The price of cotton remains steady with no decrease in value from last week's quotations despite the fact that the statistics on the industry are becoming more bearish. Exports are falling off. The into-sight figures are limited large. Spinners' takings are falling behind expectations. The demand for spots is slack, and the futures markets remain steady.

BROWN COUNTY RAW MATERIALS WILL BE USED IN NEW INDUSTRY.
Fred Kinney, millwright representing S. Howse Co., Silver Creek, New York, arrived this week and is proceeding rapidly with the installation of the Austin Mill & Grain Company's new machinery for the manufacture of mixed feed, dairy and horse and mule feeds. The Austin firm have purchased the most modern and up-to-date machinery known to the milling industry. The new mill will be located in the building formerly occupied by the John G. Lee Milling Company and which the Austin mill has been using for a storage plant several years.

PROGRAM INCLUDES ADDRESS BY WIDELY KNOWN TEXAS EDUCATORS.
Several hundred teachers from Central West Texas counties, comprising the membership of the Mid-Texas Teachers Association, will meet in Brownwood on March 5 and 6, the first Friday and Saturday of March for the purpose of attending the annual institute held in this city.

JUDGE WALTER BURTON NOTED POULTRY EXPERT, SPEAKER
Announcement is made this morning that Judge Walter Burton, famous poultry expert of Arlington, Texas, who is president of the judges section of the American Poultry Association, a licensed poultry judge, associate editor of the O.K. Poultry Journal of Mounds, Okla., and a life-long breeder and writer on poultry will be in Brownwood Friday to make an educational lecture to the poultry raisers of this section of the country, at the County Court House at two thirty o'clock in the evening. Following the lecture Mr. Burton will be glad to meet all of the poultry breeders possible and to answer any questions that may be asked.

The well being drilled by the Hutton Oil Company on the Mauldin farm, northeast of Brownwood, is down a considerable depth and experts are watching it with much interest as the log shows beyond doubt that the location is of very promising nature.

Brownwood is to put up $1000 together with the $1,000 of Cross Plains and Cross Cut, to maintain the road from the Jim Ned to the county line, a distance for some 22 1-2 miles. The County Commissioners Court will buy a one-man road maintainer and give it to the citizens to keep this road in shape. The road work is to be supervised by the committee as appointed by proper authorities in Cross Plains, Cross Cut and Brownwood.

So that with all the conflicting features the market is just holding steady with those in the cotton industry not knowing whether to expect higher or lower prices. However if the writer may venture a prognosis, it would seem reasonable that with the slackening demand and decrease in takings of cotton by world's spinners, the chances for the immediate future are for gradually lower prices.

The new plant will be under the supervision of W. J. Logan, who has supervised the manufacture of the firm's "Cake Flour" for the past twenty years and who stands high in milling circles of the State of Texas.

The programs have been sent out to the various teachers over this part of the state and on this program are many interesting topics to be discussed by prominent educators of Texas.

It is a rare opportunity to hear such a speaker as is Judge Burton in any manner. All members willing to learn more or to ask any question that you might have in mind we urge you to attend the big lecture Friday evening at the Court House at two thirty o'clock.

It is understood that the Commissioners Court is to keep up the work on the road work together with the bridges and culverts between the Jim Ned and the county line.

The grain market suffered a severe decline the past week. Wheat in Chicago on Wednesday reaching the low price of 1.14 1-2 cents per bushel. This was due principally to the big drop in foreign markets. Liverpool, Winnipeg and Buenos Aires markets have been consistently weak every day, and the differences between those markets and the American market was widened still further. The Chicago wheat market is today the highest market for grain on earth despite its proximity to the growing place of the grain.

Another carload of fertilizer is being ordered for Brown county farmers, and the earlier order placed the better it will be for the farmers who contemplate using the mixture "for the land's sake," and which has already arrived and the new trade mark is a beautiful insignia on white cotton bags.

The principal speakers who will attend this meeting besides Dr. Horn and Miss Duffy, are George Bingham, noted humorist; R. L. Marquis, president of the North Texas State Teachers College; S. M. N. Marrs, state superintendent of public instruction, and R. T. Ellis, secretary of the State Teachers Association.

Uncle Jim Miller Tells Some Old Time Jokes and Stories
Uncle Jim Miller was in town on Saturday and as usual had some interesting stories to relate concerning things that happened in Brownwood long time ago. For instance he told of the time when the county jail occupied a position on the court house square. One night two men were put in the jail—one charged with something and the other with something else. That night one of the men broke out with the measles, and inasmuch as the other had never had the measles he undertook to get out by burning the hinges off the door. In this work he came near being burned up himself, and also the other prisoner, who as a result of exposure and the intense heat and excitement hovered between life and death several days.

The Story of Lottie Collins

BY HENRY C. FULLER.

The village of Dulin, in Brown county, is named in memory and honor of a pioneer family—the Dulin family, which consisted of Thos. Brown and his wife, who came to Brown county and settled in early days. There is hardly a locality in Brown county that is not connected in some way with incidents of tragic or romantic nature. The locality of Dulin is no exception to this observation thus applied. Nor is Dulin alone. There are others, and probably some day, these incidents will be collected and published.

