Holly's, Hereford's sugar future bright

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Hereford's Holly Sugar plant will play a "vital" role in the future of the new Imperial Holly Sugar Company, the company's president said Saturday.

Bob Hanna, president of Imperial Holly, addressed the annual Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association banquet Saturday at the Deaf Smith County Bull Barn.

"The outlook is for severe clear and bright," Hanna said.

The new company was formed last year when Imperial Sugar, based in Sugarland, bought the outstanding shares of Holly Sugar. The acquisition of Holly made the new company the second largest publicly-held sugar company in the United States.

Hanna traced the history of Imperial, which is the longest-operating company in Texas. It was originally established in 1820, and the first mill was built in 1843 by Sam Williams. It was purchased in the 1900s by the Kempner family, which is in its fifth generation of ownership.

"We have been owned, managed and operated by sugar people for 80 years," Hanna said. "I've heard that Holly had been acquired by a bunch of rich Texans. Holly has actually been acquired by a sugar company

BOB HANNA

President of Imperial Holly explained Hereford's role in the company's future determined to have a future for refined sugar.

Hanna said Imperial's financial track record was so well established that the company was able to make one phone call to a New York bank for an unsecured signature loan for $150 million to acquire Holly.

"We are a fine company with a fine reputation in a good business," Hanna said.

Hanna said the company had faced market problems, fierce competition and a squeeze on prices. "We had to become a much better company to be a survivor," Hanna said. "But we have no desire to just be a survivor. We want to be growth oriented and expand on a determined path. Holly was a natural for combining with Imperial because we have many similarities."

Hanna told the crowd of 489 people that the company intends for its marketing to increase while reducing some costs and increasing revenues.

"And we have gained several things from Holly that were not on the balance sheet," Hanna said. "One of those things was an excellent grower-processor relationship, and we want to expand on that. You can rely on us to perform."

"We have to increase our profits to pay off our $150 million note and carry through on our capital improvement program. But we can't increase our income without increasing your (growers') income. We want Holly growers to make the most profit possible."

Hanna said Imperial Holly has approved a capital improvement program that will increase the capacity and the beet-slicing rate of the Hereford plant. The processing period should be lengthened by up to 15 days, and new projects would increase the sugar content in beets.

"The company is also pleased to enjoy the support we receive from Hereford," Hanna said. "We also intend to be the type of corporate citizen we should be. We intend to grow, and intend to increase our contribution to Hereford and the area."

Humorist Dale Minnick of Woodward, Okla., also addressed the banquet, which had one of the largest crowds in its 27-year history.

City cancels insurance after mixup

BY ANDREA HOOTEN
Staff Writer

After 11 months of thinking city employees had optional life insurance when, in actuality, no optional insurance was established, the Hereford City Commission decided Monday to drop its local insurance agency for another.

The commission voted 4-0, with Bud Eades abstaining, to end its dealings with Lone Star Insurance Agency after City Manager Darwin McGill received a letter Jan. 1 from Commercial Union Company (company Lone Star was dealing with which handled the city's basic life insurance) saying it was terminating the insurance policy.

The letter stated that since a proper application was never received from Lone Star for the basic life insurance, the company was dropping the city's regular life insurance effective March 1.

On Dec. 7, 1987, the city awarded its life insurance bid through Lone Star to Commercial Union with optional insurance to Guardian Life Insurance Company.

Jeryl Baker, Lone Star's agent for the city, said Guardian was a few cents cheaper than going straight with Commercial.

"It seemed every time we turned around Guardian was changing its guidelines," Baker said. "It really started getting into a mess when the city wanted to wait until February (1988) before starting up the insurance, and by that time, Guardian changed its underwriting policy and said they didn't want to handle the optional insurance without the basic, too," said Baker.

"I never sent in an application because I knew we couldn't use Guardian anyway and I was just waiting to see what the city was going to do."

McGill said he was never made aware that there were problems concerning the optional insurance until this January.

Since February 1988, the city has been deducting money from the employees' paychecks who wanted the optional insurance. Three monthly checks were sent but Guardian never sent any recognition that the checks were sent.

"We knew something wasn't right then," said City Attorney Earnest Langley. "The third check was sent to Lone Star in April and then, just last month, we get a bill for eight months worth of coverage when Lone Star knew we didn't even have any coverage."

Ken Rogers, president of Lone Star, apologized for not rectifying the application situation sooner, but Guardian assured him that even though the original application was not suitable, the insurance was still bound.

"I feel there is fault on both sides. We filled out all the applications and sent the check (to Guardian) on Feb. 26 (1988), when the city first signed on with Lone Star."

"On May 24 they (Guardian) said they were changing the thing up, so we sent photocopies in again, but they always told us that when we sent in the original application, the insurance was bound."

A representative with Guardian notified McGill in a phone call that Lone Star did finally clear up the application problem and coverage would begin in January 1989.

"That's just too late," McGill said. "We had thought all last year that we had optional life insurance coverage when in fact we didn't. They (Lone Star) has just made too many mistakes in all of this and we wouldn't drop our coverage with a local company unless the reasons were this great."

Lone Star also was carrying the

Cattle producers feel effect of '88 drought

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's already a rough winter for those cattle producers who have to buy higher-priced hay and grain to make up for last year's drought-ravaged pastures and feed crops, according to Agriculture Department analysts.

The financial bind of recent years has forced cattle producers to cut back herds and delay new expansion plans. That has reduced beef output sharply and sent prices to record levels at supermarket counters.

It will get worse before improving, the analysts say. Cattle production prices are edging still higher, and so are consumer beef prices — which could threaten to make family shoppers think about pork and chicken instead of beef.

As of Dec. 1, according to USDA surveys, hay stockpiles nationally totaled less than 90.9 million tons, down almost a fourth from more than 119.8 million tons a year earlier.

Prices of baled hay, including alfalfa and other kinds, averaged almost $97 per ton last month, up from less than $65 in December 1987.

Moreover, in some of the hardest-hit drought states hay stockpiles are a fraction of their year-ago level. In North Dakota, for example, Dec. 1 inventories were estimated at little more than 2.3 million tons, compared with nearly 5.3 million tons a year earlier.

Cattle production costs "may rise modestly" in 1989, says a report by the department's Economic Research Service. Decisions to open up this year's feed grains programs to a larger acreage may ease the supply and price situation later on, but prospects will not be firmed up before July and August.

Meanwhile, the agency said in the January-February issue of Agricultural Outlook magazine, 1989 beef production is expected to decline 5 percent to 7 percent from last year, the lowest level since 1980. However, larger supplies of poultry and pork are expected.

That would leave this year's total meat supply at only slightly below

the 1988 record, the report said. Even so, retail beef prices are expected to reach a record level.

"Rising consumer incomes and high employment rates likely will provide continued support for meat prices," the report said. "A favorable economic environment will have to be maintained if record retail beef prices expected in 1989 are to be met with little consumer resistance."

The U.S. cattle inventory on Jan. 1, 1988, dropped below 100 million head for the first time since 1961, and the 1987 and 1988 calf crops also were the smallest since 1961.

A new estimate on the size of the U.S. cattle herd on Jan. 1, 1989, will be issued by USDA on Feb. 8, and may show a further decline, according to agency economists.

The decline in 1989 beef output will be abetted by a continued slide in the slaughter of "non-fed" cattle, which includes culled cows and other animals that are sold without going through feedlots.

No chickening out

Bush and city rehearse for inauguration

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Bush is polishing his inaugural address, trying to make it shorter, while the Senate opens the first confirmation hearing for his Cabinet and the capital rehearses ceremonies marking the change of power at the White House.

