Hopper Control Signup Extended

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

The deadline to sign up rangeland in Deaf Smith County for a cooperative grasshopper spraying program has been extended through Monday, according to word received from the county Extension office.

The original signup deadline had been Tuesday, but when an official with the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service appeared at the courthouse Tuesday morning to determine which blocks of acreage would be accepted for the spraying program here he announced the deadline extension.

A grasshopper control committee has been working in the county to encourage landowners to sign up their rangeland and make an advance payment of 70 cents per acre as their part of a cooperative control program which will also involve the Texas Department of Agriculture and APHIS.

Each agency will share in one third of the cost of spraying each acre of rangeland signed up in the program.

APHIS regulations dictate that acreage must be worked up in blocks of a minimum of 10,000 acres, and blocks may not contain more than 10 percent cultivated land worked into the plots.

A total of 178,630 acres had been blocked up for the control program in Deaf Smith County as of Tuesday morning, with $125,000 collected from local landowners as their share of the cost of conducting the local spraying program.

Jim Duncan with APHIS in Plainview was on hand at the courthouse Tuesday morning to review the acreage blocked up in the county and gave early indications that two large tracts in the western portion of the county will likely be accepted for spraying.

Work continues on enlisting land along a draw just to the west of Hereford, as well as in the area to the northeast of Hereford.

Large tracts have already been blocked up in the Adrian area and in the far western portion of the county, running all the way to the New Mexico border.

A delimiting survey of grasshopper populations is underway in the county this week as entomologists study the number of hopper nymphs on hand now after they have had about two weeks to hatch since the last survey.

An initial survey here revealed as many as 43 grasshoppers per square yard in some locations.

Only eight hoppers per square yard is considered the population level at which control measures become economically feasible, and APHIS officials report a population of eight per square yard can consume as much grass as a cow over ten acres.

The hopper spraying program will begin in July, with hopper control officials looking to begin spraying after the majority of this year's hopper crop has already hatched, but before the leaping pests can begin egg laying to launch another population for next year.

Deaf Smith County is a grasshopper hotspot in the state this year, and after a bout with the pests last year, local rangeland operators are hoping to bring the pests under control this year.

Spraying of the hoppers will involve the use of the pesticide malathion, a highly safe chemical commonly used in controlling mosquitoes in cities.

According to APHIS, the pesticide is safe for use over grazing animals and if reinfestation does not occur from areas surrounding the zone that is sprayed, records indicate one spray application will provide protection from grasshoppers for periods of three to five years.

Local landowners interested in participating in the grasshopper control program are required to make their one-third payment in advance.

They may enroll in the program by contacting the county Extension office, or by getting in touch with county hopper control committee chairman Eldred Brown, or committee members Charles Hoover, Jim Perrin, Ira Scott, Gene Bradley, John Hays or Art Reinauer.

UFCW To Talk Armour Issue

Members of the United Food and Commercial Workers Union at the Hereford Armour Foods plant will haggle over the issue of possible re-negotiation of terms with the firm for labor contracts here at a closed union meeting tonight.

Union members vowed to "have it out" at tonight's meeting in the wake of a bitterly divisive three-day meeting held Sunday at the Bull Barn to determine the interest of Armour employees here in possible negotiations between the company and the union.

Sunday's formal meeting was brief and its proceedings were disrupted early on. Later in the session the majority of the 50 people present walked out, charging that their time was being wasted.

Following the walkout union members gathered on the Bull Barn parking lot for a running debate concerning the issues surrounding the Hereford Armour plant, which is scheduled to be shut down Oct. 31.

Prominent among the issues discussed was a vow by many union members that they will not accept a pay cut in order to keep the meat packing plant operating here.

Other union members asked, however, that their efforts to come up with some type of arrangement to keep the plant here not be tampered with.

Awww, Shucks

Youngsters all set for a big sendoff for the Deaf Smith County Library's "Sports Splash" reading club literally had the air let out of their balloon Tuesday afternoon. Pat Gallagher and Steve Coneway brought their hot air balloon to the parking lot of the county library and were planning to fly the balloon for the youngsters as part of the launching ceremonies for the reading program. Winds aloft did in those plans however, preventing a balloon flight. So, while youngsters didn't actually get to see a balloon flight, they did get some first-hand information about how it's all done from Gallagher and Coneway. (Brand photo by Denise Smith)

Oil Cartel Sets Another Price Hike in Motion

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) - The world oil cartel, after a bitterly divisive three-day meeting, set in motion today another round of price increases that could force American consumers to pay as much as 3 cents a gallon more for gasoline and home heating fuel.

The 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries set a reference, or benchmark price of $32 a barrel - roughly halfway between Saudi Arabia's $28 and Iran's $35. OPEC also fixed a ceiling of $37 a barrel, which will prevent hawks Algeria, Nigeria and Libya from making large price hikes in a new round of "leapfrogging."

But the compromise agreement was mostly for public consumption, because individual members may wait as long as they like before putting their prices in line with the new benchmark.

Under the accord, middle-priced countries, led by Iraq and including Kuwait and Venezuela, are to raise current prices, about $30 a barrel, by $2.

But prices at the lower and upper ends of the spectrum will remain unchanged - at least for now.

Saudi Arabia, for one, said it would not raise prices at this time, although conference sources said a Saudi increase would come in the next few months. Iran, which sells oil virtually identical to that of Saudi Arabia and Iraq, said it would not decrease the cost of oil.

As a result, OPEC prices will remain disunited as they have been since early 1979.

Over five sessions, the conference bounced from discord to agreement as some ministers, like Iranian, Oil Minister Ali Akbar Moftari, announced they had achieved unanimity. Others, like United Arab Emirates Oil Minister Mana Sa'eed al-Otaiba, said there was no agreement on anything.

Many OPEC members argue production must be reduced to eliminate the current world oil glut and prevent another. A production cutback would help support high prices charged by Iran and other OPEC hawks.

The Saudis appeared to have successfully resisted demands they cut their daily 9.5 million barrels production

Demo Mayors Rally to Carter

SEATTLE (AP) - President Carter has told the nation's mayors to look for no pie in the sky, but Democrats among them have rushed to his side despite their demands for more help from Washington.

The Democratic caucus of the U.S. Conference of Mayors renewed its longstanding endorsement of Carter on Tuesday and suggested that Sen. Edward M. Kennedy bow out of the race for the party's presidential nomination.

Meanwhile, the Republican mayors gave their endorsement to Ronald Reagan, the only remaining active GOP presidential candidate, who had visited the conference on Sunday.

The force of the double resolutions on Carter and Kennedy came as a surprise, particularly following Carter's blunt declaration earlier in the day that there will be no massive transfusion of federal aid to help recession-ridden cities.

One of the top items on today's agenda was a resolution asking for just such assistance for cities laboring under the highest unemployment rates in four years.

The Democratic mayors said despite their problems, Carter had "brought new hope to urban America and helped to foster the economic, social and spiritual revitalization of America's urban centers."

A second resolution said any further struggle by Kennedy could only help the Republicans, and Mayor Robert P. Blackwell of Highland Park, Ill., said in a seconding speech, "Ronald

The Hereford school board, by a 5-2 vote, decided Tuesday night that the school system should adopt the "pairing" plan in elementary schools for the next school year.

The plan will put grades kindergarten through third in three schools and the respective "paired" schools will have grades four through six.

The motion approved by trustees also calls for the administration to recommend, at its next meeting, which schools will be paired. This would enable principals and other school officials to start making plans for the change in the elementary school make-up for the 1980-81 school year.

As had been anticipated, Supt. Harrell Holder recommended to the board that the school district wait one year before establishing the pairing plan. This option would have included the adoption of a redistricting plan as a temporary solution for the next school year.

David Hutchins moved to accept that recommendation, and Paul Ramirez seconded. A lengthy discussion followed the motion, with both trustees and members of the audience expressing their views. That motion was defeated by 5-2 with only Hutchins and Ramirez voting for it.

Then, James Gentry made the motion to initiate the pairing plan immediately, and James Arney seconded. Again the vote was 5-2, this time in favor of the plan, with Hutchins and Ramirez voting against.

All of the proposals had come about as a result of declining enrollment in the schools. Dr. Holder reported that the school lost about $100,000 in state aid this past year because of a drop in the average daily attendance. Along with the decline, he explained that the teacher-pupil ratio had become a difficult problem.

About 25 interested parents and teachers attended the board meeting last night for the discussion on the elementary school make-up. Most of those present asked the board to wait a year before going to the pairing plan.

Several of the trustees who voted for the pairing plan stated they would go for the year's delay "if there was another good option," but they didn't like the redistricting plan. Clark Andrews asked Holder if there was any way the district could go another year without making a change at all.

The superintendent replied that he thought, at the very least, a zone adjustment would have to be made. With no change, he said it appeared "we would have to add some rooms at Shirley." That would necessitate a tax increase, the imbalance in classrooms would still exist, and it would be difficult to reduce the number of teachers, he continued.

"When I stated that we do not have the luxury of doing nothing, that also meant that we can't get by without a tax increase," said Holder.

Hutchins pointed out that patrons should be made aware that, whether the pairing plan was adopted or not, some tax increase would be needed. "We have operated on reduced taxes and absorbed the inflationary costs for several years."

Holder said that, under the pairing plan, it would be possible to do away with 12 teachers (by not filling vacancies). That would include six in the elementary grades and six more in the junior highs and high school. A reduction in teachers would also have been possible under the zone adjustments.

Some of the trustees said they had changed their minds about pairing after attending the three sessions with parents on three different campuses. However, some of the parents at the Tuesday night meeting expressed the feeling that more input was not received by the board because the public meeting on May 29 closed with Holder's statement that he would recommend the zone changes as a temporary solution.

Bill Townsend, who said he was not sure if he was for the pairing plan or not, urged the board not to "jump into" the plan this year. In urging the board to wait and study the plans further, he said it appeared the public opinion on the matter was a "toss-up." He added that the pairing plan should have been discussed more, so that people were better informed. "I don't think you should go into a program that might be viewed with apprehension by many of the people."

Andrews, in launching the discussion on the first motion, said he had changed his mind after the three meetings with parents. "I feel the teacher-student ratio is one of the most

Teacher Pay Hike Eyed

Discussion on the new "pairing" plan for the elementary schools took up much of the time of the Hereford School Board's 4 1/2-hour meeting Tuesday evening, but in other action the trustees:

...Made a brief consideration of the preliminary budget, which included salary increases.

