Controversy Renewed

Calderas Flees From Hospital

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

A Hereford man who was found incompetent to stand trial for the February, 1978 murder of his mother Monday walked out of a state mental center in Vernon, prompting an intensive search by law enforcement authorities.

Richard Calderas, 26, "left without permission and has not been found," according to Dr. Frankie Williams, superintendent of the Vernon Center.

Calderas, accused of brutally murdering his 64-year-old mother, has been a two-year subject of controversy for the Deaf Smith County District Attorney's Office, which has unsuccessfully tried to have him indefinitely committed to the Rusk State Hospital.

Rusk is a maximum-security hospital for the criminally insane, while Vernon is a non-security institution.

Pressed for details of the Monday escape, a woman at the Vernon Center said, "We don't have escapes; we have walk-offs. This is not a security facility, so you can't call it an escape."

However, Deaf Smith County sheriff's deputies are pursuing the matter with the intensity of an escape case, fearing that Calderas might return to Hereford.

"We've got to find him. He's crazy," Deputy-Dean Butcher said.

Butcher said the sheriff's office received a tip that Calderas was in Crowell, but has so far been unable to confirm the report.

Calderas was indicted for striking his mother, Concepcion Calderas, over the head several times with a brass candlestick holder, then stabbing her in the side.

Calderas was found to be incompetent to stand trial by two psychiatrists. A jury in 22nd District Court ruled in favor of the finding, and Calderas was turned over to Rusk authorities.

Several months later, Rusk released Calderas to the custody of Deaf Smith County, stating that he had been found competent to stand trial.

Once again in Deaf Smith County, Calderas was found incompetent and was again remanded to Rusk. The state hospital returned him again to Deaf Smith County.

The DA's office filed a motion for re-evaluation of Calderas by Rusk psychiatrists, who then determined he was, in actuality, incompetent and mentally ill. However, Rusk reportedly refused to further detain Calderas, stating his prior term of commitment expired when he was released the second time.

"We had to resolve the issue. How do we commit this man long-term? The only resolution of long-term commitment would be to dismiss the indictment and seek indefinite commitment to Vernon," Assistant DA Jerry Smith told The Brand.

In my opinion, the man required an indefinite commitment at Rusk-long term with some detailed examination," Smith said. "I question the propriety of the procedures used by the Rusk State Hospital in their examination, treatment and release of persons charged with violent crimes who have been found to be incompetent and mentally ill by physicians and psychiatrists, and those conclusions confirmed by juries."

WHO IS THE "BULL CHIPPER OF THE Decade"?

Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce is planning to present such an award at the next Fun Breakfast, and they need nominations from the general public.

The C of C has been presenting "Bull Chip" awards at the breakfast meetings to recognize local citizens who are active in community life. Primarily, the award goes to those who work on community projects above and beyond the call of duty, but it also takes into consideration a person's influence in business and religious circles.

Who do you think accomplished the most for the community in the 70's? Write or phone your nomination to the chamber office, 364-3333.

MANY CITIZENS OF THE community are concerned over the announced closing of the Armour plant. It would have a marked effect on the economy, as well as a drastic effect on the employees who are citizens of this community.

Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce has discussed the problem several times but, until this week, no positive statement could be made--except to express a desire that the plant remain as a vital part of the community.

Part of the program of work in the chamber, through its industrial development committee, is to seek new industry. But another part of that program is to pursue ways to

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is vowing to veto legislation to kill his 10-cent-a-gallon gasoline fee, but lopsided votes against him in both the House and Senate suggest he faces a losing battle.

The House voted 376-30 and the Senate 73-16 Wednesday to repeal the fee. Both votes were well over the two-thirds margin that must be delivered in both chambers to override a veto.

The bill to formally kill the levy could reach Carter's desk later today after the House and Senate resolve minor differences over what form it should take.

Wednesday's votes dealt Carter one of the severest congressional energy defeats of his presidency.

If Carter follows through on his veto threat, he could become the first Democratic president to have a veto overridden since Congress in 1952 forced an immigration bill into law over Harry S. Truman's protest.

Carter has cast 21 vetoes, including two this year, all of which have been sustained.

While the House passed a simple bill to knock down the fee outright, the Senate attached it to a 30-day exension of the federal debt limit.

Thus the House was having to decide today whether to go along with the Senate version or to request a conference with the Senate to iron out the differences.

Regardless of its form, the measure to kill the fee is expected to reach the president before week's end.

Carter told reporters Wednesday he plans to veto the bill in whatever form it reaches him and even if no more than one member of Congress is willing to support him. Carter said imposition of the fee was "not a popular decision...but in my judgment it is right for our country."

Failure to impose it, the president said, will "send a clear signal to oil-producing nations and oil-consuming nations that we do not mean business, that we will not take a firm stand to conserve oil and we will pay much higher prices for oil in the future."

At the same time, White House press secretary Jody Powell acknowledged the White House could not now muster enough votes to sustain a veto of the repeal bill.

Carter To Talk With Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A private conversation in the quiet of the White House living quarters isn't exactly what Sen. Edward M. Kennedy had in mind when he demanded that President Carter debate him. But that's all he's going to get.

With their last clashes at the polls behind them, Carter and Kennedy are meeting today at the White House, but there is absolutely no sign it will lead to Kennedy not pressing on with his attempt to take the nomination from Carter.

Jim Flug, Kennedy's spokesman, said the senator remained determined to challenge Carter for the nomination, although the president has won enough Democratic convention delegates to assure himself of victory.

And Carter himself said Wednesday: "My anticipation is he will carry his forces and his popularity and his strength and his delegates and his deep belief in issues to the convention. That's part of the Democratic process, and need not cause us fear or concern or trepidation."

After Carter tried twice to reach Kennedy on the telephone, the senator called the president Wednesday afternoon. The two set up today's meeting in what the president called a "cordial, not strained" conversation.

"I'll congratulate him on having run a good campaign, and see what we can do together to work together in the future, to meet the Republican challenge successfully," Carter told reporters.

Talking with reporters last weekend in Los Angeles, Kennedy said that if he met the president, he would press his demand for a campaign debate, something Carter says he won't join.

The president has sought peace with his rival in recent days, offering to accept

Any More Questions?

As reported in The Brand Wednesday, a meeting of Armour employees has been scheduled for Sunday at 2 p.m. in the Bull Barn.

Purpose of the meeting is to determine how much interest employees have in seeking a re-opening of negotiations between Armour and the union. With that in mind, Brand editor Paul Sims telephoned a union official in Washington D.C. Wednesday.

Jessie Proston, international vice president of the United Food and Commercial Workers Union, was asked if the union would consider re-opening negotiations with Armour if the workers here expressed such a desire. Here was his response:

"That's a stoooge question. I don't know who put you up to it, and I don't know of any move on the part of the workers or anyone else. They don't need any delegates; they know exactly where to reach me."

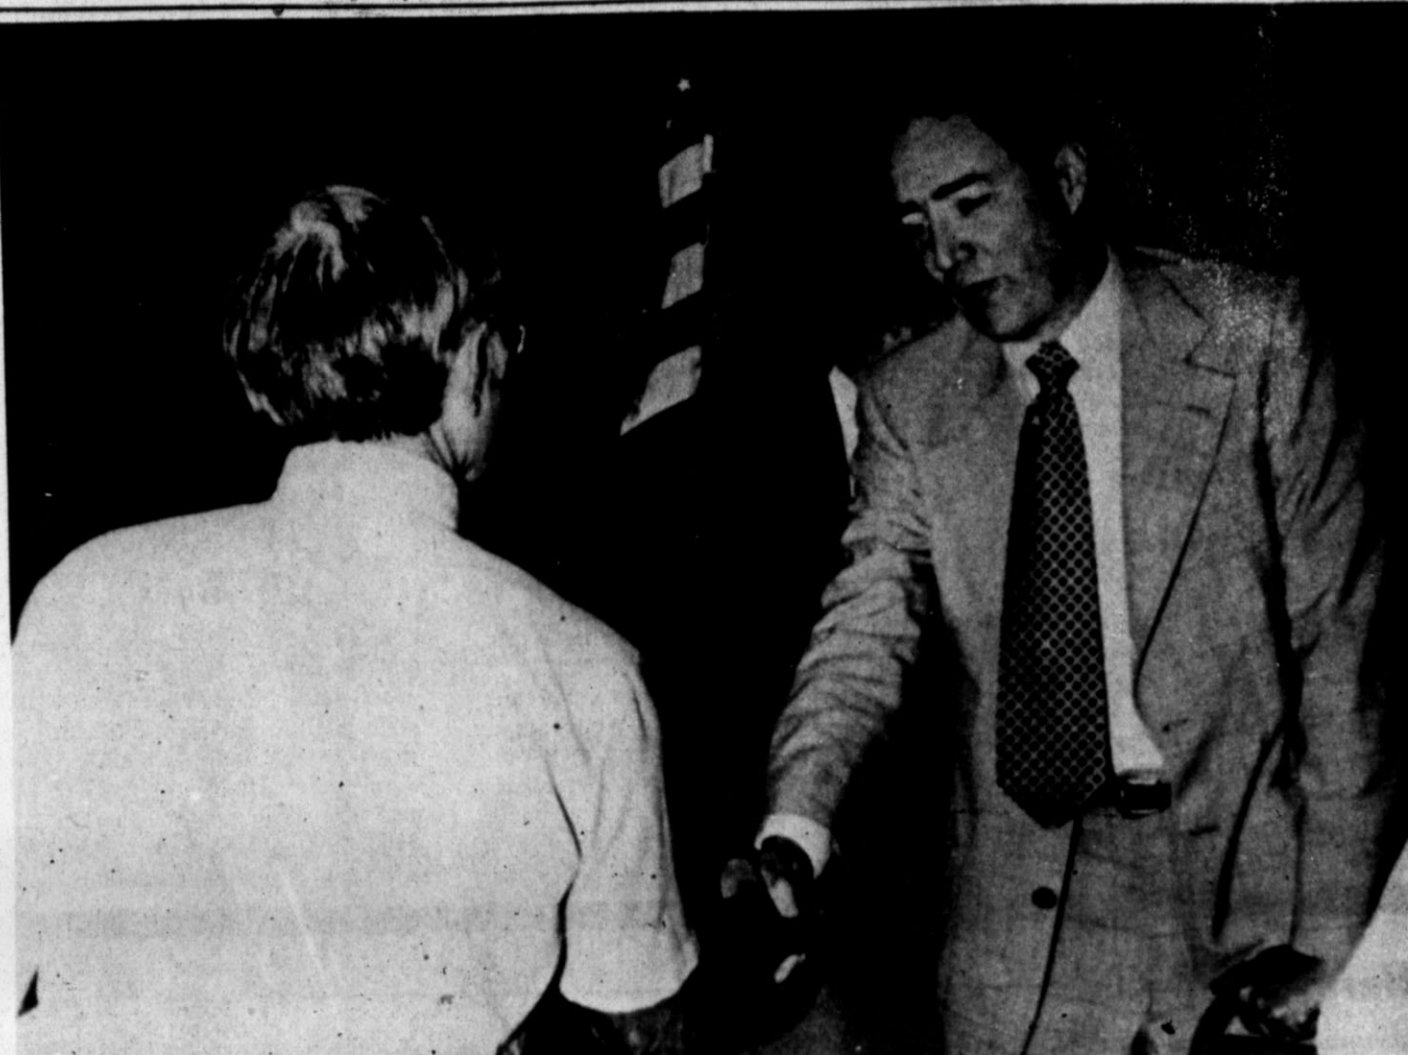

Khomeini Wants To Try Carter

By The Associated Press

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini said President Carter is a "roughneck" and should be tried for attempting to free the 53 U.S. hostages, who spent their 215th day in captivity today. The Americans' jailers reiterated the hostages should be tried as spies if the deposed shah is not returned.

Meanwhile, former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark said he will pursue "with full vigor" a proposal for a U.S. commission to document American crimes against Iran. Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr requested such a commission Wednesday at the "Crimes of America" conference in Tehran.

Clark, one of 10 American delegates to the conference, said the idea had "tremendous importance." He and the other Americans could face 10-year prison terms and $50,000 fines if convicted of violating Carter's travel ban imposed in April

Rain, Hail Pummel Area

By JIM STEIERT—

Steamy, sultry conditions bred turbulent weather Wednesday, prompting a series of heavy thunderstorms to move across portions of the Panhandle last night before proceeding northeastward into Oklahoma today.

While areas of the county received only light rain and scattered small hail, heavy weather pummeled the Umbarger, Canyon and Vega areas and a tornado roared through the countryside north of Stinnett destroying one home and about 20 barns.

Golfball-size hail was recorded at Vega and egg-size hail was reported from the Umbarger community to the east of Hereford.

The Dawn community, the region of the county closest to the heavy weather to the east received only light rain and hail, and a spokesman at Farmer's Elevator five miles north of Dawn reported that rainfall amounts ranged from .30 to .70 inches in that area, with only a light scattering of hailstones over that region.

A heavy storm pounded Canyon in neighboring Randall County with hailstones falling heavily from the west side of that city all the way across town, according to a Canyon resident.

Rainfall of one inch was recorded on the west side of Canyon with the rain accumulation growing to 1.60 inches on the east side of the city.

The Canyon resident reported that rain and hail were even heavier to the east of Canyon.

Property damage was reported in Canyon as a result of the hailstorm.

The storm reportedly unloaded 1.44 inches of rain over the sprawling Palo Duro Canyon State Park.

To the north of Hereford, .45 inches of rain was reported from Pioneer Fertilizer at Milo Center with no hail at that location.

Northwest Grain, west of Farmer's Corner, recorded only light hail and a brief thundershower.

Search for Casualties Of Tornadoes Continues

GRAND ISLAND, Neb. (AP) — National Guardsmen patrolled past twisted and shattered buildings early today as federal officials pledged to help this Plains city recover from devastating tornadoes that destroyed nearly 600 homes and businesses and killed at least four people.

Nearly 200 people were injured, at least four critically, when as many as seven twisters rumbled through dozens of blocks of the city of 40,000. The body of one teen-age girl was blown nearly a block by the battering winds.

Bill Shreffler, assistant city attorney, said workers continued to search for more possible victims, but "we have no numbers" of the missing.

"Nobody really knows how many deaths there are," said Gov. Charles Thone, who inspected the devastation by helicopter. Estimates of the death toll Wednesday reached as high as 35, but Thone later said the final tally would be lower than expected.

"I've never seen anything like it," said Danford Stout, who huddled with his family in a cellar as the twisters reduced his home to splinters. "You know, I ain't much of a church-goer, but I still believe in the good Lord and I prayed when we were down in that basement."

President Carter declared Hall County, which includes Grand Island, a disaster area, opening the way to low-interest loans to citizens and businesses.

