In packed courtroom

Court hears suggestions for grant money

By REED PARSELL
Staff Writer

San Jose Labor Camp and Campbell Avenue residents were present in force Wednesday night at a public hearing to request possible federal funds be targeted for road improvements.

Deaf Smith County Commissioners hosted the hearing to help formulate their application for $200,000 from the federal government's Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program. That money is part of the $1 million available to the Texas Panhandle, and applies specifically for counties which posted higher unemployment rates this year than they did in 1980.

Texas has received $60 million for the "New Federalism" program, which will be dispersed by boards in 24 regions. The Panhandle Regional Planning Commission (PRPC) is in charge of the funds Deaf Smith County seeks. Two of its members were at Wednesday's hearing.

The CDBG funds are to be used for things which will help low-to-moderate income families, such as water systems, paving and sewage systems in needy neighborhoods. As pointed out in the hearing, none of the grant is to be given directly to unemployed county residents.

Approximately 80 people crammed into the Deaf Smith County Courtroom for the hearing, the first of two planned by the commissioners. Answering the crowd's questions were Precinct 2 Commissioner Austin Rose along with Linda Allen and Margaret Kelso of the PRPC.

"We're here to help decide what you and your county commissioners want to apply for," Allen said.

It was quickly learned Deaf Smith would probably not be the only county eligible for the CDBG. Hall County also appeared to qualify based on the most recent unemployment figures, the PRPC representatives reported. Prior to the hearing, Deaf Smith County Commissioners thought no other Panhandle counties qualified. Rose, through requesting a show of hands, indicated Campbell Avenue and San Jose Labor Camp were about equally represented at the hearing, each group made up of around 30-35 members. Dairy Road and Hereford Senior Citizens each had about a half dozen supporters.

The three neighborhood groups stressed their need for paved streets. Wet weather often obstructs not only people from driving to work, but school bus routes as well, they claimed. One woman from Campbell Avenue said it is "hard to maneuver in wet conditions."

Other suggestions included a community center for Mexican-Americans to share their problems, culture and other interests. One citizen asked for a food bank, sewer repairs and housing improvements.

"I think we need a shelter," one woman said. She felt there needs to be a place

Fielding Questions

Deaf Smith County Commissioner Austin Rose appears to be the only hearing board member to be interested in what is being said at Wednesday night's public gathering in the county courthouse. Fielding concerns about a proposed application for $200,000 in federal funds are Rose, Margaret Kelso and Linda Allen. The latter two are members of the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission.

Nicaraguan Democracy 'essential'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration says leftist Nicaragua's acceptance of democracy is "essential" for peace in Central America, a position that some critics contend could undermine existing peace initiatives. The administration's stance, a shift from earlier demands that Nicaragua simply stop interfering with its neighbors, was expressed in President Reagan's letter to the so-called Contadora nations — Panama, Mexico, Colombia and Venezuela — which have been trying to arrange regional peace talks.

In the letter delivered this week, Reagan listed democracy as the first of "four basic principles" crucial to ending the political and military conflicts in Central America. "It is essential that democratic institutions be established and strengthened as a means to resolve political differences within the Central American states," Reagan said. State Department officials, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said Wednesday that Reagan was referring specifically to Nicaragua, which he has accused of violating promises made in 1979 to hold free elections.

"We consider it an essential part of any settlement of Central America's problems that Nicaragua live up to the goals it originally stated four years ago," said one official. But congressional staff aides specializing in foreign policy contend that by demanding changes in Nicaragua's internal policies, Reagan may be raising a condition unacceptable to the Sandinista government and therefore likely to frustrate efforts for a peaceful settlement in the region.

The Sandinistas, who seized power in 1979 by overthrowing longtime dictator and U.S. ally Anastasio Somoza Debayle, have announced plans for elections in 1985, but say balloting could be postponed if the nation is still at war with CIA-backed "contras" — Nicaraguan counter-revolutionaries.

Reagan's emphasis on democracy as a necessary part of a Central American peace settlement comes as the administration is increasing the U.S. military presence in the region and is preparing to step up support for the contras who have been attacking Nicaragua from bases in Honduras.

One State Department official said the contras, now a significant military force of about 10,000 men, must be (See CRUCIAL, Page 2)

Phalangists claim they're ordered out of Lebanon

By The Associated Press
Lebanese Christian Phalange militiamen accused Israel of ordering them out of southern Lebanon today, and sympathetic radio stations said Christian demonstrators rang church bells and burned tires in streets to protest.

The stations said the Israelis gave the Phalangists a 24-hour ultimatum late Wednesday to close their militia bases in south Lebanon. There was no word on what would happen if the militias defied the reported ultimatum.

Israel's military command in the Beirut suburb of Yarz had no comment on the radio reports, which underscored the frayed relationship between Israeli occupation forces and the Phalange, Lebanon's most powerful militia.

The Phalangists supported Israel's drive into Lebanon 13 months ago to rout the Palestine Liberation Organization. But the friendship has soured since last September when Christian militiamen massacred hundreds of Palestinian refugees in Beirut, at a time when the capital was under Israeli control.

Phalange officials speculated Israel wants to clear southern Lebanon of their militiamen so that only the more controllable militia of renegade Lebanese Col. Saad Haddad remains, there in advance of the planned Israeli pullback from central Lebanon.

There also was speculation that Israeli forces were attempting to win favor with Lebanese Druse militias who have been warring with the Phalangists for months. Israel has a sizable population of Druse, a breakaway Islamic sect.

Phalangist radio stations in Beirut said church bells tolled in the southern Lebanese districts of Sidon, Zahrani, Jezzine and Nabatiyeh to protest the reported Israeli decision to close all Phalange militia barracks.

The stations said Christians in the towns staged demonstrations, burned tires on roads and called a general strike to protest.

A spokesman for the Phalangist "Lebanese Forces" militia in Beirut told The Associated Press the Israeli military command in Sidon on Wednesday requested the closure of Phalangist barracks and centers in the southern towns of Maghdoushe, Sarba and Kfar Falous by late this afternoon.

"We're not going to close them but will not resist if they (Israelis) go in themselves and shut them down," said the spokesman, who declined use of his name.

Elsewhere, Israeli occupation troops tear-gassed, shot and routed Palestinian rioters in the West Bank on Wednesday, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin won three no-confidence votes in Parliament, and rival PLO factions dug into foxholes as they braced for a showdown in east Lebanon.

Two Palestinians suffered gunshot wounds and three sustained other injuries in the riot by demonstrators who surged out of Bir Zeit University north of Jerusalem and stoned Israeli soldiers and vehicles.

Reporters and university administrators said the Israelis arrested 50 Palestinians and seized identity cards of 40 others. The Israeli military command said it had no information on arrests.

The rioters were protesting Tuesday's terrorist rampage by masked gunmen who killed three Palestinians and wounded 33 at an Arab university in Hebron, where Arab-Jewish tension has persisted for weeks.

Palestinians blamed the killings on Jewish settlers encouraged by Begin's government to move into the West Bank. But Israeli authorities said they were still hunting the killers and declined to speculate about who was responsible.

Welcome Home

Sarpalius gives Lions update

State Sen. Bill Sarpalius, formerly of Hereford, brought the Hereford Lions Club up to date on the recent 140-day Texas Legislative Session and the following Special Session Wednesday as he visited the local club during its regular weekly luncheon meeting at the community center.

Sarpalius, himself a former member of the local club, said the regular session was "long and hard," but resulted in "a lot of things accomplished that will benefit the people of our district and the state of Texas."

The senator touched on problems with the state budget, education, prison system, and approved legislation during his talk. Sarpalius said that Texas had "taken a lot of steps backwards" in the past in regard to education, the prison system, the area of mental health, and the highway system.

"We were faced with much lower revenues than originally projected," he said, adding that he felt "Texas is right around the corner from facing a tax issue."

He cited vast increases in population (27 percent statewide over the past 10 years) and crime, 90 percent, while the last tax increase on the state level was 10 years ago.

"Traditionally, the state of Texas has passed the burden of tax increases on the local government agencies, but they have raised taxes just about as far as they can," he said.

Sarpalius said the DWI issue was a hot one during the session, remaining under consideration from the first (See UPDATE, Page 2)

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says that it's very important that parents with small children save something for a rainy day—patience!

A lady was having trouble making her checkbook balance and phoned the bank for help.

"What balance do you show?" asked the bank clerk.

"I asked you first," replied the caller.

State Sen. Bill Sarpalius reviewed some of the important work of the legislature when he spoke to the Lions Club here Wednesday. The budget is still the No. 1 problem, says Sarpalius, with the legislature looking for more revenue in an attempt to solve some problems with money.