...Approved the appointment of Raymond Schroeder as assistant high school principal, and the appointment of Ophelia Echevarria as bilingual director.

...Approved the employment of four teachers and the resignations of eight.

...Accepted service agreements with the Educational Service Center in Amarillo.

...Heard a report from curriculum coordinator Mal Manchec on the Texas Assessment of Basic Skills testing for fifth and ninth graders.

...Approved bills and heard routine reports from various school departments.

The preliminary budget total from local revenue was tabbed at $6,214,850 for the next school year - up $333,600 over the past year. Supt. Harrell Holder explained that salary increases and utilities accounted for much of the increase.

The teacher pay raises - including local increase, the experience increments and the state raise - ranged from 8.9 percent for a master's degree teacher with 26 or more years to 12.4 percent for a master's degree with 5 years. Most other proposed teachers' raises would be in the 11 to 12 percent bracket, said Holder.

For example, a beginning teacher last year received $9,700 and, under the tentative budget, would receive $10,850. That represents a 11.86 percent hike.

Approved as new teachers were Donna McGee (special education), Connie Howell (La Plata), Janet McWhorter (Tierra Blanca), and Bill Hardy (high school). Resignations were accepted from Alex Glass, Bobby Decker and Donna Vander Zee (high school); Andrew Wilks and Connie Gilbert (Stanton); Voncell Meyers (W. Central); Dubelsa Altamirano (T. Blanca), and Jaquetta Glass (Aikman).

The board meeting started at 5 p.m. and ended about 9:35. All trustees were present, but James Arney had sent word that he would not arrive until 6 p.m. Board member David Hutchins requested that the pairing plan discussion be delayed until all members were present, and President Sallie Strain agreed to take up other items in the agenda.

Scattered Showers Drench County

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

Thunderstorm activity was recorded across Northwest Texas Tuesday night and several funnel clouds, danged their way across the South Plains, but apparently none of the twisters touched down and no damage was reported.

A thunderstorm moved into Deaf Smith County from the west last night around eight o'clock, accompanied by blustery winds.

The storm brought widely scattered thundershowers to the area and left appreciable moisture accumulations in several localities, with the rainfall welcomed by local farmers.

One of the heaviest rainfall reports from last night's shower activity came from the vicinity of the Frio Draw south of Hereford where 1.50 inches fell.

Farther south, .60 inches of rain was recorded in the Easter community.

KPAN radio logged a total of .96 inches for downtown Hereford, and there were areas of the city that received an inch or more of rainfall.

Just to the east of Hereford at the edge of the city airport, .50 inches of rainfall was recorded.

A moisture accumulation of 1.30 inches was reported from an area nine miles northeast of Hereford as heavier accumulations were scattered.

To the northwest of Hereford, Northwest Grain, located west of Farmer's Corner recorded .50 inches of rainfall and a spokesman at that firm reported that .90 inches of rain fell to the northwest of the elevator.

To the west of Hereford Bill Page reported .50 inches of rainfall at the county barn at Bootleg Corner.

According to Page, moisture amounted to .35 inches five miles west of Bootleg while .20 inches was reported from the Simms area.

East of Hereford, only a trace of rain was measured at the Dawn Community according to a spokesman for Dawn Co-Op.

Brilliant arcs of lightning and rolling thunder, accompanied last night's storm as it moved over Hereford, setting up a show of lights and commotion along with the waterworks.

On the South Plains, the city of Lubbock received 1.72 inches of rain and there were reports of minor street flooding.

Portions of Northwest Texas remained under a tornado watch for several hours last night, and several counties were placed under tornado warnings following funnel cloud sightings.

More thunderstorm activity is forecast for Northwest Texas, and there is the possibility of some heavy or severe storm activity late today.

Warmer conditions are expected to prevail through Thursday with highs reaching the 90's in the Panhandle.

Judge Says Potts Can't Save Self

ATLANTA (AP) - A federal judge says condemned murderer Jack Potts won't be able to save himself from the electric chair with another last-minute appeal.

U.S. District Judge William C. O'Kelley granted Potts' request Tuesday to drop his appeals but warned he was abandoning the last chance to save his life.

"I'm well aware of that," replied Potts, who was scheduled to die last week but stopped his execution with only hours to go by resurrounding the appeal process he halted last fall.

O'Kelley's warning "might not be the last word if Potts were seriously interested in resuming his appeals," said Henry Schwarzschild, director of the Capital Punishment Project of the American Civil Liberties Union in New York.

But the odds of stopping the execution are poor. Schwarzschild said.

Reagan Pledges Checkups

NEW YORK (AP) - Ronald Reagan, who at age 69 would be the oldest president to take office, says if he is elected he would get regular medical checkups and would resign if any serious sign of senility were detected, the New York Times reported in today's editions.

"If I were president and had any feeling at all that my capabilities had been reduced before a second term came, I would walk away. By the same token I would step down also," the Republican candidate said in an interview with the newspaper.

Six doctors have given the former California governor a clean bill of health, saying his medical problems were minor, such as hay fever and moderate hearing loss in both ears. The hearing problem does not require a hearing aid.

Reagan, who said he has made it a practice to issue reports on his health since he first entered politics, told the newspaper that he was as alert as he was 20 years ago and that he "never felt better."

He has had annual checkups since 1957 with the latest in January 1979.

Ford Notified Of Car Defects

NEW YORK (AP) - The federal Department of Transportation has notified the Ford Motor Co. in Detroit that an "initial determination" has shown transmission slippage defects in 16 million automobiles, according to today's New York Times.

Such a finding usually results in a formal recall which, were it ordered, would be the largest one in the history of the automobile industry.

The defect is said to be in the transmission system of the company's passenger cars, causing them to slip from park to reverse without warning, according to the Times.

In a letter sent to Ford officials on Tuesday, the federal government said the defects appeared during an investigation of passenger cars in models dating from 1969 to 1979.

The next step, according to the Times, is a public hearing - usually held within 30 days - to determine if a formal recall order should be issued. A recall would cost the nation's No. 2 automaker several hundred million dollars.

Hitchhiker Sought In Jordan Case

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) - A hitchhiker who may have been looking for a ride near the Marriott Inn when Vernon E. Jordan Jr. was gunned down could provide insight into the shooting of the civil rights leader, a city detective says.

Chief of detectives Kenneth Van Ryn said Tuesday police are seeking a possible witness to the May 29 sniper attack using a composite sketch of a man seen hitchhiking near the motel at the time of the shooting.

Van Ryn said police learned of the potential witness during interviews on May 31 with residents of nearby homes. The 44-year-old National Urban League president was shot in the back as he got out of a car in the motel parking lot.

Police have developed a composite sketch of the hitchhiker, believed to be in his 30s, but refused to release further details.

Dogfight Trial Set

LITTLE ROCK (AP) - Trial is set for July 22 in federal court at Little Rock for a Houston man charged with taking part in an interstate dogfighting venture.

Wendall "utch" House, 30, pleaded innocent Tuesday to three counts of conspiracy and interstate transportation of animals for gambling.

House and two other men were indicted by a federal grand jury last month for allegedly participating in a dogfight that was raided near Trumann.

Trial is scheduled to begin July 1 for two other defendants in the case, Johnny Green, 34, of Memphis, Tenn., and Donald Walton, 37, of Trumann.

The raid was made Dec. 8 on a farm Walton owns. About 40 agents from the Agriculture Department and state and local agencies who conducted the raid said they seized a number of weapons, quantities of illegal drugs and money they said was to be used for gambling.

House's attorney, Jerry D. Patchen of Houston, told U.S. Magistrate Robert W. Faulkner on Tuesday that he would call "a large number" of persons who attended the fight to show that gambling wasn't going on.

Carter Wants Clark Prosecution

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter says he would be inclined to prosecute former Attorney General Ramsey Clark for traveling to Iran, but will leave the final decision to the present attorney general.

Clark responded that the president's remarks have effectively poisoned any case the government might have had.

In an impromptu news conference aboard Air Force One, Carter said Tuesday that the trip by Clark and nine others to a conference on "The Crimes of America" against Iran was "damaging to the nation's foreign policy and to carrying out sanctions against Iran."

But the president said the decision of how and whether to proceed against Clark and his companions would be up to Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti.

"My guess would be he would seek civil penalties," Carter said.

Conviction for violating the criminal section of the International Emergency Economic Powers Act, which Carter invoked to ban travel to Iran, is punishable by up to 10 years in prison and a $50,000 fine.

The president's talk of prosecuting Clark and the others contrasted with a statement Sunday by Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie, who said the travel ban was intended to prevent people from going to Iran rather than punishing people who violate the policy.

However, Carter noted that it is Civiletti and himself - not Muskie - who bear the responsibility for deciding who to prosecute. "And my own inclination is to enforce my directive, which I presume to be legal, and when people violate it, to see that an appropriate punishment is levied," he said.

The president referred to Clark as a "misguided American" whose interference threatened to "exacerbate an already serious situation."

Clark, reached in Paris by CBS News, had this response to the president's comments: "Well, I'm saddened by it, a little bit. I love our country and I believe in the presidency, but I don't think President Carter understands what law is. He's a politician. He can't be talking about criminal cases. It's absolutely improper. Suppose there really was a case against me. For him to talk about it poisons the case. Doesn't he believe in the rule of law? More important, I don't think he understands freedom."

After answering questions on a wide range of subjects for 40 minutes, Carter landed in Grand Island, Neb., to tour the damage caused by recent tornadoes that swept away several blocks of the city of 40,000 inhabitants.

He promised homeless residents the federal government would not forget them and praised their courage, their "pioneer spirit" and their "unselfish attitude" toward each other.

During the session with reporters aboard the plane, Carter:

- Said his administration has not abandoned hopes for reaching a strategic arms limitation agreement with the Soviets and already is "exploring SALT III" even while the SALT II pact lies dormant and unratified by the Senate in the wake of the Soviet drive into Afghanistan.

- Indicated he is reconsidering his decision not to debate Rep. John B. Anderson during the 1980 presidential campaign, but continued to rule out a debate with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

- Said he expects the stalled Palestinian autonomy talks between Egypt and Israel to resume in Washington later this month.

- Acknowledged that his inability to prevent Congress from killing his dime-a-gallon gasoline fee shows America's allies. "Obviously, I'm not as effective as I like."

Mayors

Reagan scares the hell out of me.

The Democrats asked Kennedy to stop campaigning "in the sake of party unity and to ensure a Democratic victory across this land in November."

Both resolutions passed without recorded dissent on floor votes, but Kennedy supporters among the mayors stayed away from the meeting, and Mayor Richard Fulton of Nashville voted against the Carter endorsement in the group's executive committee.

