Homecoming royalty candidates

Six seniors will compete this week for honors as Homecoming King and Queen for 1991 at Hereford High School. The students (running as couples) are, from left, Leo Brown and Stacy Culpepper; Dawn and Derek Mason; and Rachel Alaniz and Danny Garza. The winners will be crowned Friday. This is the first year a Homecoming King has been named at HHS.

Services Monday for Thompson

Alice Thompson, 82, of Hereford, the daughter of county pioneers, died Saturday.

Services will be held Monday at 11 a.m. at Gililand-Watson Funeral Home's Rose Chapel with the Rev. Paul Land of Canyon officiating. Burial will follow in West Park Cemetery.

Mrs. Thompson was born March 11, 1909 in Hereford. She married Robert L. Thompson on Dec. 15, 1929 in Hereford. He preceded her in death in November 1989. She was a retired schoolteacher and a member of the First Christian Church of Hereford.

Survivors include two daughters, Elaine Trew of Fort Worth and Lynn Smithson of Trenton; a brother, Benny Womble of Hereford; two sisters, Zoe Williams of Hereford and Doyle Hinrichen of Roswell, N.M.; six grandchildren; and one great-grandchild.

Voting slow on issues

Early voting for the Nov. 5 Texas Constitutional Amendment election got off to a slow start in Deaf Smith County, with only 22 ballots cast by Friday afternoon.

Voting began Wednesday and will continue on weekdays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., through Nov. 1, in the office of County Clerk David Ruland. A special Sunday voting period will be held on Oct. 27, from 1-5 p.m.

A petition requesting the weekend voting hours was filed in the clerk's office on Oct. 8, requesting the polls to be open on Oct. 27, "before and after morning church services."

The Rev. Dr. Ron Cook, pastor of First Baptist Church, filed the petition. He acknowledged that the Sunday voting represents an effort to defeat Proposition 11, the amendment that would allow a state lottery, if approved.

Texas voters may cast ballots early without offering an excuse for being unable to vote on election day as was the case for many years.

Thirteen proposals are on the ballot but the lottery issue has generated the most controversy.

An explanation of the amendments, and reasons for and against each amendment, is offered on Pages 11A-12A in today's paper as a public service by the Hereford Brand.

Pen pal from India visits Hereford to meet new friend

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

A freelance journalist spending a couple of weeks in Hereford does not fit the typical stereotype of a resident of Bombay, India.

Joe A. Lewis is Indian in the strictest sense of the word, but neither his name nor his religion (Catholicism) would give a clue to the average American.

Lewis learned about Hereford through a pen pal, LaVerne Gerlach, a teacher at St. Anthony's School. He came here to visit her and, maybe in the process, pick up some material for a book he's writing on folk remedies.

Lewis' ancestry reaches back for centuries in Christianity.

"I am of a group that traces back to a visit by St. Thomas to India in 52 A.D.," explained Lewis, accounting for his Christian name and religion.

Ms. Gerlach and Lewis "met" through a Catholic periodical. She decided to respond to an article about pen pals in the publication and the two began corresponding last spring.

Lewis is not a newcomer to the United States, but his trip to Hereford marks his only extended stay in Texas.

"I went to Dallas once when I was in New York on business: I flew to Dallas one morning and back to New York that night," he explained.

Another time, he rode a bus across the U.S., from East Coast to West Coast, traveling across Texas but not stopping to look around.

Lewis earned his master's degree from the University of Wisconsin. He operates a management counseling business as well as representing a publishing company. He is involved in a holistic medicine practice that includes an eclectic combination of disciplines, and also has a book on garlic therapy to his credit.

While here, Lewis has spoken to classes at St. Anthony's School, explaining culture, traditions and educational system of India to students in kindergarten through sixth grade.

Education of children in his native land, Lewis said, is very dependent on the government, whether in private or public schools.

"The government provides the books and pays the teachers in all schools," continued Lewis.

Beginning with grade four some fees are charged for boys but girls continue to attend school without fees, Lewis added, noting that this kind of discrimination is not without purpose.

"We want to encourage the girls to continue their education so their parents don't pay fees," said Lewis.

Although parents do pay fees or tuition for boys, the amount is minimal, Lewis pointed out.

India's culture and traditions are intact, but Lewis said the danger is real that some could erode as has occurred in the U.S.

"Our divorce rate now is not great, but it could grow," he said. More and

Working on the railroad Sauls spend spare time with memorabilia

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

There are railroad buffs, and then there are the Sauls, Roland and Sandra.

Many people interested in railroads may buy books or build miniature trains. The Sauls buy railroad boxcars and convert them to their own purposes.

They also have a real depot, an Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe model that once served the community of Black in Parmer County.

Since moving the building from Amarillo (an antique dealer had used it for his business), the Sauls have set out to re-create the atmosphere of an old-time train depot, both outside and inside.

To make their job easier, they have a set of plans for the Santa Fe's station of the size and style they have on their property north of Hereford.

Saul said that the railroad company had standard plans for stations of the different sizes needed along the line.

Their depot is not a big building, probably about 20 feet by 50 feet, but suited the community when it was built in 1913.

"We're adding a little inside," said Mrs. Saul with a sly grin.

A notation on the drawings tells builders to locate the "closet in the least objectionable place." The Sauls have elected to install a modern bathroom in the depot but may place an outhouse on the property, too. Just for looks, they said.

The depot building has been altered very little through the years. The baggage room, office and waiting room are intact, along with built-in cabinets and a desk.

Walls in the baggage room are decorated, so to speak, with names and dates put there by railroad agents through the years. The names on the walls are of the men who worked in the depot from the time it was built.

A three-foot wide shelf along one wall in the baggage room will become a mini-museum, said Mrs. Saul. She will have a place to display the many railroad items the couple has accumulated through the years.

"I'll be glad when we get it finished," Mrs. Saul declared. "I need to get a lot of things out of the house."

Mrs. Saul is an antique shopper who chooses items with a great deal of care. Furnishings in their home are reminiscent of another era. An armoire and a fireplace front and mantle were found in a store in Stanton.

Other antiques belonged to their families and the railroad memorabilia was acquired by prowling in antique stores, junk shops and other businesses.

The depot is one of two railroad buildings on the Sauls' property. The second is a boxcar they have converted to a workshop. In the mountains of northern New Mexico, in the vicinity of Black Lake, are another boxcar and a caboose.

The boxcars weigh approximately 80,000 pounds without the wheels, said Saul.

"They take the wheels off before they sell the cars," he said, "because they are worth quite a bit."

Before moving the boxcar to New Mexico, the Sauls redid the interior, creating sleeping space as well as a kitchen and sitting room. They cut two portholes in the car and installed a patio door inside the car's sliding door.

For a guest house when they are at the vacation home, the caboose's interior was finished to provide extra sleeping space.

"Moving the boxcar was interesting," reported Saul, "especially when the truck went through Cimarron Canyon."

The boxcars are warm in winter and cool in summer, Mrs. Saul said.

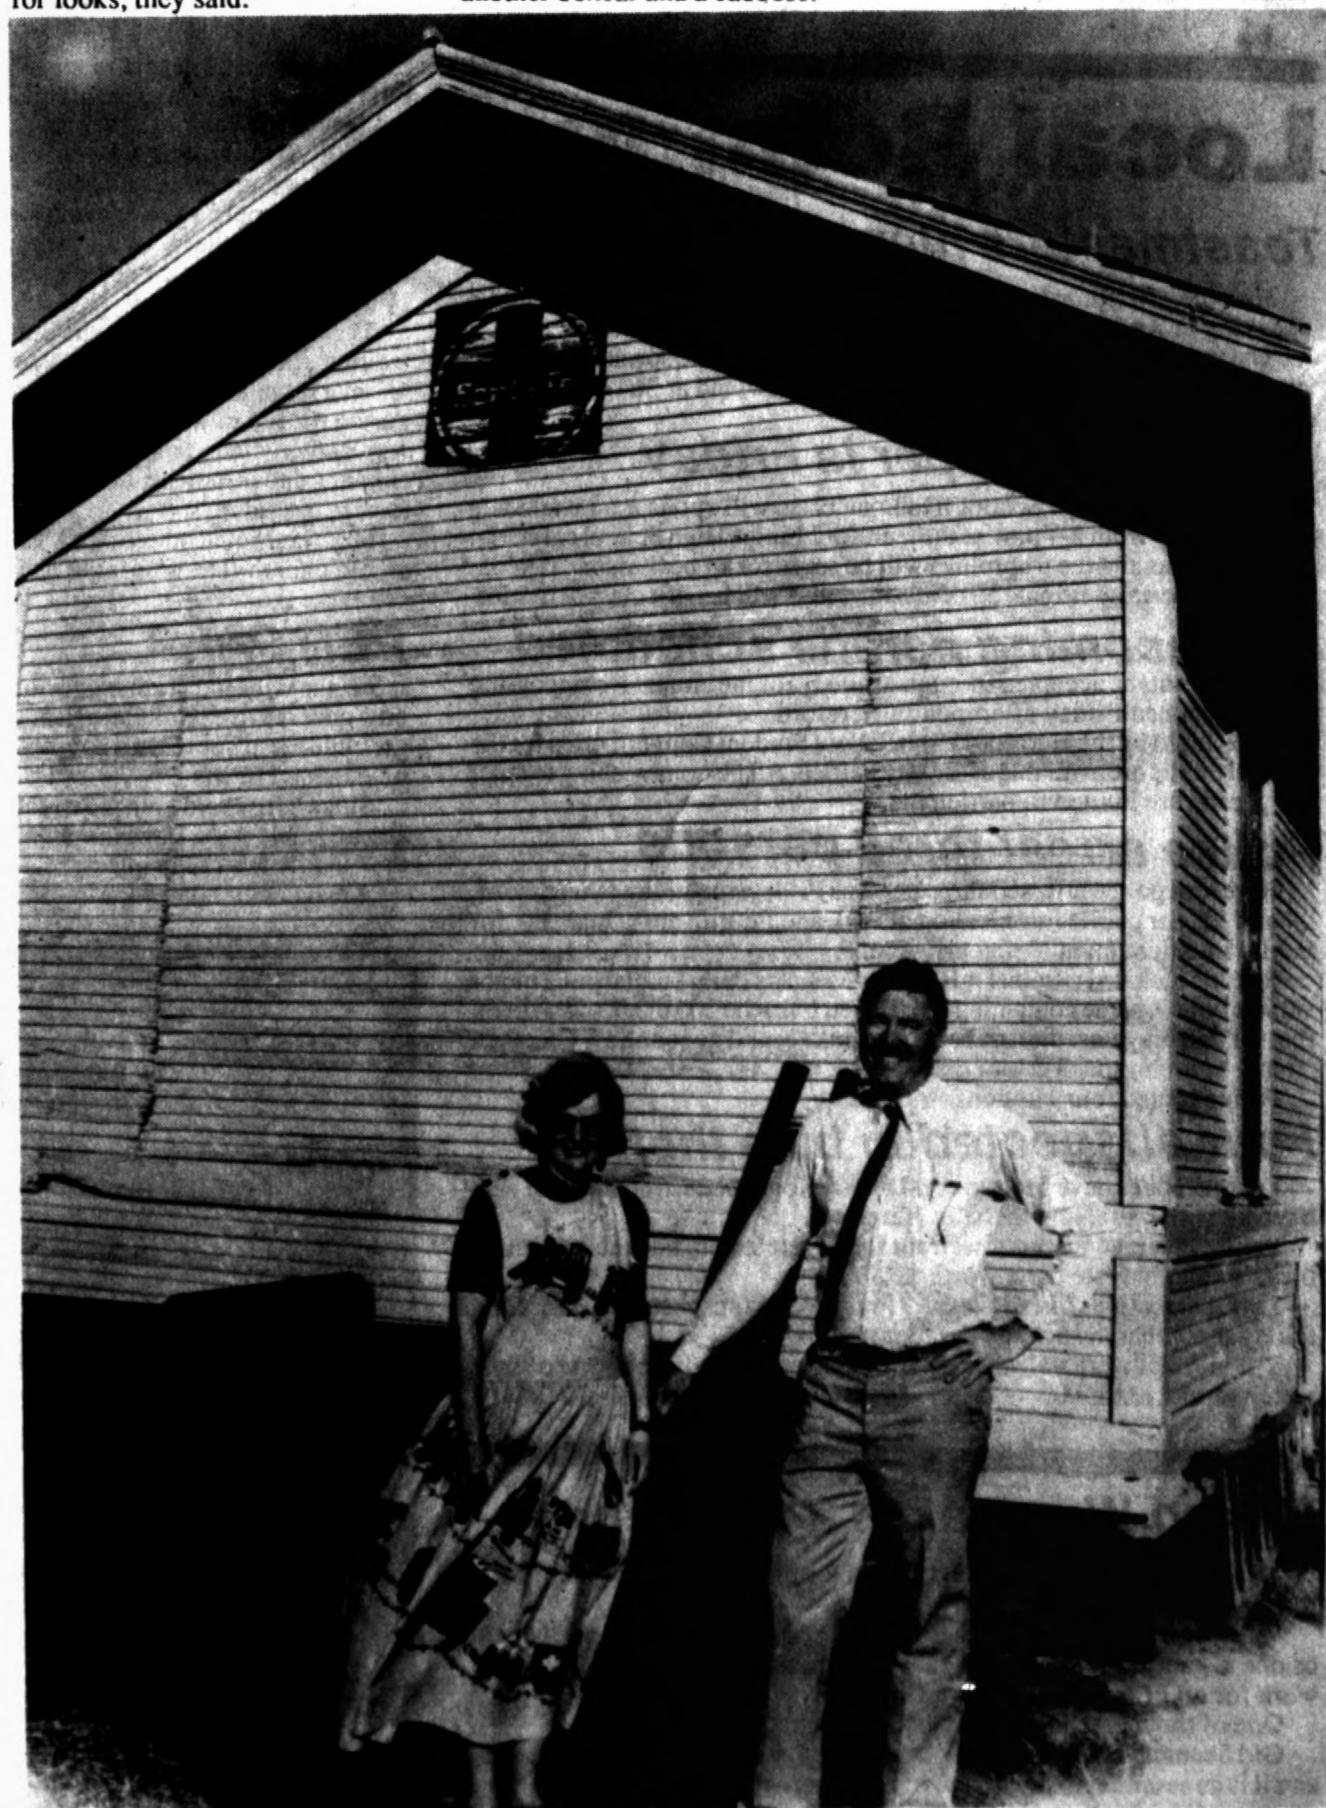

"We like to snowmobile in the winter and once we get the boxcar warm, it stays warm," she said.

The site of their vacation property is inaccessible in the winter except by snowmobile but they don't mind the inconvenience of reaching the location.

Work on the depot may be a long-term project, as the Sauls describe their plans.

Mrs. Saul set out to strip paint from the built-in counters and desk but found that to be a nearly impossible task.

(See SAULS, Page 2A)

Depot is pride and joy

Sandra and Roland Saul are the proud owners of a former Santa Fe Railway station which they are restoring at their place north of Hereford. Another item of memorabilia is the baggage cart which she found stored in a barn.

United Way makes it all happen

Why support the United Way of Deaf Smith County with your pledge for 1992?

When you make your fair share pledge you help more than one person or one organization; you help 12 worthwhile organizations continue to work for all of us in Deaf Smith County.

One of the member agencies is Girl Scouts.

Girl Scouting has been sending a message to girls for more than 77 years, and it is as essential today as it was in the beginning: "Become your best, set your sights high, you can make it happen."

With the problems facing girls today, they need an organization that will enable them to make strong decisions. In Girl Scouting, the girl always comes first. She is the main focus of the organization.

If you haven't made your pledge, do so today. If you don't have a pledge card, call the United Way office at 364-5220. United Way of Deaf Smith County gives us all something to believe in.

