A QUICK READ OF THE NEWS

Bush offers drought aid

AUSTIN — Gov. George W. Bush has ordered the temporary suspension of a Texas law which is hindering the ability of Texas farmers and ranchers to haul hay to feed their livestock.

The Texas Transportation Code requires anyone hauling hay beyond 150 miles of his or her home to obtain a commercial license. The Governor's Executive order waives that requirement for 90 days effective Aug. 5.

The Texas Disaster Act allows the governor to suspend any regulatory statute that prevents, hinders or delays the response or recovery from a disaster. The drought in Texas has caused the depletion of pasture forage and hay supplies, creating the need for many ranchers and farmers to buy hay from suppliers outside their immediate areas.

MHS experimenting with hybrid class schedule

Muleshoe High School principal David Jenkins has never been afraid of trying something different.

This year, the high school will experiment with a hybrid schedule that includes some classes that meet daily and others that meet every other day.

Daily classes will include academic staples like English and math, while other classes like science, art, home economics and ag sciences will meet every other day but for a longer period of time.

The Journal's Back-to-School issue

Jenkins said the new schedule is a compromise between traditional scheduling and the block schedule the high school employed last year.

He said there are pros and cons with both methods

"It's a new idea," Jenkins said. "Several other schools we visited with will be watching to see how it works."

Officials opted for the change based on input from a student survey, staff and the district's parent committee.

"The staff seems really excited about it," Jenkins said.

School officials said the change may cause some minor confusion early, "but students have a way of adopting real fast," Jenkins said.

School will start a half hour later this year, running from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Dykes relieved to escape NCAA ban on bowl games

By RICK WHITE

The skies had cleared in more ways than one by the time Spike Dykes arrived in town Wednesday for the Muleshoe Red Raiders Club fund-raiser.

A mid-afternoon downpour had threatened to disrupt the outdoor cook-out, which included an appearance by popular Red Raider head football coach Spike Dykes. But the sun broke through the clouds, making for a perfect evening of steaks, chicken and chatter.

A day earlier, the dark cloud hanging over Texas Tech's athletic program was lifted when the NCAA doled out its punishment in its three-year-old case against the university.

Dykes, calling it the toughest thing he's ever faced in coaching, said he was relieved the NCAA had finally handed down its decision.

"It's all over and now we can just shut up and play," Dykes told a crowd of more than 150 Red Raider supporters gathered at the Muleshoe Heritage Center. "The great thing is we can live with the sanctions."

Wood expects competition at all positions

By RICK WHITE
Managing Editor

With 14 returning lettermen and a promising junior class, Muleshoe High School head football coach David Wood said there were just a few holes to fill when the Mules started two-a-days Wednesday.

"There's only a few spots we're not sure about," said Wood, now in his third year at Muleshoe.

Muleshoe is coming off a promising 5-5 season, its first non-losing season in more than a decade. The Mules finished with a three-game winning-streak, including a season-ending memorable 38-30 triple overtime win against playoff contender River Road.

"We really haven't talked a lot about last year," Wood said. "But obviously, the expectations are greater."

Wood expects healthy competition in practice for playing time and has made no promises to the 15 returning starters.

"They're going to have to earn it," Wood said. "If someone beats out one of the returning starters, that will only make us better."

Participation is up again this year with 55 sophomores, juniors and seniors reporting Wednesday for the start of two-a-days, Wood said. He expects 35-37 freshman when they

Drought-related fungus threatens Texas corn crop

COLLEGE STATION — If any Texas corn plants survived the hot, dry growing season to produce kernels, chances are the kernels are loaded with aflatoxin, meaning further losses for farmers who attempt to market their crop.

"Two years ago was the worst season that we had seen for aflatoxin, and we had violation rates above 80 percent statewide," said Todd Jones,

Office of the Texas State Chemist mycotoxin lab supervisor. "And at this point this year, we seem to be approaching those levels again for Central and South Texas."

Jones said a "violation" is a sample which contains more than 20 parts per billion, the maximum amount allowed in grain for human consumption in products such as tortilla chips and for dairy cattle.

