Clarendon's Sewer Sytem.

Clarendon now has as good a system as any town in this country. The engineer has been here and tested the plant and the city has accepted it and paid for the works. Connections will be made immediately. The system cost less than was at first thought and about $4000 is left from the fund of $25,000 which the city had for the building of the system. This means that if nothing occurs to use this sum the tax rate for Clarendon will be cut next year from 23c this year to about 19c next year, so says an official. And then Clarendon has a good system, one that might be called a $30,000 system. It is one that will work. There have been some who said the system would hardly work on account of not having the water, but when we think of the great amount of water which Clarendon has that idea seems ridiculous. Clarendon has had the water all the time and now has the sewer system and its a good one, as good as any in this country.

Dr. Stocking reports an eleven pound boy at the home of Joe Jones' this morning. Notice the smile on Joe's face.

Carroll Market Sold One-half Interest.

O. R. McElya has purchased a one-half interest in the meat market of J. E. Carroll and will be connected with that business in the future. Mr. McElya is a popular man with the people here, having been connected with various business firms of Clarendon for the past few years. Mr. Carroll has enjoyed a good patronage in his business and we bespeak for the new firm the same splendid patronage that Mr. Carroll has heretofore been given.

Mission Day at First Baptist Church.

State Mission Day will be observed at the first Baptist church Sunday morning.

The State Mission Board owes more than two hundred missions over $100,000.

The amount is over due. At the close of the morning service the church will take a collection on this debt. It is hoped all the members of the church will be present and will come prepared to make a cash contribution for missions.

Old Time Singing Convention.

There will be an old time singing convention at the College Auditorium Friday night under the auspices of the W. H. M. S. in the interest of the building fund of the new church. Dr. Burkhead will execute some of his vocal actions and do some other stunts perhaps; Mr. Hassler will sing a vocal solo as will also Rev. W. A. Allan, then they will both sing a duet. Grandma's Weatherly and Hastings will spin and card in the old time way.

There will be held an old time

Please Accept Thanks.

A number of our readers have taken the time and called to see us, leaving us happy. Others have written us letters that were very acceptable, while still others are doubtless thinking about calling or writing. These kindnesses are what make the newspaper business go. Remember as hinted at in the little card at the head of the editorial column that we have to pay our bills.

W. D. Orr spent Sunday in Memphis.

Football C. C. vs. G. C.

The football team of Clarendon College will play the team of Goodnight College here next Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the College Park. The College boys have been practicing faithfully and have a good team. This is their first game and the tryout of the players will be made. Prof. Shure is coaching the team and has done his work well. He has worked the boys hard and they think well of him as a coach.

Breach of Promise Suit.

In the case of Miss Cora Healy of Freeport, Ill. vs. Jos. T. Sneed, Jr., a ranchman near Amarillo, the plaintiff was awarded $4000 damages, as damage to her affections. The case was appealed.

Suit was brought for $25,000 damages. Eminent counsel represented both sides and the case was hardfought all the way through. Ex-Lieutenant Governor Johnson of Missouri and Messrs Gustavus, Bowman & Jackson of Amarillo represented the plaintiff while W. H. Atwell, federal district attorney of Dallas, and Messrs. Turner, Hendrix & Boyce of Amarillo, represented the defendant.

The Daily Panhandle says that there was a great crowd in the court room to witness the case and says further:

When Thomas Turner for the defense exclaimed: "No Texas girl would bring a suit of this character!" a scene was enacted that came near resulting in the room spectators, as there was a burst of applause. Judge Meek called a halt in this outburst of approval by declaring that he would have the marshal clear the room if it occurred again.

This is the first case of the kind in this country.

Beau Not Club.

The Beau Not Club was very delightfully entertained Tuesday afternoon by Miss Ella Houk at the home of her mother on fourth street. Twenty of the young ladies responded to the invitation of Miss Houk, and after a while spent in social converse the club was called to order by the president and some unfinished business was transacted. Eight young ladies were then elected to membership in the club.

The program was then taken up and Misses Eva and Zo O'Neill rendered a piano duet in their usual charming manner. Miss Houk beautifully sang "Because I love you," accompanied on the piano by Miss Dodson. Miss Dial read and Miss Talley rendered very beautifully a piano solo.

Progressive alphabet. The game was very spirited and a jolly time ended in a draw for the favor, a lovely box of stationery, which fell to Miss Wylie. In a cut the consolation fell to Miss Antrobus.

The club was then invited to the Bon Ton, where delicious refreshments were served. The girls departed loud in their praise of the hostess.

The next meeting will be with Miss Mable Smith, Oct. 19th.

Frank Mace who was accidentally shot near Matador some time ago writes relatives here that he is doing well and will come home soon. This is good news for his friends who have entertained some anxiety concerning him.

George Harris, who has been J. A. McKillop's pharmacist for some time left Tuesday morning for Memphis where he will visit relatives before going to his home in Fort Worth. While he has been here Mr. Harris has made many friends who regret to see him leave.

T. S. Bugbee went to Amarillo the first of the week and attended a meeting of the Panhandle Stockmen's Association's Executive Committee of which he is a member. Fifty-three new names were reported for membership. Mr. Bugbee was for several years President of the Association.

F. P. Dunkle made the editors heart glad Tuesday by handing in the necessary kale-seed to put his figures up with the Banner-Stockman, and telling us that if he had to pay cash for our paper and composition which went into the Banner-Stockman he wanted to pay up as he ought to pay cash too. Now that is the kind of subscriber we like to have. Many thanks, Bro. Dunkle, call and see us when you feel like it.

The prices will be 25c and 15c. Remember at the College Auditorium Friday night at 8:30 and everybody come.

Basket Ball.

There will be a basket ball game on the Public School grounds Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock between the young ladies team of Goodnight College and Clarendon Public School. The contest will be spirited and we predict a splendid game.

Ladies Aid of the Baptist church will serve ice cream in the afternoon and oyster-supper at night Saturday Oct. 9th at McDaniel building everybody invited. Benefit Buckner's Orphan Home.

Fire Time.

It has been "Fire Time" in Clarendon all this year when we enumerate the many and expensive fires, but I have reference to these cool mornings which call for stoves and fires in them.

I want to caution all to look closely after the condition of all flues in your buildings, also that stove pipes are securely fastened, that we may avoid a continuance of the "fire time" we have had all this year. A little thought and care on your part may save your own and your neighbors property from destruction.