Thomas F. Dulin was born in Ohio. He died at his home at Dulin, September 8, 1892, victim of an accident that overtook him while riding over his pasture looking after his cattle, of which he had a large number. It seems that while going at a rapid gait the horse stumbled and fell, catching Mr. Dulin under the saddle in such way as to injure him in a fatal way. He was a widow and an adopted daughter, Lottie Collins Dulin, now Mrs. E. L. Dixon, of Brownwood.

The events that led to the adoption of Lottie Collins as the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dulin is of a most interesting nature and is therefore the central part of this story.

In his early manhood Thomas F. Dulin, moved to Kentucky and there he met and fell in love with Miss Lottie E. Epperson. As the assiduous would put it, the couple married in due time, because it was a case of love at first sight. Hardly had their honeymoon closed when Mr. and Mrs. Dulin set out in their search for the Golden Fleece, which they felt sure was to be found somewhere in the far and romantic west. Unlike Jason of mythical story, who sailed in his Argosies, they made their way westward as best they might for both were young and full of the fire of youth and ambition.

In these days there were no railroads. Their travels brought them at length to Brown county or what is now Brown county and they located in the vicinity of where the village of Winchell is now situated. Land was easy to obtain and in time the Dulin became owners of a considerable tract. These two pioneer people were industrious. They settled the locality in which they were to live in. And so there was only one shadow or regret in that time in the western wilderness and that was—the years passed without children came to bless it. Nowhere was there heard the prattle of children's voices, or the mother's heart of Mrs. Dulin and parental affection and sympathy of Mr. Dulin was not satisfied.

One day a stranger came to their door and asked for permission to take a brief rest, as he had been traveling and was very weary. Permission was of course given in that whole-hearted and generous way, so expressive of the western spirit of the old days. The rest of a few days became permanent when the man whose name was Henry Knighton Fields, entered into an agreement with Mr. Dulin to remain with him and accept such tasks as came naturally in the conduct of the place. This connection grew into the warmest friendship between Fields and his hosts, and in time he came to know their disappointment. Mr. Dulin told Fields that he and Mrs. Dulin would be glad to adopt a heir, preferably a little girl, if one could be found wholly worthy and without relatives and to such child they would leave all their earthly belongings.

Fields studied the matter over and told Mr. and Mrs. Dulin that he knew of just such child as he and Mrs. Dulin would like to have but that she lived beyond the sea—in an orphanage at Portsea, near Portsmouth, England, and that this child then 7 years old, was the ward of his sister, Mary Fields, of the orphanage nursing staff.

"If you will go and bring that little girl to us," answered Mr. Dulin, "I will gladly pay your way to Portsea, and return and also all expenses necessary for bringing the little girl."

The name of the little girl then 7 years old, was Lottie Collins. Lottie was brought to the orphanage by her mother when two years old, who simply stated that the father of the baby was dead and she could not take the proper care of her. The child was placed in charge of Mary Fields and from time to time its mother came to see it and then finally went away to return no more.

Henry Knighton Fields entered at once on his great adventure. He went to Portsea and after much persuasion succeeded in obtaining permission to bring Lottie Collins to America. He and Lottie, 7 years old, sailed from England on the good ship "Queen," July 7, 1884, and it took three weeks to reach New York, where the couple spent several days and went one Sunday to hear Dr. T. DeWitt Talmadge preach at Brooklyn Tabernacle. Then they came on to the home in the west.

Mr. and Mrs. Dulin were overjoyed. They lavished everything in the way of love and affection on Lottie that parents could have possibly lavished upon their own child and in turn Lottie was an affectionate and loving daughter in every sense of the word. Under their care and guidance she grew rapidly into splendid girlhood and when fifteen years old married E. L. Dixon, member of one of the pioneer families of Brownwood. By the Dulin Lottie Collins was educated and given every advantage and true to their word all their earthly belongings were left to her at their death. Mrs. Dixon is still a young woman, and in her delightful home in Brownwood with her husband and splendid children she some times talks of the days of her childhood beyond the seas, and in her memory there lives now, the picture of an elderly man, a bundle of clothes under his arm, leading a little girl by the hand, as the two wave goodbye to a gentle woman Mary Fields, who conceals her tears with her hand and closes the door of the orphanage which to her had been a home for five years.

For many years Mrs. Dixon kept in correspondence with Mary Field but it has now been quite a while since any word came from over the sea of this friend, while Henry Knighton Field, left the Dulin home many years ago and no tidings ever came back from him.

The Paris Morning News: "That date has been named Brownwood Day, in honor of the fact that a visitor is to be presented to Brownwood's Old Gray Mare band at the Good Citizenship banquet at Lamar fair coliseum that night."

"A public reception, parade and the presentation ceremonies will be included in the opening day program, with state and national officers of the American Legion present, besides a large delegation from Brownwood, as well as from Fort Worth, Dallas and other cities. Newspapers all over the state and two film companies will broadcast the event over the entire country."

"Speakers at the banquet will be Henry W. Stanley, who is conducting the merchants' leagues of the institute; Joseph Leopold of the United States chamber of commerce; John W. Carpenter of the Texas Power and Light company and T. O. Walton, president of A & M College."

The president of the Chamber of Commerce believes firmly that the business people of Brownwood as a matter of civic pride and by way of showing that they appreciate the courtesy of the people of Paris should go in large numbers to Paris and be present on the night of February 22. The program will be unique in every particular and the publicity Brownwood will receive from it will be national in character.