Three days before Bush will be sworn in as the 41st president, hotels are filling up with early arrivals from the 300,000 people expected to watch or take part in the five-day extravaganza.

"The mood is very upbeat," said Ed Cassidy, a spokesman for the inaugural committee. "Rehearsals are taking place all over town. Decorations are going up. Thousands of media people from all over the world are picking up their credentials" to cover the inauguration.

On Capitol Hill, James A. Baker III, picked by Bush to be his secretary of state, was going before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to testify about his nomination.

city's general liability and casualty insurance which the commission decided to withdraw.

"We really hate being put into a predicament like this, Ken," said Mayor Wes Fisher, "but it just really shakes our confidence when we're dealing with taxpayers' money and the employees' money and this kind of thing comes up."

The commission voted to place its liability and casualty insurance with Texas Municipal League, who bid against Lone Star last December.

The life insurance will be rebid.

In other action, the city:

- accepted a resignation letter from Commissioner Jerry Walsh who is moving to Champaign, Ill., to man a Frito-Lay plant. The commission will appoint someone to fill Walsh's place until his term expires.

- decided to continue its funding of the Economic Development Council.

- authorized the mayor to execute a tax deed on property at the northwest corner of Main and Second streets.

- OK'd selling land adjacent to Western Feedyard on U.S. Highway 60.

- appointed Bonna Duke, city secretary, as representative to the Firemen's Pension Board.

- authorized preparing specifications for four police cars which are budgeted.

Work begins on US budget

AUSTIN (AP) — House budget writers have begun working on a proposed $43.7 billion budget, while their counterparts in the Senate are complaining about a proposal to pay for prison expansion by issuing bonds.

The $43.7 billion two-year budget proposal represents a 3 percent increase over current spending, but includes an 8.2 percent decrease in funding to the state's public universities and colleges.

But House Speaker Gib Lewis said Monday that reduction will never be approved.

"I'm confident they will be restored," Lewis said of the proposed higher education reductions.

Legislation freeing disputed franchise and insurance tax collections, and bookkeeping measures proposed by state Comptroller Bob Bullock could provide enough funds without the need for a tax increase, Lewis said.

"We have a lot of things we're looking at," Lewis said.

The proposed cut in higher education was part of a series of reductions to lower spending by about $1 billion and bring the budget in line with projected revenue.

Meanwhile, Senate budget writers on the Finance Committee debated a plan to build additional prison beds through the issuance of state bonds.

Gov. Bill Clements wants the state to expand prison capacity by 11,000 prison beds by issuing $343 million in tax-supported bonds. He has called on the Legislature to place the bond issue before voters on the May ballot.

But Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, said the interest on those bonds would cost taxpayers nearly double the original amount.

"It may look good now. But I'm telling you, we're costing the taxpayers $2 for every dollar spent. Why don't we just swallow the pill and pay cash for them," Montford said.

Post office pileup

Sonya Torbert was the first inductee into the 1989 post office pileup list when her vehicle collided with another vehicle which was backing from a parking space in front of the U.S. post office in the 400 block of Main Street. The Hereford Police Department reported 10 similar accidents in 1988 at this often hazardous intersection.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have raised a large family, each child very different from the other. They range from extremely ambitious to somewhat unmotivated.

Our children received different levels of education. Some have been more successful career-wise than others, but on the whole they have chosen pleasant spouses, brought up respectful, caring youngsters and have managed to get along quite well financially with occasional help from us.

I truly believe, especially in this day and age, that we have been blessed. We have never had any earthshaking problems with any of our children or grandchildren, or with each other.

My husband (I'll call him "Dan") feels we have failed as parents because "Mary" doesn't keep an immaculate house, or "John's" car is never clean, or "Joan" spends money on frivolous things, or "Bill's" kids have atrocious manners and talk with gum in their mouths.

I keep reminding him that it's quite extraordinary to have had 40 years of marriage and no major calamities in a family of our size. A few hurt feelings here and there, but no big blow-ups.

As the years fly by, I see Dan becoming more obsessed with "unmet expectations." He nurses his angry feelings and becomes increasingly bitter. He doesn't realize that he is not perfect and that he has not always fulfilled my "expectations." Dan quit going to church because the minister wasn't "spiritual" enough. He openly encourages the children (especially the adult males) not to attend church. I love to walk, jog and dance. Dan will not join me in these activities because he "gets enough exercise at work." So I jog, walk and go to church alone.

My future looks bleak. It is possible that I will be a widow with financial burdens because Dan has a good chance of dying from lung cancer before he is 60. The man lights one cigarette off the other and refuses to quit. If the cigarettes don't get him, I see myself growing old with an increasingly angry and bitter man, complaining more and more because everyone has failed him.

Ann, please do a column on expectations, real and unrealistic. I keep telling Dan that you can't change people, but he says I'm wrong.

I believe this is the reason so many adults (mostly males) say, "No matter how hard I tried, I could never please my father." The result is disappointed parents and unhappy children.

I hope my letter will touch a tender spot in some of your readers. Please encourage children and spouses to clip and mail this column to the offending member of the family.--Ever Prayerful, Ever Hopeful in Middle America

DEAR MIDDLE AMERICA: I suspect your husband's dissatisfaction with his children is rooted in the fact that he never received unconditional love and approval from his own father. The unrealistic demands he makes on his sons and daughters are the result of his unfulfilled dreams. He wanted his children to be perfect because he never was. Of course, they failed him and he feels "cheated."

Year of change, triumph in Hereford

By SPERRY NIEMAN, Editor-Publisher and JOHN BRIDGES, Managing Editor

When you look back over a year's worth of news, it's impossible to arbitrarily divide what specific news should be "No. 1" or "No. 10" or not selected at all for someone's list.

Every year, there are dozens of important stories. Some stories are important for all, some stories are important for a few. Some stories are important at all.

But, with generalization, there were three to 1988's news.

There was evidence of change.

Congress had decided in December 1987 to concentrate its efforts to buy high-level nuclear waste in Nevada. Come over 500 jobs. Hereford's housing market was no longer filled with "Want to Buy" but with "I've Sold, I Love it Best."

It was a year of change among our elected officials, with changes from the City Hall to the nation's capitol.

Flexed officials and other community leaders also helped promote change and betterment around the region and the state.

Bob Hoover, taking time away from his television show, spent time in Hereford to show trust.

Local news included Ted Langford on the GOP ticket to face incumbent Sheriff Joe Brown, incumbent Precinct 1 Commissioner Bill Bradley challenged by Luke Chavez, John Halber, and Gloria Salinas. Halber and Gerald McCalum for the Democratic slot opposite incumbent Republican Larry Conbers for the U.S. Representative's seat from the 19th District.

The 1987 Christmas Stocking Fund set a new record, with total contributions of $13,800, eclipsing the old record of $10,600 set in 1986.

The Hereford boys' varsity basketball team picked up its first district win with a 66-53 win over scores posted by the previous year's team.

8-The Water Deposit Impact Commission held one of its final meetings as the WIDC, the group which was formed as an oversight group over Department of Energy activities in the county, agreed to a plan which would determine the needs and desires of Hereford and Deaf Smith County and develop a plan to fill the needs and desires.

13-Ladon Henry was named 1988 president of the United Way board of directors meeting of Deaf Smith County as a UWSDC.

13-Hereford High School seniors registered a decline in their 1987 TEAMS test scores from scores posted by the previous year's efforts, learned results of annual meeting of the Hereford Area Conservers Association here. Hereford Area Conservers Association here. Hereford Area Conservers Association here.

