

How would you like to stop paying federal income tax? Don't shrug that off as a silly question, because the possibility of doing it is more than just a pipe dream. It is a very real possibility that can be accomplished by adopting the proposed 23rd amendment to the Constitution.

That amendment, introduced in the Congress as House Joint Resolution 123 provides that the Federal Government of the United States shall not engage in any business, professional, commercial, financial or industrial enterprise except as specified in the Constitution. Its author is Willis Stone and its sponsor in Congress is Ralph W. Gwinn of New York.

Few of us have heard about this proposed amendment and fewer still have any notion what it can do for us. To the discredit of the big shots in Washington and the news agencies that tell the Washington story, far too little has been said on the subject. The average taxpayer does not know that his income tax represents almost exactly his share in supporting government business ventures that are not even authorized by the Constitution.

As explained by Mr. Stone, our government has never had a constitutional right to operate any kind of business. Nevertheless it has over 500 federal corporations occupying 40 percent of the land area and 20 per cent of the industrial capacity of the nation. The total cost of acquiring all this business was about $200 billion.

Amendment 23 demands that all these business interests be sold to the American people, either individuals or corporations. Estimating conservatively he figures that the selling price would total at least $50 billion, which would allow that much reduction in the national debt . . . and reduce the nation's annual interest and amortization cost by $2.5 billion.

From there the author enumerates other expenses that can be eliminated, basing his figures on the government's own reports for 1954. A big item is the $10 billion lost by government business operations. Next there is the federal cost of servicing all these business ventures . . . the salaries of a million employees plus office space, equipment, materials, etc., all charged against general operating expense but operating strictly for the government business ventures.

An interesting detail in this connection is that the government has 3.5 million typewriters for those 1 million employees. On this basis it is reasonable to assume that this servicing staff is overstocked also on other equipment items. A well managed sale of all that surplus equipment could bring more welcome relief to the national debt.

At any rate the salaries of the million employees amount to about $4 billion a year and the cost of space, facilities, printing, research, attorney fees, etc., comes to about $12 billion.

Adding those figures, $2.5 billion for interest and amortization, $10 billion for operating losses, and $16 billion for personnel and service paid out of the general expense fund, Mr. Stone points out that we taxpayers are being clipped for $28.5 billion to support business ventures that are competing with us.

Another provision of the 23rd Amendment is to outlaw the fantastic give away known as the foreign aid program. Sticking with the 1954 figures, Mr. Stone quotes that item as $4,669,000,000.

Combining those costs, Mr. Stone says that our government in 1954, paid out $33,169,000,000 on federal business ventures and foreign aid, the two operations which would be eliminated by adopting the 23rd amendment. And still using the 1954 records, he points out that individual income taxes (before refunds) amounted to $32,495,000,000.

A comparison of those two figures shows that the federal government, by quitting competition with its own taxpayers, could have completely cancelled individual income tax and still gained $674 million for the year.

SOIL SLIDE RULE—This slide rule helps farmers reduce soil loss from rainfall. Embodying research data compiled by the Department of Agriculture over the past 30 years, the rule makes possible fast and reliable soil loss estimates right in the field. Developed by Dr. J. J. Pierre of the Soil Conservation Service, the rule is fed information concerning the amount of rain, type of soil and soil cover, length of slope and other factors. These are given numerical values and a trained technician can find the best combination of cropping system and conservation practices which meet the needs of a particular farm. Research information is being developed to make prediction estimates available to technicians in all parts of the United States.

Soldiers Help Orphanage

Harold Bindel, writing from near Nurnberg, Germany where he is on duty with the army, gives his family, the Frank Bindels, an interesting account of a visit to an orphanage in that area. The boys from his company donate about a hundred dollars a month to help the seventy little orphaned girls in the home and the soldiers take turns visiting the youngsters, taking them candy cars and gum, sometimes putting on a show for them, sometimes being entertained in return. On his visit Harold wore his western clothes and cowboy hat and boots and this, he wrote, was the most fascinating sight in many a day for the children. It was a great delight to see a Texas cowboy for the first time.

Arrives Overseas

Virgil Henscheid has written his family, the Albert Henscheids, of his safe arrival in Germany. He's the last of the four boys who entered the army as a buddy team to be assigned overseas. The other three, Douglas Doughty, Tommy Dankesreiter and Harold Bindel, have been in Germany for some time. They're not together but look forward to seeing each other. Writing from near Kassel where he is stationed, Tommy Dankesreiter tells his family he's learned there are several families of Dankesreiters in that area, and he's going to look them up as soon as he gets a leave. The Muenster family didn't know there were others by that name in Germany. Tommy intends to find out if they are related.

Has 20 Day Leave

Naval Airman Tommy Herr is here from Memphis, Tenn., to spend a 20 day leave with his family, the Frank Herrs.

Homemaking Girls Take Summer Class

With two weeks of summer classes behind them, about 20 high school girls are entering the final week of their vacation homemaking courses. Mrs. H. H. Homsley is giving instructions in clothes construction, leather craft and glass etching. Next week's lessons will include stone and plastics. Classes are held from 8 to 11 and from 1 to 5 every day.

When they finish 30 hours of classroom work plus 70 hours of work at home the girls will have earned a half credit in homemaking. Some of the students already have accumulated hours for work at home for sewing, food preservation and interior decorating.

Mrs. Homsley said the final summer session will be a class for adults if enough are interested. Since several women have expressed a desire for a home nursing course she is hopeful of having this class, probably the last week of this month. Adults interested in a shortcourse on home nursing are invited to let Mrs. Homsley know as soon as possible.