The good people of Indian Creek of the Methodist denomination have almost completed their splendid church, and it will be a credit to Brown county.

TAKE A GOOD LOOK AT SARAH II

THIS Old Gray Mare, whose life hitherto has been spent in peace and quiet somewhere in Lamar county, Texas, is destined to greatness as the mascot of the famous Old Gray Mare Band. She is now Maggie, the unknown; but after next Monday will be Sarah II, mascot of the Band that is known from Kalamazoo to Juarez and from Cape Cod to Hollywood.

TRANSPORTATION IS REDUCED TO SCIENCE NO TIME IS WASTED

OLD TIME METHODS AND WAYS HAVE BEEN THROWN INTO DISCARD—EVERYBODY BUSY.

One of the outstanding features of modern progress is the rapid development of means and methods of transportation. The writer has an old time Texas almanac which gives the different stage routes in Texas, long time ago, and their schedule of operations. Very few towns had daily stage service. Generally, as shown by the old time schedule the stage arrived on certain days only and brought mail and passengers. Of course, in many instances towns and larger places had daily service.

There were no railroads in Texas with the exception of the Houston & Texas Central which had built from Houston as far as Brenham. A large number of stage lines, therefore centered at Brenham in order to make connection with the railroad and thence to Galveston where ships might be taken for all the eastern cities.

The route into Texas by land was from the eastern states to Natchitoches on Red River and then by stage to San Augustine and Nacogdoches, and innumerable other places, line connecting with line until a vast section of the state could be reached by this kind of travel. Finally in 1856 a stage line was established between San Antonio, Texas, and San Diego, California, where connection was made with steamers sailing for China and Japan and up the west coast of the United States.

From New Orleans the passenger traveled up the Mississippi river by steamboat until he reached Red River and then followed Red River as stated to Natchitoches where he took stage. At San Augustine, Nacogdoches, Marshall, Crockett, Navasota, Brenham, Palestine, San Antonio, Austin and many places in the west, stage lines connected with other lines and close connection was made.

Now the scene is changed. The railroads came and had their day. It seems now that the motor vehicle is to supersede all other contrivances in the way of travel. Drummers used to make their rounds in buggies and double team surreys, with half a dozen trucks as the unit of freight, in the way of samples. If they made thirty miles a day and saw one customer they did well. They stayed where they overtook them. Everybody knew the old time drummer and his lot was a hard one, although, he managed to look constantly on the bright side of life, and always carried a new schedule of jokes. Now the drummer travels in an automobile and unless he makes at least one hundred miles per day and sees half a dozen customers he is not satisfied with the day's work. He carries his samples in a waterproof car and does his own driving. He hits a town at high speed, gets through with his work and hurries to the next without asking anything about train schedules or time tables which have long since lost their meaning to him.

From Brownwood people may travel in every direction at almost every hour of the day, on public motor vehicles. This service in addition to good train service adds a breezy air to the spirit of universal progress and helps move the wheels of the world. Everybody is in a hurry and while there is more to do than at any previous time; the history of the world, there are means and methods of doing it five times quicker and easier.

CHURCHMAN ADVOCATES EUGENICS TO REPRESS BREEDING OF UNFIT

SOCIALLY UNFIT ARE IMPEDIMENT TO PROGRESS OF GOD'S KINGDOM.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The Rev. Dr. E. W. Barnes, bishop of Birmingham, made an outspoken declaration last night in advocacy of repressive measures against breeding of the unfit.

The occasion for the address was a meeting of the Eugenics Educational Society. The bishop contended that the socially unfit were an impediment to the creation of what Christians termed the kingdom of God on earth.

Strong arguments could be submitted, the bishop declared, for the sterilization of mental defectives but religious sentiment was opposed to it.

BETTER COTTON STAPLE

SEVERAL of the cotton dealers of Brownwood, who annually handle more than a hundred thousand bales of the staple, are interesting themselves in the campaign to improve the cotton product of the county, and are planning to offer cash prizes for the largest yields of long-staple cotton on five-acre tracts of non-irrigated land.

There is as much difference in value between short staple, "half-and-half" cotton and long staple cotton as there is between a broom-tail pony and a Kentucky thoroughbred. This season there are hundreds of thousands of bales of short staple cotton that has no market, and some of it is in this county.

Deluded by the promise of a larger yield per acre, many farmers planted the half-and-half cotton, and harvested a crop of low grade stuff that cannot command a price sufficient to pay the cost of production. Brown county is not a cotton raising county, as Texas counties are reckoned. The normal crop here is around fifteen to sixteen thousand bales, and this crop ought by all means to be high-class stuff that can be sold on the highest market.

THE PASSING DAY

By WILL H. MAYES

THE NAME, "The Winter Garden," as applied to all that section of Texas lying south of San Antonio, is going to stick to the country, because it fits. They are growing vegetables down there all the winter through, and are making money out of them. Almost the entire section may be irrigated either from the streams or from wells, and most of the soil is of a kind especially adapted to vegetables. The people have known this a long while, and they have known how to produce the crops. Unfortunately, though, they have not until recently known how to market what they grow to advantage.

