go." "You have five colts gentled for your circle bunch," she said. "But you didn't pick a single cow horse The boys have sorted out the best ones and the few that are left won't answer for a man who insists on a

Three men were lashing their bed rolls and war bags on three pack horses and when this task was completed they rode down the lane, each one leading his pack animal. Harris knew this as evidence that they would start after the calves on the following day. The custom was to exchange representatives to ride with each wagon within a reasonable distance, the reps to look after the interest of the brand for which they rode.

"How many reps do you trade?" he asked.

"Three," she said. "Halfmoon D. V. L and with Slade." The Halfmoon D lay some fifteen miles eastward along the foot of the hills; the V L the same distance to the west, but cached away in a pocket that led well back into base of the range, a comparatively small outfit owned by the Brandons, father and four sons, who made every effort to keep the bulk of their cows ranging in their own home basin and exchanged reps only

Before the first streak of dawn the men had saddled and breakfasted. It was turning gray in the east when four horses, necessitating the attentions of four men, were hooked to the wagon. A man hang on the bit of each wheel horse while another grasped the bits of the lead team as Waddles made one last hasty trip inside.

"This will be a rocky ride for a mile or two," he prophesied, as he mounted the seat and braced himself. "These willow-tails haven't had on a strap of harness for many a month. All set. Turn loose!" The men stepped back and the four horses hit the collars raggedly. One wheel horse reared and jumped forward. The off leader dropped his head and pitched, shaking himslf as if struggling to unseat a rider, then the four settled into clattered and lurched down the lane. The wrangler, whose duty it was to tend the horse herd by day, and the nighthawk who would guard it at night sat on their horses at the far end of the corral and urged the herd out as the gates swung back. The remuda streamed down the valley, the first two riders swinging wide to either flank while nighthawk and wrangler brought up the rear.

before noon the wagon was halted in a broad bottom threaded by a tiny spring-fed stream. The teams were unhitched; mounts were unsaddled and thrown into the horse herd, which was then headed into the mouth of a branching draw and allowed to graze. Waddles dumned off the bed rolls that were piled from the broad lowered tail-gate to the wagon top and each man sorted out his own and spread it upon some spot which struck him as a likely bed ground. It was not long before Waddles was dispensing nourishment from the lowered tail-gate, ladling food and hot coffee into the plates and cups which the men held out to him. They drew away and sat crosslegged on the ground. The meal was almost finished when six horsemen rode down the valley and pulled up before the wagon.

"What's the chance for scraps?" the leader asked. "Step down," Waddles invited. "And throw the feed in you. She's still a-steaming."

Four of the men differed in no material way from the Three Bar men in appearance. The fifth was a ruffian with little forehead, a face of gorilla cast, stamped with brute ferocity and small intelligence. The last of the six was a striking figure, a big man with pure white hair and brows, his pale eyes peering from a red face.

Billie Warren forced a smile as she nodded to them, then moved off and sat upon a rock some fifty yards from the wagon, despising the six men who ate her fare and inwardly raging at the conditions which forced her to extend the hospitality of the Three Bar to men of their breed whenever they chanced by.

Harris strolled over and sat down facing her, sifting tobacco into a brown paper and deftly rolling his

"Has it been on your mindwhat I was telling you a few nights back, about how much I was loving you?" he asked.

"You had your chance to prove it by going away," she said, "and refused; so why bring it up again? The next two years will be hard enough without my having to listen to that.

"Our families must have been real set on throwing us together," he observed. "I was cut off without a dime myself-unless I spent two full years on the Three Bar."

She was angry with herself for believing him sincere, for being convinced that he, too, as he had sevtral times intimated, was tied in much the same fashion as herself. The explanation came to her in an illuminating flash. The elder Harris must have nursed a lifelong enmity against her father, who had believed him the most devoted friend on earth.

She had often heard the tale of how her parent had, in all friendliness, followed old Bill Harris step by step from Dodge City to the Platte, to old Fort Laramie, and finally to the present Three Bar range. Perhaps the one so followed had felt that Cal Warren was but the hated symbol of the whole clan of squatters who had driven him from place to place and eventually you?" forced him to relinquish his hope of seeing the Three Bar brand on a hundred thousand cows; that his friendliness had been simulated, his vindictiveness nursed and finally consummated by leaving his affairs guessed. in such fashion that his son must

His calm assurance on this point exasperated the girl. "How?" she demanded. "What

"Then probably you'd better order them off," she suggested. "You have my permission. New's your chance to make good the lordly brag of helping the Three Bar out of the hole." She instantly regretted having said it. A dozen times of late she had wondered if she were turning bitter and waspish, if she would ever again be the eventempered Billie Warren with a good word and a smile for every one.

