Reagan pleads ignorance of briefing papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says he has no idea who gave his campaign Jimmy Carter's briefing papers for their debate in 1980 or whether they were obtained by illegal or unethical means.

But a congressman heading an inquiry of the matter says, "There's a lot of unanswered questions" and promises to pursue them.

The president, at a nationally broadcast news conference Tuesday night, repeatedly refused to pass judgment on the propriety of his advisers' use of documents from the rival Carter camp in preparing him for the debate.

While saying he wants the Justice Department to investigate "very carefully" whether there was any wrongdoing, Reagan said he does not intend to reprimand any of his staff over the matter.

Rep. Donald Albosta, D-Mich., chairman of a House subcommittee that has been looking into the matter, said, "I think we have to continue. There's a lot of unanswered questions and a lot of different viewpoints as to what went on."

Questions about the briefing book and Central America dominated the news conference.

The president refused to flatly rule out ever sending U.S. combat troops to Central America. "Presidents never say never," Reagan said, quickly adding that he has no plan or intention of sending forces to the region and that the nations in Central America don't want them.

In an opening statement, Reagan said the administration was revising upward its estimate of economic growth this year, from 4.7 percent to 5.5 percent. He said "America's economy is beginning to sparkle" after the deepest recession since World War II.

Reagan declared himself frustrated by critics who portray him as a president whose policies favor the rich at the expense of the poor. "The rich don't need my help," he said.

"I'm doing things that I think are fair to all of the people," he added. "But what I want to see above all is that this country remains a country where someone can always get rich."

On the Carter briefing book, Reagan said he never saw the materials and doubted that they were of much use, though one of his debate advisers, David Stockman, now the administration's budget director, has said it was helpful.

"Since it never got to the debater, what purpose did it serve?" Reagan asked.

Albosta, asked if Reagan's answers had cleared up the matter, replied: "Oh, no. Absolutely not. There's nothing settled. The only way the president could do it would be to get all of his boys together and tell us who it was (that) provided them, and under what circumstances that information was provided."

Reagan met with reporters only hours after the White House released hundreds of pages of documents prepared by Carter's staff for the 1980 debate and discovered recently in the files of Reagan aides.

Reagan minimized the importance of the material, saying what his aides saw represented basic positions on issues, not sensitive strategy.

Former President Carter offered a different opinion.

"For all I understand, this was a very serious loss to our campaign ... very valuable documents," Carter told ABC News. "But I don't know anything further about it, and I don't care to make any comment."

The documents released by the White House included a memo from campaign aides.

Quake jolts San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A moderate earthquake jolted a wide area of Southern California early today, awakening residents, collapsing a roof in San Diego and setting off burglar alarms, authorities said.

The 1:09 a.m. PDT quake, which geologists said registered about 4.5 on the Richter scale of ground motion, was felt in Riverside, San Diego, Imperial and Orange counties, authorities said. There were no immediate reports of injuries.

"It felt like an elephant was walking down the hallway," said Doug Smith, a reporter for radio station KOGO in San Diego.

The quake's epicenter was 10 miles west of San Diego in the Pacific Ocean, said Dennis Meredith at the California

Violent storms cause damage

COMMERCE, Texas (AP) — Violent thunderstorms swept across Northeast Texas, triggering winds that knocked out power, pushed railroad cars off the tracks and blew the roof off a recreational center at East Texas State University.

The worst damage was reported at the ETSU campus here, where the roof of the Joseph Zeppa Center was ripped away by gusting winds late Tuesday. Power outages forced cancellation of morning classes today, according to officials at the campus security office.

A roof also was sheared off a mobile home here, said police Sgt. Roger Huffman. No injuries were reported, he said. In nearby Greenville, residents were without electricity for much of the night after winds knocked over utility poles and trees, shearing power lines.

The roofs of at least two buildings were torn off and several railroad freight cars were pushed off the tracks, according to a police dispatcher.

Up to five inches of rain fell at the community of Point in southern Hunt County. The rest of the county reported rainfall of around two inches.

Large hail fell late Tuesday in Fannin and Collin counties, while hail and winds gusting to 80 mph were reported early today at Wills Point.

Abortion measure narrowly defeated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate's 50 to 49 defeat of an anti-abortion constitutional amendment is reviving a feud among abortion foes over how to achieve a stiff curb on the procedure.

Paul Brown, director of the Life Amendment Political Action Committee, led the finger-pointing Tuesday after anti-abortion forces failed to muster a majority on a vote needing two-thirds for passage.

"By pushing this futile amendment to the floor of the Senate, the National Right to Life Committee and the National Conference of Catholic Bishops have accomplished what the National Abortion Rights Action League and the Planned Parenthood Federation of America have not been able to do," he said.

"They have handed the pro-life movement the greatest single legislative setback in its 10-year history and have driven a mammoth wedge into the movement itself."

Brown called on Dr. J.C. Wilkie, president of the National Right to Life Committee, and the Rev. Edward Bryce, director of anti-abortion activities for the bishops, to resign because they "led their supporters to slaughter."

The amendment, sponsored by Sens. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, and Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., would have given Congress and the states the power to regulate abortions, raising the possibility of different laws in every state. It reads: "A right to abortion is not secured by this Constitution."

An estimated 1.6 million to 2 million abortions are performed annually in the United States.

Hatch wanted to portray the vote as a litmus test on abortion. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., a leading opponent of abortion, not only disputed that claim but said Hatch had blundered by bringing the amendment to a vote.

Helms voted present on it rather than against it. He said he didn't want the news media to "make it appear that I have sided with the anti-life movement in the United States."

"I think the right-to-life forces have crested and are on the decline," said Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., chief opponent of the amendment. "The Senate said to them, 'enough.'"

"You can only go to the well so often in this business or any other. Right-to-life has had vote after vote after vote. They've had two bites of the pie." (See ABORTION, Page 2)

Acid rain findings being released

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a two-year investigation into causes of acid rain, damage it does and remedies for it, the National Academy of Sciences is releasing its findings today with both sides of the controversy expecting support for their positions.

Environmentalists, who have seen copies of the report in draft form, say the study will conclude that there is a direct and identifiable link between the amount of sulfur dioxide spewed into the atmosphere and the death of lakes in the Northeast and Canada.

But coal industry officials say the study makes no such findings, stating instead that not enough is known to predict what the effects would be on acid rain problem areas by reducing emissions in other regions.

In a statement, Robert Quenon, president of the Peabody Holding Co., a major coal mining firm, said, "The report totally discredits the emission control bills before Congress. The bills miss the mark by imposing a lopsided burden of emissions reductions on areas which have relatively little influence on the acidity of lakes and streams of the Northeast."

