

Non-Paying Shoppers Problem for Stores

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Getting something for nothing is the dream of everyone and the reality of lawbreakers.

At least three Hereford businesses are doing something about the latter, according to the management of the establishments and the Hereford Police Department, which calls shoplifting the most common crime in town.

"We didn't have many shoplifters apprehended until recently until TG&Y, M.E. Moses and that bunch out at Gibson (Discount Center) started doing something about it," said Roger Scott, detective with the Hereford Police Department.

"I don't know what they're doing, but they're reporting a lot of shoplifters to us."

But they're missing more than they're reporting, says employers at the three stores.

"We lost a bunch of money last year because of shoplifters," said Raymond Delorio, M.E. Moses manager. "It's hard to say how much we've lost this year, but we've lost a lot. We won't know exactly until the end of the year."

"It hurts the store when we don't catch them, and it hurts me. The less profit the store makes, the less money I make."

That kind of incentive has inspired Delorio to stress watchfulness to his employees, who recently have caught shoplifters ranging in age from 7 to 69, and to install devices such as curved mirrors in three corners of his store and a two-way mirror in the back near his office.

Delorio also believes a store policy acts as a deterrent.

"We're getting real tough with shoplifters. Everytime we catch one, we just call the police. We have it in here for sale. If they want to steal it, they open themselves up for being taken to court."

"We're catching them from 3-years-old to 70 or 80. I caught one the other day who was 69. She stole some material. One little 7-year-old girl and her 4-year-old brother were in here the other day, and she stole a bunch of school supplies. When I asked her where her mother was, she said she was in Furr's shopping. When I asked the girl why she was stealing, she said that her mother sent her down here to steal the things she needed for school."

Delorio filed charges on the mother.

Gibson Discount Center assistant manager Sterling Cox said his employees have become more observant but "we don't catch a lot—we just can't. I don't know why. I guess they have it all planned when they come in here."

Gibson, also, will file charges on all shoplifters who are caught by the store. "It's company policy," Cox said.

Larry Brogden, assistant manager at TG&Y, said that even though his store has kept police busy in recent weeks by catching shoplifters, "We still lose as much as five percent of our sales a week—it's just unreal."

TG&Y last week foiled five thefts, resulting in eight arrests. "We had one

Members of the Buffalo Lake Survival Committee, who won a battle to save their lake with a temporary restraining order issued Aug. 28, may have lost the war against red tape, bureaucracy and federal agencies bent on draining the impoundment.

Citing potential loss of life and property, U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward of Lubbock Tuesday dissolved the restraining order and gave permission to the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service to resume draining of the lake.

Woodward's action yesterday dashed hopes of survival committee members for a temporary injunction, and opened the way once more for the draining of the most substantial amount of water to be held at the impoundment at nearby Umberger in at least a decade.

According to Woodward's opinion, the possibility of a flood disaster at the lake outweighed environmental and recreational considerations.

"It should be kept in mind that Tierra Blanca Creek flows eastward from the dam at Buffalo Lake toward the south part of Canyon and into the Palo Duro State Park. Any severe flooding of this area, which might be caused by the breach of the dam would certainly impose a severe threat to life and the destruction of property. Unless the proper steps are taken, loss of life and property could result from any flooding," Woodward stated in his opinion.

The lake survival committee sought an injunction because federal agencies failed to file an environmental impact statement prior to beginning draining operations, but Woodward stated in his opinion on the case that the Council on Environmental Quality found an imminent emergency situation which made compliance with the act impractical.

Woodward's opinion related that according to expert testimony, a 3.3 inch rain over the entire watershed for a period of six hours would destroy or wash away the uncontrolled spillway and perhaps weaken the dam to the extent that impounded water would be released below it.

Woodward cited government testimony that such a storm would occur every 25 years, and that Texas requires dam construction with a capability of withstanding floods having a frequency in excess of 100 years.

"Certainly a dam which falls so far below this standard could not be said to be sufficiently safe so as to excuse the government from taking any reasonable steps to alleviate the situation. The U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service has taken such reasonable steps in this situation by draining the water before the emergency occurs," stated Woodward.

Ronnie Walker of Amarillo, attorney for the lake survival committee, expressed disappointment over the outcome of the hearing for a temporary injunction, and doubts about the future

Practicing For Debut

Hereford High School band members Jeff Janssen, above, Pearl Lemus and David Mays practice Wednesday night in preparation for the season marching opener Friday night in Whiteface Stadium. The three are seniors and among 188 students who are scheduled to march at halftime of the Hereford-Pampa football contest Friday. The band, under the direction of Randy Vaughn, will work out again Thursday night at high school. Vaughn calls the Hereford-Pampa halftime show "a big rivalry."

United Way, Participants Slate Meeting

The Deaf Smith County United Fund Inc. executive and budget and admissions committee will meet with members of participating UW agencies Thursday night in the Pioneer Natural Gas Co. Flame Room to discuss this year's campaign.

At least two representatives of each participating agency have been asked by the United Way board of directors to attend the 7 p.m. meeting, which will include discussion of changes in the drive.

Members of the UW executive committee include Paul Sims, Mal Manchee, Lupe Cerda, Howard Birdwell and Helen Rose. Budget and admissions committee members are Jake Webb, Adeline Loerwald, Tom Hamlett, Ron Welty and Carolyn Waters.

United Way contributors and persons interested in the United Way campaign also are invited to the meeting.

"The purpose of the meeting is to explain changes in the United Way format, to go over United Way by-laws with the agencies and to answer questions the agencies might have," said Sims, UW president.

Sims added that agency board members wishing to submit allocation requests may do so at the meeting.

The United Way drive officially will kick off Oct. 11.

SFC Head Seeks Business Tax Breaks

WASHINGTON (AP) - Federal Reserve Chairman G. William Miller, looking for new weapons against inflation, asked Congress today to give business new tax breaks, a step he said might encourage investment and fight price rises.

About one-fourth of the $16.3-billion tax cut voted by the House last month would go to business, a proportion endorsed by the Carter administration, but Miller recommended that be raised to one-third to encourage investment.

Even then, he said, businesses would be better served if the tax laws were changed to allow them to depreciate new equipment faster.

Miller, responding to written questions before his testimony to the Senate Finance Committee today, said lagging business investment "has undoubtedly played a significant role in the deterioration of productivity growth in the United States."

"The sluggish growth of out-put per worker-hour not only reduces our ability to attain higher standards of living but also tends to place additional upward pressure on unit labor costs and on prices," Miller said.

He was called to testify as a final witness before the Finance Committee begins writing its version of tax-cut legislation.

Miller said a total 1979 tax cut of $15 billion to $20 billion "appears to be desirable" because of the need to spur business investment and help offset the income-tax increases caused by inflation and the higher Social Security taxes taking effect next January.

The Carter administration also has recommended that the tax cut be reasonably close to the $16.3 billion passed by the House. But there are indications the Finance Committee will try to push it higher.

The House-passed bill includes $10.4 billion in individual income-tax cuts in 1979, $1.9 billion in capital-gains cuts in an effort to spur business investment, and $4 billion in business tax reductions, most of the latter amount coming from reductions in the corporate tax rate.

Miller said a corporate tax-rate cut "is likely to be relatively ineffective" as a spur to investment because there is no assurance that the tax savings would be reinvested in new plant and equipment.

He suggested a better method would be to increase the ability of factories and businesses to quickly write off, or depreciate, equipment and plant investments.

"Faster depreciation is directly linked to new capital formation, since the tax benefits only accrue to the firm after the plant and equipment have been put in place," he wrote.