The Democrats had endorsed Carter a year ago, and some expression of continuing support had been expected this year. However, the anti-Kennedy measure was offered from the floor by Mayor Dennis M. Lynch of Pawtucket, R.I., without any advance notice.

Carter told the mayors in his speech earlier that he was "deeply concerned" about the hardships caused the cities and their residents by the growing recession.

"But I want to remind you and I want the nation to know that together we have put in place programs which are working to reduce the adverse impact of the recession," Carter said.

"We must not mislead ourselves or those who listen to our voices," Carter said. "We have to deal with the root causes of inflation and unemployment."

Carter did raise the prospect of "other steps" which he might take "if recession should deepen and unemployment continues to rise unabated." But he also said, "We will maintain fiscal discipline in Washington, and we will not take action which will fuel inflation." The suggestion of some recession relief was inserted by Carter into his prepared text as he read the speech. He did not say what kind of steps he might take, or when they might be necessary.

"I believe unemployment has already increased and recession already has deepened," said Mayor Coleman Young of Detroit, who said he still supports Carter. "It has been full upon us for a year." Young said he did not expect any more from Carter than was offered in the speech, the most austere of the three given by presidential candidates at the mayors' annual convention. Independent John Anderson spoke here on Monday.

"I don't think there's any reason to hope for more," Young said after the Carter speech. "He's been pretty consistent, and I think to have turned an about-face because he's talking to mayors would be completely uncharacteristic of Jimmy Carter."

"We were not expecting him to come with the money bag today," said Mayor Maynard Jackson of Atlanta, another Carter supporter. "That would have been totally unrealistic."

But Mayor Clyde Wilson of Columbia, Mo., said many mayors were "still concerned about" the people who are disadvantaged in our communities.

"We don't think enough is being done for them," Wilson said. "And the approach of simply trying to build the economy and thinking there will be enough trickle-down to take care of these people is not enough."

School Board

important factors to parents and teachers, and we know it is important to the state and federal governments." He stated he was in favor of going ahead with pairing.

Holder had told the board that he believed pairing was a "good long-term solution to our problems, but any plan has to have the support of parents and teachers." He said a survey of teachers varied from school to school, but he felt the staff was "slightly in favor of pairing now, if a change is to be made."

Holder added, "it is my own personal opinion that I'd like to have a year to get ready for the pairing plan."

Hutchins agreed with the superintendent, saying he thought it would be better for the administration and the community to wait a year. He then made the motion to make the minimum changes and plan for pairing the following year.

Ramirez, who seconded that motion, stated he was also in favor of the plan to wait for one year, study the situation more and get ready to start the pairing.

Trustee James Gentry said he, like many people, was usually "slow to change, but we need to make some change which has some semblance to a lasting situation." He added he didn't think the board should wait a year. "If we just change zones, we'll be looking at a change again next year, so I think we should go ahead."

Mack Tubb said he, too, had the opinion that the situation could be temporarily alleviated following the first public meeting. "The thing that weighs utmost in my mind is that if we wait, we will be moving some students in zones - especially those on buses, then move them to another zone next year. I think we should go to the pairing plan now; we can work out the problems and I don't believe it will cause any irreparable harm."

Trustee James Arney said he had given the plans much consideration and "talked to many people, and I noticed their attitudes have changed the more they learn about the pairing plan. The important thing is what's best for the child, and I think the pairing plan will give a better teacher-pupil ratio. I don't think we'll have a better solution next year."

board decides to do, then I will be behind it." One parent questioned Dr. Holder about the time that would be spent on a bus under the pairing plan. Holder explained that it would not take away from instructional time, and that students could still walk to their "home" school, and take a short shuttle-bus ride if they were going to the "paired" school. Or, parents can still take children to the school, he added.

One teacher, who has taught for 20 years, said she liked her "comfortable little place" in the system, but she had rather have a lower ratio of students to teacher. "Every change I've made has made me more alert, and I think the children will adjust quickly."

Johnnie Price, speaking from the audience, pointed out that the seven board members had more time to study the plans. "I feel parents would feel better about the change if we waited a year, and I think the school would have better community support."

One of the teachers agreed with Price. "We were approached about the plan just before school was out. If we had known about three months before, I think teachers could have accepted it with less ruffled feathers."

One woman said she thought parents knew what was best for their children. "We haven't had time to study this much. The people on the board have the power to do what they want; I wish I was sitting up there," she said.

"I wish you were, too," exclaimed Mrs. Strain. Another teacher told the board that "no matter what you decide, there will be those for and those against. I think you folks should decide what you think is best for the students, teachers, parents and community and go ahead with it."

Before the vote, Mrs. Strain expressed appreciation to those attending and those who attended the other meetings and offered input. She also thanked the members of the board and the administration for their extra time and effort.

Perhaps one of the most profound statements came after the meeting. Townsend, a parent who was opposed to adopting the pairing plan this year, said: "I hope all parents will go home, kiss their children and tell them that the school has a wonderful new plan for them next year."

"We can fight our battles with the administration and our views may not coincide, but we shouldn't involve our children in those battles."

Jojoba Eyed As Oil Crop Hope

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - Between 100,000 and 150,000 acres of Arizona farmland, some of it once used for growing high grade cotton, are idle now because the water table is falling and the cost of pumping water is rising.

Slowly, however, some of the land is being made productive with a crop that is experimental, but which some innovative farmers and university officials believe could become the basis of a major new industry. The crop is jojoba - pronounced hoboba, with the emphasis on the second syllable - a bush that needs so little water that it thrives on the arid, sometimes mountainous lands that are so hostile to most other vegetation.

Jojoba is amazing. It produces oil, a finer grade lubricating oil than that from the endangered sperm whale, an oil so pure it requires little or no refining.

Vandals Slash Vehicle Tires

Vandals stalked the city last night, slashing tires on several vehicles, including two pickups belonging to the City of Hereford water department.

Charlene Sealy of 600 Irving and Curtis Brinkley of 407 Ave. J also reported that tires had been slashed on their vehicles. Brinkley is employed with the city.

In addition, two dozen combs valued at $40 were stolen last night from the Golden Comb Beauty Salon, 801 Brevard.

Police said a brown AM/FM radio, valued at $69 was also taken.

Johnny Navez reported that 22 cal. nickel plated pistol with a brown holster was taken from his vehicle, police said. The holster was valued at $45, and the pistol at $95.99.

Police also reported another bicycle theft. A Huff model, painted black and belonging to Lee Thompson, 107 Ave. K, was stolen from in front of the 7-11 on Park Ave.

A pair of boots valued at $100 was stolen from Boots and Saddles, N 385, police said. A 17 year old female was arrested with the boots in her possession.

Police made two arrests for intoxication by paint sniffing, one arrest for public intoxication, and issued seven traffic citations.

The Lighter Side

MONTAGUE, Mich. (AP) - Larry Weesies and his two cousins were pulling their hair over the deer problems at their western Michigan celery farm.

That was before Montague barber Gary Knapp gave them some hair of his own. The three farmers recently began spreading discarded human hair in their celery fields in hopes that the scene will keep deer from munching on the plants.

"It's too early to say if this will work, but we are giving it a try," Weesies said Tuesday. "There were a couple of deer in the fields today. I think after a heavy rain it loses its effectiveness."

back by 1 million. The desert kingdom increased production, as did Iraq, to offset the shortfall in oil supplies following the Iranian revolution.

Saudi Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Hamani, who has predicted oil prices will decrease by fall because of reduced demand caused in part by the U.S. recession, by fall because of reduced demand caused in part by the U.S. recession, told reporters he would not boost prices "under current market conditions."

However, Libyan Oil Minister Abulssalam Mohammed Zagar and several other ministers said they understood that Saudi Arabia, the world's leading oil exporter and producer of one-third of all OPEC oil, would lift its price to $32 within several months.

According to industry analysts, gasoline and heating oil prices in the United States go up about 1 1/2 cents a gallon for every $1 increase in the price of an OPEC 42-gallon barrel.

It has potential in cosmetics, foods, and polishing waxes. Nobody knows how many uses there are for jojoba, but enough is known to astound most people: candles, animal feed, ornamental hedges, mulch, textiles-sizing and even in the production of penicillin.

And yet, after analyzing a sample from the University of Arizona, a major oil company said jojoba's future might even be in production of numerous other products, such as resins, dependent on jojoba's rare alcohol.

Officials of the Office of Arid Land Studies, University of Arizona, are in a mild dilemma: They do not wish to raise unwarranted hopes, and they do not wish to dash hopes either. But they are excited.

R. Leslie Rawls, a former Indiana farmer now with the Arid Lands unit, states "it is on its way to becoming an established agricultural product."

What is needed, said Rawls, is more acreage than the 6,000 to 10,000 acres expected to be under cultivation in Arizona and California by the end of the year.

"We need an acreage base to supply enough year in and year out," he says, adding "a number of large companies have expressed interest but have not gotten into the business because of the uncertain supply."

That base is building. In this year alone, about 2,000 to 4,000 acres will be planted in Arizona and California, probably doubling the size of existing plantings. The pace is picking up, and for sound financial reasons.

When plants mature in five years, they give 2 to 3 pounds of oil each, according to Rawls. The oil wholesales for $6.50 to $10 a pound, or $45 to $70 a gallon.

Bob Green and Peter Childs, young Ohioans who founded Sunland Jojoba and operate experimental acreage in nearby Marana, say a smart farmer can obtain $3,000 an acre with jojoba versus $300 or $400 with cotton.

To Sunland and other entrepreneurs, however, there is another and perhaps even greater advantage. Jojoba needs only a fraction of the water absorbed by cotton: Rawls estimates it at about one-fifth.

Small Talk

By SUE COLEMAN

The Witherspoons, one of the sure-enough pioneer families of this county, had their annual Cousins' Reunion in connection with Mid-Plains Pioneer Day. Some of the cousins from other states stayed several days and visited last week with family members who still live here.

The family of five brothers and four sisters came to Deaf Smith County before Hereford was established and lived at the now-vanished town of La Plata, were ranchers and farmers and businessmen of the early days at La Plata and later in Hereford.

None of them are living now; the youngest son, Vern, moved from Hereford to Albuquerque several years ago and is now deceased. It is the children of those nine Witherspoon brothers and sisters who began holding the Cousins' Reunion after members of the first generation were gone.