Pinkie

EDITOR'S NOTE: He was a gambler and a bootlegger and as crafty and cunning as a West Texas coyote. The late Tom "Pinkie" Roden was also a widely admired civic and political activist who wove his unique magic behind the scenes. As both a legal and illegal whiskey merchant, he cast a long shadow over the lives of many Texans. Maybe longer than even he knew.

"Some of the most honorable people in the world are bootleggers."

- Ted Roden.
"If they're not, they're dead." - Bill Roden.

Not bad for a guy who did hard time at the state prison in his younger days.

The Odessa Chamber of Commerce named him to its Business Hall of Fame and a former state whiskey regulator praised him as "an outstanding citizen, a great character, a dear friend and the kingpin of the liquor business in Texas for many years."

Indeed they did. His adopted hometown of Odessa, the rowdy West Texas oil mecca, honored him as its outstanding citizen. And lawyers admired him a Liberty Bell as the non-lawyer who best upheld the tradition of American justice.

Not bad for a guy who did hard time at the state prison in his younger days.

The Odessa Chamber of Commerce named him to its Business Hall of Fame and a former state whiskey regulator praised him as "an outstanding citizen, a great character, a dear friend and the kingpin of the liquor business in Texas for many years."

Within seconds, the liquor agent and a colleague raced away in pursuit. As the two cars disappeared from sight, two other vehicles quietly emerged from the target building and headed in the opposite direction.

A short time later, the investigators overtook their quarry on a lonely country road. They searched the vehicle and found nothing.

"A damn decoy," an agent grumbled.

Meanwhile, the two other cars broke formation, one turning northwest toward Lubbock and the second southeast toward Abilene. Both overflowed with half pints of bootleg whiskey.

Unchallenged and unhurried, they soon delivered and unloaded their cargo, bound as always for a thirsty clientele in "dry" Texas counties.

Pinkie Roden's boys had struck again.

"He was the best," the late Coke Stevenson Jr. told a reporter one day in Austin. "Pinkie had the smartest drivers and the fastest cars and his people were loyal to a fault."

"He drove us crazy. But I couldn't help but like him."

Stevenson, once a liquor board administrator, recalled a meeting in which an officer appealed for new, bigger and faster cars to challenge Pinkie's backroad bootlegging activities.

Told that such funding was not available, Stevenson said the agent then asked for money to buy Pinkie's used cars and equipment.

"They're better than anything we've got," he argued.

Stevenson insisted that Pinkie could drive better in the dark than in daylight, and that he could travel from Odessa to Dallas without crossing a major highway.

(See PINKIE, Page 5A)

Roden meant more than a far-flung liquor store empire

"He knew the backroads of West Texas better than most people know the backyards of their home," he laughed.

Pinkie's brother Bill Roden, an oilman and pilot, says he flew Pinkie across sections of West Texas in his private plane so he could familiarize himself with remote and secluded country roads.

And his widow Jane insists with a smile that Pinkie, up until his death, drove with his eyes glued to the rearview mirror, searching still for phantom pursuers from the past.

"He loved the intrigue of being chased," she said.

Jane did not meet Pinkie until the late Sixties and they did not marry until 1970, when she was 31 and he was 58. But she came to know him better than anyone, and she said she loved him fiercely.

Jane found Pinkie a gentle and generous husband as well as an adoring father to her daughter from an earlier marriage.

But, when she examined his murky past, she also found him frightening.

Born at a hardscrabble settlement named Chalk Mountain in 1911, Pinkie Roden spent much of his childhood at nearby Glen Rose, a small, riverside resort and spa 60 miles south of Fort Worth.

He worked in his father's drug store before making a youthful career move that would forever shape his life. As a bell boy at the local hotel, he was exposed early on to sins of the flesh, and their first cousins, whiskey and gambling.

He sampled them all.

More importantly, it took him no time at all to learn that hotel guests would pay handsomely for booze in a dry town, a lesson he took to heart.

He dropped out of school at age 16, if not earlier, and soon drifted to Fort Worth, ostensibly to live with a grandmother and finish public school. In fact, he learned the bootlegging business from a young buddy, Clem Connally, and Clem's father Dee, who operated out of a service station front.

(See PINKIE, Page 5A)

SAULS

"Look at these places," she said, pointing to marks along the edge of the counter that seem to have been left by cigarettes burning down.

"The top of the counter I'm stripping, but I'm going to just sand and paint the rest of the cabinets," she said.

Politicians privately sought his counsel and his contributions, and it was former Texas Gov. Preston Smith who said: "I would class Tom Roden as one of the top 10 people I know. The state and the community have lost a great man."

Perhaps the last of his special if not always noble breed, Pinkie is gone but his legacy will be with Texas for generations to come. Like no other, he shaped the crazy-quilt laws governing how, where, what and when Texans buy and drink their booze.

And, unbeknown to all but a few, he helped chisel out a rollicking chapter of state history along the way.

depot's waiting room bench until she can locate the real thing.

Office equipment, including a telephone on an expandable arm, has been preserved for authenticity.

The exterior of the building, when all the painting is done, will be in the yellow hue common to Santa Fe Railway stations. At each end, too, will be the recognizable logo of the railroad, a cross inside a circle, inside a square.

An end of the building shows signs of having been altered at some time in the past. On the inside are two large rectangles that Mrs. Saul believes may have been windows that were closed off. On the outside, a large area of siding seems to have been inserted, matching the inside change.

A dock will be built at the baggage room entrance and concrete steps will allow the visitor to step up into the waiting room.

Somewhere in the area, when the layout is complete, will be another item that represents some tenacity on Mrs. Saul's part.

She located a real baggage cart in a barn and wanted to look at it.

"The man who owned it had it chained to the wall, up high, in his barn," she said. "He'd had it there 10 years and would not take it down unless I'd buy it."

She bought it.

Railroad buffs might drool over some of the items the Sauls have collected through the years.

Al Daniels was presented the Volunteer of the Year award by Lester Wagner. Daniels has volunteered at the center for 13 years. He did renovation work at the old center at Central School and does many maintenance jobs at the new center. During the year Daniels donated 705.5 hours to the organization.

Margie Daniels expressed her personal appreciation to the retiring board members and volunteers.

Daniels said they have been the key to the success of the center and have made it possible for older individuals in Hereford to improve their quality of life. She said that through their efforts and through the commitment and support of the community, Hereford is known as having the best Senior Citizen Center in the state.

The board and the membership recognized and gave special thanks to Mamie Moton who is retiring on October 31, 1991 with over 10 years of service. She received a standing ovation from those in attendance as she was presented gifts from the board and the association.

Lester Wagner recognized the present board and the Director introduced the center staff. She thanked the staff for their commitment to their work and to the senior citizens of the community. She said that many of those working are longtime employees and reported their years of service.

Many of the city's wealthiest families are buried in Metairie Cemetery. When you visit Metairie Cemetery, you will see the red granite statue of Washington, she designed the tomb before she died. A life sized bronze figure of a woman, holding a bouquet of roses knocks at the tomb's door. Jane Virgin, the most famous madam, and the statue symbolizes one of her most famous clients. Virgin was never permitted to enter her bordello. Metairie Cemetery is 125,000+ acre manicured acres laid out in an oval shape. The cemetery was a race track before it became a cemetery in 1872. Some of the modern, jewel-like cemeteries, cost over a million dollars. William C. Cleburne, Louisiana's first general, is buried here. We're glad the confirmation of Judge Clarence Thomas is over, and it certainly gave millions of Americans a living-room view of how government operates in this country. It was not a pretty sight!

The obvious political nature of the hearings, the partisanship evident on the committee, and the leaks to the press one day before the Senate was to vote on the confirmation were difficult to swallow.

We think several factors combined to the final affirmative vote for Thomas. First of all, Americans were turned off by the political process. Citizens feel insulted that our politicians talk about tolerance and ridicule the behavior of regular citizens, yet place themselves above and beyond reproach.

We also think TV commentators displayed obvious antagonism toward the nominee and it backfired. The three major networks erred when they carried testimony of Hill's supporters but failed to carry live testimony in support of Judge Thomas. Opinion polls from all across the country gave substantial support to Judge Thomas, and the major factor may have been President Bush's unwavering support of the nominee.

The overall effect of such ordeals cannot help but reduce the number of qualified, capable nominees to seek any government post!

James Roberts, the veteran country editor down at Andrews, commented in his column that the hullabaloo over the confirmation of Judge Thomas is one good reason that he opposes a constitutional amendment to limit terms of congressmen.

Already, too much of the day-to-day operations of government policymaking is left to aides, as the hearings clearly demonstrated. With our representatives limited to 8 or 12 years, knowledgeable and aggressive aides would simply dominate incoming freshmen.

Unless similar time limitations are also placed on aides, then passage of such a constitutional amendment would simply give more power to aides in the nation's capitol.

"And it was the aides who brought about the whole sorry spectacle of the hearings conducted by the Senate Judiciary Committee," claims Roberts.

Thanks to excellent reporting by NBC and USA Today, the plot to blackmail Judge Thomas into withdrawing his name from nomination was revealed," writes Roberts. He said reporters claim that liberal activists tipped off the aides of Senators Ted Kennedy and Howard Metzenbaum that Anita Hill harbored a secret grudge against Judge Thomas.

The aides reportedly called Hill and persuaded her to file the accusations, assuring her that her name would remain anonymous. Roberts says committee members ought to demand the firing of the two aides.

We've heard about Branson, Missouri for a long time, including reports from a number of Hereford citizens who have made the trip to the Ozarks. So, the wife and I made the 650-mile trip to the booming resort town this week along with three other Hereford couples.

Country western music stars are flocking to the resort town to open theaters. Roy Clark was the first Nashville celebrity to recognize the potential in Branson, and he opened a theater in 1983. Many have followed, including Mel Tillis, Ray Stevens, Moe Bandy, Boxcar Willie, Jim Stafford and Mickey Gilley.

One of the big drawing cards for the celebrity entertainers is getting off the road and having the audience come to them. And, Branson offers something you don't find in Nashville—a variety of live music shows besides the Grand Ole Opry.

Branson is booming with the country music stars and more are coming. Willie Nelson, Johnny Cash, the Gatlin Brothers, and Andy Williams plan to open theaters next year. "I think Branson's already exploded and the explosion is just now being felt around the world," said Nelson recently in an AP news article.

The stars are looking at the luxury of staying in one place, while eyeing a piece of the $1.5 billion spent annually in the town of 3,700 by more than 4 million visitors. Willie Nelson, who owes $16.7 million in back taxes will be leasing Mel Tillis' theater, and Mel will move to a new theater now under construction.

At about $15 a ticket and the 10 likely sold-out shows he will perform a week in the 1,500-seat theater from next May through at least October, Nelson could pay off a sizable part of his debt. (Put the pencil to it: A gross take of $22,500 a show, $225,000 a week, and $5.8 million for 26 weeks.)

Shoji Tabuchi, a Japanese star fiddle player, has one of the more popular shows in town. He started off as a backup performer and now has his own theater. He reported there were 40,000 theater seats in the town and 15,000 more are expected to be added by next year. He also reported that "60 Minutes" will soon air a story on Branson.

Becoming a booming entertainment and resort mecca has its drawbacks, and we discovered it right away on our trip. Traffic along the two-lane strip in Branson is horrendous. At certain times during the day, bumper-to-bumper traffic crawls along at a snail's pace. If you're staying anywhere close to the theater where you have tickets, it's better to walk. Most of the stars allude to the traffic situation with jokes in their shows.

It's a family entertainment center. Our motel manager reported that Branson had successfully kept a strip show from coming to town. There are miniature golf courses, a near-by lake for fishing, and we even found a few golf courses. The place was packed with senior citizens and tour buses, with part of the attraction being the Ozark autumn foliage. There's a theme park in near-by Silver Dollar City, which is also planning to get into the theater business.

If you like country music, Branson is the resort area for you. But, watch out for the traffic!

Babbling Brooks

If it seems that this column is being written in a hurry, that's because it is. The first game of the 1991 World Series begins in a few minutes, and I don't want to miss the first pitch. This is also being called the "Worst Series." The combatants, Minnesota and Atlanta, finished plumb positively last in their respective divisions (American League West and National League West) in 1990. It wasn't even close. They were (excepting the Cleveland Indians) the worst teams in baseball. A year later, they were the best. Never before has that happened, someone going from worst to first in a year. There were the "Miracle Braves" of 1914, who were in last on July 4th; they were first when the dust cleared in October.

The Twins were supposed to be absolutely awful again this year. For a while they were. Back when the Rangers had both good hitting and good pitching (the pitching, left too long in the hands of Tom House, went south), the Twins were waaaaay back. It didn't take long for the Twins to put together their own winning streak, and they made mincemeat of those fearsome Oakland A's and the rest of the west.

The Braves? Hah, hah, hah. Everyone who followed more than nine innings of baseball a year knew that someday the Braves would have a great pitching staff. You see, when you finish last every year, you get a high draft choice the next year. The Braves have had plenty of high draft choices, and wisely spent many of them on pitchers.

The pitchers were supposed to come through for the Braves "later." Jane Fonda, fiance of Braves owner Ted Turner, probably made Ted several promises to be paid "if the Braves get to the World Series." She likely felt safe in making those promises.

Jane's probably eating a half-gallon of Haagen-Dazs as we speak.

Besides, the Braves deserve to be in the World Series. The last time they were in the series, I was two years old.

It should be interesting.

Our sports editor, Jay Peden, said he could hardly wait until the Houston Astros finally made it to the World Series. At least they have been in the League Championship Series a couple of times, but have never gone all the way. My "team," the Texas Rangers, have never even been in the playoffs.

Maybe they will both make it some day. I have a funny feeling that will be the same day that ol' Beelzebub puts on the ice skates and throws a few snowballs around.

An AP News Analysis

Audience must decide who lied

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - Investigations into government scandals usually unfold slowly, in dry detail.

This was instant drama.

Often, the charges involved are complex, legalistic, hard to grasp.

This one was sex, lies and video, on holiday weekend television.

Frequently, the accusing witness is a bureaucrat, an auditor, a federal investigator.

This time it was an outraged woman denouncing her former boss, with accusations he said were concocted for a lynching.

And all in the span of three days, a 30-hour miniseries rivaling standard prime-time fare, adding heat on a volatile issue.

No wonder the encore confirmation hearing in the case of Anita F. Hill versus Clarence Thomas boosted TV ratings, dominated conversations, and became an instant national fixation.

Even the mother of all scandals,

Watergate, was months in the telling. The drama and confrontation at the televised Senate hearings in 1973 came with weeks of less compelling testimony. Those hearings also gripped national attention, but not so swiftly and pervasively as these.

The later episodes that made gate a suffix for scandal didn't come close to stirring the intensity of the Hill-Thomas hearings.

There was no final chapter to the mystery; the plot ended without a solution. Her charge of X-rated sex talk and harassment a decade ago stands, and so does his denial, total and unyielding.

So it's left to the audience to decide who lied.

Thomas said he'd never be able to fully clear his name because he could not prove a negative. Nor did that come with the Senate decision to confirm him as an associate justice of the Supreme Court, 52-48.

"I know of no system of government where, when you add the kerosene of sex, the heated flame of race and the incendiary of television lights, you are not going to have an explosion," said Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del. "I know of no institution that has been created by mankind that can contain that conflagration."

His, the Senate Judiciary Committee, certainly did not.

While Biden, the chairman, defended his handling of the Thomas proceedings and said there had been no screw up, the consensus is that something certainly went wrong.

But there's no consensus on the way to repair it.

One proposal is that a president consult with senators of both parties in advance on the people he is considering to fill a Supreme Court vacancy.

Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., a Thomas opponent, introduced a resolution on Wednesday, recommending "informal, bipartisan consultation" before nominees are chosen. His measure, which wouldn't be binding on anybody, also says the president should consider "philosophical balance" when selecting a justice.

To Democratic liberals, that means President Bush shouldn't keep appointing conservatives.

He will, of course.