Much of the city remained without power and water pressure today. City Public Works Director Bob Olsen said it would take "three or four days to restore some of the power, but it will be weeks before it can be completely restored."

Judgeship Runoffs Spur Little Interest

A light Deaf Smith County turnout is anticipated for Saturday's runoff primaries, which will feature only one Supreme Court and two Texas Court of Criminal Appeals races on the Democratic ballot.

There were no absentee ballots cast for the runoffs, according to County Clerk J.F. Cain.

"That may be a record. I can't ever remember it happening before," Cain said. "I think no absentee votes would mean a very light turnout."

In the runoff for Place 1 of the Texas Supreme Court, to succeed retiring Associate Justice Zollie Steakley, Democrat John C. Phillips, 62, former chief of the Austin Court of Civil Appeals, faces Jim Wallace, 51, a former state senator and now on a Houston court of civil appeals. The winner faces Republican attorney Jim Brady, 59, Austin, in November. The two Court of Criminal Appeals races are strictly Democratic, with no Republican opponents in November.

For Place 2, incumbent Judge W.T. Phillips, 67, meets Austin attorney Michael McCormick, 34.

In Place 3, incumbent Judge Tom G. Dais, 58, is opposed by Austin attorney Edith Roberts, 47.

There are no statewide races on the Republican ballot. Democratic polling places will be the same as in the May 3 primary. Voting sites are as follows:

- Precinct 1, driver's license examiner room; 2, county commissioners' courtroom; 3, Zinser residence, west of Westway; 4, Simms Community House; 5, Hereford Community Center; 6, Ford School; 7, Dawn Community Building; 8, Walcott School; 9, Bippus Community House; 10, Wildorado Church; and 11, Northwest School.

WTSU Regents Approve Budget

CANYON - West Texas State University's Board of Regents recently approved an operating budget of more than $18 million for the 1980-81 fiscal year which begins on Sept. 1.

At the meeting of the board, regents adopted the budget with the notation that athletic funding, and allocation of Student Service Fee funds receive further study.

The education portion of the budget, $8,145,199, which is allocated for salaries and departments, is a three percent increase over last year's figures.

Clarence Thompson, WTSU business manager and chief fiscal officer, attributed the increases to higher utility costs, salary changes and inflation.

Regent Stanley Davis of Amarillo, a newcomer to the board, discussed the $878,499 athletic budget, which has been increased more than $100,000 over last year's allocation of $777,000.

Felony Theft Charged to Men

A gas card, reported missing last month, was found yesterday in the possession of two men, ages 18 and 19, according to police.

Two arrests were made, and more are expected today, police said. The Save-A-Dollar card had apparently been found by the men after being lost by its owner, and charges in excess of $400 were reportedly made.

Even though the card was not actually stolen, the men will be charged with felony theft.

A telephone pole located at Grand and Ave. K was cut in yesterday when a driver reportedly failed to control the speed of his car and hit the pole.

Ascension Rangel of 406 Ave. E. hit the pole around 12:30 last night, was taken to the hospital, treated for minor injuries, and released. Upon returning home yesterday afternoon, Tim Sheehan of 416 Ave. H found that the Home Box Office attachment had been taken off his television. According to police, there was no forced entry; the thief apparently walked through the front door and out with Sheehan's HBO box.

A burglar hit the Mobile Communications, 115 Funston, and made off with more than $300 worth of equipment, including a scanner and AM/FM radio. The merchandise was taken sometime after Tuesday.

A DeLoe battery was stolen from Walker's Used Cars, located at 400 W. 1st.

A tail light lens was taken from the vehicle of L.D. Boyd, 1010 E.3rd, and there were holes in his glass door at the rear of his house, probably the result of a BB gun.

A GMC pickup reportedly was the cause of a wreck last night when it pulled out onto Highway 60 in front of a two-ton truck. One man was treated for minor injuries, and traffic was backed up for a while, police said. There was also one arrest made for public intoxication.

Haynes To Ride To Dusty's Rescue

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) - Noted trial lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes says he'll ride to the rescue of Dusty Farlow if the rancher is indicted for the attempted murder of evil "Dallas" millionaire J.R. Ewing.

"If he doesn't die, then lightning ought to strike him," said Haynes. "It's really bad for people abroad to think all Texans are rule-bending, materialistic and money-grabbing like J.R.," he added.

Judge Throws Out Libel Suit

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A federal judge has rejected arguments by Karen Silkwood's parents, that Time-Life Films Inc. and the Columbia Broadcasting System conspired to libel their daughter in a movie based on a fictitious book about her life. U.S. District Judge Ralph Thompson excused the two film companies from a $2.4 million suit which also named the author of the book, entitled "A Short Life," two major book publishing firms and a production company. Thompson's action does not affect the other four defendants in the suit. Attorneys for Bill and Merle Silkwood, of Nederland, Texas, accused the film companies of conspiring with the publishing firms to make a television movie based on a book that allegedly libeled Ms. Silkwood's parents.

The film companies responded that the suit was without merit since it failed to allege the subsequently televised movie, of the same name as the book, contained defamatory statements about Ms. Silkwood's parents.

Ms. Silkwood was a former worker at Kerr-McGee's plutonium fabrication plant near Crescent. Her death in 1974 spawned federal investigations and prompted unproved accusations by activists that she was a victim of intrigue. Thompson ruled the suit failed to state a claim for damages against Time-Life and CBS because it only alleged a possible libel that might occur in the future and it also failed to show that the resulting movie was libelous. Silkwood attorneys argued that the alleged conspiracy involved expanding circulation of the book, written by Thomas B. Allen, and increasing financial gain by heightening reader interest through the movie's exhibition.

But Thompson ruled that there was no indication that such a conspiracy occurred.

Damages for Anguish Ruled Out in Court

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court has ruled that parents may not collect monetary damages for their mental anguish over the accidental death of a child.

The court issued its interpretation of the Wrongful Death Act on Wednesday and struck down a $25,000 award to a Corpus Christi surgeon who heard a car strike his child and was present when the 11-year-old boy died.

Robert Madalin died on Sept. 14, 1974, after a car struck him while he played in the street outside his home. His father, Dr. Herbert Madalin, said he heard a scream and a thud and rushed to the street where he found his son bleeding.

A jury awarded Madalin $25,000 for his mental anguish as part of an $85,000 jury verdict in the case.

JAMES Bedgood, the driver of the car, and Robert Sorenson, the car's owner, appealed the mental anguish judgment.

U.S. Still Gets Dope From South

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Illegal Mexican drugs are being eradicated but the country has become a channel for heroin and marijuana from South America to the United States, authorities were told Wednesday.

Ninety-four percent of known opium and marijuana fields have been wiped out and the remainder will be destroyed by the end of this year, said Samuel Alba Leyva, attorney general of Mexico.

He joined attorneys general from New Mexico and California at a border crime conference here. Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt told 150 delegates that crime problems spanning the border "are too important to be left to diplomats in Mexico City and Washington, D.C."

Terry Grumble, director of the Arizona Drug Control District in Tucson, described drug traffic from South America through Mexico to the United States. It has created addiction and crime problems in Mexico, he said.

Southbound traffic includes $47 million in stolen property and $625,000 worth of stolen cars from California alone, said George Deukmejian, California attorney general.

American cars which sell legitimately for $20,000 in Mexico are stolen in the United States and peddled at half price south of the border, Deukmejian said.

Jeff Bingham, New Mexico attorney general, complained that federal enforcement policy is outdated, complicated and lacking in direction.

"We don't know what we are trying to accomplish with the policies," he said. "Cuba is a perfect example to show that we have no goals, no policy and no well-conceived program."

The conference continues Thursday with closed-investigation seminars and a luncheon speech by Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz.

Discouraged because fewer than half of parking offenders bothered to pay their tickets, Japanese police began to use a ticket on a metal loop that locks on car doors or side mirrors. ordering a new trial, said "no recovery may be had for mental anguish, grief, bereavement, or loss of companionship."

Only actual financial damages can be recovered, the court said.

Justice Franklin Spears, in a separate opinion, said courts should allow damages for a parent's mental anguish.

"A plaintiff's recovery should not be limited to loss of financial contribution and services. If proven, damages for loss of companionship and society and damages for mental anguish are also proper elements of recovery," Spears said.

He said the actual damages rule has been developed by judges as an interpretation of the Wrongful Death Act passed by the Legislature.

"This judicial construction of the act... makes the life of the child valueless," he said.

"The pecuniary loss rule is based on antiquated concepts evolved in the rural 1800s, and it is totally unrelated to the present day realities of modern society."

Spears said, "The true value of children is not in their potential for financial contribution, but in the rewards which flow from the familial relationship; i.e., love, comfort, assistance, and companionship."

The court affirmed a $25,000 award to Robert Madalin's estate for his own pain and anguish before death. It also affirmed the take-nothing judgment on the claim of Sally Madalin, the boy's mother, for her mental anguish.

At Least 20 Die In Bus Accident

JASPER, Ark. (AP) — A chartered bus with 34 persons aboard ran off Arkansas Highway 7 in a rugged, mountainous area of northern Arkansas early this morning, and at least 20 people were killed, a hospital official said.

Frank Wise, administrator of the Boone County Hospital in nearby Harrison, said at least 20 persons had died. The hospital had treated 13 persons for injuries.

The bus landed nose down in rugged terrain 50 feet below the shoulder of the highway, and rescue crews were still trying to extricate bodies from the wreckage three hours after the accident occurred.

Some bodies were thrown out of the bus, and at least four were found on the highway, authorities said.

The 33 passengers were from the Dallas area, and the bus apparently was en route to Branson, Mo., Arkansas State Police said.

The accident occurred shortly before 1 a.m. CDT one mile south of Jasper, police said.

Survivors said most of the passengers were asleep at the time of the accident.

One passenger, Elmer Durr, 61, of Grand Prairie, Texas, said the windows were knocked out from the impact of the crash, and one side of the bus was demolished.

Durr, who suffered minor injuries, said he hit the back of the seat on the left side of the bus, then slid to the floor and crawled out a window.

The group left Dallas early Wednesday for a trip to Branson, Mo., and Eureka Springs, Durr said.

Raymond Johnson, 62, also of Grand Prairie, Texas, sitting near the back of the bus with his wife, had been dozing. "I heard the bus hitting some rough places," he said, and it plunged down the embankment.

Yarbrough Asks To Attend School

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Former Texas Supreme Court Justice Don Yarbrough, awaiting a ruling on his appeal of a perjury conviction, wants an Austin judge to let him go to medical school in the Caribbean.

Austin lawyer Waggoner Carr, representing Yarbrough, said Wednesday his client has asked for permission to leave the country. Carr said Yarbrough, 38, "wants to get the threads of his life together."

State District Judge Mace Thurman of Austin, who presided at the trial, will decide if Yarbrough can leave the country. Last week Carr asked Travis County District Attorney Ronald Earle if the prosecutor would oppose the move. Carr said he has not had a response from Earle.

Carr told Earle that Yarbrough wants to go to medical school in the Bahamas, a spokesman for the Bahamian embassy in Washington said there are no medical schools in the Bahamas.

Charlie Fentress, spokesman for the Association of Medical Colleges in Washington, said there are six unaccredited medical schools in the Caribbean. He called the schools "degree mills" for students denied admission to American medical schools.

Carr said Yarbrough has been accepted in a medical school, but he did not know which one.

The former justice refused to accept a reporter's phone call to his Houston home.

Yarbrough was convicted in January 1978 of lying to a Travis County grand jury when he denied meeting with a former business associate at an Austin motel. The former associate taped the conversation, during which Yarbrough allegedly coached him on how to forge a car title.

Yarbrough was given a five-year sentence. He is free pending appeal of the conviction.

Yarbrough resigned shortly before the Texas House began proceedings that could have resulted in his removal from office.

Dancer's Variation on Pomp and Circumstance

BALTIMORE (AP) — Aspiring dancer Donald Roeske takes center stage this weekend, not in a performance but in graduation ceremonies. He's the first — and only — graduate in his class of 1980. Roeske, 17, is the only senior at the Baltimore Actors' Theater Conservatory. He graduates Saturday. After attending John Carroll High School in Bel Air for the first three years of high school, he decided to become the only student in his class at the conservatory. Roeske, who plans to major in dance next year at Towson State University, said he switched to the conservatory to get some special training before going to college. The Baltimore Actors' Theater, a private group, opened the school in September to provide preparation in the theater arts along with conventional academic training. Students study traditional academic subjects in the morning and dance music, drama and study in the afternoon. The school, on the campus of the College of Notre Dame, now has 10 students.

"Racehorse" Riding To Defense Of Of J.R.'s Assailant

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — TV cowboy Dusty Farlow will get a noted, real-life trial lawyer — Richard "Racehorse" Haynes — if he's indicted for shooting "Dallas" millionaire J.R. Ewing. Someone — speculation about "whodunit" is driving "Dallas" fans nuts — gunned down ornery J.R. in this season's last episode of the CBS television series.

And Farlow, a San Angelo rancher, is a prime suspect.

"The only thing Dusty is guilty of is poor marksmanship," says Haynes, who believes J.R. deserves to die.

"If he doesn't die, then lightning ought to strike him," Haynes told The San Angelo Standard-Times.

"Dusty is a lamb among wolves, while J.R. is outside the bounds of propriety within Christian morals," Haynes said.

The Houston defense attorney says the case is complicated by reports that Farlow died in a plane crash. But grand jurors apparently heard secret testimony that Farlow was not on the plane and they may indict him for attempted murder.

"If Dusty reappears, he will have a good motive," because he "violated the first rule of falling in love with another man's wife," Haynes said.

But any man is entitled to a lawyer, and Haynes says he could defend Farlow by showing the "jury evidence that there were mitigating circumstances."

"...Dusty has been sorely put upon by J.R. and his minions. He has been victimized and put through excruciating episodes.

"Just the character of J.R. would be enough mitigating circumstances to harbor malice," he said. "J.R. is amoral, immoral, repugnant and without any redeeming character traits such as honor, decency and honesty."

In a real-life case, Haynes successfully defended Fort Worth multimillionaire Cullen Davis in two murder trials and one murder solicitation trial.

Decision May Prompt Alimony

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Chief Justice Joe Greenhill says the Texas Supreme Court might have planted the seed of a state alimony law with its decision that divorce courts may not give one spouse's separate personal property to the other.

The ruling Wednesday took from family court and state district court judges their discretion to award part of a spouse's separate property to the other in the interest of economic fairness.

Greenhill was a dissenter in the 5-3 decision. The case reached the high court after an Austin trial court and the 2nd Court of Civil Appeals in Fort Worth awarded Laura Campbell half the separate personal property of her ex-husband, William Bruner Campbell. Campbell's separate property consisted mainly of $1.2 million in promissory notes, the court said.