Sarpalius seemed very pleased with the new drunk-driving legislation, although the House changed the Senate version submitted by Sarpalius. The result was harsher measures to deal with drunken drivers. Mandatory jail time is now required for all but first offenders, and refusal to take an alcohol test upon arrest for DWI can now be admitted into evidence at trial. Furthermore, refusal to take the test can have their driver's license suspended.

If a person convicted of DWI has a record of three or more DWI convictions, or is convicted while on probation for certain DWI offenses, that person now risks forfeiture of his or her automobile. Teens can have their license suspended until they reach the legal drinking age.

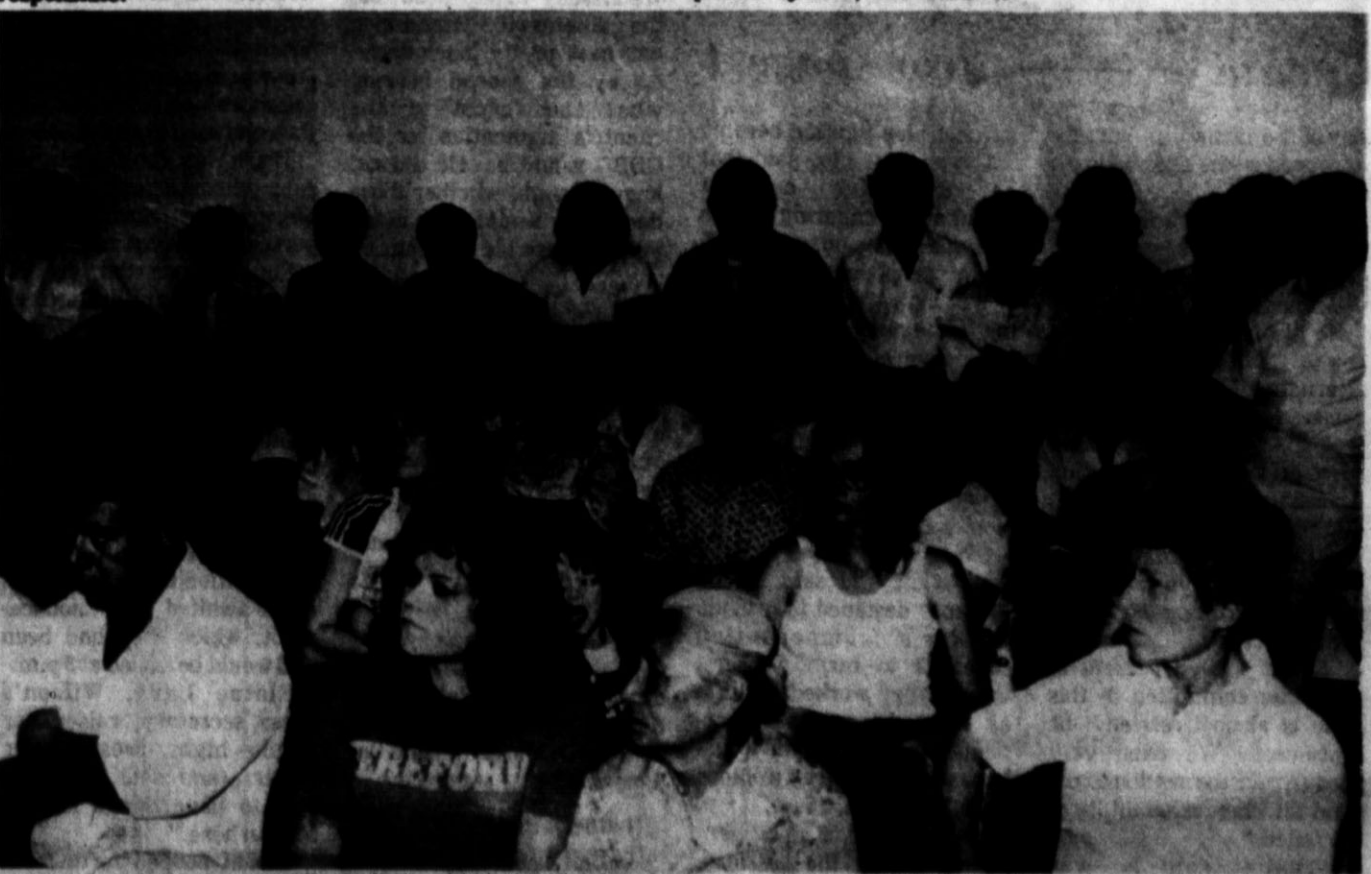

Sarpalius also warned of education problems and said these could be addressed in a special session. Texas has a growing population and, at a time when a teacher shortage is predicted, more teachers are needed.

In a recent mailing, State Rep. Bob Simpson also talked of the teacher problem. He thinks teaching is not an attractive career opportunity — not just because of salaries but other factors as well. "Teachers are not respected by students as they once were; parents don't enforce discipline at home, thus making it harder for the teacher to control their classrooms," said Simpson.

To further compound the problem, says Simpson, taxpayers are questioning whether they are getting fair value for what they are already paying. A recent report by the National Commission on Excellence in Education declared that a "tide of mediocrity" has devastated education.

"Each generation of Americans has outstripped its parents in education, in literacy and in economic attainment," stated the report. "For the first time in the history of our country, the educational skills of our generation will not surpass, will not equal, will not even approach, those of their parents."

For this reason, Simpson says the House will study a broad plan to attack the problem. "Throwing money at the problem is not the answer, but additional money for education will have to be part of the solution," stated Simpson.

First tropical depression forms

MIAMI (AP) — The first tropical depression of the 1983 Atlantic hurricane season moved sluggishly westward today after forming in the eastern Caribbean, forecasters said.

"It does have the potential to strengthen," said forecaster Miles Lawrence of the National Hurricane Center. "But this one has been changing very, very slowly. We've been tracking it for a number of days and it's developed very gradually."

The depression had maximum sustained winds of 35 mph, with higher wind gusts in squalls north and east of the center, the weather service said. Sustained winds of 39 mph are necessary for the depression to become tropical storm Alicia, the first of the 1983 season.

At 6 a.m. today, the center of the depression was located about 300 miles south of San Juan, Puerto Rico. It was moving west-northwest at 15 mph, and the motion was expected to continue for the next 24 hours.

Lawrence said the depression posed little threat to shipping.

To be classified as a tropical depression, weather systems must develop cyclone characteristics with low-pressure centers and winds over 28 mph. At 39 mph, a depression becomes a tropical storm, and at 74 mph, the system is classified as a hurricane.

Man injured in fire files $650,000 suit

DALLAS (AP) — A 42-year-old Dallas man injured in a fire aboard an Air Canada flight June 2 has filed a lawsuit seeking $650,000 in damages from the airline and the plane's manufacturer, McDonnell Douglas Corp.

Twenty-three passengers died from smoke inhalation in the fire which broke out aboard the DC-9 jet after it took off from Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport en route to Toronto.

The plane made an emergency landing Cincinnati.

Harry Moseley, one of 16 passengers who survived, and his wife, Penelope, filed the suit in federal district court here Wednesday.

The suit, which seeks $400,000 in actual damages and $250,000 in punitive damages, alleges the airline was negligent in the operation of the plane, and that McDonnell Douglas knew materials in the aircraft were flammable.

An Air Canada official said he would not comment on the suit because the airline had not been served with it yet. McDonnell Douglas Corp. officials could not be reached for comment.

The family of a Canadian man who died in the fire have filed suit seeking $8.5 million in damages in his death.

McDonnell Douglas officials said in response to that suit that their plane met federal safety standards.

Del Monte plant to be shut down

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — About 240 people have lost their jobs this week with the closing of a manufacturing plant here by Del Monte Frozen Foods Inc.

The duties of the plant, which manufactured Patio brand Mexican dinners, have been transferred to a facility in Russellville, Ark., said Mark Gutsche, Del Monte's manager of corporate communications.

The San Antonio facility's last day of production was Tuesday, but the decision to shut it down first was announced in December.

The plant opened independently in the late 1940s and later was acquired by San Francisco-based Del Monte, Gutsche said.

The city of San Antonio planned to conduct a "job factory" for the workers, including tips on how to prepare a resume and handle a job interview.

Test tube Baboons will help research

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A female baboon named E.T. has become the first non-human primate test-tube baby and scientists hope the technique will produce newborn baboons that will aid the study of diseases, a researcher says.

E.T., who weighs just over two pounds, was born Monday at the Southwest Foundation for Research and Education, said Dr. Thomas J. Kuehl, who supervised the fertilization process.

"E.T. is healthy and the mother did very well considering it was her first birth," Kuehl said Wednesday.

"We have proven that the in vitro technique can work in primates," said Kuehl, an associate scientist at the foundation's cardiopulmonary department.

Kuehl said scientists hope the technique, which is used in woman who are infertile because of blocked oviducts, can be used to increase the size of certain baboon families.

