Expert Aid Given By Muenster Lady Saves Boy's Life

Now that congress is adjourned we're hearing the usual kind of comment . . . jeers from some and cheers from others. It seems that the most unhappy ones are those who identify themselves as the "Eisenhower Republicans," who, incidentally, could simplify matters a lot by admitting that they are plain New Dealers within the GOP.

The more conservative element of congress, is inclined to point with pride to the achievements of this session. They feel, and millions of the people back home heartily agree, that they did a fine job in modifying and checking the extreme legislation that was proposed by the administration. The country is better off, for instance without federal aid to schools and without the more rigid civil rights legislation. Likewise it gains immensely by the reduction of about $5.5 billion in the budget. This reduces the budget by about 7.6 per cent below the president's original request.

If we eliminate budget items which cannot be touched the percentage of saving looks even better. Obligations to veterans and interest on debts comes to about $10 billion. Without those items the $5.5 billion figures to a saving of about 9 per cent.

All along they have been telling us that another item, Defense, must be left intact on the budget. The lawmakers complied thoroughly insofar as security was concerned but they showed admirable judgment in lopping a substantial amount off the administrative allowances for the defense services. Very properly congress favors all out development and production of defensive weapons but it frowns on inefficiency, luxury, waste of manpower and other extravagant practices in the services. So the defense budget was trimmed by over 2 billion.

Whether these benefits will be applied as tax reduction or debt reduction remains to be decided, but one thing is certain . . . either way it is the long awaited step in the right direction.

Getting back to the defense budget, a glance at it reveals the enormity of our country's boners in dealing with communism. Over half the country's tax load is going for defense. We are spending about 33 billion in a feverish effort to keep a military advantage over a Frankenstein whose present strength can be credited almost entirely to our country's absurd foreign policy. Yalta, Potsdam, the Chinese sell-out, the Korean fiasco . . . steps by which the red menace grew to its present terrible size . . . were all the result of either treachery or blunders by our own official family. Had those red gains been prevented our present defense budget might be half its present size or less. Figure our extra expense through the years, and the suffering of hundreds of millions of people who were brought under the yoke of communism, and you begin to see the extent of the damage done by the traitors or nitwits . . . call them what you prefer . . . in our government who had a hand in directing history down this course.

Imagine what a substantial reduction in our defense budget these several years might have meant to us. Suppose some of those billions had been spent instead on soil and water conservation and better roads. And suppose the other billions had been applied as tax relief, allowing us to increase our personal budgets accordingly.

Another view of our national spending spree is presented by a California newspaper. It quotes an answer by economy advocates to those who claim that the budget can't be cut without impairing national defense. At the New Deal peak in 1940 the total cost of Federal government was $69 per person. Now the non-defense cost alone is $146 a person.

In general the record of the congress reveals that opinions of people back home have been getting through to the representatives in Washington informing them that the new Republicanism isn't as popular as its leaders like to assume. Then comes the most stunning blow of all in the Wisconsin senatorial election. The traditionally Republican state gave a big majority to a Democratic candidate rather than support the Modern Republican Kohler who campaigned as a staunch Eisenhower Republican.

Here was a case of liberal candidates on both tickets. Old (Continued on Page 8)

A 13 year old Graham boy, who is recovering normally after an accident last Saturday, probably owes his life to the expert ministrations of Mrs. Evelyn Stewart.

Pinching off a spurting jugular vein she checked the alarming loss of blood down to a mere trickle during seven long minutes until an ambulance arrived at the scene.

Mrs. Stewart, along with Tony Koessler and the Norbert Koesslers were on their way to Abilene to attend the first stockholders meeting of the Key Western Life Insurance Company. About four miles out of Graham the boy, on his bike, darted in front of them from the side of the road. After their car hit him the quartet stopped to help.

His injuries consisted of a broken leg, the one serious laceration and several lesser bruises and cuts. An emergency call was sent to Graham promptly and an ambulance responded with equal promptness.

After that the foursome remained with the injured boy, later following him to a Wichita Falls hospital, to which he was taken for special examination.

Late in the afternoon, when it became apparent that he was all right, they resumed their trip to Abilene. On their way home Sunday they stopped for another visit and were assured that the boy is getting along fine.