By comparison, the 1997 Texas corn crop — when the state was not suffering a widespread drought — had only 20 percent violations, Jones said.

Jones' lab runs about 1,000 regulatory mycotoxin samples a year on various susceptible crops such as corn, sorghum, cottonseed, peanuts and soybeans. Mycotoxins are toxins produced by fungi.

"I would be surprised if 100 percent of the dryland crop isn't over the 20 ppb level from the Rio Grande Valley to the Red River," said Cloyce Coffman of College Station, Texas Agricultural Extension Service agronomist. "There'll be big time money lost on the corn that is harvested."

Aflatoxins are toxic compounds produced in contaminated grains by the fungi Aspergillus flavus and Aspergillus parasiticus, and usually are more prevalent in years of high temperatures during flowering and grain-fill and during drought. Animals that consume high levels of these toxins may develop various health problems, depending on their susceptibility.

Though the U.S. Food and Drug Administration set 20 ppb as the maximum amount allowed in commodities for general market, 300 ppb is allowed for feedlot cattle, 200 ppb for market hogs and 100 ppb for breeding livestock, mature poultry, deer and other wildlife. Commodities with 1,000 ppb or higher must be destroyed. The law allows ammoniation of the affected corn crop with lower aflatoxin-containing crops. Feeds from aflatoxin-containing corn that has been either ammoniated or blended fall into more strict usages and cost producers more money than the crop may be worth, Coffman noted.

Corn and other crops are checked for the toxic compound several times from field to market — at the grain elevator, at state labs and at the ports before loading to foreign buyers. Jones said that at his lab, many samples are registering at 100 ppb and 200 ppb, several are over 500 ppb and six have topped 1,000 ppb this year.

"The main thing we want to do is assist the marketing channels in trying to keep the corn in suitable uses based on its level of aflatoxin," Coffman said. "There's a lot of scrutiny going on at elevators to determine what the levels are and then try to find a market for it."

He noted that farmers faced a losing battle with aflatoxin due to weather this year. Three conditions likely to stimulate aflatoxin outbreaks all have been present this year: hot, dry days at the time of the year when young corn plants are flowering, kernels damaged by earworms, ruptured seed coats as the kernels dry down for harvest.

The hot, dry days at flowering were the first sign of risk for aflatoxin occurrence in grain crops this season and farmers have no control or management tricks that can ward off such damaging temperatures.

"Aflatoxin molecules are very heat tolerant and stable," Coffman said. "Once the grain has it, it is not likely to break down."

probation Tuesday after the NCAA determined Tech lacked institutional control for allowing at least 76 ineligible athletes to compete from 1990-97. Tech lost several football scholarships as a result of the sanctions, but will be allowed to appear on TV and in bowl games.

"I was so afraid that they would keep us from playing in bowl games," said Dykes, now entering his 12th season as Tech's head coach.

He said he appreciated the loyalty Tech supporters have shown through the ordeal "because I know you've had to eat crow for the past few years."

A native West Texan, Dykes fits Texas Tech like an old pair of cowboy boots.

"People around here just love him," said Muleshoe school superintendent Bill Moore. "He and Texas Tech are as perfect a fit as a school and coach can be.

Dykes gave Moore his first high school coaching job in 1968 at Big Spring and the two have stayed in touch ever since.

"My dad was a coach and I thought I knew what it was like to work hard, but I found out that I didn't have a clue," Moore said. "(Spike) is the hardest working guy I've ever known."

Dykes said he was excited about the upcoming season and thinks his team will be competitive in the always tough Big XII.

"We lost quite a few players, but we have some players who are ready to step up and show they can play," Dykes said.

Texas Tech opens its season Sept. 5 when the Red Raiders host Texas-El Paso.

I Love Puppies, But, Face It, Puppy Breath Stinks

I love puppies in spite of the fact that puppy breath stinks.

I was reminded of this lofty truth by a good friend from Indiana, a preacher named Kent Ellett. Kent heard about a little child somewhere who was asked to write down a truth he'd learned. The child wrote this: "Puppies still have bad breath even after eating a Tic Tac." Very true.

