

Negotiators work on budget compromise

By CLIFF HAAS Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional negotiators trying to piece together a compromise budget are grappling over a plan to limit the increase in military spending to 5 percent, half of what President Reagan has requested.

Conferees from the House and Senate began their bargaining Wednesday on separate budget blueprints passed by each chamber, and were continuing today with the focus on defense.

The $863.6 billion 1984 budget plan adopted by the Democrat-controlled House in March called for defense spending authority of $263.8 billion. House Democrats say this would be a 4 percent increase after inflation, but the Congressional Budget Office estimates it would be a 2.3 percent increase.

Reagan had asked in February for a 10 percent increase.

The $849.7 billion budget adopted by the Senate last month calls for $270.6 billion for defense, or about a 6 percent increase.

Congressional sources who insisted that they not be quoted by name said it appeared likely that the negotiators would split the difference between the House and Senate figures and settle on a 5 percent increase, or between $267 billion and $268 billion.

However, it was expected there would be heated discussions over the volatile defense issue before the agreement is reached.

"We've got to argue (the) 4 percent (limitation) very strongly," Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., said of the House position.

As the talks began Wednesday, it was clear that the negotiations would be difficult and warnings that a failure to reach agreement on an overall spending plan could imperil the nation's economic recovery.

"I think we'll have chaos if we don't have a budget resolution," said Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee. He added that "chaos will lead to abortion of the recovery."

"We'll need all the political skills and all the ability we can muster at statesmanship" to draft a plan that can pass both houses of Congress, said Rep.

James Jones, D-Okla., chairman of the House Budget Committee.

Meanwhile, the political bickering that accompanied the congressional budget process all year flared among the conferees.

Rep. Ed Bethune, R-Ark., reflected the view of conservative Republicans in the House who say both the House and Senate budget plans are unacceptable and that they will have enough votes to sustain Reagan's vetoes of spending and tax bills he deems excessive.

"You might get a document out of here that would pass both houses," Bethune told the other conferees, but it will be rejected "at the White House."

Panetta replied, "Anybody who thinks that the game of veto and counterveto and override is a way to replace the budget process is asking for a scenario of chaos. And chaos is not going to be able to be a foundation for economic recovery."

Health Care Plans

Home Health Care Agency of Texas workers from the Hereford regional office and the new branch in Amarillo were together Wednesday to discuss plans. Regional director Doris Morgan, seated, will supervise, standing from left, Jana McKinney, social worker for Amarillo; Pat Gifford, commuting psychotherapist from Dallas; and Becky Hodges, director for the Amarillo branch. Longterm plans call for the Hereford office to head branches in 16 Panhandle cities.

Rainfall continued in the city early this morning despite only a 20 percent chance of additional moisture as forecast by the National Weather Service.

A report of 1.6 inches of rain was received from an area about 45 miles northwest of Hereford, while reports of 1.3 and 1.25 were received from areas to the north of town. A report of an even half-inch was received from a caller southeast of town.

Wednesday night's rainfall followed accumulations of nearly .25 of an inch during the early part of the week. Wednesday's high temperature was 79 degrees at 3 p.m., while the mercury dropped to 53 for the low at 3 a.m. this morning.

Police have suspect in assault

Hereford police are investigating and have a suspect in an assault with a motor vehicle incident Wednesday. According to a police report, a person in a vehicle tried to run down a pedestrian in the parking lot of Taylor and Sons. The pursuit continued through the U.S. 385 and Park Avenue intersection when the pedestrian left the lot in a vehicle.

Two thefts were reported Wednesday. A stereo cassette player was taken from 614 Avenue K and two bikes were stolen from 429 Avenue D.

Vandals shot out a street lamp on Avenue A.

One person was arrested for shoplifting at Taylor and Sons.

Pageant entry deadline Friday

Miss Hereford pageant entry deadline is 5 p.m. Friday at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office.

There will be an afternoon tea for contestants and their mothers at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Heritage Room of the county library.

Girls interested in the pageant who did not meet the deadline are still welcome to come to the tea Sunday.

The pageant will be held August 6 at the Hereford High auditorium, and this year's theme is "Let's Get Physical."

There have been some changes in this year's pageant. The age has been changed to include girls from ages 16-21.

The winner of the Miss Hereford pageant will advance to compete at the Miss Wheatheart Pageant and the winner there will go on to the Miss Texas pageant.

Lisa Snyder, the current Miss Hereford, will compete at this year's Miss Wheatheart Pageant August 26.

Health agency to open branch

The Home Health Agency of Texas regional office in Hereford will open a branch office in Amarillo Monday, according to regional director Doris Morgan.

Becky Hodges, a nurse experienced in community health care, will be the Amarillo branch director. She will supervise a staff of two registered nurses, a licensed vocational nurse, two social workers, a physical therapist and a secretary.

The branch will be at 2401 I-40 West in the Wolfkin Square.

Mrs. Morgan said the Amarillo office will be starting a patient discharge planning program spearheaded by Jana McKinney, the branch social worker. Ms. McKinney will be contacting churches and civic clubs as resources for non-medical care, such as financial and emotional support, to fully implement the holistic healing philosophy of the agency. Agency services will include skilled nursing, home health aid, physical therapy, speech therapy, occupational therapy, and medical-social services. Mrs. Morgan projects 400 visits a week to be made within six months. The Hereford office sees 75 patients with 120 to 150 visits a week.

Primary care is a new service soon to be available in both offices, Mrs. Morgan said. A registered nurse will supervise a layperson, who has had experience in personal health care, in the duties of basic hygiene for the homebound. The duties may include basic household chores, bed changing, bathing, etc.

Hereford and Dallas will be sharing the services of Pat Gifford, a psychotherapist. In private practice in Dallas, Ms. Gifford has been commuting two days a week since February in preparing for her office here. Her specialty field is marriage and family counseling.

Airliner lands safely after two engines fail

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — A crippled airliner with 15 people aboard limped to a "pretty good" landing on two of four engines as dozens of spectators cheered, after an engine exploded and blew loose a propeller which gashed the fuselage, authorities said.

Reeve Aleutian Airways Flight 8, a Lockheed Electra turboprop on a run from the Alaska Peninsula to Seattle, landed Wednesday night on its second approach to Anchorage International Airport after circling for about two hours to burn fuel, officials said.