The high court relied mainly on the precedent of its 1977 decision that the Texas Constitution prohibits judges from giving one spouse's separately owned real estate to the other spouse upon divorce.

Constitutional principles make no distinction between real estate and personal property, the court said.

Greenhill said in his dissent that the Legislature and the courts traditionally have treated personal property differently from separate real estate.

He said serious inequities could result from allowing a divorced spouse to receive only a share of the community property.

"Such gross inequities might eventually lead to permanent alimony which exists in other community property states," Greenhill warned.

The chief justice also predicted legal snarls and a "plethora of problems" arising from the need to determine the exact ownership of property.

"Logically the equities of the parties will no longer have any importance; instead, divorce trials will turn into trials to determine the character of all the spouses' property. ... Likewise, it may often be difficult to trace assets to show they are separate. The discovery necessary to make such proof may consume much of the estate of the parties," Greenhill said.

Fed Judge Questions Gas-Reserves Measure

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A federal judge has questioned the wisdom of Congress' Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978 to ensure reserves of natural gas while upholding the constitutionality of it.

The long-awaited 40-page order ruled against a challenge to the act lodged by Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana, Wyoming and an independent gas producer who claimed the act robbed states of their power to regulate in-state trade.

The order has national impact in that it underlines the authority of Congress under the Commerce Clause of the Constitution to regulate the intrastate natural gas market just as it controls price ceilings of natural gas sold between states.

But U.S. District Judge Ralph Thompson indicated he based his decision not on the wisdom of the act itself, but on Congress' legislative authority under the Constitution to reach inside a state to govern trade.

President Carter pushed Congress in 1978 at a time when gas supplies in the large gas-producing states was plentiful, but widespread shortages were prevalent elsewhere in the nation.

The government argued the formerly unregulated producing states were able to secure "the lion's share" of new gas supplies by offering producers higher prices than they could get in the regulated interstate market.

The act erases such distinctions by setting uniform price ceilings throughout the nation. Congress had the right to regulate intrastate markets because they ultimately affect commerce between states, Thompson ruled.

The states argued Congress was usurping state sovereignty with the threatened result that the economies of Sun Belt states would be tossed into chaos.

The states, joined by the president of Marlin Oil Co., of Oklahoma City, and the Washington D.C. Legal Foundation Inc., alleged the result of the act would do the opposite of what Congress may have intended.

They argued intrastate regulation will jeopardize "an adequate supply of energy for all citizens of this country" because it fails to give producers price incentives for future exploration.

A STRIKING RESEMBLANCE to Abraham Lincoln has paid off handsomely for actor Richard Blake. The craggy, 6-foot-4 Blake has spent much of the last decade portraying the 16th president throughout the continental United States. (Photo by Sheila Reeves)

'Older I Get, Less Makeup I Need'

MADISON, Wis. (NEA) — Down on his luck a decade ago, Chicago actor Richard Blake decided to take advantage of the resemblance that had dogged him throughout adulthood. So, he became Abraham Lincoln.

Even without makeup, the craggy, 6-foot-4 Blake bears an uncanny likeness to the 16th president. ("The older I get, the less makeup I seem to need," he remarks.)

His resemblance to Lincoln is merely passable in the nose, perhaps, and a bit full in the cheek. But the essence is definite and becomes complete on stage.

Blake studied five years for his Lincoln portrayal.

"It was my fascination with the man himself — a consummate politician, a humorist, a humanist — that kept me interested in playing the role over and over," he says.

Though he took three years off to play other parts in commercials and TV movies, he came back to Lincoln. And he still has not tired of the role.

His first venture was a one-man show inspired by Hal Holbrook's "Mark Twain Tonight," which Blake calls one of the "single greatest pieces of acting" that he has seen.

Blake has since taken the role all over the continental United States.

He even lived for three years in Lincoln's one-time town of Springfield, Ill., where he was artist in residence at Eastern Illinois University. During the Bicentennial, he and another actor recreated the Lincoln-Douglas debates in the Illinois counties where the originals had taken place.

Blake admits that he is eager to portray Lincoln in a major film. But he was passed over for a television drama about the Lincoln-Douglas rivalry in 1976 in favor of a better-known name. Few producers will bankroll a project with an unknown, he explains.

Blake's own favorite of all names to use the family name in 1905 from Robert the actors who have played Lincoln was Walter Huston in an early talkie — "which was horrible because it was so mythic, but he was great." He also admired Royal Dana, who played Lincoln in an early television play.

Currently Blake is almost constantly on the road, performing at colleges, community organizations and historic societies courtesy of Lincoln National Life Insurance. The company, which received per-Todd Lincoln, hired Blake after auditioning some 100 other Lincoln actors.

He presents monologues, one-man shows and "1864 press conferences," during which he encourages students to ask him questions. (Blake notes that Lincoln never held what we know as a press conference.)

He answers in Lincoln's own words as often as possible, having memorized a voluminous log of the president's views on a variety of subjects. He can usually find a suitable Lincolnism no matter what the question.

"What accounted for the turning of the tide of the war, Mr. President?" asked a student at a recent press conference. "Finding the right leadership..." Blake replied. "So far as Mr. Grant being a drinking man, I'd like to feed a gallon of whatever he drinks to my other generals."

Blake once taped a television special with several Southern teens, who had been urged to "get" him by their faculty adviser. The actor reports that the questions became less and less hostile as the program progressed, a development he attributes to the character of Lincoln.

"Even his strongest critics couldn't hold onto that hostility face to face with him," he says.

Blake has had his own critics.

He confesses to having suffered a case of "the nerves" at a Chicago performance attended by famed Civil War historians Paul Angle and Ralph Newman.

After the performance, Newman nodded approvingly.

But Angle bustled over and snapped: "Lincoln didn't use a quill pen. He used a steel pen." Then he bustled off.

Blake recalls later describing the encounter to a friend of Angle.

"That was all he said?" the friend asked incredulously.

"That was it," Blake sighed. "Well, he must have been really impressed," the friend responded. "You should hear the things he's said to other Lincoln actors."

Borrowers Get Additional Time

Some borrowers who received loans from the Farmers Home Administration to buy new homes during parts of 1976-77 have been given additional time to apply for compensation for structural defects which may have occurred in their homes.

A provision of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1979 authorizes those who received housing loans between April 12, 1976 and October 12, 1977 to make claims for construction defects until October 12, 1980, said W.H. Pieratt, State Director.

Since October 12, 1977, Farmers Home, the rural development service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, has offered a program of compensation for construction defects to its borrowers who purchase new homes. Borrowers can file claims for 18 months after they purchase homes.

If defects are noted in an FmHA-financed home, the borrower first should contact the builder or contractor who issued the builder's warranty to try to resolve the problem.

If problems cannot be resolved with builders and the defect "directly and significantly" reduces the useful life, or habitability of the dwelling, borrowers should contact the nearest FmHA County Office.

"Compensation can be made for defects which affect the basic components of a dwelling, such as its foundation, basement, walls, floors, framing or roof, or the heating system, water supply, or sewage disposal system," Mr. Pieratt said.

Farmers Home has advised its field offices to notify by letter all borrowers who may be eligible to file compensation claims during the extended period. The letters will inform borrowers how and when they may apply and explain the types of defects covered.

"Up to $5 million is available nationwide for compensation for structural defects during fiscal year 1980," Mr. Pieratt said. "However, the number of complaints is small. As of March 12, only $220,064 had been expended for 121 claims." He added that in fiscal year 1979, $1 million was allocated for the national program, but $383,188 was paid for 229 claims.

Texas Briefs

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown says grain farmers can get gyped if they sell their crops directly from the field to unfamiliar buyers.

"With the wheat harvest now underway, and corn and milo harvest approaching, farmers are reminded of the dangers of 'turn-row' selling," said Brown. "While this is a perfectly acceptable way to do business, a crooked buyer can cost the farmer much of his crop."

Crooked buyers often use false, scale tickets to cheat farmers, according to the commissioner. The buyer loads his truck, takes the grain to be weighed, and returns with self-produced and false tickets, Brown said. Accepting personal checks for grain is also hazardous, he added.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Industrial Commission wants Texas to join 38 other states that have European offices aimed at attracting business there.

TIC Chairman Don Adams said Wednesday the Legislature will be asked to appropriate about $165,000 to open an office somewhere in Europe.

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — If Dallas and Tarrant counties do not meet federal air standards by 1982, yearly inspections of automobile emission control systems probably will be necessary, transportation planners say.

The Regional Transportation Council Tuesday designated a committee to study how to run such a program, which already is being tested in Houston.

Officials said the program probably would be similar to the yearly safety inspections.

HOUSTON (AP) — U.S. Transportation Secretary Neil Goldschmidt said Wednesday the windfall profits tax may not be a blank check for expensive new transit projects.

"It looks like the windfall profits tax will go mostly for defense, not for transit," Goldschmidt said, adding that starting new rail projects is being hampered by lack of congressional funds.

Goldschmidt, talking to transit officials in nine cities via closed circuit television, said $15 million would be all-cated soon for advanced planning in urban transit.

Transportation officials indicated the grant would go to the Southern California Rapid Transit District.

Goldschmidt said the grant, although short of SCRID's $40 million request, show the transportation department "Will not be timid in looking at bold proposals." Houston officials have been lobbying for as much as $1 billion in federal aid to develop a transit line along the city's southwest corridor.

HOUSTON (AP) — A teenage boy accused of stabbing a 10-year-old to death has been indicted for murder by a Harris County grand jury.

Joseph Goyes, 15, who has been certified to stand trial as an adult, was indicted Wednesday in connection with the Feb. 26 stabbing death of Aaron Harless.

Goyes and his 17-year-old brother Christopher, who has also been charged with murder, will be sent to Rusk State Hospital for a mental examination, according to Assistant District Attorney Ira Jones.

Harkness was found dead in a school gymnasium after he reportedly became involved in an altercation with the two suspects.

Figureheads are about as old as sailing itself. The art grew from the ancient custom of decorating ships' bows to invite guiding spirits to dwell in the vessels. Throughout the centuries, nations and peoples decorated their ships' bows. During the Commonwealth of England, the ship Naseby carried an image of the Lord Protector himself, Oliver Cromwell.

DeSoto, Palmer Try To Retain Champ Titles

State Baseball Finals Begin

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Defending champions DeSoto in Class 3A and Palmer in B are among 20 squads competing for five team championships at the state schoolboy baseball tournament.

Colmesneil, 19-4, and Windthorst, which advanced to the tournament with an 8-10 record, were matched in the opening game today in the Class B semifinals.

All semifinal contests were scheduled today at two fields, with five title games on Saturday at Dusch-Falk field, the baseball home of the Texas Longhorns.

Also returning from the 1979 tournament are Carrollton Turner in 4A, La Grange in 2A, Windthorst and Colmesneil, the runner-up last year to Palmer. La Grange won the 3A title in 1973.

The 1979 tournament was the first time for B, A and 2A to compete for state team championships. Palmer defeated Colmesneil, 6-3, for the title in 1979 and has three all-tournament players returning from that championship team — pitcher-outfielder Paul James, first baseman Brian Almand and catcher-pitcher Wayne Mathis. Of the nine Palmer regulars, the lowest batting average is .321.

Nicklaus Troubled With Green Game

ATLANTA (AP) — Although he has encountered very little but frustration, Jack Nicklaus has no doubts his comeback attempt will be successful.

"As well as I'm hitting the ball, there's no question about it," Nicklaus said before teeing off today in the first round of the $300,000 Atlanta Golf Classic.

"I'm not at all unhappy with the way I'm striking the ball. Actually, I'm playing pretty darn well."

"My problem is that I just can't seem to put a number on the board. I can't get the ball in the hole. And you can't put a number up there if you're not putting."

And that's one reason he abandoned his traditional pattern and is playing here the week before the U.S. Open. Nicklaus usually takes the week off before any of the major championships, the Big Four events around which he has built his matchless record.

"I need some work, particularly on my putting," he said. "Putting is a very precise thing. It's built on confidence. And you have to make some before you have any confidence."

It is in that area of his game, on and around the greens, that he's had his major problems this year. From a position to win, he took three swings to get the ball out of the rough near the green during the final round of the Bing Crosby.

Putting kept him from the title at Doral, which he lost in a playoff. He didn't get in the hunt at the Masters. A total of 141 putts was the main reason. He played exceedingly well, tee to green, in the Memorial, but again was betrayed by the putter.

He even considered bringing "White Fang," the old, white putter he once used, back into action, even took it out of a trophy case.

"I hit six putts with it and put it right back in the trophy case," he said.

"It really doesn't have that much to do with the putter. It's the man who's doing the putting."

He said he's detected a little flaw in his stroke he's attempting to correct.

"I'd gotten too upright. I'm trying to get more behind the ball like I used to," he said. "I'll get it back. It's just a matter of time."

Despite his problem, Nicklaus remained a chief contender for the $54,000 first prize in the 72-hole event that got underway today on the hilly, 7,019-yard, par-72 Atlanta Country Club course.

Other standouts in the field of 156 included defending titleholder Andy Bean, Ben Crenshaw, PGA champion David Graham, Lanny Wadkins, Johnny Miller and Ray Floyd.

CBS will provide national television coverage of portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Carner Favored To Win LPGA Match

MASON, Ohio (AP) — JoAnne Carner has won five U.S. Amateurs, two National Opens, 27 professional tournaments, but not one Ladies Professional Golf Association Championship.

The LPGA, which began today, is rapidly becoming the same hex for Carner that the Men's Open was for Sam Snead, who never won that tournament.

"I have no idea why I don't play well in the LPGA," said the 41-year-old Carner, making her 10th attempt at this, the first of three major titles for the women.

This may be the year that Carner shatters her LPGA jinx.

For one thing, the match is being played on her type of course. The 6,313-yard Nicklaus Golf Center's Grizzly layout, just north of Cincinnati, favors a long hitter like Carner.

"The favorite? Me," she said. "I never think beyond me. If I'm worried about someone else, I'm not thinking about my own game."

And her game has led to anxieties after four victories in her first six starts in 1980.

"I missed the cut for the first time in the Kemper in my eighth tournament. I was just burned out. I was not only winning tournaments, but I was doing something every Monday for four straight weeks. It caught up with me," she said.

took me 15 minutes to put six blisters on my left hand.

"I tried to play, but the blisters broke in the first round. I just couldn't hold onto the club. I soaked my hands in salt and vinegar water for three days and taped them. I played with them taped all of last week."

She was also developing swing problems last week, finishing in a tie for 22nd place at New Rochelle, N.Y. Her husband, Don, wasn't around to solve the problem, either.

"I've got the boss back working right now," said Carner, looking in the direction of her husband. "He says I wasn't turning enough and I was quitting on the ball. It affected my accuracy. I didn't hit more than five greens a round the last week," she said.

