

BURGLARS GET $350 LOOT FROM JIM'S STATION

No Trace Of Stolen Items Discovered By Officers

Thieves Broke Into Back, Took Tires, Supplies, Cash Candies, and Removed Identifying Labels

Burglars who apparently knew their game well broke into Jimmy's Service Station early last Saturday morning, took about $350 worth of cash and merchandise and vanished. After almost a week of diligent watching, officers of North Texas and South Oklahoma still have no trace of the culprits.

The burglary was first discovered shortly after 6 o'clock at the service station's usual opening time, and officers were called promptly to investigate and search for possible clues. A check of the station at that time revealed that eighteen new tires, spark plugs and other supply items and almost all the cigars and candies were missing. A slot machine in the corner had been smashed and robbed.

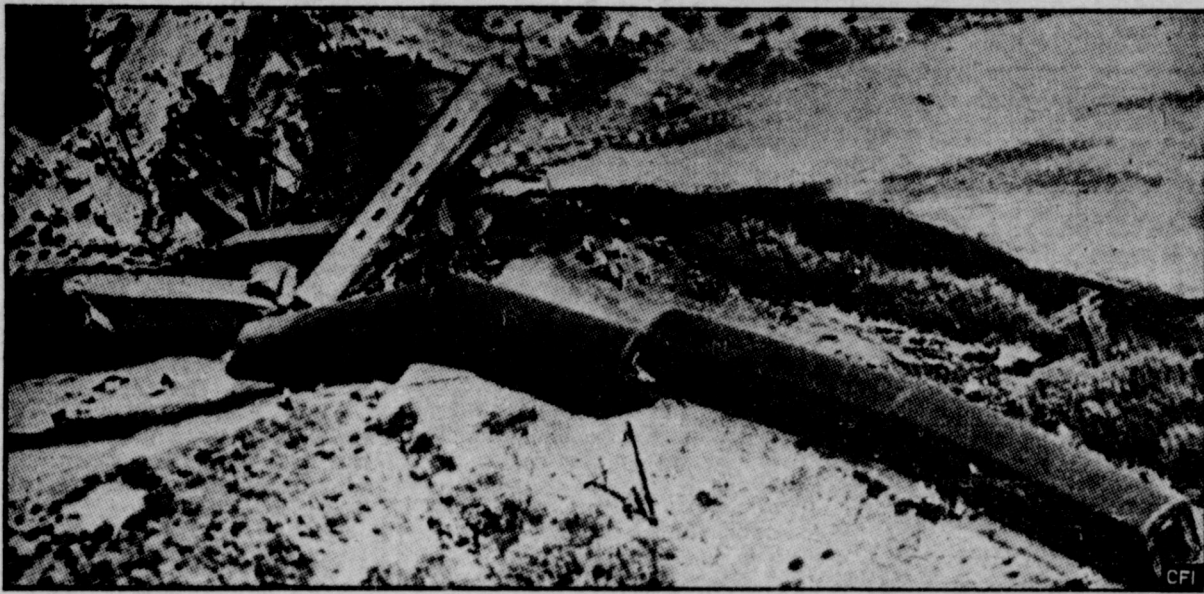

Mute testimony from an electric clock in the window revealed that the burglars started their job at 3 a. m. The wire leading to it had been cut, apparently to extinguish the soft light that might have made the men visible from the street.

Working methodically through a well laid plan the men first parked their car on a side road about 100 yards away, crossed a vacant lot to a point directly behind the station and cut a wire fence to get it out of their way. Then they forced their way through a rear window. As a precaution against theft and burglary Jim Lehnertz draws a chain through all his tires and the base of his counter then padlocks the ends together. The burglars finished that lock with a bolt cutter. All the stolen merchandise was removed through the rear window.

Careful to escape any incriminating evidence, the men then removed all wrapping and boxes. In the vacant lot behind the building they left a heap of tire wrapping paper, spark plug containers, etc.

Officers within a radius of more than a hundred miles have descriptions of the stolen articles and are watching for clues. They have also questioned a few suspicious characters but have not found any helpful evidence.