"We want to produce newborns that have a particular genetic background at a faster rate so investigators will be able to study a specific disease process," Kuehl said.

The process differs in non-human primates in that the embryo is implanted in the oviduct rather than in the uterus, he said.

Kuehl said a team of researchers is using the embryo transfer process in other baboons.

Paul Harvey News Parasite invasion

We had it made. Our United States of America enjoyed a charmed existence for 200 years.

Our tiny 6 percent of the earth's land surface was an island paradise, sheltered by wide oceans. Within our borders we grew strong, virile, vigorous.

While most of the rest of the world population was debilitated by climate, crowding and disease, we eradicated or controlled most of our diseases and excluded theirs.

Until now. Now our peripatetic population plus uncontrolled immigration have resulted in a massive invasion of our nation by parasites.

Microscopic parasites. Parasitic diseases are the most widespread of all mankind's diseases -- historically diseases mostly of Asia, Africa, South Africa and the Caribbean.

They're here now. Most medical students graduating this year will never see even one of a dozen childhood diseases which used to be commonplace. With medicine, sanitation and nutrition we vanquished those historic enemies.

But American doctors will be seeing symptoms of a whole new generation of parasitic diseases -- malaria, schistosomiasis, trypanosomiasis, filariasis, onchocerciasis, leishmaniasis.

For these diseases

Americans have no acquired immunity.

So "sheltered" have we been that very few physicians or lab technicians are presently competent even to recognize malaria when they see it. They'd better learn to.

Presently our nation grapples in desperation with AIDS "bugs" from Haiti.

Though there has been no public alert -- yet -- leprosy is a rapidly increasing statewide menace. And TB and footlong intestinal worms.

Essentially, progress against parasites has been nil since the first discovery of the malarial cycle in a primitive laboratory in Punjab in 1898.

The state of our knowledge of parasitic diseases is woefully primitive.

We do know this: These diseases worldwide threaten three billion people and stateside 130 million Americans are already infected or affected.

Parasitic diseases can be painful, debilitating, disfiguring--deadly.

There is no known treatment for leishmaniasis, an infection in which the nose and mouth are eaten away.

Schistosomiasis causes irreversible damage to liver and kidneys.

We are "not doing nothing" about this menacing invasion. Meager efforts by the World Health Organization and our government are being supplemented by private foundation grants directed toward a better understanding of and response to these microscopic enemies.

Hopefully, we have enough time.

Crucial

allowed to compete in elections if Nicaragua's internal conflict is to be resolved.

Another official said Reagan's letter was also a response to what the administration considered the Contadora group's lack of emphasis on the need for democratic governments as a way to achieve peace.

On July 17, in Cancun, Mexico, the Contadora group outlined 10 points aimed at reducing regional military tensions, but none of the points dealt with the internal politics of Central American nations.

In Reagan's letter, the need for democracy was listed ahead of an end to intervention in the affairs of other countries, long the administration's chief stated goal in the region.

Reagan has repeatedly accused Nicaragua of funneling military supplies to leftist Salvadoran guerrillas, and as recently as his April 27 spousings, the president said, "our interest is to ensure that (Nicaragua) does not infect its neighbors through the export of subversion and violence."

That emphasis, however, has been changing since last year with the collapse of bilateral talks between the United States and Nicaragua and with the growth of the contra forces.

However, U.S. officials acknowledge that those governments fall faumodel constitutional democracies.

In El Salvador, a church-sponsored agency says government security forces and allied rightist death squads have murdered more than 2,500 civilians this year. In Honduras, the military retains broad powers despite the existence of an elected civilian government.

Reagan called for "a ban on support for subversive elements," removal of foreign military and security advisers, and a "certifiable freeze" on acquisition of offensive weapons.

Wilson escapes drug charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I feel relieved," Rep. Charles Wilson of Texas said slowly, toying with the eyeglasses in his hand and staring out his office window across the lushly-wooded Capitol lawn.

Then he was on his feet. He walked to the door, opened it and told an aide, "Would you bring me a glass of wine, to calm my nerves a little bit."

Wilson, 50, a six-term Democrat who is known as "good-time Charlie" because of a fondness for beautiful women, had just learned of a Justice Department decision not to prosecute him and two other present or former congressmen on charges that they had used drugs.

There was, the department said, "insufficient admissible, credible evidence to support criminal charges..."

For Wilson, the department's announcement Wednesday ended a long wait -- one that began in January when reports surfaced that he was being investigated by the Justice Department because of allegations that he had used cocaine.

In the final hours, tension built in Wilson's congressional office while he and his aides awaited the announcement, which they had been told would be issued at 3 p.m.

Elaine Lang, Wilson's press secretary, raised her hands high, crossed her fingers, and said, "It'll be nice to have things normal around here."

Wilson popped forth from his inner office, and asked, "Heard anything?"

"Just that it's been issued," Ms. Lang responded. "But we don't know what's in it?" Wilson asked.

Ms. Lang indicated no, and headed for a phone. Moments

Texas Gov. White's stock grows as possible presidential running mate

AUSTIN (AP) — Former U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough says Gov. Mark White is being mentioned more and more as a possible Democratic vice presidential candidate next year.

Yarborough also told the Texas AFL-CIO convention Wednesday that White's upset victory over Republican Bill Clements in 1982 spoiled GOP plans to make Texas the key southwestern state in President Reagan's re-election effort.

The ex-senator subbed for White, who was in Washington, as the featured speaker on the opening day of the convention, which was dedicated to Yarborough.

Yarborough, 80, was a Democratic member of the Senate from Texas in 1957-71.

White and Attorney General Jim Mattox were among those scheduled to speak today, and the man who defeated Yarborough in the 1970 Democratic primary -- U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen -- will speak Friday.

White missed the first session to testify at a congressional hearing on the federal Staggers Rail Act of 1980 and its impact on coal rates.

"I don't blame Mark White for not being here ... it's a temptation to go to Washington to speak, because I've been up there twice in the last month, and the talk's growing over this nation for Mark White for vice president next time, because he made an impact on the nation by his upset victory over the strongest Republican governor in the Sun Belt," Yarborough said.

Yarborough and Texas AFL-CIO President Harry Hubbard told nearly 700 labor delegates that Reaganomics is killing the American labor movement.

"Our backs are against the wall," said Hubbard. "We cannot allow four more years of Reaganomics. It is a matter of life and death for unions in Texas and throughout the country."

"For the first time in 15 years, the Texas AFL-CIO has suffered a membership decline," Hubbard said. "The reason is simply that fewer of our members are working."

AFL-CIO Secretary-Treasurer Joe Gunn said membership had declined by 15 percent, and the state staff had agreed to a wage freeze that has been in effect for over 1 1/2 years.

Yarborough said if Reagan is re-elected, "he's reaching for the jugular, he's reaching for the labor movement of America, because everybody on the White House staff wants it."

"This country is in grave danger," Yarborough said.

where battered women and migrant families, among other troubled people, can go to spend a night or two.

"We definitely need a park," offered one man.

Herford Senior Citizens were interested in having part of the CDBG be used for funding their proposed new building. Allen told them she thought their request is probably eligible under the federal program's guidelines.

One man expressed hope the county would apply for not only the CDBG, but for the remaining PRPC funds as well. Rose, however, said competition was reportedly quite fierce for the other $800,000, for which applications are not restricted by unemployment statistics.

County Judge Glenn Nelson, following the hearing, also indicated Deaf Smith County would not apply for anything other than the CDBG.

Neither details of the second public hearing nor the

timetable for preparing the application - due September 1 - have yet been worked out, according to Nelson. Commissioners were not made aware of the CDBG before the arrival of a letter dated July 15. Monday's county commission meeting established Wednesday's hearing as a first step in the application process.

Nelson said the two hearings would normally be held at least two weeks apart. On Wednesday night, Rose told the gathering the commission will have pretty much decided by the second hearing what the thrust of the county's application for the CDBG would be. He did not know, though, whether those decisions would be made public before the hearing.

After Wednesday's hearing, Kelso explained the PRPC and CDBG are new programs which represent attempts by the federal government to give states more authority in distributing federal relief funds. The programs basically redirect the disbursement of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) funds, she said.

Nelson said the new system does not entail as much red tape as HUD. "We've been through two of these projects with HUD," he said, "and the paperwork was staggering."

Neither PRPC representative knew when a final decision would be made on the CDBG. After their 12-member panel reviews the expected applications from Hall and Deaf Smith Counties, a state review committee and the governor must approve the grants.

Update

day of the session until finally approved in the Legislature's final hours.

He assailed the lower quality of education statewide, calling for a "re-vamping" of the educational system itself.