If Carner wins here, her five victories will move her within one of her one-season high in 1974. Donna Caponi Young, the defending LPGA champion, and Donna Horton White, are the only other multiple winners this year.

Brett Drives In 4 Runs for Win

Royals Rout New York

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

George Brett just wants to be remembered as a guy who jays hustles, while the New York Yankees must be looking forward to the time when they can remember him as an ex-player.

"I'd like to be remembered as a guy who played hard all the time," Brett said after he drove in four runs in the Royals' 9-3 victory over the Yankees Wednesday night.

The all-star third baseman had seven hits, including three homers runs in as many plays, and eight RBI in the three-game series between American League division leaders.

"I'd like to think that some day some young kid is going to come up and say, 'Look at that guy Brett. He's 38 years old and he's still playing as hard as he ever did,'" the former batting champion said.

"I would have to say he's the best hitter in the cage," said Yankees Manager Dick Howser. "Every so often, one comes along like him, with great ability and great attitude. He's so good, and he keeps trying to improve."

In 13 games, Brett has boosted his average 86 points to .333.

Meanwhile, Reuie Martin settled down after giving up a run in each of the first three innings and cruised to his seventh victory in nine decisions with a five-hitter.

In other AL games, Milwaukee edged Baltimore 3-2, Toronto bombed California and Detroit clubbed Seattle by identical 8-2 scores. Cleveland tripped Oakland 5-3 and Chicago beat Texas 5-1 after losing the first game of the doubleheader 4-3. Boston at Minnesota was rained out.

Indians 5, A's 3
Cliff Johnson, an early season bust, had a sacrifice fly and his fifth homer and 16th RBI in the last 11 games as Cleveland defeated Oakland. Toby Harrah and Mike Hargrove also homered for the Indians and three Cleveland pitchers held the A's to six hits, with starter Dan Spillner getting "the victory."

The 32-year-old Johnson, who was struggling at a .179 clip on May 5, said, "Baseball is a day by day thing. You get your opportunities, I get lucky every now and then. I have a little ability and I hope to continue."

Tigers 8, Mariners 2
John Wockenfuss hit a hotly disputed three-run homer and Milt Wilcox pitched a five-hitter as Detroit ran away from Seattle. The catcher's line drive into the seats was called fair by umpire Nick Bremigan, who got an immediate argument from

"Everybody in the ballpark new it was a foul," Johnson said.

"Everybody but him. It was never even high enough to clear the screen over the left field fence in fair territory, so the only way it could get in the seats was to go in on the foul side of the pole."

Blue Jays 8, Angels 2
Bob Davis and Otto Velez both hit two-run homers to support Jim Clancy's five-hit performance as Toronto improved its record to 24-23, the latest in any season it has been over .500. Velez now has 11 homers for the Blue Jays, while Davis' blast was only the fourth in his seven-year career.

Rangers 4-1, White Sox 3-5
Richard Dotson pitched a three-hitter, including two infield singles, and Lamar Johnson and Thad Bosley homered to give Chicago its doubleheader split with Texas. The Rangers won the opener as Richie Zisk collected three hits, including his 10th homer, and Sparky Lyle saved the victory for Doc Medich.

Johnson also homered in the first game off Medich to cut Texas' lead to 4-3 before Lyle came in to get the last four outs.

Brewers 3, Orioles 2
Eddie Murray's bad throw botched up a pickoff play, allowing Paul Molitor to go from first to third and finally score on Robin Yount's suicide squeeze bunt as Milwaukee edged Baltimore. Molitor had drawn a one-out walk in the eighth and apparently was trapped off first by Orioles pitcher Mike Flanagan, but the errant throw by Murray ruined the effort.

Ben Oglivie, the American League home run leader, hit his 14th for Milwaukee's first two runs.

Codex All Set for Race After Rejected Foul

NEW YORK (AP) — While preparing Codex for Saturday's Belmont Stakes, trainer Wayne Lukas shuttled between Belmont Park and Baltimore for the Maryland Racing Commission's hearing into the controversial Preakness.

The traveling was not for naught. The Maryland commission Wednesday upheld the stewards' decision rejecting the foul claim lodged against Codex. The charge was that Codex had bumped Genuine Risk at the top of the Pimlico Race Course stretch enroute to his Preakness victory on May 17.

The decision by the Maryland commission meant, as Lukas, saw it, the third Preakness victory for Codex — one on the track, one in the stewards' stand and the third before the commission.

For the 112th running of the $200,000-added Belmont, third leg of thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown at 1 1/4 miles, Lukas would settle for just the victory on the track.

Codex, a winner of six of 14 career starts, including the Hollywood and Santa Anita derbies, is a chestnut son of Arts and Letters, the 1969 Belmont winner.

Other 3-year-olds expected to be entered today, in addition to Codex and Genuine Risk, were Rumbo, Rockhill Native, Super Moment, Temperence Hill, Joanie's Chief, Comptroller, Bing and Pikotazo, an unbeaten colt from Mexico.

Angel Cordero Jr., who had a controversial trip aboard Codex in the Preakness, again has the mount on the Tartan Stable colt who was not nominated for the Derby because of an oversight.

Jacinto Vasquez, who claimed foul against Cordero, will be back on Genuine Risk, the first filly to capture the Derby since 1915 and the first female ever to run in all three Triple Crown races. Diana Firestone's filly, in fact, is the only one in the Belmont field competing in all three Triple Crown events.

There hasn't been a filly starter in the Belmont in 26 years and none has won it in 75 years. Genuine Risk will carry 121 pounds, a five-pound sex allowance over her rivals.

Paris (AP) — For the first time in at least 25 years, three Americans have reached the men's semifinals of the French Open tennis championships, including the scrappy, consistently strong finisher on these clay courts, Harold Solomon.

Solomon, runnerup here in 1976 and No. 6 seed this year, upset Argentina's Guillermo Vilas 1-6, 6-4, 7-6, 7-5 in a three-hour, 39-minute duel under a blazing sun Wednesday at Roland Garros Stadium.

Sweden's Bjorn Borg, defending her women's crown here, faced Czech Hana Mandlikova in a semifinal match today. In the other semifinal toward the $42,500 women's crown, Romania's Virginia Ruzici faces Australia's Dianne Fromholtz.

After his upset victory of Vilas, Solomon was asked how many times he had played the reigning champion, Borg.

"Too many," Solomon said, adding that he has never beaten him and has failed to win a set in their last three or four matches.

Solomon, 27, nonetheless said he had a new strategy to play Borg. But he would unveil it only on these slow clay courts where he put Vilas into the category of upset losers along with No. 2 seed John McEnroe and No. 2 women's seed Billie Jean King.

For his part, Vilas indicated he has been sick but he refused to use that as an excuse for his loss. He had stomach cramps on Monday and asked for, and was granted, a 45-minute delay in the starting time of his match with Spain's Manuel Orantes.

The decision to grant the delay, for which International Tennis Federation President Philippe Chatrier has taken responsibility, brought a protest from Orantes, who defaulted to Vilas rather than play the delayed match.

The Association of Tennis Professionals, a group representing most of the touring players, said it will seek a fine against the French organizers, and on Wednesday it appeared that the whole affair would be thus contained.

As has been the case throughout this two-week tournament, with its grueling best-of-five set matches for the men, the Solomon-Vilas match was not without its freak incidents.

In this case, a broken ball, which came as a Solomon passing shot winner touched off a howl from the prodding Solomon crowd when the umpire ruled the point replayed. Vilas seemed to lose his concentration at that point, and to end the crowd's brouhaha he voluntarily double-faulted in a display of either court practicality or good sportsmanship, possibly both.

Carlton Hurls 10th Win Phillies Beat Pirates

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Steve Carlton shut out the crowd by stuffing cotton in his ears - then he quieted the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"It gets loud here, and it helps me concentrate," Carlton said after pitching the Philadelphia Phillies to a 4-3 victory over the Pirates Wednesday night at throbbling Three Rivers Stadium. "When the cotton's in, I can barely hear anybody."

Carlton's field expediency seems to have helped him, all right - his latest victory was No. 10 this season, tops in the majors.

Along with the noise control factor, a sizzling fastball doesn't hurt, either.

"This was the best fastball I've had all year," Carlton said after scattering seven hits.

Carlton thus has accounted for nearly half of Philadelphia's victories so far this year. The team has won 24 games overall.

In other National League action, the Montreal Expos defeated the Chicago Cubs 8-1; the St. Louis Cardinals nipped the New York Mets 1-0 in 10 innings; the Houston Astros beat the San Diego Padres 4-3; the Atlanta Braves trimmed the San Francisco Giants 7-2 and the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-4.

Pet Rose's two-run single highlighted a three-run fifth inning that helped the Phillies wipe out a 3-1 Pirate lead. Carlton struck out four and walked two, outdueling John Candelaria, 2-5.

Expos 8, Cubs 1
Andrew Dawson belted a three-run homer to snap a seventh-inning tie and Gary Carter followed with a solo blast to support the nine-hit pitching of Steve Rogers as Montreal defeated Chicago.

Rogers, 6-5, who walked three and struck out six, helped his own cause with a two-run single in the eighth off reliever Dick Tidrow.

Cardinals 1, Mets 0
Ken Reitz led off the 10th inning with his fourth home run of the season, leading St. Louis and veteran left-hander Jim Kaat over New York.

Kaat, 1-3, scattered seven hits in pitching his first complete game of the season and gaining his 265th lifetime victory. He walked three and struck out two.

Reitz's blast was the only hit off reliever Neil Allen, 2-4 who pitched the final three innings for New York.

Astros 4, Padres 3
Rafael Landestoy capped a three-run Houston ninth innit with an RBI single as the Astros came from behind to defeat San Diego. Loser Rollie Fingers, 5-6, was touched for singles by Enos Cabell and Dave Bergman to open the inning. Fingers wild-pitched Cabell home and a double by Alan Ashby knocked in the winning run, tied the score at 3-3.

After pinch-runner Julio Gonzales took third on a fly ball by pinch-hitter Joe Morgan off reliever Bob Shirley, Landestoy singled home Gonzalez with the winning run.

Reds 5, Dodgers 4
Ray Knight slugged a three-run homer and doubled and singled to lead Cincinnati over Los Angeles.

WE KNOW WHAT YOU MEAN WHEN YOU'RE TALKING PARTS.

He Built Own 'Copter

WAYNE, N.J. (NEA) - When other 14-year-olds were thrilling at the prospect of a boat ride, young Joe Colombo built a motorboat as a shop project in school.

Later, when other young men were having fun riding on snowmobiles, Colombo was building and racing his own.

Now, when a ride in a helicopter is still an event for most people, Colombo has again turned build-it-yourselfer. Last year he completed his own chopper, named the "Dream Machine," which went on to win first prize at an Oshkosh, Wis., air show that may be the world's largest.

An intelligent, articulate and hard-working man, Colombo is modest about coping top prize in the contest. He talks instead about the hours, months and years of planning, research and hard work that went into his helicopter, which is 7 1/2 feet high and a little more than 20 feet long with a 24-foot rotor blade on top.

The project began some years ago when Colombo saw a magazine advertisement for helicopter-building kits. He became interested although he had not built any sort of flying machine and did not have a pilot's license.

He spent the next two years doing a great deal of research, studying numerous brochures and instructions on helicopter planning and building that he had inherited from a friend who had once had similar thoughts.

Construction finally got under way with Colombo buying parts a few at a time from RotorWay, a manufacturer of helicopter kits. Eventually the project was to cost him a little more than $10,000.

After one weekend of work, Colombo knew the project was for him.

He recalls that one of his first problems was finding a place in which to build the chopper. He ended up adding a workshop to a garage at the trucking and excavating company that he operates.

He also had to buy, build and mount special tools and machines to make the thousands of parts that go into a helicopter.

Colombo emphasizes that while the helicopter is made from a kit, its construction is nothing like matching Part A to Part B. Instead, the part may be a piece of flat, raw metal that must be formed, molded, pressed and polished into the proper shape.

Even the helicopter's body, which appears to be a one-piece shell of fiberglass, came in six metal pieces that had to be molded, fitted and soldered together. Colombo achieved the fiberglass look with paint.

"Plus, I didn't use over half the pieces in the kit," says Colombo. "That's the only way I was eligible to enter the (Oshkosh) competition, though I didn't build it for that reason."

For example, he built the entire instrument panel with non-kit equipment.

So, there is no helicopter exactly like Colombo's anywhere else in the world.

Did he have many problems in building the chopper?

"Everything was a problem," says Colombo. "When things went right, that was the exception."

Wasn't that discouraging?

"No, I wouldn't get discouraged, but I did get awfully tired at times," he replies. "Especially toward the end, when I knew I had a deadline to get it ready for the air show. Sometimes I'd start at 7 in the morning and work through until 3 the next morning."

His wife and daughter were happy when all that was over. But Colombo could not take off into the wild blue yonder as soon as the last piece of the helicopter was in place.

For one thing, he had to have the helicopter inspected and certified by the Federal Aviation Administration. The chopper now has its airworthiness certificate.

For another, he had to study for his pilot's license. He has logged more than 50 hours on the machine and expects to get his FAA certification after completing a few more hours of cross-country flying.

Colombo says his helicopter's tank holds about 10 gallons of gasoline, giving him a flying range of about 100 miles.

"I could probably take it to the shore or make other short trips with it, he says, "but mainly I want to just be able to fly in and out of the airport with it."

What about Colombo's next project?

So far, he has no big plans. Besides, he calculates that the chopper requires 10 hours of maintenance for every hour of flight.

Yaks driven in caravans in the Himalayas have no harness or reins but are steered to the right and left by throwing rocks at them.

LEESBURG, Fla. (NEA) - Virgil Hawkins always knew he would one day sit behind a desk in his own law office.

He knew it as a young man when he had to attend high school nearly 100 miles from home because his town had no black high school.

He knew it during the 10 years he spent fighting the Florida Supreme Court, which refused to allow him into the University of Florida's law school because of his skin color.

He knew it every night he spent cleaning latrines and waiting on tables to support himself while studying at the New England School of Law.

A collection of the world's rarest postage stamps would have an estimated value of half-million dollars or more, yet the entire accumulation easily would fit in a man's wallet.

And Virgil Hawkins, attorney at law, knows it now.

"You see, my being uptown is a strange thing," explains the short, talkative lawyer inside his one-man office in central Leesburg.

