Early History Of Clarendon Is Basis Of Thesis Of Earl D. Jones For Degree

Former Clarendon Boy Who Worked Way Through School Here Receives Bachelor of Science Degree From W. T. S. T. C. of Canyon

Believing that many will be interested in the success of the author, and find real interest in the historical data of his thesis, the manuscript supplied the Leader by Earle D. Jones is here being published. His data begins with the next paragraph.

Mr. L. H. Carhart made a scouting trip into this vicinity and saw the possibilities of a good farming country, where people could obtain very cheap living. He returned East and talked with his brother-in-law, Alfred Sully. Mr. Sully immediately became interested and went to England to settle some business affairs. While there, he created intense interest in the minds of several acquaintances, whom he brought back to New York with him. Mr. Carhart was waiting for him with a party that he had induced in the mood to go "out west" and establish a Colony.

The group made the trip in wagons drawn by oxen and mules. They arrived at the site of the colony that Mr. Carhart had selected in the year 1876; just one-hundred years after the Declaration of Independence of the United States had been signed. This gives a very excellent example of how the country was being inhabited and spreading ever westward.

The colony was located at the mouth of Carroll creek where it empties into Salt Fork of Red River about six miles north of where the present Clarendon, Texas is now located.

A high hill just north of the colony was called Eagle's Point, which served as a look-out point from which a good distance could be scanned in every direction. They immediately dug a trench on top of this hill and stationed a cannon there to aid them in protecting the colony in case of an Indian attack.

Most of Old Clarendon's houses were built of rocks, of which there was a plentiful supply in the hills and canyons that surrounded the colony. A comparatively level stretch of land lies to the North of the site and extending about twelve miles to what is now known as the Cap-Rock to the Plains. These rocks were used with mud and other forms of substance that the colonists thought of, to hold them together.

When a house was built of rocks and covered with branches of trees and in turn covered with a thick layer of clay. Such a house was pretty warm in the winter and cool in the summer. A few of the more wealthy people made houses of adobe brick, but the less fortunate people made their houses, (commonly known as lean-toos) by means of setting upright poles into the ground and tied together at the top.

Lumber cost from $225.00 to 250.00 per thousand feet in Sherman, Texas and the freight had to be paid if it was shipped to the Colony. So in building the people used as little as possible. Some did not use any lumber at all. Such houses were built of tough bottom sod, the walls were about three feet thick, and were hewn smooth on both sides when they were complete. The door-jams and facing as well as the windows were hewn out of Cottonwood logs. After the walls were finished, the next thing to do was to construct the roof. The gable ends were raised higher in the center, then a large strong ridge-pole or log was laid across the center, then plates were put on top of the walls, then poles were placed close together for the foundation of the roof. On top of this was placed fine hay and brush in layers over which was placed a layer of stiff clay about twelve inches thick and firmly packed. Then the ground inside was swept free of all the loose soil, and then the house was completed. According to the old timers, this was a very comfortable house when completed.

The following are quotations taken from E. Dubb's book: "Pioneer Days of the Southwest" which vividly portrays the inside life of the early settlers.

Clarendon Young Lady Given Special Mention

In writing up events of the Globe-News Century of Progress excursion to Chicago upon their return recently, Mason King has the following complimentary remarks regarding a young lady of Clarendon.

"One of the trippers was attractive Kathryn Patrick of Clarendon, who took a number of the paintings and sketches, by Harold Bugbee, Clarendon cowboy artist, with her. She readily sold two of his paintings and secured for him representation in one of the best art galleries in Chicago. His work was also shown to The Lakeside Press, one of the largest printing houses and book publishers in the midwest, using over 200 presses, and received from them a request that the artist submit sketches on certain works which are scheduled."

Bible Class Will Celebrate Anniversary Tonight

Members of the "Come As You Are" Bible class of the First Christian church are to observe their regular monthly meeting at the church tonight. This session will take on more than ordinary interest because of the fact that this meeting will be the first annual observance since the class was begun.

The average weekly attendance for the year has been 23 according to the records of the teacher who is also the pastor of the First Christian church, Rev. W. E. Ferrell. One of the features of the monthly meetings is that each student may bring a Bible question which will be explained by the pastor-teacher.

The members of the ladies' classes are to meet with the men on this occasion.

Farmers Told To Wait On Further Instructions

H. H. Williamson of the Texas Extension Service, has issued a warning to farmers not to plow up any cotton until the contract with the government receives final approval. Each cotton grower will receive due notice to destroy his cotton.

In their enthusiasm, many farmers over the state are said to have already begun the destruction of their cotton in their haste to plant feed crops on the same land. This phase of the situation is especially noticeable, it is said, in the drier portions of the state where seed is being dusted in.

E. C. Reese had business in Clarendon today.

KILLED BY DALLAS NEGRO

A negro arrested Saturday for killing a Dallas policeman, Sam Lanford, (right) confessed to the murder of Mrs. H. K. Buchanan (left) last December. He also confessed to the shooting of George Coffey, who found the negro prowling in his home, and to the robbery of a number of other homes. The death by strangulation of Mrs. Buchanan, whose nude body was found in her apartment with her stockings tied tightly around her neck, was one of the sensational murder mysteries of the year. The negro, F. T. Bennett, 25, is an ex-convict and a graduate of the Booker T. Washington high school. The policeman was shot and killed when he frustrated a robbery.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnny W. Beard announce the birth of a son on Wednesday. The young ball player has been given the name of Jimmie Duabe.

Her friends here will be glad to know that Gladys Wright is recovering nicely from an appendix operation at Boulder, Colorado where she is attending school.

GAINESVILLE HAS ONLY COMMUNITY CIRCUS IN WORLD

A Little Theatre movement, thwarted when talking pictures caused their theatre to be changed into a movie house, resulted in the creation four years ago of the only community circus in the world at Gainesville, Texas. Bankers, Doctors, butchers, lawyers and other business men and women all participate with out pay. Money goes to improve circus equipment and to charity. Above are some of the performers. Miss Jimmie Scruggs, aerialist, is on the left. The Riding Keels, doing one of their stunts, are shown below. The four on the horse are the Murrell family, experienced equestrians. At right is Miss Evelyn Weiborn, high school aerialist. More than 150 Gainesville citizens and 40 trained animals participate in the circus. The Circus has bought its own big top and North Texas towns are begging Gainesville to put its big show on the road.

GREATLY NEEDED MOISTURE FALLS HERE WEDNESDAY

Heavy Showers Fall in Some Sections of County That Make Moisture Meet

Thunder showers springing up in mid-afternoon spread to cover much of the north, east and south-east parts of the county.

A heavy rain is reported from the Goldston community extending north to include the Jericho section. Sunyview and to the north received varying quantities of rain that will make the moisture meet in many places.

