

James T. Sparks Seeks Election As State Senator

Rep. James T. Sparks of Sherman, Grayson County, was the first candidate to enter the race for State Senator. He is 30 years old and is married. Both he and his wife are natives of Grayson County and the Ninth District.

Physically handicapped since the age of 13, Sparks has overcome his handicap through hard work and determination. As filling clerk and statistician and by working in a real estate office, he earned every penny of his expenses at The University of Texas. He also found time to be a member of the Student Assembly, the legislative body for University students. Government was his major course of study. Disease had left Jim Sparks a cripple 8 years before World War II. Rejected for military service, he was advised to go back to school. Instead, he got a job as a teletype operator at Perrin Air Force Base, near Sherman. Two months later he was Asst. Purchasing Agent and then was made Chief of the Purchasing Department at Altus Air Base, Altus, Oklahoma. For nearly two years he did news editing and radio announcing with Radio Stations KRRV, Sherman-Denison; KAND, Corsicana; and KSKY, Dallas.

Rep. Sparks first went to the Texas Legislature in 1945 from Grayson County. He was the youngest member of the Legislature that session. He was re-elected in 1946 and again in 1948, each time over opposition. In his last race, he received his greatest total number of votes, winning 53 of 59 boxes, splitting one box, and losing 3 by very small margins. He now asks promotion to the State Senate.

Mr. Sparks has always run a clean race. He will conduct himself at all times both before and after election in a manner which will reflect credit upon the people of Muenster and Cooke County, the Ninth District, and himself. Your careful consideration of his candidacy will be appreciated. Pol. Adv.

"As we face our problems today and consider their nature we measure the severity of those problems with the degree that we have drifted away from the simple principles with which we began. We can recognize the degree we have changed when the definition of a liberal is a man in Washington who wants to play the Almighty with our money."—Dwight D. Eisenhower, President, Columbia University.

Oil Reserves Hit New Peak

Proved reserves of crude oil and natural gas liquids reached new highs during 1949, thanks to intensive discovery efforts of the oil industry. By the end of the year, crude reserves showed a net gain of 1,369,045,000 barrels and totaled 24,649,489,000 barrels. Natural gas liquid reserves rose 188,229,000 barrels to reach 3,729,012,000 barrels. This gives the country a proved reserve of liquid hydrocarbons totaling 28,378,501,000 barrels. The oil industry's record in building up the nation's proved oil reserves spikes all rumors that our oil reserves are running out.

"DO AS I SAY, NOT AS I DO"

There came to Harding College in this week's mail an imposing educational kit from our Federal government. It contained seven colorful textbooks and brochures designed to equip teachers to teach school boys and girls and college students how to be thrifty, how to manage money wisely, how to live within one's income. One brochure is an elaborate four-color journal for classroom teachers; and the kit, prepared by the Treasury Department, also contains a book of thrift songs and another with the script for a one-act play on thrift. Upon careful examination I found these teaching aids to be excellent. They offer practical programs of thrift and money management for youngsters. The techniques presented are sound. If utilized in our schools and colleges which are not already stressing thrift, the instructions should be valuable. However, for the Federal government to be undertaking to teach its citizens thrift, sound budgeting, money management and wise spending cannot, under present circumstances, be taken without a grin; and a somewhat sickly grin, at that.

How To Spend Wisely?
 The government's "Lessons in Arithmetic," an excellent thrift text, says: "No matter how well he learns reading, writing and arithmetic, a child will never be able to look out for himself properly unless he also learns how to spend wisely, how to save and what to save for."

From a digest of the Hoover Commission Report: "Government hospital construction costs from $30,000 to $51,000 per bed, compared with $16,000 per bed in privately constructed hospitals . . . and though there are 100,000 empty Government hospital beds, the Government is building new hospitals with 38,000 additional beds." Also from the Hoover Commission: "15,432 V A employees are needed to handle veterans' insurance, one employee for each 450 policies; while in private industry the work load per employee is 1,762 policies."

Good Money Management?
 The government's "Songs for all Grades," has the following lyrics (sung to the tune "I've Been Working On the Railroad"): "We've been saving up our pennies, For a rainy day, We've been being wise and thrifty, By saving them this way."