That deals with selections, not with the procedure by which nominees are considered and confirmed.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., who voted to confirm Thomas, spoke more directly to that point, saying there should not be public hearings on confidential charges raised against a nominee, not even if they are leaked and become public, as material from an FBI report on the Hill accusation did.

Bush said Thursday that the Thomas hearings should have been conducted behind closed doors.

"I wish the country had been spared some of the detail," he said.

"Now we have seen the consequences of fulfilling the momentary desire to accommodate the public's right to know and ... a trial-type public hearing," Nunn told the Senate. "The appetites that we have struggled to control in the past were not suppressed and the Senate now faces public revision, rather than accolades for our indulgence."

Nunn said the White House had told him that during the past two years, more than 25 potential nominees to government positions were dropped because of adverse information turned up by confidential FBI reports.

But the other side of the argument erupted in protests that the Senate wasn't taking sex harassment seriously when it seemed headed toward action on Thomas without a full investigation. That outcry led to the delay and the televised hearings.

Until then, the accusation had been held in confidence by the judiciary committee; Senate leaders had been briefed on the charges and the inconclusive, two-day FBI investigation, but other senators had not.

There's a case to be made for private proceedings. But maintaining secrecy about what goes on there is another question.

The problem is what to one man or woman is proper confidentiality can, to another, look like a coverup.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor,

During the past few months the grounds at the E.B. Black House have been absolutely beautiful.

I would like to recognize a group of women who have spent countless hours working on the flowers and shrubs at the Black House. Jan Furr is chairman, and the committee includes Mary Zinser, Theresa Artho, Betty Kriegshauser, Paula Edwards, Carmen Flood, Judy Detten, Ella Marie Veigel, Shirley Wilson, Diane Hoelscher and Peggy Hyer.

Thanks to each of them for making our city and county more beautiful. If you haven't visited the E.B. Black House, I'd suggest you do so, soon.

Sincerely,
Tom Simons

Dear editor,

I am writing to express my appreciation to many Hereford football fans.

Those who remained for the entire game Friday night are to be commended.

Those who chose to leave in the third and fourth quarter should ask themselves: Is their lack of pride and support really the message they wish to convey to the group of 17- and 18-year-old boys who were trying their very best to represent the hometown crowd? I'm sure the Pampa supporters took notice, as did I and the players.

We express our gratitude to the media for great coverage in the paper, on the television and over the radio. John Brooks, Jay Peden, Lloyd Ames and Russ Nelson go far beyond the normal call of duty to support us throughout the season.

Thanks to all the local businesses for your encouragement and advertisement of Tuesday night's game. We recognize and greatly appreciate our student body's continued support. Your enthusiasm and spirit motivate us to perform.

Most of all, we thank our parents, not only for their support on Tuesday night, but for their continued support and encouragement in all we do.

Sincerely,
Tom Timberlake

Dear editor,

We would like to thank the Bootleg Volunteer Fire Department for its extremely quick and professional response to our recent grass fire.

Thanks again,

WASHINGTON — "The worst crime against working people," said the 19th century union organizer Samuel Gompers, "is a company which fails to operate at a profit

PINKIE

"Pinkie always said Clem was the only true friend he ever had," Jane Roden recalled.

"Years later, when Clem got tuberculosis, Pinkie would go and sit with him and read to him and tell him what was going on in the bootlegging business. Clem died in a sanatorium in San Angelo. Pinkie was crushed. He said he never had another friend like him."

In Fort Worth, Pinkie used an alias, Tom Boyd, during his brushes with the law. He adored his mother and feared his father and worried constantly that his photograph might find its way into the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

It never did, but he left town not altogether by choice.

Friends, associates and even family members are a bit hazy on just how, when and why Pinkie surfaced next in the West Texas town of Sweetwater, near Abilene.

But it was a pivotal period, for he not only perfected his bootlegging skills but apparently learned the fine art of making moonshine whiskey.

And he met Oma Coleman, a tough, crafty, salty bootlegger who would later be called the "evil gypsy woman."

Oma, who died in 1966, would one day claim: "I taught the little SOB everything he knows. After that, he dropped me."

Although Pinkie was in and out of trouble during those days, before and after Prohibition, his booze-related shenanigans apparently landed him in prison only once.

"He gave his friends his assets when he went to prison," Gene Garrison said. "When he got out, he had a tremendous number of followers. He won a lot of loyalty out of that."

To cover his jailhouse tracks, Pinkie wrote his parents frequently, sending the letters from Huntsville to Sweetwater for relay to Glen Rose.

"He was only in three months," Jane Roden recalled, hinting at political hanky panky. "He wasn't supposed to have gone at all. It was supposed to have been fixed."

"Ma Ferguson was governor at the time, and she got him out. Ma was a business lady."

Oh?

"Oma Coleman was the one who came up with the money..."

When Prohibition was repealed in 1933, Pinkie went semi-legitimate, opening his first liquor store the following year in Big Spring, west of Sweetwater.

That's not to suggest that Texas was suddenly awash in legal whiskey.

At the time, vast stretches of West Texas were dry, and would remain so for years to come. Across thousands of square miles, Prohibition was not dead or even gravely wounded.

Those wanting to purchase legal whiskey often had to travel a hundred miles or more. Even today, large sections of the region remain dry except for scattered tiny and remote crossroads where beer and liquor are sold.

To label Pinkie a visionary or an entrepreneur would not be straining the truth; his actions speak for themselves. With West Texas ripe for the taking, he took.

The Big Spring store provided a facade of legitimacy and an early base for what would become a multi-million dollar enterprise, both legal and otherwise.

And West Texans always were a thirsty lot with a lusty affection for cold beer and good, bad or bootleg whiskey.

"Pinkie never considered bootlegging a crime," joked one of his old cronies. "He considered it a public service."

Pinkie roamed his kingdom endlessly, meeting people, mapping routes, scouting potential store sites and almost always befriending bankers and making loans or deposits.

Years later, nephew Frank Deaderick marveled at Pinkie's travels.

"There was a standing joke that you'd better eat when you could because you might not stop until the next day," he said. "He hauled me to Lubbock one day and we wound up in Abilene three days later. We had no change of clothes or anything.

"You never knew."

Legislators created the Texas Liquor Control Board in 1935 to regulate the industry and ride herd on the bootleggers, who were prospering in the wide open spaces of West Texas.

From his corner hotel suite in Big Spring, Pinkie used binoculars to keep an eye on the local LCB office down the street, notifying his runners when agents were in and out and on the prowl.

His gifts of holiday hams, turkeys, steaks and liquor would come later.

Dan McCarty, a weekly newspaper publisher in Glen Rose, would one day maintain that "Pinkie's clout with the LCB was almost mystical," but his spell was not universal.

"If he had an unfriendly sheriff," Garrison said, "he wouldn't drive through his county. But he would send in gifts to make friends."

Pinkie showed up one day in brother Bill's office and said, "I've got to find a way to drive from Big Spring to Lubbock without getting on a highway," a distance just over 100 miles.

In Bill's single engine airplane, Pinkie scouted out every dirt road between the cities, but could not figure a way to get around a small town.

"He finally found a rancher who gave him a key to his gate," Bill said.

Meanwhile, the good folks of Big Spring struck a surprise blow for temperance, voting the city dry while other cities were going wet. Pinkie was not pleased, though he learned a valuable lesson.

Never again would he be blinded by a political election, an episode that left him feeling more than a little vindictive.

"If it stays dry, I'll still be selling whiskey in Big Spring, you know that," Pinkie reportedly warned Police Chief Pete Green.

But lock, stock and barrel, Pinkie moved his budding liquor empire 60 miles west to Odessa and never looked back.

He would eventually reopen a Big Spring store when the town reversed its dry vote, but he had found a home in Odessa. Instinctively, Pinkie knew Odessa was his kind of town, young and brash and prone to wink at any law that might intrude on the good times.

It was a marriage made on the southern outskirts of heaven.

Odessa has a hard-earned, richly deserved reputation as a raucous, wide open desert oil town, distinctly blue collar and borderline crazy over its high school football teams.

Through boom and bust, its civic braintrust never surrendered its splendid sense of humor, even toying with the idea of a new city slogan: "Odessa is Crude."

Pinkie's press clippings indicate his empire kept pace with the city's saucy flavor and astonishing growth, which more than doubled between 1950 and 1960 to just under 100,000.

In the mid-1950s, the Texas House Crime Investigating Committee convened in Amarillo to look into bootlegging activities in West Texas, particularly Lubbock. Then the biggest and wettest dry town in Texas, Lubbock was a tempting 120 miles north of Pinkie's Odessa base.

State Rep. Waggoner Carr, a Lubbock Democrat destined for higher office and subsequent scandals, subpoenaed liquor store owners, operators, records and a significant number of liquor agents.

The Houston Post, in a series on bootlegging, reported:

"Testimony, telephone calls and other records showed beyond a doubt that a multi-million dollar syndicate, controlled by one Tom (Pinkie) Roden of Odessa, sold most of the liquor which ended up in Lubbock and other dry West Texas cities."

"A single store called The Farm near the Ector County line on the Odessa-Andrews highway sold $47,266 of liquor within three days after it opened. Its monthly sales thereafter ... ranged from $279,310 to $93,639, and never lower."

"And that for a country store 25 miles from a city."

In reality, the country oasis was not that remote but it most likely was a legal entity created for a nefarious purpose, namely to service a network of bootleggers.

"It was a fantastic store, sittin' out there in the boondocks," says Gabe West, who once ran the operation for Pinkie. "There wasn't nothing else out there."

"You'd have to see it to believe it."

The Amarillo testimony also revealed that 10 stores which Pinkie controlled "through a system of demand notes" grossed $8,788,711 in 1951 and 1952.

"A single Lubbock bootlegger bought whiskey at wholesale for $47,000 in 30 days from one of the 10 stores," the Post reported. Pinkie's unusual blend of legal and illegal whiskey dealing was a law enforcement nightmare.

"He guaranteed delivery," recalls John Sliney, a former Odessa newspaperman. "Abilene, Amarillo, Lubbock. If it didn't get there, you didn't pay."

Jerry Hall of Austin, another former newspaperman, attended Texas Tech in the Fifties and says Pinkie's whiskey fleet in Lubbock included false bottom cattle trucks, taxis and even a hearse.

"He pretty much froze out the opposition," Hall laughed.

Coming up: Pinkie plays politics like a violin--and a fiddle

Blocked field goal preserves win for Randall

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

Randall's Chris Cook broke through the Hereford line and blocked Richard Sanderson's 28-yard field goal attempt that would have won the game for the Whitefaces. Cook's block preserved a 26-25 win the Raiders Friday at Kimbrough Stadium in Canyon.

Hereford fell to 4-3 overall and 0-2 in District 1-4A. In gaining its first win over Hereford in four tries, Randall improved its record to 2-0 in district and 5-2 overall. They are headed for a district showdown next week with Pampa in a game which should determine the district champion.

After nearly 800 yards of total offense between Randall and Hereford, Friday's game came down to one pressure-packed field-goal try.

With regular place-kicker Ben Perry on crutches on the sideline after arthroscopic knee surgery this week, Sanderson was the choice to attempt the kick: a 28-yarder from the left hash mark with 44 seconds left in the game.

Several Randall players got into the backfield. Sanderson got the kick off, but Cook deflected the ball and it wobbled harmlessly into the left side of the end zone.

After the game, Sanderson didn't think it was blocked.

"No," Sanderson said. "I just got under it too far."

Hereford set up the field goal try with a magnificent drive which started at the Hereford 24, used 18 consecutive rushing plays and used up 8 1/2 minutes of clock. The drive included three third-down conversions and one fourth-down conversion.

The drive stalled when Sanderson, playing quarterback, fumbled on first down at the Randall 17, and Hereford recovered for no gain. Tailback Leo Brown, who carried 15 times on the drive, fought for six yards on the next two plays, though he was almost stopped for no-gains.

"I was trying hard," Brown said. "I knew our season could be riding on that drive right there. Everybody tried hard, we just came up empty."

The last two runs brought on a fourth-and-4 situation at the 11.

That brought out the kicking team.

Hereford coach Danny Haney said he had watched Sanderson kick field goals from that distance during pre-game warm-ups.

"He did his dead-level best," Haney said. "There's nobody I'd want more in the world than Richard in the clutch."

The game was a treat for anyone who loves offense: there was a lot of it, and one team ran and the other threw. Hereford totalled 396 yards, 347 of which was rushing. Randall had 389 yards, 316 through the air.

Hereford's Brown had 244 yards rushing, which gives him 1,064 through seven games.

Randall's quarterback, Brandon Barker, threw for all of his team's passing yards which gives him 1,679 for the year. He will likely retain his spot at second on the state Class 4A passing yardage list. His top receiver Friday was Anthony Benson, who caught 6 passes for 157 yards.

Each team showed top offensive form in its first possession. Hereford took the opening kickoff and, after a 19-yard return by Shawn Fogo, went 76 yards in 14 plays. Sanderson tried one pass and it was incomplete. Brown had a pair of 11-yard runs and a 5-yard run on fourth-and-3 at the Randall 36. Petey Colvin completed

Hereford defensive end Derek Mason (89) stops Randall tailback Billy Vives (22) before he gets going in Friday's game. The

Randall unleashed the antithesis of the Herd offense on their first play, with Barker hooking up with Benson for a 33-yard gain. A play later

Barker found Doug Richardson, his other favorite receiver, for 30 yards to the Hereford 4-yard line. Randall ran three times on the drive and netted four yards.

After Travis Vasquez dropped a pass in the end zone, Randall settled for a 21-yard field goal from Richard Morales. That made the score 7-3 in Hereford's favor with 3:05 left in the first quarter.

On this drive, which started on their own 15-yard line, Randall didn't even bother trying to run. Barker completed 4-of-6 for 90 yards (they were penalized five), including a 40-yarder to Benson. Fullback Travis Sims caught an 8-yard pass for the score, and Morales added the kick for a 10-7 Randall lead with 10:13 left in the second quarter.

Hereford came close to scoring on their next possession, but a Chad Sandoval bomb glanced off tight end Derek Mason's fingers in the end zone and the Herd gave the ball over on downs at the 24.

Herd lost its third straight game, this time 26-25 to Randall at Kimbrough Stadium in Canyon.

At that point, the Herd defense started getting pressure on Barker. In the rest of the half, the Herd registered four sacks and allowed four first downs.

Monroe Timberlake had one of the sacks and combined with Derek Mason on another. Chad Burns and Cody Whitfill each got to Barker on Randall's last possession of the half, with Whitfill's sack ending the half.

The Herd scored once more before halftime when Sanderson threw a perfect bomb to Kevin Kelso for a 49-yard touchdown with 2:13 left. The snap was high on the extra point try, and holder Kyle Hansen was tackled

Loss all but kills playoff chances

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Oh, well.

Lest you give up completely on Hereford's chances of playing an extra football game this year, let's get this out in the open to begin with.

The Herd still has a slight, small, mathematical, chance of getting into the playoffs.

However, Slim just went to the bus station to purchase a ticket. It's good for 21 days, and he could leave town at any time.

Hereford's chances for making the playoffs were still good even after losing to Pampa on Oct. 11. All the Herd had to do was win its last four games, and the Herd would be playing someone, anyone, in the playoffs.

After Friday's 26-25 loss to Randall at Kimbrough Memorial Stadium, the chances are, indeed, slim.

The loss dimmed an otherwise great offensive performance for the Herd. The Whitefaces piled up 396 yards (347 on the ground), with the lone pass completion a 49-yard pass from Richard Sanderson to Kevin Kelso for a touchdown that gave Hereford a 13-10 lead. Leo Brown, who had 244 yards on 40 carries, scored twice, including a tackledefying 58 yard run that gave the Herd a 25-13 lead.

Hereford coach Danny Haney expected an offensive show going in (Randall picked up 389 yards, including 316 in the air).

"I knew they had a good passing team, but I had no idea they could get that much on us," Haney said. "I thought with controlling the ball and everything we could win pretty handily. They did that stuff, executed well, caught the ball when they had to, and we couldn't score fast enough."

