Lindsay places first in state UIL Meet

Lindsay High School has won the Conference 2A Sweepstakes trophy by taking first place honors during the University Interscholastic League State Academic Meet held May 8-9 in Austin.

State UIL Academic Director Bobby Hawthorne presented Lindsay's Sweepstakes Award during the school's award banquet held May 14 at St. Peter's Centennial Hall. This is Lindsay's second year to compete in Conference 2A, moving up from Class A. Lindsay placed second in state last year. In the eight years the UIL has been awarding a state sweepstakes trophy, Lindsay has received a total of five conference championships, including the Conference A championship for four consecutive years.

"When Lindsay moved to Class 2A, there were a lot of people who were asking who Lindsay was," Hawthorne told a packed audience at Lindsay's awards banquet. "I think they all know who Lindsay is now." Hawthorne praised all those involved with the rigorous UIL training, which is laid by a strong academic foundation. "You parents have done a remarkable job in raising these children," he said.

Lindsay's 88 total points brought them to a 10 point win over Rosebud-Lott. Lindsay's victory comes over more than 250 schools in Conference 2A. Stockdale was third with 69 points, Stinnett West Texas had 66 points, Plains had 62 points, while Valley View, another Cooke County school, scored 58 points.

"The individual results were just enough to bring us to our win," said Craig Hertel

Lindsay UIL director. "Everybody's points were important," he said. "Our school has shown great balance."

Lindsay junior, Patrick Lusk led the way to victory with his state 2A championship in Science. Patrick also tied for first place in the Chemistry section of the contest. "I am very excited about Patrick's success at the state meet. He has worked very hard this year, and this is a much deserved award," said Patrick's science teacher Molly Sicking. "He has placed in the top three in every meet he has competed in this year, and that is a great accomplishment," she said.

Other results include: Editorial Writing, Elizabeth Luttmir, 3rd; Headline Writing, Amy Arendt, 4th; Ready Writing, Steven Tepera, 4th and Asad Rahman, 6th; Computer Applications, Richard Porter, 4th; Science, Patrick Lusk, 1st and a tie for 1st in Chemistry; Persuasive Speaking, Carrie Hundt, 2nd and Steven Tepera, 6th; Literary Criticism, Elizabeth Luttmir, 6th.

Lindsay's one-act play "Find Me" also garnered points at the state level when Emily Zimmerer received the Conference 2A award for technical assistance for the play. Also receiving recognition and points was a group all-star cast award for the character Verity played by Amy Arendt, Erica Fuhrmann, Suzette Smith, Sara Krahl, Rachel

Ayes win ... new school in future for Muenster ISD

by Janet Felderhoff
A bond election in the amount of $1,700,000 was called by the Muenster ISD Board of Trustees to finance the building of a new high school. Voters in the school district went to the polls on Saturday, May 16 to vote the opinion of the bond. It passed with 563 for and 229 against.

According to Muenster ISD Superintendent Steve Cooper about a third of the district's registered voters participated. The district has about 1800 registered voters. Usually only about 20 percent participate in local school elections. "I'm glad the people had a chance to vote their conscience," remarked Mr. Cooper. "We plan to do our best to make our school productive and give our kids the best education possible."

The reason for building a new high school is that the district is out of space. According to the administration there are no rooms available in the elementary school, middle school, or the high school and enrollment is projected to increase for the next several years. According to literature put out by the school administration, issuing new bonds will provide for restructuring of existing debts at a lower interest rate thereby allowing the district to make the bond payment with no increase in taxes.

Memorial Day at nation's 1st Vietnam Vets memorial

Memorial Day activities at the DAV Vietnam Veterans National Memorial in Angel Fire, New Mexico, will be held May 23-25. This year, in lieu of the traditional Memorial Day address, a play, entitled "Carved in Stone," will be presented by the Grafton High Historical Drama Team. The team is composed of 20 students from Grafton High School in York County, Virginia.

"Carved in Stone" is a 40 minute dramatic recreation of scenes typically observed by visitors to the National Vietnam Veterans Memorial (The Wall) in Washington, D.C. The play emotionally touches on thoughts and memories of the Vietnam War, and has been referred to as a "healing journey that forces one to remember things the mind forced out years ago."

For more than two decades, thousands of veterans from all wars, their families and friends have journeyed to the beauty and majesty of this unique memorial to reflect on the high cost of war, render respect to our nation's warriors who fought and were disabled, pay homage to Americans who died in the Vietnam War, and to celebrate those who survived.

Memorial Day weekend activities will begin on Saturday, May 23, with tours of the Visitor's Center and Chapel. At 2:30 p.m., a special POW/MIA briefing will be conducted by Col. Ward Nickisch, Col. Nickisch directs the U.S. Army's Casualty and Memorial Affairs Operations Center in Arlington, Virginia, and oversees the forensic laboratory responsible for the search, recovery, repatriation, and identification of American dead from all prior wars and conflicts. Activities continue on Sunday, May 24, and will include musical presentations to be performed by various artists in the Chapel; POW/MIA briefing; and a Candlelight Vigil later in the evening.

All facilities at the memorial are totally accessible to persons with disabilities. The visitor's center and exhibit area feature pictorial displays, art, sculpture, banners, and flags, as well as an interactive, computer-based audiovisual information and education exhibit.