A. M. BEVILLE,
Insurance Agent.

W. F. White received three new Buick automobiles Monday, one of them having already been sold to B. W. Chamberlain. He has the other two for sale and expects to find a ready sale for them. Clarendon is a good town for autos and many more will be brought here during the next year.

Methodist Church.
There were two good services at the Methodist church last Sunday, good congregations attending both services. Rev. C. N. N. Ferguson, financial agent of Clarendon College preached one of his usually fine inspiring sermons to a congregation which packed the seating capacity of the church. The music was very good, the choir doing some fine musical work under the direction of Prof. Shure.

Rev. J. L. James, of Clarendon College preached a fine sermon on "Christ as a Model Preacher." A splendid congregation was present and enjoyed this deliverance very much.

Lelia Lake Locals.
(Crowded out last week.)
My, but these cool mornings make a fellow hunt his coat. They remind us that winter is not such a long way off.

The death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harp of Windy Valley, last Friday evening and took from them their little daughter, Ethel. The family have our sympathy.

J. C. Christal and Hauyhton Leathers returned from Waco Monday. Hauyhton got home sick to see his mother or girl and would not attend school.

Misses May and Zella Jackson visited homefolks from Friday until Monday.

Andrew Donell was very ill last week caused from sticking a splinter in his leg.

Miss Moody Kennedy returned home Saturday from her visit to Adrian.

Mr. and Mrs. Gee Leathers and Mrs. Brown visited Mrs. T. B. Lumpkin of Clarendon Saturday.

The work on the new depot is most complete. It is very nice and add much to the looks of the town.

Mr. Melvin Cook left for the east this week. Will tell next week why he left. Ha! ha!

Cotton is a good price if there was only more of it.

Tennessee's Lone Saloon Burns
McMinnville, Tenn., Sept. 29.—Tennessee's only legal saloon, the "Oasis," situated on a mountain top where it is four miles distant from a school house, was destroyed by fire last night.

Auben Clark is quite ill with typhoid fever.

The Christian Church.
Rev. Nathaniel Jack and son of Dallas, Texas, have been leading the forces at the Christian church in a great revival which continued three weeks, closing last Sunday night.

The pastor of this church promised one of the best meetings of the season when this meeting was first spoken of, and in it the people were not disappointed, for a great meeting it was. To see strong men, men past the meridian of life, surrender their lives to Jesus Christ is great, and of these there were quite a number.

Dr. Jacks is a highly cultured, broad minded, deep thinking christian gentleman, and presented the old time Jerusalem gospel with great power and effectiveness.

He is not a man to speak unkindly of others, who may differ from him, yet he spurns not to declare the whole council of God with all his power.

It can truly be said "he caused the people to think about God and His word." The crowds were large and eager for the truth to the very last service. The meeting closed at least two weeks too early, yet there was a great increase in this congregation, 17 having taken membership by statement and 27 being baptized into Christ and the whole congregation was greatly strengthened.

The reception for the new members Monday evening was not what the pastor had planned, owing to some delays in the arrival of materials ordered, yet when the 44 new members were received it was such a joyous occasion everyone forgot their disappointment and all were happy. This church will have their pastor for full time hereafter. A nice new Bush & Gerts piano was placed in the church by the efforts of the pastor, and we expect many more improvements will mark the progress of this church in the near future.

Dr. Jacks and his son began a meeting at Blair, Okla., on Tuesday night following this meeting and we bespeak for them great success.

The Poor Reporter.
The poor reporter. He is always the scapegoat. And yet a harder or more devoted worker does not live. Inaccurate he sometimes is. Who in the world is not? To reflect justly in words the most difficult of human tasks. But consider the vast number of times when, after the most arduous efforts the reporter secures the news and presents it clearly and interestingly. The public reads, enjoys, profits and forgets. It is only when something goes wrong that someone sits up and scolds.—Boston Herald.

Reflections of a Bachelor.
From the New York Press:
The way to learn to hate a man is for him to succeed where you fail.

We fix our eyes so intently on our little virtues that we can't see our big faults.

A woman would rather have you make love to her and not mean it than mean it and not do it.

Where a farmer has a grand time is being able to put all the blame for his mistakes on the weather.

Real Death to Johnson Grass.
From McKinney Courier-Gazette:
Death to Johnson grass, the goal sought by many a Texas farmer, has been achieved by a Texas Burbank, unknown to fame. On exhibition at the Commercial Club of Stamford, Texrs, he has on display a hybrid of amber cane and Johnson grass. It is over six feet tall and the head partakes of the Johnson grass shape while the stalk has run into cane. It is claimed that the crossing of amber cane and Johnson grass will be an effectual remedy for killing Johnson grass, as it will in time run into cane, which can easily be destroyed. The hybrid that is on exhibition has very short roots and was pulled out of the ground by hand.

Miss Maggie Kinslow of Hedley was in the city Monday.

Centennial of the Disciples of Christ.

Elaborate preparations are being made by the Disciples of Christ for the celebration of their Centennial this year in Pittsburg, Pa. The date, October 11-19, 1909, is taken from the appearance of "A Declaration and Address," by Thomas Campbell, father of Alexander Campbell, September 7th, 1809, which was the first and only publication of "The Christian Association of Washington, Pa.," an organization composed of members of different churches bent on Christian union and missionary propaganda. Their first church was organized in 1811 at Brush Run, Washington Co., Pa., but the year before friends of theirs had established one in New York City and in 1803 Barton W. Stone, who in 1832 formed a coalition with the Campbells, had taken the same position in Kentucky. These foregleams were to the Declaration and Address what the Mecklenburg Declaration and the Boston Tea Party were to Thomas Jefferson's immortal document of July 4th, 1776.

From 1813 to 1829 the Campbells were connected with the Baptists. But having been received without endorsing the Philadelphia Confession of Faith and evincing no disposition to conform to its tenets their relation with the regular ministers of the denomination was increasingly strained. Originally the Campbells, Stone and Walter Scott, who soon became a man of might in the movement, were Presbyterians, either Seceder (now united), or regular.

The Disciples have grown Westward with the progress of the nation. In the United States they rank sixth numerically among religious bodies. In Missouri they are first and nearly or quite so in Kentucky, Indiana and Oklahoma. Throughout the upper Mississippi Valley their influence is proportionate to their membership and they are enlisted aggressively in the cause of Prohibition and other reforms.

Pleading from the first for Christian Union and insisting that the abandonment of human creeds, denominational names and post-apostolic authority and restoring the primitive church just as the Apostles left it would give at once union, liberty and truth, they seemed to be only adding confusion to the sectarian strife of the day.