The Herd changed up its offensive somewhat, adding Petey Colvin to the backfield much of the game for a tandem-I set. Colvin, along with fullback Kyle Hansen, blocked much of the night for Brown, but each got their share of running. Colvin carried eight times for 44 yards and a touchdown, while Hansen had nine rushes for 79 yards.

Colvin, who had built up a little legend in sub-varsity play before this season, has seen a limited role on offense while starting in the defensive secondary. He was glad to get to carry the ball a little, and scored the Herd's first touchdown on a fourth-down run from the Randall 10.

"The touchdown felt good," Colvin said. "I figured it would make the team and everybody get up and rise to the occasion for what we had in store for us. Not getting to run the ball a lot this year, it felt real good."

Colvin went around the left corner and into the north end zone, then ran up the steep hill just outside the end zone for several yards. Colvin had a special purpose for running up the hill a little way.

"I figured the higher I got up the hill, the closer I could get to heaven so I could kiss the ball to my father," Colvin said. His dad passed away last year.

"That is what it's all about," Colvin said.

Kelso has also been one of the lesser-known offensive players for the Herd this season, but he staked the Whitefaces to a 13-10 halftime lead with a 49-yard pass from Richard Sanderson.

Kelso was lined up on the left side of the formation, near tight end Derek Mason. Both ran down the field; Kelso was supposed to go straight, he said, while Mason was to cut. Both ended up running the same pattern, but Sanderson hit Kelso for the touchdown.

"(He) (Sanderson) was supposed to throw it to Mason, but Derek ran the same route. Richard just read it and lobbed it up to me," Kelso said. "It felt really great to score. It was the best feeling."

That feeling, however, was subdued, as was everything else in the Herd locker room.

At the end, there were 44 seconds to play. Hereford had staged a ground-and-time-consuming drive from its own 22, with nine minutes left, to the Randall 11. Hereford converted three third downs and a fourth-and-one at the Randall 19.

The last minute of the drive wasn't pretty. Sanderson fumbled a snap on first down at the Raiders 17 but fell on the ball. Brown narrowly avoided a loss and picked up two yards, then stumbled forward for another four yards on third-and-8.

Hereford, facing fourth-and-4 at the Randall 11, called time out.

Haney thought about going for the first down, but opted to let Sanderson try the last-minute field goal from 28 yards out.

"I had watched Richard (during pre-game warmups), and Richard and I talked about it before the game," Haney said. "That was about what he was kicking from during pre-game, and we felt like we had as good a chance kicking the field goal as making the first down."

No. 2 Southlake Carroll burns Boyd

By MIKE DRAGO
Associated Press Writer

Southlake Carroll coach Bob Ledbetter knew his team was talented, but he didn't expect what happened Friday night.

The Dragons, ranked No. 2 in Class 3A, extended their regular-season unbeaten streak to 48 games in a 63-25 thrashing of No. 10 Boyd. Carroll piled up 452 yards, including 333 on the ground, in the victory before a crowd of 6,000.

Carroll returned only three starters, including one on offense and two on defense, from last year's state semifinalist, limiting expectations for this year's squad. The Dragons, who entered the season ranked seventh, now are 7-0.

"We're very young, and our kids are just going to get better and better," Ledbetter said. "But I don't think anybody would have predicted that type of score."

Carroll's defense aided the offensive explosion with five interceptions of Boyd quarterback Brian Lambert, who had been picked off only once before Friday.

Lambert tied the game 7-7 on an 81-yard touchdown pass to Greg Orr in the second quarter, but the Dragons scored 21 unanswered points for a 28-7 halftime lead.

the game open for Carroll with a 10-yard touchdown and a 37-yard score on an interception return.

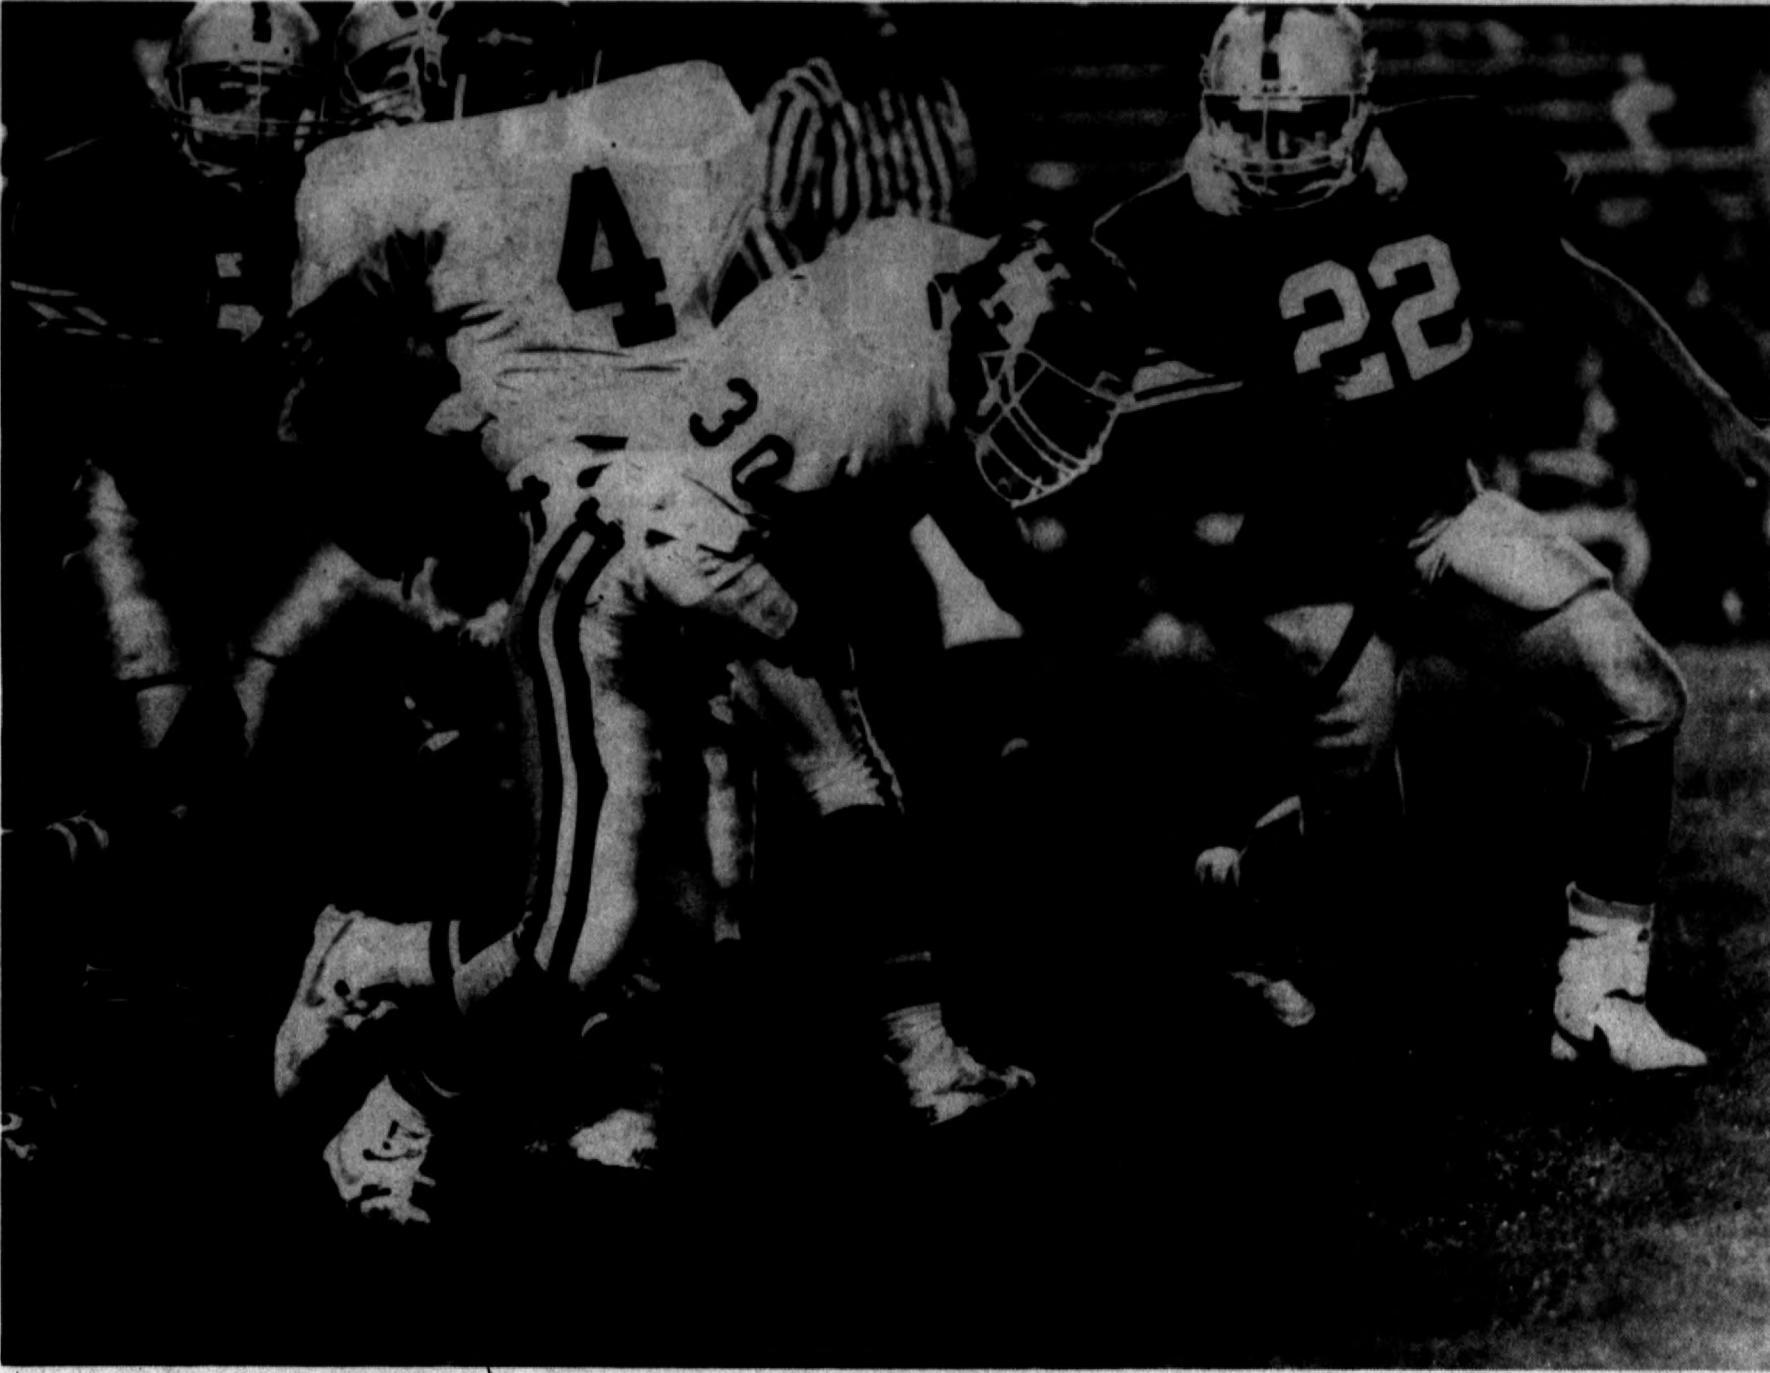

In Class 5A games Friday, No. 1 Arlington Lamar remained unbeaten with a 55-12 whipping of Burleson. No. 3 Odessa Permian crushed Abilene 56-7, and it was No. 4 Waco over Round Rock Westwood 49-22 and No. 5 San Antonio Marshall over San Antonio Jay 28-16.

No. 7 Beaumont West Brook routed Beaumont Jefferson 49-0, while No. 8 Aldine romped over Houston North Shore 51-6 and No. 9 Huntsville stomped Klein Forest 40-2.

In Class 4A, No. 1 Bastrop topped Buda Hays 31-14, and it was No. 2 Houston C.E. King over Channelview 42-7, No. 3 McKinney over Allen 28-0, No. 4 Waxahachie over Lancaster 42-7 and No. 5 Sulphur Springs over Liberty-Eylau 41-16.

No. 7 Austin Westlake beat Del Valle 42-6 and it was No. 8 Tomball over Magnolia 35-12 and No. 10 Wilmer-Hutchins over Kaufman 50-13. No. 6 El Campo was beaten by Bay City 14-12.

Farmersville, the No. 6 team in 2A, beat No. 2 Celina 35-28 in a mild upset.

Hansen heads for daylight

Hereford fullback Kyle Hansen (30) puts his head down and heads upfield as Randall's Billy Vivens (22) draws a bead on him. Blocking for Hansen is Herd receiver Clay Wallace (4). Hansen ran nine times for 79 yards Friday.

Series: underdogs in fashion

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - The World Series has a couple of party crashers this year.

The Atlanta Braves and Minnesota Twins have made being an underdog quite fashionable this fall, following in the footsteps of lovable losers who have turned into wonderful winners.

From worst-to-first-to-who's the very best. It's taking a little getting used to.

"This is what it's all about," said Atlanta's John Smoltz, who blanked Pittsburgh 4-0 in Game 7 of the National League playoffs Thursday night. "Year after year of losing makes it all that more special. The money is nice but it doesn't compare to the feeling I have now."

HERD

blocked, making the Hereford lead 19-13 with 5:59 left in the third.

The Herd defense bent--allowing Randall 51 yards down to the Hereford 16--but Mason sacked Barker on third-and-7 for a 14-yard loss. Randall went for it, but a covered Doug Richardson dropped the pass inside the 5-yard line.

Hereford took over at their own 30. On the fifth play, Brown a hole big enough for a 58-yard touchdown with 32 seconds left in the third. The pass for two failed, but Hereford had a 25-13 lead.

Randall came back in a hurry. They ran two plays: a 33-yard pass to Benson from Barker and a 37-yard run by Sims for the score as time ran out in the third quarter. Morales added another kick, and Hereford's lead was cut to five.

Next, the Raiders got the break they needed: a fumble recovery at the Hereford 26 after the Whitefaces had a mix-up in the four-back backfield. "I don't exactly know what happened," said Sandoval, who was in quarterback at the time.

"All three backs--four, including me--got mixed up on the play. It looked like a big clutter. I ran into (fullback) Hansen first, then into Petey (Colvin)."

The collision with Colvin knocked the ball loose and backwards to the Hereford 26, where Randall's Brad Dennis fell on it. Four plays later, tailback Billy Vivens ran two yards for the go-ahead score. Randall led 26-25 with 9:10 to go in the game. They tried a two-point conversion, but Mason tackled Barker as he was rolling out.

That led to Hereford's long drive and the blocked field goal.

"We played hard," Sandoval said. "We just came up short."

Cowboys face tough schedule

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) - After seven games, the Dallas Cowboys rested as Valley Ranch came alive with the sounds of playoff talk.

The next five weeks should determine just how good the third edition of Jimmy Johnson's boys can be.

The Cowboys coach is well-pleased with the 5-2 start, labeling it "ahead of schedule."

Last year Dallas started 3-4 and eventually finished 7-9, earning Johnson The Associated Press NFL Coach of the Year honors.

Among the Cowboys early victims were the New York Giants, defending world champions, and the Cincinnati Bengals, a playoff team last year.

Dallas lost 33-31 to unbeaten Washington in a wild Monday night game and were mauled 24-0 by Philadelphia in the only blowout.

"We are improved, maybe a little ahead of schedule where I thought we'd be," said Johnson. "We have a talented group of offensive players. With Emmitt Smith, Jay Novacek, Michael Irvin and Troy Aikman we've got a lot."

Dallas is off to its best start since 1986. The Cowboys haven't been in the playoffs since 1985 and fell one game short last year, losing to Atlanta in the regular season finale.