Three other Muenster couples also went to Abilene for the insurance meeting. They were Messrs. and Mmes. Alphonse Hoeng, Tony Wimmer and Andy Wimmer, Norbert Koessler and Alphonse Hoeng are directors of the company.

Flood Prevention Program Urged for Upper Clear Creek

A flood prevention program for the upper Clear Creek watershed is the final objective of a meeting to be held next Tuesday night, September 10, at 7:30 in the Ross Point Community Center.

The immediate objective is to organize a watershed association to assist in securing easements and give other help in establishing a flood prevention program.

Principal speaker at the meeting will be J. H. Johnson, Flood Prevention and Watershed Protection Specialist of the Soil Conservation Service.

Invitations are being sent this week to all landowners of the area. Others due to attend are supervisors of the Denton-Wise Soil Conservation district and a group of landowners and business men from the lower Clear Creek area.

Those men are especially interested in bringing Clear Creek under control. Their area bore has been sufficiently reduced to meet the requirement for reservoir construction.

The landowners are also impressed by the approval of a flood control project on Denton Creek, which, in their opinion, has no better siltation rate than (Continued on Page 7)

The fees are $2.00 per person for display course and $3.50 per person for the lettering course. Texts and supplies are furnished at no extra charge.

Both classes will be under the direction of W. G. Bohannon of the University of Texas Extension Service. He has spent many years at display work in retail stores and has also had experience as an employee and later as owner of sign companies in Austin.

Humble TV Show Features Fire Ants And Tom Hickman

Fire Ants, believed to have come to this country from South America, will be the subject of a revealing story on Humble Oil & Refining Company's "Texas in Review" TV program next week.

The ants have built mounds up to three feet high in the state from Houston east along the Gulf Coast. Authorities are studying ways of destroying them.

Texas' first toll road, the Turnpike linking Dallas and Fort Worth will also be featured as cameras take a motor tour along the length of the new arterial. The Women's National Sailing Championships will be covered by "Texas in Review" cameras. The ladies, from all over the nation, are competing for honors in Corinthian class yachts.

Colorful Texas — Tom Hickman, retired Texas Ranger — will be visited at his ranch near Gainesville.

"Texas in Review" can be seen Thursday, Sept. 12, at 9 p.m. over KRLD-TV, Channel 4.

Firemen's Meeting Dated September 16

CORRECTION!

A correction is in order this week for the mistake printed in the Enterprise concerning the deadline for farmers to apply for the refund of federal tax on gasoline. The deadline is the last day of September, not the first. The article in last week's paper was received from the office of Agriculture Commissioner John C. White and was accepted as correct. Reference to official forms later revealed that the date specified by White's office was wrong.

The Enterprise staff regrets the inconvenience this mistake has caused some of its readers.

St. Anne's Society Plans Bake Sale

At their meeting Sunday members of St. Anne's Society made plans for a benefit bake sale, the date to be announced. The proceeds will clear up the debt on the home freezer for the parish rectory. When the society sponsored a drive for voluntary contributions for the freezer several weeks ago the amount fell short of the goal.

Announcement that the Sisters' residence needed 4 gas heaters for the new rooms added this year, brought immediate contribution of stoves by Mmes. Arnold Rohmer, H. J. Fuhrman, Tony Gremminger and Herbert McDaniel.

Mrs. Ted Gremminger, delegate to the recent convention of the Catholic State League in Hallettsville, gave a report of proceedings with details on the meeting of the Women's section. She also commented on the Mission Exhibit which was outstanding this year. Among articles on display to be sent to needy mission posts and hospitals were 1400 rolls of hospital bandages and 20 quilts.

Discussion on forming an entertainment committee to be in charge of society social events resulted in four members' volunteering to serve. They are Mmes. John Kathman chairman and Gertrude Bayer, Bill Becker and John Grewing.

Mrs. Victor Hartman, president, conducted the meeting and led the opening prayer. She announced that the next series of sermonettes at monthly meetings will be on "Steady Early Dating." THE PRICE OF FREEDOM
 Welcoming the Mayflower II to this country the other day, Vice President Richard M. Nixon reportedly declared that "no price is too great to pay for freedom."
 Acknowledging that our current tax burden is heavy, he assertedly asked, "How do our sacrifices compare with those of the Pilgrim Fathers?"
 But it seems to me that, in asking this question, the Vice President has missed the real point at issue.