While the report addresses scientific questions, its main use will be in the political debate swirling in Congress over what types of controls, if any, should be imposed to mitigate the acid rain problem. Various bills now pending would impose up to a 50 percent reduction on coal-burning power plants in the eastern United States over the next decade to halt acid rain damage.

Attacking those bills, the Edison Electric Institute released a survey Tuesday that warned that customers faced bill increases of up to 50 percent if acid rain control legislation is passed.

Shuttle lays over in Texas

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The space shuttle Challenger, fresh from its second mission, spent the night piggybacked on a modified jumbo jet after encountering a second snag in its return to Florida.

A NASA flight crew hoped to leave for the Kennedy Space Center early this morning if weather over the Gulf of Mexico cleared.

Thunderstorms foiled plans to end Challenger's flight with NASA's first landing at the Kennedy launch site in Florida.

Another plan to return the shuttle-bearing jet to Florida on a one-day flight from California's Edwards Air Force Base was scuttled because of the threat of thunderstorms near Wichita Falls, Texas, site of a scheduled refueling stop.

However, after Challenger returned from orbit last Friday, NASA officials had said they didn't expect to start the shuttle on its way back to Florida until Thursday so the overnight delay was not considered serious.

The Challenger arrived at Kelly Air Force here Tuesday afternoon after a three-hour, 20-minute flight from California.

Heat waves shimmered on the runway as the shuttle-bearing jet gently touched down.

POWER distributing cards for comments

July 5 is the final day to submit comments on revised general guidelines for the recommendation of sites for commercial nuclear waste repositories. Deaf Smith and Swisher Counties are two of nine candidate areas under consideration for the location of the nation's first high-level underground nuclear waste dump. The Department of Energy has placed copies of the revisions in several area libraries, including the Deaf Smith County Library.

When finalized, the guidelines will establish performance requirements for a geologic repository system, specify how the DOE will carry out its site selection program, and define technical qualifications that repository candidate sites must meet in the selection process. The list of nine candidate areas will be narrowed to five later this year, and from those a final three sites will be picked for extensive testing, beginning in 1985.

In Hereford, People Opposed to Wasted Energy Repositories (POWER) is conducting a postcard campaign to provide comments from this area. The group is distributing pre-addressed postcards that read:

"I am concerned about the guidelines for the disposal of high-level nuclear wastes. I urge the Department of Energy to disqualify an area if it involves storage of the wastes near producing groundwater. No matter where the wastes are buried, the threat to the groundwater would remain for many generations. Please drop consideration of Texas for the nuclear waste repository."

The cards are printed in groups of three, with one each going to President Ronald Reagan, Energy Secretary Donald Hodel, and Critz George, the head of the Guidelines Task Force. They are available at locations in Tulia, Dimmitt, Friona, Nazareth, and Canyon. Many merchants in Hereford have the postcards available, including Gebos, Diller-a-Dollar Bookstore, Moore's Jack and Jill, and many downtown merchants.

Chip Formby, a spokesman for POWER, said "We are urging people to mail the cards by July 2. Even though statements have been made that Texas won't be a nuclear dump, the fight won't be over until the DOE makes that statement. We feel the postcards are one way to keep pressure on DOE to drop Texas from consideration."

Additional postcards are available by calling 366-7603.

Tax limit plan axed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, urged on by President Reagan, today killed a Democratic plan to limit the 10 percent personal income tax cut that takes effect Friday.

The Senate vote against the House-passed maximum $720 "cap" was the last gasp for Democratic attempts to alter the final installment of the three-year, 25 percent tax cut Reagan pushed through Congress in 1981.

The issue, however, is certain to surface again in the 1984 elections.

There was little drama to today's vote as even supporters of the measure conceding beforehand that the Senate would defeat it.

Marriot to pay disputed city taxes

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The Marriott Corp., which last week claimed it didn't owe up to $266,000 in disputed taxes because it leases the El Paso Marriott from the city, has decided to pay its bill, officials said.

The hotel chain told El Paso officials on Monday they would pay 1963 property taxes on the airport inn, but contested the hotel's taxable value, placed at $8.3 million.

The hotel was built on airport property last year with $16 million provided by El Paso through the sale of special airport revenue bonds that were approved by the Texas Legislature.

Marriott tax officer Robert Morris said the corporation would pay all "lawfully levied taxes," but contended the appraisal district wrongly assessed the hotel as if it belongs to the corporation.

Morris said Marriott should be taxed on the worth of Marriott's 40-year lease with the city, not the value of the hotel and its furnishings. Taxes the hotel owe range from $138,000 to $266,000 because the assessed value of the Marriott in El Paso is $8.3 million to $16 million, city officials said.

Two businessmen have 43 counts dropped

HOUSTON (AP) — Two businessmen accused of bid-rigging each face one count of conspiracy after 43 other federal counts against them were dropped.

U.S. District Judge George Cire ruled

ed Tuesday that Luis A. Uriarte, 40, of Coral Gables, Fla. and George S. McClean, 46, of La Jolla, Calif., could not be charged with violating the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act for their dealings with Pemex, Mexico's national oil company.

The two men, with Houston-based Crawford Enterprises, Inc., and several others, were named in a 49-count indictment in October charging them with paying almost $10 million to Pemex officials to secure contracts.

The indictment alleged that as a result of the conspiracy, Crawford Enterprises and two other oil field equipment firms received purchase orders totaling more than $225 million from Pemex between December 1977 and May 1980.

Young immigrant's body found on river bank

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The body of an 11-year-old girl who recently immigrated with her family from England to the United States was found along the bank of the Trinity River in northeast Fort Worth, authorities said.

Julie Fuller, of Arlington, was last seen by her parents Monday night when she walked from the family's apartment to take out trash, police said.

The girl's nude body was found Tuesday in high weeds by three men who had stopped near a bridge to eat lunch, according to investigators.

An autopsy will be performed to determine the cause of death and whether the girl was sexually assaulted, said Sgt. J.O. Rutledge.

Tarrant County medical investigator R.O. Parkey said it appeared the body may have been tossed down a steep embankment.

Several people told police they had seen a girl matching the victim's description arguing with a man inside a parked station wagon. When the people yelled at the man, he sped off with the girl, investigators said.

A neighbor said the girl's mother, Janet Fuller, had come from Sussex, England to Arlington to be near her husband, Collen, who recently came to the United States looking for work. Acquaintances at the apartments did not know if Fuller had found employment.

Railway ceremony marks bank merger

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Bankers, city officials and their guests rode the rails in nearly forgotten splendor to the ceremonial signing completing what some called the largest bank merger in Texas history.

The Tuesday ceremony marking the agreement between Dallas-based InterFirst and Fort Worth-based First United, had the atmosphere of a political rally and was conducted on the platform of a railroad car used by Harry Truman in his 1948 whistle-stop presidential campaign.