Kent began to wonder out loud: "How much of my preaching is forcing straighten up and fly right is a little more church attendance, a little better rule-keeping, a little better doctrine (not bad things but nowhere near powerful enough to do any real and lasting good) are sick puppies.

You see, religion that is an outgrowth of a relationship with the Savior can be a beautiful thing. But if we put religion above relationship, we become Pharisees passing out Tic Tacs to people whose breath we think stinks. And ours stinks worst of all.

These thoughts and a conversation with another mutual friend led Kent to the New Testament story of "The Good Samaritan." The Samaritan helped the poor beaten-down man on the road not because that guy was such a fine moral character and deserved his help, but precisely because he was probably not. Kent says, "I rather suspect (just my opinion) that the man the Samaritan helped was a well-known jerk, senseless for being out alone on that road, or even a dangerous back-stabber who'd finally 'gotten what he deserved.'"

But Jesus shows us in the parable that it is only the "religiously wrong" unclean Samaritan who stooped to love the half-dead, dirty character on the road. He knew more about grace than the priest and the Levite who "passed by" in little clouds of "holier than thou" dust because he knew how much he himself needed it.

As Kent says, "It's a sure bet I'll never love someone with bad breath until I realize that mine stinks, too." Tic Tacs don't much help.

God's love & grace, Christ's sacrifice, the Spirit's power, do.

ing Tic Tacs down the throats of folks who are afraid I'm going to reject them because their breath stinks?"

And he made the point that nothing is wrong with eating Tic Tacs. Nothing is wrong with sermons which call us to holiness. We need them. But it takes more than a Tic Tac to cure the root causes of bad breath, and Kent is pretty sure the folks in his church know that it takes more than a list of "Thou shalt" and "Thou shalt not" to really answer their spiritual need.

As Kent says, "It would be a miracle for puppies' breath to quit stinking—and it most certainly takes a supernatural work of God to change a sinner and transform a believer as sick as me. It takes the resurrection power of the Spirit who raised Christ from the dead." Nothing less. And churches and Christians who think that all it takes to get folks to

Tech placed on four years probation

OVERLAND PARK, Kan. - Texas Tech's three-year-long NCAA violations case was settled Tuesday when the association decided the school's self-imposed penalties weren't strict enough.

In April, Tech put itself on three years probation. The NCAA increased it to four years and, though there will be no bans on postseason or TV appearances, charged Tech lacked institutional control for allowing at least 76 ineligible athletes to compete from 1990-97.

Violations were found involving nine different sports dating back to 1990 and included infractions of NCAA bylaws governing eligibility, extra benefits, recruiting, unethical conduct, failure to monitor and lack of institutional control.

Other penalties include reduction of total grants in a number of sports, initial grants in football and returning up to 90 percent of the revenues generated from the school's appearance in the 1996 Division I Men's Basketball Championship.

The nine sports involved in the violations include football, baseball, men's golf, men's and women's basketball, men's track, women's soccer, women's volleyball and men's tennis.

In other findings, the committee discovered that:

■ Student-athletes were improperly enrolled for correspondence courses.

■ An assistant coach committed academic fraud by completing course work for a student-athlete.

■ Student-athletes received extra benefits in the form of money, enrollment fees in junior colleges, and free long-distance telephone access.

■ Free bail bonding and legal services were provided to student-athletes.

■ Over the course of four years, the school exceeded NCAA grant limitations in four sports.

■ Three student-athletes received financial aid that exceeded a full grant-in-aid.

The committee also found that the university did not respond adequately to information it received that violations might have occurred and minimized or failed to follow up on conflicting information in the initial phases of the investigation. The committee noted that after March 1996 under new leadership, the university cooperated fully.

The committee noted its penalties were severe and numerous because of the lack of institutional control, the significant recruiting and competitive advantages gained, the length of time over which the violations occurred, and the fact that the violations were systematic and involved multiple sports.

Local junior golfers finish in top 10

FORTH WORTH — Ariel Flores and Keisha Whitt played well, but never really challenged in the Westcott Tournament of Champions golf tournament Aug. 3-4 at Hyatt Bear Golf Course.