Red Cross Senior Life Saving Class Will Start Tuesday

Arrangements to teach the standard Red Cross senior course in life saving are under way now and the first meeting of the class will be held next Tuesday at 9 o'clock.

L. B. Bruns, who will be assisted by Dan Hamric in teaching the class, said the schedule for the course will be worked out at the time of the registration.

This course, Bruns explained, is a step toward establishing a beginners' swimming class a few weeks later . . . in addition to the benefits each student will receive personally. Those who pass the course will be qualified to act as assistants in teaching the beginners. Bruns and Hamric, who have Red Cross Instructor certificates are qualified to conduct the beginners class.

To be eligible for the senior life saving course a person must be 16 or older and must be a strong swimmer. Those who have passed the Red Cross Junior Life Saving Course are automatically eligible if they are old enough.

Divine Providence Nuns Inspect M&S Hospital Facilities

A glimmer of hope for improvement in Cooke County's hospital situation appeared Tuesday when three Sisters of the Order of Divine Providence of San Antonio made an inspection tour of the M&S Hospital in Gainesville.

The order, which operates a number of hospitals, sent the trio here on an invitation from Father E. J. Gerlich of St. Mary's Church.

Identity of the person or persons planning to reopen the hospital was not disclosed. Also undisclosed is the opinion of the inspecting Sisters. It will be revealed later in a report from the order's mother house.

Scratching Causes Most of the Harm In Chigger Bites

If you're like most people, you hate chiggers!

Red bugs, as some persons call them, are those tiny, almost invisible mites that frequent grass lawns (especially Bermuda) tall weeds, and other grassy areas such as undergrowth in wooded sections.

They are usually a light red or tan color. While a hungry adolescent, this pernicious little parasite can send strong men into spasms of itching misery, and into fits of scratching.

The mite itself does not cause much harm; however, scratching will. Infection can result causing painful boils and leaving a scar. In some areas of the world they are believed carriers

Parish Collection Sunday Nets $270 For Cemetery Fund

Last Sunday's semi annual collection for the Sacred Heart Cemetery Fund netted $270.76. Of that $238.91 was deposited by Mrs. Tony Gremminger, co-chairman of the cemetery committee of the Muenster Civic League and Garden Club and $31.85 has been reported by Mrs. Steve Mosler, treasurer.

Additional donations can still be submitted by persons who did not have an opportunity to give last Sunday. The money will be gratefully accepted by Mrs. Gremminger at the bank.

The contributions will boost the cemetery fund's current bank balance to $922. Present plans, as favored by the Garden Club at its meeting Monday night, are to apply about $500 toward payment of a new sidewalk from the cemetery entrance to the crucifix at the center. That will leave $422 for labor and the normally heavy summer water bill to maintain the cemetery until the next semi annual collection in November.

Strictly speaking the fund is somewhat lower, Mrs. Gremminger said. When checks for last month's bills are cleared the balance will be about $850 and the available maintenance fund about $350.

The cemetery committee also has another small source of income . . . commissions on Christmas Card sales. All who are willing to help the cemetery committee in this way are urged to see Mrs. Ted Gremminger.

Council Considers Opening New Street

The method of providing access to the extreme northwest limits of the city will probably be decided during the next few weeks . . . following a study authorized by the city at its meeting Monday night.

The problem is whether to open Ninth Street, at the north city limit, or a county road just beyond the west city limit leading to the FM road north of town.

A passage is needed because of the isolation of people in that area during extra wet weather. Back water from the Weinzapfel reservoir covers the road after heavy rains.

Swim Pool Starts Weekly Races for Children Under 15

Swimming races for boys and girls under 15 will become a weekly feature at the Muenster swimming pool starting next Tuesday.

Pool Manager L. B. Bruns said the purpose is to encourage better swimming practices as well as to provide an interesting event for the youngsters.

It will be conducted in three divisions, the winner of each to receive a free pass which will be good at the pool any day during the remainder of the week, except on Sunday. The divisions are 10 years of age and under, 11 and 12 years, and 13 and 14 years. Each division includes both boys and girls.

There will be no fee other than the regular admission charge to the pool. Races will start at 3 o'clock. Winners will not be eligible to compete the following week.

J. B. 'Buster' Pace Of Gainesville Dies

J. B. "Buster" Pace, 53, Cooke County native and well known Gainesville business man died suddenly Wednesday morning at 6:50 at his home on Highway 77 a mile south of Gainesville. He had been suffering with heart trouble for some time.

Pace is well known here as co-owner of the Pace Brothers Dodge and Plymouth agency in Gainesville for many years. Since quitting the auto agency in the mid-forties he has operated an auto loan and refinancing business. He also had extensive ranching and oil business.

Funeral services will be conducted Friday at 10 a.m. at Geo. Carroll and Son Chapel and burial will be in Fairview Cemetery.

Muenster Baptist Church is still without a pastor but not without services. The Rev. Gregory from Buckner Orphans Home is serving as supply pastor and the schedule of Sunday services is unchanged.

Garden Club Will Build New Sidewalk In Parish Cemetery

A new sidewalk for Sacred Heart Cemetery was assured Monday night at a meeting of the Muenster Civic League and Garden Club. It will extend from the entrance to the crucifixion group at the center of the cemetery, replacing the old, badly deteriorated sidewalk which has served there about 40 years. Like the other it will be 8 feet wide and about 275 feet long.

The total cost of the project, including removal of the old sidewalk, was quoted by Mrs. A. A. Otto, co-chairman of the cemetery committee, at about $950. The exact figure will be decided after the exact dimension is determined.

The financing plan, as explained at the meeting, is to use the $169 remaining in the special fund for permanent improvements, the amount left after the cemetery's new fence was paid, and to take $500 out of the general fund. That would leave $300 or less to be paid when more money is available.