Of course, "no price is too great to pay for freedom." But the big unanswered question is: In submitting without protest to a tax burden which must inevitably destroy our way of life are we in fact paying for freedom or are we buying slavery? The price men have paid for freedom, has seldom, if ever, been one of submission to an intolerable tax burden.
 I wonder if the Vice President has forgotten that it was to get rid of just such a burden that the descendants of the Pilgrims, some 150 years after the arrival of the first Mayflower, fought the Revolutionary War?

MISPLACED FARM HANDOUT
 The U. S. farmer's income will be up a half billion dollars this year, according to the Department of Agriculture, and that would be good news if the extra money came from farming.
 But actual farming will be less profitable than last year. The Soil Bank program will make up the difference, plus the half billion.

Despite hopeful statements, this is a situation which is rapidly getting no better.
 Surpluses are being reduced, mainly by giving them away or selling them abroad at a loss. But when ever surpluses are cut, price supports are raised, creating more surpluses.

The Soil Bank appears to have attracted investment capital to the farm belt, but not necessarily for farming. Large tracts can be bought up to be put into the "bank" at a profit which does not come from hoeing corn or milking cows.

Farm relief is supported to help the struggling family farmer. But he needs all his small holdings to scratch out a living, can't afford to let any of his land lie idle. It is the big "factory" farm, with excess, unproductive acreage that stands to benefit.

And that's the recurring story of farm legislation. Food and fiber production is in a transitional stage, from labor to machinery. This is a trend which eventually will eliminate many small family farms, whether we like it or not. Modern farm machinery is too expensive for little farms. It produces at far lower cost on

Protect Their Right To Know

By Rev. James Keller, Director of the Christophers

On April 30th, 1789, George Washington rested his hand on the Bible and took the oath of office as first President of the United States at the Old Federal Building in New York City. According to Joseph Buffington in "The Soul of Washington," Washington then lifted the Holy Bible to his lips, kissed it reverently and said, "So help me God."

THESE WORDS, "So help me God," spontaneously added to the oath by Washington, have, since then, always accompanied official oaths throughout the U. S. A. The President taking office, civil service employees, witnesses in courts, passport applicants and many others on official occasions repeat these same words. They call on God to be Witness to the truth of what they have solemnly affirmed.

This is only one of the countless historical facts which reveal the spiritual roots of our great nation. Each and all of them can be taught under existing laws, in every classroom in the country.

EVERY ONE of the 41 million students in the public and private schools of the United States has a right to know the fullness of American history. To deprive young people of this important portion of their American heritage—through oversight, negligence, or design—would be to shortchange them.

Even if some no longer agree with the spiritual convictions of the Founders of America, at least the right of students to know what these actually were—should be respected.

PARENTS, TEACHERS, STUDENTS and all others can do much to strengthen the moral fiber of our nation by giving wide circulation to the public declarations of faith in God repeatedly made by the pioneers of America. They are forceful reminders that they deeply believed God to be the Author of our liberty.

The words and deeds of these great men are part and parcel of our history. They are essential ingredients of our strength, and indispensable if we are to survive as a free nation.

RATHER THAN complain about the godlessness in educational circles, it seems far better to "light a candle" and include in the school curriculum the references to God and eternal values which are such a vital and substantial part of our heritage.

You personally and individually—through your Parent-Teachers Association and other societies—can render an important service by helping to restore at least a minimum recognition of God to the schools of America.

S.S. Office Reveals Limit on Earnings By Social Security

People receiving Social Security benefits are permitted to earn up to $1200.00 a year and still draw all their monthly checks, according to Roy Westerfield, Manager of the Sherman Social Security office. They can earn between $1200.00 and $2080.00 and still receive payments for some months in the year, he said.

It is believed that there are several persons of retirement age in this community who are earning over $1200.00 per year, but whose earnings will not exceed $2000.00 during the year. These people are considered partially retired and could be receiving part of their social security benefits during the year. Westerfield suggested that anyone who is 65 or older and earning less than $2080.00 per year should contact the district office and discuss the possibility of filing their claims.

Individuals who are 72 years of age can start their checks the month they are 72 regardless of how much they are earning, Westerfield stated.

Samuel B. Davis, Jr., Field Representative of the Sherman District Office may be contacted in Gainesville at the Cooke County Court House every Tuesday from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon, Westerfield stated.