A one-day horse and mule show will be held Thursday. Throughout the week there will be poultry, livestock, field crop, home demonstration, home economics and 4-H Club shows with $1,800 in prizes offered in the various departments. Already the fair officials have been advised that large caravans of citizens of neighboring cities and towns were planning to visit the fair and attend the many entertainment features.

The fair has spent more than $1,500 in permanent improvements this year to make the fair grounds more attractive, and an attendance of 30,000 is predicted by fair officials.

County's Fifth Vote On Beer To Be Held Saturday

OLD FMA BUILDING GOES DOWN TO MAKE ROOM FOR NEW STORE

Little trace is left of the forty year old structure that was the FMA store. Early Wednesday morning a crew of eighteen started with wrecking bars and by the end of the day seemed to have at least half of the building down. Officials of the FMA are confident that the site can be thoroughly cleared this week. Digging for the foundation may also be under way by Saturday.

Since the store will suspend business until its new home is completed, FMA members are anxious to see construction go forward with the least possible delay. They expect to have the place finished by October 1.

A front design recently submitted by an architect and approved by the board of directors specifies a generous use of plate glass and ornamental glass in keeping with the latest building practices. The rest of the building will be brick lined with an insulating material. Its outside dimension is 64 by 64.

The FMA improvement marks the removal of one of Muenster's older landmarks. The present structure was put up by John Gottlob almost forty years ago to serve as a furniture store and saloon with a dance floor above. Fewer than a dozen buildings now in Muenster were built before it.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Herr are the parents of a daughter, Barbara Anne, born on August 6 at a Glade-water hospital.

Carl Wimmer has returned to Amarillo after visiting with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Wimmer, for two weeks.

Rev. Henry Felderhoff of Abilene arrived Wednesday morning for a three-day visit with relatives and friends.

John Eberhart and family of Cline, Ill., arrived Wednesday to spend a part of their two-weeks' vacation with relatives here.

August Reiter and son, Wilfred, are spending this week in Arkansas and Oklahoma. Most of the time will be spent in Malton, Ark., where Mr. Reiter lived 30 years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Luke and children, Norman and Alma Marie, left Saturday on a two weeks' vacation trip. They will visit the San Francisco World's Fair.

The first bale of 1939 cotton received in Muenster was brought in Wednesday afternoon by Travis Whitt for Pierce and Whitt. It was grown on the Ferd Pierce farm north of Muenster.

The cotton, picked with the boles, weighed 2,160 pounds, and when ginned weighed 490 pounds. The bale was bought by W. Lee Stock for Muenster Gin Company at $1.4c per pound. It graded middling.

The cotton was ginned free of charge and bagging and ties were given by the gin company. Local merchants are subscribing a premium for Messrs. Pierce and Whitt.

Last year's first bale was received here on August 20, being grown by E. B. Luna of Myra.

Wets Confident In Spite Of 517 Dry Majority One Year Ago

For the fifth time in as many years voters of Cooke County will go to the polls Saturday to determine whether beer of 4 per cent alcoholic content shall be legalized. For the fifth time wets are optimistic that their cause has finally won enough support to take beer out of the hands of bootleggers and place it under the control of state officers.

Both wets and dries are agreed that the outcome, whatever way it goes, will have the support of a very narrow margin. In spite of the fact that dry majorities have increased during the four previous elections—from 2 votes the first time to 517 the last—it is believed that wets are gaining ground now.

A widespread change in viewpoint is given much credit for wet optimism. Some people have ceased to regard the election as a decision for or against beer but rather as a means of authorizing precincts to handle beer in their own way. Voters generally are aware that they can favor legalization in the county wide election then hold a precinct election to determine whether beer should be legalized in their own localities.

Not all of the county dries have shown the same willingness to let wet spots be wet and dry spots be dry. By means of leaflets, radio, and extensive campaigning they continue to fight beer on the grounds of drunkenness. Their argument continues to ignore localities that will have beer, wet or dry, but are seeking a way to control it.

Children of the Valley Creek School District will attend classes this year in a temporary building completed last week. The six-room frame structure replaces the building destroyed by fire last February.

Beginning September 15th, work will begin on the new school. It will contain ten rooms, including a regulation size gym, and will be made of native rock.