From the Office of the Budget Director: "Estimated gross public debt outstanding (federal deficit) 1950: $258,400,000,000. 1951: $263,800,000,000. Should the national debt get no bigger and should it have to be paid by our school youngsters of today, the indebtedness would be more than $11,000 on each boy and girl."

The government's "School Savings in the Social Studies," an illustrated text, recommends in its reading list the following "outside" reading: "Wise Spending for Better Living," published by University of Florida; and "How to Live within Your Income," Simon and Schuster.

From the Office of Budget Director: "1950 receipts $37,763,000,000; expenditures $43,297,000,000; deficit for 1950, $5,534,000,000."

Lessons Needed Elsewhere
 The government's "School Savings in the Social Studies" says: "Teach young people to be frugal is no longer enough. They need rather to practice the wise management of their money and other economic resources."

For a digest of the Hoover Commission Report: "The Federal Government spends tax money—your money—at the rate of more than $100,000,000 a day. The Commission found that several million dollars a day is wasted on poor government management."

I heartily endorse a primary objective of these government teaching aids, which is to sell savings stamps and, subsequently, savings bonds to the school children. The Treasury's savings bond program definitely encourages thrift and is one way of financing a portion of the national debt. However, I should like to see the authors of the "thrift" kit publish a special edition for all government officials and department heads, substituting throughout as follows: "Teaching Government officials and department heads (instead of 'young people') to be frugal is no longer enough. They need rather to practice the wise management of the taxpayers (instead of 'their') money and other economic resources of the nation." By their examples, wasteful government spenders are doing more to destroy the virtue of thrift in our young people than all the government's "thrift" teaching aids can repair.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

There it Was— Right in The Middle!

Easy Roberts mowed his lawn early last Saturday. Then he sat on the porch, and watched Handy Peterson cutting his grass.

The Roberts' property and the Peterson's border each other — with no hedge or fence between them. So, when Easy notices Handy had left about a four-foot strip unmowed along the boundary, he walks over and asks why.

"That's your land," says Handy. "Mine ends here. See, it lines up with that oak tree across the road!" Easy didn't think so, so they went up and down looking for the surveyor's marker. Where did they find it? Right in the middle of their "no man's land!"

Well, they both grin and take turns finishing the job and then retreat to Easy's for a friendly glass of beer together. From where I sit, a little searching around for the truth of the matter often shows that the other fellow is as much right as you are—at which point the whole thing doesn't seem as important anyway.

Enjoy Better Telephone Service

Place your calls BY NUMBER . . . NOT BY NAME . . . and get your connection more quickly.

For years it has been the custom on the Muenster telephone system for people to call by name . . . but all the while the operator has been making her connections by number.

WE SIMPLY SAID CALL SO AND SO. BUT THE JOB WASN'T THAT SIMPLE FOR THE GIRL AT THE SWITCHBOARD. Before she could complete the connection she'd have to determine what line to plug in and what signal to ring. After long experience, she remembered most of the numbers, but frequently had to stop and study, or to consult her list of 360 names. New operators had to spend more time looking up numbers than in completing calls. The method not only imposed an unnecessary hardship on the operator but often caused unavoidable delays in service . . . delays which could have been eliminated if the call had been placed by number.

THAT'S WHY YOUR OPERATOR NOW SAYS "NUMBER, PLEASE". SHE'S ASKING YOU TO COOPERATE WITH HER IN GIVING YOU BETTER SERVICE. The moment she hears the number she has all the information she needs to plug in the proper line and ring the proper signal. She doesn't lose time on a pause to recall your number, or a much longer pause to look it up. And when calls come in fast she's less likely to fall behind. (Remember how you sometimes used to wonder whether the operator would ever answer? That's because lots of short pauses can add together to cause somebody a long wait.)

So give yourself a break by giving your operator a break. Before you pick up the receiver look up the number in your telephone directory. You'll help a lot. You'll enjoy better service.

In case you haven't received your directory notify the operator. She'll see that one is sent to you at once.

Home Described as A Dangerous Place

DENTON, Texas — Your home is the top-rated accident trap. At least, so say safety experts. But you can make it a less dangerous place with a few simple precautions recommended by Texas State College for Women physics director, Albert Ford.

You may live longer if you pay attention to Professor Ford's advice and don't use a chair for a stepladder; permit marbles, skates, cars and other small toys on floors or steps or have throw rugs on waxed floors.