Now the various cousins gather each year, with their wives, husbands, children, grandchildren and others of the clan. They got together at the J.W. Witherspoon home two evenings, had dinner one day at the Thompson House and breakfast at Dickies' and otherwise visited and swapped family news.

There was one member of the older generation, an in-law, Lyn Furch of Austin, acclaimed as the oldest man at Pioneer Day, was the husband of the late Roxie Witherspoon, one of the original family.

The Vern Witherspoons' son and his family, Bud and Myra and their son Neil, came from Albuquerque. The Walter Schultzes (her mother was one of the Witherspoon girls) and their son and daughter-in-law were from Concord, Calif.

Then there were Ada and George Wilson and Lillian Terry of Truth or Consequences, N.M., Raymond and Lois Witherspoon of Gilcrest, Colo., Jake Witherspoon of Ruidoso, Maybelle and Kay Baird of Amarillo, and Lonnie Kelly of Pecos among the crowd of cousins -- some once or twice removed.

It looks something like a family reunion at the Garth Thomas' house this week, with three daughters and their children there from the east and west.

Marina Farmer and her three children are from Marietta, Ga., Tamara Todd with husband Allan and their four from Richmond, Va., and Orlean Jolley and her four from the ranch near Stanfield, Ariz.

Edwina Thomas says the grandchildren are finding plenty to do to keep them happy, with the swimming pool as the big attraction these warm days.

This is annual membership week for the Community Concert Association, with its chance for area residents to buy some mighty good entertainment for a mighty low price. The concerts next season include one by the Roger Wagner Chorale -- by itself worth the cost of a membership.

And some people are always surprised to learn that the membership cards which are the only means of admittance to these concerts, may be loaned to someone else if the holder isn't going to one of the programs.

For instance, if Father would like to hear the Wagner Chorale but would prefer to watch TV ball games on the nights of the other concerts, he could let Aunt Sophie use his ticket for the Pittel saxophone trio and relieve her memories of the saxophone ensembles she danced to back in the 'thirties, while Aunt Ethel, who fancies herself as a pianist, would love to hear piano soloist Monty Alexander.

If he isn't feeling that generous, he just might sell each of them a third interest in his membership card!

Bishop Matthiesen To Dedicate Church

The Most Rev. L.T. Matthiesen, newly ordained bishop for the diocese of Amarillo, will be in Hereford Sunday for the blessing and dedication of the new church of San Jose at 4 p.m.

Although the church has been complete for some time, the first mass having been said there on January 13 of this year, has not yet been dedicated.

According to Rev. James O'Connor, pastor, there was no bishop when the church was ready, "so we moved it and were using it."

Bishop Matthiesen will be the principal celebrant at the dedication mass.

San Jose, which was formerly a mission under the direction of St. Anthony's, is now an autonomous parish.

"This means we are a separate entity; we run our own show completely; we are self-supporting," said Rev.

O'Connor. Although San Jose has been technically independent since 1978, the new church is the final symbol of autonomy.

According to Rev. O'Connor, the church cost $273 thousand, the parking lot ran $50 thousand, and the parish spent $35 thousand to buy the land to begin with. All this money was raised by the people of San Jose themselves, Rev. O'Connor said.

Ministers from every denomination in the city have been invited to the dedication, as well as priests from the surrounding area. Around 1000 people are expected to attend.

Rev. O'Connor said he hoped people from all denominations would feel welcome to come.

"It's kind of a happy day for us," he said. "A day of thanksgiving. We'd like to share our joy."

Ann Landers Welfare No Disgrace

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A letter that appeared in your column from "A Taxpayer in Akron" made me so mad I got a headache.

As you have probably guessed by now, we are welfare recipients. We hate it. But my husband cannot find work because there are no jobs. He is going to school trying to learn a trade. He wants to support his family more than anything in the world. Those months of making the rounds of employment agencies and coming home with nothing were heartbreaking. He felt ashamed and humiliated, and there was nothing I could do to make him feel better about himself.

I took a very difficult training course so I could work in a special kind of plant and passed with high marks - but I can't find a job either. So we are on welfare.

We are not lazy. We are not crooks. We are just like millions of other people in this country. Out of work and trying to hold our heads up. Please print this letter, Ann. There are lots of us out there and we need to be heard. -- Michigan

DEAR MICHIGAN: I know there are lots of you because many wrote. Hang in there. Don't give up or become discouraged. Keep your dignity. Make no apologies. Welfare is not a disgrace.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: "Roanoke Reader," who avoids her non-stop-talking, drop-in relative, should hear a trick my granny used to use:

She kept a hat and coat on a hook in back of the front door. Every time the bell rang she put it on before answering.

If it were someone she wanted to see she explained she had just come in -- had not even taken her coat off. If it was someone she was not anxious to talk to, she apologized and indicated she was on her way out!

It's better than drawn drapes any day. -- Scarlet O.

DEAR SCARLET: I received more than a few complaints about my lack of compassion for lonely relatives. Dozens of readers called me "unfeeling," "smug," and "duplicitous." Sorry, drop-in company is the pits, and I see no reason to be a sitting duck for every clod who knows how to ring a doorbell. The next letter illustrates the point far better than I could.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please print just one more letter about people who drop in unexpectedly. I want to frame it.

I barely know this nut. She had to look up our address in the phone book. So why couldn't she have called and asked if it was convenient to come by for a little visit? Our phone number was right there by the address.

When she appeared at the door, I told my husband I'd kill him if he let her in. He did make excuses (I heard him) but she was persistent, and he didn't have a chance.

I gave him holy hell after she left -- refused to speak to him until the next morning. The whole thing upset me so I got indigestion and couldn't eat a bite of supper. I just know Big-Mouth told everyone she knew how messed-up the house was and that I looked 90 years old without makeup.

Thanks for letting me make the point again, Ann. It's something people need to see several times before they realize you mean THEM. -- Ill-In-Oi

DEAR OI: The trouble with "them" is they are thick-headed and unable to see themselves as others see them.

Is alcoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism -- Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Ravel and Richard Rodgers.

Family Service Center Reviewed By AIR Here

Mrs. Fran Stancavage of the American Institutes For Research of Palo Alto, Calif., recently visited the Hereford Family Service Center, assisted by local center director Mike Moon.

The purpose of Mrs. Stancavage's visit was to learn an understanding of how the center's family counseling program works with the criminal justice system. Among her studies in Hereford, she learned how the center works with the local adult and juvenile probation officers, school district personnel and others in an effort to aid those persons who have broken or have a high risk of breaking the law.

The American Institutes For Research is currently reviewing family counseling programs across the county.

for the Law Enforcement Administration Agency (LEAA), in hopes that an effective family counseling program model may be developed for LEAA. A total of 23 family counseling programs have been reviewed by the institute.

Mrs. Stancavage had previously reviewed programs in Eugene, Oregon, Minneapolis, Minnesota, Chicago, and Illinois before arriving in Hereford. Having visited larger urban programs, Mrs. Stancavage was particularly interested in understanding the family counseling program in a community the size of Hereford.

The final report by AIR is scheduled to be published in 1981.

THE WAGMAN FILE

Bob Wagman

The other Reagan campaign

WASHINGTON (NEA) — In the last two weeks, the Reagan campaign has tried to broaden its base by bringing on board key professionals who have been identified with candidates from the Republican Party's more liberal wing.

A special invitation went out to Stuart Spencer and John Deardourff, the men most responsible for Gerald Ford's 1976 campaign. Their reply was "no thanks" or words to that effect. They are going to run their own separate campaign for Ronald Reagan.

Under federal election law, the government provides all general-election campaign money for the Republican and Democratic presidential nominees. There is a limit on how much the candidates can spend; this year, it is $29.4 million.

But there is a loophole in the law: An independent committee can raise and spend money on behalf of a candidate as long as it has no direct contact with him. This is what Spencer and Deardourff are planning on doing — and doing in a very big way.

Independent committees are nothing new. They were formed early in this presidential campaign by backers of Sen. Edward Kennedy and former Gov. John Connally. In 1976, brewer Joseph Coors ran one to help Reagan in his unsuccessful effort to wrest the nomination from Ford.

The activities of these earlier committees were usually limited to buying advertising or supplying workers for door-to-door canvassing. But what Spencer and Deardourff have in mind is nothing less than a major national campaign, staffed at a level equal to the regular Reagan campaign and spending perhaps as much as $15 million to $18 million.

The Spencer-Deardourff group is composed of officials from the Ford and, to a lesser extent, the Nixon administrations. Much of its fund raising will be done by Peter Flanagan, a New Yorker who was an aide to President Nixon, and Thomas Reed, a California businessman, who served as secretary of the Air Force. Both are well-known in Republican politics. Also reportedly involved in the project is Robert Teeter, probably the most respected pollster working for Republican candidates. Teeter used to do Ford's polling.

Spencer has refused to comment on the still-named committee. To do so now, he says, would be "premature." But according to sources close to the organizers, the committee is seen as a way to offset the advantages that President Carter will have from his incumbency and from the help he will receive from labor unions and other groups that traditionally support Democrats.

Election law permits individuals to contribute up to $1,000 to such an independent committee even if they contributed previously to the candidate's primary effort. Most observers believe the Spencer-Deardourff committee could raise $15 million given the fund-raising ability of Republicans.

The key to staying within the law is that the committee must keep books and file reports with the Federal Election Commission just like any other campaign committee. In addition, the committee must have absolutely no contact with the candidate or his regular campaign organization. To insure this, Spencer reportedly told his close friend Richard Wirhlin, a top Reagan aide, that the two cannot even talk until after Election Day.

Realistically, the two groups can and will communicate through the press. The independent group, for instance, could call a press conference to announce its decision to spend a couple of million for television ads in one area of the country; the regular Reagan organization would thus be advised to adjust its plans accordingly.

Perhaps most important, this independent committee will serve as a home for a number of experienced Republican professionals who, while badly wanting to see Jimmy Carter defeated, cannot or will not work under their old enemies who are running the Reagan campaign.

You can look for the Carter campaign to fight this independent committee before the Federal Election Commission and possibly in court. But when all is said and done, the Spencer-Deardourff effort could well become a major factor in the November election.

Hance Announces Strong Opposition To Withholding Tax on Savings Interest

WASHINGTON -- U.S. Rep. Kent Hance has announced his strong opposition to President Carter's proposal to withhold taxes on interest from savings and dividend payments.

"This type of proposal is detrimental to the economic well-being of the country," said Hance. "It is simply another way of trying to bring in more taxes and has the effect of robbing potential interest from the taxpayers."