Prospects for a soil conservation district in North Texas are encouraging but not definitely decided. Three members of the state soil conservation board, after hearing the testimony of about 50 representative landowners of Cooke, Montague and Grayson counties commented favorably on the creation of a project but withheld an official decree until they have thoroughly considered all phases of the work.

In the event a district is approved the board will announce its decision and set the date for a general vote of approval by landowners in the area concerned. Farmers must accept the project by a majority vote before it becomes effective.

The hearing, at 2 p. m. Wednesday, opened with explanatory remarks by Frank Buckley, chief field superintendent of the board, and by representatives of A and M. College and the Federal Government. County Agent C. H. Clark then took charge and appointed J. M. Weinzapfel as chairman for the hearing. Cooke County was represented by almost 40 landowners and Grayson and Montague counties by six each.

Oil Activity Handicapped But Continues Slowly After Production Shutdown Order

PUBLIC SCHOOL WILL HAVE NEW BUILDING FOR 2 NEW COURSES

A special building, to use for home economics and manual training classes, is under construction at the Muenster High School. The work is under the supervision of Joe Hesse, who stated that the work will be completed by the first of September.

The two-room building, measuring 24 by 20, is north of the main building. A concrete walk will connect the two. The exterior of the new structure will be similar to the present building, painted white with a green composition roof. A minimum of equipment to satisfy the department of education's standards for the courses will be installed before the opening of school.

Virgil Lee Welch, principal, will teach manual training and Miss Dorothy Fette will teach home economics. Both prepared for the work by taking special courses this summer.

GAINESVILLE GIRL AND LINDSAY YOUTH MARRIED WEDNESDAY

Lindsay.—Quiet simplicity marked the early morning service that united Miss Amella Dulock of Gainesville and Henry Krebs of this city. Rev. John P. Brady performed the ceremony at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning at Saint Mary's church. The altar before which the vows were recited was adorned with summer flowers and tapers.

Miss Emma Gallagher played the wedding march and assisted the church choir for music for the mass. Mrs. Adolph Dudenhoefler sang, "Oh Perfect Life," and Mrs. J. W. Schad gave the Ave Maria as a vocal solo.

The bride wore an attractive floor length frock of white silk brocade marquisette. The skirt was very full and formed a short train. The bodice featured a sweetheart neckline and short puffed sleeves. She wore a ruffled hat, topped with a cluster of orange blossoms, from which fell a full length veil of illusion. Her arm bouquet was fashioned of white tube roses and valley lilies.

As a maid of honor for her sister, Miss Evelyn Dulock wore a gown of powder blue net over taffeta, with a matching hat, and white accessories. Pink gladioli were used in her shoulder corsage.

Florence Krebs of Tishomingo, Okla., was best man for his uncle.

Immediately following the services the couple was honored with an informal breakfast at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Dulock. The traditional white theme was stressed at the bride's table, which had a decorated three-tiered wedding cake as its centerpiece. In the evening a reception and dance in the Lindsay hall honored Mr. and Mrs. Krebs.

Mr. Krebs is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Krebs of Lindsay and engages in farming north of the city, where the couple will make their home.

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT PROBABLE, STATE BOARD SAYS

Prospects for a soil conservation district in North Texas are encouraging but not definitely decided. ### Refinery Can Operate Thirty Days On Storage

Pumping Continues in Some Wells Threatened by Water, Drilling Retarded But Not Stopped

The recent decree of the Railroad Commission to halt oil production in Texas for 15 days, along with the 20 cent reduction in the price of crude, has caused grief to Muenster's oil industry, though probably not in the same degree as in other sections of the state. Oil activity has definitely slowed down but it has not stopped.

For the local refinery the edict is more helpful than harmful. It presents an opportunity to dispose of a vast storage of crude that had been accumulating for the past several months. According to Hutton and Mattson the refinery is in a position to carry on at its present schedule for at least 30 days.

Its own tanks are full to the brim and several of the producers' tanks in the Voth field have a good available storage that was pumped prior to the deadline at 7 a. m. Tuesday. Besides, it has been disclosed, at least one well is exempted from the shutdown because of water, which would probably ruin the well in case production were stopped. Another well at Voth's previously exempted from proration because of similar trouble, is expected to be exempted from the shutdown.