CLOSER MARKETING ORGANIZATION This leads to repetition of something said before in this column. What the farmers need more than help in crop production is assistance in marketing. If the government and other agencies that are telling the farmers how to produce would only give as much aid to them in marketing as in production, farming would become profitable enough to attract the best thought of the country. The farmer has been imposed upon in the matter of marketing until he has become discouraged, except in a few localities specializing in crops that the market can successfully market through co-operation. It is impossible, it seems, for farmers to organize over a large territory for co-operative marketing of staple crops, like cotton, wheat or corn. The National Government should lend its help in working out a marketing system that will largely stabilize the markets for farm products. Farming should be made as a merchandising business and only the Government can bring this about.

IMPORTANCE OF DECISION I read a statement a while ago that impressed me, not because it was new, but because of the way it was made. In substance it was that most of us lack decision. We plan enough, but do not act on our plans. It is better to drop some plans, but indecision can grow on us until we lose the courage to attempt anything out of the general routine of our actions. It is better to fail occasionally in our efforts than not to try. Most of the successes in life have been on the part of those who have ventured. If you plan carefully and carry out your plans thoroughly you may succeed, but a lifetime spent in making plans that are never set to work is a lifetime wasted. Think back of the things you have planned to do, but have dropped without a trial, but out of which you could have realized great returns if only you had acted on your plans. This suggestion as to the value of decision applies to other things than to money making. Good resolutions are valueless until they are set to work.

MEASURING YOUR SUCCESS Success is something hard to define or measure. Most people measure it in terms of dollars, and yet dollars in themselves do not make success. Perhaps a better definition would be, "The realization of one's hopes or expectations," and that comes far short of a satisfactory definition. Most of us would be failures if any such standards were applied. After all, about the only real success we can be certain of is in having worthy ideals toward which we have faithfully worked. We can never be certain about accomplishment. Money, position or other things toward which we work, even when apparently secured, may be disappointing failures. Success is in the efforts we make, not in the visible results.

GRAFT NO LONGER STARTLES The people have heard so much of graft recently that they are no longer startled by any kind of reports they hear. Evidence that persons high in office, and to whom the people have entrusted their money, have betrayed their trust and have used their positions to their own advantage and to the disadvantage of the public, hardly causes passing comment. There was a time when the grafter and the thief were classed about alike, if in fact the official who stole public funds was not regarded as worse than the petty robber of individuals. The country is sadly in need of a quickened public conscience.

POLITICAL SLATE MAKERS It is amusing to read the prophecies of those who pretend to know or to be able to foretell what is coming in the politics of the State. In politics the past is no guide to the future. What happened last year or years ago is not even an indication of what may spring forth in politics. The voter is whimsical and impulsive and votes usually according to his conviction of today rather than on his actions of yesterday. Most political writers are merely wild guessers, who write on the presumption that their bad guesses will soon be forgotten.

Daily Washington Letter

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Does a congresswoman socially outrank the wife of a cabinet officer? This is a serious question, now that women are breaking into Congress in increasing numbers—already a quarter of a dozen strong. It needs to be answered immediately, but there's no prospect of it. The highest authorities disagree.

That a cabinet officer outranks a representative is a well recognized principle of social law. It seems to follow naturally that his wife outranks a representative's wife. Presumably he (a cabinet officer) outranks a congresswoman, too. Only, as between cabinet officers (at any rate until some woman gets a portfolio) and congresswomen, there isn't much prospect of a clash.

But, as between cabinet officers' wives and congresswomen, there's such a prospect—or rather, its right with us now.

When the present Washington "season" opened the capitalist social arbiters' first thought seems to have been to class Congresswomen Florence P. Kahn, Mary T. Norton and Edith N. Rogers among representatives' wives, as, indeed, Congresswomen Kahn and Norton (Not Congresswoman Rogers) had been.

But the White House does the situation out differently. There it's argued that an official status is binding and that, before it, a social status has to give way. Well, a congresswoman has an official status and a cabinet officer's wife has none. She shines only by a reflected light. A congresswoman shines by her own.

What the White House thinks has a great deal of weight. But, after all, there is only one White House and there are 10 "cabinet ladies"—not all wives, for there are some widowers in the cabinet. This makes social Washington stop and reflect. If it were a case of the White House versus the "cabinet lady" social Washington would make up its mind in a minute—on the White House's side. But one against 10; that's pretty heavy odds.

Now, if anybody imagines this is all bosh, and that it doesn't really matter a bit who takes precedence of whomsoever else in official Washington, let him consider the interesting fact that the members of Congress and of the Supreme Court of the United States have been received separately at the White House ever since President Cleveland's day. What does that signify? Why, it signifies that it never has been possible to determine since then whether a Supreme Court justice takes precedence of a senator or a senator of a Supreme Court justice.

Previous to the Justices and the senators had been received by the president by luck and chance—first come, first served. But Chief Justice Fuller raised the point that he and his associates were bigger men than senators and ought to come first in line. The senators refused to yield. Cleveland had to decide the dispute and didn't dare to decide either way. So he split the receptions up. He never invited a senator and a Supreme Court justice to call on him at the same time. He was afraid they'd fall to pulling one another's hair if he did.

That dispute's been pending for 25 or 30 years. It looks as if another one was about to start now.