The merger strengthens InterFirst's position as the nation's 14th-largest bank holding company, the largest outside of New York, Chicago and California, bank officials said. With the merger, InterFirst has 66 banks in 47 Texas cities and more than $22 billion in assets.

"The challenge was to do what we could do to recognize the merger in a significant way," said Jean Farinelli, a spokesman for an advertising agency that came up with the idea of using a train to promote the merger.

Eyewitness to collapse says trucks just disappeared

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — William Anderson and his girlfriend were driving in darkness over the Mianus River, when suddenly two trucks jackknifed ahead of them.

"I slammed on my brakes but it looked like we were fixing to be in a three-car wreck...and then the trucks just disappeared," said the University of Tennessee graduate student, a lucky-but shaken survivor of a bridge collapse on an interstate highway.

Anderson, 30, of Knoxville, learned later that along with the trucks, a three-lane, 100-foot section of the bridge had fallen 60 feet into the tide-swollen river or onto its marshy bank.

Three people died in the pre-dawn accident Tuesday, and three others were seriously injured.

"I thought I heard an explosion," said another eyewitness, Gordon Gilman, whose home is on the river bank.

"I looked out the window and I saw a truck and a car coming off the bridge and going into the water. Then I could hear moans. I could hear people moaning."

The car carrying Anderson and his girlfriend, Shannon Kelly of Atlanta, came to a skidding stop 10 feet short of the gaping hole in the bridge on Interstate 95.

Leaving their car in the center lane, Anderson and Ms. Kelly walked to the median guard rail. There, Anderson tried frantically to warn another car as it approached the broken bridge.

"They tried to slow down," he said. "But they didn't make it. I'm sure they just thought we had troubles with our car and were trying to stop them," he told The Knoxville Journal in a phone interview from his destination of Portland, Maine.

Anderson and Ms. Kelly had left Atlanta on Friday and the two were making stops as they traveled to Maine to attend a wedding. After watching the New York Yankees play Monday night, they headed north on the turnpike and reached the bridge at about 1:30 a.m., driving in the rain.

"I was in the center lane and saw the trucks in the left and right lanes up ahead throw on their brakes," Anderson said. "I started to slow down then and thought we were going to be in an accident."

"The truck in the right lane started to jackknife and the cab came all the way around facing us and then it went over.

After seeing the car go over the side, Anderson succeeded in stopping a tractor-trailer, whose driver used a CB radio to call for help.

It was another hour before Anderson and Ms. Kelly were able to back off of the bridge, and they pulled over for a few hours to regain their composure.

"We did a lot of praying," he said. "It was so close. Another five or 10 mph and we could have been down there too. It was pretty horrible and I remember hearing the truck's axles scrape as it went over. We just wanted to get away from there."

HOF inductee dies in N.M.

ROSWELL, N.M. — Louise Massey Mabie, a 1982 inductee into the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame, died last week in San Angelo at the age of 80.

Mrs. Mabie was buried in Roswell on Friday.

She began her career in music in Roswell in 1918, and her group, "Louise Massey and the Westerners," was one of the few western groups ever to perform at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York. Her biggest hit single was "In My Adobe Hacienda," which she wrote in the late 1940s.

Mrs. Mabie was born in 1902 to a ranching family in Midland and in 1914 her family moved to a ranch in the Hondo Valley, west of Roswell. She, her husband, Milt Mabie, who died in 1973, her father, and two brothers formed a band in 1918 and began performing in the area.

After a number of years of touring, recording, and radio she and her husband retired to their adobe hacienda in the Hondo Valley in 1950.

CBS edges NBC for top show rating

LOS ANGELES (AP) — CBS won the Nielsen ratings for the third consecutive week as "Trapper John, M.D." edged NBC's "The A-Team" in the contest for the nation's top-rated television show.

The CBS medical series edged NBC's comedy-adventure by a tenth of a ratings point, or 83,000 households, in the past week's ratings. Each ratings point represents 830,000 homes.

CBS won the week ended June 26 — its third victory in as many weeks — while its shows took six places in the Top 10. CBS previously lost five consecutive weekly ratings contests, three times to ABC and twice to NBC.

NBC, which suddenly has found new ratings strength this summer, was second in the past week's ratings, placing four shows in the Top 10.

Third-place ABC had no shows in the Top 10. Its highest-ranked show was "20-20," in a three-way tie for 12th place.

CBS won with a weekly average of 13.0 in the A.C.

Nielsen Co. ratings. NBC had 12.3 and ABC 11.6. The networks say this means that in an average prime time minute 13.0 percent of the country's TV homes were tuned to CBS.

In third place this past week was the CBS comedy "The Jeffersons." Fourth was the CBS movie "The Princess and the Cabbie." The CBS tongue-in-cheek adventure of brotherly detectives, "Simon & Simon," was fifth.

NBC's "Hill Street Blues" took sixth place. Next was the NBC movie "Someone's Killing the World's Greatest Models," then NBC's "Remington Steele." Tied for ninth place were the CBS magazine show "60 Minutes" and CBS' "On the Road with Charles Kuralt."

The most remarkable ratings display in the past two months is that of NBC, the perennial third-place network of recent years.

Since the week ending May 8, NBC won twice and has not been lower than second place. "The A-Team," a midseason replacement about a group of free-lance mercenaries, became an instant hit and has headed NBC's resurgence.

Here are the week's Top 20 programs:

1. "Trapper John, M.D." CBS, a rating of 19.2 or 15.99 million households.

2. "The A-Team," NBC, 19.1 or 15.91 million.

3. "The Jeffersons," CBS, 18.1 or 15.0 million.

4. "The Princess and the Cabbie" movie, CBS, 17.9 or 14.9 million.

5. "Simon & Simon," CBS, 17.5 or 14.5 million.

6. "Hill Street Blues," NBC, 17.2 or 14.3 million.

7. "Someone's Killing the World's Greatest Models" movie, NBC, 17.0 or 14.1 million.

8. "Remington Steele," NBC, 16.8 or 13.9 million.

9. Tie — "60 Minutes," CBS, and "On the Road with Charles Kuralt," CBS, each 16.1 or 13.4 million.

10. "Cagney & Lacey," CBS, 16.0 or 13.3 million.

11. Tie — "Knight Rider," NBC; "20-20," ABC; and "Cheers," NBC; each 15.8 or 13.1 million.

12. Tie — "M-A-S-H," CBS, 15.7 or 13.0 million.

13. Tie — "Fantasy Island," ABC, and "Magnum, P.I.," CBS, each 15.2 or 12.6 million.

14. Tie — "The Love Boat," ABC, and "Hart to Hart," ABC, each 15.0 or 12.2 million.

15. "Family Ties," NBC, 14.5 or 12.0 million.