"In addition, accelerated depreciation only defers taxes to some later date, and does not permanently reduce government revenues when firms make a one-time investment in new plant and equipment," Miller said.

Guns Found, May Have Been Used in Restaurant Slayings

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - Tests to be completed today should determine if two handguns found by police were used to murder six restaurant workers and three members of a Texas family, authorities said.

Preliminary ballistics tests showed Tuesday that the .38 caliber and .357 caliber handguns appear to have been used in the murders in June and July, said Sgt. Tom Mundy, police spokesman.

He said when ballistics tests are completed by the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation today, police will know for certain whether the guns are the murder weapons.

Mundy said tests indicate the guns were used by robbers who shot and killed six employees of a Sirloin Stockade restaurant here on July 16, in the worst mass murder in Oklahoma City history.

He said tests also indicate the guns were used to murder three members of a San Antonio, Texas family near Purcell, about 50 miles south of here, in late June.

The finding of the guns is the first positive link police have found between the two multiple killings, Mundy said.

The guns that may have killed all nine victims were found Sunday in far northeast Oklahoma City, Mundy said, but were not tested until Tuesday. Mundy refused to specify the exact location where the guns were found, or detail how Oklahoma City police learned of the guns.

Police still have not arrested any suspects in the killings. Mundy refused to say if arrests are expected soon.

The discovery of the guns is "certainly the break we've been looking for," Mundy said.

Employees of the Sirloin Stockade restaurant in southwest Oklahoma City were herded into a meat locker and

Rotary Club To Show Cars

Approximately 70 cars, including a one-of-a-kind Packard, will be on display during the second Hereford Rotary Club Antique and Special Interest Car Show Saturday and Sunday in the Bull Barn and Little Bull Barn.

The Packard, a 1929 "Super Eight 645," will be the prize car of the show, according to chairman Ken Rogers. "This Packard will be worth the $2 admission fee (50 cents for children) itself," Rogers said. "It is the only car of its kind anywhere."

The Packard, owned by Orie Jones of Farwell, has a custom aluminum body and 59,000 original miles, and has been fully restored to its original condition.

Cars from throughout the Tri-State area will be on hand for the show, which last year was the Rotary Club's top money-making project. Proceeds from the show will be used for charitable

Holly Terminates Sale Negotiations

COLORADO SPRINGS — Holly Sugar Corporation has announced that negotiations with Irwin Jacobs, a Minneapolis, Minnesota, investor, for the purchase of Holly's assets for $45 million has been terminated.

During the course of negotiations, Jacobs had indicated that he wished to make several significant modifications to his original offer. As a result of meetings with Jacobs in Colorado Springs late last week, Holly concluded that the nature, extent and cumulative effect of the remaining unresolved matters would make further negotiations unproductive.

These unresolved matters included the identity and net worth of the proposed purchasing entity, the consequences of a failure by the purchase to close the transaction, the method of payment and adjustments to the purchase price according to Holly officials.

He's 81, San Antonio's Very Own Mr. Clean

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) - Woe into the slob who drops so much as a gum wrapper on the sidewalk. He'll probably be spotted by 81-year-old O.P. Schnabel, who'll leap from his Cadillac "trash truck" and shame the offender into becoming a "Cleanup Crusader."

"If we can get 215 million people with us, we've got litter whipped," said the man who's been San Antonio's Mr. Clean for more than 30 years.

"I believe that, I'm just a dumb do-gooder. At first everybody thought I was nuts. Now that I have some prestige, they just say I'm eccentric."

The cherubic, energetic "Old Pushbroom" Schnabel, a prominent insurance salesman and the founder of the Beautify San Antonio Association, needles, cajoles and hounds city leaders and businessmen into cleaning up sidewalks and streets.

He wears the "world's only" diamond-studded, gold pushbroom tie tuck on a gaudy clasp that proclaims "Nice People Don't Litter."

He has passed out more than 200 full-size, gold-painted, glittered pushbrooms to governors, mayors and five presidents and has handed out more than six million lucky pennies on his insurance company-Cleanup Crusader business cards.

He offers $25 rewards for catching anyone who illegally posts political or garage sale signs and personally patrols sidewalks and neighborhoods for litter.

He makes sure each downtown block has at least one trashcan - more than 6,000 currently carry his name. And he causes traffic havoc when he screeches his blue-and-white 1976 "trash truck" to a halt in the middle of a busy downtown street, jumping out to yank down an illegal poster.

"The only trouble with this," he said as he picked up a paper cup from the curb in front of the posh St. Anthony Hotel, "is that I have to wash my hands about 20 times a day. If germs would really kill anybody, I would have been dead 30 years ago."

As it is, Schnabel has survived three heart attacks and outlived the doctors and insurance underwriters who denied him a life insurance policy 33 years ago. "I'm too ornery to die," he proclaims. "The doctors tell me I should rest two hours at noon. I say that's for the birds."

And if, by some chance, O.P. Schnabel should ever really die, he wants his gold-painted, glittered, ribbon-covered pushbroom on his casket in lieu of flowers.

"Who knows? Maybe they'll see it and I'll get a convert. There's no use doing this unless I can get some

Quick Vote Sought To Beat Compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senate opponents of a natural gas pricing compromise have signaled their confidence that it can be defeated by calling for a quick vote on a move to send the bill back to a conference committee for retooling.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, called Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd on Tuesday and urged a vote as early as Sept. 13 on the effort to recommit the measure, a critical part of President Carter's energy plan.

"We are ready to go," an aide to Metzenbaum said.

Metzenbaum is among a handful of liberal senators who have threatened to filibuster the natural gas bill, which they say would be too expensive for consumers. Although prices for homeowners and other users would rise, supporters say the increases would be comparable to those that would occur anyway under the present system of federal regulation.

The compromise, the product of eight months of delicate negotiations, also is opposed by conservative Republicans and oil state senators who say it provides insufficient incentives for new production.

With some support from other opponents, Metzenbaum told Byrd he was prepared to begin debate Thursday on the move to send the bill back to a House-Senate conference committee.

Under the plan, the bill would go back with instructions for the committee to return with a skeleton version giving the president authority to allocate natural gas if there were shortages in non-producing states.

Triangular Summit Expected Soon

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) - The Middle East summit is under way, but without word on when President Carter will bring Egypt's Anwar Sadat and Israel's Menachem Begin into the same room for the peace-seeking business they came to conduct.

Although there was no announcement of a triangular Carter-Begin-Sadat conference, it seemed likely one would be arranged sometime during the day.

The three leaders are in mountaintop isolation with the Egyptian president and the Israeli prime minister at odds over summit goals and the role to be played by Carter.

"This is no time for maneuvers and worn-out ideas," said Sadat. He repeated his objection to Begin's limited goal of concluding the summit with an agreement to continue negotiations at a lower level - negotiations that Begin said might continue for months.

For his part, Begin said at an official arrival ceremony that he will pursue "all endeavors possible to reach an agreement so that the peace process can continue and ultimately be crowned with peace treaties."

Besides advocating a go-slow approach to the search for a Mideast settlement, Begin foresees Carter playing a limited role as a summit mediator.

But on his arrival, Sadat emphasized anew that he sees the U.S. president as "a full partner in the peace process."

Kennedy Investigation Opens Month Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) - The chairman of the House assassinations committee today promised "to examine all the evidence" as the panel opened a month of hearings on questions and conspiracy theories surrounding the murder of President John F. Kennedy 15 years ago.