"I think you will see this proposal face an extremely hard fight in Congress," the Texas congressman said. "Hopefully we will have a majority of congressmen opposed to this type of tax program to insure that it is not approved."

Hance explained that the President's proposal would withhold taxes from interest on taxpayers' savings the same as it presently does with their regular salary checks. The proposal would apply to the various types of savings programs in addition to dividends from investments by citizens.

"We need to exempt taxes from savings and dividend interest," said Hance. "Not tax it. The United States presently is behind many other countries in the amount of savings held by citizens. This proposal would only prove to be another detriment to keep money out of savings instead of an incentive for people to save."

More than half of the Senate has announced its opposition to the proposal and Hance said a strong movement is building against the proposal in the House of Representatives.

White Elected President Of Past District Governors

Raymond White of Hereford was elected president of the Past District Governors' Association of Lions International during a statewide convention in Beaumont over the weekend.

White served as a district governor in 1972-73, after being elected to most of the offices of the Hereford Lions Club. He is the only past district governor who is still active in the local club.

White is also currently serving as secretary of the Texas Lions Camp for Crippled Children, located at Kerrville. The Hereford Lions sponsored two children to the camp last year, and expect to send three this summer.

The election of White came during a business session Saturday at the Texas Lions' Convention. He presided at the Sunday breakfast meeting, which was sponsored by the Past District Governors' Association.

Speakers during the convention included H.C. Petry, past president of Lions International, and Ebb Grindstaff, third vice president of Lions International. Mrs. White accompanied her husband to the convention.

The Newspaper Bible

THE PERFECT GIFT: PEACE OF MIND

Anyone who doesn't obey Me doesn't love Me. And remember, I am not making up this answer to your question! It is the answer given by the Father who sent Me.

I am telling you these things now while I am still with you.

But when the Father sends the Comforter to represent Me -- and by the Comforter I mean the Holy Spirit -- He will teach you much, as well as remind you of everything I Myself have told you.

I am leaving you with a gift -- peace of mind and heart! And the peace I give isn't fragile like the peace the world gives. So don't be troubled or afraid.

Remember what I told you -- I am going away, but I will come back to you again. If you really love Me, you will be very happy for Me, for now I can go to the Father, who is greater than I am.

I have told you these things before they happen so that when they do, you will believe (in Me).

I don't have much more time to talk to you, for the evil prince of this world approaches. He has no power over Me.

But I will freely do what the Father requires of Me so that the world will know that I love the Father. Come let's be going.

John 14:24-31

Vanderweghe, Woodson Selected In 1st Round

NBA Have-Nots Net Top College Picks

NEW YORK (AP) — Golden State, Utah, New Jersey and Denver, four of the National Basketball Association's have-nots, appear to have improved their lot significantly in Tuesday's college draft.

And the Boston Celtics, who had the best record in the league last season, didn't do badly, either.

There were no surprises among the early selections of the 10-round draft, which drew a boisterous throng of more than 1,000 spectators to a midtown hotel. They booed NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien and hooted when Dallas, picking right before New York on the first round, grabbed the player the Knicks had wanted, UCLA's Kiki Vandeweghe.

And they cheered when the Knicks, after taking Indiana small forward Mike Woodson on the first round, grabbed 6-foot-9 forward DeWayne Scales of Louisiana State on the second round.

The Warriors opened the proceedings by taking Joe Barry Carroll, the 7-1, 240-pound center who led Purdue to the NCAA semifinals. Golden State Coach Al Attles called Carroll "a devastating force inside, a very physical center."

Golden State, which won the NBA title in 1975 but finished last in the Pacific Division the past three seasons, had obtained the first and 13th picks in the draft on Monday from Boston in exchange for Robert Parish, a four-year veteran center, and the No. 3 pick.

That deal, which Warriors executive Scotty Stirling called "the first step in the major restructuring of our club," gave Golden State four of the first 25 picks in the draft.

Later in the first round they picked 6-10 forward Rickey Brown of Mississippi State, whom Attles said "may be the outstanding shooting big man in the draft." And with the first two picks of the second round they grabbed 6-7 forward Larry Smith of Alcorn State, the nation's top rebounder with a 15.2 average last season, and Iowa center Jeff Ruland.

Hours later they dealt Ruland, a 20.8 career scorer who had applied for the draft as a junior eligible, to Washington for future considerations.

Utah, which like Golden State won just 24 games last season, picked second and took Parrell Griffith, the glamour guard who led Louisville to the NCAA championship and was regarded by NBA scout Marty Blake as "the only sure thing in the draft." And later in the first round the Jazz drafted playmaker John Duren of Georgetown, who set school records with 228 assists last season and 583 for his career.

Together they could give the Jazz an all-rookie backcourt next season.

Boston picked third and grabbed 6-11 Kevin McHale of Minnesota, a college center who will probably be switched to forward. He should fit in well with frontcourtmen like Parish, Dave Cowens, Larry Bird and Rick Robey and will provide insurance in case the Celtics are unable to sign Cedric Maxwell, who is a free agent.

The selection of McHale completed a major coup by Celtics General Manager Red Auerbach. A year ago he signed M.L. Carr as a free agent and persuaded Detroit to accept Bob McAdoo — a player the Celtics didn't want — as compensation, with the Pistons also sending the first and 13th choices to Boston.

The net result now is that the Celtics gave up McAdoo and got Carr, Parish and McHale.

The Chicago Bulls, picking fourth, took playmaker Kelvin Ransey of Ohio State — but they didn't keep him for long. Less than an hour later they dealt Ransey to the Portland Trail Blazers for another playmaker, Iowa's Ronnie Lester, whom Portland had taken with the 10th pick, and a future first-round draft choice.

Denver, picking fifth, took 6-9 forward James Ray of Jacksonville, who was described by Nuggets Coach Donniss Walsh as "a good shooter, a real quick jumper who runs well on the break." Later, with the final pick in the first round, the Nuggets grabbed guard Carl Nicks of Indiana State.

New Jersey had the next two picks and took 6-6 forward Mike O'Koren of North Carolina and 6-11 center Mike Gminski of Duke, two Atlantic Coast Conference stars who are known as outstanding team players.

"We got two great players who were well-coached in a great conference — it's a delight," said Nets Coach Kevin Loughery.

After that, Philadelphia picked 6-3 Andrew Toney of Southwestern Louisiana. He had a four-year scoring average of 23.6, and provides insurance in case Doug Collins doesn't recover from the foot injury that hampered him last season.

San Diego, desperate for a forward, selected 6-7 Michael Brooks of LaSalle and then Portland completed the top 10 by taking Lester and dealt him to Chicago.

After Dallas took Vandeweghe, New York selected Woodson and Golden State grabbed Brown, the Washington Bullets selected playmaker Wes Matthews of Wisconsin and San Antonio opted for 6-9 Reggie Johnson of Tennessee, a college center who may be moved to forward for insurance in case the Spurs can't sign free agent forward Larry Kenon.

Atlanta selected 6-6 forward Don Collins of Washington State.

School Gyms Open During Summer

Easler, Stargell Club Reds

Pirates Roll Over Cincinnati With Homer

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

The dugout has been Mike Easler's classroom, a seat on the bench has been his desk. Easler has learned hitting, and learned well, from one of baseball's finer faculties.

The professors have names like Dave Parker and Willie Stargell, and Easler has done his homework. Now, almost every time he is called upon by the Pittsburgh Pirates, Mike Easler has all the answers.

That has never been more apparent than the last few games. In his last 12 at-bats, Easler has seven hits; four of them have been home runs and one of them came Tuesday night in Pittsburgh's 5-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

"I'm just thankful I'm getting a chance to play now," said Easler, who bounced around various minor league organizations for 10 years. "I've waited a long time."

"While I was sitting, I got a chance to talk to guys like Stargell and Parker. Now, I'm getting a chance to use what I learned."

The work appears to have paid off. Tuesday night, Easler raised his average to .364 with an RBI triple, a single and a home run, his ninth this season.

"I don't know if it's a hitting binge or if that's how Mike hits (regularly)," said Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner. "He just crunches the ball every time he plays."

Easler has crunched it before. He led the International League in hitting in 1978 with a .330 average at Columbus, but this season he has been platooning in left field this season with Lee Lacy.

Easler's triple off Cincinnati starter Mario Soto, 0-1, highlighted a two-run fourth inning that tied the game 2-2.

Pittsburgh starter John Candelaria settled down after giving up two first-inning runs and surrendered just two other hits until Ken Griffey's lead-off homer in the ninth. Kent Tekulve finished up.

Stargell's two-run homer in the sixth and Easler's solo homer in the eighth finished the scoring for Pittsburgh.

In the other National League games Tuesday night, the New York Mets edged the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-4, the Montreal Expos bested the San Diego Padres 8-4, the Houston Astros clubbed the Chicago Cubs 5-2, the Philadelphia Phillies trimmed the San Francisco Giants 4-3 and the Atlanta Braves beat the St. Louis Cardinals 5-2.

Mets 5, Dodgers 4
Doug Flynn's sixth-inning single capped New York's comeback from a four-run deficit and gave the Mets a brawl-marred victory.

The fracas took place in the second inning, when — after Dusty Baker and Steve Garvey had hit consecutive home runs — New York pitcher Pat Zachry plunked Ron Cey on the hip with an inside pitch.

Cey headed for first base, began jawing at Zachry, then charged the pitcher's mound. Naturally, each participant offered different reasons for melee that ended with both benches and bullpens cleared.

"He provoked me by saying, 'Let's go,' and waved his hand, so I went," said Cey, who was ejected for being the instigator of the wrestling match. "If I didn't, I would be gutless."

"I really didn't know what to do," said Zachry. "I was turning the other way, I had my back to him, and I heard him screaming. When I turned around, he was coming at me, so I said, 'Let's go.'"

And so they went.

The Mets survived two home runs by Baker and the one by Garvey, tied it 4-4 with four runs in the fourth, and won it on Flynn's single.

Expos 8, Padres 4
Montreal recorded its seventh consecutive victory and its 20th in the last 25 games by erupting for five sixth-inning runs and beating the Padres.

Pinch-hitter Tony Bernard had a two-run homer and Rodney Scott and Andrew Dawson added RBI triples as the Expos overcame a 3-0 deficit.

Bernazard's homer came in his first at-bat in 17 days.

"That's what it takes to be a winner," said Montreal catcher Gary Carter. "You've got to have guys coming off the bench, and the people we have are doing a great job."

Dawson has also been hot. His first-inning double marked his seventh consecutive hit.