NONESSENTIAL PURCHASING

Philadelphia Evening Bulletin: Critics of partial payment purchasing who are prone to harp upon the buying of "nonesentials" will find something to think about in Babson's current letter. Not only does he record the fact that the lines of retail trade more active than a year ago—something more than half of forty-five lines—the leaders are in goods considered as nonessential. He adds the opinion that "people want modern comforts and conveniences and they are buying them, even though it means economizing on actual necessities." Further, he warns that "when depression comes again merchants and manufacturers handling the usual necessities of life will find their business declining as well as so called luxury business."

Paraphrasing an old adage, it is true that one time's luxuries are the necessities of another. It would be hard to classify the necessities and luxuries, or nonessentials, of the American people. In wearing apparel, in the furniture of the home, in the appliances for household work, in utility service, in food and at every turn of life, another generation's luxuries, and some things beyond their dreams, are today's necessities, or conveniences that have become near necessities.

Widespread prosperity, which is an increased margin between the bare cost of existence and the earning power, has lengthened the reach of the ordinary wage earner's family. Inventive genius and the development of industry have brought many nonessentials within easier reach. Together they have created a new opportunity for ordinary people to enjoy greater comforts and conveniences, and the result is a new standard of living equipment and habit, and a new range of necessities.

Babson notes that "the demand toward pleasure-giving and labor-saving devices is increasing" and believes that "this business is sound and that within limits the consumers can not be criticized for economizing on many of the fundamental necessities in order to have more of the modern comforts." He knows human nature better than those who would censor the buying habit of others.

CHRIST AND LAZARUS

Text: John 11:32-44.

THEN when Mary was come, where Jesus was, and saw him, she fell down at his feet, saying unto him, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died. When Jesus therefore saw her weeping, and the Jews also weeping which came with her, he groaned in the spirit, and was troubled. And said, Where have ye laid him? They said unto him, Lord, come and see. Jesus wept. Then said the Jews, Behold how he loved him! And some of them said, Could not this man, which opened the eyes of the blind, have caused that even this man should not have died? Jesus therefore, again groaning in himself, cometh to the grave. It was a cave, and a stone lay upon it. Jesus said, Take ye away the stone. Martha, the sister of him

The International Uniform Sunday Lesson for February 21st: Christ the Resurrection and the Life.—John 11:32-44.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D. (Editor of The Congregationalist.) WHAT has been said concerning the miracle of the feeding of the five thousand applies equally to the raising of Lazarus from the dead. If a miracle could be explained it would cease to be a miracle. It is difficult to believe that Jesus performed the comparatively few miracles of which there is record in the New Testament without performing a great many others of which we have no record, so that the miraculous things that have been recorded would seem to be there because they symbolize and illustrate the spiritual reality and power of Christ. The miracles are miracles of feeding, healing, giving sight and giving life. They typify the performance of the body of all that Jesus is powerful and willing to do for the souls of men.

The story of the raising of Lazarus emphasizes alike the loving sympathy and the wonder-working power of Christ. His real humanity is expressed in what in our English version is the shortest verse in the Bible, "Jesus wept." What Jesus meant to this home at Bethany he should mean to every home. He had been in this home sharing its hospitality. He wants to come into every home sharing its hospitality, partaking of its joys and of all of its pleasant relations, but he would not mean to every home. He had come to our homes also when the cloud of sorrow hangs heavily over us. If there is any power in the world that can work miracles, it is this power of unfeeling love. Not long ago there was occasion to recall an incident, related years ago in The Congregationalist, concerning a well-known Congregational minister, who, some forty years ago, apparently died and was laid out for burial. His friends were mournfully awaiting the funeral when a nurse, who had nursed him

THE PARSON'S COLUMN

"THEY SAY"—"They" is more frequently quoted than any other authority with which the Parson is acquainted, and so, he supposes, it is the very best authority. Be that as it may, "they say" that the following colloquy took place at Ballinger during the last term of court. Judge Woodward to venieman:—"So you've formed an opinion in this case?" Venieman, looking hard at Walt Early—Looking hard at IMM's Early:—"Yes, your honor, one look at that man convinced me that he was guilty." Judge Woodward:—"Heaven's Man, that is the prosecuting attorney."

Dirt on the face is dirt on the face, whatever color it may be. Sweet air is odorless.

Yes, and dirty literature is dirty without regard to who writes or distributes it.

The Parson wonders whether or not it will be taken as an excuse, when the times come, that vile literature was written and distributed in the way of business and in answer to demand. A hundred thousand men and women have lived out their lives as faithful husbands and wives; but they never obtained the notoriety which the Stillmans have achieved through coming together "en trial" after filling the nation with the stench of their conjugal difficulties. But, perhaps, they would rather be without the notoriety.

The foot ball season is over. The basket ball season is just about to close. The baseball season will then open. Will the studies be taken up in the vacation?

The very heart of Christianity is the indwelling of the spirit. This can neither be proven nor explained; it can only be experienced. The doctrine has been sorely abused; it is exceedingly liable to abuse; yet it remains true forever that "the world cannot receive him, because it seeth Him not," neither knoweth Him; but the faithful disciple does know Him, because he dwelleth with Him and shall be in Him." The spirit dwells in a man to make him wish to do right and hate to do wrong. Not that, so long as we are in the flesh, we shall ever be so obedient to His monitions and guidance that we shall never do wrong. That to the Parson's mind is a grievous error, productive of many evils. But the Spirit does remove the governance of a man's conduct from without to within. Not by laws written on bronze tablets or graven on tables of stone shall the Christian be governed; but in his heart the law shall be written. He shall love righteousness and hate iniquity. Conflict there will always be; for "the flesh lusteth against the spirit and the spirit against the flesh; and these are contrary one to the other." The conflict will sometimes be so keen that the battlesoul shall cry almost in despair. "O wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me from this body of death?" But it will come a time that the doing of wrong, even though the immediate consequences be avoided, will be a source of grief and that every conquest of the baser self will be a cause for exultation.