He also said that the state must "look for an alternative" to the current prison system. "I don't feel that the solution is to build more prisons," he said, citing a possible solution in the form of an expanded work release program for inmates convicted of a felony who did not use a dangerous weapon during their crime.

"Seventy-seven percent of all crime committed in this state is alcohol related," he continued. "We tried very hard during the session to expand alcohol rehabilitation, but failed."

Sarpalius said he was pleased with the passage of an anti-dog fighting law during the session. "In the past dog fighting was a misdemeanor in Texas, while every state from here to California had it as a felony," he said. As a result there was a high influx of dog fighting here."

The senator also said that he did not support paramutual wagering efforts during the session, calling effort by proponents to label it as a revenue-builder "deceiving to the public."

He also said that he hoped he would never have to conduct a filibuster such as the one he did during discussion on the worker's compensation issue during the session.

"We worked very hard against it," he said of the measure designed to provide worker's compensation coverage to farm workers, even if they worked as little as three hours for a particular farmer. "That would have cost our district millions of dollars," he said.

He said that 58 bills were passed during the session, but that the Legislature is still looking at another special session in October. He said that the issues of education, taxes, and the worker's compensation issue would probably come up again during that session.

Interest developing in appliance repairs

More and more consumers are beating the high cost of service calls by doing their own appliance repairs.

Manufacturers of major appliances such as washers, dryers, refrigerators and ranges, have reported a surge of interest in repair information, says Mary Clayton, a home economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

High costs and the increase in unemployed people who have the time to make repairs but not the dollars to hire the work done is one reason for the growth in do-it-yourself activity," says Clayton.

More women and people with high-tech jobs are also entering the do-it-yourself market as they feel they have the skills to make home repairs.

Even the availability of more how-to information contributes to the appliance repair boom, she explains.

Some manufacturers now encourage home repair by supplying step-by-step manuals and specially packaged repair parts. These companies often provide a toll-free number that consumers can call to get help in diagnosing problems and performing repairs.

But not all manufacturers are responding to do-it-yourselfers' needs, says Clayton, a family resource management specialist.

Some companies do not recommend home repairs because of concern about potential liability due to injury or accidental death of the do-it-yourselfer.

Manufacturers also note that customers may spend more money in the long run if they repair the appliance improperly and then need a follow-up service call.

"Safety is the big question all manufacturers raise about do-it-yourself appliance repair," states Clayton. Most companies contend that only those consumers who are mechanically inclined should tackle their own repairs.

"So consumers should consider their own competence to do repairs, as well as how much help they can get from the manufacturer before buying a new appliance," says the specialist.

Ann Landers
Why a bride's guide

DEAR ANN LANDERS: First, let me say I sent away for your New Bride's Guide the very day you mentioned it in your column and it is well worth the $2. A few weeks later I clipped a cartoon by Signe Wilkinson of the San Jose Mercury News that put me in stitches. That cartoon made it clear why a person needs a New Bride's Guide.

The cartoon depicted the modern wedding party. Each person had a number and the identification appeared in a "key" below. It's difficult to explain in words what a cartoon looks like, but I'll do my best. The drawing showed (1) Bride, (2) Groom, (3) Groom's daughter from first marriage, (4) Bride's mother, (5) Bride's mother current lover, (6) Bride's sperm donor father, (7 & 8) Sperm donor's parents who sued for visitation rights, (9) Bride's mother's lover at time of bride's birth, (10) Groom's mother, (11) Groom's mother boyfriend, (12) Groom's father, (13) Groom's stepmother, (14) Groom's father's third wife, (15) Groom's grandfather, (16) Groom's grandfather's lover, (17) Groom's first wife.

Couldn't you just die, Ann? Planet Earth 1983

DEAR EARTH: While that cartoon is hilarious, it says a great deal about what is happening in today's society. Don't sneer, you skeptics out there. You could be in a similar photo yourself one of these days.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 10-year-old nephew must have a kidney transplant within the next few months. The boy's parents are very courageous and so is the lad. Do you know of any reading material that might help the family through this ordeal? We have searched the library in vain. Thanks, Ann. — Anonymous In An Eastern State

DEAR ANONYMOUS: I recommend "A Gift of Courage" by Thomas S. Morse, M.D. This book is an inspiring story of a compassionate and loving physician and the children he cared for. It should be in the hands of every parent whose child must undergo surgery, as well as health professionals who work in pediatrics. It will alleviate their anxiety and replace fear with hope and peace of mind. The publisher, Doubleday. The price, $16.95.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What do you think of a man who is smart enough to run a multinational company, has over 2,000 people in his employ, travels in top financial circles and has just negotiated one of the most brilliant contracts in his field...yet he is so dumb he will not have a tooth in his head within three years because he has neglected his mouth so badly?

I have given up begging him to go to the dentist. Every time I mention it we get into a fight. Is there an explanation, Ann? Please explain this to me. I can't understand it.—A Zero In Conn.

DEAR CONN.: Your tycoon type was probably traumatized by a dentist when he was a child and is scared to death to go near one. He refuses to believe that modern dentistry is virtually painless. Show him this column and tell him I swear by this statement.

Avoid mosquito hazard

COLLEGE STATION — With Texas' heavy spring and summer rains, homeowners need to be on guard against a "bumper crop" of mosquitos and the health hazards they bring.

Encephalitis is spread by the bite of an infected mosquito, which receives the infection by first biting an infect animal, says Dr. Mary Ann Shirer, a health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Texas offers an idea environment for encephalitis because of its large bird populations which can become infected with the virus and carry it great distances, she adds.

In addition, infection from scratching mosquito bites and allergic reactions causing redness, swelling and itching are other possible health hazards.

Bengal to appeal

By The Associated Press
Cincinnati fullback Pete Johnson will appeal his National Football League suspension and St. Louis linebacker E. J. Junior is considering doing the same thing.

"lumped together with no distinctions made between their case and those of Junior and Johnson" made him consider the appeal.

Johnson is not in the Bengals' training camp because of a contract dispute and Browner was told to leave after Monday's workout and has not indicated whether he will appeal the suspension.

Junior isn't sure, either. "I don't know what path I'm going to take yet," he said. "But I really have to take everything into consideration...if there's a possibility of me being able to come back sooner than the four weeks, and help the Cardinals, I don't want to miss it."

Mark VanderLaan, an attorney for Johnson, said Wednesday that his client will file the appeal with NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle "in the next two or three weeks."

Junior said he had discussed the possibility of an appeal with his agent, Marvin Demoff.

Junior, Johnson, defensive end Ross Browner of the Bengals and defensive back Greg Stenrick of Houston were suspended for the first four games of the regular season.

The two Bengals were disciplined for admitting in the recent trial of a Cincinnati plumber that they had bought cocaine from him on more than a dozen occasions. Junior and Stenrick were suspended after being convicted of cocaine possession in separate cases.

Talented Trackster

Shantel Cornelius, 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Cornelius of Hereford, displays the four medals she won at the Region 16 TAAF track meet last weekend in Amarillo. Shantel won a gold medal in the 440 Relay, and took home silver medals in the 50 and 100 yard dashes and long jump as a member of the Boys Ranch team coached by her uncle, Johnny Cornelius. She qualified for the state meet in all four events despite the meet being her first ever, and only having one workout before it was held.

Quisenberry gets save

Perry gains first Royal victory

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

Gaylord Perry sure had something on the ball for the Kansas City Royals — especially when Cleveland came to bat in the sixth inning.

Perry joined some pretty select company Wednesday night when he recorded his 3,500th strikeout, joining Walter Johnson, Nolan Ryan and Steve Carlton at that plateau.

The 20-year veteran did it by striking out the side in the sixth. And three innings later, after Dan Quisenberry had nailed down Kansas City's 5-4 victory with his 25th save of the season, Perry had his first victory for the Royals.

"I changed a few things tonight," Perry said. "I told Cloyd Boyer (Kansas City's pitching coach) before the game I was going to come sidearm a little bit. That was my game plan. I just wanted to try something different."

"Gaylord pitched an outstanding game," Royals Manager Dick Howser said following Perry's fourth start for Kansas City. "His stuff was good. That's the job we want him to do." He was signed earlier in the month after being released by Seattle.

"It sure felt good," said Perry, only 4-11 this year, of the strikeout milestone.

Hal McRae and Willie Aikens hit consecutive homers during Kansas City's decisive four-run third inning.

George Brett had a first-inning sacrifice fly and an RBI single in the third before McRae hit his seventh home run and Aikens followed with his 10th of the year for a 5-0 lead.

Yankees 4, Rangers 3
Rich Gossage had an easy time of it — for a change.

The Yankees' relief ace, who was tagged for Brett's two-run non-homer last Sunday and gave up a two-run single and a sacrifice fly to the Rangers on Monday night — only to win when Dave Winfield hit a two-run triple in the ninth — saved Matt Keough's victory with 1 2-3 routine innings of relief.