Katy Bridge Fire Causes 24 Hr. Halt In Local Service

The complete absence of train service at Muenster Wednesday can be charged against a fire which damaged a bridge during the previous night between Gainesville and Lindsay.

Given priority because of current heavy freight traffic to handle wheat shipments from West Texas and Oklahoma, the bridge was put back in use within 24 hours.

The combination mail and passenger car which comes through twice daily was relieved Wednesday by a truck.

NEWS OF SICK AND INJURED

Herman Stoffels is a patient at Veterans Hospital in McKinney since Monday for X-rays and observation. He's in Ward 64.

Earl Koelzer was dismissed early this week from Gainesville Sanitarium and Lawrence Milner is to be dismissed this weekend following treatment for injuries received in an oil rig accident near Sadler last Saturday. Both were hurt when oil well machinery blew up. Earl was struck by a piece of iron which inflicted a deep gash on his side. It took 15 stitches to close the wound. Lawrence got a sliver of steel in his right eye and had surgery Sunday. He has been kept in complete darkness and it is almost certain the vision will not be impaired. Earl is convalescing at home and will be kept off the job for about another week. Both men are employed by Leo J. Haverkamp Well Service.

Joe Bezner Jr. of Lindsay entered Gainesville Sanitarium Monday after becoming ill on the job at Schad and Pulte. He is said to have suffered a heart attack.

Danny Voth, two and a half year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Voth, is recovering from a broken collar bone. He sustained the fracture Thursday in a fall and has his right shoulder in a brace.

From Chicago comes word that Eddie Morrison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Morrison, is recovering from a tonsillectomy and a rhinotomy which, under the circumstances, was quite a serious operation. The Morrison family formerly lived in Muenster.

Mrs. Conrad Jostwerner has almost recovered from a serious eye ailment that kept her a shut-in for almost two weeks—except for regular trips to an eye specialist for treatment. During the past week her vision returned almost to normal and she helped out at her brother's Tony Fleitman, where most of the family was sick with mumps.

Mrs. Mary Schmitz of Valley View has been dismissed from Gainesville Sanitarium after five days of medical care.

From Orange, Texas, comes word that Mrs. Byron Sears is doing fine following major surgery in Galveston and is convalescing at the home of her son and family, the Tom Sears. Her address for greeting cards is 414 Crepe Myrtle Street, Orange, Texas.

Prolonged Dryness Is Fine for Grain, Bad for Corn Crop

Fading prospects for corn and other growing crops this week are casting their shadow over this community's extra fine grain crop. The dry hot weather, which is just right for harvesting, is not good for row crops, alfalfa and pasture.

Reports on the condition of these crops vary. Some observers claim that corn is not hurt yet, others that the crop has already been severely damaged. All seem to be agreed, however, that a good two to three inch soaker would do wonders for the community. Such a rain, if followed by clear weather would retard the harvest only a few days and would cause practically no damage to the grain.

With the combining season just getting well started it is apparent now that wheat in this area is well above average and oats is somewhat below average. This reverses the predictions of several weeks ago when farmers expected extra good oats and mediocre wheat.

Average yields of wheat, according to early reports are between 20 and 25 bushels per acre and the test is usually 60 or higher. Better yields, with an average near 30 and some fields as high as 40, are reported in the south part of the county.

Oats in the Muenster area is generally reported at 40 to 50 bushels per acre.

One surprise about the current harvest is its slowness in reaching peak speed. Up to Wednesday receipts at both local elevators were scattered, far less than can be expected from the good crops and dry weather. Farmers report that grain is not ready in spots of many fields and they are waiting to do the entire fields rather than cut them in patches. Favored by weeks of clear weather they are up with their work and apparently unworried.

Prior to the present combining this community enjoyed an (Continued on Page 10)

Help Keep Broken Glass out of Park

A special plea to help keep broken glass off the lawns of the city park was made this week by City Manager Steve Mosler. The trouble, he said, is caused by picnickers who carelessly discard bottles in the park.

One of those was not discovered in time and was shattered by the power lawn mower. City employees spent a lot of time picking up fragments but are certain that they did not find all of them.

For the sake of children, most of whom come to the park barefooted, Mosler asked all to help keep broken glass out of the park. Picnic groups are reminded that trash cans are provided for their convenience. If each group will properly dispose of its own bottles, cans and trash the park can be kept neater and safer.

Building And Improvement Notes

The Joe Lehnertz home is getting a major remodeling and renovating job featuring lots of built-ins and cabinets for the kitchen, changes in room arrangements, new wall paper throughout and a new roof.

A similar project of extensive remodeling and some additions has been finished on the Charles Davidson house northeast of town.

J. H. Otto's house, in the city, and J. D. Walker's north of town, have new outside paint jobs.

A new roof is finished on Mrs. J. S. Horn's house. Four evaporative coolers with a total capacity of 32,500 cubic feet per minute have made a big change in the temperature at the Muenster Livestock Auction. Two units of 10,500 CFM each are serving the big auction arena, a 7,500 CFM unit cools the cafe and a 4,000 CFM unit cools the office.

Also trying to beat the heat, as well as to prevent fading of merchandise in his window displays, Anthony Luke has installed roll awning at the front of his Variety Store. They'll be used in the early mornings to keep the sun from blazing through the big plate glass front. Luke expects to eliminate all the fading and some of the load on his air conditioner.

Signs like this, tested near Washington, D.C., helped the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads pick the best signs for the 41,000-mile interstate highway system. In a public test, drivers voted for green reflective signs with white letters. Both color and message are reflected brightly after dark. The Bureau approved the choice and adopted the reflective signs as standard for all interstate roads.