For a hundred years they have stood Gamaliel's test. In human frailty the balance between liberty and union, the centrifugal and centripetal forces of church life, has wavered but has never failed. Denounced by the other denominations as heretics and Ishmaelites in almost every new field, the day of their success finds them in cordial fellowship. The Y. M. C. A., Y. P. S. C. E., International Sunday School Association, Young People's Missionary Movement and Inter-Church Federation Council accord their representatives full place and power.

The sincerity of their plea for Christian Union is attested by their general readiness to cooperate in evangelism, missions and reform. It is further demonstrated just now by the character of their Centennial Campaign. "That they may all be One that the World may Believe" is their chief watchword and "Where the Scriptures speak, we speak, where the Scriptures are silent, we are silent," defines their method as it has been for a hundred years. No denominational monument is being erected and sectarian feeling is energetically discouraged. The endeavor is not to do something spectacular and extraordinary; but to make a fuller approximation to the Christianity of Christ, in its fruits especially.

Seven of the Centennial Aims are for individual and household piety and progress, from "Daily Worship in Every Home" to "Every Home Anti-Saloon Territory." Seven look to betterment of each congregation: "All the Church and as Many More in the Bible School." "Every Church its Mission," etc. Each of the seven departments of missionary, benevolent and educational activity has its goal or goals. Seven general aims stand out before the entire brotherhood.

Many of them look impossible of attainment. So we are surprised to learn that several have already been surpassed. Reaching the aggregate Missionary aim of a million dollars two years ahead of time seemed to justify increasing it by fifty per cent for 1909. The present enrollment of 155,000 teacher-training students warrants hope of 200,000 in October. Reports in one church—paper within one year of 105 revivals in which, under 45 evangelists, 24,518 accessions were gained are taken to indicate widespread application of the personal principle, "Each One Win one," as well as unusual ability in the preachers.

But the greatest rejoicing in Conventions and journals is reserved for actual steps toward union. Many occasions for this have come within the Centennial period, since October, 1805. A number of local congregations of Baptist and Disciples have united. In Western Canada their provincial missionary organizations have been combined. In Southern California a College is held jointly with the Congregationalists. In Chicago the Memorial Baptist and First Christian Church have been amalgamated. The high tide of enthusiasm in every Convention or Congress of the Disciples is reached when some representative Baptist or Free Baptist pleads for the reunion of these two bodies as a step toward the answer to the Savior's intercessory prayer.

Five great auditoriums with aggregate seating capacity of 30,000 have been engaged by the Pittsburg Committee for the parallel sessions of the Celebration and Convention. All are in a compact group at the entrance to Schenley Park. President Taft is expected to be present and speak Saturday, October 16th. Among other distinguished speakers are Congressman Champ Clark, Ex-Congressman John Allen, Lafe Pence and T. W. Phillips. Judges S. R. Artman and E. A. Henry. The meeting will be noted for the large number of business men attending.

Two sessions of Tuesday, October 12th, will be exclusively for men. Among these will be Theodore P. Shonts, former head of the Panama Canal work, R. A. Long, President of the National Lumbermen's Association; C. C. Chapman, the Orange King of Southern California, and Dr. E. E. Montgomery, the great Philadelphia Surgeon. Six or seven leading denominations will send their most distinguished men to speak as Fraternal Delegates.

Relief For Cattlemen.

The action of Texas cattlemen ranching in the modified quarantine counties, protesting against the rigor of the quarantine, has at last won relief for them. Dr. Melvin, chief of the bureau of animal industry, after hearing a statement from Congressman Smith of the Western district and Judge Hamner of Colorado City, yesterday ordered that the present quarantine rules be suspended while an investigation can be had, and during this suspension cattle may be shipped from the modified quarantine area upon inspection, when they and the pastures from which they are taken have been found to be free from infection. This decision will afford great relief to the cattlemen of those counties, as cattle were perishing for lack of grass, and could not be moved to pastures elsewhere.

Dr. R. P. Steddon of the bureau of animal industry, will leave for Texas within the next two weeks to make a careful investigation into quarantine conditions, and the belief is entertained that the objectionable regulations will be abrogated. Dr. Steddon will also look into the charges which Congressman Smith and Judge Hamner preferred against Dr. Leslie J.

Allen of Oklahoma, who has jurisdiction over the Texas quarantine. The burden of the complaint against Dr. Allen is that he is unnecessarily arbitrary and oppressive in his interpretation of the cattle quarantine regulations.

Claude News.

Georgie, the young son of Barney Jones, has been very low with a severe case of tonsillitis. Dr. Stocking of Clarendon came up Sunday to consult with attending physicians.

Col. P. R. Stephens of Clarendon was mixing with his numerous Claude friends Monday.

Mesdames Warner, Martin, Smalley, Slay and Doak attended the District Missionary meeting at Clarendon last week.

Put Her There.

For an article in last week's Barmer-Stockman headed "Loafing Boys" I feel like saying to the writer "put her there."

This article should appeal to the parents and guardians of all children in our town and when I say children I don't mean wee wees but boys who have grown nearer to maturity.

Boys will acquire the habit of loafing around town at night when they are quite small, and just as sure as you allow them to ramble over the town at night just that sure are they to drift into bad company, and the longer they are permitted to ramble the worse they naturally become. Therefore when you are gone you have a very poor specimen of citizenship to take your place in the walks of life.

We are all prone to wander, but we were worse in our boyhood. Watch your boys. Teach them how to work, whether they may have it to do or not, and above all things don't let them loaf at any time. If you have nothing for him to do keep at 'em home any way. Keep him where his mother can see him and he will be the better for it.

Where the parents allow their children to loaf in the towns or cities I agree that we should have a curfew law and carry the little fellows home to their mothers.

I have directed this article principally to the parents and son. Of course girls do not make professional loafers, especially night loafers, and that is the time when loafers do most of their dirty work.

Loafing leads to crime, so if you encourage your son in loafing you need not be surprised to receive a message early some morning from the sheriff or the jailer notifying you of the whereabouts of your son. Watch your boys.

The Double Standard of Morals.

In our last issue we published a most remarkable letter written by an unknown woman who gave us her unfortunate history growing out of a love episode with a treacherous young man. We give it to our readers because it presents in strong language a subject that ought to be discussed. Why should a woman be cast out who makes one wrong step, while the man who was largely influential in her downfall is taken into the bosom of society and pampered by fathers and mothers?