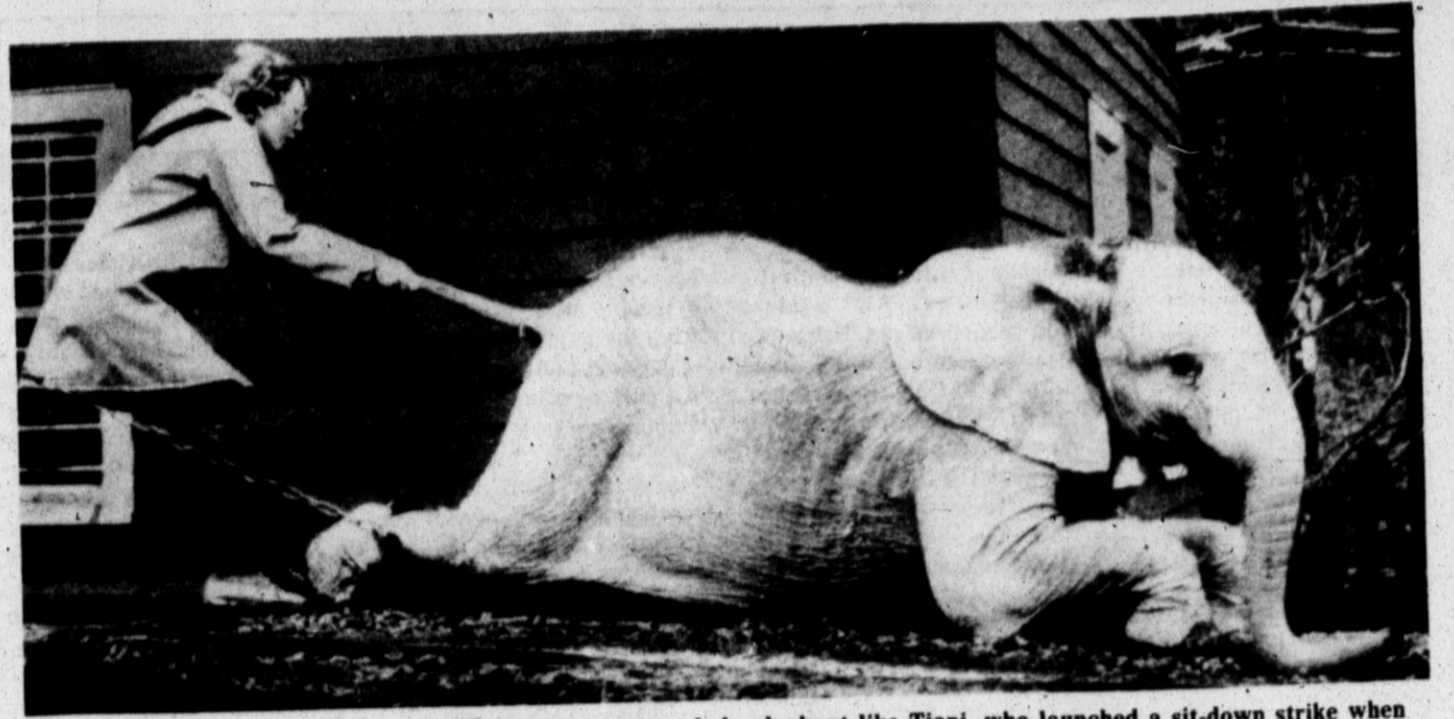

The world was different when Hawkins was a boy in the early years of this century.

That was when being black meant you did not go to school with whites. It meant you came "uptown" only to shop; you could forget about ever having a business there.

One day his father, a Methodist minister, brought him to town from the family's home in nearby Okahumpka. They stopped by the courthouse to see a trial.

Hawkins remembers watching the judge sentence several blacks to jail.

"They did not even know what the judge was doing," he remembers. "And I said to

NO LADY LIKES to publicize her poundage. Not even a lady elephant like Tiani, who launched a sit-down strike when Ellen Leach of Cleveland's Metroparks Zoo attempted to weigh her at a local coal yard. Much persistence — and a few carrots — finally got the young elephant onto the scales, where she weighed in at a mere 1,230 pounds.

Black Never Gave Up Dream

myself. "Those people need help."

From then on he wanted to be an attorney. But he had no idea how long or how hard the road to his dream would be.

After graduating from high school, he attended college in "a piecemeal fashion," finally earning his bachelor's degree in elementary education and social sciences at Bethune-Cookman College in Daytona, Fla.

He applied to the University of Florida's law school but was denied admission because state law said blacks could not go to school with whites.

An appeal to the Florida Supreme Court failed, and Hawkins took a job with his alma mater as director of public relations.

But he never gave up his fight.

He kept trying to get into the University of Florida's law school. In 1954, the U.S. Supreme Court ordered the state to reconsider his application. But again he was denied admission and again the Florida Supreme Court upheld the university's

In 1959, Hawkins enrolled in Boston University to earn a master's in public relations. Afterward, he decided to remain in that city to pursue his legal career.

The next four years were difficult.

He went to school during the day. To support himself, he spent the first two years cleaning laboratories at the Harvard Club and the last two waiting on tables at the Parker House hotel.

In June 1964, the 58-year-old Hawkins finally earned his law degree and returned to Florida.

But his legal career was blocked again, this time by the Florida Bar Association, which refused to accept him for practice in the state because his law school was not accredited.

Hawkins spent a year as director of public relations at Edward Waters College in Jacksonville, Fla. He then joined the new federal anti-poverty program, eventually becoming assistant director of the local community-action office.

But he never forgot about practicing law. In 1976, two lawyers helped him reapply for membership in the Florida Bar.

This time he was accepted — without even having to take the bar exam. He was admitted in February 1977 under the stipulation that he apprentice for six months with a practicing lawyer.

"I can't hardly explain how I felt about it," he says now of his acceptance after more than three decades of effort.

"It was glorious."

When his apprenticeship — with James Durden, then the county's only black lawyer — was finished, Hawkins opened the office where he can be found today.

Surprisingly, 98 percent of his clients are white. "I don't know why," he says.

"Hawkins says he works overtime on his cases, which mainly involve family law. And he enjoys every minute of it."

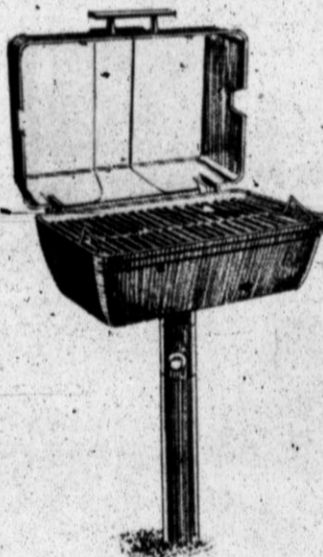

Though in his mid-70s, he says he has no thoughts of retirement.

Despite having been put to the test to get where he is today, Hawkins is not bitter.

"You can't advance yourself by hating people," he says. "You advance yourself by demonstrating to them what they did to you was wrong."

Realizing the importance of the Armour Food plant to the economy of this area and the asset of the employees who are citizens of the community, members of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce publicly express their hope that the plant remains a part of Hereford.

Directors of the Chamber have voted to endorse efforts which would bring about the initiation of dialogue between Armour Foods and the United Food and Commercial Workers Union, in the hope that some kind of settlement would allow the plant to continue operation.

Ann Landers

Volunteers For Euthanasia

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In the last eight months I have lost my father and sister to cancer. She was the beauty of the family and only 42 years old. It was lung cancer. She had been smoking since high school.

Dad had cancer of the colon. He was one of those hale and hearty types, never sick a day in his life. So why go to a doctor for a check-up? He died on his 66th birthday.

The reason I am writing is to ask if it is possible, should I get a terminal illness, to prevent the doctors from keeping me alive by artificial means? I saw my sister and dad linger for weeks when there was no chance for survival. It was obscene the way they kept Dad "alive" by using a kidney machine and a respirator—with tubes inserted in every orifice. Dad pleaded with us to instruct his physician to let him die in peace, but neither I nor my mother could bring ourselves to do it. We both feared guilt feelings might haunt us later, and of course, we were constantly praying for that one-in-a-million miracle.

Can a person make legal arrangements, in case of a terminal illness, to guarantee that he will not be kept alive on machines? Sign me—Thanks. But No Thanks in Illinois

DEAR THANKS: Yes, you can have your way if you live in a state that recognizes the "living will." (Illinois is one that does.) This is a document, signed by you, which guarantees the right to die in peace should you be stricken with a terminal illness that your physician declares is irreversible. The living will relieves relatives and doctors of the responsibility of making the decision.

Anyone who wants more information and a free copy of a living will can obtain one by writing to Concern for Dying, 250 West 57th St., New York N.Y. 10019. This organization has sent out more than three million copies. At this writing, only ten states have a "right to die" law. If you live in a state that has no such law, your family and doctor may not be willing to respect your wishes, but they will be aware of what your wishes are.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Why all the hullabaloo about a wife who undresses in the closet? She didn't say she SLEPT in there. I believe it was wrong of you to suggest that the woman needs to revise her attitude about nudity.

You are amazingly chauvinistic to suggest that a wife put on a nightly strip-tease act for her husband. Do you honestly believe a man would not think about sex unless he was exposed to some visual stimulation? If so, you are badly mistaken. Any man who is THAT dead sexually would be unaffected by the sight of a woman disrobing.

A man who wants a little loving will let his woman know. If he is not interested, he deserves to be left alone.

The woman who tries to arouse a husband who is dog tired after a hard day's work is just plain inconsiderate. She could also make him feel inadequate and perhaps create impotence. I wouldn't dream of undressing in the closet. I go into the bathroom.—No Seductress. Just Normal In Chattanooga.

DEAR NOOGA: If you haven't tried it, honey, don't knock it.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers' booklet, Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference. For a copy, mail 50 cents and a long, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Rebekah's Welcome New Member In Club

Beth Hall was inducted into the Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228 at I.O.O.F. Temple recently during a regular business meeting.

Antique Postcards

A collection of rare and antique postcards belonging to Mrs. J.V. Perrin of Route 4 in Hereford, is on display at the Deaf Smith County Library. People did not start sending postcards until the early 1900's, and some of those in the collection are among the very first.

The oldest card in the collection dates from 1907. Several cards showing period cars and clothes are on display, along with some novelty cards. There are also a few Texaco Gas Station "Thank-you" cards, which are not printed any longer. [Brand photo by Mauri Montgomery]

Real Estate Tips by Tommy Bowling

We found a house we liked. Right before signing the contract, we realized the additional expense for altering the house to suit our life style priced the house completely out of range. How can this embarrassing situation be avoided in the future? Prior to house hunting, it's a good idea to make a list of your requirements for a future home. This not only helps to evaluate possible homes but knowledge of shortcomings and essential alterations may help in contract negotiations. A comprehensive checklist might include: •Amount of total space required. •Number of bedrooms and baths. Arrangement of both in relation to living areas. •Entertainment areas needed. •Essential wall space needed for furniture arrangement. •Insulation and lighting deemed necessary. Extra planning in the beginning may save you additional time in the end.

Deaf Smith County C of C Holds Tennis Tournament

The donation of a doppler machine to the hospital was approved recently at a meeting of the Deaf Smith Hospital Auxiliary.

A doppler machine is used to measure blood pressure, listen to patients' arteries, and can also be used to listen to the heartbeat of an unborn baby, according to Gerry Hollinger, director of nurses at the hospital.

During the meeting held in the SPS Reddy Room, new officers for 1980-81, were installed. Officers are Ann Kershen, president; Marge Mehlberg, vice-president; Grace Covington, secretary; Olivia Brown, Correspondence secretary; Lupe Cerda, treasurer; and Mary Johnson, reporter.

Following the business meeting, a baby shower was held for former president Olivia Denning. Cake and punch were served.

The club also resolved to have a membership drive. Members present were Lupe Cerda, Olivia Brown, Naomi Brisendine, Mary Johnson, Olivia Denning, Irene Reinart, Betty Hughes, Gwen London, Ann Kershen, Marge Mehlberg, Winnie Wiseman, Bertha Dettman, Helen Brown, Roberta Caviness and Dorothy Betzen. Visitors present were Terry Denning, Lesvia Brown, Tony Shakocius, Doris George, Karla Phipps, Jennifer Phipps and Mary Bell.

Jesus Rally Slated For June 27-28

A Jesus Rally, sponsored by the area churches, will be held Friday, June 27 and Saturday, June 28, at the Deaf Smith County Bull Barn, beginning at 7:30 p.m. The program will consist of special singing and ministering of the word. The rally is open to the public.

At Wits End By ERMA BOMBECK

I said goodbye to an old foe yesterday. It was a size 8 pale blue crepe dinner dress that clung so tight it revealed cellulite under your fingernails.

When we first met four years ago, it was resting on a mannikin. I had never seen such a heavenly shade of blue in my entire life. When the saleswoman led the way to the fitting room, I said, "There's no need to try it on. It won't fit now. But I'm going to die in it."

She had the same look on her face as my husband when I told him I used his last razor blade to take chewing gum off the floor, but I cleaned it off good.

For the first three months that dress was like a spiritual leader in my life. It gave me purpose, energy and a reason for getting out of bed in the mornings eating a piece of dry toast and a three-minute egg. It led me to running around the block every morning before the sun and my neighbors came up. Every time I hit a traffic light in the car, I thought of the blue dress and contracted my stomach muscles.

One day I sneaked into the closet and tried it on. Something got caught in the zipper. It was my leg. It would be another few months before I could even try to get the other leg in it.

My evangelism began to wane. Mercifully, winter came and the dress went into the garment bag with the solemn promise that come spring, I would have a new dress to wear that no one had ever seen before. The second summer I had it, I just knew it would fit. Maya was there when I tried it on.

"What do you think?" I asked.

"What does it feel like?" asked Maya.

"Like a full body cast. But isn't this the most heavenly shade of blue you've ever seen? It's like a sky on a clear day."

"I hate to tell you, Henny Penny, but the sky is falling...especially around the Texas panhandle."

"That was the last time anyone saw me in it. It got shuffled around in the closet until it was finally delegated to the same hanger with the cobble apron and the paint slacks."

Yesterday, I pulled it out, looked at it, took a deep breath and announced, "You won! My christening dress was a size 12: Wherever you're going I hope you'll be happy."

My husband saw me ripping the dress. "Why would you do that?" he asked.

Men are so naive. Did he actually think I'd throw away a size 8 label without recycling it?

Learning Additional Skills

Mrs. Beryl Burelsmith is currently teaching a homemaking summer phase in La Plata Junior High School's home-economics room. Students attend the class either from 9-11 a.m. or 1:30 - 3:30 p.m. The Summer phase is equivalent to one trimester and carries one unit of credit. The

Junior High Students Attend Homemaking Summer Phase

Mrs. Beryl Burelsmith, home-economics teacher at La Plata Junior High School is currently teaching a homemaking summer phase at the school allowing students to acquiring one trimester and one unit of credit.

The summer phase is an extension of homemaking beyond the three trimesters of regular school. It provides an opportunity for the student to develop additional skills or develop more knowledge and skill in an area of special interest.