"I'm tired of making them exciting," he said.

Steve Kemp drove in New York's tie-breaking run with a triple in the top of the eighth inning as the Yanks won their 12th in 13 games.

Brewers 13, Twins 9

In Minnesota, Cecil Cooper and Jim Gantner drove in four runs each, Paul Molitor collected five hits and Gantner and Molitor each scored four runs as the Brewers ended the Twins' five-game win streak.

Cooper raised his league-leading RBI total to 83 with two sacrifice flies and a two-run homer, his 23rd homer of the year, tying him with Jim Rice for the league lead.

Ted Simmons drove in three runs for the Brewers with two singles, one of them the game-winner in his 7,000th major-league at-bat.

White Sox 11, Blue Jays 3

The White Sox, who left home 2½ games out of first place in the West nearly two weeks ago, return home leading the division by that margin, thanks in part to solo home runs by Ron Kittle, Harold Baines, Carlton Fisk and Scott Fletcher's bases-loaded triple that highlighted a six-run eighth inning in Toronto.

Alfredo Griffin homered for the Blue Jays.

Mariners 5, Tigers 3

Pat Putnam drove in four runs with two homers as Seattle ended its six-game losing streak.

Golf profitable

After the weekly Golf Scramble prizes at Pitman Municipal Golf Course were carried over a week because of a tie last week. A team headed by Helen Ann McWhorter captured the awards Wednesday afternoon by carding a 27 score in the tourney.

On the team with Mrs. McWhorter were Max Goforth, Cuby Kitchens and R.L. Blakely. Each member received $94.50 in merchandise from the pro shop as a winning share.

A team composed of Greg Robinson, Dick Gholson, Earl Stagner and Nolan Grady was second in the tourney with a 28 score.

The weekly scramble is open to all interested golfers on a first-come basis. Entry fee is $3 and persons may enter anytime the week before the tourney.

'Doctor's orders'

Trevino to quit...practicing

By BOB GREEN AP Golf Writer

OAKVILLE, Ontario (AP) — Lee Trevino has retired. Not from tournament golf — but from practice.

"You won't see me out there beating balls again. Warming up, yes. Sure, I'll warm up. But not beating balls. That's over. I'm retired from practice," Trevino said before teeing off today in the first round of the $425,000 Canadian Open golf tournament.

And the gregarious 43-year-old, a three-time winner of this national championship, is something more than a sentimental favorite.

He broke a lengthy victory drought with a triumph in the Canadian PGA early this month and followed up with a strong performance in the British Open.

"Oh, I can still play. I just can't practice," Trevino said.

"I'd always thought you had to practice a lot, weren't doing your job if you didn't."

"Now I've got an excuse. Doctor's orders."

Trevino, who was playing well at the time, practiced extensively, hitting up to 600 balls a day, in preparation for the U.S. Open last month. He practiced so much that he developed muscle spasms in his back and was forced to withdraw.

"The doctors told me it's just something that happens when you start getting older. You just can't practice that much. Your body won't take it."

"So I'm retired from practice."

Trevino, however, got in a practice round in the pro-am tournament, shot a 5-under-par 69 on the 7,300-yard Glen Abbey Golf Club course and won the event.

"I think I've still got another win or two, maybe a major tournament win, left in me," he said.

Although numerous withdrawals reduced the starting field to 146, the opposition remains formidable.

Chief among Trevino's opponents in the chase for a $76,500 first prize are defending champion Bruce Lietzke, who often plays his best in this tournament, Jack Nicklaus and Cal Peete, who scored his second victory of the season last week.

Among the other standouts are Fuzzy Zoeller, David Graham, Johnny Miller, Tom Weiskopf and Jim Colbert.

CBS will provide national television coverage in the United States of portions of the final two rounds, and CBC will televise the tournament in Canada.

YOU AUTO KNOW

Don Henslee

Q. I'm getting worse mileage out of my spark plugs than I get from gasoline (well, almost) in my 1981 Toronado. After just a few hundred miles I pull the plugs and they're wet and black. What's the solution?

A. First, be sure the plugs are not too cold for engine operation. The condition you describe is an oil-fouled plug. You may have an oil-seal problem. If you're sure you don't have worn or damaged cylinders and piston rings, a clogged PCV valve may be causing oil vapor to foul things. The PCV valve recycles the unburned gases from the crank case back into the engine's combustion chamber where they are safely returned. This is an important part of the engine's pollution control system. Henslee eventually will clog the valve, restricting its function and allowing polluting fumes to escape. Replacing the PCV valve should solve the problem.

McPhail announces

Home run upheld

By JOHN NELSON AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — American League President Lee MacPhail overruled the umpires today and ordered that George Brett's two-run homer against the New York Yankees last Sunday count, even though it was hit with a bat coated with too much pine tar.

The Yankees were declared winners of that game, 4-3, over Kansas City when the umpires disallowed Brett's home run and recorded it instead as the final out. Now, the game must be picked up with two outs in the top of the ninth with Kansas City leading 5-4.

MacPhail, reading from a two-page statement at a news conference, said:

"It is the position of this office that the umpires' interpretation, while technically defensible, is not in accord with the intent or spirit of the rules and that the rules do not provide that a hitter be called out for excessive use of pine tar."

MacPhail said the game now "must be completed before the close of the season if practicable or at the close of the season if it should affect the first-place position in either division."

MacPhail said his office would have to further study the situation to determine whether Brett will be eligible to play in the game's resumption. In addition to having his home run nullified, Brett also was ejected from the game by plate umpire Tim McClelland.

MacPhail said it was his impression that the rule was intended only in cases where a bat was altered "to improve the distance factor or cause an unusual reaction on the baseball."

"It has not been seriously contended that the pine tar on Brett's bat did either," MacPhail said.

Thus, MacPhail upheld a protest by the Royals, who contended that Brett should not have been called out.

MacPhail said it was the conclusion of his study that an "opposing team has the right to call the infraction to the umpire's attention and ask that the bat be changed or cleaned up."

MacPhail laid the blame not on the umpires, but on the official playing rules, which he said "in some areas are unclear and imprecise."

The controversy began when Brett used the bat to launch a two-run homer with two outs in the top of the ninth against the Yankees, boosting the Royals into a 5-4 lead.

In Stockholm

Moses helps relay win

By STEPHAN NASSTROM AP Sports Writer

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Edwin Moses, the unbeatable 400-meter hurdler, never gets bored of winning track races.

Owner of one of the most impressive streaks in track and field history, Moses was a winner again Wednesday as the United States whipped the Nordic All Stars 327-247.

Moses, who has won 79 straight 400-meter hurdle races, passed up his specialty to run the third leg on the U.S. 1,600-meter relay. The Americans won in 3 minutes, 45.7 seconds.

"I've only lost once since the 1976 Olympics. I just don't know what it is to lose," the 27-year-old Laguna Beach, Calif., superstar said.

Moses' split time was 45.8 seconds. That's not bad for a man who needed 10 days to recover from stomach trouble after a recent meet in Spain.

"I felt as good as I could expect today. I'm regaining my strength again and everything is going to be OK for Helsinki," Moses said.

In the first World Track and Field Championships Aug. 7-14, Moses will be one of the most heavily favored athletes.

Slowly getting back into top form again, Moses clocked the fastest time of the year in the 400 hurdles, 47.84 seconds, at the USA Championships in Indianapolis last month. His world record is 47.13, set in 1960.

The 1976 Olympic champion, winner of every World Cup and owner of nine of the top 10 times ever, Moses is undefeated since Aug. 26, 1977. He was beaten in Berlin by Harald Schmid, the West German who also will be around in Helsinki.

Moses sat out last season because of allergic problems and pneumonia. He didn't run any races, but trained from December till June. Yet, after 20 months between competitions, he shot right back to the top.

Perry O'Brien, the American shot put legend, had a streak of 100-plus wins and Harrison Dillard, the great American hurdler, won 82 straight races during his career.

ABC to telecast

Olympics one year off

By FRED ROTHENBERG AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Exactly one year from tonight, ABC-TV will begin two weeks of original programming that one network executive calls "the biggest television show in history."

Since John Martin, ABC Sports' vice president for programming, is referring to the first Summer Olympics held in this country since 1932 when they also were held in Los Angeles, his pronouncement may be more than mere network hype.

The opening ceremonies for the Los Angeles Games will be the beginning of 187½ hours — almost all live — of Olympic running, diving and somersaulting.

CBS and NBC may as well take the night off.

Which is why ABC's commercial time for the entire Olympics is virtually sold out, at a cost of $250,000 for 30 seconds in prime time, an astronomical figure for the low-viewer summertime. ABC's "Winds of War" sold for $175,000 a half-minute last February. Thirty seconds on last January's Super Bowl, a three-hour event, cost $400,000.