The teacher believed in giving her class lessons in general knowledge.

"What is this?" she asked one day, holding up a small object. "A pay envelope," replied Freddie.

"Good," exclaimed the teacher.

"And what came in it?" "Money for your wages," answered Freddie.

"Good," said the teacher. "Are there any questions?"

"Please tell us, teacher," said Jane. "Where do you work?"

The Sting
An old farm laborer, retired, was hired by a wealthy but extremely parsimonious old lady to tend her garden and pull up all the weeds. When dinner time came around he noted with disgust that the only fare on the table, in addition to stale bread, a smidgen of butter, and tea, was a tiny spot of honey in the middle of a large plate. After eating in silence for some moments, he looked hard at the honey and remarked politely to her: "I see, ma'am, you keep a bee."

Patty Herr, Bride Of Don Wilson in Nuptial Mass Here

Irene Patricia Herr and Walter Donald Wilson exchanged marriage vows Saturday in Sacred Heart church with Rev. Bruno Fuhrmann officiating at the nuptial high mass and double ring ceremony at 5:30 p.m.
 Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. John F. Herr and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. (Nig) Wilson.
 Escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father Patty wore a lovely waltz length dress of white rosepoint Chantilly lace and nylon tulle over satin. Hand-clipped scallops of lace accented the oval neckline and edged the short sleeves. The wide skirt with its double layers of tulle was ornamented with hand-clipped lace medallions embroidered with sequins. Full length gauntlets of tulle came to points over her hands and were finished with hand-clipped lace. She wore an elbow length circular veil and sequin tiara and carried an arm bouquet of white carnations. The bride and her mother designed and made her wedding costume.

Lois Owen, maid of honor, and Kathy Pagel, bridesmaid, wore waltz length bouffants of blue tulle over taffeta designed with short sleeves and wide cummerbunds. Their blue tiaras matched their dresses and they carried blue fans covered with daisies.
 Richard Herr, brother of the bride, was best man and Grady Reed was groomsmen. Tommy Herr, cousin of the bride, and Pat Hess ushered.
 Anthony Luke, organist, and the Sacred Heart choir furnished music for the mass. Mr. Luke played the processional and recessional and was accompanist for Mrs. Elbert Lee Vance of Hereford, aunt of the bride, who was soloist. She sang "O Perfect Love" by Barnby as a pre-nuptial selection; "Ave Maria" by Rosewig at the offertory, and "Mother at Your Feet" after mass when the bride placed a bouquet on the Blessed Virgin's altar.
 Mrs. Herr attended her daughter's wedding in a mint green dress with white accessories and Mrs. Wilson, mother of the groom, wore a light blue with navy accessories. The groom's grandmother, Mrs. Hattie Burk of Myra, wore navy blue with navy accessories. The three had white carnation corsages.
 A reception in the Muenster High gymnasium was attended by about 200 guests. Mrs. Ben Luke and Mrs. R. R. Endres, aunts of the bride, and Jeanette Burk of Denison, cousin of the groom, served the wedding cake and classmates of the bride poured punch. Ann Luke and Joanie Herr, cousins, registered the guests.

A ONCE PROUD NATION

The disgraceful treatment the second highest American official, Vice President Richard Nixon, received in South America is a pretty fair barometer of how our once proud nation has lost prestige and dignity in the world today.

And in such a short time, too.

Following World War II, the United States was automatically placed in the lofty position of the world's leading nation. Our productive power, our ingenuity and initiative, our know-how and our wealth had impressed the people of the world. Our boys in uniform, who had not been trained from childhood as warriors, proved great ability to adjust rapidly to become soldiers, sailors, flyers, coast guardsmen and fighting Marines. They committed themselves admirably against seasoned enemy troops.

We came out of World War II, as we have in all wars before, with glory, honor and prestige.

But we lost our place in the sun with phenomenal rapidity. We lost it across the conference table. We lost it in military strategy. The Russians hornswoggled us out of capturing and occupying Germany. Russia outwitted us by jumping into the Japanese debacle, which gave them the vital foot in the door in China. Then in the Korean war we let Russia bluff us into a disgraceful stalemate.

We lost face in the Orient.

This gave comfort and aid to Russia and the Chinese Communist. Then we lost our historic friend, China, to the Red menace.

We have become a nation of compromise and appeasement. A nation that is afraid . . . afraid of its own shadow. When not too long ago people of the world held the United States in such awe and respect that the lowliest job in the U. S. Navy was assured of sanctity and protection while on shore leave in any country in the world. But today the second highest official in our nation is stoned and spat upon while visiting supposedly friendly countries.

Sure blame it on the Communists. That's always a convenient way to shrug off our own shortcomings. And of course we're quite sure communism had a big part in investigating these incidents. But if our heart, our character, and our internal morals were right, Communism or anything else would not have any effect.

Let's face the facts. We're decaying internally and unless we put a halt to it, we, like all once great nations of history, will continue to disintegrate.

Our welfare state, lavish spending centralized all powerful government, inflation, shoddy politics and deviation from principles of our founding fathers have contributed to our internal moral shortcomings. Exorbitant taxes, infringement on our individual liberties, government competition with free enterprise, government support of politically powerful labor leaders, and a killing of initiative on the part of us all has had its moral effect.

On the domestic front our di-

voice rate, juvenile delinquency, crime, drunkenness, glorifying unsavory motion picture and television stars, all have contributed to our moral decline. When actress Ingrid Bergman can violate all the laws of God and man and still be glorified, or when the 13-year old daughter of Lana Turner knives and kills her mother's illicit lover, and wins additional fame and an avalanche of new customers for her old movies, it proves our moral slip is showing.