No injuries were reported among the five crew members or 10 passengers, who slid down emergency chutes after the plane rolled to a stop a few feet off the runway.

The pilot, Capt. Jim Gibson, "made a pretty good landing," said Andrew Laux, control tower supervisor. "There's a little fire around one of the wheels, but it's just a tire," he said after the plane touched down. Firefighters quickly hosed down the smoking rubber.

During the tense period as the plane circled west of Anchorage before making its final approach, scores of observers gathered, including airport personnel, emergency crews and townspeople who had heard of the trouble.

As the plane touched down, they burst into cheers.

Most passengers stayed calm during the incident, said Richard Krueger, 37, of Seattle, one of those on board. "I always think positive," he said.

The airline kept the crew from talking to reporters.

The pilot initially reported problems at about 2 p.m. Alaska Standard Time (7 p.m. EDT), shortly after taking off for Seattle from Cold Bay, about 600 miles southwest of Anchorage, said Dave Jensen, airline vice president.

The plane's right outboard engine "exploded" and its propeller blew loose, ripping a vertical gash in the fuselage about 8 feet high and 4 feet deep, said Jim Michelangelo, chief of the National Transportation Safety Board in Alaska.

In Washington, NTSB spokesman Ira Furman said investigators were being sent to the airport today to look at

It's not only the children who are missing an education in this country.

Somehow we've created a few choice "buzz words" in this country that trigger automatic negative responses, and rhyme, reason and common sense go out the window. The news media and the federal government have done a lousy job of educating the public about some of these words.

How about the word "radiation." That will turn you off every time, despite the fact that every hospital, every dentist, every television set, every microwave, every wrist watch radium dial, every brick, every concrete tile, and the sun itself give off radiation.

Does "Watergate" have a nice ring? In the association with the Nixon administration scandal, it's a dirty word. But most of us forget that Watergate is one of the finer, newer hotels and one of the better apartment complexes in Washington.

Abortion is another buzz word and it usually has a double meaning. For the unwed, pregnant teenager, abortion is a legal alternative. For the thousands of the childless parents seeking to adopt a child, abortion is murder.

"Tax shelter" is a phrase that brings most people to thing of rich tycoons devising fraudulent schemes to avoid paying taxes that the rest of us have to pay. Yet the greatest and most-used tax shelter in the nation is the interest on home mortgages that is tax deductible.

The phrase "waste repository" doesn't sound bad until you put the word "nuclear" in front of it. Liberal, conservative, Democrat, Republican, Socialist, Nazi, feminist are other words that can bring emotional, rather than rational responses.

The big problem we have to deal with when some of these buzz words come up is that neither side wants to be confused by the facts. All of us know that reason and rational thinking is the answer, but emotion often sidetracks us.

Like a wise man once pointed out, we can believe what we're told about a planet millions of miles away, but we

Insurance break coming

AUSTIN (AP) — Property insurance buyers will get an average 3.8 percent break on their rates next year, the State Board of Insurance has decided.

The board heard two hours of testimony Wednesday then with only a 10-minute consultation voted 3-0 to accept recommendations made earlier by its staff.

The new rates, estimated to be worth $42 million to insurance buyers, are effective

Oct. 1. The staff recommendations call for a statewide decrease of 3.8 percent.

Spokesmen for the insurance industry asked for an increase of 13.58 percent over current rates.

Gaylon Daniel, board staff actuary, said there has been an improvement in insured losses in most classes of property insurance the past year and there have been no big hurricane losses since 1971.

J.M. Eddins, speaker for the Texas Insurance Advisory Association, urged adoption of the industry recommendations saying claims filed the past year and

NATO blames stall in talks on Soviets

PARIS (AP) — A key NATO group today blamed the Kremlin for the stalemate in the Geneva talks on medium-range missiles and condemned the Soviets for threatening to increase their nuclear arsenal.

The threat will not "intimidate the allies into acceding to an agreement on Soviet terms," the group said.

As Secretary of State George P. Shultz opened a meeting seeking allied solidarity, a special NATO group monitoring the arms talks issued a gloomy status report on the negotiations.

"The Soviet Union unfortunately continues to resist achievement of an equitable agreement which recognizes the legitimate security concerns of both parties and their allies," the NATO Special Consultative Group said in a declaration issued by its chairman, Richard R.

Burt, assistant U.S. secretary of state for European affairs.

The group represents the 14 NATO countries in the alliance military wing. France and Iceland are not members.

They said the key stumbling block was a Soviet demand that British and French nuclear forces be included in the talks, now involving only the United States and the Soviet Union.

"This position remains unacceptable and cannot serve as the basis for an agreement — Soviet adherence to it blocks the way to progress in the negotiations," they said.

The Soviet Union and the United States are conducting two sets of arms talks in Geneva. One negotiation is on cutting medium-range missiles in Europe and the other is on strategic, or long-range, missile reductions, called START.

Oilman says third climb will be 'charm'

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas oilman Dick Bass says he will try again to climb Mount Everest after his second attempt got him within 1,000 feet of the top of the world's tallest mountain.

Bass, who returned home Wednesday, said he and his team of 12 other climbers were forced back at 28,000 feet by weather conditions and one team member's illness.

"It only makes me confident about how to do it next year," Bass said when he arrived at the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport. "The third year's going to work the charm."

In 1982, Bass was one of a 17-member team that attempted to scale the mountain, but he was not chosen by the team leader to be in the group that tried for the top.

Bass said this year, he and his team established a base camp in the Himalayas between India and Tibet in early April. He said that on May 7, four of the group made it to the top of Mount Everest.

His group made it to 26,000 feet, Bass said, but were stopped by winds. Three days later, they started for the top again, but at 28,000 feet one of the climbers suffered a possible stroke.

Bass said he and his partner, Frank Wells of California, are leaders of a "Seven Summit Odyssey," and will try to climb the tallest mountains on each of the seven continents by December.

Worker buried in sand survives 6-hour ordeal

LOVELAND, Colo. (AP) — A truckdriver and a foreman at the Valley Block Co. jury-rigged an air hose to save the life of a worker buried in a sand pit, authorities said.

When Richard Rom, 25, fell into the 20-foot-deep pit Wednesday, his foreman and a truckdriver grabbed a water hose, put it in Rom's mouth and cut the other end free, authorities said.