Reports early this morning from the Chamberlain community state that the fall there and to the east will make the moisture meet in cultivated fields. The Ashtola community had a good rain that extended to the northeast.

No rain to benefit fell west of town and to the south. The rain east as far as Quannah was spotted up to midnight with Childress getting a heavy downpour that is a life saver to growing corn and feed stuff. Cotton had weathered the dry spell of the past six weeks, making a slow, continued growth.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred D. Estlack and baby Ira Jean returned from East Texas early today. They report crops spotted all the way. A visit was made to Shreveport while they were at Nacogdoches.

GAS TAXES ADD MILLIONS GOOD ROADS ACCOUNT

Statistics Furnished On This Month Show Losses When Bootleggers Operated

Austin, Texas, July 3.—Comptroller George H. Sheppard wore a broad grin today as he announced to the harassed taxpayers of Texas the first comparative figures on collection of the gasoline tax under the drastic new enforcement law. Here's his good news:

In the great East Texas area alone, gasoline tax payments have increased 1150 per cent in 90 days.

At the May rate, the state's tax income will be increased over $2,000,000 a year from this single district. Comptroller emphasized, will be only a fraction of the state's added revenue as a result of the new law, for it includes no returns from the other five district offices he has created. In these, the bulk of the increases are expected to come from prevention of blending tax-free fuels with gasoline, he said. This practice, as well as out-and-out evasion, is a felony offense now.

"The remarkable record in East Texas proves that we were right," Comptroller Sheppard declared. "In February, the tax was paid in that district on 2,826,847 gallons of gasoline. In March the figures leaped to 4,011,227 gallons, in April to 5,534,313 gallons and in May to 7,004,463 gallons, or 250 per cent of the February income. Furthermore, this is only a beginning, if the people will be watchful for evaders and help us. We do not want prisoners. We want the tax money. Getting all of it will help everybody."

W. O. Huggins, president of the Texas Good Roads Association, added to the comptroller's statement a reminder of the widespread good which will come from these recovered taxes.

"We must forget," he said, "that under the present distribution of this tax, $500,000 a year has been added already to the common school fund, $500,000 to the county bond refunding income and $1,000,000 to the highway fund. It is literally finding money for the State."

Clarendon Woman is Injured In Auto Smashup

Mrs. Walter Clifford was painfully injured late Saturday afternoon when her Chevrolet coupe was struck by a Buick touring car of the J A ranch said to have been driven by Dick Ritchey. The Chevrolet was more seriously damaged with a side smashed.

Mrs. Clifford was bruised to the extent that she was confined to her home for a few days. Her babe, the only other occupant of the car, escaped with a small scratch.

Clarendon Band Director Is Paid Compliment

Gus E. Stevenson, band director of Clarendon was paid a distinct compliment this week when notified by the director of the American Legion band of Sweetwater that he would be asked to accompany the Legion band on two trips, and play in the band.

The first trip will be to the state convention which meets at Wichita Falls August 27-28-29. The second trip is to the national Legion convention to be held in Chicago on October 2-5.

FATHER IDENTIFIES SLAYER OF HIS FAMILY

Melquiades Espinosa (left) has identified Pedro Holguin, with whom he is pictured, as one of five men who entered his home near El Paso on April 1, 1932, and shot to death his wife and six children. Holguin was arrested at Laredo, Texas. The men entered Espinosa's house and demanded $5,000 which they had heard Espinosa received on a cattle sale. Failing to get the money, they opened fire, killing seven and wounding the other three in the family. Holguin has been charged with murder at El Paso, where this photo was taken.

John Bass Is Awarded Job On Midway School

A new building and a new school district to be known as Midway has succeeded the schools of Pleasant Valley and Hackberry, or will soon.

The new building is to be of a frame-stucco make of which much of the materials to be taken from the two old buildings. The cost will be around $2500, it is said, and will be located on the J. A. Meaders farm.

H. S. Mahaffey is chairman of the building committee. Other members of that committee are Nels Robinson, A. C. Arnold, Bill Meaders, P. O. Thompson.

COTTON GROWERS SIGN CONTRACTS TO CUT ACREAGE

Donley County Is Allowed Highest Acre Average In This Section

According to a statement made by G. L. Boykin Wednesday, Donley county farmers are given the highest acre average by the government of any county in this immediate section. Hall county's average has been set at 150 pounds per acre, Cottle 122, while this county's average has been set at 167 pounds, he said.

According to a close checkup, only about five percent of the cotton growers have refused to sign up for reduction at this time. It is believed that many of these will change their minds before the time limit of July 8th.

The Leader has been requested to announce that farmers may greatly aid their local committees by holding down the average to as near 167 pounds per acre as possible. The reason given is that this average has been set, and that any over plus without good proof backed by gin receipts and other evidence over a five year period, will result in a correction request and a delay before payment is made.

Community committees are as follows:

Goldston--M. M. Noble, M. W. Hatley, W. H. Gray.

Clarendon--Edwin Baley, J. T. Mayo, Nolie Simmons.

Ashtola--W. A. Poovey, M. S. Swinburne.

Fairview--W. M. Pickering, Nels Robinson, Pat Longan.

Lelia Lake--E. L. Lewis, G. Leathers, Bert Ayers.

Hudgins--O. L. Jacobs, R. W. Moore, G. G. Reeves.

Smith--W. D. Mabry, C. A. Crow, B. B. Smith.

Giles--A. E. Ransom, T. O. Johnson, Claude Nash.

Glenwood--Sam Spradling, Gordon Thomas, L. P. Preston.

Hedley--Clyde Bridges, Roy Jewell, Ed Kinchloe.

Bray--Claude Hill, Ben Kysler, J. F. Stiles.

McKnight--C. A. Waddell, Walter DeBord, C. Doherty.

A further request from the Extension Department is asking all papers to give notice that no cotton should be destroyed until final approval of contract is made, and permission given the grower by a government agent.

IRA MERCHANT IS CHAMPION IN GOLF TOURNAMENT

Several Players Show Good Form Despite Rain All Wednesday Afternoon

Ira Merchant, ace Hillcroft player, won the Third Annual Invitation Tournament championship by scoring a 2-1 victory over Dick Cooke, a fellow townsman Wednesday.

Merchant displayed a steady brand of golf and par figures were good enough to advance him to the finals with comparatively easy wins from W. N. Pipkin, Matador; Carl Parsons and K. W. Kerbow, local players. The upper bracket furnished stronger opposition as Dick Cooke advanced with a 1 up victory over C. M. Glenn, Matador; a 2-1 victory from Carl Harrison, Memphis; and he was forced to the 20th hole before winning from P. B. Gentry, Clarendon.

The final match ended with both players near par. They made the turn with Merchant 1 up as he holed out his approach on the 9th green. Cooke promptly squared the match on the 10th but dropped 12 and 13 to go 2 down and Merchant held this advantage until the match ended on the 17th hole.