19-Raymond Segar named the 1988 Year in Progress award recipient.

20-Walton set outland as a special conservation area.

20-Technology dominated the year.

Cattle producers feel effect of '88 drought

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's already a rough winter for those cattle producers who have to buy higher-priced hay and grain to make up for last year's drought-ravaged pastures and feed crops, according to Agriculture Department analysts.

The financial bind of recent years has forced cattle producers to cut back herds and delay new expansion plans. That has reduced beef output sharply and sent prices to record levels at supermarket counters. It will get worse before improving, the analysts say. Cattle production prices are edging still higher, and so are consumer beef prices — which could threaten to make family shoppers think about pork and chicken instead of beef.

As of Dec. 1, according to USDA surveys, hay stockpiles nationally totaled less than 90.9 million tons, down almost a fourth from more than 119.8 million tons a year earlier. Prices of baled hay, including alfalfa and other kinds, averaged almost $97 per ton last month, up from less than $65 in December 1987.

Moreover, in some of the hardest-hit drought states hay stockpiles are a fraction of their year-ago level. In North Dakota, for example, Dec. 1 inventories were estimated at little more than 2.3 million tons, compared with nearly 5.3 million tons a year earlier.

Cattle production costs "may rise modestly" in 1989, says a report by the department's Economic Research Service. Decisions to open up this year's feed grains programs to a larger acreage may ease the supply and price situation later on, but prospects will not be firmed up before July and August.

Meanwhile, the agency said in the January-February issue of Agricultural Outlook magazine, 1989 beef production is expected to decline 5 percent to 7 percent from last year, the lowest level since 1980. However, larger supplies of poultry and pork are expected.

That would leave this year's total meat supply at only slightly below

the 1988 record, the report said. Even so, retail beef prices are expected to reach a record level.

"Rising consumer incomes and high employment rates likely will provide continued support for meat prices," the report said. "A favorable economic environment will have to be maintained if record retail beef prices expected in 1989 are to be met with little consumer resistance."

The U.S. cattle inventory on Jan. 1, 1988, dropped below 100 million head for the first time since 1961, and the 1987 and 1988 calf crops also were the smallest since 1961.

A new estimate on the size of the U.S. cattle herd on Jan. 1, 1989, will be issued by USDA on Feb. 8, and may show a further decline, according to agency economists.

The decline in 1989 beef output will be abetted by a continued slide in the slaughter of "non-fed" cattle, which includes culled cows and other animals that are sold without going through feedlots.

No chickening out

Bush and city rehearse for inauguration

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Bush is polishing his inaugural address, trying to make it shorter, while the Senate opens the first confirmation hearing for his Cabinet and the capital rehearses ceremonies marking the change of power at the White House.

Three days before Bush will be sworn in as the 41st president, hotels are filling up with early arrivals from the 300,000 people expected to watch or take part in the five-day extravaganza.

"The mood is very upbeat," said Ed Cassidy, a spokesman for the inaugural committee. "Rehearsals are taking place all over town. Decorations are going up. Thousands of media people from all over the world are picking up their credentials" to cover the inauguration.

On Capitol Hill, James A. Baker III, picked by Bush to be his secretary of state, was going before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to testify about his nomination.

city's general liability and casualty insurance which the commission decided to withdraw. "We really hate being put into a predicament like this, Ken," said Mayor Wes Fisher, "but it just really shakes our confidence when we're dealing with taxpayers' money and the employees' money and this kind of thing comes up."

The commission voted to place its liability and casualty insurance with Texas Municipal League, who bid against Lone Star last December.

The life insurance will be rebid. In other action, the city:

- accepted a resignation letter from Commissioner Jerry Walsh who is moving to Champaign, Ill., to man a Frito-Lay plant. The commission will appoint someone to fill Walsh's place until his term expires.

- decided to continue its funding of the Economic Development Council.

- authorized the mayor to execute a tax deed on property at the northwest corner of Main and Second streets.

- OK'd selling land adjacent to Western Feedyard on U.S. Highway 60.

- appointed Bonna Duke, city secretary, as representative to the Firemen's Pension Board.

- authorized preparing specifications for four police cars which are budgeted.

Work begins on US budget

AUSTIN (AP) — House budget writers have begun working on a proposed $43.7 billion budget, while their counterparts in the Senate are complaining about a proposal to pay for prison expansion by issuing bonds.

The $43.7 billion two-year budget proposal represents a 3 percent increase over current spending, but includes an 8.2 percent decrease in funding to the state's public universities and colleges.

But House Speaker Gib Lewis said Monday that reduction will never be approved.

"I'm confident they will be restored," Lewis said of the proposed higher education reductions.

Legislation freeing disputed franchise and insurance tax collections, and bookkeeping measures proposed by state Comptroller Bob Bullock could provide enough funds without the need for a tax increase, Lewis said.

"We have a lot of things we're looking at," Lewis said.

The proposed cut in higher education was part of a series of reductions to lower spending by about $1 billion and bring the budget in line with projected revenue.

Meanwhile, Senate budget writers on the Finance Committee debated a plan to build additional prison beds through the issuance of state bonds.

Gov. Bill Clements wants the state to expand prison capacity by 11,000 prison beds by issuing $343 million in tax-supported bonds. He has called on the Legislature to place the bond issue before voters on the May ballot.

But Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, said the interest on those bonds would cost taxpayers nearly double the original amount.

"It may look good now. But I'm telling you, we're costing the taxpayers $2 for every dollar spent. Why don't we just swallow the pill and pay cash for them," Montford said.

Post office pileup

Sonya Torbert was the first inductee into the 1989 post office pileup list when her vehicle collided with another vehicle which was backing from a parking space in front of the U.S. post office in the 400 block of Main Street. The Hereford Police Department reported 10 similar accidents in 1988 at this often hazardous intersection.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have raised a large family, each child very different from the other. They range from extremely ambitious to somewhat unmotivated.

Our children received different levels of education. Some have been more successful career-wise than others, but on the whole they have chosen pleasant spouses, brought up respectful, caring youngsters and have managed to get along quite well financially with occasional help from us.

I truly believe, especially in this day and age, that we have been blessed. We have never had any earthshaking problems with any of our children or grandchildren, or with each other.

My husband (I'll call him "Dan") feels we have failed as parents because "Mary" doesn't keep an immaculate house, or "John's" car is never clean, or "Joan" spends money on frivolous things, or "Bill's" kids have atrocious manners and talk with gum in their mouths.

I keep reminding him that it's quite extraordinary to have had 40 years of marriage and no major calamities in a family of our size. A few hurt feelings here and there, but no big blow-ups.

As the years fly by, I see Dan becoming more obsessed with "unmet expectations." He nurses his angry feelings and becomes increasingly bitter. He doesn't realize that he is not perfect and that he has not always fulfilled my "expectations." Dan quit going to church because the minister wasn't "spiritual" enough. He openly encourages the children (especially the adult males) not to attend church. I love to walk, jog and dance. Dan will not join me in these activities because he "gets enough exercise at work." So I jog, walk and go to church alone.

My future looks bleak. It is possible that I will be a widow with financial burdens because Dan has a good chance of dying from lung cancer before he is 60. The man lights one cigarette off the other and refuses to quit. If the cigarettes don't get him, I see myself growing old with an increasingly angry and bitter man, complaining more and more because everyone has failed him.

Ann, please do a column on expectations, real and unrealistic. I keep telling Dan that you can't change people, but he says I'm wrong.