Although Rom was trapped in the sand pit for about six hours and was buried at times, he was able to breathe, said Mike Vogl, a spokesman at Poudre Valley Hospital in Fort Collins, where the injured man was later taken by helicopter.

"They even used the hose to locate him in the wet sand," Vogl said.

Rom was in good condition at the hospital, but was being examined for possible broken bones, Vogl said.

Evacuations ordered after acid spill

NELSONVILLE, Ohio (AP) — A tanker truck began leaking more than 1,500 gallons of sulfuric acid in downtown Nelsonville on Wednesday, and authorities ordered up to 3,000 people to evacuate their homes, officials said.

There were no injuries reported, but about a half dozen firefighters were treated for heat exhaustion.

The truck began leaking sulfuric acid during the afternoon and officials evacuated about a quarter-mile area, but later narrowed the evacuation area to about three blocks in this southeastern Ohio town of about 5,500 people.

The situation worsened early Friday as the fire department tried to transfer acid remaining on the crippled truck to another tanker, said Fire Chief Denny Knight.

"When we opened up the top hatch, it started to leak more than before. We were afraid the tank might completely rupture. We had to block the back wheels. We had a vapor cloud over the east end about 300 yards across," he said.

An order to evacuate a wider area went out and Knight said, "If everybody left that was supposed to, there are about 2,000 to 3,000 people evacuated."

The bottom of the truck had sagged and the back wheels were off the ground. The truck was stranded on Ohio 33, the main route between Columbus and nearby Athens, about 65 miles from Columbus.

"Humidity, fog and weather intensified the fumes, kept them closer to the ground," said Al Franks, an Ohio Environmental Protection Agency spokesman.

Firefighters wearing oxygen tanks and masks swarmed around the truck.

"I wouldn't want to go in there with anything else on," said firefighter Greg Smith, who said he used five, 20-minute air packs.

Traffic was rerouted around Nelsonville and officials from the state EPA were called to the scene.

Packing the pork barrel

In the unhappy days when Americans kept slaves, plantation owners would periodically crack open a "special ration" barrel of salt pork, allowing the slaves to help themselves.

As each grabbed for himself as much as he could, the scramble frequently turned violent...and the prize ended up ground underfoot into the ground.

Until the slaves learned— That a more orderly sharing of the pork barrel left some for everyone. And that is how pork-barrel politics got its name.

The Pentagon gets much criticism for its enormous budget. Though a substantial portion of that money is spent on things the Pentagon does not want.

Former Defense Secretary Harold Brown guesstimated that the Pentagon gets $5 billion worth of stuff each year which it does not request, does not need and does not want.

Because some member of Congress wants a plane, a bomb or a building that will be built in his home town.

And each member of Congress has learned to share the pork so that each may seek and get a "special ration" for his homefolks.

U.S. News and World Report calculates that members of Congress — "bringing home the bacon"—cost taxpayers an unnecessary $75 billion a year.

And the last time any member of Congress dared vigorously to object — Connecticut's Senator Toby Moffett — he was ignored by his colleagues and retired by his constituents.

Wisconsin's Senator Proxmire loves to criticize government spending "in general" but raises no objection to preferential spending for an airport in Wausau.

Tip O'Neill—to get a new $75 million federal office building for his homefolks in Boston — has to support $6.6 million worth of air base housing, which Jamie Whitten wants for his beloved Mississippi.

And so it goes. "You let me have my salt pork and I'll help you get yours."

So 20 A-10 warplanes will be built in New York at a cost to you of $357 million — though the Pentagon says the A-10 is already obsolete.

If a lawmaker serves on any one of the congressional appropriations committees, his clout is vastly increased.

Chairman Whitten of House Appropriations really has leverage; most any bill to clear his committee has to include "something for Mississippi."

When the five-cent gasoline tax was enacted, the same bill included road-building money for Senator Byrd and bridge-building money for Senator Dixon.

But can we blame them? Congressman Whitten says, "Any lawmaker who handles a national program and does not include his own district had better not go back home."

DWI offenders lose gun rights

By JIM PHILLIPS Austin American-Statesman

AUSTIN (AP) — Any Texan who has been convicted of misdemeanor driving while intoxicated could get up to five years in prison for buying a box of shotgun shells, according to a federal court ruling.

A recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling said the federal law applies even if a person charged with DWI received probation or deferred adjudication, which are not considered final convictions under Texas law.

"Literally thousands of people in Travis County technically have violated that statute," said Austin defense attorney Ken Houp.

Houp said the federal law makes it a crime to buy a gun or ammunition if the buyer has been convicted of a crime punishable by more than one year in jail or prison.

In Texas, that includes DWI, for which the first offense is punishable by up to two years in jail. All other misdemeanors have a maximum sentence of one year.

Houp said the federal law also could conceivably be used against thousands of people convicted of misdemeanors, other than DWI, a number of years ago. Before the law was changed in 1974 many other misdemeanors also carried sentences of up to two years.

Houp said the federal law was designed to cover convicted felons, but it does not use the term "felony." It refers only to any crime for which the possible punishment is more than one year in jail.

ment is more than one year in jail. The actual sentence assessed does not matter.

There's still another angle, Houp says.

When a person buys a gun he must sign a statement he has never been convicted of a felony. If a person with a DWI conviction does not reveal that on the federal form, then he could face a second charge, commonly called "lying and buying." That's punishable by up to five years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

"That's interesting," said Jack O'Donnell, assistant U.S. attorney, who said he had not realized a first-offense DWI carries a two-year sentence.

"I guess theoretically it would fit. You could get nailed for two counts," O'Donnell said.

An Austin agent with the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, who did not want his name used, said he did not expect to be rounding up one-time drunken drivers who also do recreational shooting.

"We would need more than that," he said.

Another Austin attorney,

Dick Clakenship, said he thought the legal quirk might be used to advantage by attorneys representing DWI defendants before trial juries.

"This can be used in jury arguments," Blakenship said, "when jurors are told, 'This man, he'll never be able to take his son rabbit hunting,' if the defendant is convicted."

Priests called 'devils'

Weeping Madonna ruled hoax

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — Angry believers denounced a panel of priests as "a bunch of devils" after the clergymen ruled that a "weeping" Madonna in a rural Roman Catholic church is probably a hoax, not a miracle.

One woman, LaVerne Pitta, burst into tears when the findings were announced Wednesday by the Diocese of Stockton.