If it is wrong for a woman to compromise her virtue, then it ought to be equally wrong for a man to do the same thing; and if the sin of the woman is of such nature that society cannot forgive it, then why not put the man in the same category. If one is to be damned, then why not damn both? But society decreed it otherwise. The man can indulge his passion, lead girlhood astray, debauch his nature, and make himself a disgrace to humanity, and yet the moment he pretends to reform, society opens its doors to him—yes, it often occurs that he does not pretend to reform, and the doors of society are not closed against him. Cut let the poor woman suffer a lapse and the result of her shame become known and she had just as well be banished to some Siberial so far as the homes of the good people are concerned. She is scorned from the social walks of high social life. But the lecherous scoundrel who was instrumental in her downfall is a gentleman! Society smiles upon him and sometimes gives a pure daughter in marriage to him.

Such discrimination is a sin in the sight of God and men. Yes, it is criminal in the sight of God and the law of righteousness. Such a standard does not find encouragement in the Word of God; It is one of the artificial standards of the world. A man has no more right to degrade himself and then expect good people to countenance him than has the unfortunate woman. If one is to be accepted as having merely sowed his wild oats then both ought to be accepted on the same condition. And if one is to be banished, then banish both of them alike. If the virtue of womankind is such that it needs the harsh treatment of the unfortunate woman to protect it in the same way. And, strange to say, good women are responsible for this double standard. They have recognized the right of the impure man to the claims of society so long and they have scorned to and ostracized the unfortunate woman so continuously that they look with every allowance upon the lapses of the former and condemn those of the latter until they have established the habit as a social law. As a result we are forced to build "mission homes,"

"houses of rescue," and the like, for our unfortunate girls in order that they may have a place to hide their shame, but throw open the parlors to the lustful wretch who is responsible for these social disasters. The fact is we need to build reform establishments for such men as well as for such women. True reform will never be accomplished until this double standard of morality has been blotted out. Our mothers and wives and our daughters ought to learn to treat the lustful men just as they treat the fallen women. Then posterity will be the beneficiary of this sort of reform. There will be less of scrofulous afflictions and deformities of body and mind. Tainted blood will cease to flow into the veins of innocent children, and married women will have less of treatment for many troubles now supposed to be peculiar to their sex. This is plain language, but we are living in the midst of lax times and plain language alone will express the condition of things.—Home and State.

The Foreign Mission Study Class will meet at the parsonage Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Clarendon, Texas Oct. 7 09.

Have you any hogs this year?
Donley at Dallas. Bring in your exhibit.

Certainly a peanut factory would be a good thing for Clarendon and Donley county.

William J. Bryan and wife celebrated the 25th anniversary of their wedding, October 1st.

President Taft says the Panama Canal will be ready in 1915. Now we wonder if that is an official order or just merely an assertion.

Bill Shaw, editor of the Texas Farmer, is still a rabid anti-prohibitionist. Poor Bill guess he will die on the wrong side of the liquor question.

It is stated in some of the big dailies that Jake Walters and the liquor crowd have begun to organize the State for the defeat of State-Wide prohibition. They propose to organize in every county in the State and in every precinct in each county.

Read the comment of "A Reader" on our editorial on "Loafing Boys" in last week's Banner-Stockman and reflect on it. Let the meaning of it fully percolate throughout your full cranial capacity and then make up your mind to support a curfew law for our town. Stop the loafing.

It is bad enough for a man to drink liquor when there are open saloons in his town and the stuff is right under his nose all the time, but a man who will deliberately send off for it when he knows it is injurious to body and mind and will often make a fool of him is something we can't understand.

The Fourth International Dry Farming Congress will meet at Billings, Mont., October 26th to 28th, 1909. Many well known men will speak before the body and much important work is to be discussed. Any information about the convention may be had by addressing John T. Burns, Secretary, Billings, Montana.

Jake Walters declared he was doing all the work he does for the liquor people free-gratis-for-nothing. Of course the liquor dealers will take all that kind they can get, and it may be that there is one man on that side patriotic enough to give his time free, but it is hard for this writer to believe that Jake Walters is the man. A prominent liquor dealer told J. C. McNealus that he was tired of $5000 retainers to men to look after the interest of dealers. That shows that the prominent antis are not all working for nothing.

Donley County Fair Association.

How about a Fair Association for Donley county? A corn festival or an agricultural carnival? Clarendon and Donley county could profit greatly by such a proposition. The farmers could get a great deal of good from seeing the exhibits shown by other farmers from other sections, and mixing with others and exchanging ideas. And then the advertising to be gotten out of it would pay for the whole thing. Dalhart recently had a Fair and received a nice lot of advertising, besides having a good time and seeing some good farm products. A nice bunch of prizes could be made up by our merchant if they would, and given to the best products shown by farmers and stimulate trade for themselves and help along the affair. Now is the time for the starting of such an association. Dalhart has her association made of principal business men as stockholders and other citizens take great interest in it and it is run on strictly business lines. We could do the same and have a great thing for Donley county in it. Let's do it.

The Great Flurry Over the Tarriff Issue

We are having a great flurry over the tariff issue now in Texas. Mr. Bryan recently delivered himself in this city on the subject and then Senator Bailey sprang into the arena and made reply to him last Saturday night. He had a great audience at the auditorium. But what has the tariff issue to do with the affairs of the state at this time? Congress has just passed the new tariff bill and there will be no National election for four years. What ever may be said on that subject it will not affect that question one way or the other. Texas cannot settle it, Texas Congressmen cannot settle it, and the National Congress will not tackle the problem again in several years. Yet from the way the matter is being discussed, one would infer that the whole issue of the tariff is now before the voters of Texas.

Why is there such a storm raised over this question at the present time? Are not some of Texas' public men anxious to raise a dust on this question in order to obscure the prohibition question? This latter problem is before the people in a certain way, that is, they are demanding a Legislature and a Governor that will heed the instruction of the people and give them an opportunity to pass on prohibition in 1911; but certain politicians are desirous of making this a side issue, and the tariff the burning question. All this dust and furore is not good tommyrot. The people of Texas are caring but little, if anything, about it. It is beyond their reach and clear out of their control. But the submission issue is a burning issue and the people have that in their power and upon it they will have to elect a State Administration; but some men want us to think that tariff is the burning issue! Rats!