I believe this is the reason so many adults (mostly males) say, "No matter how hard I tried, I could never please my father." The result is disappointed parents and unhappy children.

I hope my letter will touch a tender spot in some of your readers. Please encourage children and spouses to clip and mail this column to the offending member of the family.--Ever Prayerful, Ever Hopeful in Middle America

DEAR MIDDLE AMERICA: I suspect your husband's dissatisfaction with his children is rooted in the fact that he never received unconditional love and approval from his own father. The unrealistic demands he makes on his sons and daughters are the result of his unfulfilled dreams. He wanted his children to be perfect because he never was. Of course, they failed him and he feels "cheated."

Unless Dan gets some therapy (highly unlikely), your prognostications may well be correct. I hope you are as strong as you seem to be and that you will continue to maintain a positive attitude and continue to count your blessings, no matter what.

Finalizing Week of Prayer

Wednesday marks the beginning of the annual world-wide observance of the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity (Jan. 18-25). All members/parishioners are urged to pray that all Christians may be one body in Christ as reflected in the theme, 'Building Community: One Body in Christ' (Romans 12:1-21). In Hereford, several local churches representing many denominations will participate, with two special services planned for 7:30 p.m. Friday and Sunday at the St. Anthony's Catholic Church and the Church of the Nazarene, respectively. Rev. James Peach of Westway Baptist Church, left, and Rev. Bob Huffaker, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene and host pastor for the week-long event, have put the finishing touches on the Week of Prayer. They, along with a special committee, have coordinated the event as sponsored by the Hereford Ministerial Alliance. Peach serves as president of the Alliance. A nursery will be provided at the services, and money collected will benefit Hereford's needy residents.

Texas' Top Basketball Teams

Teams hope Rice can play

MIAMI (AP) — The thought of playing a Super Bowl without Jerry Rice is enough to nauseate any San Francisco 49er fan. Or player. Or coach.

It's not something the NFC champions will have to stomach on Sunday, despite the ankle injury Rice suffered in practice Monday. Just ask any 49er — or any Cincinnati Bengal.

"If he can't walk, he'll play," Joe Montana said. The 49ers quarterback knows his All-Pro receiver isn't about to let his first Super Bowl appearance hinge on a twinge six days before kickoff. "Believe me, he'll play. I'll drag him out there."

If he doesn't do the dragging, Bengals coach Sam Wyche might. "This is a game where the two teams should be at full strength," Wyche said. "I hope he can play. Jerry Rice is one of the best players they've got and one of the best players in the league. "I hope all of them play, on both sides."

Rice left San Francisco's practice after injuring his right ankle and was listed as questionable for this rematch of the 1982 Super Bowl, San Francisco's first of two NFL championships. In the minds of the medics, there might be a question.

As for Rice's teammates and opponents, forget it.

"He's the man you want to get the football to," Cincinnati Pro Bowl safety David Fulcher said of Rice, who when healthy is the most dangerous receiver in the game. "Nobody at this time is going to miss a game like this and I'm sure he knows how important he is to that team."

How important? When Rice's ankle finally healed this season, the 49ers went on a four-game tear that boosted them to the NFC West title.

In those four games, Rice averaged five receptions for 104 yards.

"He's our gamebreaker," Montana said. "That's no secret. And you go to your big-play guy in big games. That's not a secret, either."

"Knowing Jerry Rice, he will be on the field and doing his job."

That's all he was doing when he went down in practice.

"He did a hook pattern and finished it off and then he went in," Montana said. "I didn't know it was bad."

"I don't think it means much if he doesn't (practice). By this time, we're not learning anything new about each other."

Bill Walsh wasn't so sure.

"So much of our offense is related to Montana getting the ball to Rice and without that timing and that week of work, it reduces our effectiveness," the coach said. "We'll rest him completely. We feel he'll be OK."

"If he needs the time to rest and heal," Montana added, "he should take it."

For six weeks this season, Rice had trouble taking it to anybody. Because of the sprained ankle and the tendinitis that followed, he didn't have more than four receptions in any of those games and scored only once. Because San Francisco didn't have another deep threat, the team slumped.

In the playoffs, with the ankle strong and the tendinitis gone, he has 10 catches, half of them for scores — his first postseason touchdowns.

"You can't take a Jerry Rice away from an offense," Fulcher said. "He's going to get his catches. I'm sure he'll be there Sunday to get his catches."

"You have to try to control him. He will make catches and make yardage. When he catches the football, somebody has to be around him and give him something to remember."

UNLV gets three-pointer for three-point victory

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

The timing would have done a Las Vegas nightclub comic proud. It was good enough to keep the Nevada-Las Vegas Runnin' Rebels from defeat.

Greg Anthony's only 3-pointer of the night came with three seconds to go and gave the 10th-ranked Rebels a 66-63 victory over lightly regarded Fullerton State.

"Maybe we're just not very good; I don't know," UNLV coach Jerry Tarkanian said after Monday night's victory.

Anthony, a sophomore guard who scored just five points in the game, launched his desperation 25-footer after Fullerton's Cedric Ceballos had tied the game at 63 with 11 seconds left when he hit a 3-point jumper.

"We got outthrustled at home, in front of our own people," Tarkanian moaned.

At least Nevada-Las Vegas ended up a winner. The same can't be said for No. 11 Syracuse, which fell 68-62 to Connecticut.

Anthony's game-winner overshadowed the performance by Ceballos, who scored 31 points, grabbed 13 rebounds and was 10-of-10 from the free throw line in the Big West contest.

Connecticut 68, No. 11 Syracuse 62

Cliff Robinson scored 24 points and Phil Gamble 21 as Connecticut handed Syracuse its third straight loss and fourth in its last five games — all in Big East Conference competition. The Orangemen are now in last place with a 1-4 conference mark.

"The first 15 minutes we played probably as poorly as we've played since I've been at Syracuse," Coach Jim Boehm said.

Syracuse led for the last time at 39-35 with 15:07 left. But Gamble hit a 3-point basket and a three-point play to put the Huskies back in front for good. Connecticut then hit 14 of 15 free throws in the final 5:31 to seal the victory.

Billy Owens led Syracuse with 19 points.

No. 6 Michigan 99, No. 16 Ohio St. 73

Glen Rice hit five 3-pointers and scored 23 points in Michigan's victory over Ohio State. Terry Mills also scored 23 points and Loy Vaught had 22 for the Wolverines.

Michigan, 15-2 overall and 3-1 in the conference, never trailed, although the Buckeyes, 12-4 and 2-2, cut the deficit to 27-26 with 8:22 left in the first half. Michigan then had a 14-2 spurt to put the game away.

Perry Carter led Ohio State with 17 points.

No. 8 Missouri 104, Virginia Tech 99

In Blacksburg, Va., Byron Irvin scored 35 points and Missouri held off a late Virginia Tech rally to defeat the Hokies.

Missouri, 15-3, extended its winning streak to six games. Virginia Tech, which got 36 points from Wally Lancaster, including five 3-pointers, suffered its fifth straight loss.

The Hokies, 6-8, lost their third straight home game, which they had not done since Cassell Coliseum opened in 1962.

No. 12 Seton Hall 78, Villanova 61

Seton Hall center Ramon Ramos scored 10 points in a decisive run to lead the Pirates over turnover-plagued Villanova and into first place in the Big East.

Seton Hall, 16-1 and 4-1 in the conference, was paced by John Morton's 22 points. Villanova 10-7 and 2-3, was led by Tom Greis with 13 points.