The Cowboys hit the strength of the schedule, starting Oct. 27 in a rough road that extends through Nov. 24.

Dallas is at Detroit, hosts Phoenix, then goes on the road again to Houston, the New York Giants, and the Redskins in RFK Stadium.

In fact, the next nine opponents of the Cowboys carry a 39-19 composite record going into Sunday's games.

"It's a grueling stretch," said Aikman. "It will show us a lot about ourselves."

Johnson said the Cowboys jump start has the team believing in itself.

"We've got a feeling of confidence about the upcoming weeks," Johnson said. "The break came at a good time. We've got some players beat up."

The most serious injuries for the Cowboys is Bill Bates' broken hand, but he was expected to play against the Lions.

Johnson said he is going to try to downplay the toughness of the schedule to his team.

"I've mentioned on a couple of different occasions about the difficulty of the schedule but I think it would be wrong if I emphasized that to the team," Johnson said. "I think it would be a real mistake for us to start looking down the schedule and say 'well, we have a better chance of winning than one or that one. Or, that one will be very difficult, or we'd better get prepared for a lot of road games.' The only thing right now is to get healthy and prepare for a very difficult game against Detroit in the Silverdome."

Johnson decided to give his team only a brief break. He permitted them three days off then ordered a return to practice.

"We had quite a few weeks off when I was coaching at the University of Miami and there was always a concern that you might get out of sync, especially if you're playing well and you didn't have any contact for a two-week period," Johnson said.

Oilers meet drowning Dolphins

By STEVEN WINE
AP Sports Writer

MIAMI (AP) - It was one of the worst defeats in coach Don Shula's career. The Miami Dolphins defense collapsed, and the offense needed a fourth-quarter touchdown to avert a shutout.

That describes last weekend's 42-7 loss at Kansas City. It also describes Miami's most recent game against Houston, a 39-7 loss in 1989.

The struggling Dolphins (3-4) and the stampeding Oilers (5-1) meet again Sunday at Joe Robbie Stadium. Another drubbing could be in the offing.

"I hope not," Dolphins receiver Jim Jensen said. "But they are pretty explosive. I think we have to score an awful lot of points."

Miami's first and most recent encounter with Houston's run-and-shoot attack was a dismal failure. Warren Moon completed 19 of 23 passes for 254 yards and two touchdowns, and the Oilers added 197 yards on the ground.

"Complete domination," Shula recalled.

"I remember getting beat for two long passes and a touchdown," said Miami cornerback J.B. Brown, then a rookie reserve and now a starter. "It was a rough day for the whole team and especially rough for me."

Can it happen again?

"Most definitely," Brown said. "There's always a danger of that, because they have four potent receivers who are quick and can run after they catch the ball."

Brown said Miami now has a better idea of how to defend against Houston - pressure Moon and force him to throw into coverage. But the game plan still must be hastily deployed.

"This is the problem anybody has that gets ready to play Houston," Shula said. "They're different, and you don't have a lot of time to work on them."

The Oilers lead the NFL in passing and have won half their games by three touchdowns or more. Moon says Houston and Miami both are better than two years ago.

"We've become a little more consistent, and we're a better defensive team," Moon said. "Miami has become a better running team - although they've had problems this year - and they've improved their defense immensely. They're a lot better against the run, taking away last week."

While Moon tries valiantly to make Miami sound like the Wash-ton Redskins, in truth, the team is reeling. Last weekend's loss at Kansas City was the Dolphins' worst since 1970, and a similar pasting Sunday could extinguish their already dimming playoff hopes.

"Everybody gets hammered every once in a while," linebacker E.J. Junior said. "We've got to turn things around, and I think we've got the people to do it."

The Oilers, off to their fastest start since 1975, aren't the best team to mount a turnaround against. This year they're even winning on the road, with victories at Cincinnati and, last week, at the New York Jets.

Miami's only wins have come against teams that are a combined 3-16.

"We haven't played well, I'm aware, against the strong teams," Shula said.

Despite lack of undefeated teams, Brock always puts on a good show

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - Jim "The Hoss" Brock got caught in a thick mix of traffic and crowds at the State Fair of Texas. He hadn't heard how the Baylor-Rice game was going.

The executive vice president of the Cotton Bowl almost inhaled one of his big cigars when he got the word in the press box during the Texas-Oklahoma game: Rice 20, No. 8 Baylor 17.

He just shook his head.

Brock knew there would be no national championship circus in the Cotton Bowl on New Year's Day. Once again he'd have a "Blemish Bowl" to sell. But he was undaunted.

"We'll have a good game anyway, Hoss," Brock said. "We'll have a good, solid champion. And, as usual, we'll have an exciting guest team."

It's true that the Hoss Fly can always put a package together. He's had Boston College, Miami, Notre Dame, Auburn, Ohio State, UCLA, and Tennessee in the Cotton Bowl in recent years and it's always been a fun game.

It's become a game of Heisman Trophy stars on display - Bo Jackson, Tim Brown and Doug Flutie.

Oh, maybe those darned Hurricanes from Miami got out of hand a little last year, taunting and teasing the Longhorns in a 46-3 rout.

But for the most part it's been a "good" game just like the Hoss said.

However, the point here is that it hasn't been a "great" game for all the national championship marbles.

You have to go back to 1983 and 1984 to find a Cotton Bowl game that had national championship repercussions.

Texas botched a punt in the last two minutes and fell to Georgia 10-9 in a 1984 Cotton Bowl that cost the unbeaten Longhorns the national title and eventually coach Fred Akers his job.

In the 1983 game, once-tied Southern Methodist decked Pittsburgh and Dan Marino 7-3 only to finish second nationally behind Penn State in the final AP poll.

This year it's like the little Jimmy Dickens song: "take an old cold tater and wait..."

No. 16 Baylor and No. 19 Texas A&M met in Waco on Saturday and no other SWC team was ranked in the Top 25. All SWC teams have met defeat at least once. The preseason favorite Houston Cougars have collapsed. The defending league champion Longhorns have been defeated twice.

The Aggies blew an 18-point lead to lose to Tulsa. Rice blew a big lead to lose to Iowa State. Arkansas lost to Mississippi. Texas Christian blew a 21-point lead to lose to Arkansas.

Texas Tech and Southern Methodist didn't have it.

You hear a lot of sad songs in the SWC this year.

The Cotton Bowl will not be a place for a team to come and try to win a national championship.

Florida State and Miami meet later in the season and the winner can name its ticket which will probably be the Orange Bowl against the Big Eight Conference representative. The Big Eight isn't exactly King Kong reincarnate this season and an Orange Bowl game would almost be a like a home game for the Seminoles or Hurricanes.

The best bet for the Cotton Bowl should be Notre Dame or maybe the Big Ten runnerup. And maybe Penn State.

Both the Big Ten and the Irish are big draws for national television. With a crowded New Year's Day television menu, name teams are a must for Brock and his Cotton Bowl cohorts.

Brock has to play the hand he's been dealt. This year it wasn't a Royal Flush.

He just hopes he can get a full house.

Kicks Count
NEW YORK (AP) - The kicking game was a major factor in the 20-19 Super Bowl victory for the New York Giants over the Buffalo Bills in January of this year.

Not only did the missed field goal by Buffalo's Scott Norwood give the Giants their slim win but the New York club also had two successful three-pointers by Matt Bahr to one for Norwood.

The Kansas City Chiefs led the NFL in team sacks of quarterbacks with 60 in 1990.

Jim Marshall established a record in the NFL with 282 consecutive games for Cleveland and Minnesota.

TRY CONTACTS AGAIN

Many years ago, when the only contact lenses available were big and hard, some people who tried to wear them never quite got the hang of it, and went back to wearing eyeglasses. If you're one of those people -- and you still don't like to wear glasses all the time -- you owe it to yourself to try the new generation of contact lenses. Soft lenses are comfortable for most people and able to correct most visual conditions. Soft lenses fit properly over the cornea. They absorb the natural tear fluid, bending to fit the natural curve of the eye. Your optometrist has the expertise to choose the just-right shape for your eyes. Today's lenses offer many more options than the old ones. Discuss with your eye professional whether extended-wear or disposable lenses are right for you. You can even change the color of your eyes, if you want to, by using tinted contacts.

School for Deaf lets deaf kids play football

By TRAVIS TINGLE

The San Antonio Light

AUSTIN (AP) - Every week during the high school football season, Cathy Blasingame hears for those who cannot.

As athletic department secretary for the Texas School for the Deaf, Blasingame has learned enough about football to jot down vital scouting information over the telephone.

"So how far do their kickoffs go?" she asks someone who has seen Texas Military Institute, the Rangers' homecoming foe from San Antonio. "How's their coverage?"

TSD head coach Walt Camenisch gets to see most of the Rangers' future opponents in person. But he has come to trust Blasingame's weekly reports. Camenisch hates the weekly reports. Camenisch hates to imagine life on the sideline without her.

"She hears what opposing coaches and players are saying," said Camenisch, who, like his four assistant coaches, is deaf. "And she talks to the officials for us, too."

The presence of an on-field interpreter with more than 35 years of sign-language experience makes TSD football games unique, not different. The barriers its deaf students must overcome in the hearing world can be worked around once they strap on a helmet and shoulder pads.

"People like to try to push deaf people away, and say that we can't do anything," says quarterback T.J. Banzer, 5-foot-7, 130 pounds. "They find out when they play us that we do have skills."

On a recent Monday, the Rangers crammed elbow-to-elbow inside a small, darkened room to watch a videotape of their 24-22 loss to Navarro. The critiquing banter between coaches and players differs only in its lack of coherent sound.

Camenisch signs to a player: "You were holding there?"

"Yeah, I was," the player responds, his head hanging.

"We told you you need to pay attention to that!" snaps Camenisch.

Camenisch runs the play back in slow motion to the point that everyone can see the yellow flag hit the player's leg. Luis Reyes, a senior wide receiver-linebacker, believes such a peg is a referee's way of making sure a deaf player knows he was penalized.

"Other teams call us names. They pull dirty tricks on us," said Reyes, who contracted an ear infection as a 1-year-old which caused his deafness. "We learn to ignore all that. But sometimes I think we get more penalties called on us because we're deaf. They think we make more mistakes than hearing people do."

Because of the various levels of hearing loss among its players, TSD uses a portable bass drum to count off its offensive cadence.

When Camenisch signs in the play to Banzer, Banzer relays it to the other players in the huddle along with a snap count. The play begins when the players feel the drum's vibration and fire out on beat one, two, three, etc. One of the Rangers' student managers mans and rolls the drum along the sideline.

The drum method evolved at Gallaudet University in Washington, D.C., the only liberal arts college for the deaf in the world. The Bison are also credited with inventing the huddle in the 1890s to prevent defenses from stealing signs from the quarterback.

"I'm completely deaf, profoundly deaf," said senior fullback Tom Koch, sporting one of TSD's "WE CAN!" T-shirts. "I don't hear anything. I don't even hear the drum. I just concentrate on the ball, and when it goes, I run."

Koch is not alone. Depending on the degree of decibel loss, some TSD players, who prefer to be labeled deaf rather than "hearing impaired," can pick up more sound than others. Some are able to benefit from hearing aids. Depending on when their hearing was lost, some can accentuate their sign language with decipherable speech.

On the field, a keen sense of sight is a deaf player's biggest ally. His eyes are always glued to the location of the football.

"In some ways, I think when hearing people play football, they cheat," said

Koch. "And why I say that is when we run a reverse against somebody, their head coach yells, 'Look! Look! Reverse! Reverse!' and all of his players react."

"Our coach can't do that. We have to read everything and keep looking at the ball to know where the play is going. We can't let that ball out of our sight."

Some teams complain to officials that TSD players are guilty of too many late hits because they cannot hear the whistle blow. That reputation, warranted or not, makes scheduling difficult at times.

"There are some schools that are afraid to play us," said Camenisch, a native of Chesnut Hill, Pa., who played tackle for Gallaudet during the early 1970s. "We don't always stop because we can't hear the whistle. We don't try to hit people late, but sometimes we get penalized for that."

"I was out on the field during a scrimmage once and there was a really hard hit. The kid had a fractured leg, and it looked terrible. Our kids don't hear the bones break. That kid could hear it pop, and we couldn't."

All the trappings of your typical football coach's office are here at TSD. On one wall, Camenisch has hung a "NO PAIN. NO GAIN." plaque. A huge chalkboard on an adjacent wall is full of X's and O's.

There are only a few things that give Camenisch's deafness away. A copy of "Deaf Sports Review" lays among a pile of magazines and rustic trophies from two of TSD's seven national deaf-school championship (1947, 1957) teams are proudly displayed on top of a filing cabinet.

"Most people know that we can play tough," said Camenisch, who is 47-36 overall, including two national deaf-school championships in 1986 and '88. "But whenever we play new schools for the first time, they don't think we can do it. It takes them awhile to realize that we can compete like a normal school. We just can't hear."

For the moment, the Rangers just can't win.

TSD, which houses many of its 134 high-school students on campus, is 0-5 going in against TMI. It is the Rangers' first district game in the Texas Association of Private and Parochial Schools.

Depth is the main problem. There are only 20 players on TSD's varsity, 14 on the junior varsity. Camenisch had over twice that many (45) on the varsity as recently as 1986. But the school's enrollment, about 400 total in kindergarten through 12th grade, has dwindled over the last few years.

When TAPPS realigns again after this season, the Rangers are hoping to drop in class from 3A to 2A. As a 3A school, TSD endured one of the state's longest losing streaks, 32 games from 1978-81.

"That wasn't me," said Camenisch, waving his hands in front of himself. "But now it looks like (losing is) catching up to me. We were 1-9 last year. I think we should at least win two of our last few games, though."

TSD was actually established in 1856 as the "Texas School for the Deaf and Dumb." The stereotyped part was ultimately dropped in 1910.

Nicknamed the Roses, from the last name of its superintendent, TSD began playing football in 1888. The state-supported school went through two other official nicknames, Lone Stars (1910-20) and Silents (1921-52), before changing to Rangers for good in 1953.

TSD has a rich football tradition. Part of its lore centers around the school's 15-0 win over Texas A&M in 1902. The Rangers even like to brag about the narrow 17-0 loss to the University of Texas in 1903.

Their current exploits aren't nearly as noble. After the loss to Navarro on the road, TSD almost wound up sleeping on the road.

TSD's team bus had a broken fan belt and one of the assistant coaches, Donald Pekar, had to borrow a replacement from Navarro to make the repair. Obviously, there was no better time to have the school's auto-mechanics teacher coaching football.

Some TSD students take courses at public high schools for the academic challenge. But most have rejected that route. Deaf students enjoy the comfortable learning setting offered by TSD in the heart of downtown Austin.

"We have many students that transfer here from main-streaming schools, and they love it," said Camenisch, who has a deaf wife, Franna, who teaches at TSD, and two deaf daughters enrolled there. "There are no communication barriers for them here. Everyone here is able to sign. That means they can participate not just in sports, but in drama and vocational programs that aren't available to them in a main-streaming school."

Eventually, though, Reyes says the deaf must learn to function among the hearing. TSD is already forming a bridge to its students through athletics.

"To me, I believe I should adjust to the hearing world. Because that's where I'm going to be when I leave here," said Reyes. "Some of my friends really don't want to be a part of the hearing world. But I've told them it's better because hearing people help you improve yourself."

"They help you with socialization, with knowledge. They help you learn worldly things. I think it's a wonderful experience to be in both worlds."

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) - "Iron Man" is a term used often but how about "Iron Woman"?

Courtney Hankes, the only pitcher on the University of North Carolina, Charlotte, softball team qualifies for the title.

On April 6, this year, she pitched 41 innings in six games, the first starting at 10 a.m., the last ending at 12:30 the next morning. She had a 4-2 record for the six games.

NEW YORK (AP) - Muhammad Ali boxed under his original name of Cassius Marcellus Clay in the Rome Olympics in 1960.