El Salvador dealt 3 fresh blows

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The civil war dealt El Salvador three fresh blows within a 12-hour span, including a rocket attack, a kidnap attempt and the assassination of an ultra-rightist politician.

But the top U.S. military adviser here insisted that government forces, with enough aid, can defeat leftist guerrillas in two years.

Col. John D. Waghelstein, who was to leave El Salvador today after directing the 55 U.S. advisers for 15 months, said Salvadoran forces have considerably improved their ability to adapt to guerrilla warfare.

Gunmen opened fire with submachine guns Tuesday on the automobile of Rene Barrios Amaya, 50, an associate of ultra-rightist leader Roberto d'Aubuisson and a member of the Constituent Assembly. He died instantly, a colleague said.

A justice of the peace said the body had eight bullets in the chest.

Barrios served on the executive committee of d'Aubuisson's Republican Nationalist Alliance, which with four other parties forms a rightist majority in the 60-member legislature. D'Aubuisson is speaker of the assembly.

Other deputies have been attacked since the assembly was elected in March 1982, but Barrios was the first to be killed.

On Monday night, 10 gunmen tried to kidnap Col. Jose Angel Avedano near the U.S. Embassy, wounding him in the leg and the chest, sources at the military hospital where he was taken reported. The colonel fired back, the sources reported, wounding several of his assailants who then fled in a pickup truck.

Avedano was director of criminal investigation for the national police, in charge of tracking down leftist subversives, from 1977 to 1979, in the conservative military government of Gen. Carlos Humberto Romero.

Also Monday night, someone fired a rocket at the U.S. Embassy, and several minutes later the building was sprayed by gunfire from two passing cars. Some second-floor windows were shattered, but no one was hurt.

The Popular Liberation Forces, one of five leftist guerrilla groups fighting the government, said in a clandestine radio broadcast that it carried out the embassy attack.

Waghelstein, 45, who was leaving for an assignment at the National War College in Washington, told a news conference that Congress has been giving half or less of the requested funds for Salvadoran military aid.

"If we don't get what we ask for it's going to take a little longer, but we can still do it," he said of his projected government victory.

"We have advocated for a long time that small unit operations be conducted and that troops ... saturate the countryside with patrols and night ambushes, and they're doing that now."

Since his arrival, Waghelstein has criticized what he called a "garrison mentality" which gave guerrillas the run of the countryside.

Juveniles arrested

Two juveniles were arrested early this morning for the theft of a 1973 Chevrolet worth $800, Hereford police reported this morning.

Truck owner Rick Lee, 137 Sunset, reported the theft at 1:25 a.m. The pickup was located a few minutes later going south on 25 Mile Road (Highway 385) near the First St. (Highway 60) intersection.

A 10-speed bicycle, valued at $169, was taken sometime Sunday evening from 406 Long. Police said victim of the crime is Adam Salinas of same address.

Police also reported one incident of paint sniffing occurred Tuesday evening and, on Sunday, there was a criminal trespass and assault.

Many flowers can enhance cooking

COLLEGE STATION — Did you know that you can eat many of your favorite flowers?

Pink carnations, chrysanthemums, dandelions, geraniums, pansies and roses are just a few that will tantalize your palate, says Dr. Bill Welch, landscape horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. They can be used in butters, soups, sauces and salads as well as in beverages, sandwiches, casseroles and desserts.

Either the buds, petals or leaves of these flowers may be eaten, Welch says. Wash them thoroughly, bathe in salt water and then dip in ice water to perk them up. Petals may be refrigerated for a short time in plastic bags.

The delicious possibilities are endless, says the horticulturist. Try lining the bottom of a cake pan with marigolds. Or blend softened cream cheese with chopped petals for a spread on crackers and nut breads. You can even freeze whole small flowers in ice rings or cubes for party beverages.

Not all flowers are edible, but be adventurous and try the ones that are, suggests Welch. Color your landscape and your cooking with beautiful and tasty flowers.

volunteer Wayne Valis to David R. Gergen, then a debate adviser and now the White House director of communications. The memo described discussions within the Carter camp about debate strategy and themes that Carter would use. Its cover letter said:

"These notes are based on a Carter debate staff brainstorming session — middle-level types — nothing spectacular, but interesting — from a source intimately connected to a Carter debate staff member. Reliable. I gave a copy to Jim Baker (now the White House chief of staff)."

In a telephone interview, Valis said the memo was prepared by and obtained from "a lobbyist in Washington who basically plays both sides of the fence."

Opponents of the amendment joined him in forecasting a decline of the anti-abortion movement.

Reagan said use of such material has "never been characteristic of any campaigns that I've been in ... Is it stolen if someone hands it to you, some disgruntled individual (from the Carter campaign) hands to another counterpart in a campaign organization? We don't know how it was obtained."

Pressed to render judgment on the example he raised, Reagan replied, "Well, my answer is that it probably wasn't too much different from the press rushing into print with the Pentagon Papers, which were stolen. And they were classified. And it was against the law. Now, I

Institute of Technology. It was felt as far away as Santa Ana, 110 miles to the north, police said.

Rik Espinosa, a San Diego resident, said he was awakened by the shaking, which was felt at about 1:10 a.m. PST.

Forest Kimler, who lives in San Clemente in Orange County said it was "a strong vertical jolt. It didn't sway. It just went up and down."

San Diego police officer Peter Pedrosian said a water heater broke and a roof collapsed at a business in the Ocean Beach area, but it was closed and there were no injuries.

The quake also set off numerous burglar alarms at residential and commercial buildings, the officer said.

In El Centro, 100 miles east of San Diego, California

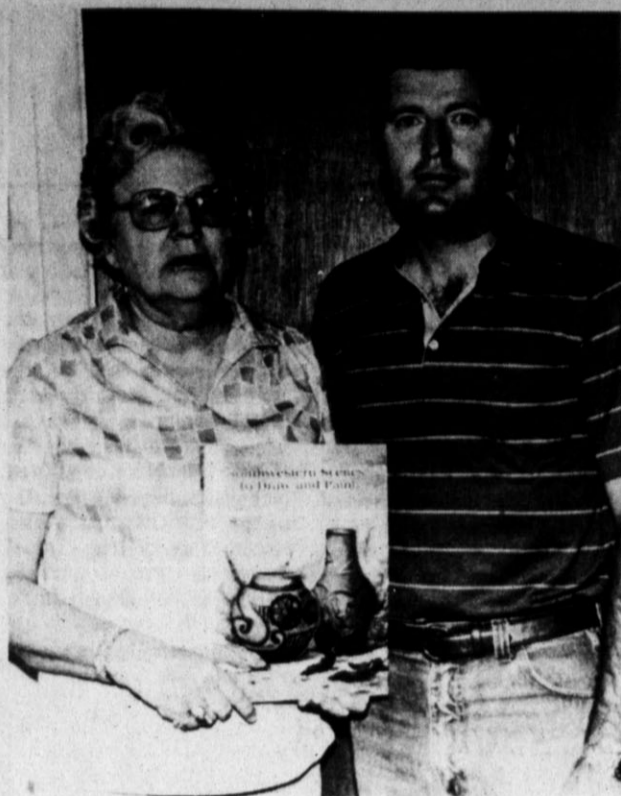

Highway Patrol dispatcher John Moreno said residents felt a slight rolling motion.