Manuel Pitta protested that "these investigators are not investigators. They are a bunch of devils. How can they do this?"

And Antonio Usuna, whose wife says she was cured of asthma after praying to the statue of the Virgin Mary, dismissed the diocesan report, saying, "I believe in it (the statue)."

Reports that the 60-pound statue sheds real tears and can move as far as 30 feet from its niche in Mater Ecclesias Mission Church in Thornton began circulating two years ago.

Church attendance has tripled since then, with as many as 600 people visiting each week.

Last year, the diocese named a commission to study the reports. In announcing the panel's findings, Bishop Roger M. Mahony said the events connected with the statue "do not meet the criteria for an authenticated appearance of Mary, the mother of Jesus Christ."

The statue may have been moved by someone, and the tears may have been applied, he said.

"No one has ever reported actually seeing the 'tears' flow from the eyes of the statue," he said. "Rather, it was reported that at a given time, liquid was on the face of the statue."

Mahony said one witness reported touching the liquid, which was oily and sticky, and "certainly not the texture or consistency of human tears."

Miracles validated by the Roman Catholic Church, he said, always have been accompanied by a clear, important message. But in this case, "there is no report of any clear and important message in the context of Christ's work of salvation," he said.

Mater Ecclesias is an outpost of St. Anne's Catholic Church in Lodi. It should be kept "as a parish mission rather than a shrine," said the Rev. Harmon Skillin, pastor of St. Anne's.

"We will discourage pilgrimages to the church by, among other things, reserving the major area of the church for local people at Sunday morning Mass," he said.

Some people who learned of the ruling while in the church Wednesday said their belief remained unshaken.

Many believers think the tears are connected with the reported appearance of the Virgin Mary to three children at Fatima, Portugal, on May 13, 1917.

"When this Virgin appeared to the kids in Portugal, they didn't believe them," Usuna said. "They were practically tortured."

"These things usually appear to the humble and low-income, the poor," he added. "These things are not for everybody."

Thatcher requests landslide

LONDON (AP) — Conservative Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, strongly favored to win a second term, asked voters for a landslide victory in British national elections today to "banish forever" extreme left-wing socialism.

"We are hopeful. I think we are going to win," Mrs. Thatcher said as she and her husband, Denis, went to vote 20 minutes after the polls opened this morning.

Four last-minute opinion polls released today gave the Conservatives a lead averaging 20 points over Labor.

But 69-year-old Michael Foot, leader of the socialist Labor Party, shrugged off the opinion surveys, saying, "We'll see what the real polls say today."

Voting got off to a brisk start in hazy sunshine in London and most other parts of Britain, but a morning drizzle cut the turnout in northern England. A turnout of 75 to 80 percent of the 42.7 million eligible voters was predicted.

Mr. Morton once more put on steam, and his voice stretched out to the edges of the crowd as he lambasted the free silver apostasy of his well known political enemy, William Jennings Bryan.

When the man for the third time yelled "Louder!" Mr. Morton paused for a moment and then continued:

"My friends, the time will finally come when the vast machinery of this universe must stop, and all the wheels, gears and belts be motionless, when the spheres shall cease to roll, and the defined periods of time be lost in eternity.

"In that awful hour, my friends, the angel Gabriel will descend from the battlements of heaven, and place one foot on the land and the other on the sea. He will force a blast from his trumpet which will reverberate throughout the remotest corners of the universe. And when he does, some smallbore idiot will holler 'Louder! Louder!'" continuing inflation make it appear "a 13.5 increase is much more realistic than a 3.8 reduction for rates that will cover losses occurring as late as September of 1985."

The adopted property insurance rates call for a statewide average decrease of 5.9 percent for homeowners insurance; 7.1 percent in farm and ranch owners insurance; 16.2 percent in fire coverage for businesses; and 5.5 percent in extended coverage — a separate policy that pays for damage not caused by fire. The staff recommended statewide average increases of 10.2 percent for tenant homeowners insurance and 14.4 percent for fire coverage alone on dwellings.

The industry recommendations were for an increase of 12.9 percent statewide for homeowners insurance; 19 percent increase for tenant homeowners; 18.1 percent increase for farm and ranch owners; 10.3 percent increase for fire insurance alone on dwellings and 16 percent increase on statewide extended coverage.

Last year the State Board of Insurance accepted the staff recommendations and cut property rates 16.3 percent statewide.

The pilot had to stand on the brakes to stop, said Eugene Morris, accident prevention coordinator for the Federal Aviation Administration.

Ann Landers Thin not always healthy

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for "Lean and Like 'Em That Way." I'm one of those "broad-beamed" dames with the curvaceous hips and heavy thighs the old masters used to paint. Smart-alecky remarks like yours make it hard on large women all over the world.

Not all thin people are in good health, or beautiful, for that matter. I once had a teacher who said she would rather have 200 pounds of curves than 100 pounds of nerves. I'm with her.

Most thin people are so hung up on their weight they bore everyone to death with talk of their jogging, exercising, cycling, squash, racquetball, aerobic dancing, low-cal recipes and new sugar substitutes. Meanwhile, they are smoking themselves to death because the nicotine kills the appetite and they won't stop, even though the doctors tell them they are begging for lung cancer. Why? Because they might gain a few pounds.

It's time people stopped idolizing those hollow-cheeked, rat-skinny models with caved-in middles and knobby knees. You can help a lot, Ann, by printing this letter.—Blood Pressure Normal In New Castle

DEAR B.P. You've made some valid points—especially about smoking. Your signature highlights one of the most dangerous aspects of obesity—high blood pressure, "the silent killer." Often there are no symptoms of this sneaky disease. I urge every person who reads this column to get his or her blood pressure checked immediately, especially if you are overweight. It could save your life.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've always thought that you looked at both sides of a problem and gave fair, unbiased advice. May I ask you to do this with the question of prayers at public ceremonies?

I am a minister in an Evangelical Christian denomination. If anyone asks me to pray at a public event they know this. I do not "spring it on them." I cannot pray otherwise—it would be denying my beliefs.

If people want an ecumenical prayer at their meeting, it is their right. I believe, however, that the person who organizes the event should approach someone who can pray with a more "universal flavor." But, please, don't ask me to pray to the God I love and serve and then ask me to speak to him differently than I have at any other time in my life.