Kansas City Routs Cleveland

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Chalk one up to experience, for Kansas City Manager Jim Frey.

He'll be penciling Dave Chalk's name — and a few others — onto the Royals' lineup card for the next few games because he gave George Brett the "go" sign once too often.

"I thought, 'There's one guy I wish I hadn't sent (to steal),' Frey said after Brett's theft of second base — a wholly unnecessary theft, as it turned out — resulted in an ankle injury Tuesday night. The injury will keep the all-star third baseman, his .337 batting average and his eight home runs on the bench for a while.

"He's an excellent, aggressive and alert baserunner," Frey said. "I just hope he'll be out only a week or so. In the meantime, I'll be using Dave Chalk (.283, no homers), Jerry Terrell (.091, no homers) and also maybe Jamie Quirk (.206, one homer) at third base."

Brett, who had hit homer No. 8 in the first inning to start the Royals on the way to their 8-4 victory over the Cleveland Indians, suffered ligament damage to his right ankle as he arrived at second base in the third inning. Instantly, he was rolling around in pain and he had to be carried off the field on a stretcher.

In the rest of the American League, Texas trimmed Milwaukee 3-1, Detroit defeated Minnesota 8-3, Boston beat Seattle 5-4 in 11 innings, California edged the New York Yankees 5-4, Oakland downed Baltimore 7-4 and Toronto nipped Chicago 1-0.

Moments after Brett's steal of second, Willie Aikens unloaded his third home run of the season. He also singled and doubled, driving in four runs to lead the demolition of the Indians.

Aikens hit 21 homers and batted .280 in 1979, before the California Angels dealt him to the Royals for Al Cowens (since traded to Detroit). Aikens' three hits nudged his 1980 average up to .258.

Rangers 3, Brewers 1
While Al Oliver provided Texas' punch with a homer in the fourth inning and a game-winning single in the eighth, Ferguson Jenkins muffed Milwaukee with a five-hitter in his first start since suffering a May 25 shoulder injury.

Tigers 6, Twins 3
While Jenkins was finding his old form, Detroit's Milt Wilcox was refining his new one.

"I used to try to nibble the corners — I was pitching too defensively because I wasn't too confident about the defense behind me," the righthander said after he checked the Twins on six hits, striking out six batters along the way.

While Aikens is having his problems in Kansas City, Cowens is doing just fine in Detroit. He had a two-run double (as did Lance Parrish) in a decisive four-run third inning and, since coming to the Tigers from the Angels, is hitting a hefty .324. "Whenever you join a new team, you want to get off to a good start," he said.

Red Sox 5, Mariners 4
Boston cracked four home runs over the Kingdome fences to beat the Mariners.

Howard Is All-Around Cowboy

HHS Boys' Rodeo Team Wins High-Point Trophy For Year After Tri-State Finals in Amarillo

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

The Hereford High School boys' rodeo team was awarded the high point team trophy for the year during awards ceremonies concluding a weekend of Tri-State High School Rodeo Association finals activities in Amarillo Sunday.

The HHS boys' team compiled a whopping score of 400 1/2 points for the 1979-80 rodeo season, and the trophy for the top placing was accepted by team members Sid Howard, Lee Washington and Robert Esqueda.

Howard was awarded a trophy saddle as he walked away with All-Around Cowboy honors for the 1979-80 rodeo season with a point accumulation of 239.

At a general Tri-State meeting held Saturday morning, Howard was named second vice-president for the 1980-81 season.

Competitors were honored during a banquet Sunday afternoon at the Hilton Inn, with awards given for the average of the three runs by competitors in rodeo competition Thursday, Friday and Saturday of the past week.

Howard was named as champion for the year in tie-down calf roping and received a trophy saddle for the event.

Rita Ward was honored as the year's reserve barrel racing champion with 46 points, and received a trophy buckle.

Howard was named as the year's reserve steer wrestling champion and took home a trophy buckle in that event, and also teamed with Lee Washington in team roping to take second and a trophy buckle in the average for the three finals performances.

Howard was also awarded a trophy buckle as reserve ribbon roping champion for the year.

Brett Cunningham received a trophy buckle for the first place finish in ribbon roping in the finals. He had total time of 31.996 seconds for the three finals performances.

Robert Esqueda finished first in the average in bull riding for the finals with a total score of 126 1/2 points, good for a trophy buckle.

Individual performances of the Tri-State Finals Thursday, Friday and Saturday proved rough and tumble affairs with more than a few cowboys and cowgirls roughed up by the rodeo stock.

Hereford riders suffered some disappointing performances on Thursday night as Mike Ferguson scored 53 in barebacks but failed to place and Scott Wilcox was bucked off in the event.

Cathy Trolinder and Tania Willson both had no times in breakaway roping. Miss Willson hit a barrel in barrel racing, and Sid Howard had no time in calf roping.

Brett Cunningham took a clocking of 11.089 in calf roping placing him third for the first night with a total of four points.

Rita Ward copped a first place finish in barrels at 14.308, good for six points.

Brett Cunningham finished fifth in ribbon roping at a clocking of 12.613 and Sid Howard was second in the event on Thursday night, timed at 10.386.

Lee Washington had a no time in the event.

Tania Willson placed fourth in poles on Thursday night. Steve McConnell had a no time in steer wrestling. Lee Washington failed to place in steer wrestling on the first go, and Sid Howard placed first in the event on Thursday at a 4.671 clocking.

Cathy Trolinder had a time of 11.719 in goat tying Thursday but failed to place.

Miss Willson suffered a severe ankle injury while dismounting for the event but managed a clocking of 18.410, which did not place.

She took part in the remaining competition with her ankle tightly wrapped and wearing a tennis shoe and spur on her left foot.

Lee Washington and Sid Howard placed sixth in team roping Thursday, while Tony Wilcox and Robert Esqueda were both bucked off their bulls.

Ferguson scored 57 in barebacks Friday for sixth place while Wilcox scored 55 and did not place.

Cathy Trolinder and Tania Willson each had no times in breakaway roping and Sid Howard placed third in calf roping for the second go-round, while Brett Cunningham did not place.

Miss Ward placed third in barrel racing on Friday at a time of 14.219 and Tania Willson had a clocking of 15.018 in the event.

Brett Cunningham sparkled with a first place finish in ribbon roping on Friday night with Sid Howard fifth in the event and Lee Washington sixth.

Miss Ward was third in the poles at Friday night's performance while Tania Willson suffered the mishap of hitting a pole, ruining her time.

Steve McConnell placed third in steer wrestling Friday with Washington and Howard failing to place in the event.

Miss Willson was clocked at 12.794 in goat tying Friday and Miss Trolinder had a time of 15.922.

Esqueda kept his seat in the bull riding event Friday

Stops on the tour will include dryland kochia grazing, a dryland wheat variety demonstration on Tascosa and Beardless Red Chief, kochia-oat hay, kochia hay under irrigation, and Concho and Rocky wheat varieties under dryland production.

The tour is open to all interested individuals.

for a score of 65, placing him second for that go-round, while Wilcox was bucked off.

Washington and Howard finished second in team roping Friday with Washington as the header and Howard as the heeler. The pair switched roles in another run and finished sixth.

In Saturday afternoon competition Scott Wilcox tied for fifth in barebacks Lee Washington and Sid Howard placed sixth in team roping with Washington the header and Howard the heeler.

During the final performance Saturday night in which the top ten in each Tri-State event competed, Mike Ferguson suffered a no score in bareback-brones.

Tania Willson placed fifth in breakaway roping with a time of 4.926, while Cathy Trolinder was hit with a no time in the event.

Brett Cunningham broke the barrier early in calf roping to have ten seconds added to his 8.291 clocking, resulting in an official time of 18.291.

Sid Howard roped in a time of 9.357 to take first place in the event.

Rita Ward failed to place in barrel racing in the final go-round after hitting a barrel.

Sid Howard lassoed first place in ribbon roping with a time of 9.571 and Brett Cunningham took fourth place in the event with a clocking of 10.362. Lee Washington had a no time.

Rita Ward took fourth place in pole bending Saturday night while Tania Willson hit a pole.

Lee Washington took sixth in steer wrestling Saturday while Steve McConnell and Sid Howard failed to place.

Cathy Trolinder and Tania Willson did not place in goat tying, although Miss Willson tied in a time of 11.943 and Miss Trolinder had a run of 16.634.

Robert Esqueda placed third in bull riding with a score of 61 Saturday night.

Sid Howard and Lee Washington suffered a no time in team roping at the final performance.

With the 1979-80 Tri-State High School Rodeo season barely behind them, the HHS Rodeo Club will open a new Tri-State season in August with their first competition at Sunray.

Sponsors of the HHS Rodeo Club closing out their year at the finals in Amarillo included Earl and Ann Washington, Jerry and Jan McConnell, Bill and Shara Lookingbill, Lawrence and Faye Ward and Jim and Frankie Evans.

Nutritionists Find No Beef With Beef

FORT WORTH — The prestigious National Academy of Sciences released new diet guidelines last week that support what cattlemen have said all along—beef is good for you.

In an Associated Press story from Boston, the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Academy of Sciences was quoted as saying "There's nothing wrong with a meal consisting of a thick, juicy steak, a green salad and a baked potato with sour cream, as long as you have variety in your diet."

The food board is the panel that recommends dietary standards for the food industry.

John S. Cargile, president of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, said his group was encouraged by the report in light of attempts by some "food experts" to link beef and cholesterol to heart disease.

"The food board says there is no convincing evidence that what you eat will affect your body's cholesterol levels and we think that pretty well buries any allegations that eating beef will hurt you," Cargile said. "In fact, a three-ounce serving of beef provides thiamin, riboflavin, niacin, pyridoxine, vitamin B-12 and other B-vitamins, minerals like iron and zinc and, of course, protein. Off hand, I can't think of a single food more nutritious or more tasty than beef."

Henry Kamin, vice chairman of the food board, says much the same thing.

Contemplating a steak dinner, Kamin said, "I would love to have that sort of meal, and if I add up the constituents of a potato, meat and salad, I can see that it certainly is adequate in protein. It is not excessive in fat. It is certainly adequate in calories. And I can't think of any vitamins it is deficient in."

Americans consumed only 2.77 ounces per day of cooked (lean plus marble) red meat cuts in 1979, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Nutritionists generally recommend two three-ounce servings from the meat group daily.

"This tells me that Americans can and should eat more beef. The good news for the consumer is that retail beef prices as of mid-May were averaging 15 cents per pound lower than the same time a year ago. Considering the inflation rate, beef is a good buy and now the National Academy of Sciences confirms it is healthy for you," Cargile said.