Local merchants need participants for August 23 Bridal (& more) Show

by Janet Felderhoff

Plans are underway by the Muenster Merchants Group to present THE WEDDING AND BEYOND - A Bridal Show and Home Accessory Presentation on Sunday, August 23 from 2 to 4 p.m. in the Community Center. Several business owners have already met and initiated plans, but more participants are wanted to make it an exciting and well-rounded occurrence. The input and participation of many is critical to the success of this event, according to those already active in planning for the show.

Plans for the event formed as several local merchants sought a different way to help new couples as they marry and start out on their own. It will also be a unique way to spotlight Muenster and show the products and services they have to offer to Muenster and the surrounding communities.

During the show a fun game will feature brides wearing vintage wedding gowns. They will be escorted by grooms dressed in the latest styles of tuxedos offered by Lora's. A variety of foods provided by participating businesses will be available during the show.

Planning for this event has just begun and all Muenster businesses with something to offer soon-to-be-married couples are encouraged to take part and share their ideas. All products and services offered will come from Muenster merchants.

There will be a nominal booth fee charged to each participating merchant. The amount depends on the number of participants. Those attending will be charged and all money collected goes to the Muenster Memorial Hospital Auxiliary.

June 20 is the deadline to sign up to participate in the first of what is hoped to become an annual happening. If you are interested contact either Peggy Grewing, 759-4119 and 759-2505, or Billie Fleitman, 759-4565, as soon as possible.

SURVIVAL INSPIRES INVOLVEMENT IN ACS PROJECTS

FIRST IN A SERIES

by Janet Felderhoff

"Life does go on," remarked cancer survivor Cherilyn Pollard. "Since I was pregnant my gynecologist came in the day after surgery. He was still a panic and told me that I couldn't have cancer and have a baby. I was 24 weeks pregnant at the time and he said I had one week to have an abortion. I guess because after 5 weeks at the time it planned abortion) wasn't allowed to happen. That wasn't an option for me."

Only the week before the surgery Cherilyn had a sonogram done and learned that she was going to have a girl. Cherilyn and her husband, John, had already named their daughter.

Even before 25-year-old Cherilyn realized that she was pregnant, she discovered a lump in her breast. Since she already had an appointment with her gynecologist for a check-up, she showed him the lump during her exam.

"He blew it off," Cherilyn said. "He told me there was no chance of it being cancerous or anything but a cyst and that he would not recommend any additional testing. He said women my age couldn't get breast cancer. I was very naive and trusted my doctor and didn't realize that I should have tried to get another opinion. I was just relieved that he said it couldn't be anything. Not knowing anything about cancer and not wanting to know anything about cancer, it was very easy for me to accept what he said."

A few weeks after her visit to the doctor Cherilyn realized that she was pregnant. She saw the same doctor for her prenatal care. He never did any more breast exams or even inquired about the lump. Cherilyn continued to monitor the lump during her monthly breast self exams.

It was in the fifth month of her pregnancy that Cherilyn realized the lump had gotten larger. On her next visit to the doctor she told him about the lump getting larger. "He really panicked," she noted. He sent her for a mammogram.

Even before the results of the mammogram were in, Cherilyn was being examined by a surgeon. Within 24 hours of showing the lump to her gynecologist the second time, Cherilyn was in surgery. It was very rushed, she said. Looking back she doubts that waiting another week or two would have changed the outcome. That was August 9, 1990.

Before Cherilyn went into surgery the surgeon explained that he would do a biopsy. Due to the pregnancy she would remain under anesthesia while the tissue was studied. It came back positive for cancer and a mastectomy was done immediately.

After her family heard the physician's declaration that she couldn't have cancer and have the baby, Cherilyn and her family struggled with the issue. Abortion wasn't an option for her. The family told her that her life should come first.

"I had great faith and I don't know where it came from," observed Cherilyn in a voice filled with emotion. "I never realized until then how much faith I had in the Lord. I knew He was going to protect both of us. I was going to survive and so was my baby. I don't know where the strength and the faith came from. I grew up believing all my life that God would take care of people, but when it was put to the test He came through."

Cherilyn's decision to keep her baby was accepted by the other physicians caring for her. The gynecologist was banned from her room and the search for an obstetrician for her began. It was difficult to find one who would take her case because none seemed to have any experience with patients in her situation.

There were two options — to wait 10 weeks, deliver the baby and then begin chemotherapy or to begin the chemo during the pregnancy. It was decided to wait 10 weeks and undergo the six months of chemo after the delivery.

Until the baby was delivered Cherilyn couldn't have any tests to determine if the cancer had spread. "That was 10 weeks of hell, basically, not knowing whether it had gone anywhere else," she remembers. She knew she would need to have chemo because the surgeon found cancer had spread to six of 21 lymph nodes. That meant that even if tests showed no spread of cancer, there was a possibility that it could have spread but not be detectable yet. When removed, the tumor was large and found to be fast growing.

Kalyssa Pollard was delivered on Oct. 17, 1990, seven and one half weeks early. She was a healthy five plus pounds.

Soon after the point that Cherilyn recognized God's protection, she also realized that God was keeping her here for a reason. "I was going to survive and that somehow that reason was going to be to help other people, not just my daughter by raising her, but helping others to get through what seems like a death sentence — to hear that you've got cancer." Actually getting to where she was ready to pursue that goal and to find out what she was intended to do took a long time.