The 18-year-old fighter was impressive in winning the gold medal in the 178-pound division. He won three preliminary bouts and easily beat Zbigniew in the championship match.

The young man from Louisville was so proud of his medal that he did not take it off for 48 hours.

Explanations given for, against 13 amendments

Thirteen proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution will be submitted for voter approval on Tuesday, Nov. 5.

The staff of the Texas Legislative Council has prepared an analysis of the amendments, which is printed below. Each amendment is explained in condensed form and arguments are listed for and against the proposal:

AMENDMENT NO. 1

The constitutional amendment allowing a home-rule city with a population of 5,000 or less to amend its charter by popular vote.

EXPLANATION: Under a strict reading of current law, a home-rule city loses the authority to amend its charter if the city's population decreases to 5,000 or less. In such a case, the charter must be amended by an act of the legislature. The proposed amendment authorizes a home-rule city to amend its charter regardless of the city's population.

ARGUMENTS FOR: There are currently 36 home-rule cities with populations of 5,000 or less, and many of them have been operating for decades. These cities should not be prevented from amending their charters simply because their populations have decreased to 5,000 or less.

ARGUMENTS AGAINST: The amendment will not go far enough, since it will remove the restriction regarding the amendment of a charter but will fail to remove the population restriction regarding the adoption of a charter. Such restrictions should be removed.

AMENDMENT NO. 2

The constitutional amendment mandating the repayment to the Texas Department of Transportation of monies expended to assist the Texas Turnpike Authority in the construction, maintenance, and operation of turnpikes, toll roads, and toll bridges.

EXPLANATION: The proposed amendment permits the legislature to authorize the Texas Department of Transportation to allocate funds to the Texas Turnpike Authority for the construction of turnpikes, toll roads, or toll bridges. If the money comes from the state highway fund, the money must be repaid from tolls or other turnpike revenue.

ARGUMENTS FOR: The amendment will allow critical metropolitan transportation needs to be met more efficiently, since turnpikes often can be built to the same standards and more quickly than freeways using federal funds. Since toll facilities are usually built in high-traffic areas, revenues can be expected to repay their cost and thereby reduce competition for remaining state highway money. In addition, the Texas Turnpike Authority can earn a better bond rating if the state provides money for turnpikes. The higher bond rating will save the state money that otherwise would be paid out in higher interest rates. Finally, passage of the amendment will make it easier for Texas to receive federal funds for turnpike projects, since the Texas Department of Transportation will become the designated agency to receive federal funds as required by federal law.

ARGUMENTS AGAINST: Texans should not have to support toll roads with tax dollars, since toll roads should be self-supporting. Also, toll facilities based on projected growth may be unprofitable if growth does not occur or the economy enters a downturn. This could result in burdensome state debt. In addition, the amendment may result in a proliferation of toll roads, further burdening Texans who already pay taxes to support a state highway system. Toll charges will particularly strain the budgets of persons with limited incomes.

AMENDMENT NO. 3

The constitutional amendment to authorize the legislature to further implement and enhance the administration of veterans' housing assistance and land programs and to expand the investment authority of the Veterans' Land Board.

EXPLANATION: The constitution currently restricts investments of proceeds of bonds under veterans' housing assistance and land programs to investments in bonds and obligations of the United States. The proposed amendment delegates to the legislature the responsibility for authorizing by law the types of investments for proceeds of bonds issued under the programs while those proceeds are held by the state. The amendment also makes it clear that the legislature has full power to implement the programs authorized by the constitution.

ARGUMENTS FOR: The amendment will result in an increase in investment income by allowing bond proceeds to be invested in instruments with higher yields than those of the federal government. In addition, it will allow for more investment flexibility and will decrease the need for additional constitutional amendments.

ARGUMENTS AGAINST: Eliminating the requirement that the bond proceeds be invested in bonds and obligations of the federal government may create an opportunity for more risky investments, whereas investing in federal government bonds and obligations is good public policy and should be preserved as a constitutional requirement.

AMENDMENT NO. 4

The constitutional amendment authorizing the issuance of up to $1.1 billion in general obligation bonds for acquiring, constructing, or equipping new prisons or other punishment facilities to confine criminals, mental health and mental retardation institutions, and youth corrections institutions, for major repair or renovation of existing facilities of those institutions, and for the acquisition of, major repair to, or renovation of other facilities for use as state prisons or other punishment facilities.

EXPLANATION: The current facilities of the Texas prison system, youth corrections institutions, and mental health and mental retardation institutions are below current needs and projections of future needs. The lack of facilities and unsuitable facilities have resulted in the state being monitored by federal courts since 1974 and possibly being in contempt of current federal court orders. In addition, the lack of prison facilities has created a backlog of convicted felons in county jails, causing an overcrowding crisis in many of those jails.

ARGUMENTS FOR: The amendment will make it possible for the state to comply with federal court orders. Also, the use of bonds to finance the improvement or construction of facilities will reduce the amount of general revenue spending for the current fiscal biennium. Finally, the bond proceeds will help the state to meet its obligation to provide adequate facilities for inmates and persons with mental retardation and to devote more facilities for persons whose crimes are related to substance abuse.

ARGUMENTS AGAINST: Overreliance on bonded indebtedness may lead to financial problems in the future and may further strain the credit of the state. Also, the interest that the state must pay on the proposed bonds will increase the revenue responsibilities of the state at a time when it is already experiencing serious financial difficulties. Finally, recent and proposed reforms could reduce the need for expanded facilities, and the state should wait to determine the effect of the reforms it has enacted before incurring additional debt.

AMENDMENT NO. 5

The constitutional amendment authorizing the exemption from ad valorem taxes of certain property in an enterprise zone.

EXPLANATION: The proposed amendment allows certain taxing jurisdictions to exempt qualified businesses located in enterprise zones from paying property taxes on merchandise that is stored or processed in the zone and transported from the state within 175 days.

ARGUMENTS FOR: The amendment will help revitalize economically depressed areas by allowing jurisdictions to grant tax breaks on merchandise to certain qualifying businesses. Although a current provision in the constitution permits a similar exemption (the "freesport" exemption), it requires that all businesses within a taxing jurisdiction receive the exemption. As a result, some jurisdictions do not grant the exemption as it could significantly reduce their tax base. However, the limited size of enterprise zones, as provided in the amendment, will prevent such a reduction of the tax base. Also, the amendment will enable jurisdictions in economically depressed areas that are currently unable to grant such tax exemptions on merchandise to do so, thus improving their ability to attract business investment that is being lost to other states and other Texas jurisdictions that can afford to grant the existing comprehensive exemption.

ARGUMENTS AGAINST: The amendment will create an unequal distribution of the tax burden within a taxing jurisdiction by granting tax exemptions to certain businesses located in enterprise zones but not to those located outside such zones and it will necessitate an increase in the property tax rate to compensate for lost revenues. Furthermore, additional tax exemptions are unnecessary since businesses in enterprise zones currently receive other kinds of tax breaks and special considerations, and granting more exemptions may impair a business's ability to compete if the existing privileges are removed, causing further economic harm to the area. Also, the amendment will allow exemptions for items not exempted under current law, such as oil and gas, that may benefit businesses qualifying for exemptions under the amendment at the expense of businesses granted exemptions under existing law. In some cases the amendment will be unfair to nonqualifying businesses, and in other cases it will be unnecessary and will duplicate existing law.

The Victoria water lily, found in the Amazon region of South America, is large enough to support the weight of three men without sinking.

AMENDMENT NO. 6

The constitutional amendment creating the Texas Ethics Commission and authorizing the commission to recommend the salary for members of the legislature and the lieutenant governor, subject to voter approval, and to set the per diem for those officials, subject to a

EXPLANATION: The proposed amendment creates a bipartisan state agency composed of four members appointed by the governor, two members appointed by the speaker of the house, and two members appointed by the lieutenant governor. The commission is authorized to recommend the salary of members of the legislature and the lieutenant governor, subject to voter approval, and to set their per diem allowance in an amount not to exceed the amount set by federal law as a deduction from federal income taxes for living expenses incurred by a legislator in connection with legislative business.

ARGUMENTS FOR: Creating an ethics commission with the authority to investigate and respond to allegations of misconduct will bolster public confidence in elected officials by providing an accessible governmental entity that can not only punish but also deter unethical conduct. Also, creating an ethics commission with advisory powers will increase compliance with the law, since public servants will have access to expert opinion that can guide specific situations. Finally, allowing the commission to recommend legislative salaries subject to voter approval will facilitate the goal of having salaries accurately reflect current economic conditions while also retaining the voters' control over the compensation of their elected officials.

ARGUMENTS AGAINST: The amendment will require that members of the commission be selected from lists provided by the legislature, thus jeopardizing the independence and credibility of the commission. Also, commission members will be required to be drawn from the two major political parties, which is likely to result in a commission that handles many issues. In addition, a salary increase is not needed, since legislators already receive other benefits, including up to $85 per day for legislative expenses. Moreover, modest compensation for legislators continues the Texas tradition of discouraging the service of professional politicians. Finally, voters rejected a proposed increase in legislative salaries less than two years ago, and linking the creation of the commission to a salary increase is an attempt to obtain a constitutional amendment that the voters obviously do not want.

AMENDMENTSAMENDMENT NO. 7

The constitutional amendment to allow the board of trustees of a statewide public retirement system to invest funds of the system in a manner that the board considers prudent.

EXPLANATION: Under current law, investments of statewide public retirement systems are restricted to "such securities as the board may consider prudent." The attorney general has stated that the term "securities" does not include direct investments in real estate. The proposed amendment removes the constitutional restriction on real estate investments while holding a retirement system board of directors to an established standard of prudence subject to additional legislative restrictions.

ARGUMENTS FOR: Investments in real estate and other direct investments will help diversify investment portfolios, increase investment returns, and guard against downturns in the stock and bond markets. Also, other state funds have been devoted to such direct investments and have not encountered investment problems. Finally, the legislature has shown its confidence in the standard of prudence imposed on retirement system investments and may impose further restrictions by statute if necessary.

ARGUMENTS AGAINST: Real estate investments are unduly speculative, and investment managers should not be allowed to take risks with pension funds. Also, many private investors, banks, and savings and loan institutions have gone bankrupt or failed because of bad real estate investments, and easing the troubles of property owners trying to sell their real estate is not a proper function of the state retirement systems. Finally, pension funds in other states have lost money in leveraged-buyout funds run by firms that have destroyed health companies through hostile takeovers, and fund trustees should not be permitted to be involved in such activities.

AMENDMENT NO. 8

The constitutional amendment authorizing voters of this state to consider state debt questions in the form of ballot propositions that must clearly describe the amounts, purposes, and source of payment of the debt only after approval of the propositions by a two-thirds vote of each house of the legislature.

EXPLANATION: The proposed amendment authorizes the legislature to create state debt through a proposal to the voters for approval rather than by constitutional amendment. A proposition election on creating state debt will be authorized by a joint resolution requiring at least two-thirds approval of the membership of each house of the legislature and may be approved during a regular session, or in a special session if designated in the governor's call. The election will be held on any date with adequate notice, and the ballot proposal will be required to describe the amount, purpose, and repayment source of the debt. To pass, the proposition will require approval of a majority of the voters.

ARGUMENTS FOR: The proposition process will require the same legislative and voter approval to create state debt as the current constitutional process, but will provide voters with more information as to the amount and method of repayment of debt than is currently available. The need to add further detailed bond provisions to the constitution will also be eliminated.

ARGUMENTS AGAINST: Disclosing additional information about the nature of state debt can be achieved without eliminating the current constitutional amendment process. Authorization of state debt is an important matter that merits amending the constitution through a process that also records the authorization for posterity. If authorization of debt by proposition is approved, a constitutional debt ceiling should be established to maintain a restraint on state debt.

AMENDMENT NO. 9

The constitutional amendment authorizing the commissioner of the General Land Office to issue patents for certain public free school fund land held in good faith under color of title for at least 50 years.

EXPLANATION: The proposed amendment allows qualified landholders who, in good faith, purchased land dedicated to the public free school fund to obtain title from the General Land Office to those lands. To qualify, a landholder will be required to file an application before January 1, 1993, and prove that the land was acquired without knowledge that the title was defective. The landholder will also be required to establish that he, or the prior owner, has held a recorded deed to the land for at least 50 years as of January 1, 1993, and that all taxes on it have been paid. Certain lands, including beach land and state-owned land producing under a mineral lease, will be excluded from the amendment provisions.

ARGUMENTS FOR: The individuals who will be aided by this amendment purchased the land in good faith and paid taxes on the land for many years. The amendment will provide a way to correct an inequitable situation. The amendment's conditions for obtaining title will prevent unworthy applicants from receiving titles.

ARGUMENTS AGAINST: The constitution requires that the state be compensated for the transfer of lands dedicated to a constitutional fund. The amendment will effectively give away land dedicated to the permanent school fund to resolve the title problem of these individuals. In addition, the amendment discriminates unfairly by establishing rigid requirements that exclude landholders who may be just as worthy of relief.

AMENDMENT NO. 10

The constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to exempt from ad valorem taxes certain property of a nonprofit corporation that supplies water or provides wastewater service.

EXPLANATION: The proposed amendment exempts property that is owned by a nonprofit water supply corporation or a nonprofit wastewater service corporation from property taxes. The exempted property must be reasonably necessary to supply water or wastewater service, and the corporation must provide for the transfer of these assets to another nonprofit water supply or wastewater service corporation upon its dissolution.

ARGUMENTS FOR: Such corporations provide a vital service to areas to the state that would not otherwise be served. Exemption from property taxation will encourage the formation of these corporations and spur development of water resources and wastewater services, the latter helping to reduce nonpoint source pollution. In addition, these corporations are similar to public water and wastewater utilities and should enjoy the same property tax exemption. Also, such corporations often use miles of pipeline to serve their customers and taking the pipe only increases the costs to consumers.

ARGUMENTS AGAINST: Exemption from property taxes will benefit nonprofit water supply and wastewater service corporations at the expense of competing water supply and wastewater service corporations that operate for profit. Also, voters have twice rejected constitutional amendments exempting nonprofit water supply and wastewater service corporations from property taxes. Finally, due to costs of government and decreasing revenues, the state currently cannot afford to grant special tax breaks.

AMENDMENT NO. 11

The constitutional amendment authorizing a state lottery.

EXPLANATION: The proposed amendment permits the legislature to authorize the state to operate lotteries and to contract with one or more legal entities to operate lotteries on behalf of the state. The amendment specifically provides that all or part of the operation of the lotteries may be delegated to private firms.

ARGUMENTS FOR: The lottery will generate an estimated $500 million in net revenue each year, and without the lottery, this revenue will have to be generated through tax increases or new taxes. Also, the lottery will be self-supporting once it is fully operational. In addition, the lottery will stimulate the Texas economy; lottery supplies could be produced in Texas; sales agents may see an increase in income and possibly increase in employment; lottery winners will spend their winnings on items they otherwise would not buy; and some of the money spent in other states' lotteries may be spent in Texas. Finally, the lottery may attract people who otherwise will gamble illegally, thereby increasing the economic benefit to the state and discouraging organized criminal gambling by reducing its profitability.

ARGUMENTS AGAINST: The revenue to be gained from a lottery will be a relatively small part of the state's budgetary needs and will not prevent future tax increases. The experience of other states proves that lottery revenue is unstable and is not generally distributed evenly throughout the state. The lottery is an inefficient way to raise money, since less than half the money paid for lottery tickets will benefit the state while 99 percent of money paid in state taxes benefits the state. Moreover, the state may experience a drop in sales tax revenue as a result of the lottery, since money spent on lottery tickets otherwise would have been spent on taxable items. Finally, a lottery will compete with other forms of legalized gambling, possibly damaging these industries and organizations and also reducing tax collections.