Flores shot a second-straight 42 Tuesday and finished seventh in the boys 10-11 year-old division with an 84 in the 18-hole tournament. Joseph Totah of Palestine won the division with a two-over-par 74.

Whitt struggled to a 91 in the second round, finishing 10th overall with a 36-hole total of 181. Heather Basford of Vega won the division with a 73-79 — 152.

report Monday.

Last year, including freshman, 79 players showed up the first day.

"At some point, the numbers are going to level off," Wood said. "But we're already getting the numbers that we need. Now the athletes are coming out for football instead of walking the halls."

The first four days of two-a-days are non-contact, so the emphasis is on putting in the team's base offense and defense, and conditioning.

With temperatures in the low 90s the first two days, Wood said the break in the heat wave is welcomed.

"It's been pleasant working conditions," Wood said. "We're going to get them in shape one way or the other."

The Mules will start hitting Monday before finishing two-a-days on Wednesday.

The Mules will carry about 30 players on the varsity team this season, according to Wood. He said the chances of any sophomores earning varsity playing time this year appear remote.

The Mules will hold their first intrasquad scrimmage next Saturday, starting at about 9:15 a.m. at the high school practice field.

Making transition to college easier

Registration and roommates are just the basics. Classes and lack of sleep are also a part.

The college experience can be exciting and overwhelming. Extra preparation can create an easier transition for parents and students, according to West Texas A&M University's Dr. Don Johnson, assistant professor of psychology.

"It is important to establish clear guidelines between parents and students," he said. "For example, what are acceptable grades? What are the car arrangements going to be? How often is your student going to call home?"

Johnson said some practical things like setting up a checking account and giving laundry instructions can also be helpful for the new student.

"My mother taught me minor sewing repair," he said. "Try to prepare your student to live independently."

Johnson said this is a time when parents should try to give extra love and support to their new college student.

He suggests parents help their new student move in and spend the day with him or her.

"Spend a little time on campus; don't just dump you student off," he said. "Give your student a chance to adjust to the new setting. Don't make immediate plans to change his or her room drastically, and make the first "homecoming" a special occasion," he said.