There are other wells in the Muenster field threatened by water, and it is taken for granted that all of them will be permitted to run. By far the greater part of the local production, however, is affected by the decree.

Development in the field is also affected, though to a lesser degree. Some drilling rigs have shut down. Others will continue until their present wells are completed but do not expect to begin on new locations until after the 15 days. Leasing activity, too, is almost at a standstill.

CONTINUE TRYING TO INCREASE PRODUCTION OF CITY WATER WELL

More attention was given this week to the city's recently drilled water well in an effort to increase its production to the pump's rated capacity of 100 gallons a minute. The work followed a discovery last week that under constant use the production fell rather than increased. By gauging the reservoir over a several hours' period the output was found to be only 31 gallons a minute.

One important defect in the well, it was thought, was the perforated liner with slots so narrow that it became clogged by sand. Accordingly, the liner was pulled and the bottom of the well left open after several yards of cave-in sand was bailed out. Another change in the well was the addition of 20 feet of shaft and tubing to bring the pump impeller down to 300 feet instead of its previous depth of 280 feet.

As the well now stands casing extends down to 570 feet and an open hole extends 47 feet farther into the Trinity sand. Pressure from below lifts the water through the casing to about 100 feet above the impeller.

Some difficulty was encountered in removing the perforated liner from the well. When picked up by expanding tool the liner spread to the side of the casing and lodged. Several attempts were necessary to jar it loose and lift it to the surface.

COOKE COUNTY NEWS, MUENSTER'S FORMER PAPER, ENDS CAREER

The last chapter in the career of Muenster's former newspaper was written last week in a transaction by which Zenas Deere of Gainesville sold the Cooke County News printing equipment to a Wichita Falls printing shop. It has not been announced whether some other paper has taken over the News subscription list.

The paper was transferred to Mr. Deere from J. G. Hooper several months ago. A short time prior to that it had been moved by Hooper from Muenster to Gainesville and its name changed from Muenster News to Cooke County News.

HARD TO UNDERSTAND

It's hard to follow Mayor Maverick of San Antonio in his decision that Communists have a right to use that city's municipal center as a meeting place. After the Bexar County Commissioner's Court decreed that Communists should be denied the privilege of meeting there Maverick became spectacularly vehement in his defense of the Reds' right to the place.

Maverick's viewpoint just does not seem to be in harmony with true Americanism. How he can feel that he is observing his pledge to support and defend the constitution of this nation while offering hospitality to an organization that has openly boasted its intention to overthrow this nation's government is, to say the least, hard to understand.

Strictly observing the dictates of loyalty to the stars and stripes, one could not so much as grant Communists the privilege of public assembly, for every Red meeting is, after all, an act of treason against the United States. The more logical course would be to classify Communists with gangsters as public enemies. Not the poor, misguided and deceived followers, of course, but those anarchistic big shots who spend their debased lives plotting the overthrow of human right and dignity.

BE SURE TO VOTE

Several weeks ago when another petition for a beer election first began to circulate many of the wets as well as the dries were disappointed. After four successive defeats, each a little more decisive than the preceding one, the chance of ever legalizing beer seemed to be hopeless. Apparently it was a waste in time, money, and energy to go through the whole thing again.

But a change seems to have taken place. According to widely scattered reports the problem this time is being considered more from the viewpoint of fairness and less from the viewpoint of personal approval or disapproval. Dozens in Gainesville have mentioned their agreement with the attitude expressed by Ben Seyler before a good will gathering here two weeks ago—that a fair vote is one giving precincts a chance to decide the question for themselves.

One could even take some encouragement from a leaflet circulated by the county dries. They refer to the wish of the majority, as expressed in previous elections, and deplore that a minority group should persist in its efforts to impose an objectionable condition on them. Now, since they realize that the precinct and not the county is the basic unit for determining the beer question, they will undoubtedly remain consistent in their plea to let the majority's wish prevail.

Muenster's consistent wet vote indicates clearly what is the wish of its majority. It wants beer, it usually has beer, but it wants the beer to be under legal supervision so that respectable, moderate drinkers can have theirs openly and unruly people can be held in check. The prevailing condition is not the wish of Muenster's majority. It is the wish of a very small minority imposed with the help of people who have no dealings and no interest here.