You can improve your chances for long life and good health by grounding such electrical appliances as mixers, washing machines, and refrigerators to a cold water pipe to prevent shock; by periodically examining wall plugs and extension cords and by keeping avall-spare fuses of proper amperage.

"While you are at it," Ford says, "check those gas jets regularly. All this sounds very commonplace," Ford admits, "but a lot of people get hurt or killed for failure to take such simple precautions."

Number of Polio Cases in Texas Do Not Justify Panic

AUSTIN, — State Health Officer Geo. W. Cox has turned the bright light of optimism on the heretofore dark picture of polio in Texas.

Observing that the state's 1000 cases of polio since the year's beginning has occurred among a population of 7½ million people, the health official Thursday deplored "the attitude of hysteria that polio creates in a community."

That didn't mean people should not be concerned, the doctor commented, for a case of illness in any form is good reason for great concern.

"I'm talking about the fear that keeps a person or a whole community from thinking straight. Of course each case of polio is an individual tragedy for the family involved, but wholesale public panic simply is not justified."

He doesn't want to encourage complacency either, the state health officer said, adding:

"Every clear-thinking effort must be made to keep every home, every community, every vacation camp consistently clean and sanitary. Briefly, elimination of fly and insect breeding places, personal cleanliness, and getting milk, water and food from safe, approved sources will aid in preventing a number of communicable diseases."

National statistics, Dr. Cox asserted, show good reason for optimism in most cases of polio. According to the figures, from 40 to 60 per cent of all victims recover completely and can do anything they choose.

From 25 to 40 per cent recover with minor disability, and can, within very wide limits, lead perfectly normal lives. From 15 to 20 per cent are more severely handicapped, and 5 to 10 per cent terminate fatally.

"It all goes to show that polio is actually a minor cause of illness, and an even less significant cause of death, when com-

First Year of New School Law Brings 1920 Consolidations

AUSTIN Texas. — Consolidation of 1,920 school districts the first year Texas' new education laws were in effect has resulted in larger school units and a better school program, J. W. Edgar, state commissioner of education declared here today.

Consolidations have made possible better building equipment and facilities, teachers giving instruction in fewer subjects and a vastly broadened program of vocational agriculture, trades and industries, and home economic instruction which means better schools for Texas children, Edgar pointed out.

The total number of school districts dropped from 4,412 in 1948-49 to 2,492 operating districts during the last school year. A total of 1,300 of these consolidations were mandatory under new school laws.

"Six hundred and twenty school districts, however, voluntarily merged with other districts," Edgar said.

In addition, the total number of county unit systems (one school system for an entire county) doubled, making the total twenty-four.

Edgar also predicted that consolidations for the 1950-51 school year would total an additional 400, bringing the total number in the state down to approximately 2,000.

Most of the smaller schools in the state could not afford adequate library and laboratory facilities, or equipment and teachers for vocational agriculture, trades and industries, and home economic courses, Edgar pointed out.

"While there has been commendable increases in library, visual aid and laboratory facilities, there has been a tremendous expansion in the vocational departments," Dr. Edgar said.

"Vocational departments increased slightly more than 500 during the past year, making a total of 2,087 in the state," the commissioner declared. "The trend indicates that an additional 400 school districts will offer courses in agriculture, home economics and trades and industries during the 1950-51 school year.

"With Texas being an agricultural state and gaining rapidly in the world of industry, we on the state level of education certainly encourage our school districts to offer a diversity of courses to train their

Oil Rig Drills 2448 Feet in Eight Hours

HOUSTON — Records for fast drilling have been set recently by Humble Oil & Refining Company drilling rigs in the Gulf Coast area, the current issue of The Humble Way magazine reports. In the area around Natchez, Mississippi, Humble's Rig 28 has drilled 2,448 feet in less than eight hours, averaging 332 feet per hour through typical Gulf Coast formations.

Time to drill and complete wells 7,000 feet deep in that area has been reduced from 23 to eight days, the article states. Other Humble rigs have reduced the time to drill 10,800-foot wells in Lake Sand in Southern Louisiana from 47 days to only 18 days, and 5,200-foot wells in the Jouranton field south of San Antonio from 15 days to seven days. Faster drilling is reported by Humble rigs throughout the Gulf Coast area.