"We want to examine all of the evidence, not just that that fits some predetermined mold," said the committee chairman, Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio. "We may raise issues one day that cannot be resolved until testimony can be taken on a subsequent day. Indeed, certain issues may not be resolved at all. Not all questions that can be asked can be answered."

The committee, investigating the Nov. 22, 1963, assassination, prepared to call former Texas Gov. John Connally as its first witness. He also was shot during the assassination.

Connally, then the Democratic governor of Texas, was riding on a jump seat a few inches in front of Kennedy as the presidential limousine traveled in a motorcade through Dallas.

New DA Appointed In Hidalgo County

EDINBURG, Tex. (AP) - The newly appointed interim district attorney here says he wants the job only until Oscar McInnis' legal problems are resolved.

Local lawyer Preston Henrichson, 34, was appointed Hidalgo County district attorney pro tem here Tuesday to fill in for McInnis, the indicted district attorney here.

McInnis has been named in federal indictments alleging he plotted to have a friend's ex-husband kidnapped and killed. The longtime prosecutor was also named in perjury indictments.

McInnis was disqualified from office here last week when the Texas Prosecutors Coordinating Council filed a removal suit against him.

Henrichson got the interim job after the seven state and county judges voted here Tuesday.

After taking the oath of office, Henrichson said he would not seek election nor accept permanent appointment to the post. The Edinburg native said he plans to serve until McInnis is either reinstated or removed from office. Henrichson said he anticipated that would happen before the end of the year.

McInnis still draws his $36,000 a year salary but has been stripped of power. State district Judge J.R. Alamaia said Henrichson would draw a stipend approximately equal to the budgeted salary for the office.

Police Report

Frank Ashlock, 1513 Wolf, told Hereford police Tuesday that sometime Tuesday morning or late Monday night, the battery had been removed from his pickup.

Walker Used Cars, W. Highway 60, reported Tuesday that sometime over the weekend, a person had entered the building through a window on the west side and stole seven or eight car titles and a $2,300 check.

converts," he said.

Believe it or not, there was a time when Schnabel was just like the rest of us. He didn't worry too much about litter and occasionally even threw a candy wrapper out of his car window.

But that was before his 1947 trip to Switzerland, where he saw the neat and clean streets and a thriving tourist industry.

"That's when the beauty bug hit me. My attitude changed about litter," he said.

At that time, San Antonio had no public trashcans and only a few downtown street sweepers who used old-fashioned pushbrooms.

With the help of "Mrs. O.P." - Lillian, his wife of 40 years - he undertook his crusade, providing 25 trash receptacles and rounding up hundreds more. Now more than 6,500, almost all carrying Schnabel's name, dot downtown.

And San Antonio, now a thriving tourist center, has won 27 state and national beautification awards.

"I advocated that everybody get a pushbroom and use it on their curb. You know the old proverb, 'If everybody sweeps in front of his doorstep, the world would be clean.' That's how I got the name 'Old Pushbroom,'" he said.

"One day back then, I was up on a stepladder taking down a poster when some fellow asked my wife, 'Is that guy nuts?' My wife said, 'No, he's just fool enough to think he can clean up this dirty city.'"

When some houses were missed during an early city-wide cleanup campaign, Schnabel personally loaded the trash into the trunk of his Cadillac and drove it to the dump. He made 10 trips.

In cities across the nation, Schnabel has accosted litter bugs on the sidewalk, picking up their trash and offering a polite reminder. "They'll give me a dirty look, but I'll bet they think before dropping trash again," he laughed.

If he sees litter thrown from a car or truck, he'll attempt to stop the vehicle and chastise the driver. If that doesn't work, he'll record the license number and mail the offender a reproving note and an application to join the Beautiful San Antonio Association.

And some even send back subscriptions to the association. Letters have reached him addressed only to "Mr. Clean" and "Mr. Beauty."

Schnabel once made a citizen's arrest on a Mississippi policeman who was writing him a speeding ticket. The unfortunate cop tossed the carbon paper on the highway and only managed to avoid a fine because Schnabel didn't appear as a witness. "I only meant to teach him a lesson," grinned Schnabel.

Recipes for Babies Studied In Scientific Investigations

WASHINGTON (AP) - Want a boy baby? Or a girl?

Scientists are working on baby recipes, known as sex control, designed to improve the odds of choosing your child's sex.

But before painting the kid's bedroom pink or blue, take note: Even if you follow the unromantic directions - the most reliable involve artificial insemination - the results are far from foolproof.

And so far, the boy recipe has been the most successful.

"Sex selection has virtually no credibility," says Dr. Ronald Ericsson, a reproductive physiologist in Sausalito, Calif., who has patented one technique for influencing the sex of babies.

"We don't claim to have a method that is absolute," said Ericsson, who did post-doctoral work in endocrinology at the University of Wisconsin. "We are dealing in biology, not witchcraft."

Basically, there are three techniques to select a child's sex:

The do-it-yourself method, requiring timing, chemistry and gymnastics. It calls for intercourse in specific positions at specified times during the woman's menstrual cycle and douching with baking soda for a boy or white vinegar for a girl. Popular and gadget-free, it is considered ineffective by most scientists.

Sperm separation, the method patented by Ericsson, involving separation of the Y chromosome male-bearing sperm from the X chromosome female-bearing sperm. After the filtering process is completed, artificial insemination is required.

Selective abortion, a controversial method in which amniotic fluid is taken from a woman's uterus during the fourth month of pregnancy to test for the sex of the fetus. If the sex is "wrong," an abortion can be performed. Most doctors oppose this method.

Dr. Paul Dmowski, a Chicago endocrinologist and gynecologist researching sperm separation, says eight out of 10 of his patients who used Ericsson's technique to have boys were successful. Dmowski said he thinks one of the other two women became pregnant by natural intercourse and the other couple had trouble with the sperm separation.

"We are not really able to guarantee in any way the outcome of pregnancy," said Dmowski, director of the fertility unit at Chicago's Michael Reese Hospital. "We can increase the chances from 50 percent which is natural to 75-to-80 percent. But if a couple is not willing to assume the risk of another female child, I do not accept them as patients."

Dmowski said work is being done to separate the female-bearing sperm, but the procedure is more difficult.

"Some methods are confirmed," he said. "But as far as I know, nobody is involved in the clinical application for improving the chances for a female child."

Dmowski said the main cost for his sex-selection patients is airfare to Chicago and a hotel room for a week.

"There are some office expenses, but there is no charge for the procedure because it is experimental," he said.

To hear Dmowski tell it, one benefit of selecting the sex of the unborn child is that it could reduce the size of families. He says many couples increase their families by continuing to try for the child's sex of their choice.

A problem with do-it-yourself is that two doctors who did much of the research on this method have come up with differing conclusions, according to the Population Reference Bureau Inc. of Washington.

In a pamphlet titled "Boys or Girls? Parents' Preferences and Sex Control," the bureau says Dr. Rodrigo Guerrero V. who has completed a fellowship at Harvard University's School of Public Health and is associated with the Universidad Del Valle, Cali, Columbia, suggests that a couple improves its chances for a boy by having intercourse six to nine days before ovulation.

On the other hand, Dr. Landrum Shettles at Gifford Memorial Hospital in Randolph, Vt., suggests a boy is most likely when a couple has intercourse at ovulation.

Another problem with do-it-yourself is that ways to determine when ovulation occurs - such as taking the woman's temperature - are not reliable.

"When ovulation occurs...is almost impossible to determine exactly," said Dr. Robert Glass, a gynecologist who specializes in fertility at the University of California.

Glass said he would advise couples interested in selecting their child's sex to wait a few years to see if Ericsson's technique is improved. "I counsel couples not to rush into it," he said.