The preachers may some of them be cranky; some of them may be mistaken on some points; but they will all preach Christ and his crucifixion to go to church to-morrow.

POULTRY EXPERT TELLS OF HIS VISIT TO BIG BROWNWOOD EXHIBIT

CORNISH MEN DID NOT FAIL TO BOOST THEIR BIRDS; PRAISES AUDITORIUM.

Walter Burton, well known poultry expert, of Arlington, Texas, writes an interesting story for the O. K. Poultry Journal, of Mounds, Oklahoma, in which he gives some facts and figures in connection with the great Cornish exhibit and Brown County Poultry Show held at Brownwood last autumn. Mr. Burton has acted as judge once or twice in the Brown county poultry shows and is widely known as expert authority. He is president of the judges section of the American Poultry Association and also an official of many other organizations. Last autumn Mr. Burton was judge of the fine show at Brady and on the conclusion of his work there, came to Brownwood and spent a day or so looking over the exhibit here. In his communication to the O. K. Poultry Journal he says:

"On our way home from San Saba, we stopped at Brownwood, Texas, to see the International American Cornish Meet and the poultry show in general. When we were going to our hotel, we asked the bus driver how the poultry show was and he said that it was a success in every way and they were holding a big banquet up at the Southern Hotel that night. When we registered, we came back down and walked in. It was a banquet for the Cornish breeders with a few extra friends invited. What amused us as much as anything else was the good talks made and the substantial obligations made by the breeders of Cornish that they were going from Brownwood talking their chosen breed, the Cornish, and hatch and raise all the chicks they could and come to gether next year at the International Cornish Meet at Colorado Springs, Colorado. We were then told by Mr. J. L. Lewis, toastmaster of the meeting that this was the most successful meet in the history of the International American Cornish Club. There were something like 500 birds showing. Readers, this is a demonstration of what working together can do. You could not attend that show without in some way having a feeling that you would like to become a member of that Club and breed Cornish chickens. The members were all in various parts of the show talking and explaining the good qualifications of Cornish to visitors at the show. Don't get the idea that there were no other birds shown but Cornish, on account of this club meeting. We looked the show room over pretty carefully and saw many other good varieties showing in Rhode Island Reds, White Wyandottes, White Orpingtons, American English White Leghorns, Barred Plymouth Rocks, Silver Laced Wyandottes, Buff Orpingtons, Brown Leghorns, White Plymouth Rocks, Mottled Anconas, White and Black Minorcas. The show was staged in the municipal auditorium which furnished an up-to-date show room, splendid light and gave the show a Madison Square Garden effect. This large auditorium within itself did not hold the exhibit. Under the elevated seats on each side, there were cooped many birds. This show was promoted by the leading breeders of Brownwood but in some way, we failed to get a premium list and cannot call the names of officers, but, as many know, Brownwood is an up-to-date little city and breeders get right on the job each year and promote a good show."

Knob-Knockers Rob Auto House In Santa Anna

Burglars entered the Santa Anna Motor Company, Ford dealers, the Mountain City early this morning, knocked the knobs off the doors with a sledge-hammer and escaped with some $400 in cash and a $10,000 worth of notes, a telephone message from Santa Anna this afternoon. The burglars are believed to have entered the building early in the morning by using a crow-bar to prize the front door open and then used a sledge-hammer to gain entrance to the strong boxes in the safe. Stafford Baxter is manager of the Santa Anna Motor Company. Officers of Coleman county were notified and started an investigation but at a late hour this afternoon no clues had been found. The burglars secured one of the latest and most expensive cars from a Santa Anna business house or bank, it was stated.

OIL PRODUCTION IN BROWN COUNTY NEARLY 3,000 BARRELS DAILY

OUTPUT IS WORTH CONSIDERABLE AMOUNT OF INVESTMENT IN MACHINERY.

Considerable demand for information regarding the Brown county oil development situation is being received by the county agricultural agent.

The daily production of the combined oil areas of Brown county may be placed at about 2225 barrels. This includes all the fields—Cross Cut, Clear Creek, Byrds and the isolated wells wherever they may be.

To the layman who looks at an oil map or who gets in a car and drives over the country, the game seems dead and uncertain.

So it is with the oil man. He looks over a given piece of ground and on the surface it looks good. He picks up a rock and reads what appears to be characters written in letters of oil back in the Paleozoic age.

Here is the secret of oil development in the Central West—somebody must bring in a big well—well that puts out at least 500 barrels every day and even more.

It is very probable that with the contracts that have been let for wells in Brown county, that the increase in oil production may soon be increased to 3,000 barrels per day and much more.

THE DAIRYING INDUSTRY

BY O. P. GRIFFIN, County Agricultural Agent.