4-H Cites TCF A Service

COLLEGE STATION — Texas Cattle Feeders Association headquartered in Amarillo, was recognized for its outstanding service to the 4-H program during the 1980 State 4-H Roundup at Texas A&M University June 3.

Charles Ball, executive vice president of the association, received a special plaque from the Texas 4-H Foundation, 4-H's state service organization, and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the parent organization of 4-H.

Texas Cattle Feeders has sponsored the Texas 4-H Council Leadership Development Workshop since 1976. This sizeable investment permits 4-H youth leaders to have the best training possible, points out Tom Davison, Extension 4-H and youth specialist and executive director of the 4-H Foundation.

The training enables council members to learn how to effectively carry out their leadership jobs, adds Davison, and also has a multiplier effect on the leadership development of other youth at the county and district levels.

Through the support of Texas Cattle Feeders, the "special spirit" created for 4-H council members enables them to carry on their responsibilities with enthusiasm throughout their year in office and to convey this enthusiasm wherever they go, notes Davison.

By the Associated Press Today is Wednesday, June 11, the 163rd day of 1980. There are 203 days left in the year. Today's highlight in history: On June 11, 1859, a prospector laid claim to a silver deposit in Nevada's Six-Mile Canyon. The claim turned out to be the Comstock Lode, one of the richest of all time, yielding ore worth hundreds of millions of dollars.

On this date: In 1942, a lend-lease agreement between the United States and Soviet Union - designed to aid the Soviet war effort in World War II - was made public. In 1963, under the eyes of National Guardsmen, Gov. George Wallace stepped aside to let blacks register at the University of Alabama.

In 1967, Israel and Syria settled into a cease-fire after the Six-Day War, with Israeli troops still holding positions inside Syria. In 1977, Dutch marines stormed a train hijacked by South Moluccan terrorists in the Netherlands, freeing 49 hostages. Two hostages and six of their captors were killed in the attack.

Ten years ago, the U.S. presence in Libya ended two weeks ahead of schedule when the last detachment left Wheelus Air Base, the last major U.S. military facility in North Africa. Last year, actor John Wayne died at the age of 72 after a lengthy battle with cancer.

Today's birthday: French deep sea explorer Jacques Cousteau is 70.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D. Kegel exercises may help

DEAR DR. LAMB - I'm having trouble controlling my bladder. When I cough, sneeze, walk or laugh I leak urine. I'm 48 years old and have had two children. I can go to the bathroom and void and then when I get up and cough, there's still another leakage of urine. Would you please tell me what I could do about this?

DEAR READER - This is not a rare condition at all. It's usually related to a weakening or tear in the muscles at the front of the vaginal wall. This muscular wall separates the bladder and urethral tube from the rest of the vaginal vault. The urethral tube itself may be herniated (ruptured) into the vaginal vault causing it to kink and preventing normal emptying of the bladder, or the bladder itself may partially rupture into the vaginal vault. The latter is called a cystocele.

When the urethra alone is involved and the condition is mild, some women can improve the condition by Kegel exercises. These consist of practicing interrupting your stream while voiding. In more severe cases this is not adequate and the only successful measure is surgical correction. You have to regard this as a hernia, which is a structural defect, and the only way to correct it is to repair the structures. I'm sending you The Health Letter number 14-12, Hysterectomy, Cystocele and Rectocele, which will give you more information about these problems that are so common in women. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have a varicocele and about six months ago it started to bother me. My doctor advised either surgery or I would have to wear a suspensory for my testicles. I'm an active man and I wear it during the day but not at night unless I have pain. The suspensory has given me considerable relief and I'm about pain free. I have a golf-playing buddy who uses the same club locker room and knows I wear this suspensory. He told me about a person who wore one and became infertile and then developed cancer of the testicles because of it. My wife and I have completed our family and we don't worry about the fertility part but I don't want to develop cancer of the testicles. Frankly, I don't see much difference in this regard between a suspensory and the bikini type shorts some men wear. To set my mind at ease, can you tell if there's any truth in what my friend said?

DEAR READER - You can just write that off as so much locker room talk. Your suspensory will not cause you to develop cancer of the testicles. It is true that suspensories and brief shorts that support the testicles can decrease a man's fertility. They can interfere with nature's temperature regulating system for the testicles. To be optimally fertile, they must be kept at a lower temperature than the body itself. If they're too warm, the muscles which suspend them relax and they are allowed to move away from the body. If the temperature falls, the muscles contract and they are pulled up and warmed.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Every time I look in the mirror I am shocked by what I see. I mean those ugly wrinkles that make you look old before your time. I've got crow's feet around my eyes and creases across my forehead. I know without these I would look 15 years younger. I'm only 42 and have a good figure. My doctor said it was because I got too much sun and he suggested that I limit my time in the sun.

Well, he's right. I've always enjoyed a beautiful tan every summer. And I'll probably go right on getting out in the sun because that is part of enjoying summer. If I want to get outdoors, is there anything I can do to limit the damage to my skin? I know there are lots of sun lotions but I'm not sure what to use and if they will really do any good.

DEAR READER - A suntan may look healthy but it is your skin's reaction to injury. The injury is from solar radiation. The damage is in the deep layers of the skin and it affects the elastic fibers that keep your skin taut.

People who are particularly sensitive to the sun should use a sun screen all year long, not just in the summer. You can use a physical blocker. These are pastes or salves. Of these, red veterinary petrolatum (R.V.P.) is particularly good. Zinc oxide, talc, titanium dioxide, kaolin, ferric oxide and bentonite are also good.

Many people don't like the pastes and like the clear liquid preparations better. The important ingredient here is PABA (para-aminobenzoic acid). It acts chemically with the cells in your skin to decrease their sensitivity to sunlight.

The gel products are less likely to dry out your skin; the liquid preparations often contain alcohol. Two gel products are Pre-Sun and PABA-Gel. A helpful hint is to use the PABA one to two hours before sun exposure. That will give it time to interact chemically with your cells. If you apply it just before you go out it will not be as effective.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-10, Your Skin: Sun, Aging, Spots and Cancer. Skin cancer is definitely increased in people who have lots of sun exposure. That may get worse in the future too if the ozone layer of the atmosphere continues to be diminished. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Once you have wrinkles the only thing you can do for yourself is to use moisturizers. One of the best is petro-lum (Vaseline). The heavy oily mixture will trap moisture in your skin and cause wrinkles to disappear. It is better than most expensive moisturizers with fancy names.

The other choice is surgery and this can produce good results in the hands of a skilled cosmetic surgeon.

Besides the sun, the other common factor that causes wrinkles is cigarette smoking. Women who smoke tend to have prominent crow's feet wrinkles earlier in life and often look 10 years older than women who do not smoke. If you are a smoker, it is not too late to quit.

DEAR DR. LAMB - When I do strenuous lifting which hand should I use? I had a right hernia repaired two years ago. I asked my doctor this question and he told me not to worry about it - if it should break, he would repair it again. I believe in preventing surgery so I would like an answer to my question. I know there's a scar inside. Will it dissolve? I'm 55 years old.

DEAR READER - When a hernia has been adequately repaired and the tissues are healthy, the likelihood of it recurring is remote if it's been a year or more after a successful repair. Of course, if you have weak muscles to begin with, which may have contributed to the development of the first hernia, there's always a chance a new one might develop in a different area.

There are two things you can do that are practical. First, learn to lift correctly. It doesn't make so much difference which hand you use, but you should be using your legs instead of your back.

Detroit's Shame

However, in those countries most motorists have been driving smaller cars - using less gasoline - while Americans are adopting smaller cars only gradually. Assuming you are financing two-thirds of the price of your new car and will keep the car for three years and will drive 10,000 miles a year - and that's what most of us do - we are paying more than 30 cents a mile for automotive transportation. In Los Angeles, more than 40 cents a mile. Americans, seeking relief from this escalating cost, are turning to smaller cars - and most of the most efficient smaller cars are made outside the United States.

The Arizona Republic in Phoenix recently editorialized on this subject under the caption "Detroit's Shame." The Republic's editors concluded that Americans are able to get more of what they want by purchasing foreign cars; that American manufacturers, with the exception of AMC, ignored this appetite even after Volkswagen proved it.

And Japanese carmakers, with a keener awareness of what the U.S. market wants, are about to become dominant in our own country! Nor can we blame cheap Japanese labor. The Japanese auto worker now makes more money than the Detroit auto worker. Japanese cars sold in the United States are as expensive as our home-made.

But Japanese industrialists are imaginative as ours used to be. Japanese workers are industrious - producing more-per-hour - as ours used to.

Invariably, when the Japanese take over a plant in the United States, paying the same wages, they increase per-man productivity.

So Japan and Germany are capturing the American car market while Ford loses money on domestic production last year and Chrysler had to be bailed out of bankruptcy with tax dollars.

Can we reverse what the Republic calls "Detroit's Shame"? The next-generation motor car must be more efficient. For the reciprocal gasoline engine 75 years is enough. With the imaginativeness of our granddaddies we must make use of electricity, hydrogen energy, whatever - to recapture the car market at home and abroad.

Voluntarily, I hope, Japan and Germany had to go hungry first.

Polly Cramer Beets stuck to pot

DEAR POLLY - When I was cooking beef in an aluminum pot the water boiled out and the beets stuck to the pot slightly. How do I get the black off my pot? I had no success boiling vinegar water in it. - MRS.R.P.

DEAR MRS. R.P. - Put two tablespoons baking soda in hot water in the pot, let soak 10 or 15 minutes and then wash as usual. Or sprinkle soda on the spots and scrub with moist sponge. Another remedy might be boiling two teaspoons cream of tartar in each quart of water for a few minutes. Good luck. - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - When letting down or taking up a hem in a dress, skirt or slacks, I spray a little starch on before pressing out the crease. It always works like a miracle for me. - DONNA

DEAR POLLY - D.E. should sprinkle salt on paper or a cloth and rub her iron over it to remove starch from the iron. - S.R.P.

DEAR POLLY - Melvina wanted to know how to clean an angora bonnet. About 35 years ago my mother made angora bonnets for my children and she told me never to wash them but to clean the bonnets with flour or cornmeal. I always rubbed flour in one and would then shake it out. If the weather was nice I would then put it outside on the line.