Back of this and underneath it, the antis are busy as bees organizing their gang, and framing the campaign thunder. They want the next legislature and they want the next Governor. It now looks like that they were turning from Davidson to Colquitt. We knew that they would take one or other of them, but that they would wait until they found out which one was in the lead. Indications now point to the fact that Colquitt has the inside track, as he has boldly announced for anti-submission, anti-prohibition and anti-restrictive liquor laws. He is boldly over on the saloon platform. He respects their principles; and now that Senator Bailey has come out against State-wide prohibition, Mr. Colquitt is toddling round the Senator's feet and making love to him.

At Fort Worth some days ago he was eulogistic of Senator Bailey to the limit of nausea, and then out west the other day he came out against "free raw material," and entered his protests to W. J. Bryan coming into Texas to meddle with our "Democracy." It seems that he is trying to get over on Senator Bailey's platform. The fact is, Commissioner Colquitt is dying to be Governor and some of the antis are dying to get him in that position.

Is he flirting with Senator Bailey for a purpose? Well, one year ago last spring when the Senator was being filled with the cold lead of his enemies, when his political fortunes were hanging in the balance and thousands of prohibitionists were giving him their loyal support, and when he needed friends and needed them badly, Mr. Oscar B. Colquitt never opened his flint lips! He saw Senator Bailey bleeding at every pore, but not once did he give him a helping hand. The fact is, we have reason to know that the warm friends of the Senator put him down in the camp of the enemy. Now he is cutting all sorts of didoes about Senator Bailey! Will the Senator bite at his bait? Time will tell.

And last Saturday night when the Senator spoke the Colquitt antis, from Jake Walters on down to Jonathan Lane, were here in force hovering around the Senator like doves about a cote. What does it mean? Even the Houston Post, whose proprietor promised earnest support to Judge Brooks at Fort Worth when the Bailey victory was celebrated in the election of delegates to the National Convention, is now ambling round the Colquitt boom again, and it is said that the Fort Worth Record is casting sheep's eyes in the Commissioner's direction. What does all this indicate? There is something in the air! That efforts are being made to bring about a new political alliance in Texas in the interest of the liquor cause there can be no doubt. Whether they will succeed or not is another question. While these efforts are in process of fermentation, the liquor advocates are down in the woods planning how to capture the next legislature and wondering how they can unite their forces on Colquitt for Governor.

In the meantime, Judge Poin-dexter is beating the brush and wondering what's going on! Judge Brooks is silent and there is no voice from Gus Shaw. But Cone Johnson is far out in the limelight and the trend of prohibition sentiment is taking form in his direction, and really he is the man toward whom the antis are casting suspicious glances. And Commissioner Colquitt is far away from the centers preaching against submission, prohibition and restrictive legislation. My countrymen, there is something in the air. Better send the alarm down the line, for there is danger ahead! Politics make strange bedfellows, and Oscar B. Colquitt, aided by Walters, Lane and R. M. Johnston is making a strenuous effort to pull some of these "strange" fellows onto his political couch. Does he think we are asleep? Think of Colquitt coquetting with Senator Bailey? Think of R. N. Stafford, heretofore Bailey's mortal enemy now lauding the Senator to the sky! What strange bed-fellows! In the meantime the cry of the "Tariff" is heard in the land! My, what a dust! Let prohibitionists who put principle above personal friendship and personal admiration, and who are not yet ready to be slaughtered and offered on the Colquitt altar of anti-prohibition, open their eyes and look around. There are some strange omens on the horizon. And there are strange hands and strange voices amid the din of confusion. They are the voices and hands of Jacob trying to filch Esau's birthright! Be not deceived by these tokens of hypocrisy. There is no principle in anti-prohibition politics. The thing is rotten to the core. It will sacrifice any man or any principle to win the next governor and the next Legislature. It has no gratitude except for favors yet to come. Now watch the developments and see if we are not telling the truth. Let us buckle on the armor a few notches tighter, there is a conflict impending. Will Senator Bailey turn a favorable ear to men who have fought him so bitterly in the past? On with the battle!—He and State.

Wid De Newspaper Guys.

We can always tell, says Arthur Aull, when the country paper has a new editor. It contains about ten columns on booming the town—they all start in the same way. Each one thinks all that sleepy old town needed to make it blossom and soar like a balloon was a wide-awake newspaper man, who stayed in the office, paid no attention to the dog fights or divorces, and reeled off stuff about how to boost the burg.—Ex.

And the new editor finds out to his sorrow and aching back and crippled pencil pushing finger, that boom articles week after week are about the worst things ever and the editor writes himself out in a very short time—and the people are usually glad of a change of subject. There are more ways than one to boost a town—one item in the local column about good crops raised by John Jones is worth more than a column of slush written for the sole purpose of booming the country. The inexperienced do not realize this, however, and thus a great mistake is made.—Higgins News.

Dallas Fair Exhibit.

Steps have been taken to have an exhibit at the Dallas Fair for Donley county this month. D. L. McClelland started out collecting this week and has quite a nice bunch of samples of agricultural products.

He has some of the finest samples of Kafir corn heads grown in these parts, and it is very good this year. maize, Indian corn and other fine products of Donley farms, which grow such a nice variety of feed-stuffs. Secretary Journey of the Commercial Club has taken some steps in the matter and is assisting in the work. G. W. Baker has made an offer to take charge of the exhibit at Dallas, and if an exhibit is made he will be a very good man to send with it. Amarillo wants to advertise the Amarillo county and take in all of Northwest Texas, including Clarendon and other places that are not even adjacent to the Windy City. Clarendon need not fall in line with those people to help advertise them, but can get up a very respectable exhibit of her own and advertise the Clarendon country. All who have anything to enter in the exhibit should bring them in during the next few days.

Dr. Cook and the Panhandle.

It is worth mentioning that Dr. Cook proceeded north toward the pole for several hundred miles almost on the line of the rooth meridian, west longitude. This means that he made the last laps of his journey and reached the pole on a line due north of the eastern side of the Panhandle of Texas, the rooth meridian of longitude crossing the Texas & Pacific railroad between Abilene and Sweetwater.

When he stood at the pole he was 58 degrees of latitude north of us, or in a line measured on the earth's circumference he was about 4000 miles due north of Abilene and Sweetwater.

Thus Texas gets another lick at the biggest news of the century.—El Paso Herald.

Success Sulky Plow

INSIST on getting the Success from your dealer. If you cannot do so, write us for catalog and special introductory prices. It is backed by an unqualified guarantee.