The Pirates forced the Wildcats into 17 first-half turnovers and took control with a 23-11 spurt that began late in the first half and continued at the start of the second half. Ramos finished with 12 points.

No. 20 Stanford 93, Miami, Fla. 59

Howard Wright scored 21 points, including 11 in a row at the outset of the second half, to lead Stanford over Miami. Wright hit all seven of his field goal attempts in the second half as Stanford, 13-3, broke out of a 37-30 halftime lead to go ahead by 15 points midway through the second half.

The Cardinal, now 13-3 overall, outscored the Hurricanes 33-10 in the final 12 minutes.

Eric Brown led Miami with 21 points.

Girls face No. 2 Levelland tonight

The Hereford Lady Whitefaces, riding a five-game winning streak, will challenge the state's No. 2-ranked Levelland girls in a District 1-4A game at 6:30 p.m. today at Whiteface Gym at Hereford Junior High.

The Hereford girls are 11-11, but are 5-4 in district and tied for third place with Borger. Hereford downed the Borger girls last Friday by 19 points to claim the third-place tie, two games behind second-place Dumas.

At 8 p.m., the Whitefaces will seek their third district win of the year when they meet the up-and-down Lobos at Whiteface Gym.

Hereford's JV teams will also be in action tonight, in the West Gym at HJH.

Ashe disagrees with Thompson

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Former tennis star Arthur Ashe, disagreeing sharply with Georgetown basketball coach John Thompson, says athletes who can't meet new NCAA academic requirements don't belong in college.

Proposition 42, approved last week during the NCAA convention, prohibits athletic scholarships for incoming freshmen who don't have both a 2.0 grade-point average in high school and a minimum score of 700 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test or a similar score on another test. The measure takes effect in 1990.

"If you want to play basketball or football or run track, you've got to hit the books," Ashe told students at the Kingswood-Oxford School, where he was leading a seminar Monday honoring Martin Luther King Jr.

Thompson contends that the SAT contains a cultural bias against underprivileged students. In protest of the rule, he walked off the court before his team's game last Saturday against Boston College.

Thompson has said he will not coach again "until I am satisfied that something has been done to provide these student-athletes with appropriate opportunity and hope for access to college."

Ashe disagrees with that stance. "Seven hundred on the SAT exams — that's like a D average," Ashe said. "Seven hundred is so low that cultural bias — and I'm not an expert — probably won't even play a part in it."

The SAT consists of a verbal section and a mathematics portion, each scored from 200 to 800. The minimum score is 400, the maximum 1,600.

"If you can't score 700, I think you should be in a community college or a junior college, anyway," Ashe said.

Ashe, who writes a sports column for The Washington Post, said he would use the column later this week to speak out in support of the rule.

He said colleges do a disservice when they accept athletes who can't meet academic demands.

Lakers perfect at home, beat Rockets

By The Associated Press

In a town where 10 is considered perfect, the Los Angeles Lakers are a perfect 15.

Okay, so the Lakers actually play in Inglewood, not Hollywood. Regardless, they remained the only NBA team with a perfect home record — 15-0 — by defeating the Houston Rockets 124-113 Monday.

"We don't want to lose at home. That's the attitude we take — we don't want to lose in our own backyard," said James Worthy, who led the two-time defending champions with 26 points.

Mychal Thompson, the league leader in shooting percentage, came off the bench to score 13 points without missing a shot in the first half — he was a perfect 6-for-6 — as the Lakers made 47 of 72 shots for 65.3 percent, not perfect but the best in the NBA this season.

Home also remained sweet for the New York Knicks, who won their 14th straight home game by defeating San Antonio 116-106 as Mark Jackson had 24 points, 10 rebounds and 12 assists, and for the Cleveland Cavaliers, who have won 10 in a row on their own floor thanks to a 126-110 victory over Phoenix as Mark Price scored 11 of his season-high 29 points in the third quarter.

Elsewhere, it was Detroit 96, Boston 87; Atlanta 117, Washington 106; Charlotte 127, Philadelphia 122 in double overtime; Denver 118, Sacramento 110 and Golden State 146, Seattle 117.

The Lakers have won 22 straight regular-season home games dating back to last season, but are only 10-12 on the road this season. They went ahead for good by outscoring the Rockets 17-2 over a 4:07 of the first quarter and put the game away by making 15 of 17 shots in the third quarter for a 65-75 lead.

Mike Woodson had 24 points, Purvis Short 23 and Otis Thorpe 20 for the Rockets, who lost despite committing a season-low six turnovers. They shot only 43.7 percent — 45-for-103.

Kajaks 116, Spurs 106
Jackson's triple-double was the third of his two-year career.

Patrick Ewing added 21 points for New York and Willie Anderson led the Spurs with 20.

Jackson has led the Knicks in scoring three of the last four games and Coach Rick Pitino said, "We really needed a big game from him today. He was great against their pressure and really made our half-court offense go."

Cavalliers 124, Suns 110
Cleveland won for the 16th time in its last 19 games and improved its NBA-leading record to 27-7 — but it wasn't easy. The Cavaliers saw all of a 38-30 first-quarter lead erased when Kevin Johnson hit consecutive baskets to put Phoenix ahead for the first time, 70-69 early in the third quarter.

Brad Daugherty scored 28 points for Cleveland while Tom Chambers led Phoenix with 28.
Pistons 94, Celtics 87

At Auburn Hills, Mich., Isiah Thomas scored six of his 16 points during a 13-3 fourth-quarter run that keyed a second-half Detroit comeback.

After trailing by 11 points at halftime, Detroit outscored Boston 29-16 in the third quarter — including 17 of 19 free throws — to take a 71-69 lead into the final period.

Vinnie Johnson led Detroit with 21 points. Danny Ainge topped Boston with 23.

Hawks 117, Bullets 106
At Landover, Md., Dominique Wilkins scored 28 points and grabbed a season-high 16 rebounds as Atlanta snapped a three-game losing streak. Cliff Levingston and Moses Malone led a fourth-quarter Atlanta comeback that erased an 11-point deficit in less than four minutes.

Jeff Malone led Washington with 33 points.
Hornets 127, 76ers 122

At Philadelphia, Kelly Tripucka scored 40 points, including nine in overtime, as Charlotte snapped an 11-game road losing streak. A basket by rookie Rex Chapman, who equalled his career-high with 25 points, gave the Hornets the lead at 120-118 with 1:21 left and baskets by Tripucka and Tyrone Bogues clinched it.

Mike Gminski scored 25 points for the 76ers.

Nuggets 126, Kings 110

At Denver, Walter Davis scored four of his 27 points in a 30-second span late in the fourth quarter to help end the Nuggets' four-game losing streak.

Alex English led the Nuggets with 29 points. Sacramento was led by Ed Pinckney's 21 points.
Warriors 146, SuperSonics 117

At Oakland, Chris Mullin scored nine of his 31 points to spark a 26-10 run at the start of the third quarter as the undersized Warriors won their fifth straight and seventh in nine games since losing 7-foot-4 center Ralph Sampson for at least a month because of a knee injury.

Dale Ellis scored 26 points for Seattle.

Goldsmith gets Rice head job

HOUSTON (AP) — Rice University must concentrate on recruiting football players from Texas if the school is to become competitive in the Southwest Conference, new coach Fred Goldsmith says.

Goldsmith said Monday after arriving in Houston that he is facing the most challenging job in college football.

The former defensive coordinator at the University of Arkansas will be introduced today Rice's head football coach. He replaces Jerry Berndt who resigned Dec. 28.