Roscoe Pound, the famous former Dean of the Harvard Law School, finds that legal privileges formerly accorded certain classes — such as the nobility and landowners — have long been disappearing, but that a new favored class has arisen made up of labor unions and their officials and members. These, he writes, now have the liberty "to commit wrongs to person and property, to interfere with the use of highways, to break contracts, to deprive individuals of the means of earning a livelihood, to control the activities of the individual workers and their local organizations by national organizations centrally and arbitrarily administered beyond the reach of state laws, and to misuse trust funds — things which no one else can do with impunity."

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

"It beats anything I've ever seen. Its the best clover yet." This is what J. C. Donnell of Saint Jo, Texas thinks of Button Clover. He lives seven miles south of Saint Jo on a 397 acre farm. He also operates 1,094 acres for a neighbor, Howard Mays. It was the Button Clover in the bottomland Bermuda grass pasture on the Mays farm that so thoroughly convinced Donnell of its value as a winter and early spring grazing crop.

In the fall of 1954, Mays overseeded 45 acres of a 100 acre Bermuda grass bottomland pasture to Button Clover. Twenty of these acres were planted at 15 pounds of clover seed per acre. The remaining 25 acres were seeded at an 8 pound per acre rate. Phosphate fertilizer was applied at the time of seeding. A good stand of clover came up on the land where 15 pounds of seed per acre was seeded. A sparse stand was obtained on the land planted at 8 pounds of seed per acre. The seed crop of the following summer was allowed to fall on the ground. In the fall of 1955 the weather was dry and very little clover came up. In the fall of 1956, the September rains brought a good stand of clover on the 20 acres and a spotty stand of clover on the other 25 acres.

Donnell put 105 head of cattle on the 100 acre pasture on February 15, 1957 and according to his observations the cattle grazed almost entirely on the area where the clover was the best. The Button Clover furnished all the grazing for the 105 head until the first week of June. At this time, even though it had furnished a lot of high protein forage, which resulted in a big saving in the feed bill, the clover had grown away from the cows and was about knee high. Donnell decided to go for seed on a part of the clover planting, so in the first week of June he put an electric fence around about 18 acres of the best clover planting. On June 24th clover was mowed and two days later it was windrowed with a side delivery rake. The clover was left to dry until July 3, when it was combined. The area yielded

Flood Prevention -

Clear Creek. A sedimentation survey by SCS men is under way on Clear Creek at this time. The brunt of the damage last Spring when the creek went on a rampage.

Likewise vitally interested are many of the farmers of the upper watershed. They lost thousands of dollars in crop damage as floodwaters raged across hundreds of acres of their bottomlands.

Their hope is to promote a system of detention reservoirs like the one now under construction on the Elm watershed.

One request for a series of dams along the creek has already been turned down. At about the time the Elm Creek project was developing a sedimentation test was conducted on Clear Creek to determine whether a flood prevention program was practical. Soil Conservation Service technicians decided that the rate of siltation was excessive and recommended against construction of reservoirs.

Since then land use practices on the watershed have been greatly improved and many landowners think the rate of siltation

1200 pounds of clean Button Clover seed or about 66 pounds per acre. The clover is valued at fifty cents per pound, which gives an additional income of $600.00 from land that furnished badly needed grazing during the early spring. Other by-product benefits of this fall planted pasture clover were: good soil cover to prevent splash erosion, nitrogen added to the soil through the nitrogen-fixing bacteria in the root nodules of the clover, and increased organic matter through the roots left in the soil and the residue left on the soil surface after combining operations. The Bermuda grass made more growth, because of the nitrogen put into the soil by the clover crop.

Plastic refrigerators now being made weigh 150 pounds less than steel models.

Bulcher Homecoming Celebration Draws Over 500 Sunday

More than 500 people attended the annual homecoming celebration and old settlers reunion at Bulcher Sunday. They came from far and near, some meeting for the first time in almost half a century. A barbecue dinner was served free in the park at noon and afterwards there was a program of picture taking, visiting and gospel singing.

Credited with coming the farthest distance to attend were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dennis Jr. and their family of Adamsville, Alabama. Honored for being the oldest resident present was Mrs. Sallie M. Kidd, a pioneer of the community who still resides there.