Social scientists raise important psychological and sociological questions about sex selection.

Referring to studies showing that more couples prefer boys to girls, Nancy E. Williamson writes: "It is likely that sex control would be used more often to get boys than girls and that, if used, the male sex ratio would rise in some countries."

Dr. Ericsson said: "Like everything else, this may be misused. But it is something that society will have to come to terms with."

Ericsson, who is not doing research in Franch with 6,000 cows, said work on human sex selection is at the bottom of his priority list.

Why? Because, said Ericsson, "Cows don't sue."

O'Hair Refuses Oath

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Atheist leader Madalyn Murray O'Hair was asked to leave a state district courtroom Tuesday after she objected to taking a juror's oath that includes, "So help me, God."

Judge Hume Cofer told Mrs. O'Hair he would not allow her to disrupt jury selection. When she refused to sit down, he ordered a bailiff to escort her from the room.

Mrs. O'Hair quietly left in the company of the bailiff. "I am objecting to ritual of swearing in with the words, 'O help me, God,'" Mrs. O'Hair said after leaving the courtroom. "American atheists have just as many rights as any other American."

She said she intended to file a lawsuit alleging her civil rights were violated by being asked to swear in the name of a God in whom she does not believe.

Mrs. O'Hair made her objection known by handing Cofer a written statement outlining her opposition to the standard juror's oath.

She said he told her, "You have objections which are not as strong as you believe they are. You will go and sit down and keep quiet and you will not do anything disruptive."

Cofer asked her to leave when she refused to rejoin the other prospective jurors and take the oath.

where it was a family affair. The two children got caught and the mother was waiting in the car," Brogden said.

"She said that she had no idea what her kids were doing, but we searched under the seat and found that it wasn't only our merchandise stolen, but merchandise from other stores. She didn't have any receipts."

Why the success? Brogden attributes a lot of it to a store practice of rewarding employees for catching shoplifters.

"We give them a little bonus if they can tell us about somebody that's taking something. It's not just that, though. Many of the ones we've caught lately have been because of a couple of new girls we've hired. They're very observant."

"I think all our girls have become more alert lately."

According to Detective Scott, clothes items taken by shoplifters recently have included clothing, food, silverware, dishes, toys, guns and radios.

"What you have to wonder about is people will shoplift stuff they don't need. I can understand food, but why would someone take a chance on being caught by stealing silverware?" Scott said.

"The majority of them lately have been stealing clothes. They either put them on or stick them in their purses."

Shoplifting is handled in court as a theft.

Theft under $5 is punishable by a fine, $5-20 by a fine not over $1,000 and a jail term not to exceed 180 days, $21-200 by a fine not over $2,000 and a jail term not to exceed a year, and more than $200 by a fine not over $5,000 and a prison term between 2 and 10 years.

Guns

gunned down executive-style, police said.

Police theorized that the robbers killed the employees, who were preparing to close the restaurant late at night, to prevent any witnesses from identifying them.

The killers escaped with $1,200 to $1,500 from the restaurant safe.

The employees killed in the robbery were all from the Oklahoma City area. They were: Louis Zacarias, 43; David Lindsey, 17; Terri M. Horst, 15; Anthony Tew, 17; David Salsman, 16; and Isaac Freeman, 56.

The Texans shot to death in June were Air Force Tech. Sgt. Melvin Lorenz, 38; his wife, Air Force Staff Sgt. Linda Lorenz, 31, and Lorenz's son by a previous marriage, Richard, 12.

The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Lorenz were found dumped along Interstate 35 south of Purcell, on June 22. The body of Richard Lorenz was found nearby June 23.

The Lorenz family was traveling along I-35 enroute to North Dakota to attend the funeral of Lorenz's mother.

The pickup in which the family was traveling was discovered a few days after the killings, in the parking lot of a motel near Will Rogers World Airport in Oklahoma City.

Buffalo

for the once-popular water sports facility.

"I'm very disappointed at the decision. I felt that seeking an injunction was our best shot at saving the lake. I feel we had ample evidence that the flood hazard presented by Buffalo is minimal," Walker responded.

"Apparently, the Interior Department doesn't feel that the lake justifies fixing the spillway. It was made clear at the beginning of the first hearing that the spillway could be repaired without draining the lake, but apparently Interior is not planning on fixing the spillway for a while. Hydrological studies haven't even been done to determine what is needed for repairs. Interior feels that a water supply can't be guaranteed for the lake on a continual basis, and they hesitate to make repairs because of the lack of water and high cost of repairs. Apparently, they feel they can't keep any water in it, and they don't want to spend any money on it. Interior has already indicated they feel they have no liability for flooding if no dam is present. As long as the dam and spillway are there, Interior is running a risk of liability for flooding. They want to remove this spectre of liability, and it appears the only way they can do so is to remove the dam," he continued.

Walker explained that if elected representatives do not seek long-range solutions to the spillway problem at Buffalo, the dam will ultimately be removed.

"I think a lot of this rests in the hands of elected officials right now, and many have proved unresponsive in this matter. Water is getting to be our scarcest commodity and the water at Buffalo is being sent down the drain. Officials who don't have the interest to even look into this matter aren't going to look very good in a few years when water is an even more crucial issue," Walker emphasized.

Members of the lake survival committee are vowing not to give up the fight so long as any water is left in the lake, but the spectre of draining hangs heavily over any attempts to pursue other modes of action.

Committee members admit that appeals of the decision to lift the restraining order would take so long that the lake would be gone before a decision was reached.

"We're just trying to keep in mind that the judge didn't order the draining resumed, but only lifted the restraining order," said committee member Max Hoffman of UMBERG.

"Interior damn sure wants to drain the lake, despite our pleas to hold off pending appeals. Now, we're trying to enlist the support of the Humane Society and have placed calls to Washington to enlist their support. We're down to trying to get our elected representatives to stay after the Interior Department and delay draining. But so far, they haven't been too responsive. Things look bad and we're trying to figure out just what to do, but one thing for sure, we're not going to lay down and quit," Hoffman concluded.

Rotary Club

Today In History

BY The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Sept. 6, the 249th day of 1978. There are 116 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1901, President William McKinley was shot by an anarchist in Buffalo, N.Y. He died eight days later.

On this date: In 1620, the Pilgrims sailed on the Mayflower from Plymouth, England, to settle in the new world.

In 1899, the United States proposed an Open Door policy to give foreign powers equal trade rights in China.

In 1909, explorer Robert Peary sent word that he had reached the North Pole five months earlier.

In 1914, the first battle of the Marne River began in World War I.

In 1940, in World War II, King Carol of Romania prepared to occupy his country.

In 1965, Indian troops invaded West Pakistan.

Ten years ago: Swaziland, the last British territory in Africa, was declared independent.

Five years ago: Former United Mine Workers president W.A. "Tony" Boyle was arrested and charged with murder in connection with the 1969 slaying of Joseph Yablonski, who had sought Boyle's ouster.

One year ago: President Carter welcomed Panama's chief of government, Brig. Gen. Omar Torrijos Herrera, to the White House in the start of diplomatic activity intended to build support for the Panama Canal treaties.

Today's birthdays: Democratic Sen. John Melcher of Montana is 54 years old.

Thought for today: A woman may race to get a man a gift but it always ends in a tie.

The U.S. is the only major industrial nation without a national health insurance plan. Seventy countries throughout the world have programs of public health insurance or medical care systems for the entire population.

He was also one of the ten artists chosen to illustrate "XII: The American Cowboy," published in 1975.