You don't have to agree with me, Ann Landers. Just say you see that there is another side to the question.—Ministering In Toronto

DEAR TORONTO: I DO agree with you. And I admire you for having the courage of your convictions. But I do wish the program planners all over the country would ask in advance if the minister is willing to give an ecumenical invocation or benediction when those in attendance are of many different faiths.

CONFIDENTIAL to Willing to Listen and Promise to Obey: Almost everyone is eager to reform before he goes to his grave, but very few folks are interested in reforming earlier than necessary. How about you?

Veterans receive in excess of $9 billion

An estimated 2.3 million veterans in the Texas area and elsewhere received Veterans Administration compensation checks in fiscal 1982, bringing the total paid out in the program last year to more than $9 billion.

Each veteran received a monthly check ranging from as low as $62 per month, for those with 10 percent disability, to as high as $3,461 for those with certain severe disabilities. For 100-percent disability, not involving major amputations or loss of use of limbs, the maximum amount of compensation is $1,213 per month, said Jack Coker, director, Waco VA Regional Office.

Veterans whose service-connected disabilities are rated at 30 percent or more are entitled to additional allowances for dependents. The additional amount is determined according to the number of dependents and the degree of disability.

The 19 billion cost of compensating veterans for service-connected disabilities was more than one-third of the agency's $25 billion budget. When combined with pension—payments made to veterans with disabilities not traceable to military service—the total is $13.9 billion, or more than half of VA's annual budget.

To be eligible for pension, a veteran must have wartime service and be totally and permanently disabled from a nonservice-connected cause and his family income may not exceed an amount specified by law—currently $6,980 per year for a veteran with a spouse. No such income restrictions apply to compensation payments. Some 800,000 veterans and 1-million survivors now receive pensions.

Horns, Tide clash in College World Series

By KIM N. PRICE
Associated Press Writer
OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The eyes of Texas will be on Alabama and college baseball's leading hitter tonight when the two square off for the first time in 61 years for a finals bid in the 37th annual College World Series.

Top-ranked Texas, 63-14, will be eyeing the Tide's David Magadan, who has already set two CWS hitting records and boasts a .538 batting average. Magadan, a junior from Tampa, Fla., entered the series at .523 and is now batting .535 after going five-for-five and setting a single game consecutive hits record against Arizona State.

In Alabama's 6-5 victory over Michigan Tuesday night, Magadan, a second round choice of the New York Mets in the major league free agent draft, went three-for-four and had his CWS record hitting streak stopped at eight with a seventh-inning fly out.

Texas has beaten James Madison, 12-0, and Oklahoma State in 11 innings, 6-5, to remain unbeaten in this double-elimination event. No. 6-ranked Alabama beat Arizona State in 11 innings, 6-5, and Michigan, 6-5, to go 2-0 in tournament play.

Alabama, 45-9, entered the CWS with a .340 batting average, the highest of any team here, with seven hitters above .300. But Tide batters will face a Longhorn bullpen that is filled with winners.

Roger Clemens, who boosted his record to 13-5 with a victory over Oklahoma State, was a first-round draft choice by the Boston Red Sox. Junior righthander Calvin Schiraldi also went in the first round to the New York Mets. Shortstop Mike Brumley was taken in the second round by the Red Sox.

Alabama and Texas met for a total of seven times in 1899 and 1922. The Longhorns have won six of those baseball games.
The winner of the 7:10 p.m. (CDT) Alabama-Texas game advances to a Friday night game and draws a bye in the finals, win or lose. The loser faces either Arizona State or Michigan.
Friday night's matchups will be determined by the outcome of the Texas-Alabama game as the pairings will be adjusted to match teams that have not played previously, or have not played since the first round.

Homer by Perez sparks Phillies past Cards; Houston beats Giants in 11 frames, 1-0

By BEN WALKER AP
Sports Writer
It had been awhile since Tony Perez last faced Bruce Sutter. In fact, it was back in 1980 when Perez was with Montreal and Sutter was with the Chicago Cubs.

On Wednesday night, Perez, now with the Philadelphia Phillies, and Sutter, with the St. Louis Cardinals, met again. This time it was in the bottom of the ninth inning of a tie game with two outs and runners on first and second.

"I know he's a tough reliever, and you have to be patient with him," Perez said, an American Leaguer the past three seasons.
Patience paid off this time for Perez, who belted a three-run homer to lift Philadelphia over St. Louis 7-4.

"That's what we needed," Perez said. "We came back and beat them. That's the way we were supposed to play."
In other National League games, Los Angeles pounded Atlanta 11-5, Houston edged San Francisco 1-0 in 11 innings, Montreal beat Pittsburgh 5-4, San Diego defeated Cincinnati 5-3 and Chicago nipped New York 2-1. The Dodgers banged out 16 hits, including two-run homers by Dusty Baker (No. 6) and Pedro Guerrero (No. 13) and a solo homer by Rick Monday, his third.

Atlanta also played longball as Bob Horner hit his 10th homer, Rafael Ramirez belted his first and Braves reliever Rick Behenna hit his first ever in the majors.
Astros 1, Giants 0
Phil Garner's two-out single in the bottom of the 11th inning scored Omar Moreno from second base with the game's only run.

Both starters, Houston's Joe Niekro and San Francisco's Andy McGaffigan, pitched well but neither was involved in the decision.
Niekro scattered 10 hits over 10 innings while McGaffigan yielded just four hits in nine innings.
In the 11th, Moreno singled with one out off Gary Lavelle, 3-1. Terry Puhl sacrificed and Dickie Thon was intentionally walked before Garner stroked his single, making a winner out of rookie Bill Dawley, 4-1.
Padres 5, Reds 3
Dave Dravecky became the NL's first nine-game winner with some outstanding relief help from Sid Monge.
Dravecky, 9-3, went 7 2-3 innings and allowed just five hits. Monge replaced reliever Luis DeLeon in the ninth and pitched out of a bases-loaded, none-out situation for his second save.