The developments which made possible these drilling rates up to five times previous speeds come after six years of intensive study of the principles of rotary drilling. From studies made on test wells, Humble drillers and engineers discovered that the nozzle velocity of the drilling mud passing through the bit as it digs into the earth has a great effect on the drilling rate. New jet-type bits were designed to make the most of the high-fluid velocities, and drilling rates were more than quadrupled. No new equipment was needed.

Humble production men attribute a large part of the increased drilling rates to the precision teamwork of skilled drilling crews, the article points out. The crew of Rig 28, which set the record, is a typical crew that happened to set the record during the normal course of their work. While setting the record they drilled 30 feet and made a drill pipe connection every five minutes—jobs that require split-second timing.

"WHERE'S MAMA?"—These six baby gorillas seem a bit downcast on their arrival in New York after being flown from their native French West Africa. Oldest of the group is the four-year-old male, at left. The youngest is eight months. The gorillas were destined for zoos throughout the country.

the West Coast by United Airlines Captain E. J. Smith, were real. Five seen over the Cascade Mountains of Oregon were real. So were a hundred-foot saucer observed over New Mexico in April 1949, and a 250-foot saucer sighted over Madisonville, Ky., on January 7, 1948. The observation in July 1947, January 1948 and April 1950. The saucers have grown bigger with each phase.

A "flaming, cigar-shaped object about a hundred feet long," reported over Montgomery, Ala., by two reliable Eastern Airlines pilots, was real, too, the author states. But it was not cigar-shaped, nor was it a flying saucer. It was a U. S. Navy experimental fighter, "a great jet airplane of incredible speed." Though nearly round, its extremely fast flight (another military secret) made it appear elongated and cigar-shaped to the human eye.

Chances of finding a flying saucer are slight, because most are made of material which disintegrates in the air. If you should find one, however, you will read the following message stenciled on it:

Military secret of the United States of America (and a number). Anyone damaging or revealing description or whereabouts of this missile is subject to prosecution by the United States Government.

Flying Saucers

The flying saucers are real; they are made not in Russia or in Mars but in the United States; and when the U. S. Air Force sees fit to release information on them it will be good news for Americans. So declares Henry J. Taylor, well known journalist and radio commentator. The saucers vary in size from small white disks 20 inches wide to big ones 250 feet across. Nearly all are round; some are flat and edged up like saucers, others are raised in the center like a pie. Some are guided, others are not. They emit no stream of light or smoke, have no indication of a propelling mechanism, and no sound. They can stand stationary in the air, then dash off to right or left with increasing speed. Their function is an important military secret.

Freedom Under Communism

Liberty, in the Western sense of the term, cannot exist in a communist state—or in any state which subscribes to the other totalitarian doctrines.

We need not turn to anti-communists to support that statement. A book written some time ago by A. Y. Vyshinsky provides remarkable proof of it. Mr. Vyshinsky is the Soviet foreign minister, a top man in the Politburo, and a leading authority on Marxism as now practiced behind the iron curtain. In defense of Soviet laws, he wrote this: "Having given the toilers freedom of speech, assemblies, street parades, press, and so on, the Soviet government explicitly excluded the nonlabor classes from enjoyment of this freedom . . . Having assured genuine freedom of press to the toilers, the Soviet government did not extend this freedom to the non-laboring strata."

IN THE WAKE OF A TWISTER—A death-dealing tornado struck Rhinelander, Wis., killing two and injuring 50. In the wake of the violent wind storm, which caused untold damage, lay shambled barns and homes grim reminders of nature's fury.

A page or two later, Mr. Vyshinsky expanded on his theme in these words: "In our state, naturally, there is and can be no place for freedom of speech, press, and so on for the foes of socialism. . . Freedom of speech, of the press, of assembly, of meetings, of street parades, and of demonstrations are the property of all the citizens in the USSR, fully guaranteed by the State upon the single condition that they be utilized in accord with the interest of the toilers and to the end of strengthening the socialistic social order."

That is worth reading again, word for word. What he said, if it means anything at all, is that the people can be perfectly free so long as that freedom consists in following the line laid down by their masters. They can speak freely—so long as they do not criticize Soviet policy. They can have a free press—so long as it shouts the praises of Stalin and sternly demands the death or deportation of dissidents. They can assemble freely—so long as the prime purpose of the assembly is to sing the praises of the "workers' fatherland." This is very much as if one of our political parties took over the government and passed a law which said that everybody could speaking freely and enjoy the other freedoms with the exception of the members of other political parties!