Ann Landers Bridegroom Should Help

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've had it with your chewing out brides for not writing thank-you notes after a wedding.

If my memory hasn't failed me it seems like a wedding gift is for both the bride and the groom. If both are working full-time (and in most cases these days they are) the groom should get off his duff and write half the thank-you notes. -- Fair Is Fair

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have a good point -- one I didn't think of, nor did a single reader other than you.

I have never received a thank-you note from a groom but after this column appears I just might. You may have started a national trend. Congratulations!

DEAR ANN: My husband was a professional bartender for ten years. He got out of the business because he was just plain tired of it.

Every time there's a family get-together where drinks are served, when we arrive they say, "By the way, Ed, you're the bartender." They don't ask him, they TELL him.

Why don't these people realize that tending bar is work? When we go to a social event my husband would like to be a guest -- not an unpaid employee.

This has happened to us so many times we've lost count. Please tell us how to put an end to it. -- Need A Tactful Way Out

DEAR NEED: The next time you are invited to a family affair where you think drinks will be served, tell the hostess, when you accept the invitation, "I hope you aren't counting on Ed to tend bar. He'd like to be a guest for a change."

That will settle the matter before it reaches the problem stage. After you make the announcement five or six times, they'll get the message and Ed won't be imposed on any more.

DEAR ANN: In a recent column you said furniture consultants had advised you that bunk beds are safe if well-constructed. Then you added, "I prefer the terra firma -- and the firm the better."

The correct saying is, "the more firma, the less terra (terror)."

I read your column regularly and take pride in telling my friends that you come from Sioux City and I knew you way back when.

Do you remember this name from the past? -- Martin S. Kosberg (St. Louis)

DEAR MARTIN: I remember it well. Thanks for the correction. Of course you are right. "The more firma, the less terra."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hate to admit it, but I'm ashamed of my mother. She gets ready for bed right after supper, takes her teeth out, and walks around barefoot. Her favorite outfit is my father's ratty old bathrobe. If she feels like rolling up her hair in rags or putting a mudpack on her face, she does it.

I've asked Mom a dozen times if she's mind looking presentable when I have friends over. Her answer is, "I don't have to put on the dog for your fancy friends."

Nobody else's mother goes around like that when company comes over. Am I unreasonable? -- Bothered

DEAR B: Too bad your mom considers keeping her teeth in her head and wearing shoes "putting on the dog." But she's your mother -- no matter what -- and you shouldn't apologize for her.

There were only three departments in the first cabinet of the United States: state, treasury and war.

COMMENTARY

Donald F. Graff

A familiar Latin story

Trujillo, Batista, Somoza. What's in a name? In these, and a number of others which similarly have strong-armed their way into power over the years, it's a case of the continuing miseries for much of Latin America. Most of the hemisphere to the south was not too many years behind the United States in achieving political independence. But progress from there to political stability has been more than most Latin nations have been able to manage in a subsequent century and a half. Costa Rica, a functioning democracy for more than a century, is a notable exception. Chile, until fairly recently, might also have been considered such. And Mexico, although a one-party operation swinging perilously close to authoritarianism at times, has been setting a fairly good example for the past several decades. But otherwise, there has been a depressing similarity since the early 19th century to the history of most Latin countries. The region seems to have a particular talent for achieving political degeneracy without passing through maturity. Authoritarian regimes are the rule, either military juntas or petty dynasties in cases where tyranny happens to run in families. Government by repression is the practice. And revolution is the consequence, with the usual result being to begin the cycle over again. Out with the old strongmen and in with the new. The American connection must also be noted. In its traditional manifestations — economic domination, support of the status quo and occasional intervention with marines — it hasn't represented a particularly maturing influence. In recent decades very similar stories have been played out in Cuba, Honduras, Guatemala, Ecuador and the Dominican Republic. Now it is Nicaragua's turn.

Overt opposition to President Anastasio Somoza Debayle, and to the 41-year rule of his line, is not an overnight development. A newspaper editor, Pedro Joaquín Chamorro Cardenal, carried on a long and outspoken campaign in the pages of La Prensa against the Somoza regime. The murder of the crusading Chamorro early this year put Somoza on the public relations defensive. But it took the dramatic rebel seizure of the national palace, with consequent world headlines, to transform opposition from passive and conspiratorial to active and public. Somoza found himself in a familiar position for Latin strongmen — clinging to the trappings of power while the reality disintegrated. There are many common denominators to the situations of a Batista in Cuba, a Trujillo in the Dominican Republic, a Ubico in Guatemala, a Somoza in Nicaragua. Predictability is not the least of them. All wrote the scripts for their own downfalls. Dissent is suppressed, liberalization rejected, channels of peaceful change blocked until there remains only one means of resolving national tensions: Violent upheaval. After him the Marxist deluge, Somoza warns. The visible opposition, however, would appear to suggest otherwise. It derives its leadership and momentum from the educated elite and the business community. But if Somoza should turn out to be correct and Nicaragua becomes another Cuba, he will have done nothing himself to forestall such an outcome. Poet-philosopher George Santayana may not have had Latin America specifically in mind in delivering a much-quoted observation. But there is no more apt summing up of most of the region's political progress. "Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it."

Yankees Gaining on Red Sox

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

For the past few seasons, the New York Yankees have found September to their liking. The Boston Red Sox loathe the month. And if a feeling of "deja vu" is prevalent in the locker rooms of the two American League East contenders, it is understandable.

The Yankees defeated Detroit 4-2 Tuesday while Boston was losing to Baltimore 4-1. Relentlessly, the New Yorkers have been chasing the Red Sox all summer. Now, they are just four games behind, the closest the defending World Champions have been to first place since June 9.

Last season, the Yankees stormed through September to take charge of the division while Boston did not play nearly as well. The same thing seems to be happening again.

Elsewhere in the AL, Kansas City blanked Oakland 3-0, Chicago nipped Minnesota 4-3 and Cleveland defeated Toronto 6-2. The Texas-California game was rained out.

Roy White slammed a three-run homer and Dick Tidrow threw right shutout innings before Rich Gossage stopped a ninth-inning Detroit rally for his 22nd save.

Detroit's Ron LeFlore extended his hitting streak to 27 straight games with a ninth-inning single and Phil Mankowski had a two-run homer.

Orioles 4, Red Sox 1
Jim Palmer won his 18th game, with Don Stanhouse relieving in the ninth to pick up his 21st save and eighth in relief of Palmer. Lee May homered, Carlos Lopez singled in the go-ahead run and Terry Crowley pinch-hit a two-run double to aid Palmer.

Royals 3, A's 0

Kansas City extended its Western Division lead to 1 1/2 games over California as Dennis Leonard pitched a two-hitter and Frank White had a three-run double.

Leonard, 16-16, fanned seven and retired the last 15 batters in hurling his 18th complete game.

White Sox 4, Twins 3

A baserunning blunder by Dan Ford cost the Twins a run and, after a two-run rally in the ninth inning brought them within a run of Chicago, it may cost Ford even more.

"I've never had this feeling before," said Twins Manager Gene Mauch. "Ford will not get paid for today's game."

Steve Trout earned his pay in his first major league start, allowing five hits in the six innings he worked. In the seventh, with the bases loaded, Minnesota's Bombo Rivera singled home two runs.

But only one counted because Ford dawdled coming home from third and Jose Morales passed him when Ford failed to touch home plate.

Indians 6, Blue Jays 2

Andre Thornton's 29th homer of the season and Rick Waits' five-hitter carried Cleveland to victory.

Egad, friends, this is the week — kaff-kaff — when the big boys start battling in earnest.