"One of the keys to Rice football is to really hone in on recruiting in the state of Texas," Goldsmith said, "and to have people on the staff that know the state of Texas and know the football coaches in Texas."

CLEVELAND (AP) — It's never easy for a pro football star to retire. It wasn't for Ozzie Newsome of the Cleveland Browns, the all-time NFL leader among tight ends in passceptions.

Ozzie thought for some time about not playing this year but after discussing it with owner Art Modell and some of the coaches, he decided to play.

"I worked out hard in the off-season," he said, "and I think I was about 25 to 30 percent better physically at the start of the 1988 season than I was a year ago."

LACROSSE FOR JAPAN
BALTIMORE (AP) — The Japanese continue to adopt American sports. Already expert at golf and baseball, and with growing interest in football, they studied something new this summer — lacrosse.

Forty Japanese college students enrolled in a training program in August at John's Hopkins University, always one of the top schools in lacrosse. The head coach of the men's team at Johns Hopkins, Don Zimmerman, conducted the training camp for the visitors from across the Pacific.

NO PAYTON HE
CHICAGO (AP) — Neal Anderson, running back for the Chicago Bears, had no illusions about filling the shoes of the retired Walter Payton in the 1988 season.

"Comparisons were bound to be made," Anderson said. "But I'm Neal Anderson, not Walter Payton. My game is more of a speed game. I'm a deep threat on passes. With Payton it was quickness. He also packed a lot of power. His game was always endurance. He was a superbly-conditioned athlete who was able to wear down defenses."

Lou Gehrig of the Yankees led the American League in home runs three times. The man he succeeded at first base, Wally Pipp, did it twice.

As defensive coordinator at Arkansas, Goldsmith recruited the Houston area.

The Owls finished last season 0-11 and have the nation's longest losing streak of 18 losses.

"At this stage of my life, I'm prepared to meet that and its going take a lot of work by myself, our football team, the staff and the whole organization," Goldsmith said of the task of restoring winning football at Rice.

Bobby May, associate athletic director at Rice, is expected to assume the duties of athletic director. Berndt, now head coach at Temple, held both titles at Rice.

In taking over, Goldsmith has the job at a school that hasn't won a football game since Sept. 26, 1987, went 0-11 last year and has lost 18 in a row, the longest major college losing streak in the country.

"Why we picked him over any particular individual I don't know," said J. Evans Attwell, chairman of the search committee.

"Obviously, we believe he's a first-class individual in every respect and is a heck of a coach," Attwell said. "The people he recruits were good students first and athletes second."

Goldsmith, 44, was head coach at Slippery Rock in 1981, posting a 2-7-1 record.

Goldsmith has been an assistant under Coach Ken Hatfield for the past nine years at Air Force and Arkansas.

Berndt took his entire staff to Temple, leaving Goldsmith with the task of assembling a coaching staff from scratch.

Mark Cordelli, a graduate assistant at Arkansas, came with him to serve as recruiting coordinator.

Dave Cope, an assistant coach at Cypress Creek High School, is the only Houston-area coach among four Goldsmith has talked to which has committed to a move to Rice.

Goldsmith also sought John Pearce of Willowridge and Doug Fertsch of Klein Oaks, but those two decided against a move to Rice on Monday.

Memorial's Wayne Hooks is still considering a post on the Rice staff.

Tim Edwards, head coach at Hurst L.D. Bell, turned down an offer from Goldsmith on Monday.

"Quality Banking and Lasting Friendship"

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I enjoy baking pies that have meringue on top. My problem is the meringue. I just can't get it right. Do you have any tips to help me? — Rena Banks, Memphis, Tenn.

The following simple steps for making successful meringue are from our friends at the American Egg Board.

Be sure beaters and bowls are sparkling clean and free from any grease. Use only metal or glass bowls because plastic bowls, even clean ones, can have a greasy film that can prevent foaming.

Separate the eggs carefully. Be sure not even a bit of yolk gets in with the whites because fat in the yolk can keep the whites from forming properly. Separate the eggs while they are cold.

Let the egg whites stand at room temperature for about half an hour after separating. They will whip to greater volume than if beaten when cold.

Add one-eighth teaspoon cream of tartar for each egg white before beating.

Beat with a rotary beater, whisk or electric mixer at high speed just until foamy. Then gradually begin adding sugar, about a tablespoon at a time, beating as you slowly sprinkle the sugar in. I like to use powdered sugar because it dissolves easier. Be sure to move the beaters or the bowl so all of the egg/sugar mixture reaches the beaters. Continue to beat at high speed until the sugar is dissolved. Rub a little of it between your fingers to be sure all the sugar is dissolved. If you feel any grittiness, work at it some more. Whites should stand in soft or stiff peaks, depending on recipe directions. — Heloise

KNEE PADS

Dear Heloise: My husband is a plumber and he's always working on his knees. The poor guy's knees are red and irritated. I bought him knee pads but they were too cumbersome and annoying to put on and take off. I thought there must be a better way.

That's when I remembered my shoulder pads. I had a few sets of pads, so I took two of them and sewed them on the inside of his pants at the knee area. When he kneeled, they were right under his knees. They worked well and aren't noticeable. — Julie Davis, Orlando, Fla.

HELPFUL JARS

Dear Heloise: My husband has a workshop in the garage and I'm pretty proud of him — he's extremely neat. I'd like to tell you how he stores his nails, screws and other small items.

I saved all the baby-food jars and gave them to him. He nailed the lids to the underside of his shelves. All he has to do is unscrew the bottles and take what he needs, then screw them back to the lids.

He can see what is in each bottle and also there's no problem of bottles falling off shelves. He must have 25 bottles under there. The junior-size baby-food jars are a perfect size. — Hanna Peterson, Tacoma, Wash.

Dear Heloise: I love to draw with pen and ink. It comes in handy when I want to give gifts.

I personalize notebooks for my friends. On the inside of the front and back cover I draw characters that remind me of them. It's a gift they appreciate because I took the time to draw especially for them. — Marion Perkins, Las Vegas, Nev.

Send a money- or time-saving hint to Heloise, P.O. Box 795000, San Antonio, TX 78279. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.

New treatment found to reverse bone loss

DALLAS (AP) — Clinical trials show a new treatment for spinal osteoporosis, the progressive bone loss that afflicts about 5 million Americans, appears to safely curb the condition, researchers say. University of Texas Southwestern Medical School researchers on Thursday announced results from the seven-year trial of the new treatment, which uses a compound dentists have long applied to strengthen teeth.

The treatment employs a slow-release form of sodium fluoride, which when given with calcium citrate, can reverse the effects of osteoporosis by adding bone mass, said Dr. Charles Pak, mineral metabolism chief at Southwestern Medical Center.

Pak said fluoride has been available as an osteoporosis treatment for decades, but caused serious side effects including corrosion of the stomach lining, painful swelling of the joints and stress fractures.

"These complications have precluded the long-range acceptance of use of fluoride in the United States," said Pak. "Our treatments have been designed to overcome these problems."

Fluoride, under the new treatment, is encapsulated in a waxy substance that allows it to bypass the stomach before much of the compound is released. Pak said that helps alleviate gastrointestinal discomfort and allows the fluoride to be absorbed slowly into the blood, at an effective but not toxic level.

Doctors say spinal osteoporosis results from a gradual loss of trabecular bone, found primarily in the spine. It most commonly affects elderly, postmenopausal women.

Each year, an estimated 500,000 people sustain osteoporosis spine fractures, and a third of women over age 65 will have spinal vertebral fractures during their lives, the Southwestern researchers said.