E. E. Hickey, ace of the Hedley shooters, scored a 3-2 victory over H. B. Kerbow to win second flight honors. Davis Hudgins, Memphis, won the third flight with a 4-3 win from Les Hawkins, Hedley, and Arthur Greer, McLean, downed Dan McGrew, Pampa, to win the fourth flight.

R. S. Greene, Memphis, won the first flight consolation from Roy Campbell, McLean, and Fred Buntin defeated Ross Gee, Estellene for consolation prize in the second flight. J. W. Coppedge, Estellene, won the third flight consolation from U. J. Boston, and Wood Hindman, McLean carried off the fourth flight prize.

Although the entry list was not as large as expected, officials of the club are highly pleased with the success of the tournament. The matches were closely contested with a friendly contest spirit existing between all players. The tournament was featured by extra hole matches, the longest being 25 holes between Homer Parsons and Ross Gee, Estellene. Plans are already being made for an even greater success next year when the fourth annual event will be held.

CAN'T GET AWAY FROM IT.

During the past three years, a lot of people who thought they were independent of the rest of the world, and of all other people, have found out differently.

SAVING GRACEFULLY.

Few people are able to save money easily, and with most of us, saving means a sacrifice—the doing without or the giving up of something we think we need or want.

PRAISE FROM THE MIGHTY.

In the State Press column of the Dallas News of June 29th, J. J. Taylor comments fairly and justly, also thusly: "We now have a hectic communication from an angry, though anonymous, customer with a Dallas address.

ADVERTISING REAL MERIT.

There is a popular theory that true merit will be eventually rewarded. The world has become so used to being sold things these days that even merit won't sell itself.

Individual personal merit must be sold just the same as the merit of merchandise. And why not?

The merit, the qualifications a man may possess, the special training with which he has endowed himself through study and training, is his stock of merchandise which he offers to the market of the world.

There are thousands of men of splendid qualifications who are unknown and unrewarded, while positions that they might fill, are filled with men of far less ability because the men of better ability did not urge their claims through personal advertising.

There is as much in "blowing your own horn," if you have anything to blow about, as there is in advertising the most meritorious products. The world is waiting to be sold. It has become used to being sold. We might almost say that it has been pampered and spoiled in this particular to a degree that it doesn't go out on a still hunt to find the breakfast food or auto tires it desires.

The moral is, has one breakfast food or auto tire real personal merit to sell? In either case, the trained American will never likely hear of it only through well-written advertisements displayed in a modern form.

THE PRICE OF BUSINESS SPEED

Banking Institute Speaker Says That Bank Failures Followed Business Failures

CHICAGO, Ill.—Many appear to think that failures occur only to banks, but the complete story of business shows that failures of American banks have followed the failures of business enterprises, and have not been a cause of those failures.

"It is true that we have had more failures in our banks than in the banks of a number of other countries," he said. "It is also true that we have had more failures in drug stores, grocery stores, railroads, and in every other type of business enterprise. At the same time, it must be said that we still have left after all our failures, more drug stores, more grocery stores, more railroads and more banks than any other country."

People do not realize, he said, that we have in excess of 108 banks which have been in existence over a century and we have more than 2,000 banks which have been in existence over 50 years.

"In other words, we have more banks over 100 years of age than any other country—we have more banks over 50 years of age than any country in the world," he declared. "The American banking system has not fallen down—it is not in danger of decay. Such failures as it has experienced are due to the price we pay for too rapid development of business enterprises, but that is the American spirit."

A MODERN PRAYER

Oh, Lord, I am getting in an awful shape. I have tried everything else, now I am coming to Thee.

I thought perhaps Roosevelt would do something for us, but I can't wait. I have been a church member 40 years. Thou knowest I have given plenty of money to Thy cause until this depression hit us, but now I am even behind with my club dues and I only belong to seven or eight of them. I know, Lord, I can put anything by these fellows down here, but I can't fool you, so I am going to come clean with Thee.

I have always been a pretty good fellow, but when I go to Dallas or some other big town I step out a little with the boys, but you wouldn't want me to be a wet blanket, would you Lord?

I often play golf or cards on Sunday but nearly all of them do it occasionally. Our preacher plays a few holes. Why not? He is a member of our club.

Oh, Lord, I am not a drunkard, if I do get a little soused occasionally; and in my business deals with my fellowman I often have to lie a little to put over a deal, but that is only a matter of business, Lord.

And there is something else, Lord. When I am driving my car over muddy roads and suddenly develop a very flat tire, I swear like a trooper but, Lord, don't you think this is excusable? Now, Lord, if you will help me out of this mess it would be a great accommodation and I promise that I will not purchase any more beer after this case is used, until the fourth of July.

My wife is not just right, Lord. Very often she stays out until two or three o'clock in the morning at a bridge party and comes home as drunk as a lord. She gets peeved if I say anything about it and tries to hit me with a sofa.

Now, Lord, please send us a rain and put an end to this depression and we will give Thee all the praise. Amen.—W. A. Pool, 312 S. Lee, Altus.

ROBERT INGERSOLL ON DEMON RUM

No greater indictment can be made against the liquor traffic than is found in the following by that great orator and agnostic, Robert G. Ingersoll, who did not believe in the Christian religion. Read what he said 30 years before prohibition was adopted:

"I am aware that there is prejudice against any man engaged in the manufacture of alcohol. I believe that from the time it issues from the coiled and poisonous worm in the distillery until it empties into the hell of death, dishonor, and crime it demoralizes everybody that touches it, from its source to where it ends. I do not think anybody can contemplate the subject without becoming prejudiced against the liquor crime.

"All we have to do, gentlemen, is to think of the wrecks on either bank of the streams of death—the invariety, the poverty, the ignorance, the destitution, the little children tugging at the faded and despairing wives asking for bread, talented men of genius it has wrecked, the struggling men with imaginary serpents produced by the devilish thing. And when you think of the jails, the almshouses, the asylums, the prisons, the scaffolds, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this stuff called alcohol.

"Intemperance cuts down youth in its vigor, manhood in its strength and age in its weakness. It breaks the father's heart, bereaves the doting mother, extinguishes the natural affections, erases conjugal love, blots out filial attachments, blights parental hope, and brings down mourning age in sorrow to the grave. It produces weakness, not strength; sickness, not health; death not life. It makes wives, widows; children, orphans; fathers, fiends; and all of them paupers and beggars. It feeds rheumatism, it urges gout, welcomes epidemics, invites cholera, imports pestilence, embraces consumption.

Build Up that Skinny Child!

Enrich His Impoverished Blood

Sickly, weak, underweight children are usually lacking in rich, red blood. When blood becomes poor, a child becomes rundown. Already weak, he loses appetite, which makes him still weaker. Take no chances on a child gaining strength by himself. Start giving him Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic right away.