The total commercial revenues amount to $616 million for both the Summer Games and ABC's 65 hours of Winter Olympics coverage from Sarajevo, Yugoslavia, in February. After subtracting the total rights fees for both Games ($316.5 million), production costs (about $150 million), advertising agency payments ($92 million) and such factors as standard reimbursements to ABC's affiliates for broadcasting network programs, "we expect to more than recoup our investment," says Martin.

ABC's commercial charges are based on the network's anticipation of an average rating of 25 (25 percent of the nation's TV homes) for the two weeks.

Martin knows that major finals have not been scheduled for early afternoon during the week. Why? When you're paying $225 million for rights to the Summer Games, you're paying for other rights, too.

"The L.A. Olympic Committee designed its schedule, within reason, with us in mind," Martin says. "Gymnastics, for example, will start at 4:15 local time to coincide with 7:15 on the East Coast." The major finals will be on in prime time, and ABC asked that the marathon and boxing finals not conflict, as they did in 1976 at Montreal. The LAOC complied.

ABC's typical broadcast schedule, in Eastern time, next summer will be: Olympics from 10-30 a.m.-2 p.m., soaps from 2-4, Olympics from 4-5:30, local news from 5:30-6:30, national news from 6:30-7, Olympics from 7-midnight, local news from 12-12:30, and Olympics from 12:30-2.

Besides providing coverage for American audiences, ABC has the responsibility for beaming every minute of every event to international broadcasters who might prefer field hockey to basketball. The undertaking amounts to over 1,600 hours of live coverage.

The international signal will emanate from a rehabilitated movie studio. The Games will reach one billion viewers — more people than saw all of the movies ever made on the same lot, says Martin.

Stacy defines patience

By MARK J. KREIDLER AP Sports Writer

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Hollis Stacy has her own definition of patience.

"Patience," says the two-time U.S. Women's Open golf tournament champion, "is when you three-putt the first hole and you walk off and you don't bury your putter into the next tee box."

"You have the patience to know that you're going to have those three-putts. You're going to have those bogeys. Sometimes, you're going to have entire tournaments like that."

The 29-year-old Stacy, the fifth-biggest money-winner on the tour this season, will be testing her patience today when the 31st U.S. Women's Open begins amidst sweltering 100-degree temperatures at Cedar Ridge Country Club.

The $200,000 championship is being billed as a hot-weather survival contest between the older, more experienced players and their younger, stronger colleagues. But Stacy thinks presence of mind may be the key to victory.

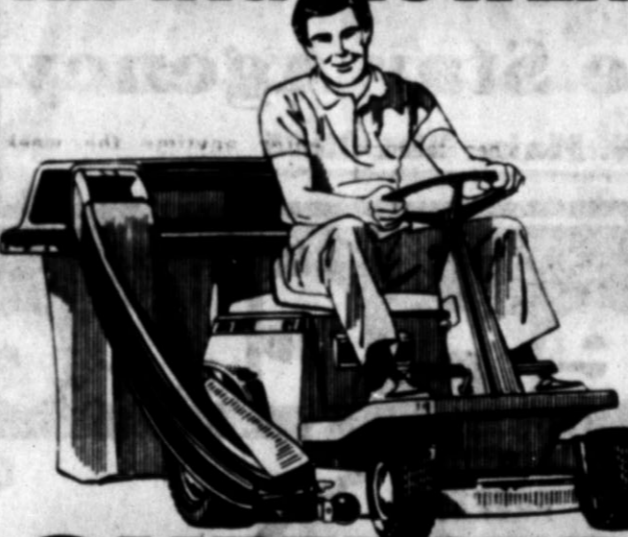

"You have to believe that you're going to come out here and pile up some bogeys," she said of the 6,290-yard, par-71 course. "I don't think the heat will make all the difference, but the mental states will."

"In this Open, as in all Opens, if you make a par, that's pretty good. In fact, I think (a score that is) under par will win it. Maybe 3-or-4-under."

Stacy's assessment was echoed by most of the women who played practice rounds Monday through Wednesday. The 151-player field, more than half amateurs, will be cut to about 60 after Friday's second round.

Stacy is considered an excellent candidate to win her third Open title. Other favorites are Amy Alcott, JoAnne Carner, Donna Caponi, Patty Sheehan and Kathy Whitworth.

Questions answered by FDA

The daily grocery shopping trip and the milkman's visit were part of the America of not too long ago. But refrigeration and modern processing techniques have eliminated them.

However, some foods remain perishable, particularly under certain conditions in the home. As an aid to cooks, here are some frequently asked questions about food handling, storage and preparation. The answers come from the Food and Drug Administration and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Q. Can frozen food be thawed at room temperature?

A. Yes, but DON'T DO IT. Thaw foods in the refrigerator or cook them frozen. If you must thaw poultry in a hurry, submerge it in cold running water.

Q. At what temperature should perishable foods be kept?

A. Fresh meat, poultry and other perishables should be kept either cold or hot. Your refrigerator should register no more than 40 degrees Fahrenheit. Meat should be cooked to above 140 F. than 40 degrees Fahrenheit. Meat should be cooked to above 140 F.

Q. How long can meat and poultry be kept unfrozen?

A. Poultry and meat may be stored as purchased in plastic wrap for a day or two. For longer storage, rewrap loosely in wax paper or plastic wrap. In the freezer wrap the product tightly and date it, using older items first.

Q. Doesn't refrigeration protect food from harmful bacteria?

A. No, but it will stop them from multiplying. It also retards the ability of some bacteria to produce a toxin or poison.

Q. Well, then, does heat kill off bacteria?

A. Yes. Cooking foods at high temperatures kills bacteria. For this reason leftovers should be heated to at least 165 F, and gravies should be brought to a boil.

Q. How can one tell when meat or poultry is cooked long enough?

A. Use a meat thermometer. Insert in thickets part of roast, not touching fat or bone, or in the thick part of the thigh in poultry. Internal minimum temperatures of beef, veal and lamb should be at least 140 F, 150 F for fresh pork, and 165 F for poultry.

Q. Is it safe to cook pork in a microwave oven?

A. Yes, but because undercooked pork may contain trichina larvae, certain steps must be taken to avoid "cold spots" in the meat. Use evenly shaped cuts of five pounds or less; rotate them frequently and test to be sure they reach 170 F throughout. The cooked meat should rest under an aluminum foil tent for 10 minutes to allow even heat distribution.

Q. Why is it necessary to wash poultry before cooking?

A. Salmonella organisms, which can cause food poisoning, are often present in fresh and frozen poultry. Poultry, and all work surfaces and utensils that touch poultry, should be washed carefully. Cook poultry to 165 F or higher to destroy Salmonella.

Q. Speaking of washing food, I feel like a raccoon always washing off food. Do vegetables really have to be rinsed?

A. The raccoon is not so dumb, always dunking his dinner. Humans should always wash fruits and vegetables thoroughly. They can carry pesticide residues and disease-producing organisms.

Q. Can foods be refrozen once they're removed from the freezer or if the freezer breaks down?

A. Check the labels on packaged frozen goods to see if they can be refrozen. Meats that still contain ice crystals or have been maintained at 45 F or below for less than two days can be safely refrozen, although some quality may be lost.

Q. Is food in dented cans dangerous?

A. Avoid food in containers with leaky seals or in bent or bulging cans. DON'T taste the contents; in fact, don't even open a bulging can. It could contain deadly botulinal toxin.

The leopard is so called because in medieval times, the animal was thought to be a cross between the lion (leo) and the pard, a panther that had no markings.

Argen Draper

Argen Draper to speak at luncheon

The 1983 Texas Association of Extension Home Economists will hold its 40th annual meeting in Amarillo Aug. 1, 2, 3 at the Hilton Inn.

Argen Draper, a retired extension agent and resident of Hereford will be speaking at a luncheon meeting on Aug. 2.

"Dr. Seaman A. Knapp was sent to Texas from the USDA to help cotton farmers learn to control the boll weevil. In addition to this assignment he dreamed of an organization to help farm families have better farm and home practices. This was the birth of Extension Service," Argen explained. "From this a beginning Extension has had an interesting heritage in that there are Extension agents in all of the 254 counties of Texas. Extension Service offers educational helps to all families in many subject matter areas."

Mrs. Draper is a charter member of Texas Association Extension Home Economists. She was County Extension agent for 32 years in Hemphill and Deaf Smith Counties and retired in 1974.

Some of her honors and recognitions include the Mabel Erwin Award for 40 years membership to the American and Texas Home Economics Associations, distinguished Service Award, Texas Superior Award and Outstanding Citizens Award. Mrs. Draper has published several articles. Two publications are "More Mileage from the Family Dollar" and "Adult Education in Family Business Practices." The annual event is being hosted by Panhandle District 1.