Rookie Kevin McReynolds slammed a two-run homer and Terry Kennedy and Sixto Lezcano added solo shots for the Padres. Gary Redus and Cesar Cedeño homered for the Reds.
Expos 5, Pirates 4
Bill Gullickson pitched eight strong innings before running into trouble in the ninth, when reliever Jeff Reardon came in to put down Pittsburgh.
Gullickson, 6-6, had a six-hitter and a 5-1 lead after eight innings, but Dave Parker led off the Pittsburgh ninth with a single. Mike Easler then singled to right and scored when Terry Francona misplayed the ball for a three-base error. Dale Berra then cracked his sixth homer, chasing Gullickson and fetching Reardon.
Al Oliver had a pair of run-scoring singles for Montreal, one of them during a three-run third inning. That outburst was started by Gullickson, who doubled for his first hit this season in 22 at-bats.

Cubs 2, Mets 1
Ryne Sandberg homered to tie the score and Keith Moreland singled home Leon Durham as Chicago rallied for two runs in the bottom of the ninth inning for its seventh straight victory. The win streak is the longest for the Cubs in more than five years.

outheled Matt Young of Seattle, and Larry Parrish scored the game's only run on a wild pitch in the seventh inning.
Smithson, 4-4, scattered nine hits over 8 2-3 innings before needing help from Odell Jones, who struck out Steve Henderson to end the game and earn his eighth save.
Young, 7-4, gave up just eight hits, three of them in the seventh when Parrish, Bill Stein and Pete O'Brein singled to load the bases. Young then fanned George Wright and Jim Sundberg, rallied escaping harm before throwing the wild pitch that allowed Parrish to score.
Blue Jays 5, A's 2
Stieb, 9-4, yielded just four hits before he left after Bob Kearney homered to lead off the eighth inning. Joey McLaughlin finished up for Stieb, earning his sixth save after striking out the side in the eighth, and Cliff Johnson supplied most of the punch with two RBI doubles.
Chris Codiroli, 4-5, was the loser, falling behind 2-0 after two innings.
Stieb had a two-hitter through six innings before giving up a run in the seventh on a walk, a grounder, a balk and Bill Almon's single.
Orioles 7, Brewers 3
The Orioles launched their second comeback of the game with a pair of homers — by Cal Ripken and John Lowenstein — to score five runs in the eighth inning and beat Milwaukee. Both homers were two-run shots off Tom Tellman, who relieved Don Sutton to start the inning.
Yankees 6, Indians 5
Pinch-hitter Lou Piniella's

Angels 7, White Sox 4
Rick Adams drove in three runs and Ron Jackson had two RBI to lead California over Chicago. Adams, a rookie, hit his first major league homer leading off the second inning, and his two-run single capped a three-run fifth inning that put the Angels up 7-3. Adams was hitting only .160 with one RBI coming into the game.
Jackson drove in his runs with a pair of singles, in the first and fifth innings, backing Ken Forsch, 5-3, who pitched a five-hitter.

Sierra Nevada still youthful

RENO, Nev. (AP) — As mountain ranges go, the Sierra Nevada is a relative youngster — probably under 10 million years old, and tens of millions of years younger than its eastern relation, the Appalachians.

That youthfulness is what gives the Sierra its distinctive charm — the craggy granite peaks, the spectacular canyons and the towering waterfalls. It also can make the mountains deadly.

As the Sierra grows older, its rugged features are gradually wearing away. What happened in the Washoe Valley on Memorial Day, when 40 acres of Slide Mountain slid into the valley floor, is part of that aging process.

And this year, a once-in-a-century accumulation of snow is likely to contribute significantly to that process.

Millions of years from now, the Sierra Nevada may be more like the Appalachians, softly rounded and gently tiered. Until then, geologists say, people living in the Sierra can expect periodic reminders that the mountains are constantly changing, sometimes in violent ways.

"What we saw (on Memorial Day) was just one little blip in the history of this mountain range," said John Bell, a geologist with the Nevada Division of Mines and Geology. "That's what's taken place here for millions of years and will probably take place for a few more million until the mountains are eroded and the valleys are more or less filled in."

Slide Mountain, as the name suggests, is a particularly unstable peak, and geologists can count at least nine times in the past 100,000 years that it let loose with rock or debris slides. The Memorial Day slide, which killed one person and destroyed four homes, was the tenth.

It "was a relatively small event on a geologic scale, but fairly significant in terms of what has taken place in historic times around here," Bell said.

What happened at Slide Mountain is in dispute. Some experts say infrared heating of the earth on the mountain caused snow to melt from underneath and give way, triggering the landslide. Others say the land itself gave way first.

But all agree on the two necessary ingredients for the slide — water, which acts as a lubricant, and gravity, which sets things in motion.

"If you take steep slopes and saturate them like they were saturated this year, they're going to start moving," Bell said.

Or, as Terry Katzer, a hydrologist with the U.S. Geologic Survey, put it, "Gravity overcame the friction coefficient and it just let go."

Katzer, like other experts, said the potential for similar mudslides in the Sierra this year "remains rather high."

"I'm really amazed that there haven't been more slides, because everything is just super saturated," he said.

This was the snowiest year in Sierra history, with 796 inches — close to 70 feet — of snow falling at Donner Summit during the winter. The latest survey by the U.S. Soil Conservation Service said there was still 60 percent as much snow on the ground at the end of May as there was at the peak of the winter, according to Jon Lea of the agency's snow survey crew.

Robert Clark, director of the National Weather Service's office of hydrology, said that's about triple the average for this time of year. Clark called the snow situation in the West "unbelievable," and singled out Nevada as a state that could be headed for trouble in coming weeks.

There's no consensus on how long the danger will remain this year, but estimates seem to range from two weeks to a month — depending on the weather.

Bob Crittenden of the National Forest Service said that while slides can't be predicted, certain areas can be identified as slide-prone. Slide Mountain is an extreme case, experts agree, but other places also exhibit signs of danger.

"The trouble spots are geologically known from history," Crittenden said. "We can really expect that sometime these things are going to happen on the east side of the Sierra, where you have the deep snowpack and steep face and narrow canyons."

The Forest Service is warning hikers and others to use caution in the Sierra in the coming weeks, and is surveying the range for more signs of trouble.

The USGS is taking advantage of the Washoe Valley slide to study the phenomenon, in hopes of learning to forecast slides in the future.

Meanwhile, Crittenden said, "We're going to watch it (the Sierra Nevada) day by day. And people in the vicinity (of the mountains) should watch it hour by hour."

Jury writes final chapter in bizarre tale

ANNISTON, Ala. (AP) — A "cunning" housewife was convicted of killing her husband and poisoning her daughter with arsenic for the insurance money, ending a bizarre saga in which she set up a new life in New Hampshire, then faked her death in Texas.