Yes, dear readers, there are enough excellent games on the sked to satisfy even the zaniest football filberts among you.

For starters, consider these sterling matchups of leading Big 8 contenders against representative Pacific 10 foes: Oklahoma vs. Stanford; Colorado hosting Oregon; Nebraska enter-club, which figures to battle it out with Oklahoma and Nebraska for the loop title, should start the season in high gear by dumping Oregon 27-13. It will be much the same story at Lincoln, Neb., where the Cornhuskers will prevail over the visiting California Golden Bears by a 22-10 count.

The Pacific 8 was expanded to the Pac 10 this year with the addition of Arizona and Arizona State of the Western Athletic Conference, and the Arizona Wildcats will be out to make their first start in the new league a memorable one. We see it Arizona 21, Kansas State 12.

Both Southern California and Texas Tech will be starting a lot of young players this fall, but the Trojans of John Robinson appear to be better fortified than the Tech Red Raiders, where new coach Rex Dockery will field an almost completely new offensive 11. The Red Raiders graduated eight of last year's starters. The Hoople System gives the edge to the Trojans, 21-18.

The Missouri-Notre Dame meeting will be of particular interest to Irish mentor Dan Devine as the Tigers were the last college club he coached before moving on to the professional ranks and then to South Bend. Devine's clubs had good success against the Irish. But the tables will be turned this week as Notre Dame rolls to a 33-18 triumph.

eran talent while the Kansas Jayhawks are still in the rebuilding stage. Look for A&M to romp in with a 25-7 victory.

The Washington Huskies, Rose Bowl winners, are the strong favorites to repeat as Pacific 10 champs, but the Hoople Hunch is they will get off to a rocky start as the Uclans deal them a 28-25 setback. Terry Donahue's Bruins have an excellent offensive club — um-kum!

Neighbors Illinois and Northwestern won't be challenging for the Big 10 crown, but when they square off against each other it will be anybody's game. Gary Moeller, at Illinois, has one year under his belt as a head coach while Rick Venturi, at 31 the youngest coach in the Big 10, is making his debut as head coach at his alma mater. The Moeller forces appear to your correspondent to have just a little too much for the Wildcats. So we foresee an Illinois triumph, 28-22.

Penn State's Nittany Lions probably have one eye looking ahead to their very important clash with Ohio State next Saturday, but they had best pay attention to the business at hand or they could be sorry.

Rutgers, winners of eight of their last nine contests in 1977, will long remember the shocking 45-7 pasting they took at the hands of Joe Paterno's forces in the '77 lid lifter and would like nothing better than to score a big upset. However, such is not in the cards. Penn State is just too tough. We see it Penn State 39, Rutgers 19 — har-rumph!

BOSTON (AP) - The increasingly popular sport of racquetball has reached the status of having its own medically recognized injury - racquetball wrist.

An Illinois doctor says he suffered the new ailment himself and reported it in today's New England Journal of Medicine.

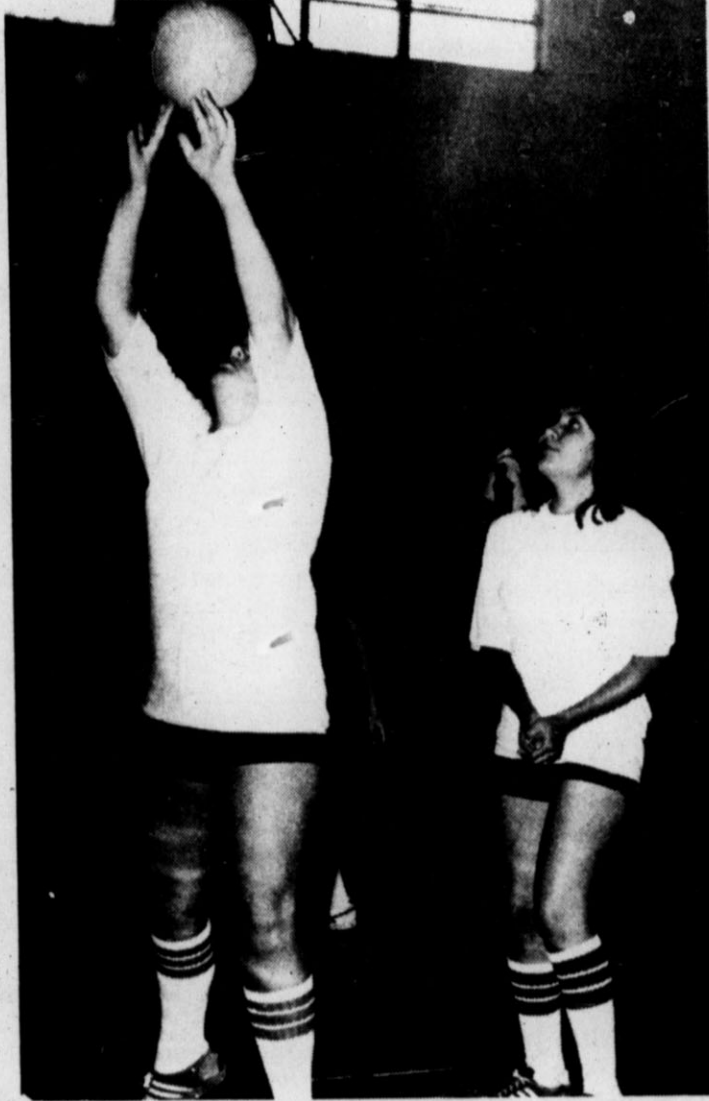

Dr. Steven A. Sandler of the Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge said the symptoms - an aching wrist - went away after several weeks of going without racquetball.

He recommended wrist-strengthening exercises to avoid the discomfort, which he theorized was caused by inflammation of the wrist tendons.

BOSTON (AP) - The Boston Red Sox, optimistic about their World Series chances, say applications for tickets to the American League playoffs and the World Series, will be sent out next Friday to season ticket holders.

Red Sox ticket manager

Arthur Moscato said the general public will be told how to apply for the league playoffs on Sept. 15 after applications from season ticket holders have been mailed. Details on applications for World Series tickets will be issued on Sept. 25, he said.

Head volleyball coach Helen Reed is putting her volleyball team through drills in preparation of their Sept. 12 opener here against Pampa. They start district Oct. 12 here against Monterey.

Amateur Request Rejected By Court

LOS ANGELES (AP) - An Amateur Athletic Union request that high jumper Dwight Stones be reinstated as an amateur has been rejected.

Superior Court Judge Robert Weil denied the motion Tuesday and gave AAU attorneys 30 days to reply to Stones' request that the AAU return his amateur status.

Stones, 24, the former world record holder and two-time Olympic medalist, filed suit against the AAU July 20 after the amateur sports governing body suspended him because of $33,400 he earned on the televised "Superstars" competion.

The suit, which could be a landmark case in determining the definition of amateurism in the United States, charged the AAU with monopolizing track and field competition in violation of California's antitrust act.

Stones' attorneys claim he did not personally receive any of the money he won on the sports show, while the AAU said the earnings made him a professional.

Stones gave the money to the Desert Oasis Track Club, a profit organization that lists members of his family as officers.

DARLINGTON, S.C. - Cale Yarborough held off a challenge by Darrell Waltrip to win his fourth Southern 500 stock car race.

Yarborough, in an Oldsmobile, won $30,000 in the 29th running of the "granddaddy" of NASCAR's superspeedway races.

INDIANAPOLIS - Hollywood stuntman Kelly Brown clinched the National Hot Rod Association world points championship for Top Fuel dragsters with a second-round victory in the $443,000 U.S. Nationals.