It covers the land with idleness, with misery, and crime. It fills your jails, supplies your almshouses, floods your asylums. It engenders controversies, fosters quarrels, cherishes riots. It crowds your penitentiaries, furnishes victims for your scaffolds. It is the life-blood of the gambler, the inspiring element of the burglar, the prop of the highwayman, the support of the midnight incendiary.

"The liquor business is the sum of all villainies, father of all crime, mother of abominations, the devil's best friend, and God's worst enemy." Escra Trostle of Shamrock spent the 4th in Clarendon. D. W. Clampitt reports a yield of 1407 bushels of wheat on 100 acres taken from his farm near Farwell. He was expecting about 7 or 8 bushels per acre and is therefore very agreeably surprised. "Yep, West Texas promises less and gives more than any section of the world," he said.

Whose going to start a movement to restore vacations?

Some one has truly said: Today well lived makes yesterday a dream of happiness and every tomorrow a vision of hope.

If you want to find out the condition of your husband's business, just begin talking about buying a car.

A real friend is one who warns you in time of danger, and sympathizes with you after you have failed to take the warning.

Watch your tongue. No one but you can take care of that important member. Your neighbors may wish they could bridle it, but they can't.

About the silliest and most polite man of our acquaintance begins his prayers with, "Hah, and say, this is Jones speaking!"

Pa is wearing brother's short pants to play golf, and brother swiped Dad's car to haul in another load of "hootch." Sister's hitchhiking to the mountains and Ma is learning to ride the neighbor kid's bicycle. P. S. Hide the baby's rattle from Grandma—the whole family may go haywire.

Ladies once judged by the kind of clothing worn, would be turned down now for a "lack of sufficient evidence." And that is their business. We need clothing and less of most everything except common sense.

A fellow by the name of Guillotine (they chop heads off with it in France) over in Collingsworth county says he has cured several cases of chicken pox by laying the patient in the chicken house and making the chicken fly over the patient. Now if they take small pox over there, we suggest that the patient be laid down and make Judge Small "fly" over him or her.

"Dissolve 1/2 yeast cake in a teacup of warm water, mix with flour into a thin batter, and let stand 3 hours in a warm place. Bring 1 pint of water to a boil, stirring in 1 teacup of corn meal and cook as for mush. Turn in bowl, adding 1/2 cup of sweet molasses, 1/2 teacup of soda dissolved in hot water with a little salt, then add 1/2 cup of brown or white sugar. Stir well together. Let stand until cool enough to receive yeast batter without killing the yeast germs. Mix well with the mush, then all the meal can be stirred in with a spoon, stirring thoroughly. Put in bread pan room to rise. Wet a spoon in cold water and smooth surface. Place in warm place overnight. Bake next morning in an oven a little hotter than for wheat bread for one hour. It will come out light and tempting."

The Apostle has raked the universe for that homely old-timer that delighted us in the years long gone. There is nothing better when kept from day to day. It is fine for the school lunch, picnics or any place where a quick lunch is wanted. Try it by all means and report. Yes, I've seen this tried the past week—it works.

We have cotton control and wheat control and next thing they will be yelling for birth control among hogs.
A botlegger says it's every one's privilege, but if they vote in the 3-point-2 stuff, the price will jump from 10c a bottle to 35c, and the kick will be lowered 11 percent.

The highest mountain in the world has never been scaled by a human being though airplanes fly over it. Now a fool American has gone over there to roll a peanut up the blamed thing with his nose.
The old man who has been cutting locust trees in my yard found his axe got so hot Monday afternoon that it would not hold edge. He put it in the Frigidaire (advertisement) and used another. In changing every five minutes the edge would not melt off the axes, but the axes were so hot they burned holes in the Frigidaire (advertisement). Monday afternoon was a hot day all day.

I wish I were an iceberg. It would be such a treat. To bob up and down in our town And enjoy this pesky heat.
Well, there it is. That pain has been coming on for some time and some pains are the severest pains of all except when you have rheumatism and St. Vitus dance at the same time.

Good times: A season when people are doing the foolish things they will regret in bad times.
Maybe the money changers have not been driven from their temples, but some of them have been dragged out to where we can get a pretty god idea that our ideas about the guilty were not all wrong.

The wife who uses "horse" sense knows enough not to "nag" her husband all the time.
Dry weather has been cornered at last, or at least some scientist tells us he has the cause of it. Not only that, but he tells us how to remedy the matter, and in that latter statement, we find interest. He claims that when too much ice congregates at the poles during the winter, it does not evaporate and we get short on moisture in the middle of the round ball we are living on temporarily. He suggests that electric wires be laid at the poles in such manner as to melt the ice. Power could be taken from the rivers at little expense. A long time ago some nut tried that scheme and almost drowned old Noah and his bunch. We don't need no monkey business with our poles because we have only two in the whole world as it is, and this rain business could be overdo.

Along with our jolly mood and tiny efforts to spread a smile, there comes times when we meet up with incidents that make the tears come. I've always been glad that my Creator gave me that feminine trait to be able to shed tears. It helps a lot some times. Just a few mornings ago a good lady of this town came to my office saddened beyond measure. Out in the cemetery there is a little mound containing the earthly remains of her daughter. That is her sacred shrine about which she intermingles sweet memories of far more pleasant days. The flowers and loving care of that mound is all that is left to the mother. One would hardly think that any individual would be so cruel as to deny her that privilege, but they have. That is why this is being written. Let us believe that the flowers were dug from around the grave by unthought persons. Perhaps they will read this. Perhaps they will consider the feelings of the mother who put them there. In behalf of that mother and others whose sacred shrines have been desecrated out there, this appeal is being made.

Mrs. O. T. Smith left Monday to make her home in Dallas. That sentence is about the usual run of news items, but behind it there are volumes. Mrs. Smith is an unusual woman. She is more of that rare kind of whom it has been said, "truly God's angels dwell in our midst." Handicapped by a frail body, she became super-woman in performing tasks for the benefits of common humanity. Hers was never a selfish nature. She spread sunshine wherever it was needed, and needed most. A born leader, she exerted a wonderful influence over the young. My boys loved her as their best friend. She was Sunday school teacher, counselor and friend to my boys and other boys. They had implicit faith in her knowledge and direction. As counselor of the adult young people's department of the Methodist church, she found a wonderful opportunity for moulding character. She inspired her charges to do good with a zest that won for her the unanimous admiration of parents and older friends of the frail little lady who gave freely of her time, strength and talents in her Master's vineyard. Mrs. Smith will be greatly missed. Her influence will live here indefinitely. Clarendon has lost one of her most valuable citizens, and noble Christian characters. God bless her and good luck in Dallas is our every wish of the hundreds of real friends in Clarendon where she lived and labored so long.