Finally, it is enormously important to remember that socialism, no less than communism produces the same kind of "freedom" of which Mr. Vyshinsky spoke. It may not do that in theory, but it always does in practice. For when we concentrate all power in government, no matter what name that government goes by, tyranny follows as surely as night follows day.

Collections of wool lint around the baseboard of a clothes closet makes an ideal home for moths and carpet beetles. The same goes for accumulations of dog and cat hairs.

Upper Elm-Red Soil Conservation District News

DISTRICT SUPERVISORS
J. W. Hess, Muenster V. W. Redman, Saint Jo
John Rice, Collinsville Ed Blackmon, Bowie
Willard Kemplin, Valley View

Recent rains and dewy nights have slowed down farming operations to almost a standstill. The weather has also greatly reduced the prospects for the farmers in this area of getting a good clover seed crop. Clover that has been windrowed stands a better chance of not losing its seed than that standing up. Ed Knauf, Harry Fisher, Henry Wiesman and Al Hess windrowed their clover last week.

H. N. Fuhrman cuts his clover high, leaving the windrow on top of the stubble. When combining he leaves the cutter bar in the combine and cuts just below the windrow. By using this method H. N. says he losses less seed and the windrow feeds through much easier.

Another damaging pest to clover seed is the grasshopper. Paul and Harry Fisher have sprayed their clover fields against the pests.

A new vetch separator has been purchased by the District for use in the Muenster area. The separator is available to cooperators at a nominal fee. Paul Fetsch has combined vetch and oats and is the first to use the new seed separator. H. J. Fuhrman has combined his vetch and rye and is ready to clean it up. Mr. Fuhrman also has Hubam clover, Biennial white blossom clover and Madrid clover in separate plots.

Alois Trubenbach is watching his native grass meadow on the army camp farm to see if it will make a good seed crop. If it does he will harvest the seed to reseed some adjoining old field areas.

Heavy rains in the past weeks have proved that terrace maintenance is as necessary as terraces themselves. J. A. Dennison has plowed up his terraces and also extended the outlets farther into the pasture.

J. A. Dennison of the N. E. Saint Jo Conservation group is in the process of planting Chinese Red Peas and Mung Beans for summer legumes. He also seeded eight acres of Chinese Red Peas with maize for hog pasture.

Deep-rooted clovers open up the sub-soil and this permits either rain or irrigation water to go into the ground instead of running off.

Why Did He Go?

A husband rushed around looking for his coat.
"What do you want it for, dear?" asked his wife.
"That fellow Smith across the street just telephoned to ask if I can lend him a corkscrew," was the answer.
"Well, what do you want your coat for?" questioned the wife. "Surely you don't have to go yourself. Why don't you send Junior over with it?"
The husband turned upon her more in sorrow than in anger.
"My dear," he said "your last remark sums up the whole reason why women cannot lead armies, control nations or take anything but a subordinate part in the affairs of the world."

Sunday guests in the Needham home were Mr. and Mrs. Jess Adamson of Dallas.

in any other line of endeavor. Those who hold control are inclined to get high handed. But when they are constantly aware that their political apple cart can be upset by an opposing party they are more likely to keep their records clean.
Likewise on the national level, a state can achieve much more by the two party set-up. As things stand now Texas is taken for granted by Truman Democrats and ignored by Republicans. The queer dealers abuse and insult us Texans for the sake of a few marginal votes up North and East. They're confident we'll vote straight regardless of shabby treatment. On the other hand Republicans do nothing for us because they don't expect us to do anything for them. We get clipped coming and going.

The point is clearly illustrated in the tidelands and racial issues. Does anyone think for a minute that such monstrosities would have been crammed down our throats if the South were organized to retaliate with a Republican majority? Does anyone believe the GOP would have permitted it to go through if they had reason to think their efforts would reap a reward in Southern support?

There can be no question that the two party system is vital to the welfare of this state. The man who favors good government should be enthusiastically for it regardless of what label he prefers. There'll be less pushing around when the high handed crowd in Washington discover that we Texans at long last have a way to retaliate.