"It felt like a big truck running down in front of us, just a slow roller. It was no biggie," Moreno said.

San Diego resident Martin Blair, 31, said he and his wife, Cindy, were awakened from a sound sleep. "It shook us up to the extent that we both woke up. We woke up with a start," he said.

Mark Zegan, a disc jockey at KIFM radio, said the station received more than 25 calls.

The tremor came almost two months after the May 2 earthquake which devastated the Fresno County town of Coalinga, 200 miles northwest of Los Angeles. That quake measured 6.5 on the Richter scale.

Local artists publish ninth edition of book

Jean Lyles and her son, Charles Lyles, have recently published the ninth edition of their book, "Southwestern Scenes to Draw and Paint." The local artists are currently conducting their fifth annual oil painting seminar at Texas Gallery. The seminar began June 20 and has been divided into three 3-day sessions. Perrins present program on Russia

Mr. and Mrs. Julian Perrin presented a program on their trip to Russia, showing slides, pictures, and other items of interest, when members of the Deaf Smith County Lapidary Club met Monday night in the Flame Room. President Jack Nunley presided at the business meeting, during which a trip to Palo Duro Canyon to see "Texas" was discussed. Members will bring picnic suppers to the park before the show on July 16 and eat together.

The following visitors were introduced: Mr. and Mrs. Roy Botts of Portland, Ore., Craig Hammon, Chad Mulkey, and Mr. and Mrs. Homer Palmer. Palmer brought a display of clocks which he had made from various types of rocks and wood. Members decided to hold a surprise birthday party for Whitey Vohem of Canyon on July 8 in the home of Roy Martin. A trip to Black Mesa, Okla., was planned for September and members discussed plans for a trip to Big Bend National Park in March of next year. The Town and Country Jubilee was discussed. The club will have a working display featuring equipment used to shape and polish rocks. Hosts for the meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Bert Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Cawthon, and Mona Gee. Thirty members were present.

New case against smoking: its effect on non-smokers

Persons who spouse or loved one smokes have most likely tried to convince him or her to stop. Pleas are probably centered around what effect smoking has on the smoker's health rather than on the family of the smoker. However, new evidence now shows that even the non-smoker's health can be adversely affected by cigarette smoke and that long-term exposure can cause measurable lung damage.

non-smoker depend on the amount of smoke in the air, the frequency of exposure, whether the smoke is secondhand (after being exhaled) or sidestream (drifting from the cigarette) and the non-smoker's physical state. Evidence reported in the "New England Journal of Medicine" demonstrated a clear-cut relationship between a non-smoker's exposure to smoke and his respiratory capacity. Non-smokers who neither lived nor worked in a smoky environment had normal lung function. Non-smokers regularly exposed to smoke show a small but significant degree of respiratory impairment.

On the average, a person takes in about 16,000 gallons of water during his lifetime.

Residents return from Heart of America tour

Elizabeth Wills and Alice and Robert Thompson from Hereford recently returned from "The Heart of America" Trailways bus tour, which featured stops in Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, and Oklahoma. Tourists visited the legendary Boot Hill Cemetery and Front Street in Dodge City, Kan., the Eisenhower Center at Abilene, Kan., and the Harry S. Truman Library in Independence, Mo.

At Hannibal, Mo., they saw Mark Twain's home and museum, took a cruise on the Mississippi on the "Huckleberry Finn," and saw the outdoor drama, "Reflections of Mark Twain."

Traveling to Springfield, Mo., they visited the home of Abraham Lincoln and Oak Ridge Cemetery, the family tomb. Two days in Chicago provided a city tour, a visit to the top of the Sears Tower, visits to the Field Museum of Natural History and the Museum of Science and Industry, and a sight-seeing cruise on Lake Michigan. In Dearborn, Mich., the group toured the Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village, and in Cincinnati, Ohio, attractions included the Carew Tower Observation Deck, the College Football Hall of Fame, the famous Union Station, and the Riverfront Stadium. In the evening the group crossed the Ohio River into Covington, Ky., where they watched harness racing at the Latonia Race Track. The group enjoyed a ride around the track where the Indy 500 races are run at Indianapolis, and after visits to the Speedway Museum and Indiana State Capitol Building, they journeyed to St. Louis, Mo., where they viewed a dinner show aboard the Tom Sawyer Showboat on the Mississippi River and took a tram to the top of the Gateway Arch. Returning by way of Joplin, Mo., where a farewell banquet was held, the group made one final stop in Tulsa, Okla., where they viewed the Oral Roberts University campus from the ORU Tower.

Aging King advances to semis

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — There is a long-lasting love affair going on between Billie Jean King and the Wimbledon Tennis Championships. It is not one-sided and definitely not unrequited. "I will always dream about being in the Wimbledon final until I am 80 years old," said King, who at 39 has quite a few years to go to reach that goal. She has won the coveted women's singles title on the famed grass courts of the All-England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club six times and, including women's doubles and mixed doubles, has captured a record 20 Wimbledon championships.

On Tuesday, King's battle-scarred legs and accurate volleys carried her past giant-killer Kathy Jordan 7-5, 6-4 and into the Thursday's semi-finals. There, she will meet third-seeded Andrea Jaeger, a 6-4, 6-1 winner over No. 11 Barbara Potter. Last year, King also reached the Wimbledon semi-finals, delighting the fans crowded around the courts here and millions more who watched on television, before she was ousted by Chris Evert Lloyd. This time, Lloyd isn't around, having been upset in the third round by Jordan. "I thought I would have an early exit against Beth Herr

(in the second round), so I never thought I'd be in the semi-finals," King said. She got by Herr 6-7, 6-2, 8-6, the only time this year she has been forced to go three sets. "But I think I've gotten this far because I have worked all year on my serve and my backward and forward mobility, which I think are the most important aspects of my game on grass," she said. "My only two goals this year are Wimbledon and Team Tennis."

Thursday's other semi-final will pit top-seeded Martina Navratilova against South Africa's Yvonne Vermaak. Navratilova, who has yet to lose a set in this tournament, continued her domination by bludgeoning Jennifer Mundel of South Africa 6-3, 6-1. Vermaak eliminated 37-year-old Virginia Wade of Britain, the 1977 Wimbledon singles champion, 6-3, 2-6, 6-2.