Audrey Marie Hilley, 50, had been a fugitive for more than three years, remarrying and establishing a comfortable life in New England before her capture.

She was convicted Wednesday of murder and at least one murder by a 10-man, two-woman jury that deliberated just 2½ hours. Her nine-day trial in Calhoun County circuit court drew hundreds of curious spectators who either knew Mrs. Hilley or members of her family.

The murder charge carries an automatic life prison term.

Circuit Judge Sam Monk set a sentencing hearing today on the attempted murder charge, which carries a maximum 20-year prison sentence.

"We feel like it's probably the final chapter in a long saga that probably should be ended at this time," said Assistant District Attorney Joe Hubbard, who helped prosecute the case.

Hubbard had described Mrs. Hilley as a clever woman who would kill for financial gain from the insurance policies on her husband, Frank, and her daughter, Carol, that named her as beneficiary.

"You're not dealing with the average housewife," Hubbard said. "You are dealing with a cold, calculating, cunning killer."

Defense attorney Wilford Lane said he planned to appeal.

Carol Hilley, age 19 when she was diagnosed as suffering from arsenic poisoning, showed no emotion when the jury foreman announced the verdicts against her mother, but later asked to see her.

Prosecutors accused Mrs. Hilley of slipping doses of arsenic to her husband, resulting in his death in 1975. Carol fell ill in the spring of 1979 and suffered from nausea, vomiting and paralysis in her arms and legs. She was diagnosed that September and recovered after months of physical therapy.

Mrs. Hilley, arrested after her daughter's diagnosis, fled a Birmingham motel in late 1979. She was captured Jan. 12, 1983, in Brattleboro, Vt.

She was indicted for murder after her disappearance. A second autopsy on the body of Hilley, who doctors thought died of hepatitis, showed large concentrations of arsenic.

Mrs. Hilley collected about $31,000 following her husband's death, and witnesses testified she had a $25,000 insurance policy on Carol. That policy lapsed in the fall of 1979 after Mrs. Hilley wrote several bad checks to a Birmingham insurance company.

After Mrs. Hilley fled Alabama, the FBI said she used an alias, married John Homan, settled in Marlow, N.H., then went to Texas, faked her own death and came back to her husband, passing herself off as his late wife's twin sister.

In her pre-Texas alias as "Robbie Homan," Mrs. Hilley was liked and respected by co-workers at a factory in Keene, N.H.

"It goes to show you what you know about people, or what you think you know," Ronald Oja, her supervisor, said after her arrest. "This one was good. What a con artist."

Commercial fishing in Lake Erie was banned in 1970 because of mercury contamination.

Wearing a hat keeps the body warm, as 80 percent of body heat escapes through the head.

Basic laws still intact

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Blacks can stay at the five-star Carlton Hotel in Johannesburg. But they can't see movies in the Kine Center theater complex across the street.

Those two facts of South African life reflect the contradictions of apartheid in 1983. Thirty-five years after the National Party won power on a platform of white domination, there are halting steps away from the most visible segregation. Yet the ruling whites stand firmly behind the pillars of apartheid denying fundamental citizenship rights to the black majority.

Blacks now use some public libraries, parks are often open to all races and some hotels and restaurants have received "international" status permits, allowing multiracial clientele. But toilets in libraries and other public buildings remain segregated, as are public schools and bars and movie houses.

Prime Minister P.W. Botha's government has embraced a plan to create two new chambers of Parliament, one for the "colored" — mixed race — minority of 2.7 million and another for the nation's 850,000 Indians. Both groups are now excluded from national politics.

Today In History

By The Associated Press
Today is Thursday, June 9th, the 160th day of 1983. There are 205 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On June 9, 1973 — ten years ago — "Secretariat" became horse racing's first Triple Crown winner in 25 years, winning the Belmont Stakes in New York by an amazing 31 1/2 lengths.

On this date: In 68 A.D., the Roman emperor Nero committed suicide.

In 1940, Norway's army surrendered to Nazi Germany in World War II.

In 1964, the former head of the Congo's secessionist Katanga Province, Moïse Tshombe, was named premier of the Congo.

And, in 1967, Gamal Abdel Nasser resigned as President of Egypt after his country was defeated in a war with Israel.

Five years ago today: Israeli naval commandos and paratroops destroyed a Palestinian coastal base in southern Lebanon.

One year ago: Israel reported that it had destroyed the Syrian surface-to-air missile system in the Bekaa Valley of eastern Lebanon.

Today's birthdays: Former defense secretary Robert McNamara is 67 years old.

Thought for today: "Fairness is what justice is all about." — U.S. Supreme Court Justice Potter Stewart (1915-).

POLLY'S POINTERS

Here's blueberry treat
DEAR POLLY — Will you please tell me how to make blueberry syrup? — MRS. C.
DEAR MRS. C. — This simple syrup is full of sweet blueberry flavor. Pick over, wash and crush 2 cups of fresh ripe blueberries. In a 1 1/2 quart saucepan, bring the crushed blueberries to a boil over medium heat. Watch carefully so they don't boil over onto the stove! Boil gently for two to three minutes, then extract the juice by straining the blueberries through a jelly bag (you can also use a homemade double-layer cheesecloth bag in a colander) into a clean pan. It can take an hour or two for all the juice to drip through the bag, so be patient. At the end, squeeze the bag gently to extract as much juice as possible, but don't let any pulp squeeze through. You should have about one cup of juice. Mix this juice with one cup sugar and bring to a boil in a clean pan over medium heat. Boil, stirring constantly, for one minute. Pour into a clean bottle or pitcher.
You'll have a real treat to pour over pancakes, waffles, french toast, ice cream, puddings and other desserts. This can be stored in a covered container in the refrigerator for a week or two — but I bet it won't last that long! Enjoy. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I keep the tray of an overnight travel case stocked with necessities like a toothbrush, toothpaste, soap, makeup, hairpins, comb, etc. This serves two purposes: First, I am ready to go anytime and do not have to gather up these things everytime I leave on a last-minute — or even a well-planned — trip. Second, when we have overnight company and find it necessary to rearrange the sleeping arrangements, I use my travel case if I move to another bedroom or bathroom. I have everything I need with me without having to cause too much commotion. — MRS. H.A.