Orion Hott, member of the Chamberlain school board, waxed eloquent during the Tuesday morning laying out there Tuesday morning when he saw the eatables displayed. He went so far as to suggest that a corner stone be laid at each corner of the new school building, on the sides and the ends and have a big feed each week until the preachers and the corner stones play out. It was a big affair in which the community put over a big program for a big project. The preacher ate so much that he was forced to skip supper that night and breakfast next day.

Speaking of feeds, the members of the Apostolic poor farm had previously accepted an invitation to picnic with the Sunday School folks the afternoon of the 4th out in the Naylor community. We ganged up at the Naylor spring which has perfect water and only lacked a gourd cup to score 100 percent plus. We men folks sat around on the ground while the women visited and the young folks played games. There is more genuine old-time western hospitality to the square inch out there than any place that I know of when you count in all the folks of the community. Every one was in a fine humor. Mrs. Pickering brought along a bucket of fine plums and Mrs. Richmond Bowlin flanked her bid with a large basket of fine peaches. Being somewhat of a big eater when given full sway, the Apostle dispensed with the rules of table manners and went after all that was in sight. He sat down by the side of the spread and the women folks heaped his plate with god old homespun ham that the Misses Naylor had baked. He finally got down to the point of alternating between Mrs. Bowlin's pies and the Misses Naylor's ham until his guardian called him out for a session of reproof and private instruction on how to "behave in pub-

the good women bore the slaughter with christian fortitude. It was a great afternoon. Anyhow, we got home in good shape leaving Messrs Pickering, K. C. Reed, Tom Bain, A. O. Hefner and Tom Naylor stretched under the cottonwood. That was the first the crowd had caught on that we old fogies had really staged an eating contest. The only young man who showed any judgment was Richmond Bowlin. He ate along for a couple of hours and then announced that he had to beat it home, milk 16 cows and feed 1200 chickens. He was the youngest man there even if he did say that he drank out of the same spring 42 years ago. Space will not permit of honorable mention of every one present, the kindness shown us and all that, but folks, listen! Every item all the way round and back through the middle was more than appreciated. We hope to meet many times more. This was our second 4th to eat with you, and all we can say right now is that you have a wonderful patience, an unbeatable hospitality and no one appreciates it all more than we.

THE ROSE SKY
By Nan Terrell Reed
Have you ever seen the glow of the sky
Pink as the deep, wild roses,
Flaming across the edge of the world
Just as the daylight closes;
Over the top of the silent trees,
Over the meadow mist,
It steals like a blush on the Face of Youth,
That the lips of Love have kissed.

SPORTS By Hack

The hot days of June and July have brought baseball into its own again. Large crowds continue to see all the local games as well as big league games.

The Chamberlain ball team journeyed to Tulla, Texas for a return game and was defeated by an 18 to 6 score. Roy Blackman and Bunk Ozler each getting a home run in this game. The boys committed a number of errors due mostly to lack of practice. They can't ride a plow 6 days a week and then play good baseball on Sunday.

The second largest crowd in baseball history watched the fast moving, pennant bound Washington team trounce the slipping Yanks twice Sunday. 77,365 fans witnessed the games.

The longest game of the present season was won by the N. Y. Giant 1 to 0 in 18 innings over St. Louis. But was the victory worth the price? Carl Huffell pitched the entire game for N. Y. a few years back Ted Lyons pitched a 20 inning game and has never been the same since. Only time will tell whether or not Huffell hurt his arm in this game.

The fight fans are all anxiously waiting to see what Max Baer will do to the big Italian if they ever meet in the ring.

Carnera knocked Sharkey out in the 6th round and thereby won the championship. Sharkey had been giving the giant a boxing lesson up to this time when he became careless.

Carnera is not a boxer, he knows nothing of the art of the game. His ability to take what his opponent had to offer has carried him to the top. We believe he will sure meet his master in Max Baer, should they ever meet. Baer is much the fighter of the Dempsey type. He is young and very strong. Let's take more interest in sport in Clarendon. You know it won't be too long before football season will be here.

Prospector Spends Two Days, Nights Exploring Cavern

A cavern many miles in extent where tomahawks, arrow heads and man-made pillars show former human habitation, containing a lake of water, a bottomless pit, and boulders of pure iron, was discovered and explored for two days and nights by Chester A. Warner, a Grant county prospector, according to his story in the Silver City Enterprise.

Warner, who is a hunter of predatory animals, says he found the cave when hunting coyotes with dogs. It is reported to be thirty miles north of Silver City near the Arizona line and eight miles west of the Silver City-Clifton highway. Warner thinks that he is the first white man to visit it. His story runs as follows:

"The cave is fronted by a row of heavy oak brush and is large enough for a man on horseback to ride in for 300 feet. There are smaller caves leading off from the middle one, which is the main drift.

Took Dog Along
"This spring I explored the main drift, it taking me two days and nights. I had a lantern, a compass, a ten pound pack on my back containing my food supply, a canteen of water, a .45 Colt for protection and a 3 year old Walker hound for company and to back trail in case I was lost in the drift.

"I found many curiosities of old Indian lore, such as matata rocks, in circles and on a stone shelf found many tomahawks. In one part of the main drift there is a round room about sixty feet across with lime crystals hanging from the top of the ceiling. Some of them are sixteen inches in diameter. There are many arrow heads and chips of quartz, topaz and flint in this room. One me this indicated that it was where the Indians made their arrow heads and other fighting equipment.

Lake in Cave
"About 400 feet, in a southerly and easterly direction, there is a large round cavity with a lake of the clearest and coldest water I have ever seen or tasted. At this point the cave narrows down for about 200 steps and on one side there is a flat place or bench about four feet wide. On the other side there is what seems to be a bottomless cavity. I dropped a rock down and for fully two minutes I could hear it falling.

"At the end of the bench water runs down the cave. At this point the bats are so thick that one can hardly walk for them. The guano is about three or four feet deep in several places.

Cave Almost Due West
"There is another kind of sloping in one side room with large pillars about twelve feet apart in the middle for about sixty feet. From here on for a mile there are numerous curves. The cave travels almost due west and is inclined about ten feet to the mile.

"After traveling this route for a short time I came to the split cave. One branch was about five feet wide, while the other was about eight feet. The latter I took to be the most traveled and consequently followed it. I am convinced this is the main cave. For about two miles I traversed this main drift and then stepped out into a large room with pillars to support the top about six feet apart. I believe they were placed there by human hands. On one side of this room were jagged rocks sticking out on which one can see the smoke. I believe this is the place where the Indians did their cooking.