Barrels of ice water and a cold drink stand were on the grounds for the convenience of visitors and all were asked to register in the guest book. While everyone was gathered for the noon meal, Dexter Dennis announced that next year's celebration will again be held on the Sunday before Labor Day and that no special invitations will be mailed. Everybody was urged to return and bring their relatives and friends with them. The group decided to have an old fashioned picnic dinner next year with everybody bringing a basket of food.

Rev. Justin B. Dennis of Dallas, a former resident, gave the invocation. Those attending were invited to give a free will offering to the Coker cemetery maintenance fund. Anyone who thinks he's indispensable should try sticking his finger in a bowl of water and noticing the hole it leaves when he takes it out.

Music Featured On Catholic Hour's September Series

Music lovers of all faiths will be interested in the announcement of the Sherman Deanery Council of Catholic Men that the five September programs on the Catholic Hour, produced by the National Council of Catholic Men for the NBC network and broadcast in this area by WFAA-820 at 1:30 p.m. Sundays, are being devoted to traditional church music.

Thirty-six religious orders and laymen are represented in the group of students at Pius X School of Liturgical Music presenting the series. Last Sunday's opening program was titled "An Introduction to Sacred Music."

Of particular interest to many will be the September 8 program of "The What and Why of Gregorian Chant." All of the Gregorian Chant used on this program is conducted by the renowned French authority, Dom Ludovic Barton, O.S.B., who will also be heard in an actual recording of one of his classes.

The third program on September 15 is on "Polyphony—Old and New," with examples ranging from the work of the 16th century master, Palestrina, to rhodern-day composers. On the September 22 program, "Good Hymns for Better Worship," hymns for various occasions, processions and recessions will be sung and discussed. The final program on September 29 will be devoted to "Music in the Mass."

Abbot Paul Nahlen

ship includes 78 priests. The others are brothers and seminarians. Since the early days Sacred Heart parish here and St. Peter's parish at Lindsay have been staffed by Subiaco Benedictine fathers.

There has been no announcement as to the date set for the election of Abbot Paul's successor. The new abbot will be selected by priests of the monastery. The procedure is similar to that in the election of a new pope.

Rev. Cyril Lange of Windthorst and Rev. John Walbe of Rhineland stopped here Wednesday morning to be joined by Rev. Louis Deuster, on the drive to Subiaco, Ark., to attend funeral services for Rt. Rev. Abbot Paul Nahlen. Rev. Fred Mosman, visiting here from Dallas, and his brother John Mosman, also attended the rites.

Confetti - - -

Republicans, who used to go strong for Joe McCarthy, stayed home by the hundreds of thousands rather than vote for Kohler. The Republican vote fell from 954,844 in '56 to 313,631. At the same time the Democratic vote dropped from 586,768 in '56 to 435,085. Obviously the people of Wisconsin did not care for either of their two liberal candidates. Experts are predicting that the Republicans can be depended on for a conservative candidate in next year's election.

VFW Auxiliary is Asked to Area Meet

Farm Bureau Sets Dates for County Policy Meetings

Plans for a policy development meeting in each community were drawn up by members of the Farm Bureau Monday evening in the office building on W. Hwy. 82.

Joe Hundt opened the meeting and introduced Ken Blanton, chairman of the financial committee of the United Fund. Blanton explained the details of the fund, its budget and advantages. He asked for support of the members in educating their families and other organizations about the approaching fund drive.

Melvin Dansby, field representative for Farm Bureau, gave the talk on conducting policy development and the membership drive. The policy meetings will be held in the following communities on these dates: Valley View, Sept. 18, Downard-Fairplains, Sept. 19; Rosston, Sept. 23; Gainesville, Sept. 25; Lindsay, Sept. 30; Muenster, Oct. 1; Era, Oct. 7. No director was present from Siveills Bend and Marysville so those dates will be announced later.

Plans were made to take the Cooke County queen, Ruth Ann

Kindiger, and last year's queen, Norma Jean Walterscheid, to the District 4 contest in Dallas, Thursday, Messrs. and Mmes. Ben Davis and Joe Hundt will accompany them.

Hundt appointed a nominating committee for new officers for the bureau, Joe Krahl, Walter Nortman and Ben Davis. Instructions were given to nominate two for president. These officers will be elected at the County Convention which is tentatively set for Nov. 7.