Brown dropped out of the U.S. competition in the quarterfinals, losing to Jeb Allen.

Don Garlits of Seffner, Fla., won a record fifth U.S. championship by defeating Rob Bruins of Federal Way, Wash., in the final round. Garlits defeated Bruins in the last quarter-mile run, 5.90 seconds to 6.00, to win $20,000.

Big 8 choice over Pac 10; Irish, Trojans are picks

Cheerleaders Just A Part of Football

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

If you watched Dallas' cheerleaders cavorting about last Monday night, you probably noticed a couple of things.

When ABC's cameras were not ogling the girls, you saw the Cowboys clobber the Baltimore Colts 38-0.

When they were, you saw sexism officially kicking into high gear in the National Football League, to the chagrin of some of today's more outspoken women.

Cheerleaders have always been a part of football, from the peewees to the pros. But, as the name implies, they're supposed to get people to cheer, not salivate.

These days, in the NFL, sisboom-bah has been replaced by bump-and-grind.

The big numbers used to be 6-6, 265. Now they're 38-24-36.

Some pro teams have had women prancing along the sidelines for many years. But it was the Cowboys who, a few seasons back, mated pro football and Charlie's Angels.

Since then we've witnessed the creation of the Denver Broncos' Pony Express, Philadelphia's Liberty Bells, the Houston Oilers' Derrick Dolls, Chicago's Honey Bears, the Seattle Sea Gals, the Cincinnati Ben Gals, the St. Louis Cardinals' Big Red Line and more, including - heaven help us - the Los Angeles Rams' Embraceable Ewes.

In many instances it's becoming a case of less and less uniform and more and more cheerleader - and those aren't pompons the girls are shakin' at you.

good taste."

Says Shannon Baker, one of the Cowboys' cheerleaders: "A lot of people have said, 'We don't need those girls on the field,' but, hey, there's also a lot of nice looking men on the field - the players."

"If anything, we're getting away from the sexual thing," she adds. "Our uniforms might be revealing, but I've done professional dancing and I've danced in a lot less. It's all in good taste."

But that, quite frankly, begs the question.

"It's just another example of the stereotype," says Gloria Steinem, one of the nation's most outspoken feminists. "You know, like it used to be the servants were always black and the employers were always white. These days the stereotype is that the women are always the secretaries, the researchers - yes, and the cheerleaders, too - and the men are always the principals."

"You'll notice you don't see male cheerleaders at women's sports events."

"I think it could get out of hand but I don't think it has to this point," says Commissioner Pete Rozelle. "I think the clubs have gotten an awful lot of attention and I think for the most part they've handled that part of their show in good taste. I think they've become increasing aware of the importance of conducting it with

Guerillas Claim Responsibility For Gunning Down Rhodesia Craft

BY MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) - Guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo said in Zambia that his followers were responsible for shooting down a Rhodesian airliner in northeast Rhodesia with 56 persons aboard, but he denied reports that they were responsible for murdering 10 of the 18 survivors.
The head of Air Rhodesia, however, told reporters Tuesday he had found no evidence as yet that the four-engine Viscount airliner which crashed near the Zambian border Sunday night had been downed by a guerrilla missile.
Capt. Pat Travers, general manager of the domestic airline, said an intensive investigation was underway to determine why the plane crashed.
"It could have been anything," said Travers. "We have to accept that mechanical things can go wrong. But there is no evidence at the moment to say it was caused by hostile action."
The plane went down in hilly bush country just five minutes after taking off from the Kariba Lake vacation resort near Rhodesia's northeast border with Zambia.
Guerrillas of Nkomo's Zimbabwe African People's Union have heavily infiltrated the area from bases in Zambia during their six-year war against the former British colony.
"I can't...they are going...mayday, mayday, I have lost both starboard engines. We are going in," the 36-year-old pilot John Hood messaged, according to a pilot who overheard the transmission.
"There was a tremendous explosion," said Anthony Hill, 39. "Then flames started shooting past the window on the starboard side."
"The captain told everyone to keep calm...to brace for the impact...The plane came down at a hell of a speed. Then it crashed."
Eighteen passengers survived and wormed their way out of the wreckage through the snapped tail section. Five left to seek help and the others gathered, with the wounded in a nearby gully.
An hour later, nine armed blacks appeared, said Hans Hansen, 35.
"When they first approached us," Hansen said, "they said they were going to give us water and help. When they gathered us together, they said 'You have taken our land! We are going to shoot you!' and they started killing."
Speaking at his headquarters Monday in Lusaka, the Zambian capital, Nkomo said, "We brought that plane down. But it is not true we killed the survivors."

Baker Favors Revisions
AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Jim Baker, Republican candidate for attorney general, Tuesday recommended the death penalty for murder when no other crime is involved and the disarming of the attorney general's organized crime division.
Baker opened his fall campaign with a news conference at which he presented a 37-page position paper on crime.
It included fixed sentences for crime in place of the present flexibility given judges and juries. It also recommended redistribution of Department of Public Safety resources to fight drug traffic.
Baker said he supports the Texas Department of Corrections' request for $130 million to expand prison capacity.
He noted that present law inflicts the death penalty for murder committed in the course of other crimes but not in some mass murder cases.
"It makes no sense to say you can give capital punishment for murder during an aggravated robbery but not for murder as murder," Baker said.
He also said the attorney general's organized crime division should help investigate drug cases and in preparation for their trial. But he said the division, criticized by Gov. Dolph Briscoe in his re-election campaign against Attorney General John Hill, needed a "charter" spelling out its powers and duties.
"Its role is investigation but not with the power of arrest or the power to carry weapons," Baker said.

Pokes Trade Golden to Chicago

DALLAS (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys are expected to bring in another player today to round out their National Football League roster after trading veteran wide receiver Golden Richards to the Chicago Bears.

The Cowboys obtained two undisclosed draft choices in the Tuesday exchange with the Bears. Tex Schramm, Cowboy president-general manager, said however, the draft choices were in the "top five" rounds.

The Cowboys did not say who they would pick to fill Richards' numerical spot on their 45-player roster, although Coach Tom Landry said North Alabama free agent Robert Steele "would be a real possibility." Steele, also a wide receiver, was waived by the Cowboys in preseason.

Richards, a six-year receiver who has occasionally complained that the Cowboys' game plan didn't include calling his number, alternated at wide receiver with Butch Johnson on last year's 12-2 team.

However, Richards and Johnson who each caught a touchdown pass in Dallas' 27-10 victory over Denver in Super Bowl XII were beaten out this year by sensational sophomore Tony Hill, who took over the starting receiver post opposite Drew Pearson.

Hill was spectacular in Dallas' 38-0 victory Monday night over the Baltimore Colts, and that apparently assured Richards' trade.

According to Jim Finks, the Bears' general manager, trade talks had been going on between Dallas and Chicago since Richards lost his starting job about 10 days ago. Finks said the Cowboys wanted to wait until after their first game to see how Hill would work out.

Richards' reaction to the trade was "mixed."

"I hate to leave a team like this," he said Tuesday night.

"But looking at it the other way, I want to leave. This could be a great opportunity," he said.

Richards said there was a "small doubt" he would report to Chicago but at age 27 felt he had "years left if I want them...and good ones, too."

Chicago's Finks said: "We feel Golden is a premier receiver. He has great quickness a receiver must have to be successful."

Landry said a reason for trading Richards was an aversion to allowing a long-time starter to fester on the bench when he might be improving himself professionally elsewhere.