So is it any wonder that mobs of other countries show disrespect for our country, especially when we're failing to show respect for our own fundamental way of life?

ERA OF 'GOOF-OFFS' AND HALF-DONE JOBS MUST END SOON

No truer words were ever spoken than those voiced the other day by one of the nation's top advertising men when he said the U. S. is going through the "great era of the goof-off, the age of the half-done job."

The speaker was Charles Brower, president of the Batten, Barton, Durstine and Orsborn advertising agency, and the place was Washington, D.C., where Mr. Brower addressed the convention of the National Sales Executive organization.

"The land from coast to coast has been enjoying a stampede away from responsibility," the advertising executive said. "It is populated with laundry men who won't iron shirts, with waiters who won't serve, with carpenters who will come around someday maybe, with executives whose mind is on the golf course, with teachers who demand a single salary schedule so that achievement cannot be rewarded . . . with students who take cinch courses."

The result of this "great era of the goof-off and the age of the half-done job" is plain to see on all sides. It is reflected in automobiles so shabbily put together their owners spend half their time taking them in to correct faults that would never have appeared if the assembly job had been done right to begin with at the factory. It is reflected in new homes that sag, crack or warp right off the bat because somebody in the building process didn't care how he did his job, or tried to cut corners on the materials he used. It is reflected in scores of other products on the market today whose workmanship and ability to stand up under hard use are a poor testimonial to the genius behind our American productive system.

In the field of personal services the situation is even worse. We see salesmen who don't even know the product they are trying to sell and don't seem to care. We have doctors, lawyers and other professional men whose first concern seems to be the size of the fee they can charge rather than the welfare of the patient or client they are supposed to serve. We have domestic servants, yardmen, repairmen and people in scores of other occupations who are far more interested in just getting a job done rather than making sure it is done right.

Why is all this happening? We think the answer boils down to the fact that the nation as a whole is fast-losing the sense of pride it once had for individual accomplishment. Instead, we are now becoming a nation of conformists with our working speed and skill tailored to match that of the least skillful and the slowest producer.

Our labor unions have contributed greatly to this situation. When rates of pay become standardized what incentive is there for a really good carpenter, for instance, to do any better job than a wood-butcher he might be working next to and who gets the same pay as he does? What incentive is there for a good stone mason to perform at his top efficiency when in so doing he will only bring down on his head the wrath of fellow masons who can't do as good a job and who, therefore, want all masons reduced to the same output each day so they won't be shown up for the poor craftsmen they are? Why should anybody, in fact, strive for greater skills and greater efficiency in a nation where mediocrity is so well-rewarded and real accomplishment so heavily-penalized?

There's good reason why so

DAD HEADS THE FAMILY

By Pat and Patty Crowley, Secretary Couple of the Christian Family Movement

In 1910, Mrs. John Dodd of Spokane, Washington, started the celebration of Father's Day. What she did and why she did it are unknown to us. It was appropriate, however, that a wife should inaugurate the day to honor husbands. We suspect that the father will be restored to his proper place in the family only through the mutual efforts of his spouse.

The Crowleys

IN THE CHRISTIAN tradition, the proper role of the father is set forth by Saint Paul as similar to that of Christ with His Church. Thus he taught that wives should be subject to their husbands in all things in harmony with right reason.

Unfortunately, the father's role as head of the house is not too well established in American society. Some explain that the economic system takes the father out of the home too much of the time; others even blame woman suffrage and assorted other causes; but most people agree, at least in theory, that it should be changed so that Pop will be the head man.

THE FATHER should be the moral, spiritual, intellectual head of the house. If he is acting in this capacity, he is only acting in accordance with his nature, with his talents. For he has the God-given roles of providing and protecting. These are duties unsuited for the wife, especially as the mother of children.

The husband stands in the place of God, Whom we know to be a loving Father. With an authority derived from God, he leads his family, keeping in mind their dignity. Wives are always glad to have this type of leadership, not a dictatorial leadership, but a leadership, through love, affection and service.

FREQUENTLY DAD, because of his numerous heavy responsibilities, doesn't always measure up to his role as head of the household. In these difficult times, the wife can do much to restore harmony to the home. St. Augustine, for example, tells in his Confessions how his mother, Monica, put up with her hot-tempered, difficult husband, his father. Instead of gossiping, as many other women did, about the way her husband behaved, she remained quiet and remembered the words of the matrimonial contract by which she promised to serve. Monica won her husband over through love and kindness, highlighting the fact that a wife who merely lets her husband "think he is the head" really has a false understanding of the nature of marriage.

If the father attains his position as the real head of the house, he and the wife can proceed united in seeking the great blessings and happiness of married life. The children will realize that they are to follow him, developing themselves intellectually, culturally and morally, in the religious virtues—after the example of him who is meant to be a symbol of their heavenly Father.

many of our top executives are more interested in playing golf than staying at their desks. Once any man in this nation today reaches a certain salary level, and it isn't too high a level, either, he soon finds that the tax collectors will get far more out of every extra dollar he might earn than he can keep for himself. So why work and why strive for extra dollars when the prime beneficiary of this extra work and effort is a wasteful government too long dedicated to the principle of penalizing the industrious for the benefit of the wastrel?

When government adopts the practice of paying farmers for not producing; when it encourages idleness by putting unemployment benefits on a "dole" basis, and when it takes the tax money of hard-working Americans to boost the living standards and reduce the taxes of foreigners, then it is no great wonder this once proud nation of ours is in the sad shape that it is in today.

A lot of people have been deluded into believing that this era of the "goof-off and the half-done job" can be stretched out interminably with no harm done. Union leaders are even now dreaming of a 30-hour week with 40 hours of pay. It makes a nice dream, to be sure, but somebody had to foot the bill and once everybody joins the "goof-off and half-done job" parade where are the suckers going to be found who are willing to foot such a bill?