Soon after Cherilyn was home from the hospital recovering from her mastectomy, a Reach to Recovery Volunteer visited with her in the Pollard home. Reach To Recovery is one of the programs sponsored by the American Cancer Society. "That's basically what introduced me to the American Cancer Society," explained Cherilyn. "I think word is definitely spreading, but at that time I had probably heard of the American Cancer Society, but it didn't affect my life in any way before that. It's one of those things you don't pay attention to until you need it. That volunteer was a big help. Not as much at the time as she was later on down the road. I never saw her again. I had the option to contact her, but I never did."

A few years later when Cherilyn's life began to settle into more of a normal routine she began to think about how God intended her to help others. That's when she remembered the Reach To Recovery volunteer and the things she had told Cherilyn about the American Cancer Society.

As it happened that was about five years ago and the Pollards had recently moved back to Muenster from Shertz, Texas. Cherilyn and John bought Bayer's Kolonialwaren from Cherilyn's parents, Chas and Carolyn Bayer.

Cherilyn heard about the DIALOGUE Support Group meetings being held at the Muenster Hospital for those who had been diagnosed with cancer and for cancer survivors. She thought about going the first month, but didn't. She didn't think that she needed to go to a support group meeting, but decided to go, hoping to help someone else. To her surprise Cherilyn found that it helped her more than she feels she helped anyone else.

"It was amazing to me that it was okay to seek help and talk about things to other people," reflected Cherilyn. "One of the things that I did all through my treatment was pretty much keep everything to myself. I had people I did know, people I didn't know coming out of the woodwork calling me right after I was diagnosed and had surgery, wanting to help and wanting to tell me what they had gone through. I didn't want to hear it. I wasn't ready to hear anybody. The way I survived and got through it all was by keeping it to myself. I realized that's not the way it works for everyone. A lot of people need to hear success stories and hear what kind of struggles other people have been through. That's one of the things that DIALOGUE definitely does. It also allowed me to tell other people that if they don't want all that help, if they just want to listen, but don't want to take it into consideration, that's okay too. At some point it may help them."

Participating in that support group was how Cherilyn started with the American Cancer Society. She became an active volunteer with the Reach To Recovery Program. It is a program for breast cancer

They began to meet with people in the ASC office in Fort Worth. Eventually the idea of hosting a Relay For Life event came up. "We had no idea of what we were getting ourselves into," admitted Cherilyn. "It takes a lot of people, a lot of volunteers, a lot of people who don't get any credit for anything who are really working behind the scenes to get it going and make it work. It's the whole community. It couldn't be done without the teams, the individuals who walk on the teams, the sponsors and underwriters who give the money that allows us to pay for the expenses so all the money that's raised by the teams goes to fight this battle against cancer."

The third annual Cooke County Relay For Life is scheduled for June 5 and 6 in

"There are still times when I get stuck in a rut of frustration and dwelling in the negative things that go on, but I try to make a conscience effort to take every thing that comes along and find the good in it and enjoy life. I don't know how long it will last, none of us do but I'm more aware of it." Cherilyn Pollard reflects on her philosophy of life after cancer.

patients. They get a one-on-one visit from a trained volunteer. She gives them information from the American Cancer Society (ACS), listens to what they're going through; helps them to know that there's help and all they have to do is ask for it; that they aren't the only person this has happened to and that there are a lot of survivors and they, too, can survive. It also provides gifts to the patient to help her with her recovery. The ACS has developed exercises to help the patient regain mobility. They are done only with a doctor's prescription. The volunteer demonstrates the exercises.

"It snowballed from there after I got involved with that program," laughed Cherilyn. She was working with Mary K. Endres who was the DIALOGUE coordinator at the time and is now the Patient Services Representative for Cooke County. The two began discussing needs in Cooke County and looked for ways to expand. There were many programs not being utilized because there just weren't enough volunteers.

Muenster Hornet Stadium. Mary and Cherilyn are co-chairing the event again this year. They anticipate a great year and hope to have even more participation than before.

Some of the programs that have become available locally due to the increase in volunteers are Breast Health Awareness, which teaches women of all ages how to detect breast cancer at an early stage; Road To Recovery, where trained volunteers provide transportation for cancer patients to and from treatments. MONEY TALK
BY DENNIS HESS

Variable Annuities

In recent years, Variable Annuities have become the investment of choice for more and more Americans. Whether your goal is saving for a comfortable retirement or boosting your present retirement, there are Variable Annuities that can help you achieve your objective.

Variable Annuities offer several distinct advantages:

- Professional Management - When you invest in a Variable Annuity, you are hiring full-time professional managers to buy, sell and evaluate your investments. Money Management firms employ research analysts who follow companies closely and even interview corporate executives in order to identify the best possible investments.
- Diversification - In a Variable Annuity, your money can be invested in hundreds of securities (a costly and difficult process to do on your own). Owning a diverse mix of securities can help reduce risk as the ups and downs of individual stocks often offset each other. You can also invest in a diverse mix of bonds (or a combination of stocks and bonds) or a guaranteed fixed account.
- Tax Deferral - Because Variable Annuities let you defer taxes, you accumulate earnings faster on money that would otherwise go to taxes. And you can transfer between investment options tax-free.
- Convenient Services - Other special services usually include investing by bank drafts and automatic withdrawals as well as automatic reinvestments of dividends.