Following is an article prepared for The Bulletin by O. P. Griffin, county agricultural agent, who is always seeking a method to better the many agricultural and rural industries of Brown county.

The article below is one on dairying which Mr. Griffin wrote in connection with the much discussed subject of dairying.

Mr. Griffin has been co-operating with the Chamber of Commerce in this matter and has been assisting in gathering information and data to be sent to the company.

Mr. Griffin has also conducted tests on dairy herds in the county for the past two or three years with great success, both of the owners and the dairy industry.

Problems. There are two outstanding problems the solution of which must be sought at the same time. They are Low Production per Cow and Poor Markets.

Without attempting to determine exactly what the average production per cow is, we know that it is too low to bring the producer a profit even if a ready market were provided for all our surplus milk.

What to Do. First, leaders should be chosen in at least eight communities to make contact between a central organization and the milk producers.

"Milk producers should work with the leaders in weeding out the unprofitable cows, in using only sires of families whose production is known to be profitable and in adopting better methods of feeding."

The machinery invested in this production, counting wear and tear, and loss by deterioration probably represents an outlay of several million dollars.

So it might be said by way of summing up that the outlook for oil development in Brown county is very favorable.

throughout the year that counts. "Next in importance to the culling or even surpassing it is the use of good sires. There are several hundred scrub bulls in our county that ought to go to the slaughter house next week.

"Please notice we have not yet suggested anything that would increase your expenses. If four or five farmers would club together and own a good dairy bull the expense would actually be less than what we are now out supporting numerous scrubs.

"The other cause of low production is improper feeding. Here rapid progress can be made feeders will only accept the information given out by the Experiment Stations and experienced dairymen.

"Each boy would secure a heifer calf of good breeding, feed and care for it and exhibit it at the Brownwood Fair.

"Lessons and practice in judging dairy cattle could be given at the club meetings. Besides this a lot of general information could be broadcasted in this way.

"If you are interested start something in your community."

SIMMS OIL COMPANY ENTERS TRADE AREA BROWNWOOD COUNTRY

BOULDIN & GILMORE OPEN NEW WAREHOUSE SERVICE HERE SATURDAY MORNING.

As was announced in these columns a few days ago, Bouldin & Gilmore are now sole agents in the Brownwood territory for the Simms Oil Company.

The Simms Oil Company was organized in July, 1919, E. P. Simms, from whom the company got its name, taking the lead in the venture.

Production in Four States. From a production centered virtually altogether in 1920 in the Homer (La.) field, the Simms has increased its producing properties until it is now operating in four states—Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

The refinery acquired from the Clayton Oil and Refining Company last June has a daily skimming capacity of 4,500 barrels and four cracking units, with total daily capacity of 3,200 barrels.

Number of Filling Stations. Simms is building up its distribution system for its refined products rapidly. It has sixteen filling stations for the sale of gasoline in Dallas and in addition wholesales to other stations.

Dallas Refinery Purchased. The entry of Simms into the fields of refining and marketing through the acquisition of the Clayton Oil and Refining Company property for a consideration understood to be about $1,000,000 and the beginning of stock dividend payments, make for the status of the company in 1925 a very healthy showing in comparison to what it held at the close of 1920.

Net income of the company for the nine months period ended September 30, 1925, is placed at $2,307,760.87, in a statement issued to the stockholders under date of November 14 of this year by Edward T. Moore, president, and Thomas W. Street, chairman of the board, of the Simms Petroleum Company.

MR. AND MRS. M'MAHAN MARRIAGE RECORD IS HEAD OF LIST SO FAR

BROWNWOOD COUPLE HAVE BEEN CARRYING LIFE'S BURDEN 55 YEARS, 3 MONTHS.

A few days ago The Bulletin carried a story to the effect that so far as the record showed Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dozier, of Brownwood, 1615 Hawkins street, who recently observed their 55th wedding anniversary, had been married longer than any other couple in Brownwood.

It now appears that the record set by Mr. and Mrs. Dozier is exceeded by that of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. McMahan, who also live in Brownwood, and strangely enough only half a block from the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Dozier.

Mr. and Mrs. McMahan were married 55 years ago on the 10th of last November. So Mr. and Mrs. McMahan's record exceeds that of their Dozier neighbors by two months and 25 days.

The children are: Joseph Emmette McMahan of Brown county, Norman Randolph McMahan of Brownwood, Roscoe McMahan of Brownwood, and daughters; Mrs. Jesse Benedict, of Breckenridge, now in Brownwood on a visit to her parents, Mrs. Alma Gilbert, of

BIG BOND IS REQUIRED IN BRYAN COURT

SUIT WILL SEEK TO COMPEL MARRS TO RECOGNIZE BOOK CONTRACT

BRYAN, Texas, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Attorneys for Charles A. Felkner, former chief clerk of the experimental station at A. & M. College, today announced their client would make bond for $25,000 in connection with indictments charging misapplication of experiment station funds.

Felkner was indicted by the Brazos county grand jury Monday on two charges of forgery, ten alleged fraudulent entries in books of account and 25 for misapplication of public funds.

A firm of auditors from Houston examined Felkner's books but made public no estimate of the alleged shortage which is understood to approach $100,000.

The application was filed by the American Book Company last week through its attorney, Former Attorney General W. A. Keeling.

Marrs contends the contract is not valid, and is supported in this contention by Attorney General Dan Moody, who ruled the company did not file with its bid certain affidavits required by law.