Ten Year Sales of Push Button Cans Pass Billion Mark

This pampered nation is beginning to regard Aladdin as a hardship case! In order to get what he wanted he had to suffer the exertion of rubbing that lamp — when all present day Americans have to do is press the button. The sale of a billion aerosol containers over the past ten years — and dispensing a rapidly growing list of household and personal needs and luxuries — has ushered in what you might call the Index Finger Age — when a single digit is mightier than a pair of hands! In 1960, we are told, the Finger will release a billion dollars worth of almost everything you can think of except corn-on-the-cob. Today, the GI who used the first "aerosol bug-bomb" in fighting off the murderous vermin and insects of South Pacific jungles can use the perfected device in shaving, brushing his teeth, shining his shoes, doing his household painting or lubricating his car or his fishing reels. For his wife it now provides all manner of cosmetics, even to perfumes and dusting powders; glass, metal, leather, rug and upholstery cleaners as well as waxes and polishes. A wide variety of insecticides and room deodorants are aerosol-propelled, and even a preparation for de-smelling the family dog. If one of the kids cuts himself, an aerosol will spray on a bandage, or if an adhesive bandage is to be removed, another one will dissolve the stickum. Medicines put up in aerosol containers with recently devised metering valves insure accurate dosage, will put an end some day to the time-honored question: "How much is a teaspoonful?"

Tomorrow, the biggest advance is expected on the food front. With aerosol, Mother will ice a cake in technicolor, produce ice cream sundaes for Junior's birthday party in endless colors and flavors — including the chopped nuts! She'll spray his cereal — complete with sugar and cream — into his cereal bowl, squirt batter into the waffle iron and onto the pancake griddle. Salad dressings, mustard, cheese, sandwich spreads will be aerosol-dispensed. Even catsup will be free-flowing at last!

As for father, when he's ready for a coffee break he will need only to get a cup of hot water (just hot enough to suit his tongue, not boiling) and add a squirt from the container in his bottom desk drawer. It will be black or include premixed sugar and cream, as he wishes.

Omar Khayyam said: "The moving finger writes . . ." What a shock he'd be in for today!

Garden Club Ends Season with Films And Social Monday

One of the most interesting and entertaining meetings of the year was the Civic League and Garden Club's June session Monday night in the home of Mrs. Joe Luke with Mrs. Dan Luke as co-hostess. It was the organization's final meeting of the season and included business, a program of colored slides, a social hour and refreshments. Mrs. T. S. Myrick presided and 22 members attended.

The business session was held in the outdoor living room and members returned to the house for the program and refreshments.

Committee reports revealed activity on several fronts. Mrs. Nick Miller, park chairman, told of the recent cleanup at Memorial Park which was weeded, mowed and watered. Mrs. J. M. Weinzapfel discussed highway beautification, Mrs. Lee Toothaker gave a conservation report and Mrs. Tony Gremminger gave the cemetery report.

The annual Memorial Day collection for cemetery maintenance brought in $238.91 at the church and several persons who forgot their donation then have said they will contribute. Any amount will be gratefully accepted by Mrs. Gremminger at the Bank.

An urgently need improvement at the cemetery is a new walk in the center and this was a topic for discussion.

When Mrs. Toothaker gave her report she listed six wild flowers on the conservation list. They are the Texas Blue Bonnet, Texas Star, Bluebell, Mountain Pink, Indian Paintbrush and Shooting Star. Conservation law prohibits the picking of these flowers.

Members answered roll call by telling their favorite program during the past year and gave suggestions for next year's program. This will guide Mrs. Edd McGannon and her yearbook committee in this summer's planning of the program for the coming year.

The colored slides were highly entertaining since they presented local scenes and local people in their flower yards, highlights of local flower shows and the Christmas parades. Also scenes of the Bellingrath Gardens in Mobile, Ala., and the Camillia Show in Shreveport, La. The films belong to Mrs. Joe Luke and Mrs. T. S. Myrick.

The refreshment table was covered with a lace cloth, hand crocheted by Mrs. Joe Luke, over pink taffeta and held the crystal punch service, pink frosted cake squares, pink ice cream, mints and nuts. Mrs. R. N. Fette assisted the hostesses in serving.

Floral arrangements in the Luke home consisted of Irish Bells, pink roses and day lilies on the refreshment table, red gladioli on the mantle and a seashore arrangement with white gardenias, magnolia blossoms and sea shells on the coffee table.

Mary Ann Kubicek Wilfred J. Luttmner Wed at Valley View

In St. John's church at Valley View Mary Ann Kubicek became the bride of Wilfred J. Luttmner Saturday afternoon in a four o'clock ceremony with the pastor Rev. Anthony Gajda officiating at the double ring ceremony and nuptial high mass.

The bride is the daughter of Mr and Mrs. John Kubicek of Valley View and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Luttmner of Muenster.

Mary Ann wore a white lace dress over satin. It was scalloped at the neckline and at the hemline of the bouffant skirt. Long sleeves tapered to points over her hands. A crown of seed pearls held her elbow length veil and she carried a white orchid surrounded by pink carnations on a white prayerbook. Her father gave her in marriage.

The bride's three sisters were her attendants. Bertha Kubicek was maid of honor and Rosa and Dorothy Kubicek were bridesmaids. They wore identical dresses of pink net and taffeta with matching headpieces and mitts and carried white daisies.

Alfred Luttmner was best man for his brother and Johnny Kubicek, brother of the bride, and Kenneth Neu were groomsmen. Frank Neu and John Kuntz were ushers.