In the men's quarter-final matches Tuesday, third-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia ousted Roscoe Tanner 7-5, 7-6, 6-3, while New Zealand's Chris Lewis stopped Mel Purcell 6-7, 6-0, 6-4, 7-6 in a battle of unseeded players. The women's final is scheduled for Saturday and the men's final will be held Sunday.

Dallas Mavs go after good athletes

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Mavericks copied a page from the Dallas Cowboys' college draft bible and selected "the best athletes available" in the first round of the National Basketball Association draft. The Mavericks weren't able to get the muscle under the basket they need, but they do think they drafted two exceptional basketball players Tuesday in 6-foot-7 forward Dale Ellis from Tennessee and 6-4½ guard Derek Harper from Illinois. "Last year we wanted to fill a need and this year we went for the best athletes available," said Mavericks coach Dick Motta. "I don't think you can ever have too much talent." The Mavericks also said that, should someone offer them a center in a trade involving a small forward or a point guard, they would be more than happy to listen. "We're shored up pretty heavily at two positions — point guard and small forward — perhaps too heavily," said Dallas General Manager Norm Sonju. "Having three small forwards does give us some flexibility if something comes along."

"We expect to get some calls." Ellis was a consensus All American and the Associated Press' Southeastern Conference player of the year last season, when he averaged 22.6 points per game and hit better than 60 percent of his shots.

Ellis, reached by phone in Tennessee, said he was "somewhat surprised" that he was drafted by Dallas. "I'm pleased. I think Dallas is definitely an up-and-coming franchise and one day will be a winner," Ellis said. "I definitely intend to be a part of that."

Mays fifth in Oslo

James Mays, former outstanding athlete at Hereford High School, finished fifth Tuesday in the 800-meter run at the Oslo (Norway) Track Meet.

Mays' time of 1:45.23 placed him less than two seconds behind winner and world record holder Sebastian Coe, who clocked a 1:43.80. The Briton was followed by Rod Druppers of The Netherlands, Britain's Peter Elliot, Chris McGeorge of Britain (1:45.14) and Mays.

Two other runners - Sammy Koskei of Kenya and Spain's Coleman Trabado - were also listed as participants in the race.

While at HHS in the mid-1970s, Mays competed in both track and basketball. He was the state's half-mile champion his senior year.

After graduating in 1977, Mays went on to become a two-time All-American track performer at Texas Tech University. This winter he is scheduled to coach the Lubbock High School girls basketball team while training for the 1984 Olympics.

Houston taps top talent in draft

NEW YORK (AP) — The Houston Rockets, in desperate need of a winners' transfusion, are getting a sizable dose of successful players.

Ralph Sampson of Virginia, the rare college player who is heralded as the beginning of an era even before he plays a professional game, and Rodney McCray of Louisville were chosen by the Rockets as the first and third picks of Tuesday's National Basketball Association draft.

The Rockets finished 14-68 last season, but in Sampson and McCray they took two players who are used to walking off the floor a winner. Virginia was 112-24 in Sampson's four years at center, while Louisville was 110-26, including a national title in 1980.

Houston had known since May 19, when it won a coin flip with Indiana, that it would be able to take Sampson with the No. 1 pick. Now, the next step for the Rockets is to sign the 7-foot-4 three-time collegiate Player of the Year.

Sampson, who turned down several lucrative offers in recent years so he could graduate, indicated that he is not interested in breaking the Rockets' bank.

"The money factor is not that big," he said. "If money would have meant something, I'd have been a pro a couple of years by now."

Nevertheless, Sampson can expect to become a multimillionaire in the next few years. "I just need a roof over my head," Sampson added. "I'm not going to buy $100,000 of this and $100,000 of that." McCray was not a big scorer for Louisville — he averaged 11.0 per game his senior year — and Houston passed up the chance to take several players who scored twice that much. But he is considered a "team" man who will rebound, play defense and pass the ball to Malone to Philadelphia.

Carew, Brett pace AL Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — It will be a veteran American League All-Star team headed by perennial picks Rod Carew at first base and George Brett at third base, against a new-look National League squad with three first-time starters in the 50th anniversary game July 6 at Chicago's Comiskey Park.

California's Carew was selected for the 14th consecutive year and Brett of Kansas City won his eighth straight election by the fans in the All-Star balloting sponsored by Gillette.

Joining them in the AL's infield are second baseman

Manny Trillo of the Cleveland Indians, who started this game for the National League last year when he played for the Philadelphia Phillies, and shortstop Robin Yount of the Milwaukee Brewers, who led all players in the balloting this year with 1,956,964 votes.

Named to the AL outfield were California's Fred Lynn and Reggie Jackson, along with Dave Winfield of the New York Yankees. Ted Simmons of Milwaukee won the starting catcher's job.

The NL starting lineup includes four players from the Montreal Expos — outfielders Andre Dawson and Tim Lincecum, first baseman Al Oliver and catcher Gary Carter. Oliver, shortstop Ozie Smith of St. Louis and second baseman Steve Sax of Los Angeles are the first-time starters. The other NL starters are outfielder Dale Murphy of Atlanta and third baseman Mike Schmidt of Philadelphia.

Managers Whitey Herzog of the National League and Harvey Kuenn of the American League will name the pitching staffs and remaining members of their 28-man squads later this week.

Carew, Brett and Yount were all top-heavy winners at their positions.

Cecil Cooper of Milwaukee trailed Carew at first base, with 680,967 votes to the Angel star's 1,901,334. California's Doug DeCinces finished behind Brett's 1,708,344 with 697,936. No player had a larger plurality than Yount, the American League's most valuable player last year. U.L. Washington of Kansas City was second at that position with 441,750.

Trillo wrote some All-Star history, becoming the first player selected to the starting team in consecutive years for different leagues. Last year he won the closest election in All-Star history, beating Sax by 1,625 votes to earn the starting second base job for the NL. This time, he won another close race, totaling 790,343 ballots to 685,138 for Jim Gantner of Milwaukee.

Lynn led all AL outfielders with 1,057,605 votes while Jackson received 1,052,715 and Winfield 1,020,547. Ben Oglivie of Milwaukee finished fourth with 856,632. It marked the third All-Star selection for Winfield, fifth for Lynn and 10th for Jackson.

Simmons, who was the starting National League catcher in 1979 when he played for St. Louis, received 946,264 votes to 824,741 for the runner-up, Lance Parrish of Detroit.

Carter led the NL vote with 1,457,843, outdistancing Darrell Porter of St. Louis, who had 925,367.

Sax, the 1982 NL Rookie of the Year and only first-year NL player selected for the All-Star game last year, was an easy winner at second base with 1,019,881, beating Joe Morgan of Philadelphia, who had 668,192.