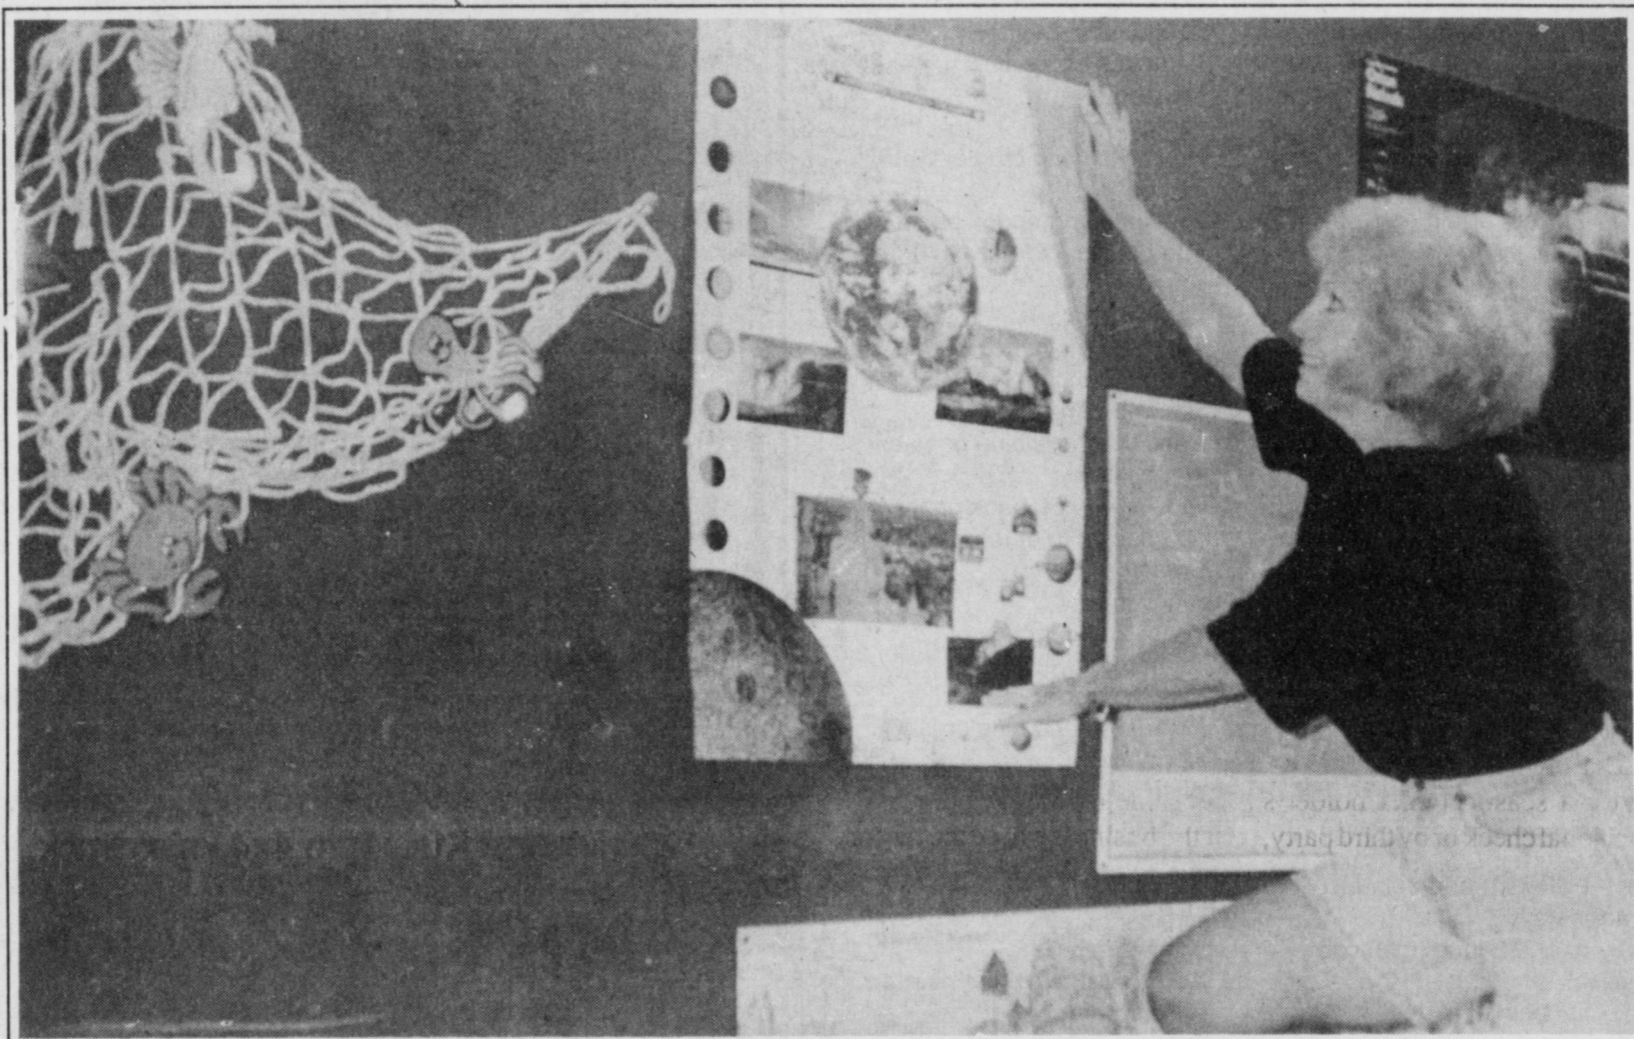

He also said special arrangements should be made for the commuting student.

"Look at changing the status of the student," Johnson said. "For example, how long can the student stay out?"

Johnson advises parents to understand that college is a completely different environment than high school, and the student will have different expectations placed on him or her even though he or she is living at home.

Another area parents should address is campus safety.