"At the west end of this room

Austin Gets Golfer

Golfers in Texas' capital city had better watch out. Here is Al Badger, who has won city championships in every Texas town in which he has lived. Badger became mantel at Austin on July 1, and golfer of the Stephen F. Austin honors who know him predict that the championship of that city will be under his belt in no time.

is a crack in the ceiling about two feet wide and forty feet long through which one can see stars. Wind comes down this crack at a very fast rate.

"Leading from this room is a very straight and narrow cave for 200 feet where, at some places, I had to crawl on my compass I was traveling southwest. I encountered another large room with several drifts leading out from it. I happened, luckily, to pick the one that led me to the end.

Under Bed of Gila River
"About 600 feet from this large room I could hear water running over my head, yet I could not see any coming down. I believe that the bed of the Gila river runs over the ceiling of the cave.

"About two miles from here there was another large room and the formation on the walls had changed from blue lime to slate and was in a blanket form.

"I then went through a cavern which is about six feet wide and seven feet high. Water dripped from the top and water moss hung on the sides. This cavern must have been three miles long, for it took me one hour and forty minutes to walk through it.

"At the end of this lengthy cavern there was another large room with round boulders of pure iron laying around. At the mouth of this room is where I came out to the fresh mountain air.

"I came out on the side of a mountain on a rim rock about forty feet high and there was a bench flat on top about ten feet wide. Trees and brush grew here at the entrance. Just before getting to the mouth of the cave the drift narrows down at the end to two feet. The bench sloped up and for about twenty feet there were holes dug in the rock which were suitable for use as a ladder. In company with my hound dog, we walked up there with ease.

Came Out by Duncan
"When I reached the dirt on the side of the mountain I pulled out my field glasses and looked about the country to locate myself. I could see Clifton almost due north and Duncan west. Looking back east about fifteen miles I could see the high point of Apache Creek.

The corner stone was laid Tuesday. Rev. Ferrell conducted the ceremony. And we certainly appreciated the sermon which he gave, both on the school and our community worship place. And also do we thank those who helped render the service. After the stone was laid dinner was spread and everyone present reported plenty to eat. We, as a community want to thank the Speed brothers for the three hundred pounds of ice. Those out of this community attended the service were: Mrs. Edd Speed and family, Mr. and Mrs. Sloan Baker and family, Rev. and Mrs. Ferrell and daughter, all of Clarendon, and Mr. and Mrs. Mann of Hedley.

Wake Up Your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up."

They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. ©1931, C. M. Co.

SICK CARS!

Had you ever stopped to think that cars get "sick" from a lack of proper "diet" and attention? Well, they do. For instance when your car gets draggy, refuses to step out and gives you only about half mileage on the gas you burn—she needs a dose of MOBILUBRICATE. Then to make her step out in a manner to bring back the joys of a new car, feed her on SUMMER MOBIL-GAS as a steady diet. Let us tell you about the many other patients who have taken this treatment and recovered. Seriously, we know that we have what you need, and want you to try it ONCE—after that we'll risk your judgment.

AS I SEE IT

(By Jim Perkins)

A man may grow to be three axle handles high, three feet thick and as heavy as buck shot but he will never be a full grown man until he "totes" a man's head on his shoulders and a man's heart under his shirt. A man can become governor of his state if he gets the votes. But whether he runs to politics or stays at home to rock the cradle while mother attends a bridge party, tickles the bosom of the old farm or goes fishing, if he succeeds he must play a straight game and show down when the country calls.

You can fool yourself if you want to. But the biggest fool in this world is the man who thinks he's smart enough to fool the entire human family. It can't "be did," my hearers. Be natural and honest; please yourself and the folks you represent, then take chances with the balance of the country. Don't try to sail under false colors if you expect to reach port in safety.

If you expect to be a statesman then have opinions of your own and don't be afraid to talk out for your convictions. It's better to go wrong now and then than to never be right. Be something and stick to it, both in religion and politics. Brave men don't dodge an issue. Dig down to rock bottom and plant your feet on the mudsills of truth and principle then you can face the world, the flesh and the devil and whip the fight ninety-nine times in a hundred.

U. S. GOVERNMENT GREATEST BANKER

Runs Fifty-two Financing Institutions With Investment of Two Billion Dollars—Thirty-nine Agricultural

AMERICA'S biggest banker today is the Federal Government which is now operating fifty-two financing institutions, says Professor John Hanna of Columbia University in the American Bankers Association Journal. "Forty of these are owned entirely by the Government," he says. "In twelve more the Government has already a two-thirds interest. Thirty-seven are intended to be permanent. Twenty-five of the permanent ones and fourteen of the temporary ones are agricultural."

"The capital stock held by the United States in these banks has a par value of $1,380,000,000. The Government's total investment is nearly $2,000,000,000. Resources of these institutions exceed $3,000,000,000. In addition the Government has detailed supervision over fifty-one mortgage banks, operating under Federal charter. "The Government also supervises 4,600 local agricultural loan associations with Federal charters. All this takes no account of the relations of the Government to the twelve Federal Reserve banks, nor of the authority recently given to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to buy preferred stock in national and state commercial banks."

Consolidation Called For The President has ordered the consolidation of the agricultural credit agencies into the new Farm Credit Administration, says Professor Hanna. He expresses the opinion that before the consolidation of the agricultural financing agencies too much machinery had been created to administer the financing institutions which the Government either owns or supervises. "Existing institutions represent a considerable differentiation of function and any consolidation should be preceded by a careful survey of the actual activities of the various institutions," he continues. "The only consolidation the Administration has announced is that of the agricultural credit agencies in the Farm Credit Administration. As a permanent solution this arrangement is too closely bound up with politics."

The Value of the Colleges

THE physical properties and endowments of institutions of higher education in the United States are now valued at over $2,500,000,000. Endowments alone aggregate over $1,150,000,000. Thirty colleges and universities have endowments that average $18,000,000. Eleven out of the 30 have endowments that average $35,000,000. A very few of them have endowments of over $100,000,000 each. The annual operating income of institutions of higher learning amounts to over $500,000,000. Gifts to them in a single year have reached a total of $233,000,000.

New Discoveries in an Old Business

Long before farmers realized it, egg handlers were convinced that the kind of feed the hens received had a marked influence on the quality of the eggs produced. Since the egg is made from feed, it is only natural that the character of the finished product should be affected by the kind of raw material used.

To find a complete ration which would produce the finest quality of eggs and at the same time meet the practical requirements of egg production has been the object of five and one-half years of research at the Purina Experimental Farm and Purina Biological Laboratories. The result is a new quality egg producing mash, recently announced.

The hens themselves were made to tell by the kind of eggs they produced just what ingredients and how much of each should go into this new quality egg producing feed. The experiments were started with 20 pens of pullets early in 1927. Month after month these tests, trying out every practical combination of feedstuffs, were continued. In all, 3,500 hens were used. At first the trials were limited to hens in laying houses. Later, some of the birds were kept in laying batteries.