This is a medium priced Riding Plow. It does better work than riding plows sold at much higher prices. It has the best Hitch, the best Landing Device, the best Rolling Cutter and the best Mould Board for sticky ground of any Riding Plow made. It has pleased over 50,000 farmers in Texas and adjoining states in the most difficult soils. You can make two mistakes in buying Riding Plows: One is to buy an inferior article because it is cheap, and the other is to buy a high priced plow when the Success does better work.

Can be converted into a Riding Attachment for Walking Plows, Middle Breakers, etc., by purchasing one extra casting. We make Middle Breaker Bottoms, Sweep uter' time, and are furnished at reasonable prices. Buy the Success Plow, the plow that is sold for a medium price and which stands in a class by itself. Sixty-seven years of "an ing how" hammered into every one of them. We are headquarters for everything in Wagons, Vehicles and Implements.

AUNT JUDITH'S SPOONS.

The Part They Played in the Life of Peggy and Dick.

By TEMPLE BAILEY.
[Copyright, 1906, by Associated Literary Press.]

The Merritts' wedding presents had been very plain and practical. They had few rich friends, and their relatives had confined themselves to furniture and useful articles for the small flat. Peggy's girl companions had given her centerpieces and lingerie, and Dick's office colleagues had clubbed together and had presented a cut glass punch bowl.

But Aunt Judith gave silver spoons, heavy, solid and richly chased.

"I think it was lovely of her," said the little wife as she set her own table for the first time. "A little good silver is such a help. Some day we will buy forks and knives to match, won't we, Dicky, boy?"

"Sure," said Dick easily. "They've got to appreciate me at the office soon. I won't let them grind me down this way always."

But a raise in salary was slow in coming. Dick's worth was evidently not as apparent to his employers as to himself, and gradually the furniture and carpets began to grow shabby, and the silver spoons were still the only sign of elegance in the Merritts' home. Peggy polished them every day.

"You see," she told Aunt Judith, who came from her little home town to visit them, "we don't seem really poor when we can sip our tea from shining silver."

"It is you who brighten things up," said Aunt Judith, "you with your cheerful face."

"Oh," suddenly Peggy's voice broke and her eyes filled—"oh, Aunt Judith, you don't know how hard it is to smile sometimes."

"Why, child—there was consternation in the old lady's tone—"aren't you happy?"

"It's on account of Dick. Things aren't going right with him at the office. They don't seem to get on with him or he doesn't with them, and he gets blue, and it isn't easy for me to cheer him up."

"I see," said shrewd Aunt Judith, and that night she asked the young husband, "How are things at the office?"

"Rotten," was the illuminating reply. "They promised to give me a raise a year ago, but they haven't done it."

"Why not?" asked Aunt Judith.

"They don't appreciate me," Dick flung out.

"Perhaps," Aunt Judith began and then stopped. "I am not going to help him out," was her mental comment. "He has his own lesson to learn."

But Aunt Judith did not realize that while Dick was learning his lesson Peggy must suffer.

"He thinks too much of himself," was her further thought as the days went on. "I'll let him work hard until some of the conceit is taken out of him."

And with that she packed her bag and went back to her little home town.

Dick was not made of stern stuff, and as the days went by the clouds on his face grew darker and darker, and at last he came home early one afternoon and threw himself heavily into the chair.

"Well, I'm out of a job," he said as Peggy crossed the room to welcome him.

"Dick!" Her voice came tremulously. "They said they didn't want me any more; that I wasn't any good. And it's the truth. I am not any good, Peggy."

She knelt down beside him. "You are the dearest thing in the world to me, Richard," she said, and her arms went around his neck.

For a moment he let them stay there; then he flung them off. "You'll begin to see how worthless I am after a time," he said. "I'm no good, Peggy. A man who can't keep his job and support his wife might as well be dead."

Then as he saw the sick horror in her face he gathered her into his arms. "I didn't mean just that," he murmured, "but I don't know what has got into me. I can't see things right any more."

After that Dick's days were spent in search of work and Peggy's in sewing on little white garments which she made from her own wedding lingerie. She had not written to Aunt Judith of the bad state of affairs, and there was no one else, for Peggy was an orphan.

The meals became so scant in substance that at last Dick said: "It's hardly worth while to serve boiled potatoes with silver spoons, is it, Peggy? You'd better let me pawn them and pay the rent."

"Oh, no!" Peggy's hand was over her heart. "Oh, no!"

"Well, the first thing you know we'll be set out in the street."

Then into Peggy's face had come something that Dick had never seen before—a white look of contempt.

"If I were a man," she said slowly, "I would break stones on the road rather than not be able to support my wife."

For a moment Dick stared at her; then he flung himself out of the room. After he had gone Peggy cried hopelessly. But at last she wiped her eyes, gathered up the silver spoons, and she, too, went out.

When she came back she had the money for the rent and the materials for a good dinner, for the spoons were heavy and had brought a good price. She cooked the dinner and waited for Dick. But he did not come. The food grew cold, and she sat down at the window, watching. Then the evening grew into night, and still she watched.

When Dick came in she was asleep on the couch. Her face was white as he bent over her, and there were tears on her cheeks. He knelt beside her. "Oh, Peggy!" he murmured.

She sat up and stared at him dreadingly. "I thought—I didn't know where you were," she whispered.

"I know." He dared not tell her of that day—of how he had gone to the river and had stood on the bridge and had wondered why life should not end; of how, in the window of the second-hand shop on his way back, he had seen the silver spoons, their wedding spoons, heavy and solid and chased. The vision had come to him of Peggy in her white gown and veil—of her face as he had kissed her at the altar, and all at once the manhood had waked in him, and he had gone back to his old employer and had asked for work, humbly acknowledging his faults, telling of his wife, and they had taken him back.

"I know now why I failed," he said as he finished telling her what he could. "I wouldn't give the best in me. But now I'm going to work hard for you—and the kid, Peggy."

A week later, when Aunt Judith came swooping down on them and found out the real state of affairs, Peggy confessed about the spoons. "I hated to sell them," she said, "but I just had to, Aunt Judith."

And that very afternoon Aunt Judith hunted up the second-hand shop and bought them back, and when Dick came home they were shining on the table.

"And now," said Aunt Judith as she sipped her tea and watched Dick eat the beefsteak and omelet which she had purchased and had cooked with her own expert hands—"and now I want to make a proposition. I want you to come back with me to Hillsdale and take care of the store for me and live in my big house. Peggy can run the business, Richard, and I'll go and travel, as I have wanted to do for years, knowing that when I come back everything will be in order."