If you have listened to the popular "Dollars and Sense" radio program on WBAP Saturday mornings, you've no doubt heard the host, Dave Brennan, talk about the advantages of Variable Annuities. If you would like to know more, give me a call.

Billie Yeager dies May 14 at 68

by Elfreda Fette
 Billie Yeager, 68, died on Thursday, May 14, 1998 at 1:35 a.m. in Nocona General Hospital, her life cut short after several years of valiant struggle against cancer.

She was born in Nocona on Sept. 29, 1929 to Newt and Letha Walker Sewell. Survivors include her mother, Mrs. Letha Sewell of Nocona, one son Jay Yeager of Nocona, two sisters Sue Reid of Wichita Falls, and Joyce Freeman of Saint Jo and one brother Jim Sewell of Austin.

Preceding her in death were her father Newt Sewell and one brother, Jack Sewell.

Billie Yeager was a teacher and honored the profession for 34 years as teacher, coach and counselor in Nocona schools, retiring in 1992. She was a beloved teacher and counselor for six years at Sacred Heart School in Muenster. She had also taught at Imperial, Iraan, Andrews, Bridgeport and Sherman. For the past three years she served the Montague County School Personnel as treasurer. She was a member of First Baptist Church of Nocona.

Services were held on Saturday, May 16 in First Baptist Church at 10:00 a.m., officiated by Roland Hodge and Lamoin Champ.

Participating in the service were fifteen members of the Sacred Heart Children's Choir, grades 5 to 8, and several former members now in high school. Also in attendance were Mmes. Anne Poole, Christy Hesse, Ruth Felderhoff and Pam Fette. Sacred songs included were "How Great Thou Art," and "Psalm of the Good Shepherd," by the Children's Choir, "Because He Lives," a solo by Pam Fette, and "On Eagle's Wings" by the choir for the recessional.

Burial in Nocona Cemetery was directed by Scott-Morris Funeral Home. Pallbearers were John Carter, Donald Bond, Michael Lemley, Jon Reid and Jon LeBrasseur.

Struggling with the heavy responsibility, "How can we replace her? How will we manage without her?" the faculty and students held a memorial on Monday morning, May 18, in Sacred Heart Church at 8:00 a.m. Mass was celebrated by Father Tom Craig, pastor. Students participated in the liturgical readings and Offertory procession. Music ministers were Pam Fette, Christy Hesse, Jackie Bartush, Melanie

Tisdale and Ruth Felderhoff. They sang "On Eagle's Wings," "We Walk By Faith," and "In The Breaking Of The Bread."

The Memorial Service following Mass began with a tribute by Jack Murdock, principal. He recalled: "When Billie came to us as a part-time counselor, we did not foresee what an important influence she would be in the lives of our entire school family. The spirit of Jesus dwelled in Billie...she sought out the sad, the hurting, the misunderstood...With her vast expertise and experience she advised, counseled, guided, helped...Her joy was in seeing people heal, grow, succeed...She could soothe the distress of a small child - and the crankiest teenager became calm under her influence."

"We have been enormously blessed by her ministry...We grieve, deeply, because of our separation from her, but we celebrate the Christian spirit she shared with us. We rejoice knowing Billie is in the eternal presence of Jesus."

Nicholas Taylor read an original poem he composed for the occasion. Jeff Yosten introduced the concluding ceremony, a release of large, heart-shaped balloons bearing messages, held by one student from each grade, when he invited all attending to exit by the door, to witness the balloon release.

Memorials may be sent to the Scholarship Funds of Sacred Heart School in Muenster, Nocona High School, or the American Cancer Society.

From My Side of the Fence

by Ed Cler

After telling a story about my Mom, I think it's only fair to tell one about Aileen's Mom, - or more so about her Dad.

It seems that after 18 years of marriage, Dad Hoehn had eaten noodles made by his wife Bertha many times, and while he always said they were real good, he still maintained they just didn't quite come up to the same degree of excellence as the ones made at his old home in Cullman, Alabama, by his sister Minnie.

It seems that while attending a family reunion at the old Hoehn residence in Cullman in 1935, some of Aileen's aunts, including her Aunt Minnie, were busy preparing a big dinner for the clan, when it was decided to also serve noodles.

Since all of the locals were busy with other things, Aunt Minnie asked her sister-in-law Bertha, to prepare the dish and she did.

Later, while all were enjoying the sumptuous repast, Dad Hoehn made mention of the delicious noodles, and called his wife's attention to their quality and taste and remarked that no one could surpass the delicate flavor and tenderness of Minnie's noodles.

Well, life can sometimes be embarrassing, at least it was to him, as Minnie said, "Albert, Bertha made the noodles!"

Dear Editor,

The Muenster Boy Scout Troop has planned a 7 day backpacking trip to Colorado in the next few months. It has become apparent that many scouts do not have the proper equipment for such an extended stay. We are in need of backpacks, tents, sleep ground pads, sleeping bags, and other backpacking equipment.