Oliver won the closest NL race, overtaking San Diego's Steve Garvey, Keith Hernandez of the New York Mets and Pete Rose of Philadelphia in the final week of balloting. He finished with 879,078 to 760,100 for Garvey, who was second.

Smith beat out Cincinnati's Dave Concepcion, MVP of the NL's 4-1 victory last year, for the shortstop job with 1,389,063 to 512,902 for the Reds' star.

At third base, Schmidt was elected a starter for the fifth consecutive year and totaled 1,154,647 to 552,026 for runner-up Tim Wallach of Montreal.

Murphy led NL outfielders with 1,452,341 ahead of Dawson's 1,354,870. Raines captured the final starting job in the outfield with 884,595, finishing just ahead of St. Louis' Willie McGee, who had 870,469.

Less than six million votes were cast in an election that has attracted as many as 12 million in the past.

Third time in majors may prove charm for Castillo

By BEN WALKER AP Sports Writer

Of course, Marty Castillo thought about hitting a game-winning home run. And that's just what the Detroit rookie did.

At age 26, Castillo has spent six years in the Tigers organization. He was recalled from Evansville last week for his third try at sticking in the major leagues.

So he had the stage to himself Tuesday night in Milwaukee when he stepped to the plate with two outs in the top of the ninth inning and Tigers and Brewers tied 4-4.

Was he thinking home run? "It crosses your mind going up there," he said. "But when you get into the batter's box, you're just trying to get on base."

Castillo took two balls and then drilled a delivery from Jim Slaton over the left-field wall for his first major-league homer and a 5-4 Detroit victory.

"You can't guide the ball," Castillo said. "But this time the pitch was there."

In other American League games, Boston pounded Cleveland 11-3, Minnesota topped Toronto 5-2, Texas beat California 3-1, Oakland nipped Kansas City 4-3 and Seattle downed Chicago 6-2. Baltimore at New York was rained out.

Rick Manning's two-out single drove in two runs in the eighth inning off Detroit relief ace Aurelio Lopez to tie the game at 4-4.

Slaton, 7-3, got two outs before Castillo, batting last in the Tigers lineup, came to the plate.

"When you get the first two guys out and the ninth batter is coming up, you should get him out," said Milwaukee Manager Harvey Kuenn. "But the guy has good power."

Said Slaton: "I got behind him, and that makes everybody a good hitter. I was trying to get as many as many quick outs as I could to get us back in there, but I got behind and made a bad pitch."

Lopez, 5-2, got the victory and the Tigers have won the last 14 games in which he has pitched.

One tie game

NL East has rare day

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer

What is so rare as a day in June? How about a June day when the St. Louis Cardinals win a game, the Pittsburgh Pirates lose one and two other teams play a tie?

All those things happened in the National League Tuesday night — the Cardinals whipped the New York Mets 8-1 after their losing streak reached eight games when they dropped the opener of their doubleheader 10-1, the Pirates' nine-game winning came to an end when they were beaten by the Chicago Cubs 8-7 in 11 innings and the Montreal Expos and Philadelphia were halted by rain in the bottom of the 11th tied 5-5.

Elsewhere, the Los Angeles Dodgers trimmed the San Diego Padres 9-5, the Houston Astros edged the Atlanta Braves 4-3 and the Cincinnati Reds nipped the San Francisco Giants 5-4.

David Green and Andy Van

Slyke hammered home runs in the fourth inning and Dave LaPoint blanked the Mets on four hits until the ninth as the Cardinals snapped their longest losing streak since 1980. Tom Gorman held the Cards hitless until Green led off the fourth with his homer. Two outs later, Glenn Brummer singled and Van Slyke homered, finally giving the Busch Stadium crowd something to cheer about.

In the opener, New York rookie Darryl Strawberry homered twice and drove in five runs, while Ed Lynch scattered seven hits in eight

Spurs select Irishman

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs, with no strong centers still available, picked up Notre Dame guard John Paxson in the first round of the National Basketball Association collegiate draft.

The Spurs had planned to use the pick to strengthen their bench with a guard or a center, but particularly wanted a backup to relieve starting center Artis Gilmore.

Paxson, 6-foot-2 and 185 pounds, finished with 17.7 points per game for Notre Dame last year.

"I know you've got Johnny Moore starting at point guard, but I'm just happy to be with a contender for the world championship," Paxson said Tuesday. "I'll just be trying to fill a role."

High-scoring George Gervin is San Antonio's second starting guard.

Paxson was the 19th selection overall Tuesday and the Spurs' first.

"He's an all-around player," said San Antonio head coach Morris McHone. "He's a keeper, someone who is going to be in the league for awhile. His shooting ability is his number one asset."

The Spurs used all but the final few seconds of the five minutes allotted for turning in the card with their first pick.

"We knew we wanted Paxson, but we hadn't realized all the other people who were still available," McHone said. "We just wanted to make sure."

The Spurs used their second pick to select Auburn's Darrell Lockhart, a 6-foot-10 power forward.

Cleveland got San Antonio's third-round choice, the Spurs then picked 6-9½ forward Brant Weidner of William & Mary in the fourth round and Richmond's 6-10 forward Jeff Tehl in the fifth.

The Spurs took 6-4 guard Ricky Hooker of St. Mary's in the sixth round and his college teammate, 6-4 guard Gary Gaspard, in the 9th round.

Paxson, 6-foot-2 and 185 pounds, is the younger brother of Jim Paxson, who was high scorer for the Portland Trail Blazers this season.

Facts about Alzheimer's

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please write about Alzheimer's disease. Even though there has been some information about it in the press, no one has explained it in simple language so lay people can understand.

A relative has been diagnosed as having Alzheimer's and the entire family is being affected. Describe the symptoms and advise those of us who must live with and care for these sick people.—Meeker, Colo.

Duarte, Calif. Roberts says Alzheimer's disease affects as many as 2 million people in the United States over 65 years of age and possibly a million more who are under 65. Some say it is the fourth leading cause of death among the elderly. The costs for care of these sick people run into billions of dollars.

The first symptoms are seemingly normal instances of slight confusion, followed by the inability to remember names, telephone numbers, addresses, dates and the location of familiar places.

Eventually there is failure to recognize friends and family members. Anxiety results when chaotic personality and emotional changes take place. This may include abusive and violent behavior. Eventually loss of speech is followed by the inability to walk or take care of one's self. The last stages of Alzheimer's disease are sometimes compared to a return to infancy.

I also contacted Dr. Nancy Wexler, who works in the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md., for the Neurology Institute. Research is done there on diseases of the aging. Dr. Wexler pointed out that we used to think of Alzheimer's as senility—the inevitable result of growing old. This is a strange conclusion, considering we all know people in their 80s and 90s whose minds are not impaired. We now know Alzheimer's is an organic disease that can strike the young also and that when it occurs brain cells die. It could be the result of a virus or toxin. The important thing is we can now study it as a disease.