The attorney general's department will represent Marrs in litigation before the Supreme Court.

Last week the State Text Book Commission after a stormy session, ratified by a vote of 4 to 2 the action of its sub-committee in recognizing the contract.

BROWNWOOD WINS IN FINAL GAME AGAINST MILLS COUNTY TEAM

LIONS WILL MEET LEADERS FROM THE KEERVILLE DISTRICT NEXT.

Coach Dutch Woodward's High School Lions are county and district champions once more. The championship of the Brownwood District composed of eight counties was decided here Saturday night when the Lions defeated the Star, Mills county, High School quintet, at Howard Payne gymnasium 25 to 11.

The Lions showed good form throughout the entire tournament held here last Friday afternoon and Saturday.

To start, Star won from San

Saba, 25 to 22; then Sidney, Comanche county, beat Coleman, 37 to 19; Brownwood beat Carlton, 4 to 15; Star beat Rochelle, McCulloch county, 29 to 17; Brownwood beat Sidney 27 to 23, and it was then left for Brownwood and Star to decide the championship which the Star and Brownwood quintets have been doing for the past two or three years.

Coach Woodward used his first five throughout the entire game with J. Taylor, captain, and K. Harlow at forwards, Fanning, center and Wade Chambers and Dula at guards. The Lions played the best ball they have shown since the season opened and Coach Woodward is now preparing the quintet to play the winner of the Kerrville District.

Coach Woodward announced this morning that he did not know what team he would play from that District but that he expected to receive word from the state athletic officials within the next few days as to who would be Brownwood's opponent in the bi-district contest.

J. Horace Shelton, of Howard Payne College, was in charge of the tournament and it was probably the most successful and best attended meet ever held in Brownwood.

In winning the District meet, the Lions also won the handsome silver loving cup, known as the Jones & Dublin challenge cup. The cup will be presented to the Lions within the near future, but in order to keep the cup the Lions must win the District tournament for the next two years as the cup has to be won three successive years in order that it may become the property of the school.

Then came the "stunts" by the high school, in which they imitated the different business men and women in Blanket. Every one seemed to enjoy this part of the program very much. It is real amusing to see ourselves as others see us or sit back and see ourselves go by. They were so perfect in their imitating that any one who knew the ones they were imitating had no trouble in guessing who they meant. After this part of the program was over Bernard Swindell read an essay on "The Life of Abraham Lincoln," for which he received a medal from a watch company. Brother Henderson made the presentation speech and presented the medal to Mr. Swindell.

"We are still at work on the More Cotton on Fewer Acres contest," Roy Duncan of Duncan-Ellis Cotton Company, said today in regard to the plan which was brought out a few days ago by Mr. Duncan and W. R. Ellis of the Duncan-Ellis Company and E. H. Lake, another local cotton man, who are taking the lead in improving cotton and agricultural conditions in Brown county.

Mr. Duncan said that he and Mr. Lake and others had conferred with O. P. Griffin, county agricultural agent and that Mr. Griffin had promised support and co-operation in the contest.

"Nothing new has developed," Mr. Duncan said, "but we expect to make an announcement within the next three or four days in regard to a meeting of the farmers and business men in Brown county, the meeting to be held in this city."

"We plan to have about $500 in prizes for the winners of this contest after the plans and rules have been worked out. At the present we are almost assured of that much in cash for prizes but we hope to have more. Further plans and the date of the county-wide meeting will be announced within the next few days."

It is the plan of the man taking the lead in this matter to have Victor H. Schofelmayr, agricultural editor of the Dallas News, come to Brownwood and deliver an address at this meeting and at the same time explain the method which he and the Dallas News uses to conduct the state-wide cotton contest each year.

Authority on Cotton.

Mr. Schofelmayr is one of the best authorities on cotton and agriculture in Texas and in the past few years has done much in improving the cotton and feed crops in all parts of the state.

The contest as planned will give Brownwood publicity that money could not buy and at the same time will give Brownwood merchants more business and Brown county farmers more training in farming and the cultivation of crops.

Crop conditions are better at this time of the year than they have been for some six or seven years and the farmers are jubilant over the prospects. The contest, if started at once, which is the plan will attract considerable attention from neighboring West Texas counties and will give Brownwood much publicity.

Other Brownwood cotton men are very enthusiastic over plans started by Messrs. Duncan, Ellis and Lake and they are of the opinion that it will be one of the best things that has ever happened to Brownwood and Brown county.

From year to year, the contest will be conducted and each year there will be more entries after one farmer has shown the others just what one can do on a small tract of well tilled land and the farmers of the county will become educated to the fact that it pays to cultivate a small tract of land intensively rather than to cultivate a larger tract in a haphazard way.

Tom Evans Recovering From Broken Foot In Recent Polo Game

Tom Evans is able to be on the streets again, after several days enforced idleness by reason of one or two broken bones in one of his feet, caused by an accident on the Brownwood polo grounds. It seems that while following the ball at full tilt and not noticing where he was going, Mr. Evans ran into the rear of another horse whose rider had crossed the path being pursued by Mr. Evans, and the horse kicked Mr. Evans on the foot. The rule in polo playing is to not cross the line of a player and the ball he is following because to do so is a dangerous thing and liable to cause serious injury.