There is no denying the fact that a vote for legalization is a vote for fairness. Many a conscientious dry, realizing that, will vote a wet ticket this time, for he knows that within a few short weeks his precinct, if dry, can restore the condition it actually wants.

Based on this plea for fairness the beer election this time has a better chance of passing than ever before. There is no doubt that some dries are seeing the problem in its true light and will cast their vote in favor of legalization. However, it must be admitted that they will not hand over the election on a silver platter. To get a fair return the fair minded wets must gather their full voting strength and add it to that of the fair minded dries.

THE GREATEST NEED

The current edition of a nationally circulated magazine deplores the ever growing prevalence of juvenile delinquency and crime with its staggering cost to tax payers and its alarming loss to useful citizenship. Most of the trouble, it explains, is to be found among the less privileged young men in congested sections of large cities. With no employment or constructive recreation boys naturally form their gangs and soon turn to crime as a means of securing the material things that are otherwise denied them.

Police records show that an overwhelming majority of criminals are under 24 years of age, many of them under 20. Using those statistics and their knowledge of conditions, social service workers are busy providing more wholesome recreation to take the place of juvenile gang activities. Clubs, playgrounds, civic centers, private agencies to help young men find occupation even federal agencies such as the NYA and the CCC to provide employment, all are offered as a means of giving American youth an opportunity to follow the straight and narrow.

But, strange as it seems, no mention is made of religion or morality as a crime preventive. The magazine article, ironically, mentions one instance of an abandoned church that was turned into a community center for young people—as if providing a concrete instance of the modern tendency to replace religion with something less substantial.

Without a doubt, much is being accomplished by providing more wholesome surroundings for the underprivileged. Young men of character will continue to lean on such advantages, especially in strained times when they might otherwise be inclined to turn to criminal careers.

But the trouble is that youth generally does not have the same standard of character it used to have. Since religion was taken out of the educational system, since anarchists and athiests have been given a free rein, there are too many who do not realize their duties and responsibilities. They make less distinction between right and wrong and think rather of how they can best serve their selfish interests. If a law forbids an action they are concerned with evading, not observing it. A thing is all right if a person can get by with it.

The greatest need of our nation today is a more exacting national conscience. That can be attained only by an improvement of character which in turn requires religion for its basic foundation. Men can't be expected to acknowledge their obligations to God unless they sincerely believe there is a God.

Confetti
By CON FETTE

What we want to know now is when weather men or astronomers or somebody will be able to predict the appearance of the northern lights. If last Friday's papers had mentioned something about the beautiful display that was coming on you can bet your boots this humble scribe would have been out on a hill waiting to get the full benefit of it instead of blowing the dust off an old volume of O'Henry.

Yes sir, people didn't know what they missed until they heard others raving about it the next day. Even then they didn't quite know, because nobody seems able to give an adequate description of the phenomenon. A person starts telling you and then runs out of words. It has been that way ever since anyone knew anything at all about the Aurora Borealis. Poets have exhausted their vocabularies and admitted they did a bum job of describing.

A fellow was telling us the other day that it was a beautiful blend of shimmering colored lights as a background with huge shafts of bright white light streaking up at various angles. But he reached his limit there, and added: "Remember the lighting display at the Centennial Exposition? Well, it was something like that, only much more so."

Anyone who saw the Aurora will admit the description is fairly good but does not quite do justice to the scene. A listener can sort of get the idea by drawing heavily on his imagination.

Yes, it must be a sight to behold. That's why we are wishing it were possible for scientists to give some advance dope on it the way they do for eclipses. You know how such an announcement can draw a crowd. Over the nation there are thousands straining their eyes to see it all. And what do they see? A shadow passing over the face of the moon, slightly more fascinating than a cloud passing in front of it. Why, if people know that the Aurora were going to flash out the nation could go out of business for the night.

It has been said that one reason nobody can predict the Aurora's appearance is that nobody knows what causes it. The most acceptable guess is that it is a reflection of the sun on northern ice and snow and it is known to originate in the Arctic Circle.