Doctors say the condition results in shortened stature, curvature of the back and a protruding abdomen that can cause back pain and discomfort in the digestive system.

"Treatments such as estrogen and calcium supplements, which are directed at preventing bone loss, are useful in averting the development of osteoporosis when they are applied early, such as during the early postmenopausal period," said Pak.

"But they have limited value in patients with established osteoporosis, who have already sustained a substantial bone loss. Our treatment is directed toward the latter group."

Pak said the treatment, which has been conducted on experimental basis at 10 hospitals around the country, does not reverse spinal curvature or other damage, but does increase bone mass and forestall further breakage.

He said it cannot be used by people who have sustained hip fractures because of differences in the makeup of their bones.

Doctors said the treatment will not be available to the public, except through experimental programs, pending approval by the Food and Drug Administration.

Pak said he plans to submit his application for approval in April. An FDA review usually takes nine months to 2½ years, he said.

The new drugs promise to increase the availability and usability of osteoporosis treatments, said Dr. Lawrence Raisz, director of endocrinology and metabolism at the University of Connecticut.

"Everybody is anxious to have a treatment approved by the FDA," Raisz said.

The new drugs were developed by Pak and a team of researchers with the help of the Mission Pharmaceutical Co. of San Antonio.

The group, since 1982, has tested the treatment on 251 patients in Dallas, Fort Worth, Temple and Tyler, Texas; Charleston, S.C.; Cleveland and Indianapolis.

Fewer than 5 percent of patients at Southwestern experienced gastrointestinal problems when treated with fluoride for an average of 3.5 years, and about 6 percent complained of joint pain.

Pak said findings were similar at the other hospitals. Patients' spinal bone mass gained 3 percent to 6 percent each year.

Southwestern, the General Clinical Research Center there funded by the National Institutes of Health, and the National Institute for Arthritis, Musculoskeletal and Skin Diseases sponsored the studies.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE DURING PREGNANCY

By Robert Park, M.D.

Most people have heard of chronic high blood pressure or hypertension. Women who have this problem and become pregnant must be watched carefully to prevent problems for themselves and their babies. Other women who have never had high blood pressure can develop it during pregnancy. This is called pregnancy-induced hypertension or preeclampsia.

About seven out of every 100 pregnant women develop preeclampsia. Generally, they are women who are pregnant for the first time, over 30 years old or under 20, and overweight. Women whose mothers had high blood pressure during pregnancy also are more likely to develop the problem, as are mothers-to-be who are diabetic, carrying more than one baby, have kidney disease, or have too much fluid surrounding their fetus in the uterus. A diet low in protein also is believed to lead to high blood pressure.

Unlike other diseases, you may have preeclampsia and not know it, except through regular blood pressure checks, throughout your pregnancy. This is one reason why keeping your regular prenatal appointments is so important. Occasionally, there may be certain symptoms, such as a sudden, rapid weight gain, and swelling, particularly of the face and fingers, which indicates an increase in blood pressure.

High blood pressure causes problems both for you and your baby. Very high pressure, when not treated, can lead to damage to the kidneys, brain, eyes and liver. It also can cause seizures in the pregnant women, at which time the condition is called eclampsia. If preeclampsia is not treated, it can cause your baby to be underweight and undernourished at birth, and may even make an early delivery necessary. In extreme cases, preeclampsia can cause stillbirth.

The best treatment for high blood pressure when caught early is bed rest, either at home, or, in more serious cases, in the hospital. If the preeclampsia becomes severe, the only alternative is to deliver the baby, which may require cesarean section.

High blood pressure during pregnancy may sound serious, but it need not be. Keeping your regular prenatal appointments will enable your doctor to detect any change that might occur in your blood pressure early enough so that you and your baby stay healthy.

Cities celebrate MLK

By The Associated Press

The largest Texas commemoration of the holiday honoring slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. brought about 15,000 people from four directions to a San Antonio plaza, with other parades and marches statewide.

In the Alamo City, marchers gathered at sites up to four miles away from Martin Luther King Jr. Plaza, then met at noon Monday for speeches by city leaders and Numonde Ngubo, a representative of the Black African Miners from South Africa and United Mine Workers of America End Apartheid in South Africa.

A resolution on the "joyous yet solemn occasion" commemorating the life "of one of the most influential men of the 20th century, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr." was adopted Monday by the Texas Senate.

The Senate's two blacks — Eddie Bernice Johnson, D-Dallas, and Craig Washington, D-Houston — were co-sponsors.

"Probably Dr. King was one of the greatest friends of this nation and this world, for he fought for the rights of all while teaching to love all at all times," said Ms. Johnson.

State Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, and Ms. Johnson have filed legislation to make King's birthday an official state holiday. State agencies were open while federal and many municipal and county workers had the day off.

Most Texas colleges were open as were some school districts.

Legislators, during their last session, made King's birthday an "optional" holiday for state employees, allowing them to observe it in lieu of another state optional holiday.

The state should make King's birthday a full holiday, said Washington, suggesting it be combined with another optional holiday, Confederate Heroes' Day, celebrated Jan. 19.

"I know that my colleagues on this side of the rotunda have the courage to combine Confederate Heroes Day with Martin Luther King's birthday because there's nothing wrong with it — they're both heroes in the eyes of people who love freedom," said Washington.

After giving students the day off last January, the Corpus Christi Independent School District voted in March to drop the King birthday and Memorial Day from the list of school holidays.

But CCISD officials, responding to protests of local black leaders, voted to compromise and hold class Monday, dismissing students two hours earlier than usual.

"But rather than take a holiday, the district decided to have a regular day and early dismissal so kids could participate in any community activities going on," Chris Garcia, CCISD information officer, said.

In an hour-long demonstration organized by the NAACP, about 50 people marched outside the Grand Prairie school district office, said police. The district held classes Monday.

'Irregularities' may cause stutter

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Stuttering, once thought to be psychological, has been linked to brain abnormalities by scientists who hope to understand many disorders by making 3-D videotapes of the brain in action.

Subtle irregularities in electrical activity and blood flow were found in brains of 60 percent of stutters, whose speech is broken by abnormal pauses, repetitions (st-stuttering) or prolongations (sssstuttering) of sounds, said audiologist Terese Finitzo, who directed the University of Texas studies.

She said similar brain abnormalities were detected in 84 percent of people with spasmodic dysphonia, in which malfunctioning vocal cords produce a hoarse, strained, strangled-sounding voice.

The Dallas scientists studied 20 stutters and 77 people with spasmodic dysphonia by examining magnetic resonance imaging pictures of brain anatomy. Unlike CAT scans, which use X-rays, the technique uses a giant magnet and radio waves to make pictures of organs.

The scientists also made maps of brain electrical activity as measured by electrodes on the head; and images of brain blood flow.

But they also developed a way to process the two-dimensional maps of brain electrical activity to pinpoint the location of that activity.

That let them superimpose the brain anatomy and electrical activity images, then string them together on videotape to make "an animated movie or cartoon, so as electrical activity progresses you can see it moving through the brain" in three dimensions, said Dr. Kenneth Pool, a neurologist in the Texas group. Blood-flow images will be added later.

Such technology might help scientists understand how the brain works, and perhaps eventually how to better diagnose and treat speech defects, mental illness, epilepsy, dyslexia, Alzheimer's and Parkinson's diseases, post-stroke speech loss and other disorders, Pool said.

The technique "is expected to radically alter (brain) disease evaluation and management for neurologists, psychiatrists and neurosurgeons," said a news release from the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association.