If you would consider selling or donating equipment please contact the Enterprise office as soon as possible. We can come by at your convenience to either pick up the equipment or take it over and make an offer. We certainly appreciate your generosity and help in this matter.

responsibility, just as important as driving a car.

So as you prepare for the summer boating season, make sure that every trip on your boat is safe and enjoyable. Here are a few things you can do:

- Brush up on boating safety. Stop by your local library or take a boating course (call Boat/U.S. Foundation at 1-800-336-BOA for information).

- Check your equipment. Make sure you have basic safety equipment on board - such as life jackets for all passengers, fire extinguishers, a navigation lights - and that the work. The U.S. Coast Guard and USCG Auxiliary are excellent resources.

- But most importantly, stay in control. If you plan to enjoy beer or other alcohol beverages, remember to choose "designated skipper" and "Know When To Say When." Using designated skipper on the water is becoming as popular as designated drivers on the highways.

Let's all work to make our summer enjoyable by remembering that responsibility is a lifesaver.

Consumer Abuse: Telemarketing Fraud

A subcommittee of the House Committee on Business and Industry recently held public hearings to discuss legislation that would help protect citizens from telephone frauds. The House Subcommittee on Telemarketing is searching for effective measures to stop telemarketers from preying on the public. Representative Alec Rhodes, who chairs the subcommittee, has asked for recommendations for legislation that would halt telemarketing abuse.

About 2,000 Texans file complaints each year with the Public Utility Commission (PUC) about telemarketing calls. And this may be only the tip of the iceberg, since it is estimated that only one in six victims actually report that they have been defrauded.

The PUC has rules that address telephone solicitation. Consumers need to be aware of the current regulations that govern telemarketing:

A telephone solicitor must:

- ✓ identify himself/herself by name
- ✓ identify the purpose of the call
- ✓ identify the business on whose behalf he or she is calling
- ✓ make every effort not to call a customer who asks not to be called again
- ✓ identify the telephone number at which the person, company, or organization making the call may be reached
- ✓ not call a residence before 9 a.m. or after 9 p.m. on a weekday or Saturday, and before noon or after 9 p.m. Sunday

An automated message machine must:

- ✓ disconnect from your line within 30 seconds after termination of the call or, if the device cannot disconnect within that period, a live operator must introduce the call and receive the consent of the customer before beginning the message
- ✓ play a message that is less than 30 seconds or be able to recognize a customer's answering machine and terminate the call within 30 seconds.

Filing a complaint:

If you have a complaint about repeated solicitation from a telephone solicitor you have asked not to call you, contact the PUC toll free at 1-888-782-8477. You may also write my Austin office at P.O. Box 2910, Austin 78768, to report this consumer abuse.

In the next Update I will discuss suggestions provided to the House members by the PUC Customer Protection Director to curb telemarketing abuses.

New exhibit featured at Morton Museum

The Cooke County Heritage Society is pleased to announce the opening of a new exhibit at the Morton Museum of Cooke County. Entitled "The County Grows Prosperous: 1870-1900," this exhibit is the second display in honor of the sesquicentennial of the county.

Between 1870 and 1900 the face of Cooke County changed dramatically. Indian raids ended. The population doubled. Both the MK&T and the Santa Fe railroads arrived in the county. Numerous towns, including Muenster, Lindsay, Myra, Era, Valley View, and Callisburg, were established. Joseph Weldon Bailey arrived and Frank Buck was born. The first barbed wire in Texas was sold at the Cleaves and Fletcher store in Gainesville. Young men from the county went off to fight in the Spanish-American War. Gainesville became a modern community with brick streets, elegant Victorian homes, an opera house, and street-car system. All of those events and more are examined in "The County Grows Prosperous: 1870-1900."

Among the items on display are several artifacts from the Palace Drug Store in Myra; a portrait of Rad Ware; receipts from Cleaves & Fletcher; booklets from the Farmers Alliance - a national group with state and county chapters formed during that period; artifacts from the railroads; and much more. The exhibit will be on display through the end of July. For more information, call the Morton Museum of Cooke County at 668-8900.

Library News

by Kay Broyles

Muenster Public Library receives its first computer from the Northeast Texas Library System's Project MICRO grant program. This computer will be used for administrative purposes. It is the first step in achieving our goal of automating our library. The next step is to put all of our books onto the computer for the circulation process. We are applying for another grant that would enable us to accomplish that goal. The third phase of our plan is to have computers available for internet usage by the public. We believe that computerizing is the best way to serve the needs of the community. Internet will enable us to provide a world of information at a minimal cost.

The summer reading program will begin on May 19, 1998, and run until August 20. For every 20 books read, the child will receive an ice cream cone, and their name put into a lottery. The ice cream is being provided by the DI One Stop. The lottery will be held at the end of the summer for prizes.

Tax Changes: The New Roth IRA

The Roth IRA has the possibility of having more money at retirement but there are other good features. The Roth IRA gives you more flexibility than a 401(k). After five years, you can withdraw money without penalty for a first home. Also, withdrawals from a Roth IRA come out of your contributions first. It appears to allow you the withdrawal of your contributions without penalty for any purpose. So, if you have put in $2,000 for five years, you have a penalty-free access of $10,000 for emergencies.

MHS Student Council installed

Twenty-nine Muenster High School students were officially installed as officers and members of the school's Student Council for 1998-99 during an assembly May 14 in the high school auditorium.