"Ask the college personnel about the crime rate on campus and safety measures in place Routes will remain the same as last year. New families to the area should call Transportation Director Richard Hawkins at 272-4710 to arrange for student transportation on a rural bus route.

Students living in the general area should walk to one of these locations to board the bus. Students will ride the same bus to and from school each day. Students and parents are reminded that it is a privilege to ride the bus.

Questions about specific stops may be answered by calling Hawkins at 272-4710. Questions about regulations and policy may be answered by the assistant superintendent, Adrian Meador at 272-3325.

for students," Meri Lyn Odell, University Police Department director of police administration and WTAMU victim assistance coordinator, said.

Odell encouraged students to take the same precautions they would take in public places.

Walking in groups, staying out of dark areas and always having car keys ready are some of the safety measures students should take.

Some campuses offer an escort service to assist students after dark. WTAMU's service is available 24 hours a day.

Odell said parents and students should also talk about the freedoms that go along with being away from home. Even though 18-year-old students are not old enough to legally drink alcohol, parents should discuss the responsibilities and dangers of alcohol and drug use.

"It may also be important to have frank discussions about sexual situations," Johnson said. "Share with them the realities of date rape."

Most colleges and universities have police departments equipped to aid students in need. WTAMU's Victim Assistance Program offers referrals and assistance to those needing attention.

Overall, Johnson said simple things like mail form home, periodic phone calls and a willingness to listen and share can be reassuring to the new college student.

Planning key to absorbing the impact of returning to school

As the summer break draws to an end and children begin preparing to go back to school, Consumer Credit Counseling Service of Greater Fort Worth wants to remind parents to start planning now for the sometimes forgotten costs of going back to school.

According to the National Retail Federation, youth apparel is a $20 billion industry that grows to its highest point during the fall as families prepare to return to school. On average, spending reaches $400 per child, say representatives of the Federation.

Parents generally remember to plan for school supplies and clothes, but often forget other related expenses, such as immunizations and extra-curricular activities. The additional cost for a child to play soccer can run anywhere from $40 to more than $100, depending on the age of the child.

Other expenses may include band instruments, travel, and graduation costs.

In addition, if a student is leaving for college, room and board and tuition expenses are usually planned, but books, living supplies (i.e. linens, personal hygiene items, decorations) and pre-trip car maintenance should also be considered.

"Back-to-school costs are like the holidays, taxes, vacation or any other periodic expense — consumers need to plan for them in advance," said Marianne Gray, president of CCCS. "Depending on the number of children, ages and type of schooling, this can be a major expenditure."

However, involving children in back-to-school shopping excursions is a great way to teach them the importance of budgeting and planning ahead for purchases, and gives parents the opportunity to reinforce good money management skills.

CCCS offers the following tips to help parents face back-to-school costs:

■ Establish a realistic budget and spending limit for each child. Determine how much money you can safely afford to spend and follow your plan as closely as possible. For college students establish a budget for the entire semester. If you will be giving your student a credit card, set a strict monthly limit. ■ Once you've established a dollar figure, let your children (with your help) list the items they feel they will need for school, including estimated prices. Help them determine priorities and emphasize the idea that sticking to a budget may mean sacrificing unnecessary items.

■ Add up the prices, compare the totals to the limit you've set for each child and share it with them. If the totals don't match, explain that there is a limited amount of money and it must cover all expenses. Suggest that perhaps a $30 pair of jeans could be substituted as an alternative for the $60 pair they want.

■ Shop with your children. Point out the benefits of sales, discount stores and lay-a-way. Discourage them from buying faddish items or shopping impulsively.