Westway reunion scheduled Sunday

Westway Community School will be the site of the annual Westway reunion, set for Sunday. All current and former Westway residents and their families are invited to attend.

Registration will begin at 11 a.m. and a covered dish dinner is scheduled at 12:30 p.m., followed by a program and visiting.

Going back to school after being away from the college campus for a while, especially when you have to drive 30 miles each way, makes for a hectic schedule sometimes, but it's worth it, says Janice Faulkner, who commuted to classes at West Texas State University this spring.

She had attended Amarillo College earlier, and this past year decided she'd like to go back to school and get her degree. "I imagine I'll go back in the fall," notes Janice, who says that she really enjoys it, despite the difficulty she encountered driving on ice covered highways at the beginning of the semester.

The young homemaker and mother of two is studying elementary education. She has done parent volunteer work in the schools here and also in Lubbock, where the family moved from three years ago.

Her husband, John, sells life and health insurance with Property Enterprises. He was employed with Blue Cross in Lubbock.

The couple's two daughters are Melanie, age 13, an eighth grader at La Plata Junior High, and Amy, 10, who is in the fifth grade at West Central.

John and Janice are both originally from Amarillo, where they went to high school together. After John graduated from Texas A&M University, he served in the U.S. Army and spent a year in Vietnam.

The Faulkners were stationed at Fort Benning, Ga., Fort Huachuca, Ariz., and Fort Carson, Colo., during this time, and Janice moved back to Amarillo while John was overseas.

"We never actually lived on base, but in nearby towns," says Janice. "We made some good friends while John was in the service."

Janice hasn't worked outside her home since moving to Hereford, but in Amarillo she was employed in the appliance department of a hardware store and in Lubbock she sold Avon and was a team leader over 20 Avon representatives.

"That was a real good experience," notes Janice, "because I was basically a shy person. It made me get out and knock on doors and get to know people. Since then it hasn't been as hard to meet our neighbors when we move."

Janice has become involved in several local organizations since moving here, and this year she is serving as vice-president of La Madre Mia Study Club. "We have kept in touch with our Secret Pals this summer," she comments.

She joined the Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce soon after arriving in Hereford and is currently serving as a board member. She has been a member of the Miss Hereford steering committee for two years and this year she worked with the Little Miss Hereford Pageant.

"I've really enjoyed being involved with the pageants," smiles Janice. "They are a lot of fun."

The Faulkners attend First Baptist Church, where Janice has served as director of Vacation Bible School for the past three years. She is also on the board for the local United Way.

John is a member of Rotary Club and Hereford Toastmasters, and is on the YMCA board. He works with the junior high department at First Baptist. The class has been planning a trip to Six Flags for several months and left Sunday for Dallas.

Melanie and Amy are also active in a variety of outside activities. They enjoy soccer, basketball, tennis and track, and they run a mile a day with their father. Amy takes voice lessons and Melanie has taken piano lessons and plays the trombone in band.

The whole family enjoys doing things together, such as camping, going to movies, shopping, and attending sports activities. "We've been real impressed with football here," comments Janice. "There is so much enthusiasm. We have attended both local and out of town games."

Janice is involved in a jazzercise class, and she enjoys playing bridge and reading. "I like to cook if you can make it in an hour," she smiles. She was fortunate enough to acquire a microwave oven about eight or nine years ago.

"I thoroughly enjoy using the microwave. It's so much faster," she comments.

Janice shares three recipes — favorites of each member of her family. John's favorite is the barbecue chicken, Melanie likes the Italian lasagne, and the cherry cheesecake is Amy's favorite.

BARBECUE CHICKEN
1 stick oleo
1 tsp. garlic salt
½ onion, chopped
2 Tbsp. lemon juice
dash of tobasco
1 Tbsp. worcestershire sauce
1 large bottle barbecue sauce
1 can of beer

This is enough sauce to marinate two chickens. Let chicken marinate overnight and cook slowly on outdoor grill.

ITALIAN LASAGNE
1 lb. ground meat
2 cloves garlic
2 (8 oz.) cans tomato sauce
½ can water
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. Italian seasoning
¼ tsp. pepper
¼ tsp. oregano
1 (8 oz.) pkg. broad noodles
½ lb. mozzarella cheese
½ lb. cottage cheese
parmesan cheese

Brown meat and minced garlic. Add tomato sauce, water, and seasonings. Cover and simmer 15 minutes.

Cook noodles. Alternate layers of noodles, grated mozzarella, cottage cheese, meat sauce, and parmesan in greased baking dish. Bake at 375 degrees until firm.

CHERRY CHEESECAKE
Crust:
1½ c. flour
2 Tbsp. sugar
½ c. oil

2 Tbsp. milk
Mix together and press into pie pan. Bake at 375 degrees until brown.

Filling:
1 (8 oz.) pkg. cream cheese, at room temperature
1 c. sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
1 envelope dream whip (prepared as directed on pkg.)

Mix together and pour into cooled pie shell. Top with a can of cherry pie filling.

Guest speaker slated to appear at meeting

Noble Grand, Lavita Fitzgerald, presided over the business meeting when members of Hereford Rebekah Lodge No. 228 met Tuesday evening.

Forty-five sick visits were reported and Nellie Beauford was installed to Right Supporter of Vice-Grand by the lodge Deputy, Roberta Combs.

The project of the Noble Grand and Vice-Grand of the year will be to lay new covering on the floor in the lodge kitchen.

It was also announced that the Hereford lodge will be making a visit to another lodge each month. The next meeting was scheduled at 7:45 p.m. Aug. 9. The public is urged to attend and hear Jimmy Lee of Muleshoe speak.

He has just returned from the pilgrimage to the United Nations. Lee was second place winner in a speaking contest on the pilgrimage and will convey his impressions of the United Nations meeting.

Sadie Shaw furnished refreshments Tuesday evening for Karrol Rettman, Susie Curtsinger, Irene Merritt, Anna Conklin, Ben Conklin, C.D. Fitzgerald, Elmer Combs.

Also, Kee Ruland, Leona Sowell, Peggy Lemons, Edna Mathes, Beth Hall, Blessie Shelton, Mmes. Fitzgerald, Combs and Beauford.

Home sewers paying more for patterns

WHY BE ASHAMED OF IT?

I want you to know, dear brothers, that I planned to come many times before (but was prevented) so that I could work among you and see good results, just as I have among the other Gentile churches. For I owe a great debt to you and to everyone else, both to civilized peoples and heathen nations; yes, to the educated and uneducated alike.

So, to the fullest extent of my ability, I am ready to come also to you in Rome to preach God's Good News.

For I am not ashamed of this Good News about Christ. It is God's powerful method of bringing all who believe it to heaven. This message was preached first to the Jews alone, but now everyone is invited to come to God in this same way.

This Good News tells us that God makes us ready for heaven--makes us right in God's sight--when we put our faith and trust in Christ to save us. This is accomplished from start to finish by faith. As the Scripture says it, "The man who finds life will find it through trusting God."

But God shows His anger from heaven against all sinful, evil men who push away the truth from them. For the truth about God is known to them instinctively; God has put this knowledge in their hearts.

Romans 1:13-19

COLLEGE STATION - The average $2.75 home sewers must pay for a pattern isn't the result of inflation alone. "Home sewers are paying for far more sophisticated products than they used to," explains Dr. Ann Vanderpoorten, a clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

In the past, company designers usually created the ideas for garments. Today, pattern companies are just as likely to purchase the rights to originals from well-known designers, says Vanderpoorten.

After purchase of the design, the company begins the process of making a pattern that home sewers can use. According to the home economist, the design is first draped on a dress form or made in a trial pattern.

Then a test garment is constructed and checked for fit on a dress form and a live model. It is also checked for suitability of use with different types of fabrics, such as plaids, stripes and various textures.

All through this process, adjustments are made in size or design to achieve the same look as in the original sketch. A final version of the garment is sewn to be drawn for the pattern envelope.

The production process involves marking the notches, dots, buttonholes, grain lines and other important features. The pattern is then graded to all sizes by computer, although the original is made in a size ten.

Along with the pattern, accurate instructions for the home sewer must be prepared, says the specialist. An instruction sheet and information for the pattern envelope are written. Technical illustrations are prepared to accompany the instruction sheet. Finally, the instructions are checked against the actual garment.

Then the company is ready to print the pattern pieces, envelopes and pattern catalogs.

The Newspaper BIBLE

WHY BE ASHAMED OF IT?

I want you to know, dear brothers, that I planned to come many times before (but was prevented) so that I could work among you and see good results, just as I have among the other Gentile churches. For I owe a great debt to you and to everyone else, both to civilized peoples and heathen nations; yes, to the educated and uneducated alike.