Next year's officers are Dolly Patel, president; Brent Sicking, vice-president; Jackie Henscheid, secretary; Darren Hennigan, treasurer; Kelly Felderhoff, reporter; and Casey Walterscheid, parliamentarian. The Freshman class will be represented by Grant Hartman and Pamela Lutkenhaus who were elected by their classmates after satisfying the Student Council's election campaign guidelines.

Sophomores through Seniors earned their memberships in the student council this year by completing ten service hour requirements. Tasks ranged from helping in the Book Fair fund-raiser to assisting in the district's UIL academic meet. All credit hours must be prepared by the Student Council's sponsors and are usually supervised and served on the student's own time rather than during class time.

Candidates for office and Freshman Representatives filed petitions to run for their positions that were signed by registered student voters, designed their campaign posters, and presented campaign speeches in a student assembly before being elected by students Friday, May 8.

After the installation ceremony, new members and retiring members were treated to refreshments in the auditorium.

The Spring Book Fair earned $350 which the 1997-98 Student Council donated toward a new Muenster Hornet mascot uniform.

Health Notes

Be prepared to save a life

Resolve to learn CPR - cardiopulmonary resuscitation - in 1998. A loved one may live to thank you for it.

"Bystander CPR is the base of the life-saving pyramid, said Dr. Brian Zachariah, assistant professor of emergency medicine at UT southwestern Medical Center at Dallas. "We see very few people survive cardiac arrest if they don't get CPR from a bystander before we get to them."

If a person needs CPR - if there is no pulse - a bystander who performs chest compressions with or without mouth-to-mouth resuscitation can do little harm. The CPR technique does not need to be perfect.

"But take a CPR course and learn to do it right because the odds are if you need to use the skill, it will be on a friend or family member," he said.

Electric Safety

In recognition of NATIONAL SAFE KID'S MONTH

Here are a few lessons in electric safety to help keep our children safe:

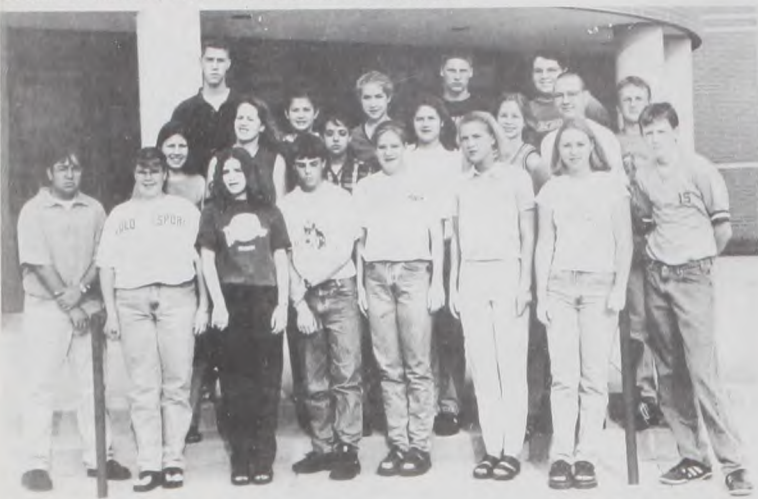

Some lessons should be practiced during the school year and the summer - lessons on electric safety. Electricity does a lot of great things for all of us. Yet it must be treated properly to ensure our safety and well being. Here are a few lessons in electric safety that will help to keep you safe:

1. Always respect electricity and ask your friends and relatives to respect it too. Unfortunately, electricity is very, very unforgiving when unleashed and one little mistake can be deadly.
2. Electricity and water do not mix. Always keep blow dryers, radios and other electric appliances well clear of sinks, bath tubs and swimming pools. Also, never plug in or operate an electrical device when you are wet or standing in water.
3. Always stay far away from electric wires and lines that have fallen down. Primary power lines are not insulated and any contact with them can cause serious injury or death. Remember, stay away and call Cooke County Electric Cooperative for help immediately.
4. Climbing trees is always great fun for children, but climbing a tree near an electric power line can be very dangerous. Always make sure there are no power lines running through or near a tree that your young one is about to climb.
5. Always look up. If you are installing a new television antenna or if you are positioning a ladder next to your home or business, make sure you are clear of any overhead power lines. Aluminum ladders and antennas are great conductors of electricity!

So remember, parents, when it comes to electricity, take all the necessary precautions to ensure your safety and the safety and well being of your children. It may be one of the best lessons in life that your children ever learn.

Life goes on

year," said Cherilyn.

Cherilyn is now on the Relay For Life Task Force for the state of Texas. "I'm excited about that. I think it's going to help our community a lot by finding out what's going on in other communities with the Relay For Life. Not only that but with all aspects of the American Cancer society that I might not have otherwise heard about."

Having had cancer has changed Cherilyn's outlook on life. "I try to live my life every day and experience things that I don't know whether I'll have a lot of years ahead of me to experience," explained Cherilyn. "One thing that I've heard grandkids say that grandkids are so much more fun than their own kids. They are able to enjoy them and not have the responsibility and they get to experience a lot more of the fun things about children. That's what I've tried to do with Kalyssa is enjoy every moment and experience things that I probably wouldn't have because it's so easy to get caught up in the responsibilities of raising a child and earning a living."