Kay Neu and the church choir furnished the wedding music and white gladioli and daisies decorated the altar.

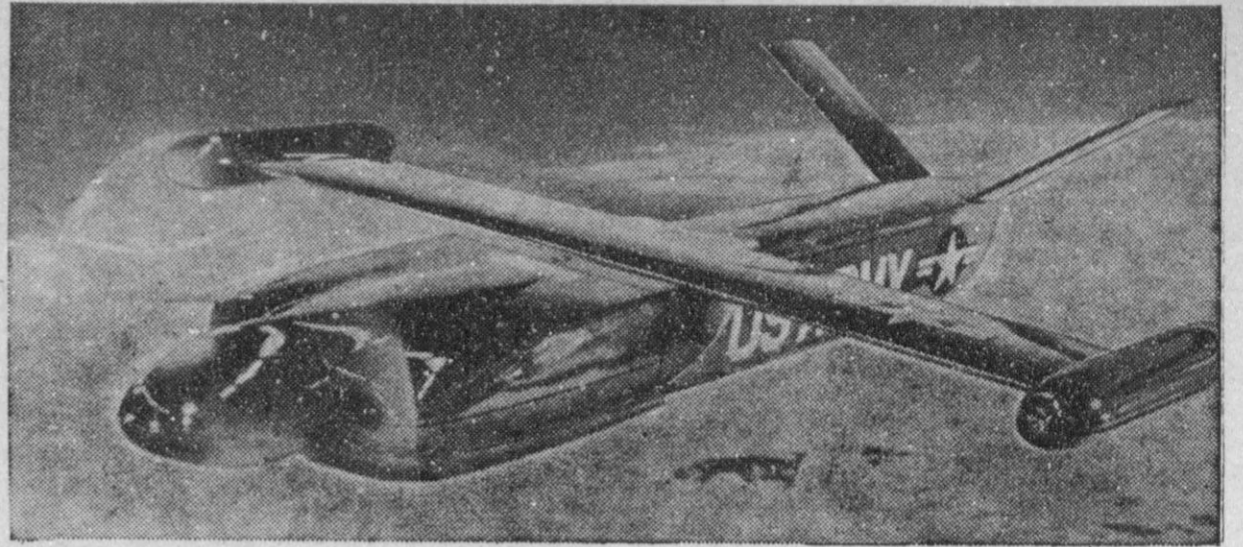

After the service a reception, and buffet supper with Mrs. Joe Lehnertz catering, was held in the Muenster parish hall. About 250 relatives and friends were guests. Dolores Grewing and Betty Rose Kupper presided at the bride's book. Mrs. Henry Spaeth served the wedding cake.

Mrs. Kubicek attended her daughter's wedding in a cocoa brown linen dress and Mrs. Luttmner, mother of the groom, wore navy blue linen. Their corsages were of white carnations.

When Mr. and Mrs. Luttmner return from their honeymoon they will make their home on the Dennis lease south of town. He works for Powell Oil Company.

About 40 members of the Third Order of St. Francis attended the monthly prayer service in Sacred Heart church Sunday afternoon. After recitation of the office Mrs. Edd McGannon, secretary, read a short explanation of the order's benefits for information to new members and Mrs. Leo Henscheid gave a spiritual reading entitled "The Papal Challenge," relating to the Franciscan way of life.

The U. S. Army uses about 188,000 yards of diapers a year.

A Texan and a Kentuckian were arguing. "Why we've got enough gold in Kentucky to build a gold fence six feet high around the whole State of Texas." "You just do that, son," replied the Texan, "and if we like it . . . we'll buy it."

Chore Study Shows Larger Dairy Herds Allow Labor Savings

College Station — Dairy farming is and has been one of the biggest consumers of labor among all farm operations. Currently, says A. M. Meekma, extension dairy husbandman, it takes 52 man-hours of labor on a dairy farm to produce $100 worth of product. This compares with 22 man-hours to produce a like amount of product from beef cattle and 13 man-hours to produce $100 worth of broilers.

Meekma reports that a study made by research economists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the University of Minnesota showed that 129 man-hours on the average were required to care for a cow in a 10-cow herd, while a 30-cow herd required only about 80 hours per cow.

In the study made in southern Minnesota where the year is divided into a 29-week winter barn period and a 23-week summer period, 23.7 man-hours are needed weekly in summer and 35.2 man-hours in winter for a 15-cow herd. For a 20-cow herd, the labor requirements are 27.9 and 41.6 man-hours weekly for the respective periods.

In the summer, an extra cow above 15 required .83 hours of care each week. Well over half of this time was needed for milking. Meekma points out that one means of saving time is to use a milking parlor, which also makes possible the installation of a pipeline milker at a much lower cost than in a stanchion barn.

Another chance to cut labor in the summer, says the specialist, appears to be in connection with field work. The use of hay balers, choppers, combines and other mechanical equipment will speed up the harvesting jobs and do them with less labor.

The best bet for reducing total labor required in winter, believes Meekma, is the use of such labor-saving devices as silo unloaders, gutter cleaners and the storage of baled hay near the feeding racks.

Finally, says the specialist, Texas dairymen should study their own operations with the labor-saving objective in mind. Records can be a big help in making such studies, he says.

What's Behind
Your Newspapers

Any reader or advertiser who might be inclined to take for granted an adequate supply of paper and the printing and distribution facilities required to get newspapers before the eyes of America is in for a surprise at the armies of people, the huge sums of money and the vast natural resources that are devoted to his service.

Publishers of US newspapers paid out nearly a billion dollars in 1957 for paper alone — almost six-and-a-half million tons of newsprint according to the study just released by the Newsprint Information Committee. Of this enormous acreage of printing surface, the lion's share — well over half — was used by advertisers to satisfy public interest in information about available goods and services.