An example of one of the practical results of the tests to produce high quality eggs is shown on the chart. The breaking strength of the shells of eggs produced on the quality egg producing ration is compared with the breaking strength of average eggs produced by hens fed on other rations considered very good from a nutrition standpoint and very popular with poultrymen. The quality egg producing mash developed at the Experiment Farm produced eggs which were stronger shelled by from 13 to 30 per cent. Other improvements brought about by this mash were uniformity of yolk coloring, and improved taste and nutritive value of yolk and white.

"How to Use the Bible"
The Bible is God's inspired word. When compared with the Book of books, the best of this world's literature pales into nothingness. The Word of God is the only source from which we may learn what our version is and how it can be brot about. It is the book that contains the plan of salvation, and the program of Christ's church. This book and not creeds of churches, or the interpretations of commentators, should be our sole standard of appeal in religious matters. Error proceeds from man, but never from God. His word is absolutely infallible. We should learn to use the Bible more and to help you with this problem we suggest:

1. Study to know what for and to whom each book of the Bible was written.
2. Set apart at least fifteen to thirty minutes a day for studying the Bible. Even this little will be in its results.
3. If possible, commit at least one verse to memory each day. In this way you will soon have your mind well stored with precious truth.
4. Believe every word of the Bible, and not merely that which may seem reasonable, and which you can fully understand.

5. Do not be satisfied with a mere reading of the sacred word; but seek to fathom its deeper meanings, in the light of its teachings.
6. Study how to use the Bible for the conversion and strengthening of others, and how to teach the great truths, remembering that God has revealed His desires and plans in this book and no other

The great curse among the followers of God today, is the division caused by departing from God's plans and commandments. The Bible show how to become a Christian, nothing more or less. SAVING LABOR IN CALF FEEDING

SAVING LABOR IN CALF FEEDING

Dairywomen can save a great deal of labor and eliminate a messy, disagreeable chore by using up-to-the-minute methods of calf feeding, states a special circular just released by the Research Staff of Purina Mills Experiment Farm. Besides saving time and trouble, better calves can be raised and at less cost than by the methods formerly considered good.

Essentially, the new feeding plan consists of calf meal which has been pressed into cubes or checkers and fed with grain, hay, and water, but no milk after the fourth week. All that is required is a few minutes a day once a day to put the calf checkers into the troughs and mix the new feed with what is left in the feeder. The calves feed themselves at will. The plan is almost as easy as letting them run with their dams.

By this means, the heating of water or milk, the mixing of gruels, the effort to keep the temperatures uniform, the feeding from buckets twice a day, and the washing of dirty buckets are all avoided. Also, fussing with loose calf feed which may become soggy and sour, and cause indigestion and scours unless very carefully handled is avoided.

To teach the baby calf to eat this dry feed, it is only necessary to put it with older calves already eating, the Experiment Farm report adds. If there are no older calves, a few calf checkers should be crushed and held in the calf's mouth for a few minutes, or a few checkers can be thrown in the bucket after each calf finishes its milk until they get used to it. At the same time keep checkers in a trough before the calves. They will nibble at the checkers out of curiosity. Before they realize it they will be fully accustomed to the new method of feeding, and in gains and general appearance will soon surpass their bucket-fed brothers and sisters.

The chief advantages of individual batteries are:
1. Each hen eats exactly what is given and in the proportion intended, which results in eggs of consistently uniform quality throughout the flock and throughout the year.
2. Reduces to a minimum disease problems because the hens do not contact one another readily—do not all drink and eat from a common supply.

3. Eliminates the necessity of trap-nesting so the operator can tell exactly which hens are profit producers without the extra labor of running traps.
4. Eggs produced in batteries are clean and free from stains.

Clog up your system. Take no exercise in the gym or open air. Eliminate fresh air and sunshine from your life. Worry daily about that sideache that so frequently bothers you. Worry frequently about the insecurity of your job, and the uncertainty of profits. Cultivate an ill-temper toward everybody and life in general. Don't take stock of your physical resources by a periodical physical examination. See your physician only when sick. Take all your business worries to bed with you. Get mad, hot and often. But after all, why die next year? —Exchange

EARLY HISTORY OF—

"Shortly after we had moved into our first new house, we had a Long, and continued rainy spell. About the third night the roof began to leak, until there was no longer a dry-place to be found, and becoming very sleepy, I told my wife that I would get under the table because it looked as if it were dry there. I did so, and was soon fast asleep. After awhile the water partially awakened me; it was dripping on my head. I simply moved my head, but it soon was dripping on me again. This continued again and again, until I was thoroughly awake. When I looked around I saw my wife laughing; in fact I wasn't under the table, she had moved it.

The trouble was, when a dirt roof once started to leak, it would keep it up for a day or two after the rain had ceased. Everyone who ever lived in houses with dirt roofs, and we finally made them so well that they would withstand any kind of rain for any length of time."

"Furniture was generally very simple. Sometimes a one-legged bedstead, and sometimes four. In a four-legged bedstead an auger and a chisel were used to mortise places for the sides and the end pieces. Holes were bored in the side and end pieces about every eight inches apart, and a rawhide rope run through the holes while green, which made the bottom, or a place to put the bed. A one-legged bedstead was different. A hole was bored into the wall and the side and end pieces put in the holes and the one leg built on the fashion of four legs. Slats of boards for the bottom laid across end you had a bedstead fine enough to invite anyone to sleep on.

The dining table was built on the same fashion as the four-legged bed. Boards were shaved out with a drawing knife, for the top and when visitors came, a table cloth was used, made of domestic and made and woven by the house-keeper herself. Some were fortunate enough to get hold of a few chairs and had stools enough to make out a set, some had all stools or benches. A tree was cut and split open and faced with a broad axe, four holes were bored and legs put in and the stool or bench was complete.

The coking utensils consisted of a three-legged skillet, oven, dinner pot, tea kettle, a big iron shovel and a pair of pothooks.

I very well remember the battling stick on wash day. Oh! my, how tired I would be on wash day, beating and pounding the clothes while mother rubbed them with her hands. The clothes would be taken out of the tub and laid on a bench or block made for that purpose and beat with one hand and turn the clothes with the other. The battling stick was in the shape of a paddle, only it was heavier. This was before the rub-board came into use, and then we thought a great improvement had been made when the scrub-board came in.

Candles to give light were all made by hand; there were two ways to make them, one was to get as many sticks as was needed and tie strings to them, usually about half dozen to the stick for wicks and dip them in a pot or bucket of cold water and back into the tallow. I have seen several hundred made at a time in this way. Some had molds, drop the wicks in the molds and pour the tallow into the molds. There were two kinds of candle sticks used when a light was needed; one was made out of tin, and the other was made with a square block with a hole bored in the center to set the tallow candle in.