HEALTH
Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Battling stomach bulge

DEAR DR. LAMB — About six months ago I started feeling heaviness in my stomach and a sort of numbness. Since having two children my stomach got large, but lately it is so distended I look about eight months pregnant, which I am not. I can't go without a girdle because it is so uncomfortably heavy. I'm in my late 50s.

I have been to a reputable doctor and even had pelvic sonograms and nothing out of the ordinary shows up. Naturally I'm relieved that there is no immediate danger but still the tummy is so big I get discouraged when I shop for clothes. I might add there is no pain involved.

Please, can you offer some solution as to what this could be and what I can do about it?

DEAR READER — To call a spade a shovel, it is probably fat. You need to know the truth. There is an old medical aphorism that if such a condition is not a tumor (which your letter suggests is ruled out), there are five F's to consider: fetus, feces, fluid, flatulence and fat. If your distention were gas, you would probably complain of related symptoms. If it were fluid, it would be from a medical condition such as liver disease that your doctor would have found easily.

Unfortunately some people are prone to developing fat on and in the abdomen. It is important to realize that there is as much or more fat inside the abdomen as there is under the skin outside the abdomen.

The most important measure is a "fat loss" program. As your body eliminates body fat your abdomen will diminish in size. Exercises are important for two reasons, to help you lose body fat and to help you develop strength in the muscles that firm your trunk.

Walking helps because it uses calories. But you need trunk exercises as you progress, too. This includes sit-ups, the modified leg lifts for the lower abdomen and exercises to strengthen your back and improve your posture.

I'm sending you The Health Letter 17-12, Winning the Battle of the Bulge, to help you. Others can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. If you stick to a good program you will be able to enjoy shopping again.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have read in your column and in several articles that heart attacks are very rare in women who have not gone through the change in life. I had a hysterectomy 10 years ago at age 32 and my doctor put me on hormone pills immediately and told me to stay on them the rest of my life. Then I changed physicians when we moved and he took me off my hormone pills. My question is would my risk of having a heart attack lessen if I were to resume taking the hormone pill? I am moderately active and smoke one pack of ultralight cigarettes a day. My father has a severe heart condition.

DEAR READER — You could do a lot more for your heart attack risk if you quit smoking. Studies show that smoking filtered cigarettes or low tar cigarettes does not decrease the risk of heart attacks from that noted in those who smoke non-filtered cigarettes. Whether or not estrogen will decrease your heart attack risk really depends on your risk factors. If your cholesterol is low, your blood pressure low without hormones and you didn't smoke, taking hormones probably would not be much help. If you had a high cholesterol risk factor it might help.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Our 17-year-old daughter has been eating at least six pounds of carrots a week for at least six months. Of course she eats other foods, too. She is 5 foot 4 and weighs 105 pounds but she has turned orange. She naturally has a tawny complexion, but now, compared to the rest of us, her hands and arms are decidedly orange. Does this make any difference?

DEAR READER — Your daughter has hypercarotenosis which means she has stored a lot of the carotene pigment in carrots in her body. This also happens, and perhaps more often, in infants who get too much carotene in their diets.

Fortunately the carotene pigment is not converted to vitamin A rapidly enough to induce vitamin A toxicity. But since we really don't know all we need to know about the effects of the carotene pigment in the body in excess amounts for long periods of time, I think it is not a wise idea. The orange color will disappear when she stops the excessive ingestion of carrots.

And I wonder if she has a problem with her body self-image and is trying to be too thin. If so, resolving her basic problem might stop the carrot glut.

WTSU School of Fine Arts receives endowment grant

To enhance the performing, teaching and recruiting activities of the West Texas State University Harrington String Quartet, the Don and Sybil Harrington Foundation of Amarillo has awarded an endowment grant of $721,000 to the WTSU School of Fine Arts.

The members of the Harrington String Quartet have completed their second year in residence at WTSU.

The grant of $721,000 is in addition to the $500,000 endowment by the Don and Sybil Harrington Foundation to WTSU and the $400,000 foundation grant to the Amarillo Symphony which established the quartet in 1981.

Members of the Harrington String Quartet, which is one of only several string quartets in residence at colleges and universities in the United States, serves as guest lecturers in strings in the WTSU Department of Music.

For the past two years, the quartet has included John Sumerlin, who plays first violin; David Edge, second violin; Ted Allred, viola; and Matt Lad, cello.

A new member is being sought by WTSU to fill the vacancy created by Edge, who plans to leave the Panhandle area.

During the two years, the quartet has performed in recitals throughout the region and has provided clinics for junior high school and high school students in Texas and New Mexico. Each member also performs with the Amarillo Symphony as a principal chair player.

Their performance abilities have been recognized by international groups. In April they performed as one of 10 groups from around the world at the Banff International String Quartet Competition at Banff, Alberta, Canada.

For the second consecutive year, the quartet has been among six groups invited for an intensive seminar with the members of the Juilliard String Quartet at Michigan State University. They also have been featured in American Ensemble Magazine.

Through their recruiting and teaching at the university, quartet members work to enhance the string areas of both the university and the Amarillo Symphony, said Dr. Richard Moseley, acting executive vice-president.

"Their frequent involvement with area junior high school and high school students and directors is also a strong benefit for the region and the university," he said.

Dr. Gail Shannon, WTSU president, expressed appreciation to the Don and Sybil Harrington Foundation of Amarillo for the additional endowment funds.

"We are most grateful once again to the Don and Sybil Harrington Foundation for this significant grant in support of our resident string quartet," he said. "We are most anxious that the quality of string program continues to grow and develop under the guidance and leadership of these outstanding musicians."

Dr. Hugh Sanders is dean of the WTSU School of Fine Arts and Dr. Harry Haines is head of the Department of Music.

Making Donation

Karen Payne, left, L'Allegria Study Club president, presents a check for $1000 to Milton Morris and Kathy Wright of Canyon, representatives of the Opportunity Plan Inc. Members of the club made the donation from proceeds of their annual plant sale. The money will go to the Hereford division of the Opportunity Plan, which provides loans to local students for post-secondary education.

Television's "Batman, the Caped Crusader," is headed for the Amarillo Country Squire stage in the person of Adam West, star of the smash TV hit of the late sixties.

West will appear at Country Squire through July 10 in the romantic comedy "An Almost Perfect Person," which also features Laurel Adams and Dana Scott Galloway.