None of the bonnets have ever stretched but have shrunk from the snow. All I ever did was to change the ribbons and one would look like new. - MARIE

DEAR POLLY - I keep my paint brushes in a potato chip can with holes punched in the plastic lid so the bristles do not get broken. I store oil paint tubes in a plastic fishing case that has drawers and sections on different levels so I can find a needed color right away. Being plastic such a case is easy to clean and kept free of paint marks. - LOUISE

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Texas is bucking the federal government again.

Last month the US Justice Department filed a court motion asking that it and the state be included as defendants in a Houston school system desegregation lawsuit.

Texas Attorney General Mark White last week filed his suit to keep state government out of the lawsuit and to prevent the Justice Department from dismantling 23 Houston-area school districts.

The Justice Department wants a court-appointed administrator to combine the 23 school districts to achieve racial balance, and White considers their court-jockeying as "interference and disruption."

This particular Houston desegregation suit actually began 24 years ago when the original complaint was first filed against the Houston Independent School District.

Since that time, White said, great strides have been made to achieve desegregation. The latest federal action, he said, will combine school districts and affect local tax structures, and is therefore unconstitutional.

Noting that schools in the Washington, D.C. area are among the most segregated in the nation, White said he would like to ask Justice officials why they have not filed desegregation suits in districts where the children attend schools.

Texan Challenged

The nomination of State District Judge H. F. Garcia of San Antonio to a federal court was challenged by Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kansas, during Senate Judiciary Committee hearings last week. Dole delayed by one week the vote to approve Garcia and Judge Fred Shannon, also of San Antonio.

Garcia was questioned by the committee about the speed with which he handled his cases. He was praised by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and two Texas Congressmen.

New Braceros?

Texas Governor Bill Clements says he wants to work out a program whereby more Mexican nationals can obtain temporary work permits here, but Hispanic leaders say his proposal is just a warmed-over version of the controversial 1942 bracero program which was branded as a form of modern-day slavery.

The Governor, as the founder of a large oil well drilling firm SEDCO, is more interested in Mexico's oil and natural gas reserves, said Ruben Bonilla of Corpus Christi, national president of the League of Latin American Citizens. The outspoken Bonilla is not known for pulling his political punches, nor is Clements.

Clements wants to legalize the status of Mexican workers in the U.S. to make them less vulnerable to exploitation by unscrupulous employers and to provide a minimum wage and decent working conditions.

Better Than Jail

Convicted former Texas Supreme Court Justice Donald B. Yarbrough, who is appealing a five-year sentence for aggravated perjury, wants state permission to attend medical school in the Bahamas.

His lawyer said Yarbrough "wants to get the threads of his life together."

Prosecutor District Attorney Ronald Earle and District Judge Mace Thurman have yet to respond to the request.

Yarbrough was convicted in 1978 for lying to a grand jury about telling a former business associate how to forge a car title.

Clements and Reagan

Governor Clements has offered the use of his 45-acre Virginia estate, once owned by President John F. Kennedy, to apparent GOP presidential nominee Ronald Reagan. Reagan will be moving to the Washington area later this month to begin the second phase of his campaign: running against probable Democratic nominee President Jimmy Carter.

The ranch-style house has a swimming pool, tennis court, stables and a bomb shelter. Next-door neighbors are Sen. John Warner and his wife, actress Elizabeth Taylor.

Farm Labor Study

A Texas House subcommittee on farm labor spent last week in California studying that state's agricultural labor laws.

They are researching how a similar law would work in Texas.

This issue was probably the most controversial among farm issues in the last Legislature. Advocates want a higher wage for farmworkers. Opponents argue that low market prices do not allow many farmers to break even, much less support a wage increase.

High Court Ruling

The Texas Supreme Court ruled last week the Constitution allows state agencies to run their own print shops, and over 140 of them do. The court reversed a civil appeals court ruling that would have required all printing to be contracted from private bidders. At issue was a section of the Constitution that directs most printing be given to the lowest bidder, but the High Court argued the section was meant to prevent patronage and profiteering rampant during the Reconstruction era.

Paper Recycling Commitment Noted

By JERRY SCHWARTZ
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP)— Deep below the office building at 26 Federal Plaza, in a locked room with a special sprinkler system, is a treasure of sorts: 17 hampers on casters, each holding 350 pounds of white paper.

Similar treasures are scattered throughout the city — at the World Trade Center, at The New York Times, at Consolidated Edison, at the offices of the National Urban League.

Each represents a commitment to paper recycling.

"It's growing, it's in its infancy," said Sheila Millendorf, head of the Office Paper Recycling Service. "The companies that know about it are laughing up their sleeve at the others."

New York City each year generates 12 percent of the nation's high-grade waste — 175,000 tons of white ledger paper, computer paper and cards.

Clients of Mrs. Millendorf's year-old service sell their high-grade waste to recyclers at prices ranging from $100 to $280 a ton. The Times, for instance, hopes to make $18,000 a year from recycling, said Booker Davis, manager of building services.

Mrs. Millendorf and her assistant, Jill Mendelson, tell executives that they can help the environment AND save money by recycling.

"It's a marriage of the two," she says. "Any company that comes to me and says, 'We don't care about the cost, or losing money, we just want to do this for the environment' — well, I'm leery of them because when it comes to budget cuts, it will be first to go."

"We're not promising tremendous revenues, but we're certainly promising no deficits," she adds.

With $54,000 in government and foundation grants, OPRS — part of the Council on the Environment of New York City — goes to each company and offers to draw up a recycling program tailored to its needs. Given the go-ahead, Mrs. Millendorf and Miss Mendelson take a detailed look at the firm and its offices, even weighing garbage.

Mrs. Millendorf figures the average office employee produces a quarter-pound of high-grade paper waste a day.

Her husband, Stuart, also has stake in recycling. He heads the World Trade Center's effort, which has collected 3.5 million pounds of paper in the past six years.

Last year, the World Trade Center program, with less than a third of the twin towers' 45,000 employees participating, made $28,000. This year, Millendorf expects to make $70,000.

There are other big paper recycling efforts underway. Mrs. Millendorf knows of 15 companies that are recycling, and the city is collecting paper from 75 buildings throughout the five boroughs at a pace of 700 tons a year.

Under a directive from President Carter, the federal government is now recycling paper at almost all of its New York buildings.

"At least on a governmental level, you're going to see more of this," says Barbara Kropf, recycling specialist for the Environmental Protection Agency. "Our landfills are filling up, and by 1985, we're going to have to do something with our trash."

Jay Smith runs the program at 26 Federal Plaza — the largest federal building outside of the Pentagon — and a smile creases his beard when he tells of the cooperation he met.

"The only one who didn't take part was the FBI," he said. "For security reasons... their stuff goes to the shredder."

Most every desk in the building sports a black, plastic napkin-holder where recyclable paper is placed. At day's end, workers take the paper and dump it at the nearest cardboard recycling box.

"We're trying to make it as easy as possible for the employees," Smith said. Collection boxes are located within 25 feet of every desk, and each is emblazoned with a "Use It Again, Sam" bumper sticker. The program has cut $20,000 worth of trash-hauling and compacting fees in its first six months, and is selling 12 to 14 tons of paper a month.

Smith pushes the program as a way of conserving both trees and fuel. He points to an EPA estimate that each ton of recycled paper saves 20 trees and two barrels of oil.

For the most part, the reaction — both at 26 Federal Plaza and elsewhere — has been positive.

Millendorf, who's been honored by the EPA for his World Trade Center program, says the enthusiasm for recycling doesn't surprise him.

The Speaker Reports

by Bill Clayton

AUSTIN— Last fall I appointed six state representatives and five private citizens to the Select Committee on State Employee Productivity. I charged the committee with the responsibility of studying the laws and policies which affect the training, education, hiring, classification, performance and promotion of state employees. Among the specifics of the committee charge are the following:

- ...an assessment of the agency response to the State Employment Training Act of 1969.
- ...an examination of expenditures by state agencies for training and education of state employees.
- ...identification of means to establish a coordinated, cost-effective program of training state employees that eliminates duplication of effort.
- ...identification of laws and policies that create barriers to increased productivity and cost-effective delivery of essential services by state employees.

I also appointed an advisory committee to the select committee which is made up of training and personnel specialists, from the public and private sector.

The select and advisory committees have been hard at work since mid-November. Public hearings have been held in Harlingen, Lubbock, Arlington, and Austin. The advisory committee has met with approximately 40 agency State Employee Training and personnel directors to brief them of committee activities and solicit their opinions and comments. Research is being conducted of other states concerning performance appraisals or evaluations, overtime pay, flextime, career development, grievance procedures, performance awards or incentives and other programs for state employees.

The committee is also conducting three surveys to ensure input from the state agencies and the employees themselves. The first is a survey of all agencies on in-plant training and a training needs assessment. The second is an on-site survey by questionnaire of 20 percent of the employees at each of 14 facilities in order to insure quality data concerning their needs and perceptions of State employment. Finally, a survey of some 800 private employees is being conducted to incorporate the activities of the private sector into the committee's work.

I believe that the work of this committee is extremely important in light of the current inflationary economic situation facing our nation. There is a demand for increased state services, while there is an equal demand for no new taxes. We in state government must find a way of maintaining and improving essential state services without increasing their costs. I believe that a big part of the answer will be found by the Select Committee on State Employee Productivity.

Pryor Remains On Critical List

SHERMAN OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Richard Pryor cracked jokes with visitors, but doctors warned that the comedian, critically burned when an alleged cocaine mixture exploded, faced less-than-even odds in his fight for survival.

The 39-year-old Emmy and Grammy winner, known for his biting street-wise humor, was "fairly alert" Tuesday as he rested in critical but stable condition with third-degree burns over the upper half of his body.

Pryor told burn specialist Dr. Jack Grossman his clothes caught fire when liquid ether — used to make a cocaine derivative called "free base" — exploded, according to Police Lt. Dan Cooke. "Free base," which is smoked in a pipe, is made by mixing cocaine with the volatile solvent.

Cooke said it was not known what sparked the Monday explosion and "we may never know." Early reports indicated a cigarette lighter had exploded, sending the comedian running from his home in flames.

Cooke said no charges against Pryor were contemplated.

Grossman said the next three to four days would be critical for Pryor. He was encouraged that Pryor spent a restful Monday night but cautioned that people his age who suffer such serious burns have just one chance in three of survival.

Pryor will undergo whirlpool treatments at the hospital's burn center to help clean off the burned skin, said hospital spokesman Gary Swaye. Grossman said the comedian may undergo a special treatment known as a hyperbaric-chamber operation, in which the patient is sealed into a tube. The atmospheric pressure is doubled or tripled, pushing oxygen into the blood and speeding up healing twentyfold.