Richards, who caught one pass for two yards in the Cowboys' 38-0 victory over Baltimore on Monday night, has said he felt the Cowboy offense would be more effective if he got the chance to catch more passes.

Pearson has been quarterback Roger Staubach's favorite receiver for the last several years.

Richards did not catch more than three passes in a game in 1977 and only had 17 receptions for the year as he and Johnson alternated as messengers.

Richards was a second round draft choice out of the University of Hawaii in 1973.

His best year was 26 receptions in 1974. He scored 16 touchdowns in his Cowboy career.

Rally Gives Astros Win

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston fireballer J.R. Richard sipped warm Gatorade Tuesday night after a ninth inning rally that gave the Astros a 3-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

But injured first baseman Bob Watson was the winning elixir. Richard and Watson were the ingredients that had Reds pitcher Tom Seaver sitting before his dressing cubicle in the opposite dressing room wondering what it takes to win a game.

Richard dueling Seaver over nine innings and lost a strike out contest but won the game when Watson, pinchhitting with one out in the ninth inning, clubbed a sacrifice fly to centerfield to score the winning run.

"I can't drink cold beer after a game because I'm too hot and I'll regurgitate it," Richard said as he drank the thirst quinner from a galvanized cooking pan.

"Tom pitched a perfect game but I just had the good luck at the right time."

Seaver, who holds the National League record of 289 strikeouts for a righthander, deserved a better fate. He fanned 10 compared to Richard's seven and yielded seven hits but came away the loser.

Richard, closing in on Seaver's record, now has 256 strikeouts.

Watson, inserted into the crucial situation despite being hobbled by a hamstring injury, said he was happy with the chance to win a game.

"Astros Manager Bill Virdon told me at the start of the inning that I'd be pinchhitting fourth for Luis Pujols," Watson said. "I appreciated him telling me a couple of batters ahead because it gave me a chance to get ready. Hitting is so much a mental thing anyway."

Watson poked the first pitch from Seaver to centerfielder Cesar Geronimo in shallow centerfield. Geronimo's throw to the plate was not even close to catching Jose Cruz, who had doubled ahead of Watson to tie the game at 2-2.

"He gave me a fast ball but it wasn't a Tom Seaver fast ball," Watson said. "He usually comes at me with his best pitch right away to try to get ahead. But tonight he took a little off the fast ball. I think if he could do it over he'd throw his best pitch."

Houston took a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning when Dennis Walling doubled after Enos Cabell had singled and stole second base.

That lead appeared good enough for Richard until the seventh when the ace Astros pitcher walked two batters and yielded a two run triple to Mike Lum. Then Seaver appeared to have the game in control until the ninth.

Terry Puhl led off with a single up the middle and Cruz, the Astros' leading hitter, sent him home with a high double to the leftfield corner. Lum took the blame for the loss.

"I lost the game for us," he said. "I put my head down and started directly for the line. If I'd watched the ball and started for the corner I'd have caught the ball easily."

Open Important For Jimmy Connors

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Jimmy Connors was one game away from being eliminated from the U.S. Open, the tournament he says he likes best of all because "it's my country's championship."

Trailing 5-4 and receiving serve in the fifth set against Italian Adriano Panatta, Connors blasted a forehand winner and did a feisty little dance along the baseline; he scorched a backhand past Panatta and strutted back to the service line; Panatta netted a volley and Connors skipped another jig; Panatta mis-hit a forehand and Connors threw his head back, raised his arms in jubilation and let out a shriek.

Game Connors, 5-5.

Can there be any disputing that Connors desperately wants to win this major championship? No!

But there is much dispute as to whether Connors wants to win because he loves to win or because he's afraid to lose.

"For Jimmy this is a very important tournament," Panatta said after losing the fourth-round heart-breaker 4-6, 6-4, 6-1, 1-6, 1-6, 7-5 Tuesday.

"Today he was worried about the match. He's lost a couple of finals and he wants to prove again he's No. 1."

"In Italy we say he does not want to die."

Panatta is among the growing group that thinks Connors has to win because he can't face losing again and providing his skeptics with more ammunition. It is a fact that Connors has won only one major championship since 1974 when he so convincingly won Wimbledon and the U.S. Open.

Connors, of course, contends he still is on top of his game and shortly will be back on top of the tennis world.

"I'm not gonna lose, they're gonna have to win it from me," Connors said after the 3½-hour match. "I'm not gonna roll over and give it to them."

Today, Connors' former fiance, Chris Evert, was to take center stage against 15-year-old Tracy Austin in a quarter-final match. In men's quarter-final action, 15th-seeded John McEnroe of New York was to play Butch Walts of Phoenix, Ariz. In a night match, No. 3 Vitas Gerulaitis of New York faces Johan Kriek of South Africa.

Evert advanced into the quarter-finals Tuesday by beating Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovakia 6-4, 6-1 in the grandstand, while Austin was in the more prestigious Louis Armstrong Stadium ousting Anne Smith of Dallas 6-4, 6-3.

While Connors was being severely tested by Panatta, Wimbledon champion Bjorn Borg, the No. 1 seed, had it easy on the cement courts, beating baseline specialist Harold Solomon of Silver Spring, Md. 6-2, 6-2, 6-0. Steady Brian Gottfried, the No. 6 seed from Florida, parried the rocket serves of fellow American Roscoe Tanner, 6-2, 6-4, 6-1. All the winners advanced into the quarter-finals.

Warriors Get $$$, Lucas

By The Associated Press
OAKLAND (AP) - The Golden State Warriors have accepted guard John Lucas and $100,000 from Houston as compensation for the Rockets' signing of forward Rick Barry.

That was one of two settlements proposed by Larry O'Brien, the National Basketball Association commissioner. The alternative was for Houston to give the Warriors $350,000 and a future No. 1 draft choice for the 34-year-old Barry, who was signed by the Rockets as a free agent this year.

Lucas, 24, told Coach Al Attles he was looking forward to coming to the Warriors. Lucas played briefly in World Team Tennis with the Golden Gaters two seasons ago.

After winning All-America honors at Maryland, Lucas was the first player taken in the 1976 draft. He was second in the NBA last year in assists with an average of 9.4 a game.

Southern Open To Start

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) - Defending champion Jerry Pate and PGA champion John Mahaffey head the field for the $175,000 Southern Open Golf Tournament which starts Thursday.

The field also includes three of the Top Ten money winners on the tour this year in Andy Bean, Hubert Green, the 1975 winner of this event, and Bill Kratzert, a former University of Georgia golfer.

The purse for this annual event has been increased $50,000 to $175,000, with the winner earning $35,000.

Pate, a 25-year-old former Alabama star from Pensacola, Fla., won last year with a 266 score, 14-under-par over the 6,791-yard, par-70 Green Island Country Club course.

Green, in winning two years earlier, set the tournament record with a 72-hole total of 264.

Other former champions in the field include 1976 winner

Mac MacLendon and Mason Rudolph, who won the first tournament in 1970.

Ben Crenshaw, Lanny Wadkins, Tommy Aaron, George Archer, Bob Murphy, Miller Barber, and Phil Hancock, who finished second a year ago, also are on hand.

Bean, a 25-year-old former Florida player who grew up in Jekyll Island, Ga., is the second leading money winner on the tour behind Tom Watson. Bean has earned more than $257,000 and won the Kemper Open, Memphis Classic and Western Open.

Green has collected more than $182,000 and is fifth in earnings, while Kratzert is seventh with over $174,000. Mahaffey, with consecutive victories in the PGA and Pleasant Valley, is 12th with $137,000, while Pate is 13th at $133,000.

Summit conferences might have more productive results if they were held on the level.