As she beamed on them Dick rose and put his arm about Peggy.

"It's awfully good of you, Aunt Judith," he said huskily, "and we will be glad to go to Hillsdale, and, please God, I'll make a success of myself—and we will keep the silver spoons for the kid, and we will try to make our lives as bright and shining as they are—won't we, Peggy, dear?"

Old Men's Memories.

The late Sarah Orne Jewett lived a great part of her life in South Berwick, and the quaint Maine characters of her native town interested her profoundly.

Miss Jewett at the Mayflower club in Boston once illustrated aptly the reliable quality of old people's memories.

"A young minister," she said, "born in South Berwick, was called in his maturity to one of the churches of the town. Everybody welcomed him. He had been away nearly thirty years, and the oldest inhabitant's welcome was the warmest of all."

"The oldest inhabitant, leaning on his stick, said in a high, tremulous voice to the young man:

"And you're Master Johnny Greenough! Little Johnny Greenough! How time do fly! Why, it seems only yesterday I tramped in to the courthouse to see your poor old grandfather hanged."

"Everybody looked shocked. So there was a blot on the Greenough family 'scutcheon, eh? But the young man said calmly:

"My good old friend, your memory is partly right and partly wrong. My grandfather was murdered, not hanged. It was two brothers of the name of Alden who paid the penalty of his murder."

"Well, that's what I said," crowed the octogenarian. "That's just what I said, ain't it?"—Exchange.

C. C. Faculty Recital.

Lovers of good music were given a rare treat last Friday night at the College Auditorium in the program of the Clarendon College Faculty Recital.

Each teacher in the music department is an artist and the work done in this program proclaims them to be not only good teachers but excellent performers. Each of the teachers was greeted with a round of applause as he or she came upon the stage and enthusiastic approval was given at the close of each number. The Clarendon public do not know it generally but they have within their midst a composer as well as a fine teacher, in the person of Prof. R. Deane Shure, the musical director. He rendered two of his compositions during the program Friday night and they were excellent, many, including this writer, thinking them better than those of other composers which he played, especially did the beautiful singing melody in them appeal more than the others.

Each of the teachers was on the program for three renditions, all gems from the old masters, but the program was made longer by a number of encores. Miss Miller was first on the program and acquitted herself nicely. Miss Williams, the vocal teacher, then sang the "Call to Spring," by Holmes. Prof. Hegerman then gave three excellent pieces and responded to an encore. Miss Williams sang "Maid of Cadiz" from Delibes, and responded to an encore.

Prof. Shure, then rendered three beautiful compositions, the second being the Etude Op. 3, No. 4, one of his own compositions, which was very pretty. In response to an encore he played his own composition in a beautiful March.

Clarendon College may justly be proud of her musical faculty. Each teacher is a good teacher and also a splendid performer. Each is an earnest worker and not only labors with the pupil in a musical line but does his work well in general ways, giving his pupil education along every line in which he may be accomplished.

The recital Friday night showed the public that a first-class program like that seen in cities by well-known artists could be given by good people right here at home.

A Mr. Witherspoon of Ellis county was here last Friday.

Edwin Stamford of Lelia Lake was here Saturday trading.

These Bad Pains

which give you such exquisite suffering, every month, are caused, as you know, by female trouble. Relief seldom or never comes of itself. It is necessary to cure the cause, in order to stop the pains, and this can only be done if you will take a specific, female remedy, that acts directly on the womanly organs.

WINE OF CARDUI

WOMAN'S RELIEF

"Cardui did wonders for me," writes Mrs. H. C. Larson, of Oida, Ia. "I had female trouble for 3 years. I had displacement, which increased my suffering, the doctor could only relieve me at times. Now, I am so much better, I hardly know when my time begins or when it ends."

LEGALLY A CORPSE.

Therefore He Could Not Possibly Have Been Murdered.

It was the custom in the good old days in Great Britain and Ireland to hang condemned men for half an hour and then hand them over to their friends. A man named Mahoney was hanged in this way. At the end of half an hour his body was given to his friends, who put him in a coffin they had brought with them and galloped off with him on a cart. But before they were out of sight of the gallows authorities the corpse in the exuberance of his joy sat up in the coffin and shouted, "Hooroo!" A "pal," terrified lest this exhibition of vitality should cause the executioner to come after them, hit the hanged man playfully on the head with his stick, remarking, "Kape quiet, ye spalpeen."

The silencing was so effectual that the victim of it never woke again, but was well and truly "waked" that same evening.

There was no doubt that the blow on the head killed him. The facts came to the knowledge of the authorities, and a Justice was appealed to for a warrant for the culprit's arrest on a charge of murder, but the Justice refused it, explaining that as the man was dead, having been hanged for half an hour and given up to his friends legally a corpse, it was impossible that he could have been murdered.—London Tit-Bits.

THE AFRICAN MARKET.

Prices That Wild Animals Bring in the Interior.

The prices of wild animals naturally fluctuate with the demand. An excessive supply of rhinoceroses would soon reduce the market value. Five for sale at any time in the world would glut the market, for one cannot sell a rhinoceros every day. The maintenance of wild animals is costly and they soon eat their value in food, so that every day they are on the hunter's or the dealer's hands he is losing money.

After the animals are captured they have to be transported to the coast. This adds greatly to the cost. Delivered at Nairobi or Fort Florence, which are inland and practically on the African hunting field, a baby rhinoceros of the prehensile lipped species will bring from $375 to $500, a giraffe from $250 to $500 and a baby hippopotamus from $250 to $450. elands and most of the large antelope from $125 to $200, elephants from $375 to $875, lions and leopards, with the exception of the black species of the latter, from $100 to $425, according to size and condition. The gorilla and the square muzzled (or so called white) rhinoceros can be sold at auction by telegraph. Their value might run from $5,000 to $30,000, according to the bidding.—Hampton's Magazine.

Diplomacy.

Sunday passed. Tuesday rolled around, and still his tall form did not loom in the vestibule when the cuckoo clock was sounding 8. Thursday he came, and the beautiful girl was burning with wrath.

"So this is the way you neglect me!" she hissed. "What have you to say for yourself? Why didn't you come?"

"I couldn't," faltered the young man. "I had the dyspepsia, and the doctor advised me not to come."

"What—the doctor told you not to come to see me because you had the dyspepsia?"

"Well, he told me to keep away from all sweets."

The next morning she had him seated on the parlor sofa, telling him he was the nicest young man in the world.—London Express.

Little Willie Knew.