Scientists have long believed that the speech impediments were psychological. But in recent years, many have linked the impediments to brain malfunctions that can be aggravated by psychological stress.

Mattox wants insurance review

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox says insurance companies and the board charged with regulating the industry have become so cozy that "it's a question of who's in charge."

"We need to end that" or the insurance industry could go the way of failing banks and thrifts in the state, Mattox said.

"We may very well be seeing the same thing happen in the insurance industry that we've seen happen in the banking and savings and loan industry," Mattox said. "But the problem that exists is, the insurance industry is not fully insured by the federal government, which can cause us major problems if we see these companies going down."

"Many, many companies still have people actively working with them that we know are scoundrels and should not be in the industry and should be stopped," Mattox said at a news conference Monday.

Mattox also said if State Board of Insurance members do not step up their process for taking control of troubled insurance companies, "the call for their resignation may very well come within a relatively short period of time."

The Insurance Board called Mattox's comments "unfortunate" and "regrettable."

"Texas clearly is not facing an insurance solvency crisis, and Mr. Mattox is not serving the public by suggesting that one is imminent," the board said in a statement. "It is easy for Mr. Mattox to make criticisms based on inadequate knowledge of insurance regulation and the workings of the State Board of Insurance."

In another development, Lee Powell told The Dallas Morning News in a copyright story in Monday's editions that he will leave his post as acting deputy insurance commissioner in charge of financial regulation because "we do not regulate the insurance companies, the companies regulate us."

As a result of lax enforcement, "I don't see that we've ever taken any action until the condition of a company is terminal or near terminal," said Powell.

Mattox noted that National County Mutual Fire Insurance Co. — under a deficit of more than $50 million — recently collapsed and was declared insolvent. He said that was not an isolated incident.

"We have seen the insurance industry be an industry that at times has attracted scoundrels," Mattox said. He said there are "a number of scoundrels" among the 75 to 125 potentially troubled companies the Insurance Board is monitoring.

He said his office had been waiting a month for insurance board approval to go to court against a troubled company, Texas Insurance Co. of Houston, a major carrier of medical malpractice insurance, including coverage for blood banks.

"Just a glance at those public records should have been a red flag to regulators. But where was the state board? Totally in the dark," Mattox said.

He said the company, which was brought to his attention by Sen.

Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, "has ties to questionable insurers and its assets appear insufficient on the face of publicly available financial statements."

Foster Brewer, company board chairman, said, "We don't know what he (Mattox) is talking about. I think Mr. Mattox is a good attorney general and a good man ... I trust him but his information is not correct."

"We don't even know what the war's about."

Brewer said liability insurance represented a small percentage of Texas Insurance's coverage, and if the insurance board had found anything wrong, it would have said, "Shut them down."

"We are in sound financial condition," he said.

The board said the company and the agency that writes most of its business are undergoing financial and market conduct examinations.

"Once these examinations are finished, the board and commissioner will have a firm basis for whatever actions must be taken," the board said.

The 41 Texas domestic insurance companies in receivership represent 5 percent of the total of Texas-based insurance companies, the board said. It said it hopes development of an "Early Warning System" will make the percentage of Texas receiverships even smaller.

As a result of the 1987 Legislature removing the attorney general's authority as an insurance watchdog, Mattox said, it should either beef up the public counsel office or give back to the attorney general the authority "to protect the insurance-buying public."

Mattox said he would also ask the Legislature to:

— Form a special House-Senate committee "to investigate the ongoing scandals within the industry and the lack of regulation" by the Insurance Board.

— Allow the attorney general to sue insurance companies for deceptive trade practices without board approval.

— Repeal partial exemptions for the insurance industry from antitrust laws.

— Provide state regulation of the reinsurance industry.

— Make public the financial status of insurance companies through quarterly reports.

"Publicizing financial problems before the SBI could place a company into rehabilitation would invite a 'run on the bank' that could seriously jeopardize any changes of recovery," the board said.

It also said Mattox's proposal to regulate reinsurers "overlooks the fact that reinsurers must satisfy financial security arrangements imposed by the Texas Insurance Code and that SBI examiners routinely review reinsurance treaties."

Cake decorating club begins work on panorama eggs

The Sweet 'N' Fancy Cake Decorating Club met in the Community Center Jan. 12 for their regular monthly meeting.

Carol Kelley, president, called the meeting to order. Treasurer Betty Henson brought excess decorating supplies to be sold at a garage sale among members.

Members worked on the sugar molding for the panorama eggs that the club makes annually around Easter. The decorative eggs are created for Kings Manor Methodist Home; the club will continue working on this project until the March meeting.

Members present were: Henson, Kelley, Marrie Leverett, Evelyn Crofford, Elizabeth Flora, Margaret Gamez, Magdalena Leal, and Juanita Alejandre.

In December, the members were asked to bring either 24 cookies or a type of sweet holiday bread to be donated to the Department of Human Resources Christmas party held at Kings Manor for the underprivileged.

Henson brought each club member two, two-pound sacks of flour in appreciation of their work for Kings Manor. Donated by Arrowhead Mills, the flour was part of the Founders Day celebration.

It was decided to donate $25 to the Hereford Outreach program to be used toward the Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center.

In Paris the tour included the Arch of Triumph, the Paris Opera, the Moulon Rouge, the Louvre, and the Eiffel Tower.

The beauty spots of Italy included the Vatican, the Appian Way, the Coliseum, and Rome's many fountains.

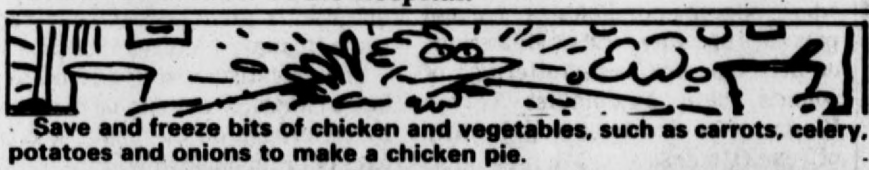

Crume served refreshments to Marcella Bradly, Betty Dickson, Betty Gilbert, Della Hutchins, Marjorie Lasiter, Tommie Savage, and Norma Walden.

Hospital Auxiliary donation

A donation of $558 enabled the Deaf Smith General Hospital to purchase two new rocker-recliners recently. Accepting the donation is Gary Moore, hospital administrator at left; donating the funds were Hospital Auxiliary members Baxter London and Mary Lou Spinhirne, treasurer and president, respectively, of the Auxiliary. Mushroom and fish dinner is tasty, calorie-smart

A mushroom-and-fish dinner is an easy meal that is low in calories, yet filling and tasty.

In fact, you'll want to make it often and invite spur-of-the-moment guests to share it with you. Add a green salad and ice cream for dessert.

MUSHROOMS AND FISH

2 Tbsp. butter or margarine
1/2 tsp. tarragon
1 tsp. Dijon-style mustard
3 Tbsp. chopped green onions
8 oz. mushrooms, sliced
3/4 lb. sole fillets
1 1/2 tsp. lemon juice

Microwave Method:
Place butter in 11x7 inch glass baking dish. Heat in microwave oven to melt, about 30 seconds.

Mix in tarragon, mustard and onions, then mushrooms, tossing to coat. Cook on High for 2 minutes, stirring once.

Arrange fillets in single layer over mushrooms. Dot with additional butter; drizzle with lemon juice. Cook on High for 2 more minutes.

Gently turn fillets using a broad spatula. Cook on High for 1 to 2 minutes longer, until fish flakes easily with a fork. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 3 to 4 servings.