Harris was, as always, apparently undisturbed by her words. Far down the bottoms she could see a point of light which she knew for a white sign that read: "Squatter, don't let sundown find you here." The man before her had defied these sinister warnings scattered about the range and publicly announced that he would put in hay on his filing, knowing that he was a marked man from the hour he turned the first furrow. Whatever his shortcomings, lack of courage was not one of them.

"I take that back," she said, referring to her words of a few mo-ments before. Harris straightened to a sitting position in his surprise at this impulsive retraction, and as he smiled across at her she divined that this man, seemingly so impervious to her sarcasm, could be easily moved by a single kind

"Thanks, Billie," he said. "That was real white of you."

He rose and sauntered toward the wagon and Billie Warren felt a sudden clutch of fear as he halted ground alone, and as they had before Harper and she realized that ting it back on the old-time plane neared the wagon each man had he had taken her words literally

When you boys ride away, in a few minutes from now, you can tell folks that the grub line is closed as far as the Three Bar is concerned."

Lang took a half step toward him, his face reflecting his gathering rage as his slow brain comprehended the fact that this speech was but another way of announcing that he and his men would find near Harris' horse, no welcome at the Three Bar from that moment on. Harper caught his arm and jerked him back. The albino was an old hand and could rightly read the signs.

"The gentleman was remarking to me," he said to Lang; "not you." He turned to Harris, "There's no law to make you feed any man," he said. "From now on we'll pay our way-as far as the Three Bar is concerned."

His tones were casual; only his pale eyes, fastened unblinkingly on Harris' face, betrayed his real feeling toward the man who, notwithstanding the roundabout nature of his announcement, had practically ordered him away from the Three Bar for all time.

"But even in the face of that," he resumed, "we'll welcome you any

"You see it was just as easy at I'd counted on," he said. "It'l be a considerable saving on food.' "But how did you know?" asked. "Why is Harper afraid of

She realized the soundness of this statement. The one unalterable code of the country, a code that had been fostered till it eclipsed all others, decreed that a man should be loyal to the brand for which he The whole fabric of the cow business was based on that one point.

"But now they"! work their deviltry all the stronger against the Three Bar," she predicted. "They could wreck us if they tried. You couldn't get a conviction in five years. Not a man would testify against one of Harper's outfit."

"Then we'll put on a fighting crew and hold them off," he said. "But that's not the layout that will be hardest to handle in the long run. Slade is the one real hard nut for the Three Bar to crack. He can work it a dozen different ways, and you couldn't prove one of them on him to save your soul. He's one smooth hombre-Slade."

Harris rose and headed for his bed roll and the girl sought the shelter of her tepee for a rest. Her mind was busily going over the events of the day. She reflected that Cal. Harris was at least possessed of self-confidence and that procrastination was certainly not to be numbered among his failings. came to her that his interests for the present were identical with her As half-owner in the Three Bar it would be as much to his advantage as to her own to build up. Waddle's warped legs prevented his acting as foreman on the job and it might be that the other man would find some way to prevent the leak that was sapping the life from the Three Bar. His half-ownership entitled him to the place. Billie Warren loved her brand and her personal distrust of Harris was submerged in the hope that his sharing the full responsibility with herself might be a step toward put-of prosperity. She fell asleep with the croon-"I've been made temporary fore ing voice of the nighthawk drifting to her ears, It seemed but a few fleeting moments before Waddle's voice roused find the same proportion." "Not quite--but plenty," he predicted. "We've marked more calves for Slade in one week than all his three wagon crews will mark for the Three Bar in a year. The first three weeks of each season men do a little more work for Slade than they do for you. It's a safe bet that the Halfmoon D does the same, and so on through every brand that joing his range. That puts him way off ahead."

"But that is pure accident," she

"It's pure design," he stated. "His boys are busy shoving his cows from the middle all ways so that when fall comes he has a good inside block that's only been lightly fed over. They fall back on that for winter feed. Last winter, when cows were dying like rats, his men were out drifting Slade's stuff back toward his middle range." "That's true enough," she admitted. "But-" "But you thought he was doing it as a favor to you-getting his surplus off your territory so your own cows would have a better chance. That's the same kind of talk he floated all round the line; playing the benevolent neighbor when reality the old pirate had deliberately planned, year after year, to overcrowd your range and feed you

"But his men would know," she objected.

"Not many of them would grasp the whole scheme of it," he said, "You hadn't thought of it yourself, and what if a few of them did surmise? They're riding for his brand."

The girl nodded. That unalterable code again-the religion of being loyal to one's brand. Not one of Slade's men would balk at doing it knowingly; each would do anything to advance his interests. as long as he drew his pay from Slade.

As they talked Harris detailed men for each draw, but when they reached the point where they were due to drop down and cross the valley he pulled up his horse.

"You take the rest of the circle, Carp," he instructed Carpenter. "I'm going to ride off up the rise a piece." she said. girl regarded him curiously.