Little Willie, the son of a German-town woman, was playing one day with the girl next door when the latter exclaimed:

"Don't you hear your mother calling you? That's three times she's done so. Aren't you going in?"

"Not yet," responded Willie imperterbably.

"Won't she whip you?" demanded the little girl, awed.

"Naw!" exclaimed Willie in disgust. "She ain't got'to whip nobody! She's got company. So, when I go in, she'll just say, 'The poor little man has been so deaf since he's had the measles!'"—Lippincott's.

Fully Appreciated.

Raymond, aged five, returned from Sunday school in a state of evident excitement. He strutted around the room as if about to burst with importance. The sympathetic eye of his mother was not slow to observe this.

"What's the matter, Raymond?" she asked.

"Oh, mother," exclaimed the small boy, his eyes sparkling, "the superintendent said something awful nice about me in his prayer this morning."

"What did he say?"

"He said, 'O Lord, we thank thee for food and Raymond.'"—Woman's Home Companion.

A Strong Guarantee.

"Are you sure these eggs are fresh?" asked the woman, eyeing them suspiciously.

"Yes, ma'am," replied the grocer, with emphasis. "I guarantee those eggs. If any of them aren't good I'll make 'em good!"—Lippincott's.

Mashing the Masher.

The Denison Herald uses this extract from an exchange to adorn conclusion of its own.

A young and very pretty lady was walking up and down the platform, evidently waiting for an expected friend, while a trim little jogged at her heels. A young fellow wearing low-quartered shoes and high-cut pants with socks that could rival Joseph's coat of many colors was sitting on a truck on the platform sucking a ready-rolled, which he let hang limply from his nether lip, while it was not working, allowing the smoke to dribble from his mouth as he talked. Every time the girl would pass he would say to no one in particular, but to id enough to be heard by all in the vicinity: "I love my wife, but oh you kid!" much to the evident disgust of the young lady and many other civilized people on the platform. After hearing the insane remark of the would-be-masher, she looked right at it and said in a loud clear voice: "I love my dog, but oh you puppy!"

The reporters always give the "gents" the worst of it. Now, as a matter of fact, young ladies who parade in public accompanied by pet dogs like to be admired, and seldom do they object to the obvious compliments manifested in admiring glances. Perhaps the young lady squelched the dude, but it does not always happen so.—Dallas News.

Wid De News-paper Guys.

Abilene News: It is a significant fact that among the list of supplies taken by Dr. Cook on his trip to the Pole are not found any intoxicating liquors. Yet down this way people drink liquor "in order to keep warm."

Really, very few people drink liquor to keep warm. They drink it because they crave it and like it. And the more they drink the more they must drink, until finally they can not drink any more because they can not open their mouths or eyes. They are dead. If the Eskimos were to become habituated to the use of liquor for keeping themselves warm it would be only a few years until their race would be cold in death.—Dallas News.

Sam Harbin, of the Richardson Echo, is still writing letters about his Alaskan trip. If Sam doesn't watch out he will find the pole.—McKinney Examiner.

If Sam should find the pole he might be called a liar if he wrote back to Texas about it for Peary, who someone said once lived in Texas, is calling himself the only original discoverer of that stick. Don't do any diskivering Sammie

An English astronomer says those white streaks on the moon are immense salt deposits. This should keep the man in the moon from getting too fresh with sweethearts now and then.—West Texas Journal (Barstow.)

Maybe dat's de reason why Newspaper Guy hasn't made no success in his sparking, dat geezer in the mune has chopped out sparks wid some of hiz salt. Salt will put fire out, won't it?

When it showers, the growing grain has its appetite whetted for more drink; and when there is too much rain it may be looked upon as being on a spree, which will injure it.—Farm & Ranch.

We always knowed a two legged man cud get on a good high spree wid de joy juice what is made outen grain, but its de fust time we ever heard of de "Raw material" getting on one.

Here is the way the papers will write up weddings ten years hence: "The bride looked well in a traveling suit, but all eyes were centered on the groom. He wore a dark suit that fitted his form perfectly, and in his daintily gloved hands he carried a small rose. His curly hair was beautifully done, and a delicate odor of hair oil of the best quality floated down the aisle as he passed. The young people will miss him now that he is married. He is loved by all for his many accomplishments, his tender grace and his winning ways. The bride commands a good salary as bookkeeper, and the groom will miss none of the luxuries to which he has been accustomed. A crowd of pretty men saw him off at the depot."—Temple Mirror.

Yep, but don't you think in some cases we'd better begin writing that way now.

No-doubt the pore groom would appreciate a write up for as matters stand now he gets scant consideration at the hands of the reporters.

Will B. Thorpe was down from Amarillo Sunday visiting relatives and friends.

In Memoriam.

The late Mr. S. B. Hoisington was born in Gill, Mass., in 1822, though the family afterward moved to Chicopee, Falls, Mass.

In 1847 he married Caroline K. Smith of Granville, Mass., and lived for a time at Granville.

Afterward he moved to Buffalo, N. Y., and still later, following the tide of immigration to the West, he went to Galesburg, Illinois, where he lived for more than thirty years. A devoted follower of Jesus Christ he was a member of the First Congregational church of that place.

In the more active years of his life, he was engaged in mercantile pursuits for a livelihood.

In 1847 he moved to Bosque county, Texas; some years afterward, to Waco, Texas. Here he was a member of the Second Presbyterian church when it was founded and there displayed his Christian character. Someone of this church has said that he would have died for his convictions of right and truth. In Waco, his life companion was taken from him. At the grave he erected a family monument on which was the inscription for both her and himself, except the two last two figures, telling the year of his death.

After a few years, he moved with his daughter and her family to Clarendon, Texas. Though he identified himself with the Presbyterian church in Clarendon, he felt that he could not be of much service there, as he was now somewhat burdened with years. But his faithfulness there will be attested by all who knew him and his presence and devotion will be missed.

Though growing more infirm during the last years of his life, his last illness was a short one, as he had wished it might be. A stroke of paralysis on Sept. 4th ended his life the day following, Sept. 5th, 1909.

The interment was at Oakwood cemetery, Waco, Texas, where his remains are laid to rest beside those of his loved companion.

In his daughter's home, his loving deeds will be long and sadly missed.

By many, his life is considered a success, in that it was an inspiration and a blessing to those around him and entitles him to a vision of Paul and the Prophets, whom, for many years he had been expecting sometime to behold.

Emmett Thompson, one of the college boys, is very sick at the dormitory with the fever.