To produce the newsprint required for advertising space alone, the Committee estimates, 26,000 men worked for a year in woodlands and mills, harvesting and processing an estimated 75 million trees representing the annual regrowth from thousands of square miles of forests. To do this staggering job, the mills themselves called into play production facilities having a replacement value of one-and-one-third billions of dollars!

These are mighty impressive totals, any way you slice 'em. And at this time when we are more aware than ever of the importance of continuing to buy the things we need and the things we'd like to have, the Committee's survey brings into sharp focus the vital role of the newspaper — and the industries that support it — in our interdependent national economy.

Next time an ad prompts you to buy staples or equipment or luxuries — a can of beans, a new can-opener, the catsup or a carload of feed, a combine, a deluxe fishing rod — it should be interesting to reflect that you are helping to pay the wages of lumberjacks, timber cruisers, paper mill hands, railroad men, sailors and truckers as well as the slaves here at home who get the paper out.

of disease, but in the U. S., there is no such proven danger. It is the scratching which causes all the trouble. Gross infection can bring on general bodily disturbances, fever, and loss of sleep caused by forced periods of scratching during the night. Animals, birds and domestic fowl suffer from chiggers also, even snakes are not immune.

The severe itching occurs when the chigger, in its efforts to feed, injects an anti-coagulant material to melt the skin layers so that he may feed. They do not burrow into the skin as commonly believed — they merely feed themselves and drop off, but the itching stays on.

They congregate in tight areas such as sleeves, belt lines and neck. You can protect yourself by the application of a suitable repellent to these critical areas whenever you are about to enter a suspected chigger-infested area.

If this fails, there are known palliatives to soothe the itching such as baking soda solution, ammonia water and alcohol.

Chiggers are impossible to control except in cleared areas such as lawns, greens, camp sites, and picnic grounds where the ground may be mowed closely.

For these areas, a treatment of five percent chlordane or toxaphene dust is effective at the rate of 40 to 50 pounds per acre (1 to 1 1/4 pounds per 1,000 square feet), and lindane dust of one percent concentration (10 ounces or more per 1,000 square feet.) Sprays may be substituted. All are dangerous to people!

Fifty to 70 gallons per acre, following the mixing directions on the label, is usually sufficient (1 1/2 to 2 pounds per 1,000 square feet).

Bear in mind the dangers in the use of the dusts or sprays — use caution and put them away safely. Remember, insecticides can kill; chiggers only itch.

Erosion by wind and water robs farmers each year of about $400,000,000 in decreased land values, lower crop yields and reduced income.

Prolonged Dryness

exceptionally good hay harvest. Balers also had nice weather to get in one of this community's best crops ever.

The general result is that farmers, with a good supply of feed in the barn, are looking forward to a nice cash crop. Current wheat prices are about 20 cents under those of last year but that is more than offset by the difference of yield. The '57 wheat crop was mostly drowned out by the heaviest rains on record.

Wheat now is selling for $1.70 on the open market. The government loan price is quoted at $1.83 but costs for insurance, storage, etc., bring that figure down to a net of $1.69. Assured of that much as a bottom figure farmers have an opportunity to put the grain in storage and make a profit if the price goes up. But most of them are selling. With the biggest crop ever reported in Oklahoma and Kansas, they do not expect the price to rise.

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

OUR SOIL ★ OUR STRENGTH

In the Muenster-Saint Jo area of the Upper-Elm Red Soil Conservation district, many ranchers have begun resting a part of their pasture grasses by removing cattle and other livestock from one or more of the fields.

"Improvement in growing vigor, thickness of stand and increased forage production of the desirable species of native grasses can be obtained by resting the grass from now until frost. This method of taking only half the grass during season will assure plenty of good winter pasture and more grass in following years," advise local SCS personnel.

Other benefits are also obtained when half the grass is left on the land. A litter is provided to protect the soil from extreme high or extreme low temperatures, the cover protects against erosion, plants reproduce by seed and underground roots, more water is caught and absorbed by the soil, the fertility level of the soil is raised through increased organic matter and weeds are kept in check by increased vigor of the deep-rooted grasses.

Some of the farmers and ranchers who are deferring a part of their grazing lands are Al Trubenbach, Dangelmayr Brothers, Hollis Berry, W. P. Luse, C. A. Willis, Ross Littell, Ada Lou Garrett, W. B. Calhoun and Olin Merritt.

As grain and hay crops are removed from the fields the terracing season begins in the Muenster area. Rains last fall and this spring have left scars on the land and piles of silt at the bottom of sloping fields to show where terraces are needed. If washes appeared in the field, terraces are needed.

Terraces are built to break long slopes into short slopes and to remove excess water from the field slowly so that soil loss does not occur. By modern methods and machines terraces can be constructed so they can be farmed with modern machinery.

Agriculture Conservation Program cost share benefits this year are three cents per linear foot of field terraces. Landowners can build terraces at a very low cost this year. Now is the time to build those needed terraces to save the precious topsoil that is left. Contact your local Soil Conservation Service for assistance in layout of the terrace system.

H. J. Fuhrman started the terracing ball rolling by constructing more than a half mile of broad easy-to-cross channel type terraces on his farm east of Muenster. These terraces will complete the terracing system on the field and outlet onto pasture grasses which were planted to provide a safe outlet area.

completed construction of ponds for livestock water on their farms northeast of Saint Jo. These ponds will furnish water in pastures that were separated from the other sources of water by the new farm-to-market road under construction. The new ponds will enable the landowners to manage their grass properly by rotation grazing of the different pastures to allow the grass to rest at least a part of each growing season.
