open June 1st and continue to Aug. 5th. The fall term will open Sept.

The college has received a large number of inquiries about the sum-mer school and expect full classes during the term. A number of students have enrolled for the summer and others are expected to enroll within the next few days. J. H. Shelton of the college said today the large number of inquir-ies was encouraging and prospects are for a successful summer session. Matriculation for summer school at Daniel Baker College begins at 8 o'clock Monday morning, May 30th. Judging from information being sought by prospective students and the many inquiries there will be a enrollment for the summe:

Some enrollments have been made and further enrollment will be made within a few days. All plans and arrangements for the summer session have been completed.

C. W. McClelland of the college said he and other faculty members are well pleased with prospects for a large summer school. Interest shown in the school by students and teachers is very encouraging he