"There are still times when I get stuck in a rut of frustration and dwelling in the negative things that go on, but I try to make a conscience effort to take every thing that comes along and find the good in it and enjoy life. I don't know how long it will last, none of us do but I'm more aware of it. In some ways I think that the further away I get from that tragedy the more complacent I get. Then something will happen, not necessarily to me, it may be to someone I know, someone who's facing cancer or death or whatever. It brings it all back that I need to step back and remember how to enjoy life and experience everything I can."

Overwhelming is how Cherilyn describes the Relay For Life experience. "There's nothing like seeing the total support of the community and the outpouring of love and help for the survivors," she commented. "The luminaria ceremony with all the messages on the luminaria bags is unbelievable. I think the more people who experience it, the bigger the Relay For Life is going to grow, because no matter how well you can explain it, there's nothing like being there."

She feels that participating in the Relay is especially good for those who are newly diagnosed with cancer because they can see how many survivors there are and that they also might have a chance for survival. "Relay For Life is an awesome way for people to understand more about cancer and make it easier to deal with it when they're faced with it," Cherilyn concluded.

Luminarias lend a special sentiment to the Relay For Life event. There is still time to purchase your own luminarias in memory of a loved one. Volunteers will decorate the bags or you may design your own.

Sports and Your Child

from the American Academy of Pediatrics

How can sports-related stress be prevented?

The main source of stress in the young athlete is the pressure to win. Sadly, many coaches and parents place winning above the values of play and learning. Measure your child's performance by the yardstick of effort; a young athlete should set goals and then strive to reach them. He or she will respond better to rewards for trying hard, or for gaining skills, than to punishment and criticism for losing.

In sports, stress can be managed through a number of simple steps. Children should be placed in groups that maintain a narrow range of age levels and degrees of skill. Only players of similar height, weight, ability, and maturity should be matched as opponents in contact sports. The rules of a sport can be changed to make it fairer for all to play. For instance, a basketball net could be lowered or a race should be shortened.

Learning to cope with stress is an important part of growing up. Children can develop stress-related symptoms from other sources besides sports, including family problems, peer conflicts, school pressures, and changes in residence. The degree of stress caused by sports often is minor compared to these other sources. Actually, sports can teach the skills for coping with stress caused by any problem. This is one reason why pediatricians encourage participation in athletics.

FEDERAL EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT AGENCY Proposed Flood Elevation Determinations

SUMMARY: Technical information or comments are solicited on the proposed and proposed modified base (1-percent-annual-chance) flood elevations (BFEs) shown on the preliminary revised Flood Insurance Study (FIS) and Flood Insurance Rate Map (FIRM) for your community. These BFEs and modified BFEs are the basis for the floodplain management measures that your community is required to either adopt or show evidence of being already in effect in order to qualify or remain qualified for participation in the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP).

DATES: The comment period is 90 days following the second publication of this proposed rule in a newspaper of local circulation in your community.

ADDRESSES: The FIS and FIRM showing the proposed and proposed modified BFEs and their delineations are available for inspection at City Hall, 400 North Main, Muenster, Texas. Send comments: The Honorable Henry Weinzapfel, Mayor, City of Muenster, P.O. Box 208, Muenster, Texas 76252.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION, CONTACT: Matthew B. Miller, P.E., Chief, Hazards Study Branch, Mitigation Directorate, 500 C Street SW, Washington, DC 20472, (202) 646-3461.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) gives notice of the proposed determinations of BFEs and modified BFEs in accordance with Section 110 of the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973, 42 U.S.C. 4104 and 44 CFR 67.4(a).

These BFEs, together with the floodplain management measures required by 44 CFR 60.3, are the minimum that are required. They should not be construed to mean your community must change any existing ordinances that are more stringent in their floodplain management requirements.

Your community may, at any time, enact stricter requirements on its own, or pursuant to policies established by other Federal, State or regional entities. These proposed BFEs are used to meet the floodplain management requirements of the NFIP and are also used to calculate the appropriate flood insurance premium rates for new buildings built after the BFEs are made final, and for the contents in these buildings.

Pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 605(b), the Executive Associate Director, Mitigation Directorate, to whom authority has been delegated by the Director/FEMA, hereby certifies that the proposed BFE determinations, if promulgated, will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. A BFE determination under Section 1363 forms the basis for new local ordinances, which, if adopted by a community, will govern future construction within the floodplain area. By themselves, the BFE determinations impose no restriction unless and until the community voluntarily adopts floodplain ordinances in accord with these BFEs. Even if ordinances are adopted in compliance with Federal standards, the BFEs only prescribe building height in the floodplain and do not prohibit development. Thus, this action only forms the basis for future local actions. It imposes no new requirement; of itself, it has no economic impact.

Proposed BFEs and modified BFEs along flooding sources studied by detailed methods are shown on the preliminary revised FIS and FIRM. Lessees and owners of real property in the City of Muenster, Cooke County, Texas, are encouraged to review the FIS, FIRM and related materials at the address cited above. The flooding sources studied by detailed methods are as follows:

County Agent's Report by Craig Rosenbaum

WHEAT HISTORY

Recently we were visiting with some farmers about early wheat varieties and the amount of progress that has been made in yields of wheat.