■ Try to spread purchases out over an extended period of time in order to avoid having to spend a large amount of money at one time. Make purchases with cash whenever possible; when using a credit card, use the card with the lowest interest rate and have a plan to repay the debt as quickly as possible.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

THE SHEPHERDS' PROTECTORS

WHILE THE YOUNG SHEPHERDS GUARDED THEIR FLOCKS THEY IN TURN QUITE OFTEN WERE GUARDED THEMSELVES BY SMALL BANDS OF YOUNG MEN WHO WERE SUITABLY ARMED TO WARD OFF BRIGANDS AND OUTLAWS WHO MIGHT STEAL THE SHEEP. THESE YOUTHS WERE USUALLY IN SOME KIND OF MINOR TROUBLE WITH THE AUTHORITIES. FOR PAY THEY RECEIVED FOOD FROM THE OWNERS OF THE FLOCKS, SUCH AN ARRANGEMENT WAS MADE BY DAVID AND HIS SMALL BAND OF COMPANIONS WHEN HE HAD TO LEAVE SAUL'S PALACE UNDER THREAT OF DEATH. THIS MEAGER BEGINNING LATER LED TO DAVID AMASSING AN ARMY POWERFUL ENOUGH TO ENSURE HIS CONTROL OF THE ENEMY PHILISTINES WHEN HE WAS MADE KING.

Field, Vetter wed July 11 in Muleshoe

Jody Beth Field and Marc Evan Vetter were united in marriage July 11 at the Muleshoe Church of Christ with the Rev. John Knox officiating.

Jody is the daughter of Terry and Charlotte Field of Muleshoe. Marc is the son of Paula Johnston of Odessa.

Lindsey Field, sister of the bride, served as Maid of Honor, and Ronda Box served as her bridesmaid. The groomsmen were Brent Vetter, brother of the groom, from Odessa. Best man was Derrick DeLaO also of Odessa. Ushers were Bryan Field, brother of the bride, and Junior DeLaO of Odessa.

Music was provided by the Wedding Chorus from the Muleshoe Church of Christ directed by Becky Jones. Kerry and Marci Wagon of Oklahoma City, aunt and uncle of the bride, sang "Annie's Song" during the lighting of the unity candle. They sang the same duet at the marriage of the bride's aunt 16 years ago.

The bride wore a white matt satin wedding gown by L'Amour. The sleeveless gown was designed with an empire bodice that featured a band of venetian lace at the bodice bottom edge. The lace was a rose design. Each rose was centered with a cluster of miniature pearls. At the waistline, the gown featured stitched down vertical pleats forming a fitted waistline. The gown had an "A" line silhouette with a deep square back neckline. Satin buttons fastened the back below a small matt satin bow. The full skirt flowed into a semi-Cathedral train.

The bride's fingertip veil was attached to a halo style headpiece covered with stephanotis and pearls.

The bridesmaids wore tea length, fitted A-line dresses of light mauve Crepe. The back featured a scooped neckline.

The groom wore a black Christian Dior tuxedo, with black and gold paisley brocade vest and tie.

The bride wore a pearl necklace and earrings belonging to her maternal grandmother that served as something old, something new was her bridal gown, something borrowed was her veil borrowed from her aunt, Leslie Denney, and something blue was the traditional garter. The bridal bouquet was made with ivory silk roses enhanced with ivory striped ribbon and pearls. All of the florals worn by the wedding party were designed and made by the bride's mother.

The reception was held in the family room at the church. Nicole Maxfield of Midland served at the bride's table. The four-tiered bridal cake was a Bavarian cream cake decorated with fresh roses and greenery. The top two layers were separated by five-inch pillars. The cake was served on a round table covered with an ivory cutwork cloth with an ivory underlay. Tulle and bows edged the table. Completing the decoration was the bridal bouquet and a dreamsicle of "The Happy Couple" that was a wedding gift from the bride's cousin, Melissa Knowlton.

Serving at the groom's table was Leslie Elliott of Canyon. The groom's cake was a large chocolate cake with chocolate mousse filling. Chocolate curls and dark chocolate leafing were used to decorate the cake and a large cascade of chocolate covered strawberries completed the decoration.

Serving at the punch table from a large brass punchbowl was Crista Trussell of Canyon, friend of the bride. Brass and Crystal appointments were used.

Serving in the houseparty were Gary and Holly Hooten,

Lanny and Lenda Trussell, Gene and Kerma McGuire, James and Dianne Brown and Scott and Leslie Denney.

After a honeymoon in Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, the couple will reside in Midland where Marc is employed by the Associates in Midland as assistant manager and Jody is a teacher for Midland ISD.