The homemaking summer phase consists of organized group instruction including field trips, supervision of extended learning experiences involving each student enrolled, work with incoming ninth grade students in planning activities for the Future Homemakers of America Chapter for 1980-81 and compiling the FHA yearbook.

The phase also offers students to work with the members of the Hereford Chapter of Young Homemakers of Texas in planning chapter activities for 1980-81 in addition to completing award applications which will be entered in area competition in August.

Objectives for the summer include completing two pillows and a plant hanger, two stained glass wall hangings and a bath towel wrap; and participating in a kitchen group making yeast breads and learning the use of a microwave oven.

Television Stunts Child Development

COLLEGE STATION -- Preschoolers miss out on personal development when parents use television as an electronic babysitter. Cindy Wilson, a family life education specialist on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, says let moderation be the byword. Preschoolers, like adults, have a job to do -- grow and develop, Mrs. Wilson explains.

blunt scissors, to color, to draw, to finger-paint or string beads.

To develop social skills -- communicating with others and getting along with others, a child needs to spend time with other children. This can include playing together and working cooperatively together on projects, such as constructing building-block cities.

brutality to animals, natural calamities or the distasteful portrayal of human sexual behavior.

Frequently the young impressionable child cannot handle these in a psychologically healthy manner.

In deciding what preschoolers should watch, the best way to start is to watch with them for awhile, the specialist advises.

Student Receives Doctorate

Geoffrey L. Thomas, a student from Hereford at Texas A&M University received a doctorate degree in plant breeding from A&M at the university's spring commencement exercises.

Four other students from Hereford graduated with honors from A&M this spring.

Michael A. Aven, Summa Cum Laude, received his undergraduate degree in veterinary science; Robert B. Hicks, Summa Cum Laude, received an undergraduate degree in animal science; Brian J. Eades, Cum Laude, received an undergraduate degree in biomedical science, and Catherine S. Koelzer, Cum Laude, received her undergraduate degree in marketing.

A CHILD'S DEVELOPMENT

Children develop primarily through play -- active play. Muscle development, eye-hand coordination skills and social skills all start in a child's first few years of life. A child's active play provides the exercise necessary to assure proper muscular development. Active play includes learning to run, jump, skip, hop, climb, balance and dance, for example.

To acquire eye-hand coordination skills, children also should learn to cut with

PARENTS, CHOOSE PROGRAMS

Because each child's personal development is at stake, it's important that parents and other child-rearing people choose with care the television programs children are permitted to watch, Mrs. Wilson stresses.

Preschool age children, in particular should not be over-exposed to television viewing that depicts violence.

Reasons to watch California

LOS ANGELES (NEA) - Most news stories about initiatives on the June 3 California primary ballot have dealt with Proposition 9, Howard Jarvis's attempt to cut the state's income tax in half.

But the ballot is crowded with no fewer than 11 voter-sponsored initiatives, several of major national interest. The topics include such emotional issues as taxation of oil companies, rent control and freedom of the press.

In California, groups of voters can put measures on the state ballot if they can get enough signatures on petitions. A little more than 300,000 signatures are needed if the group is seeking approval of a new state statute. A little more than 500,000 signatures are required if the group is seeking to amend the state constitution.

Among those measures likely to have significant impact nationwide is Proposition 11, which would increase state taxes on oil-company profits. More campaign money is probably being spent on Proposition 11 than on any other measure on the June 3 ballot.

The complex initiative is the brainchild of Bill Press, a former aide to Gov. Jerry Brown. It is supported by organized labor, environmental groups and citizen organizations such as the League of Women Voters.

Naturally it is opposed by the oil companies, who have reportedly amassed a $3 million-plus war chest to defeat it. They have hired the San Francisco consulting firm of Woodward, McDowell and Larson, who led the fight against the state's 1978 anti-smoking proposition, and the Los Angeles consultants Mixner-Scott, who directed the opposition to a measure on the same ballot to dismiss gay teachers.

Few voters these days are against taxing oil companies, and early polls showed Proposition 11 winning easily.

Then the opposition began asserting that the measure would raise gasoline prices, increase government bureaucracy and decrease domestic oil production, thus increasing dependency on imported oil. This message is apparently getting through to voters; recent polls show the measure is now a toss-up.

The second initiative of interest beyond California is Proposition 10, which seeks to limit rent control. Rent control is now statewide and is working fairly well from the renter's point of view.

Proposition 10, which originated with property owners' groups, would restrict rent control to localities where voters specifically approve it and would place other technical limitations on rent-control statutes.

The property owners are running a slick, well-financed media campaign to convince voters that approval is in the best interest of renters. They argue that in a state like California where the vacancy rate on rental units is very low, limits on rent control would bring a massive number of new units onto the market.

Opponents point out that this claim comes from the same groups of apartment owners who promised during the 1978 Proposition 13 debate that property-tax reductions would be passed along to renters, something that has seldom happened.

Polls show much voter confusion on Proposition 10, which is written in such a way that many people are unsure whether a "yes" vote is for or against rent control. The fate of this measure may rest more on this confusion than on the merits of the issue.

Finally, there is Proposition 5, a state constitutional amendment that would forbid contempt-of-court citations against reporters and news organizations that refuse to divulge their information sources. The measure has received near-universal media support in this state, where several journalists have been jailed in recent years for not revealing sources.

If this proposition is adopted, media organizations in other states will undoubtedly use it as a model in attempting to modify their own state constitutions.

THOUGHTS

Thursday

The word "lamp" is used throughout the Bible and generally means a small cuplike vessel, usually of earthenware, containing oil in which a cotton wick floated.

... that they bring thee pure oil beaten for the light, to cause the lamp to burn always. — Exod. 27:20

Friday

Birthday parties are usually times of merriment and gladness, but one exception appears in the Old Testament. The Pharaoh used that occasion in a different way. He handed the chief baker whose dream Joseph had interpreted in prison.

"And it came to pass the third day, which was Pharaoh's birthday, that he made a feast unto all his servants; and he lifted up the head of the butler and of the chief baker among his servants. But he hanged the chief baker." — Gen. 40:20, 22

Community Concert Assn. Announces Season Schedule

The Hereford Community Concert Association has announced that they will begin their annual membership drive Monday, June 9 and continue through June 14. This was announced by Mr. and Mrs. Ted Panciera, presidents of the association.

The 1980-81 season memberships can be obtained at the Chamber of Commerce office with adult memberships selling for $15, student membership, $6; and a family membership including everyone living in the home for $35. Checks are to be made payable to Hereford Community Concert Assn. and mailed to Box 11, Hereford.

A kick-off ice cream social has been scheduled by the association for Monday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Allen, 203 Sunset. Information concerning the social can be obtained at the C of C office.

Others serving as this year's Community Concert Assn. slate of officers are Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Langley, vice presidents; Mr. and Mrs. L.E. Ballard and Mr. and Mrs. Jean Streun, second vice-president and Mrs.

Duffy McBrayer, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Gulley; and Mr. and Mrs. John Gilliland, third vice; Mr. and Mrs. John Claypool, fourth vice; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Allen, treasurers; and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wilcox, dinner chairman.

Concerts scheduled for this season include Monty Alexander, well-known pianist to perform Oct. 28 at 8 p.m.

Alexander's music is of original composition. Jamaican born, the pianist has an extraordinary rapport with his bassist and drummer.

Performing Feb. 9 at 8 p.m. will be Harvey Pittel, one of the world's greatest woodwind virtuosos, specializing in the saxophone including tiny soprano, alto and tenor saxes to the big baritone saxophone.

Pittel, joined with a cellist and pianist encompasses chamber music of such composers as J.S. Bach, Duke Ellington, Maurice Ravel and Richard Rodgers.

Scheduled to perform in Hereford May 14, 1981 at 8 p.m. is the Roger Wagner Chorale, called "second to none in the world" by Leopold Stokowski. The chorale has appeared in every state in the union and earned international praise and recognition on tours of Eastern and Western Europe, South America, Mexico, Canada and Japan.

Of the Chorale's 1974 Russian tour, a Tass critic praised the group's "brilliant singing and wealth of its dynamics of sound as well as the expressiveness and outstanding ability of Roger Wagner."

All of the local concerts are to be attended at the High School auditorium.

Community Concerts may also be attended in Clovis, New Mexico, Lubbock, Dalhart and Borger.

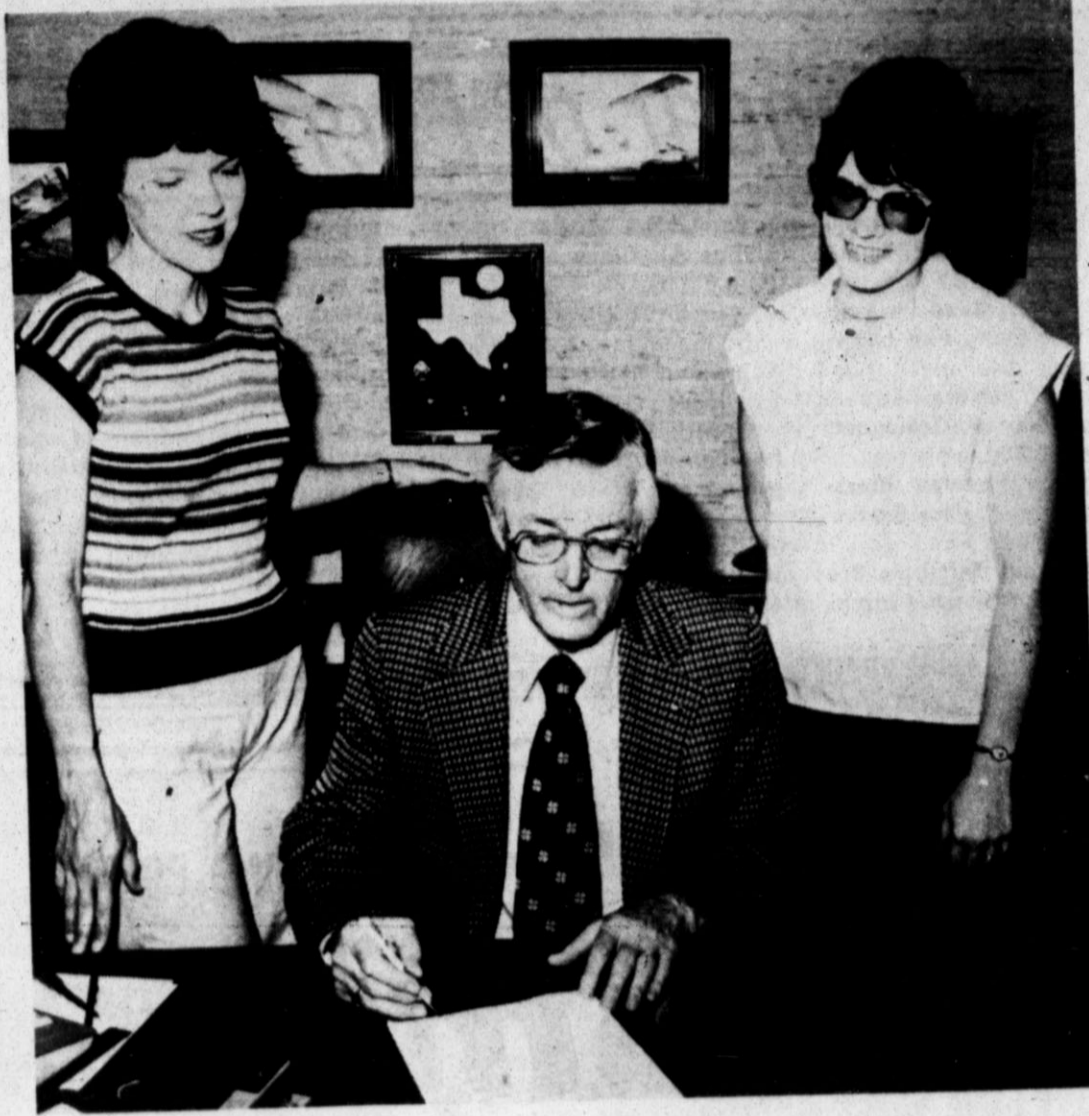

Dates for these concerts are as follows:

Concerts scheduled in Borger are to be attended at the Borger High School. They include "Naughty Marietta" to perform Nov. 29 at 8:30 p.m.; "Ronnie Brown Trio" to perform Feb. 23, 1981 at 8 p.m.; and "Leo Brown and the Band of Renown" to perform April 7, 1981 at 8 p.m.

Concerts planned to perform in Lubbock are to be attended at the Civic Center. They include "Gil Morgenstern", violinist, to perform Oct. 24 at 8 p.m.; "James Dick", pianist to perform Jan. 21, 1981 at 8 p.m.; "Toccatas Flourishes", organ and trumpets, to perform March 17, 1981 at 8 p.m.; and "Southwest German Chamber Orchestra" to perform March 6, 1981 at 8 p.m.

Dalhart concerts are to be attended at the high school auditorium. They include "Veri" and "Jamanis," a duo-pianists, to perform Oct. 27 at 8 p.m.; "James Pinkerton," harpist, to perform Jan. 8, 1981 at 8 p.m.; and "Les Brown," to perform April 11, 1981 at 8 p.m.

Clovis scheduled Community Concerts has not been released at this time.

Promoting Beef

School Gyms Open For Boys, Girls Use

Two Hereford school gyms will be open for summer use and will have at least one coach on hand to provide adult supervision, announced Coach Larry Sowers recently.

The La Plata Junior High gym will be open for girls from 5-9 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. Girls will be required to sign in and sign out, said Coach Sowers. Younger girls are encouraged to use the gym from 5:30-6 p.m. on those days.

The high school gym will be open for boys from 6-10 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday. Younger boys are encouraged to attend from 6-7:30 p.m. Older boys are urged to go between 7:30-10 p.m.

Roadside Stands Provide Fresh Spring Shopping

COLLEGE STATION -- Spring means fresh fruits and vegetables, so checkout roadside markets for good buys on your favorite produce.

"Texas fruit and vegetable production is getting into full swing," points out Tom Longbrake, horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University Systems. Roadside stands will soon be bursting at the seams with good supplies of squash, tomatoes, sweet corn, peaches, green beans, cucumbers, Irish potatoes and a host of other items.

Good buys are available from local producers who sometimes sell for less than supermarkets, says the horticulturist. And the produce is often much fresher because it comes right out of the field or orchard.

"In checking for freshness, look for green shucks on sweet corn; straight, smooth pods on green beans; vine-ripened tomatoes; and fresh-cut squash," suggests Longbrake.

Other items available at roadside stands from now into early summer are mustard and turnip greens, collards, kale, cabbage and leaf lettuce. However, okra, watermelons, cantaloupes and southern peas won't be available in volume until late June.

"Watch for peak production sales and be prepared to can or freeze some homegrown vegetables and fruit," suggests Longbrake.