AMENDMENT NO. 12

The constitutional amendment to increase from 20 percent to 50 percent the percentage of Texas water development bonds previously authorized by Texas voters that may be issued for economically distressed areas.

EXPLANATION: In November 1989, voters approved $500 million in water development bonds and authorized the legislature to provide by law for subsidized loans and grants from the bond proceeds, in an amount not to exceed 20 percent of the total authorized, to provide water and wastewater facilities to the "colonias" along the Rio Grande. This amount provides water services for an estimated 50,000 out of 200,000 affected individuals. The proposed amendment increases from 20 percent to 50 percent (from $100 million to $250 million) the percentage of water development bonds that may be allocated for this purpose.

ARGUMENTS FOR: The amendment will provide desperately needed water services without increasing the state's bonded indebtedness or detracting from water development programs elsewhere in the state. The additional funding will greatly enhance efforts to solve major health problems in affected areas in an economical and efficient manner. Finally, colonias residents are deserving of support since the problem arises because of unscrupulous developers who promised but did not deliver water services to these areas. Residents have tried to solve their own problems but lack the tax base needed to support repayment of local bonds. However, residents who receive financial assistance are required to repay as much of their loans as possible, and they have an excellent record of repayment.

ARGUMENTS AGAINST: The proposed amendment could undermine the "pay-as-you-go" nature of the current water development program if recipients of subsidized loans are unable to repay the full amount and could require that state funds be used to make up the difference. Also, the use of bond capacity for the colonias will increase the likelihood of other constitutional amendments being sought to replace those proceeds for the benefit of other projects. In addition, colonias are a local problem that should be dealt with at the local level through municipal utility districts or some other means of local financing. Finally, improved conditions in the colonias may result in population growth in those areas and increased demands for other state services by people unable to pay for them.

AMENDMENT NO. 13

The constitutional amendment providing for the issuance of general obligation bonds not to exceed $300,000,000 to continue existing programs to provide educational loans to students, with repayments of student loans applied toward retirement of the bonds.

EXPLANATION: The proposed amendment permits the legislature to authorize the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board to provide for, issue, and sell general obligation bonds not to exceed $300 million. The revenue raised will be used to support the state's student loan program—the Hinson-Hazelwood College Student Loan Program—as provided in the Texas Constitution, and funds from the repayment of the student loans will be applied to retire the bonds. The annual volume of loans under this program has increased from $12 million in 1986 to almost $80 million in 1990. Without additional money to finance the loan program, it will run out of funds by the end of March 1992.

ARGUMENTS FOR: As the costs of a college education continue to increase and federal financial aid to students is likely to decrease, it is imperative that the state support programs that assist students in paying for an education. Also, the economic development of Texas is enhanced by a well-educated citizenry, and the proposed issuance of general obligation bonds will promote college attendance and ultimately contribute to the state's economy.

ARGUMENTS AGAINST: The issuance of more general obligation bonds will only further strain the credit of the state while other private, state, and federal financial assistance programs are available to pay for college education. Also, the system of loan financing to students has changed substantially over the years, and it is no longer cost effective for the state to authorize more bonds to support the Hinson-Hazelwood College Student Loan Program.

Historical Black house provides enjoyment

By DANEE' WILSON
Lifestyles Editor

The E.B. Black House, located at 508 W. Third, unfolds many of the mysteries of early life in Deaf Smith County. The beautiful, tranquil home is open for the public's enjoyment, and sports one of the most striking gardens in the county.

E.B. Black moved to the county in 1901 from Cleburne. He owned a furniture store and a funeral parlor and became a prosperous merchant and rancher.

The Black family had the Victorian home built in 1909 with the idea of hosting many parties.

"It is my understanding the Blacks loved to entertain," said Deaf Smith County Museum Director Donna Brockman. "They had a spacious dining room to accommodate dinner guests."

The Black home is filled with treasures original to the home and extras of the era donated to the museum.

Door and fireplace frames are mahogany. The fireplace in the parlor features Ionic columns and tile imported from France. An almost identical fireplace located in the downstairs bedroom, known as Aunt Tish's, features Corinthian columns.

When the home was built, it came complete with electricity, but the fireplaces were coal burning until the late 1920s when they were converted to gas.

Many of the pieces of furniture were original to the home. The crystal, china and cabinet in the dining room belonged to the Black family. Hanging on one wall are the baby curls of the Black's son, Jim.

One of the many beautiful pieces in the home is a Kaneb piano, bought by the museum for the Black house. The Kaneb brand of piano is featured at the San Francisco and Metropolitan Opera houses.

Some of the more interesting features are the baby's room located directly off the Black's bedroom (the room features the original Black family wicker baby bed), the bedroom shared by the girls and the size of the closet (about a 3'x2') and recently restored upstairs bathroom.

The beauty of the home is not limited to the inside. The Deaf Smith County Historical Society Garden Committee members have spent many long hours designing the garden, planting bulbs and in general upkeep.

The garden committee took over the grounds in 1980. Sue James of the historical society designed the gardens and Ruth McBride, also of the society, designed the gazebo.

The gazebo features a glass weather vane, and ginger bread patterns and short rows that belonged to Aunt Tish. The stained glass on the gazebo represents the seasons and directions.

An English theme, keeping with the Victorian home, was used when designing the garden.

"English gardens are planted so that they are in bloom nine months out of the year," said garden committee members Mary Zinser. "The only time this garden isn't in bloom is the winter."

Each season 1,500 new bulbs are planted in the garden to allow full color.

"Bulbs are planted to draw attention to the flowers," said Zinser. "We want Hereford people to be able to come here and enjoy the flowers and a peaceful afternoon."

During the past year, the Black house has been host to 25 weddings and over one-third have been in the garden area, said Zinser.

Many people and school groups visit the Black house each year. Everything from weddings to style shows to intimate candlelight dinners are held in the Black house.

To reserve the Black house a reservation made in advance is required. There is a $50 deposit for any use. Weddings and receptions are $50, bridal and baby showers cost $35. For other occasions, costs vary from $35 to $50 depending on the set up.

In 1978, the house was entered in the national register of historic places.

After the death of E.B. Black, the home was willed to his oldest son, Jim and his wife Pruda. After Jim's passing, Pruda gave the home to the county.

She wrote in the deed, "I grant, give and convey for and in consideration of the gratitude respect and love I have for the citizens of Deaf Smith County."

Thank You

May I take this method of expressing my sincere thanks to my family, friends, and the nurses and doctors at the hospital for all of the courtesy, love and concern, which I received when I was in the hospital recently.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: Your column about the danger of squeezing pimples in the T-zone brought back a memory of an event about 60 years ago. The man next door was my father's age, and suddenly, he was dead.

I remember the discussion of the cause of his death seemed to revolve around the fact he had pulled a hair or a mole from inside his nostril, and it became infected.

At the time I realized that, if that can happen, how frail life is. I have since learned that the frailty of life is closely associated with the law of probability.

DEAR READER: The T-zone, which includes the area around the eyes and nose, is an especially vulnerable area. Venous blood drains directly into large venous lakes in the brain. An infection in that area can quickly spread to the brain with disastrous consequences.

In the early 1930s, antibiotics did not exist, and such an infection was almost always fatal. While every pimple that is squeezed in this area is not likely to cause such a complication, the risk is there. Infections of this area of the face and nose should always be treated with adequate antibiotic therapy.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

The house was decorated in burgundy, navy and emerald. The serving table was covered with an antique white European cutwork linen tablecloth.

Arts, crafts festival to be held Saturday

The Littlefield Young Homemakers are sponsoring the 9th annual Littlefield Arts and Crafts Festival. It will be in the Lamb County Ag and Community Center on October 26.

There will be 50 booths filled with an exciting array of items which will include country decorating items, wooden toys, oil painting, ceramics, dolls, jewelry, decorated sweatshirt, Christmas items, and other hand crafted items.

Until the 16th century it was the right hand upon which women wore wedding rings, not the left.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: We have an 8-year-old neutered terrier-mix dog. We recently welcomed a 10-week-old male Brittany spaniel.

The problem is that our older dog hates the puppy. He doesn't just growl, he bites him. We have to keep them separated, which is a real problem. No one seems to know what I could do to have them become friends.

Now that we have the puppy, we couldn't give him up, and Scooter (the older dog) is a family member. I don't want the pup to be hurt and it's not fair to the dogs to be gated in separate rooms.

We got the puppy to help the older dog be more active and lose weight. — Denise Reiman, Powhatan Pt., Ohio

Because the puppy is young, he'll try to be friends with Scooter, but it's very important to let Scooter know that he is the No. 1 canine by giving him extra love. Remember the older dog has been the center of attention for eight years and now may fear being replaced.

Talk to your veterinarian about this problem, which is not an uncommon one, and you'll get the best advice. Good luck! — Heloise

PLASTIC BAGS

Dear Heloise: I save all the plastic bags from my grocery shopping and use them in my bathroom baskets. They fit perfectly — just lift out, tie the handles and throw them away. I never have to buy small garbage bags. — R. Latta, Beaumont, Texas

Thank You

Thank you my friends for the card shower making my 96th birthday a beautiful day to remember. 160 cards were received. They were read, reread and will come out again later to be enjoyed. And thanks are also extended for the lovely flowers and phone calls.

HEREFORD COMMUNITY CONCERT ASSOCIATION

"Big-Time Entertainment Here At Home"
The Patron Program

Each year the members of our Association pool their membership fees into a fund to bring outstanding music and dance to our city. The size of the fund determines the number and type of concerts we can afford. The costs of the various concerts range from about $2,000 up to fees far in excess of our budget - $20,000 and more. Some years ago we launched a "Patron Plan" - asking friends of finer things for Hereford to contribute annually to a special fund to add to our membership fees, to enable us to have more and finer concerts. Each year brings additional interest in our Patron Program. This year our contributions are more than $5,500. You will benefit from this now and in the future. Please join the officers and directors of the Association in expressing your appreciation to our patrons for 1991-1992.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

Rolling Thunder

If you live on the plains of Texas, Oklahoma or Kansas, rolling thunder may conjure up a vision of a thundering herd of buffalo on the move. If you reside in the green hills of Missouri or Arkansas, rolling thunder may bring to mind the fast-moving, lightning-streaked storms of spring.

If you call the fertile land of Iowa, Illinois or Wisconsin home rolling thunder may stir up a picture of four-wheel drive tractors tilling the soil. However, if you are a small business person, your rolling thunder is a piece of legislation titled the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) of 1990.

Many experts consider ADA to be the most significant new law to impact business since the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970. ADA provides sweeping changes in employment discrimination practices and knocks down barriers for millions of disabled Americans. It requires nearly all businesses to make their facilities accessible to disabled employees and customers.

This new law has teeth. Non-compliance will be costly for all businesses. ADA carries fines up to $100,000 per offense and up to $50,000 for first-time offenders.

Congress passed ADA in July of 1990. However, they delayed the effective date of the provisions by 18 months. This delay gave the small business community time to digest and comply with the required changes.

Compliance Dates

Enforcement dates are spread over the next three years. The first of significance is January 26, 1992, just three months from now. On that date the regulations regarding access to existing private businesses that serve the public go into effect. Companies with 10 or fewer employees and gross sales of $500,000 or less will get one more year to meet those provisions. Firms with 11 to 25 employees and sales of $1 million or less will have to comply by July 26, 1992.

July 26, 1992, is also the effective date for the equal employment provisions for employers with 25 or more employees. This part of the law requires businesses to disregard disabilities when making hiring decisions. It also requires affected companies to make special accommodations for disabled employees.

The third critical date is January 26, 1993. All new facilities that will be occupied for the first time after this date must be accessible to the disabled public, as well as employees.

The final implementation date is July 26, 1994. Equal employment rules become effective for smaller firms on this date.

Even employers with just 15 employees must meet the new regulations.

See you in Court

The exact interpretations of this complex set of government mandates will most likely require clarification in court. The law contains many areas where the language is vague and unclear. How do you define "reasonable accommodations," "readily achievable" and "significant loss of profit?"

Determining the definition of these terms will generate costly legal fees and weeks in court for businesses cited for non-compliance. Most attorneys who have studied the law agree that the courts will write the final chapter on actual implementation. They also agree that it may take many years to finish that chapter.

Few, if any, find fault with the intent of the law. However, the method of carrying out the directives worries many small business owners. We hope that the rolling thunder becomes the sound of progress for millions of disabled Americans. We believe that, with careful implementation, this opportunity can become a reality with minimum negative impact on the business community.

If you want to find out more about the Americans with Disabilities Act, write to us. We will provide free facts about the law and sources for additional information. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Rolling Thunder, c/o Minding Your Own Business, P.O. Box 67, Amarillo, Texas 79105.

Between the Covers

By REBECCA WALLS

For years the question of what happened to Scarlett and Rhett Butler after the book, Gone With The Wind ended has been left unanswered. Now in Scarlett by Alexander Ripley the story continues.

Melanie Wilkes is dead and Scarlett has helped Ashley prepare for the funeral. It is a cold rainy day and it looks as though half of Atlanta is in attendance. Ashley's tall thin form stands erect with a pale stricken face as empty as his blank stare.

Ashley remains motionless and without comprehension until the sound of the dirt falling on the coffin brings him back to reality. The cry of a soul in torment fills the air as Ashley stumbles toward the deep muddy pit. Scarlett, afraid that Ashley will hurt himself runs to stop his advancing steps shouting, "Ashley stop!" "Ashley, don't!" "Melly can't help you now!" All of Atlanta is now talking about the cold heartless Scarlett that has not shed one tear while making the funeral arrangements. "Hard as nails," they said. "All business, that's Scarlett. And no heart at all." They must not know that she cared. Scarlett would not let them see that they could hurt her.

Feeling dizzy and unsteady on her feet, Scarlett raised her chin definitely and proceeds to the gate of the cemetery. It will all be over soon. Scarlett will be able to go to Tara and there she can cry and let the hurt and loss of Melly take over.

She knows she does not love Ashley and never has or will. Scarlett is now apart and alone, without Melly, her only true friend or her husband Rhett, how will she go on?

Ken Follett's Night over Water takes the reader back to September 1939, a few days after Britain had declared war against Germany.

A giant seaplane, Pan American's Flying Clipper, splashes down at South Hampton, England. This New York-bound flight will be the last civilian flight out of Europe for years to come.

Its cargo is a group of passengers desperate to escape their hidden past. Among them are a titled English Fascist and his family; a sheltered young beauty; a runaway wife and the American who seduced her; a feuding brother and sister; a versatile, handsome and charming thief; a wanted escapee; an ancient princess. Soothed by the carpeted lounges of the luxurious aircraft, the passengers will be in the air for thirty hours.

Once inside the flying palace, there is no escape and no turning back. In an era when flying is still a perilous adventure, the pilot must hunt the wind to conserve precious fuel.

The navigator follows the night lights of stars and as the storm clouds over the Atlantic extension mounts in the clipper's cabin. All lives hang on the captain's fateful choice at the point-of-no-return.

Extra Nice Closets and Additional Storage Are Key Features

IMPRESSIVE FOYER AMPLIFIES SPACIOUSNESS

© BY W.D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.

The spacious foyer of this attractive ranch style home provides an extraordinary entrance that visitors will long remember. The open rail staircase leads both upstairs to three of the four bedrooms as well as down to the basement. Tucked into out of the way corners of the foyer are a half bath and an oversize coat closet. The foyer provides access to the master suite, the formal dining room, and the activity room.

The sunken activity room with fireplace allows access to the sun deck and the breakfast room. The popular U-shaped kitchen features an efficient work triangle, built-in pantry and desk, plus an additional walk-in pantry, and lots of cabinets.

The master bedroom has twin walk-in closets, and the secluded master bath features separate vanities, a whirlpool tub, and separate shower.

Upstairs, the home has three large bedrooms, each with a walk-in closet. Two of the bedrooms share a bath, and one has a private bath. The upstairs floor plan also features an attic storage area and disappearing attic stairs to take advantage of still more storage space.

This home is built on a basement foundation. The staircase is attractively situated in the foyer.