So, to the fullest extent of my ability, I am ready to come also to you in Rome to preach God's Good News.

For I am not ashamed of this Good News about Christ. It is God's powerful method of bringing all who believe it to heaven. This message was preached first to the Jews alone, but now everyone is invited to come to God in this same way.

This Good News tells us that God makes us ready for heaven--makes us right in God's sight--when we put our faith and trust in Christ to save us. This is accomplished from start to finish by faith. As the Scripture says it, "The man who finds life will find it through trusting God."

But God shows His anger from heaven against all sinful, evil men who push away the truth from them. For the truth about God is known to them instinctively; God has put this knowledge in their hearts.

Romans 1:13-19

Home sewers paying more for patterns

COLLEGE STATION—The average $2.75 home sewers must pay for a pattern isn't the result of inflation alone. "Home sewers are paying for far more sophisticated products than they used to," explains Dr. Ann Vanderpoorten, a clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

In the past, company designers usually created the ideas for garments. Today, pattern companies are just as likely to purchase the rights to originals from well-known designers, says Vanderpoorten.

After purchase of the design, the company begins the process of making a pattern that home sewers can use. According to the home economist, the design is first draped on a dress form or made in a trial pattern.

Then a test garment is constructed and checked for fit on a dress form and a live model. It is also checked for suitability of use with different types of fabrics, such as plaids, stripes and various textures.

Along with the pattern, accurate instructions for the home sewer must be prepared, says the specialist. An instruction sheet and information for the pattern envelope are written. Technical illustrations are prepared to accompany the instruction sheet. Finally, the instructions are checked against the actual garment.

Then the company is ready to print the pattern pieces, envelopes and pattern catalogs.

All through this process, adjustments are made in size or design to achieve the same look as in the original sketch. A final version of the garment is sewn to be drawn for the pattern envelope.

The production process involves marking the notches, dots, buttonholes, grain lines and other important features. The pattern is then graded to all sizes by computer, although the original is made in a size ten.

Along with the pattern, accurate instructions for the home sewer must be prepared, says the specialist. An instruction sheet and information for the pattern envelope are written. Technical illustrations are prepared to accompany the instruction sheet. Finally, the instructions are checked against the actual garment.

Then the company is ready to print the pattern pieces, envelopes and pattern catalogs.

Woman mounts campaign to persuade judges to give harsher sentences

HOUSTON (AP) — The pistol-packing wife of a Texas oilman wants judges to give harsher sentences to criminals, but members of Houston's legal community are comparing her group — CRIME Inc. — to the John Birch Society and Joe McCarthy.

President Phyllis Morrow says she's not perturbed — she's never heard of the ultraconservative Birch group or the former senator from Wisconsin who launched a 1950s campaign against alleged communists.

But she has heard enough tales of what she considers legal inequities to organize phone-in campaigns during trials, urging judges to assess harsh sentences. The group, which she says has 1,200 members, also publishes a report on Harris County criminal judges, detailing the percentage of cases in which they granted probation.

The actions of CRIME Inc. — an acronym for Crime Reduction Involvement Means Education — prompted a grand jury investigation after a judge contended the group was trying to influence unfairly a sentence in his court.

But another judge was so impressed, he required probationers from his court to contribute $25 to the group. That decision, however, has been challenged in the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

Meanwhile, the president of a local trial lawyers group says information printed in CRIME Inc.'s newsletter has led to an investigation of how members obtained defendants' previous criminal records, which are supposedly secret.

Mrs. Morrow, 40, chartered her organization in 1981. The previous year, she had been the victim of a robbery during which she was bound for 2 1/2 hours by two men armed with a pistol and a club.

Since then, she says she does not even garden without her .38-caliber revolver and never goes out alone.

"I call it survival in 1983," she says.

The man whom she identified as one of the robbers was on probation for murder and had been charged with several other violent crimes, including the wounding of two Texas sheriff's deputies in a shootout.

"Would you like to hear about real justice?" she asked.

"He was convicted on two cases — they didn't get to mine. He got life in one and 99 years in the other. Both cases were reversed on appeal. The week after the second reversal, he died of cancer. Is that not true justice?"

In the case currently under appeal, lawyers for a probationer, Michael A. Washington, contend state District Judge Michael McSpadden forced their client to support a group whose policies he may not agree with.

"It's tantamount to blackmail," attorney James Stafford says. Stafford compares Mrs. Morrow's newsletter "Courthouse Alert" to Joe McCarthy's "The Aware Bulletin," contending that neither publication gave its targets a chance to respond to accusations.

"They're closet Birchers, in my opinion," Stafford says. "If they picked up a newspaper and read some judge was requiring probationers to contribute $50 to the Gay Political Caucus, they'd go completely nuts."

Stafford expects a ruling from the appeals court later this year.

"Just basic fairness would say that they're entitled to confront the people that are accusing them or are providing information that would make their sentence more severe," Zimmermann says.

District Attorney John Holmes says he has encouraged Mrs. Morrow to "express herself after the fact" if she disapproves of a judicial decision, but to stay out of ongoing cases.

Mrs. Morrow responds that friends and relatives of defendants are allowed to contact a judge during a pre-sentence investigation with arguments for leniency and her group has the same right.

But Zimmermann says some members of his group fear CRIME Inc. "may be the first step in reinstating vigilante justice."

What caused stroke?

DEAR DR. LAMB — My wife died a year ago from a stroke and a heart attack. She had a history of high blood pressure for at least 11 years but she was only 51. She had an attack with pains in her arms and I took her to the hospital. They worked on her for about an hour and she seemed all right. They wanted her to stay but she would not. Two days later she had another attack at home and I wanted to take her back to the hospital but she would not go. Then two days after that she had a stroke at the house and a heart attack in the hospital.

oi deposits in the wall of the artery and a clot may form at the site. It is the same thing that happens in the arteries to the heart to cause heart attacks. Many people who have strokes also have disease in the arteries to the heart and vice versa.

Recent studies, however, have shown that a surprisingly large number of strokes are caused by a clot migrating from some location in the body and lodging in an artery in the brain. That is important because as medical science progresses it may mean that when these people can be identified and treated immediately one can avoid some or all of the brain damage that might occur and results in the symptoms people recognize as a stroke — the paralysis, loss of speech and other changes.

One source of such a clot is the heart. When a person has a damaged heart muscle a clot may form inside the heart over the area. If the clot is dislodged it may go to the brain and induce a stroke. That is one reason for keeping a heart attack patient quiet during the first several days after a heart attack.

Read What You Need To Know About Strokes in The Health Letter 16-6, which I am sending you and quit blaming yourself. DEAR DR. LAMB — For years I took a glass of soda water to stop my leg cramps. Then one night I fell asleep with my pantyhose on. No cramps all night. Now I wear them 24 hours a day and if I didn't I would have cramps all night.

Sears, Roebuck support hose is my best friend. I've tried others but I always come back to Sears. Buy a pair. Buy two pairs. They work for a 79-year-old lady, why not others?

DEAR READER — I don't intend to run out and buy a pair of pantyhose but I will remind my readers that leg cramps can be prevented in some people by keeping the legs warm at night. Long wool socks or any garment that traps heat helps.

And stretching the calves of the legs before sleeping helps. So will sleeping on your side or in such a position to keep from dropping the foot, which predisposes the leg to cramping.

Soak with citric acid

DEAR POLLY — The area I live in has very hard water. The drain in the bathtub seems like it has a very hard calcium deposit on it. How could I remove or dissolve this deposit? — ANNE

DEAR ANNE — Although it will probably take some time, soaking the area with either full-strength vinegar or a strong solution of citric acid may do the trick. Try to keep the vinegar or citric acid confined only to the mineral deposit in order to avoid any damage to the finish of the tub (long soaking with an acid product could cause some etching of the finish). One way to do this is to cover the deposit with a thick pad of paper towels or cloth, then saturate it with the vinegar. Re-wet the pad as necessary to keep it soaked. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — My mother uses wine boxes to store Christmas candles in. They fit safely into each slot. The cartons prevent the candles from scratching each other. — CARRIE

DEAR POLLY — When putting candles in the holders for birthday cakes, they always seem to be a little too big for the holders. If you try to force them in, they break easily. If you hold the candles in a little hot water for a minute, they soften just enough to go in easily. No more broken or bent candles! — MRS. O.S.

DEAR POLLY — I'd like to pass on a pet peeve from my Library Science teacher. She was very disturbed when torn pages of books were mended with transparent tape before returning them to the library. Transparent tape yellows with age and becomes brittle. However, semi-transparent book-mending tape doesn't discolor or become brittle. I now buy it instead of ordinary transparent tape for many uses. By the way, if you wonder what to do with a torn library book, just return everything to the librarian, who will have it mended properly. — MRS. L.E.W.