Also, some growers may have a pick-your-own deal which you could turn into a family outing.

Current Beef Prices Effective Tool For Fighting Inflation

Coping with inflation has become a way of life for today's consumers. With the Consumer Price Index increasing 14 percent in the past year, it seems that everything has gone up in price.

But has it? A look in the meat case shows that many beef prices are actually lower than they were a year ago. In today's economy, this means a real bargain!

Current beef prices can be an effective tool for fighting inflation. While many expenses are fixed, offering little or no chance of cutting costs, there is a great deal of flexibility and many opportunities to save when buying beef. Even consumers on a budget can pick and choose among scores of beef cuts and still keep within a limited budget. As an added bonus, selecting a variety of economical beef cuts helps to keep mealtime interesting and supplies the family with important high-quality nutrition.

Smart shoppers know that some beef cuts are better budget-stretchers than others. In general, these are the less tender cuts from the chuck, round, shank and short plate sections of the beef carcass. They are usually priced lower per pound than the more tender cuts from the loin and rib sections.

Yet, cost per pound is not the whole story in determining the most economical buys. Cuts should be compared on a cost per edible serving basis. While a closely trimmed boneless cut may command a higher price per pound, it may be a better value than other cuts that contain more fat and bone.

Another inflation fighting technique is to buy larger beef cuts, then divide them at home into meal-size portions. Larger cuts generally cost less per pound because they require less labor at the retail level.

One round steak, cut 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 inches thick, weighing about 5 pounds, can be the beginning of three to four different and delicious meals for four persons when divided along natural seams into its three distinct muscles -- the top round, bottom round and eye. The tender top round is excellent for marinating and broiling, either indoors or out. The bottom round can be cut into thin strips for braising or marinating and stir-frying. It can also be sliced into two thin steaks, pounded and braised for Swiss steak. For a third meal, the eye muscle plus the meat attached to the bone can be ground or cut into small pieces and used for stew or soup. Other cuts that can be easily cut down on costs are arm pot-roasts, 7-bone beused to keep the costs of family meals in check. Shopping the sales is another way to fight inflation by stretching the food dollar. To get the most for your money for a given week, menus should be planned around advertised beef specials. Even more costly cuts can be worked into a tight budget when purchased on sale. For savings in the future, the freezer can be stocked with attractively priced sale items.

Man has consumed more energy -- coal, oil, and gas -- in the last 30 years than in all previous history. Few spiders live more than two years. The males, who die soon after mating, rarely survive even one.

Home-Grown Vegetables Provide Quality

COLLEGE STATION — Growing your favorite garden vegetables is only the first step to enjoying high quality, nutritious produce. Vegetables must also be harvested at peak quality and handled and stored properly.

To begin, harvest and handle vegetables carefully to avoid cuts and bruises, points out Al Wagner, food technologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. Discard any produce that has decay or rot. Wash vegetables in cold running water immediately after harvesting to remove soil, dust and other contaminants and to help lower the temperature as quickly as possible.

Wagner cites temperature, moisture and ventilation as three key requirements in storing vegetables. Proper cooling slows the conversion of sugar to starch in vegetables, some vegetables like a high humidity while others need a drier atmosphere, and good air circulation can minimize wilting and tissue breakdown.

He offers these suggestions for harvesting, handling and storing the more common homegrown vegetables:

--Asparagus -- Cut fresh, firm shoots (6-8 inches tall) at the soil line and keep under refrigeration.

--Lima beans -- Harvest when pods are well-filled but not yellow and keep cold and humid.

--Snap beans -- Harvest before pods are completely full. Pods should be free of scars and have no strings when snapped. Keep cool and humid.

--Beets -- Harvest when about 2 inches in diameter and remove all but about 1 1/2 inches of tops. Wash and refrigerate immediately.

--Cabbage -- Cut head from stem when it is solid, firm and fully developed. Store in crisper and use within one to two weeks.

--Carrots -- Harvest when small and succulent and not more than 1 inch in diameter. Remove tops, wash and refrigerate.

--Sweet corn -- Pick in milk stage (when milk-like juice oozes from kernels when crushed with the finger); silk will darken and begin drying. Cook and eat or chill immediately.

--Cucumbers -- Harvest when fruits are bright, firm and green (1 1/2-2 inches long for sweet pickles, 3-4 inches for dills and 6-9 inches for slicing). Avoid yellow fruit. Store in the refrigerator up to five days.

--Egg plant -- Harvest when fruits are near full size (6-8 inches in diameter). Keep cool and humid.

--Greens -- Break off outer leaves when they're 6-10 inches long and before they start to yellow. Wash and chill immediately.

--Honeydew melons -- Select melons that are yellowish to creamy white with a soft velvety feel. The rind should be slightly soft at the blossom end and should have a faint pleasant odor. --Muskmelons -- Pick when the stem separates readily from the fruit under moderate pressure and leaves a circular depression. Outer rind should not have any green color. Refrigerate fully ripe melons.

--Watermelons -- Pick when fruits reach full size, are full in color and the ground spot has a creamy color.

--Tomatoes -- Harvest when fully colored but still firm. Do not can overripe tomatoes. Store ripe tomatoes in a refrigerator.

Workshop Scheduled Next Week

Big Brothers-Big Sisters Organization will sponsor a "Money Management" workshop Monday and Thursday of next week from 7:30-9 p.m. at the Community Center.

Parents, BB's and BS's and any other interested people are invited to attend. Conducting the workshop will be Agnes Taylor, assistant county agent.

Artist Of Month

Sonja Paetzold, selected as Deaf Smith County's Library's artist of the month, will have several art pieces of landscapes and western arts displayed throughout the library this month. Mrs. Paetzold, using oils and water colors has been studying painting for 2 1/2 years under Gene and Charles Lyles and May Selfridge. She intends to study under Stephen Cramer, well-known artist, next month. [Brand photo by Mauri Montgomery]

Former Sports Director To Emcee Local Pageant

Dean Kelly of Amarillo has been selected to emcee the Miss Hereford Pageant June 14, announced Sharon Hodges, director.

Kelly, a long time member of the Paramount Terrace Christian Church in Amarillo, has emceed numerous beauty pageants throughout the Panhandle. He is formerly Channel 10 sports director and played the role of Uncle Henry for five years in the musical drama "Texas." He is currently an insurance agent.

Kelly has emceed all of the Chamber of Commerce Fun Breakfasts in Amarillo and has done broadcasting for West Texas State University's Athletic department.

Kelly has sang in several barbershop quartets and is presently releasing a Christian album.

The six entrants in the Miss Hereford title contest and 11 in the Miss Teen Hereford division are preparing for their parts in the annual pageant sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce Women's Division.

Girls entered in both divisions will be judged on appearance in evening dress and swimming suits, and on personality. Both groups will compete for cash scholarships.

Miss Hereford 1980 will receive an $800 scholarship, the first runnerup $400 and second runner-up $200. For Miss Teen winners, the scholarships amount to $200, $150 and $100.

National Cosmetology Week Announced

The week of October 5-11, has been designated National Cosmetology Week by the 68,000 member National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association. During the week, cosmetology salons across the country will be actively promoting the theme, "Cosmetology Makes Life More Beautiful."

In observance of the special week, cosmetologists will be conducting informational activities and presentations about the beauty industry and raising funds for the NHCA Disaster Fund and the NHCA Disaster Fund and other charities.

Creating public awareness of the many important services performed by the cosmetology profession is a key objective of National Cosmetology Week, and cosmetologists will be available for programs and presentations with local groups or associations. The cosmetologists will have fashion presentations featuring fall-winter hairfashions and designer apparel, slide presentations, Hairfashion Model of the Year contests, radio and television programs, and other special events. Cosmetologists will also be visiting various institutions to donate hairstyling and other cosmetology services.

Many NHCA affiliates are working closely with local chapters of the Girl Scouts of America. The Girl Scouts will be able to attend Career Days programs at which careers in the cosmetology profession can be explored. Tours of cosmetology salons will be held, and other opportunities for Girl Scout troops to participate in cosmetological activities are being planned.

The cosmetologist of today does much more than style hair, and the versatility of this skilled professional will be showcased during National Cosmetology Week. The cosmetologist is an expert on hair, make-up and skin care, and can offer fashion advice. The cosmetologist has become adept at serving all members of the family.

The Disaster Fund was established in 1955 after floods had severely damaged salons in Pennsylvania and New Jersey. The fund has been in continual existence since then and has rallied to the aid of cosmetologists victimized by earthquakes in Alaska and floods in Kentucky, Missouri, Pennsylvania and other states. Financial aid from the fund helps salon owners repair buildings and replace damaged equipment so the salon may return to normal working conditions as soon as possible.

The disaster fund will be supported through fund-raising activities during the week, and through the sale of NHCA Disaster Fund Seals. The NHCA Disaster Fund has been designated as the official charity of National Cosmetology Week.

Landscape Your Garden With Ornamental Peppers

COLLEGE STATION -- Blooming flowers are not the only way to brighten a vegetable garden or hanging basket with color and variety. Ornamental peppers are another option.

Ornamental peppers fruit early in pots and can be used successfully as home garden border plants, says Dr. William C. Welch, landscape horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

A wise choice, when selecting ornamental peppers for your garden is the 1980 All-America medalist, "Holiday Time," notes the horticulturist.

This dwarf variety doesn't grow more than eight or nine inches tall and displays a series of color changes from yellow to orange to purple and finally fiery red, explains Welch.

Ornamental peppers are tough plants and are set off best when planted with a contrasting background. White petunias, dark bark or mulch serve as interesting backgrounds for peppers. Welch says the pepper's compact habit, vivid fruit and hardiness make it ideal for use in hanging baskets, hanging gardens and containers of all kinds.

Bordering a vegetable garden with peppers creates a south-of-the-border accent, and rabbits will hesitate to eat the tough-skinned fruit.

CowBelles To Host Beef Sale

Hereford CowBelles have scheduled a beef casserole sale in Sugarland Mall Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The sale will feature casserole dishes prepared with beef. The dishes will be pre-cooked and ready to serve or to be put in the freezer.

The casseroles will be packaged in a variety of sizes to accommodate both single persons and large families.

The public is encouraged to attend the casserole sale in promotion of beef.

Grad Receives TSTI Assoc. Degree

Joe Monroe received his Associate Degree from Texas State Technical Institute in Amarillo recently.

Graduation ceremonies were held at the TSTI Chapel on the TSTI campus. Bob Davis of Amarillo, congressional assistant to Congressman Jack Hightower, was the guest speaker.

Monroe, who received his degree in welding and fabrication, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Buel Monroe of Route 4, Hereford, and is also a graduate of Hereford High School.

Controversy Arrises Over Mass Murder Book

By BOB SPRINGER

Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — The story should be told, but no writer and no lawyer should profit from the macabre tale of mass-murderer John Wayne Gacy Jr., says the older brother of the last of Gacy's 33 young male victims.

"It's the idea that people are just going to, I don't know how to put it exactly, you know, make money off it, that disgusts me," said Kenneth Piest, a 26-year-old medical student.

The story of America's most notorious multiple slayer is potentially worth millions in book and other media rights. The issue of just who should reap those profits is at the center of a suit by Harold Piest, father of the slain 15-year-old Robert Piest.

In a telephone interview from his parents' suburban home in Des Plaines, Ill., Kenneth Piest said only the public should profit from artistic works exploring Gacy's pathological mind.

Gacy, 38, now on Death Row, was sentenced to die in the electric chair after being convicted March 12 in the sex-related slayings of 33 young men and boys. Most of the bodies were exhumed from shallow graves in a crawl space under Gacy's home near Des Plaines.

The suit was filed against Gacy, his two Chicago defense lawyers, a Houston writer, the writer's California literary agent and the agency. It asks a Cook County judge to place into a court-run escrow account profits derived from any exclusive media rights to the story.

On May 27, Circuit Court

Judge George Higgins granted a second 10-day restraining order, blocking Gacy, the writer, the agent and his literary agency from using any profits derived from the case. A hearing on the matter is set for this Friday.

A new Illinois law already bars Gacy from making money by selling his story. The law orders that profits from sales of a convicted felon's story be held in a state escrow account to pay claims awarded to relatives of the victims.

But James Corrigan, the Piest lawyer, said the family thinks the law should cover more than just Gacy's profits.

"Their point is that if a book is published, Gacy and his lawyers and others should not be unduly enriched," Corrigan said.

Gacy has signed a contract assigning exclusive rights to his story to Houston writer Clyde Burleson and Burleson's West Coast literary agent, Robert Goldfarb, according to Goldfarb. Gacy also has released his defense lawyers. Sam Amirante and Robert Motta, so they can freely discuss their involvement in the case.

Burleson and Goldfarb said they plan to interview Gacy and retrace his life to delve into the psychological forces that drove the man.

"I'm just not a sensationalist guy," said Burleson, 46, whose first book, "The Jennifer Project," was about the recovery by the CIA of a sunken Soviet submarine from the Pacific Ocean.

"I think the driving question in this Gacy thing is: 'Why, why did the man do it?'" Burleson said. "I want to do an insider's book to crawl around John Gacy's head, to walk the streets he walked."

"It is either going to be a work of the quality of 'In Cold Blood' or 'The Executioner's Song' or it will not be at all," said Goldfarb. "It's got to be an important work."

Kenneth Piest, referring to Norman Mailer's Pulitzer Prize-winning book, "The Executioner's Song" — a "true life novel" about convicted killer Gary Gilmore's 1977 execution by a Utah firing squad — said: "We don't fear the serious kind of thing on it, but that takes time."

Goldfarb said he thought the Piest suit was groundless.

He said: "No money has changed hands. No money has been pledged."

The suit originally included Amirante and Motta. But Higgins excused them, and they agreed to place their profits under court control.

But Amirante said: "I think it's absurd. Why go after the lawyers? Why not the prosecutor, or some reporters?"

David Goldberger, of the American Civil Liberties Union, who represented Amirante and Motta at the May 27 hearing, argued safeguard against prior restraint of publication.

Kenneth Piest said his father's suit is not aimed at preventing publication, but only at possible gross commercial exploitation.

The Illinois law barring Gacy from gaining financially from his crimes — dubbed the "Son of Sam" bill for the New York murders committed by former postal clerk David Berkowitz — took effect Sept. 22. Its sponsor, state Sen. Lynn Martin, said she introduced it to block book profits to a Rockford man convicted of murdering his six sleeping children in 1978.

"I just couldn't believe it," Mrs. Martin said. "The thought that he might profit financially by killing his kids made me sick."

But she said the law should not be extended to block writers, movie or television producers and lawyers from financial profits derived from works about crime.