Our former Muensterite, Ralph Hellman, living just within the Arctic Circle in Alaska, says the lights are north of him, that they are seen frequently, that they are much more brilliant than they appear from the States, and that no evening's display resembles a previous display. He considers them the most beautiful natural phenomena of the world.

Just an after thought: Has it occurred to you how clear a night must be in order to make the lights carry all the way to Texas? No clouds between here and the Arctic Circle.

The most astonishing true story of the week concerns a man who just found out that a neighbor has been using about 20 acres of his land for years and years. Way back there somewhere, when Ol' Dobbin was just a colt this fellow bought his farm. His deed outlines the boundaries in such and such a survey and he never took the trouble to check up and see that fence lines followed the correct boundary. In days gone by, as we all know, fences were set up quite frequently by guesswork. At any rate a recent survey reveals that the fence in question is very much off the line.

The important question now is "Who will get the 20 acres? What does the law say in such a case?" For more than twenty years it has been considered as the property of the man who had it fenced in—and actual possession, they say, is nine-tenths of the law. But at the same time the other man has the deed specifying the land, and he has maintained his otherwise clear title all these years by paying taxes on it. You guess we'll guess. No matter what happens, the one fellow is the big winner. Even though he has to move his fence he's better off by all these years of free use of the land.

Just as we had it figured all along—the FMA does not intend to play second fiddle to this small town paper shop. Though no one mentioned it in so many words, the directors, in one of their special sessions, agreed on plans far more elaborate than this place is building or ever hoped to build. While they were at it, they said, they might as well put up something they can be proud of for a long, long time.

That doesn't mean that this staff will be ashamed of its new home. No Siree! It's not elaborate or expensive but it will be a good mark for future builders of Muenster to aim at. Any time they beat it they can rest assured they've done a nice job of improving the town.

As regards the FMA choice, we again offer congratulations. They will have something pretty there, a dandy contribution to Muenster's appearance.

While on the subject of second fiddles, we'd like to put in a plug for another Muenster industry, the refinery. Who says this refinery is playing second fiddle to those at Gainesville? Who was the grossly misinformed somebody that advised a Gainesville newspaper the small refinery at Muenster was using a small portion of the Voth field crude?

Well, so far as we have been able to determine by very direct answers to very direct questions, the local refinery is taking not only a small portion of the Voth crude, but 100 per cent of it. Furthermore, it is taking crude from the several other new wells south of town, from a few old wells not served by pipe line, and a little from the pipe line company itself. So it seems the Muenster refinery is not releasing so much of this community's oil to Gainesville.

If it comes to a showdown we'd betcha that Muenster today is handling more crude than both the Gainesville refineries combined. If anybody can prove this claim is wrong, step forward. We'll buy the drinks and admit the mistake.

Texas has 254 counties, 609 incorporated cities and towns, and a grand total of more than 9,000 civil subdivisions, each of which has the power to issue bonds.

THE COW

Texas farmers and dairymen, through the organization of Herd Testing Associations and the introduction of better sires, are going about the business of improving the quality of the state's nearly two million dairy cattle. When they have accomplished this they will have paid tribute to Nature's most wonderful laboratory—The Cow.

The foster-mother of the world, she takes the grasses of the pasture and the roughage of the field and converts them into the most perfect food for man. In that food is a mysterious something which scientists have found essential to the highest health of the human race. It cannot be found anywhere else.

The vitamins stored in golden-yellow butter—the nutrition packed in cheese—the cool, refreshing food values of ice cream—are each products of Nature's greatest food factory—The Cow.

RARELY SEEN AURORA GLOWS FRIDAY NIGHT IN COLOR SYMPHONY

The comparatively few who happened to glance to the north shortly after 10 o'clock last Friday night saw a sight that Texans seldom see. The Aurora Borealis, commonly known as Northern Lights, spread its beautiful display well across the northern sky.

As described by some who saw it, the light appeared as a large reddish glow with colored lights at the borders, and was interrupted with bright white shafts at various angles as if sent out by huge searchlights. It might easily have been mistaken as the glow of a large fire.

The Aurora, a common sight to people of Alaska and northern Canada, is frequently seen in the northern part of the United States but is rarely seen as far south as Texas.