Dr. David Marshall, at the Experiment Station located at Prosper, each year plants a series of wheat varieties showing growth and development of wheat breeding for North Central Texas. At a recent tour to the Prosper location we had a chance to observe many of the varieties including the early Mediterranean and Kharkof wheats.

The first official estimates of crop acreage planted to wheat in Texas were made in 1866. There were 75,000 acres that produced an estimated 750,000 bushels. Crop acreage reports have been made every year since 1866. By 1919 there were three wheat growing areas that included North Central Texas, the Rolling Plains, and the High Plains. Acreage had increased to over 2 1/2 million acres of wheat.

Little is known about wheat varieties grown until recent times. Wheat had been brought to Texas by the Spaniards and French in the 1500s. However, little record was kept concerning any cultural practices and varieties until the modern farming era. According to the Texas Almanac, in 1904 a soft variety called Little Red May was the first true soft variety grown in North Texas.

Many producers still remember Mediterranean wheat. It became a dominant variety from 1875 to 1925 and by 1919 this variety was grown on 55 percent of the Texas acreage. With the introduction of other varieties, by 1954 Mediterranean acreage was down to approximately 1,500 acres in the state. 1948 saw a new variety, Knox, that was well adapted in our North Texas Blackland areas. Other new varieties that were to come included Arthur, Abe, and Oasis, and in 1974, Coker 6815. From this period, varieties and seed companies developed rapidly and producers were offered many new soft wheats to increase yields and ward off disease pressure.

The hard red winter wheats began with the Turkey wheats about 1874. In our area of North Texas, Turkey wheat was shown to be planted in 1911 near Roanoke. Most of the wheats grown in North Central Texas were soft varieties in the early wheat growing years. Early releases of hard wheat varieties in Texas included Quannah, Crockett, Caddo and Tascosa. During the 40s to the early 60s, private breeds included Triumph and Triumph 64, and then beginning in the mid 60s, the semi dwarf revolution. These new varieties included Sturdy, TAM 101, and TAM 103 and represented the first semi dwarf hard red winter wheats developed in the United States.

Wheat is one of the oldest cultivated crops for the U.S. and certainly has a history as old as the settlement of North Texas for our area. New varieties take approximately 13 years to be released to producers. This includes a breeding and selection process and seed increase and represents a large investment by plant breeders. Wheat harvest is just around the corner and farmers will be harvesting wheat from some 30,000 acres in Cooke County.

ARMYWORMS

We're still receiving a few reports of armyworms in the county. The wheat is considered made and armyworms should not be a serious threat to our wheat crop. However, producers have reported instances of armyworms in Jose wheatgrass, bermudagrass, ryegrass, and hay meadows. Watch for their presence. Remember it will take 5 to 8 per square foot to cause severe damage. In addition, monitor the size of the armyworms in order to understand their life cycle. We have a lot of hot dry weather and this weather hopefully will eliminate our armyworm problem.

Wasp ... to control or not

As the weather becomes warmer, many insects move out of their winter homes, including wasps.

Wasps make their fall nest in cracks and crevices of older buildings and in the spring they move out and become a nuisance. The first wasps out are usually the queens going to build a new nest. The old nest is not reused. The queens begin to appear in March, becoming active in May.

For control, first find location of their nest, spraying the area with an insecticide. The use of Dursban is suggested for outside jobs, but a less odor spray, Permethrin, is recommended for indoors. Spray at night when the wasp are less active. They are aggressive when touched and very protective of their nest.

Most species of wasps are beneficial and should not be controlled unless they are a threat because of stings. Wasps kill and feed to their young other insects that normally damage shade trees and crops. They also kill a large number of house flies.

The whole point about getting things done is knowing what to leave alone.

Control fire ant numbers with a two-step method

Spring is here, drawing thousands of Texans outdoors. In order to enjoy the great outdoors even more, it may be necessary to apply the Two-Step Method to manage red imported fire ants.

When the ground temperature stays above 65 degrees Fahrenheit for a stretch of days, fire ants begin to build up mounds, producing young and foraging for food. That is one of the best times to manage populations.

In fully-infested areas (five or more mounds for each quarter-acre of yard) or where there is little or no concern for preserving native ant species, the Two-Step Method - promoted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service - may be the best line of defense.

The method relies on two steps. The first is the broadcast application of one of several effective bait products.

Be sure to use fresh material. Treatments are best made when ants are actively looking for food and there's no rain expected within 24 hours.

One way to tell if ants are foraging is to put a little bait out and see if the ants have found it within 30 minutes.

The baits are slow-acting and require weeks to months to achieve 80% to 90% control.

In the meantime, between application of bait once or twice a year, the second step utilize individual mound treatment to treat only nuisance mounds.

Since fire ants can and will re-invade treated areas, bait applications will need to be re-applied bait at least once or perhaps twice a year. Because the effects are slow, research shows that by applying in late summer, when weather conditions are more stable, treatments can result in fire ant control by early spring.

It's A Stat!

Seeing double

Only two out of every 1,000 quarter horse births are twins and when this happens, fewer than 5% will survive.

But on March 26, "Ole Man's Little Girl" gave birth to twin foals. Owners Tommy and Keely McKee of Noble, Oklahoma, couldn't be more excited. Usually when horses have twins, both die, but these foals are in good health and are expected to live.