Home of First Well Is Booming Again

TITUSVILLE, Pa. (NEA) — When Col. Edwin Drake set out to initiate a petroleum industry in America he knew just where to look. Indians had been getting oil from the streams of Western Pennsylvania for centuries, and pre-Revolutionary maps of the state often marked exact locations of the subterranean ooze.

So, in 1859, and under the employ of Eastern industrialists, Drake erected a wooden obelisk to tap an oil spring here and thereby establish the first commercial petroleum well in North America. More than 10,000 people rushed to this region, and the nation was never to be the same again.

The Titusville boom turned out to be short lived. As oil was discovered elsewhere, in greater quantities, people followed. But the industry did not by any means die in its cradle. And today, more than a century later, there is something of another boom taking place here where it all began.

This time the rush is being encouraged by high energy prices. A barrel of uncontrolled Pennsylvania crude that sold for $14.79 one year ago now commands $38. That's $10 a barrel more than comparable oil from Saudi Arabia, and, quite naturally, local folks want a piece of the new action.

Independent oil men are leasing land by the millions of acres. Property owners are erecting derricks in their back yards. No one knows with certainty how many wells are in operation now (one granddaddy has been pumping since 1861), but Pennsylvania drilling has soared 20 percent in two years.

The wells are not blockbusters, it should be noted. Much of the activity concerns painfully small holes whose yields have not yet been worth production costs. The wells, called strippers, provide 10 or fewer barrels a day. One entrepreneur owns 300 of them, and gets only about 250 barrels a week.

But at $38 a barrel, even strippers are black gold mines. For example, veteran explorer Merwin Tarr has a handful of wells that yield 10 barrels a day. In terms of income, he says, that's $380 a day for each well, seven days a week. So in one month a single small well is worth almost $12,000.

And, as Tarr tells it, the glory is that the riches are comparably easy to come by in much of the Pennsylvania belt. Many people have purchased homes or farms with abandoned wells on the land. Thousands of these wells have been reactivated, at $7,500-$15,000, and can pay for themselves in months.

Even new exploration is quite simple here. Tarr says most of the crude is close to the surface of the ground, at an average of 1,500 feet. This means searching can be relatively inexpensive (about $25,000 to $30,000), and quick. With luck, Tarr claims operators often strike oil after 10 hours of drilling.

Moreover, it's struck with encouraging regularity. The Pennsylvania field is thin, but steady, and the drilling success rate is more than triple the national average. Many observers say the field is the last one in the nation where the risk is such that average people can afford to get into oil.

Tarr says a lot of average people are doing it. He's a foundry owner himself, and only a part-time oil operator. Other people in the region have quit their jobs, and gone exploring with second mortgages. "I even see a lot of young men in the field now — and they aren't hired hands, either."

Not that it's all milk and honey, of course. Given the activity, drilling prices are rising rapidly. Tarr says machinery is in short supply, and there aren't enough oil workers to go around. Also, property owners have learned to play one side against another to get higher leasing rates.

Then there are the governmental regulations. Tarr thinks the rules of the Environmental Protection Agency alone are "horrendous," and he admits he cannot comply. "I figured it up one time, and I found that I was breaking so many federal regulations that I could be sent off to prison for 50 years."

As if these problems weren't enough, Pennsylvania oil men say the recently passed "windfall profits" tax threatens to take the bang out of this area's boom. The tax amounts to about $7 a barrel for most well producers. For land owners collecting royalties, the levy is closer to $14 a barrel.

Some here say the new tax is a cruel deterrent. And there are predictions that both exploration and production will fall sharply. But it hasn't happened yet. Actually, pumping equipment manufacturers say they have orders well into next year, and drillers say they can't keep up with demand.

Indeed, the optimists feel there is no end in sight. Geologists think that 14 billion units of oil are still here, all these years after Col. Drake's lead. And, too, the price is increasingly right. Merwin Tarr, for one, thinks in a year or so the folks in this historic field will be getting $60 a barrel.

But she said the law should not be extended to block writers, movie or television producers and lawyers from financial profits derived from works about crime.

The Newspaper Bible

WHO IS THE TRAITOR?

How true it is that a servant is not greater than his master. Nor is the messenger more important than the one who sends him.

You know these things — now do them! That is the path of blessing.

I am not saying these things to all of you; I know so well each one of you I chose. The Scripture declares, "One who eats supper with Me will betray Me," and this will soon come true.

I tell you this now so that when it happens, you will believe on Me.

Truly, anyone welcoming the Holy Spirit, whom I will send, is welcoming Me, and to welcome Me is to welcome the Father who sent Me."

Now Jesus was in great anguish of spirit and exclaimed, "Yes, it is true — one of you will betray Me."

The disciples looked at each other, wondering whom He could mean.

Since I was sitting next to Jesus at the table, being His closest friend, Simon Peter motioned to me to ask Him who it was who would do this terrible deed.

So I turned and asked Him, "Lord, who is it?"

He told me, "It is the one I honor by giving the bread dipped in the sauce." And when He had dipped it, He gave it to Judas, son of Simon Iscariot.

As soon as Judas had eaten it, Satan entered into him. Then Jesus told him, "Hurry — do it now."

None of the others at the table knew what Jesus meant. Some thought that since Judas was their treasurer, Jesus was telling him to go and pay for the food or to give some money to the poor.

Judas left at once, going out into the night.

well in North America. More than 10,000 people rushed to this region, and the nation was never to be the same again.

The Titusville boom turned out to be short lived. As oil was discovered elsewhere, in greater quantities, people followed. But the industry did not by any means die in its cradle. And today, more than a century later, there is something of another boom taking place here where it all began.

This time the rush is being encouraged by high energy prices. A barrel of uncontrolled Pennsylvania crude that sold for $14.79 one year ago now commands $38. That's $10 a barrel more than comparable oil from Saudi Arabia, and, quite naturally, local folks want a piece of the new action.

Independent oil men are leasing land by the millions of acres. Property owners are erecting derricks in their back yards. No one knows with certainty how many wells are in operation now (one granddaddy has been pumping since 1861), but Pennsylvania drilling has soared 20 percent in two years.

The wells are not blockbusters, it should be noted. Much of the activity concerns painfully small holes whose yields have not yet been worth production costs. The wells, called strippers, provide 10 or fewer barrels a day. One entrepreneur owns 300 of them, and gets only about 250 barrels a week.

But at $38 a barrel, even strippers are black gold mines. For example, veteran explorer Merwin Tarr has a handful of wells that yield 10 barrels a day. In terms of income, he says, that's $380 a day for each well, seven days a week. So in one month a single small well is worth almost $12,000.

And, as Tarr tells it, the glory is that the riches are comparably easy to come by in much of the Pennsylvania belt. Many people have purchased homes or farms with abandoned wells on the land. Thousands of these wells have been reactivated, at $7,500-$15,000, and can pay for themselves in months.

Even new exploration is quite simple here. Tarr says most of the crude is close to the surface of the ground, at an average of 1,500 feet. This means searching can be relatively inexpensive (about $25,000 to $30,000), and quick. With luck, Tarr claims operators often strike oil after 10 hours of drilling.

Moreover, it's struck with encouraging regularity. The Pennsylvania field is thin, but steady, and the drilling success rate is more than triple the national average. Many observers say the field is the last one in the nation where the risk is such that average people can afford to get into oil.

Tarr says a lot of average people are doing it. He's a foundry owner himself, and only a part-time oil operator. Other people in the region have quit their jobs, and gone exploring with second mortgages. "I even see a lot of young men in the field now — and they aren't hired hands, either."

Not that it's all milk and honey, of course. Given the activity, drilling prices are rising rapidly. Tarr says machinery is in short supply, and there aren't enough oil workers to go around. Also, property owners have learned to play one side against another to get higher leasing rates.

Then there are the governmental regulations. Tarr thinks the rules of the Environmental Protection Agency alone are "horrendous," and he admits he cannot comply. "I figured it up one time, and I found that I was breaking so many federal regulations that

As if these problems weren't enough, Pennsylvania oil men say the recently passed "windfall profits" tax threatens to take the bang out of this area's boom. The tax amounts to about $7 a barrel for most well producers. For land owners collecting royalties, the levy is closer to $14 a barrel.

Some here say the new tax is a cruel deterrent. And there are predictions that both exploration and production will fall sharply. But it hasn't happened yet. Actually, pumping equipment manufacturers say they have orders well into next year, and drillers say they can't keep up with demand.

Indeed, the optimists feel there is no end in sight. Geologists think that 14 billion units of oil are still here, all these years after Col. Drake's lead. And, too, the price is increasingly right. Merwin Tarr, for one, thinks in a year or so the folks in this historic field will be getting $60 a barrel.

But she said the law should not be extended to block writers, movie or television producers and lawyers from financial profits derived from works about crime.

Sink Hole Continues To Widen In Kermit

KERMIT, Texas (AP) — A puzzling sink hole that swallowed huge chunks of desert near Kermit has oilmen scurrying to save nearby storage tanks and one well from the widening chasm.

Workers from Petro Lewis Co. spent Wednesday trying to plug an oil well and reroute pipes as slabs of earth fell into the yawning hole several hundred yards away.

"This just makes us sick," said a foreman for the Denver-based oil company. "But we can't risk losing the whole thing to shifting ground. This well produced 50 barrels a day and we've spent $20,000 (in one day) to try and save it."

Oil pipelines from a nearby Shell tank farm were shut down Wednesday when the ground around them collapsed and two pipelines which feed the tanks were broken, a Shell spokesman said in Houston.

Indeed, the optimists feel there is no end in sight. Geologists think that 14 billion units of oil are still here, all these years after Col. Drake's lead. And, too, the price is increasingly right. Merwin Tarr, for one, thinks in a year or so the folks in this historic field will be getting $60 a barrel.

POLLY'S POINTERS
Polly Cramer
Has smelly suitcase

DEAR POLLY — My problem is that my luggage gets smelly and mildew sets in even though I set it out in the summer sun and spray it with a disinfectant. Nothing seems to help. I have had to discard one piece completely as it was so bad I could never put clothes in it. Luggage stores have no help to offer. — ELEANOR

DEAR ELEANOR — Are you storing your luggage in the basement? If so, be sure the pieces are up off the floor, standing on end and with air space between the pieces. You might try filling each bag with crushed newspaper (protect the lining from the newspaper) and leave it a couple of weeks. Replace with fresh paper if needed. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — For musty trunk odors and for linen closets I use the fabric softener sheets that usually go in the clothes dryer. — HILDA

DEAR POLLY — I am answering Virginia who is having trouble getting a handmade rug to lay flat on the floor. It must have been made that way. Working on a flat surface is important, so one can see where increases are needed. For a crocheted rug one would put two crochets in one to increase on the rounded ends where needed. I have made about 45 braided rugs from strips (usually wool) that I cut on the straight of the material. I wash the fabric, tear it into the desired width strips while wet, dry them and sew together on the bias so there are no lumps where the seams are. I lace the braids together allowing increases around the rounded ends. I do not recommend nylon fishing line for the sewing together as I do not think it stays joined as well as linen thread. The joining knots do not stay together when the rug is walked on a lot. Going through the loops while sewing together conceals the thread. There is no wear on the thread and it lasts the life of the rug. — EILEEN

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Proving paternity

DEAR DR. LAMB — A woman has moved into our area and she claims my husband is the father of her 4-year-old son. She is going to sue him for support and hospital fees. He says he did have relations with her but so did a lot of other men. Now what I'd like to know is if there is any way she can prove this. She says she can through a blood test.

DEAR READER — In the past blood tests were frequently used to determine paternity. They never were all that helpful and they are of limited value in establishing paternity. For the most part, the blood test can only be used to prove that a man is not the father of the child. Let me illustrate. If the baby has type B blood and the mother is type A and the accused father's blood type is also type A, he is not the father of the child. In that instance, the father of the child would have to have type B or type AB blood.

Now let's say the accused man might have type B blood, that still doesn't prove he's the father of the child because there are a lot of other men who also have type B blood. This illustrates the principle. The technique can be refined by using subtypes of blood.

Today there are much more sophisticated means of determining parentage. This is an outgrowth of tissue typing used for organ transplants.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is there any value for a person with angina to give blood three times a year? If so, how much? If I would have less

Names in the News

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP)— He only weighs eight pounds, 13 ounces, but he carries one of the biggest names in the automotive business.

Henry Ford III, a grandson of the recently retired chairman of giant Ford Motor Co., was born here Wednesday, according to a spokesman for Ford Australia.

The infant is the grandson of Henry Ford II and the son of Edsel and Cynthia Ford. Edsel Ford is the only son of the retired chairman and the baby is the first of Henry II's grandsons to be given the name of the founder of the Detroit-based automaker.

The parents are Americans. The 31-year-old Edsel Ford is currently assistant-managing director of Ford Australia.

BOONE, Iowa (AP)— Bob Hope, who was a close friend of President and Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower, is coming to Iowa to help dedicate Mamie Eisenhower's birthplace.

Hope will join Gov. Robert Ray at the June 22 dedication. Mrs.

Eisenhower's home is only the second birthplace of a first lady to be preserved. The other is the home of Abigail Adams.

Mrs. Eisenhower, who died in November, was born Mamie Doud here in 1897. The two-bedroom bungalow in which she was born has undergone a restoration and will be unveiled to the public after the ceremony.

Hope is an honorary trustee of the birthplace foundation. Proceeds from ticket sales will go to the foundation.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—

What size shoe does a perfect "10" wear?

Well, the secret is out. Bo Derek, star of the film "10," bought two pair of size 7B shoes at a Joseph Magnin specialty store here, drawing a crowd when she entered the store Wednesday.

"Everyone in the store was watching her from the moment she walked in," said store publicity woman Margaret Randall.

The film star charged the open-toed beige and white shoes, Ms. Randall said.

NEW YORK (AP)—

Director Milos Forman says his great coup — coaxing film giant James Cagney out of retirement — all started with a joke.

Cagney, who in the 1930s became one of the greatest bad guys in movie history, has been signed to play the role of the police commissioner in "Ragtime," Forman's upcoming movie based on the best-seller by E.L. Doctorow. The 80-year-old left the movies in 1961. He now lives on his New York farm.

According to good friend Forman, the two started joking one day about Cagney playing a part in the picture.

"We kept it up for a few weeks. But slowly it became more than a game. I noticed that he was getting serious. And finally, he said, 'Well, let's do it.'" Foreman told the Daily News.

Cagney's part will be a brief one in the 2 1/4-hour movie based in the turn of the century, Forman said.

Shooting will start in July.

The director refused to say how much Cagney will be paid. "How can you put a price on a Rembrandt?" he asked.

The artist George Catlin, who followed The Lewis & Clark train in the 1830s, found himself honored as a magician. Superstitious Sioux, amazed by his ability to capture human beings on canvas, hailed him as a powerful medicine man.

The symbol of affluence used to be two cars in every garage. Now it's one car with a full gas tank.