All the soap was made by dripping lye from an ash hopper. To make an ash hopper, first drive four forks in a square, put side and end pieces in the forks, this made the frame. Put a trough under the frame and stand boards in the trough and the top end of the board against the frame; fill up with ashes for about two days and the lye will start to drip and an oven or skillet is placed under the end of the trough to catch the lye."

The remains of the stone houses of the colony of Old Clarendon are still in evidence, but strewn around as they have long since fallen down to the ground level. There are no evidence of their ever having been built in the eyes of the casual observer. The colony got their fuel supply from the dead mesquite and river deposits. Some went as far as the Palo Duro canyons some twenty-five miles south, which would last them through the long winter months. For the water supply they got water out of the creeks nearby until they had time to dig wells. These were dug by hand as they had no other way of sinking them. They were about thirty feet deep and about four feet in diameter and were only recently filled up.

Some of the first residents of this colony included: Mr. R. A. Chamberlain, B. W. Chamberlain, Dr. Carhart, Dr. J. D. Stocking, Mr. Sparks, T. S. McClelland and his brother J. B. The McClelland brothers were engaged in ranching and the real estate business. B. H. White, Judge Brown, Al Gentry, Mr. Phillips, Mr. Shan Atterbury, Charles and Harry Kimball, Mr. Copland and son Fred, Morris Rosenfield, D. W. Vanhorn, Mr. Clam-pitt (who ran a livery stable), and Mr. Schrim (who ran the first hotel to operate in old Clarendon). This building was about 150 feet long. By 1888, there has been estimated by residents now living, that the population was about 150.

Mr. Carhart gave the colony its name, probably from his kinsman in England, the Earl of Clarendon, and in the honor of his wife whose given name was Clara.

Dr. J. D. Stocking was the first physician in this part of the country. He received very little money for his services, but usually it was in food or fuel. He never hesitated to do what he could to make everyone comfortable and the colony a success.

Old Clarendon from the first was a prohibition town in which no saloons were allowed. There were no dance halls nor gambling dens. Some of the rowdy cowboys nicknamed the small settlement "Saint Roost". The colony was strictly religious as most of the people were college bred men and women who knew how the colony should be run to be successful, and they endeavored to manage the affairs accordingly.

A school house was erected for the children as soon as the dwelling houses were completed. A Sabbath school was held every Sunday under the leadership of Mr. Carhart and his co-worker, the Reverend Mr. Brewer.

The inhabitants were very careful not to offend the Indians, and the town was very generous in giving to the braves many bright colored ribbons, with which to tie on their horses manes and tails. There was never an Indian raid made on the settlement, although they had several scares when a band of warriors were sighted approaching.

In 1877, a load of liquor and supplies for erecting a saloon came into the settlement from Mobeetie, for the purpose of building a saloon and dance hall. The town leaders did all they could to persuade them to move but to no avail. Several of the cowboys offered to help them to persuade them to leave. They then sent for Mr. Goodnight, who came and gave them ten hours to leave. In ten hours the outfit was out of sight. However, a Mr. Jackson put a saloon in just before the migration of the people to the new town.

Mr. M. Rosenfield is said to have operated the first supply store. Mr. Bascom White operated a dry-goods store, and Dr. J. D. Stocking owned and operated the first drug store. Jas. H. Parks was a surveyor.

A cemetery, which is in evidence today, was located about one mile east, where they buried their loved ones and strangers who happened to pass away while in or near Clarendon. An iron fence marks the spot today, and the slight dents in the surface of the earth bear mute testimony of the ones who have gone on to the Great Beyond. Some think that Mr. Loraine Wakefield, who drove a buckboard and from Ft. Dodge, is one of the remains in this resting place.

In 1882, by an act of the 15th Legislature, Donley County was organized. For a period of time, eleven counties were attached to this county for all judicial purposes. The county was named after a famous Judge of the Supreme Court—Mr. Stockton P. Donley. The first officers of the county were:

Mr. G. A. Brown—County Judge
Mr. B. H. White—County Clerk
Mr. W. D. Kimball—County Treasurer

Mr. J. T. Otey—Assessor and Tax Collector

Mr. J. D. Wilson—Sheriff
Mr. J. H. Parks—Surveyor
Mr. S. B. Nail—County Commissioner

Mr. L. R. Dyer—County Commissioner

Mr. Charles Goodnight—County Commissioner

A stone Court House was erected in the settlement. It was a small two-story structure with plenty of light provided for. The picture of this building is in the Museum at Canyon, Texas.

Soon after the colony was started, Mr. Carhart arranged for a newspaper to be printed in Sherman, Texas, and be distributed in Clarendon. Then he sent for a printer from Illinois, who came and started the first paper in the old town. The motto reads: "Christianity, Education, Temperance, Civilization—Westward". L. H. Carhart was the main editor and business manager, with Jas. H. Parks as the local editor. The price of the paper was fifty-cents per year.

Officials Prosecute Deputy For Getting Married

Friends of deputy sheriff Guy Wright had a lot of sport at his expense at the courthouse Saturday upon his return from a honeymoon trip to Missouri after having married in Arkansas.

The "persecution" may not have been based on matrimony altogether since some suggested that getting married in Arkansas and returning to Texas was a serious offense.

Judge Hubert P. Day lent dignity to the bench with county attorney R. Y. King persecuting and Judge W. T. Link defending both the accused and the state of Arkansas. Sheriff Pierce, first state witness, testified that it was his opinion that a grave offense had been committed by the accused when he passed up the hundreds of Donley county girls and hied off to Arkansas.

Judge Sam W. Lowe further added to the misery of the accused when the learned Judge testified to having seen the accused "writing love letters and acting queerly."

Marvin Land, he of august mind and rare judgment gave it as his opinion that getting married was punishment enough regardless of what state might have been used, Arkansas being no exception. Dr. Land qualified as an expert and his expert testimony given from practice and experience is said to have had a bearing on the case in behalf of the victim.

Judge Day, after mature deliberation, assessed a 60 year sentence of "happy wedded life," after which the bunch of tormentors took up a collection to purchase some clothing for the accused which they had torn up bringing him to court so that he might return home without being picked up by the City Marshall.

Clarendon Celebrates Fourth In Many Ways Tuesday

Cleo Norwood and Murray Dodson put over their rodeo with a large attendance at the Chamberlain farm south of town. Western stunts continue to hold a warm place in the affections of our people.

Those who did not care for the western brank of amusement, turned to the golf course where the invitation tourney was in full swing.

The Clarendon-McKnight baseball game through the mid part of Tuesday afforded ample pleasure for those who like ball games. A more complete account is given in another write-up.

Most of the merchants closed their places of business, displayed the flag and beat it to the shady nooks of the creeks, country club or visited in other towns. No serious accidents were noted