The brick exterior is embellished with trimmed multi-lite shuttered windows as well as decorative oval windows, a decorative front door with stained-glass inset, covered front stoop, twin gables, twin dormers, and a side entry double garage.

This is a computer generated plan. The plan is Number 3135. It includes 3,131 square feet of heated area. All W.D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information, write W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

Dynasty returns to ABC Sunday

Joan Collins (left), John Forsythe and Linda Evans star in the four-hour production of Dynasty: The Miniseries, airing Sunday, Oct. 20, and Tuesday, Oct. 22, on ABC. Also appearing are Emma Samms, John James, Kathleen Beller and special guest-star Jeroen Krabbe.

Evans and Collins duke it out once more

By Steven Alan McGaw

Susan Sontag wrote her seminal essay Notes on Camp many years prior to the advent of ABC's Dynasty. Prime-time television, however, has offered few series or specials that better exemplify that distinctive style than the high-gloss, high-dudgeon, high-wind adventures of the Carrington clan and its associates.

Now, two years after its cancellation as a series, Dynasty returns in a four-hour miniseries airing Sunday, Oct. 20, and Tuesday, Oct. 22, on ABC. John Forsythe is back as Blake, the suave patriarch of the Carringtons. Linda Evans reprises her role as Krystle, while Joan Collins stomps and snarls once more as venomous Alexis, Blake's first wife. John James and Emma Samms return as Jeff and Fallon. Steven Carrington will be portrayed by the actor who created the role, Al Corley (Jack Coleman played the part in later years), and newcomer Robin Sachs plays Adam, a character originated by actor Gordon Thomson.

When Dynasty left the air after nine seasons, viewers were left hanging. Could Blake's empire weather a constant barrage of threats, frequently from Alexis? Could love, for anyone, at any time, survive the continual tumult? Worst of all, when last seen, Krystle was in a coma. There were, clearly, questions to be answered.

Appearing before reporters last July, the Dynasty folks (including creators Esther Shapiro and Aaron Spelling) made it clear those questions will not be so much answered as abandoned. Evans described Krystle's unseen, but complete, recovery from the coma as "a miracle." Fallon's infamous abduction by aliens will go unmentioned, as will the fact that Steven looks, well, like his old self again. (The Corley-to-Coleman change was originally explained by a disfiguring accident in Indonesia.)

Dynasty: The Miniseries aims simply to offer a second helping of the high-dollar histrionics and matchless glitz that made the original a Wednesday-night staple for millions of viewers. Designer Nolan Miller spoke at length of the many costume changes. Spelling recalled 91 shooting locations, and newcomer Jeroen Krabbe was touted highly as Collins' love interest in the show.

And what would a trip to Dynasty-land be without a fight between Krystle and Alexis? Evans said this one has a catfight royal. "They gave her (Collins) all the great dialogue and I got all the good punches," the actress said with satisfaction.

ABC's hopes for Dynasty: The Miniseries are high; the network especially wishes to draw a large female audience opposite the World Series on CBS.

Science series returns to PBS

Segments offer variety of topics and ideas

By Steven Alan McGaw

Wednesday, Oct. 23, marks the second-season premiere of PBS' Scientific American Frontiers. The monthly magazine-style series seeks to spark viewers' interest in the fields of science and technology while focusing on a diverse array of projects, innovations and achievements. For host Woodie Flowers, an engineering professor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the programs' greatest potential is in the opportunity to reach young people.

"If we don't fix our critical national problem in education — particularly science and technology education — our standard of living is going to come crashing down," says Flowers. Part of the problem, he explains, is science and technology are perceived as boring, and that must be laid at the doorsteps of scientists themselves and their natural tendency to be quiet. "We have to communicate with the rest of the world more openly and coherently."

Scientific American Frontiers communicates very effectively through a fast-paced showcase usually containing five segments. The season premiere, for example, moves from a spirited race among human-powered submarines (35 college or corporate teams in all) to a look at an experimental treatment in which a boy with muscular dystrophy receives injections of muscle cells from his healthy twin.

Future segments, notes Flowers, will include stories on Taxol, a drug derived from the Pacific Yew tree, which seems effective in treating ovarian cancer, and a study of contentment in farm animals titled "Are Hens Happy?"

SOAP TALK

'Days' viewer dazed by dull script

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: I've been watching Days of Our Lives for 10 years and have been a devoted fan, but I'm about to switch networks and try a new soap. I suggest Days try new writers and ship the present ones, along with Jack and Jennifer, on a slow boat to China. The whole thing is very tiring and boring. If they gave Victor Kiriakis the chance, I bet he could unload them! —A fan in Meridian, Miss.

Dear Reader: I agree Days could use some energy in its story lines, but Jack and Jennifer are extremely popular with most fans, which is surprising because their dialogue is so incredibly dull. Molly and Tanner are much more fun and exciting. It would be great if the writers would power up the story lines for Molly, Tanner and Brian.

Dear Candace: I really like The Young and the Restless. It's the only soap I watch, but I can't stand the character Leanna. She was supposed to have run away from a mental institution, so how can she be as obnoxious as she is? Why don't they get rid of her? I'm also sick of David. How can he get away with all he does and not get caught? I would like Scott and his ex-wife (Lauren) to get back together and expose Sheila. Thanks for listening. —A fan in Idaho.

Dear Reader: Several other viewers share your sentiments concerning Leanna, David and Lauren. By the time this article is published, David Kimble will more than likely have had the tables turned on him. Leanna will probably be married. As for Lauren, I don't think she should go back to Scott, and she should stay away from Paul. She needs a dynamic man, someone new to sweep her off her feet.

Dear Candace: We miss the girl who used to play Vicki on Another World. My sister and I think she was wonderful in the two characters she played. Could you tell us if she will be back on Another World? We are anxious to know. Thank you so much. We enjoy your column. —Sincerely, Frances Bergin, Providence, R.I.

Dear Reader: Anne Hecht is now pursuing movies and other acting interests. It is doubtful she will return to Another World, but in the soap world, you never say never.

TIME OUT

'The Olympiad' a must for the serious fan

By Steve Paschal

Even for the casual observer, the Olympic Games have always produced some of the most exciting and inspiring moments in sports. But, for anyone wanting a full understanding of the history and drama behind the ultimate worldwide athletic competition, Bud Greenspan's Emmy Award-winning series The Olympiad is an imperative.

ESPN is airing the 22-part series, which debuted on Public Television in 1976 and was repeated on ABC prior to the 1984 games, on Monday nights through the beginning of next summer's competition in Barcelona, Spain. Greenspan and his wife, Cappy, spent 10 years putting the program together using clips from over 3 million feet of film and traveling to more than 30 countries to interview hundreds of former Olympic athletes. The series of one-hour programs, which begins with the first modern games in Athens, Greece, in 1896, has been updated to include footage of the 1984 and 1988 games.

The Olympiad has been shown in 80 countries and was the first American sports program telecast in its entirety by the BBC, which called it "the finest testimony to the Olympics we have ever seen." Greenspan captures some of the greatest moments in Olympic history and brings them back to life in interviews with many of the participants.

FAMILY FAIR

'Riders in the Sky' can't get off ground

By Suzanne Gill

Replacing Pee-wee's Playhouse this fall as the only live-action variety show on CBS' Saturday lineup is Riders in the Sky, a half-hour program featuring the cowboy trio of the same name. The Riders — Ranger Doug, Too Slim and Woody Paul — live at Harmony Ranch with assorted puppets and visitors. They address their young viewers as "saddle pals" or "buckaroos and buckettes."

Riders is a decidedly retro-programming concept, harkening back to the heyday of Roy Rogers. Each episode features three pleasant musical interludes (one is a Mitch Miller-style sing-along). That's the up side.

The downside is nearly everything else. Ranger Doug is the only intelligent human on the show; his dim-witted pals are no one you want as a role model for your child. The only woman on the show is a ditzy schoolmarm with a crush on Doug.

The puppets are irritating and uninspired, with the exception of Sheriff Burp and his family, who are offensive and disgusting. (They belch — deeply, and often.) The episode-ending tip to "help do the dishes," etc., is a wasted effort after half an hour of mind-numbing insults to a child's intelligence.

Riders in the Sky could have been an imaginative and entertaining series if it had stayed in development until it was more than half-baked.

Doogie's friend Vinnie older than he looks

By Taylor Michaels

Q: There's a dinner riding on this one. I heard the guy who plays Vinnie on Doogie Howser, M.D. is 25 years old. My friend says I'm wrong. Who is right? Also, could you provide any more information about him? —Melinda and Dawn, Portland, Ore.

A: Max Casella, who plays Vinnie, is 24 years old. He was born in Washington, D.C., grew up in Boston and moved to New York to study acting. He made guest appearances on Kate & Allie and The Equalizer before getting the part of Vinnie Delpino. He is single, enjoys drawing in his spare time, and his birthday is June 6.

Q: Is there any possibility there will be another Incredible Hulk television movie based on the series that had Bill Bixby, Lou Ferrigno and Jack Colvin in it? —A. Smith, Brooklyn, N.Y.

A: As far as I know, there are no plans for a new television movie. The series, by the way, was based on a television movie that was based on a comic strip.

Q: I would like to know the functions and differences, if any, of the following terms: director, producer, executive producer, co-producer, "screenplay by." Also, who is Kathleen Kennedy? Her name appears often in film credits. —Jerry Yano, Brea, Calif.

A: Your question is hard to answer because these duties frequently overlap in filmmaking, but here are some rules of thumb.

The director is the person responsible for the creative aspects, both interpretive and technical, of a motion-picture production. In other words, the director chooses camera angles and tells actors what to do during their scenes. The producer exercises overall control, particularly budgetary control, over the production of a picture, and holds ultimate responsibility for its success or failure. The executive producer is responsible for raising capital in order to finance the movie, but seldom takes part in any phase of the filmmaking. A co-producer does the same thing as a producer, but hasn't put as much money into the film.

The screenplay is the written text upon which a film production is based. Unlike a stage play, it is wide open to interpretation and change, and seldom reaches the screen in its original form. The name that appears after "screenplay by" is the person who wrote the film's original script. In television, writers often become producers so their creative vision will be realized. Kathleen Kennedy is a producer who frequently works with Steven Spielberg.

Q: I need more addresses! Glen Larson Productions? Jack Jones? Robert Wagner? —Beatrix G. Von Drechsel, Westminster, Calif.

A: The address for Glen Larson Productions is 12300 Wilshire Boulevard, Suite 300, Los Angeles, Calif., 90025. You can write Jack Jones c/o H. David Moss, 8019 1/2 Melrose Avenue, Los Angeles, Calif., 90046. Write Robert Wagner c/o Triad Artists, 10100 Santa Monica Boulevard, 16th Floor, Los Angeles, Calif., 90067.

Readers may be interested to know Beatrix G. Von Drechsel has just published a book titled Contessa, which recounts her experiences during World War II, the 1956 Hungarian Revolution and subsequent Communist takeover.

Max Casella

Q: Could you please tell me what happened to 21 Jump Street? Was it canceled or are they making more shows? —A fan of 21 Jump Street.

A: The show is no longer in production, meaning there won't be any new shows. Existing shows, however, are in syndication. Check your local listings.

HAVE FUN at the Movies

Gail Reagan

EXCELLENT GOOD FAIR POOR DON'T WASTE MONEY

PARADISE: Starring Melanie Griffith and Don Johnson. This movie is so filled with lovely quiet moments that you may not realize how enjoyable it is until it's over. Its charm is deceptive and its captivating beauty leaves you unprepared for the deep emotions which ultimately confront you. Ten-year-old Willard (Elijah Wood) does not want to go to the country for the summer. His mother, Rosemary (Eve Gordon), has shuffled him off to stay with friends in the rural town of Paradise. Painfully shy, Willard finds himself resigned to living with the Reeds, Lily (Melanie Griffith) and Ben (Don Johnson); two people distracted by their own domestic difficulties and grief. But before the sultry season is over, Willard's presence becomes a healing catalyst for the troubled pair. Paradise is lovingly directed by Mary Agnes Donoghue from a screenplay which she adapted from the 1987 highly praised French film Le Grand Chemin (The Grand Highway), by Jean Loup Hubert. One of Hollywood's most successful writers, first-time director Donoghue creates memorable screen vignettes that offer a complex look at human relationships. Paradise, filmed in the incredibly beautiful South Carolina wetlands, is liberally laced with humor, with many magical and adventurous moments. The character-driven plot shows, on many different levels, that often just surviving day-to-day takes tremendous courage. Griffith and Johnson are perfect as the unhappy couple. There is substance and quality in their acting that's very warm and emotional. Melanie Griffith has a warmth that comes through even when she's completely still. Don Johnson is exceptionally good in his role.

Your heart will be stolen, however, by 10-year-old Elijah Wood (Avalon) and 9-year-old Thora Birch (Billie). These children (better actors than most adults) have an uncommon naturalness on screen. Thora Birch, cast in the pivotal role of the hometown tomboy who ultimately brings everyone together, is a wild spirit with a fabulous talent. Rated PG-13 for brief nudity and suggested sex.

NEW VIDEO RELEASES

A KISS BEFORE DYING: (1991) Starring Sean Young and Matt Dillon.

As Jonathan Corliss in James Dearden's film, Matt Dillon gives a relaxed portrayal of a charming young man with a yen for a slice of the Carlsson family fortune. Tossing one Carlsson twin daughter (Sean Young) down an air shaft (this happens in the opening minutes of the film), Jonathan positions himself to dispatch the other twin (also Ms. Young).

So smooth is Mr. Dillon in this adaptation of an Ira Levin novel that even the audience is unsure of how evil he really is; leading this column to conclude that this seemingly predictable, almost-success story, is really good entertainment. Somehow its minor faults (including Ms. Young's often zombie-like performance) fade on the small screen. What you get is a grown-up somewhat enjoyable, menacing Matt Dillon, who manages to hold your attention throughout. Rated R for violence and mature themes.

MELANIE GRIFFITH FILMS ON VIDEO

NIGHT MOVES: (1975) With Gene Hackman. A dark and disturbing detective story with Gene Hackman superb as the private eye trying to solve a baffling mystery and find a runaway teenager (Griffith). This film was unfairly overlooked when first released. Rated R.

Three Boxes

SMILE: (1975) With Bruce Dern. A tough-minded and soft-hearted backstage look at a teenage beauty pageant. Satirical fun every inch of the way. Rated PG.

Three Boxes

THE DROWNING POOL: (1976) With Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward. Ineffective sequel to Newman's Harper. Griffith, as Woodward's Lolita-type daughter, is the best thing about this slightly muddled film of murder and corruption in the deep south. Rated PG for violence.

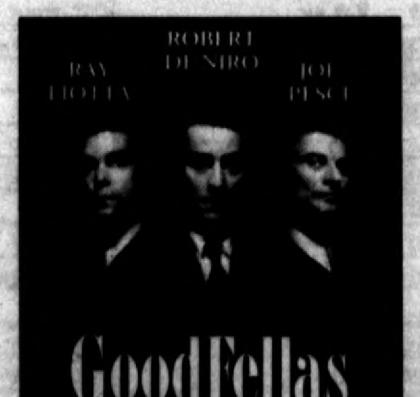

Three Boxes

BODY DOUBLE: (1984) With Craig Wasson. This Brian de Palma thriller is often gruesome, disgusting, and exploitative. But you can't take your eyes off the screen. Craig Wasson is first-rate as a young actor who witnesses a brutal murder, and Melanie is often hilarious as the porno star who holds the key to the crime. Rated R for nudity, suggested sex, profanity, and violence.

Three Boxes

SOMETHING WILD: (1986) With Jeff Daniels. An offbeat farce about a repressed businessman who tastes freedom after he's picked up by a mysterious stranger named LuLu (Griffith). Their freewheeling road trip runs the gamut from comedy to suspense as it moves from hilarious to true edge-of-the-seat terror. Rated R.