For those who want to know more about Alzheimer's (also where specialists can be found), write to the Office of Public Inquiries to the National Institute of Neurological Communicative Disorders and Stroke, National Institutes of Health, Building 31, Room 8-A-16, Bethesda, Md. 20205.

Some superb studies are now being followed at Albert Einstein School of Medicine in New York and Johns Hopkins Medical School in Baltimore.

For advice, comfort and guidance for families of this catastrophic illness, contact the Geriatric Study and Treatment Program at New York University, School of Medicine, 550 First Ave., New York, N.Y. 10016, or write to the Alzheimer's Disease Assn., 360 N. Michigan Ave., Suite 601, Chicago, Ill. 60601.

DEAR ANN: Last week I called my girl from an airport in Kansas. After I hung up and started to walk away, the phone rang. I thought I owed more money. The operator said, "Thought you'd like to know, after you ran off your girl said, 'Please ask me to marry you again.'" I called her back. She said yes. Telephone operators can be awfully nice!—Grateful Al

DEAR AL: What a heart-warmer. Thanks for sharing.

AAUW holds membership workshop here

Members of the American Association of University Women recently attended a Membership Workshop at Shirley media.

Jackie McAlpin, area coordinator from Canyon, presented the workshop and assisting her was Carole McGilvary, who is on the Membership Growth Team at state level. Materials were distributed to each member and executive officer.

New officers who will serve the AAUW for 1983-85 are Doris Bryant, president; Julia McNaney, program vice-president; Lois Teters, membership vice-president; Lucile Hughes, secretary; and Dorothy Szydoski, treasurer.

Also present were Bertha Dettmann, Rosemary Shook and Della Stagner.

The American Association of University Women is a national association of 190,000 women university graduates of all ages, occupations and academic backgrounds.

Its purpose is to continue the education of women by keeping them informed on education, the community, legislation, cultural interests, international relations and topics determined by the needs of the members.

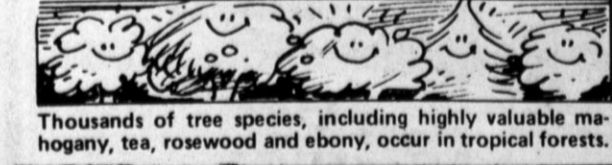

The nation's life insurance companies paid an estimated $14.9 billion in 1982 to beneficiaries of policyholders who died, according to the American Council of Life Insurance.

Campaign Kickoff

President Reagan recently met with United Negro College Fund representatives and business leaders to kick-off the UNCF's 1983 corporate campaign. J. Paul Sticht, left, chairman and chief executive officer of R.J. Reynolds Industries and current chairman of the UNCF corporate campaign, announced a $1 million contribution to the UNCF from his company. Dr. Norman C. Francis, right, and Christopher F. Edley, second from right, accepted a letter of endorsement of the campaign from the president. Francis is president of Xavier University and chairman of the UNCF's 42 member colleges. Edley is president and chief executive officer of the UNCF.

New jail doesn't meet standards

HOUSTON (AP) — A $76-million jail opened only last September does not meet fire safety regulations and Harris County officials estimate they will have to spend $670,000 to bring the facility up to those standards. Commission inspectors found last month that the 12-story building's equipment cannot remove smoke and fumes as quickly as rules require, Harris County officials said Tuesday. Members of the Texas Commission on Jail Standards also complained that smoke detectors do not react as quickly as they would like.

County Judge Jon Lindsay said the deficiencies exist because the panel changed its rules. "The commission is not playing fair, but what can you do about it?" he said. Under state law, the commission can order a jail shut down if its standards are not met.

The commission became "extra careful" following a fire last year in a county jail in Biloxi, Miss., which killed 27 inmates, said Ed Davis, an architect who worked on the building. "We're going from a safe system to a supersafe system. But I can't argue with that," Davis said.

But commission planner Jack Crump denied rule changes and said the problems came about because Harris County officials' expectations were too high.

"Sometimes things appear operational in theory, but in reality, don't work as they're supposed to," he said.

Crump added that the problems "are not looked upon as an immediate or impending danger."

State standards specify that smoke removal equipment in the jail should be capable of changing the air in a given area 15 times in one hour. The June 13 commission inspection report on the new jail says the equipment does not have the capacity to do this.

With smoke detection, state standards specify only that a system be installed, that it provide an effective warning system and that it not be accessible to inmates.

There is no official rule on how quickly a smoke detector must sound a signal, but commission and county officials said it should react within four minutes. County Engineer Dick Doss said the jail's smoke detectors were activating in seven to 10 minutes during testing.

The building was opened last September amid continued hearings in federal court on overcrowding. Nine of its 12 floors are complete and more than 2,200 inmates are regularly housed in it.

BACK PAIN

CINCINNATI (AP) — One of every three Americans is a victim of back pain, while 80 percent of Americans expect to have back pains at some point in their lives.

While narcotic drugs can offer instant relief, many physicians discourage their use because of the possibility of addiction. Sacroiliac braces have proved effective in offering help to victims of back pain, according to Futuro Health Supports.

Reinventing the extended family

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Twenty-year-old Teresa Hansen, who recently finished her first year of college, found a perfect roommate in Mary Mantz — who received her degree 65 years ago.

The 86-year-old Mrs. Mantz and Ms. Henson are two of about 400 people — from 18 to 94 years old — brought together by the non-profit Homesharing Project which began serving the Kansas City area a year ago.

The program is open to all ages, but the most common match involves a college student who pays little or no rent in return for helping an elderly person with household chores. About 100 matches are currently in operation.

"In some ways I think we're reinventing the extended family," said Elizabeth Ossorio, the project director. Ms. Ossorio, who works part-time, runs the program with two full-time employees on an annual $50,000 budget, which includes donations from various companies and office space provided by the Metropolitan Community Colleges.

People signing up for the program do so for more than financial reasons, Ms. Ossorio explained.

"Both from the homeseekers and the homeowners we hear a lot about being lonely and isolated and wanting companionship," she said. "Basically, our function is to introduce them to each other."

Occasionally the program has to turn down applicants who have a misconception about the service.

"We can't provide a nursing service," said Ms. Ossorio, explaining that the program is not designed for someone who needs full-time medical care.

"On the whole, a great deal of satisfaction is expressed about how this inter-generational sharing works," she said. "Some of the matches with 18-year-olds have been just fantastic."

"I think it's a terribly important transitional thing for some young people. Maybe it's their first time away from home. It's not nearly as scary if they're with a grandmotherly or grandfatherly type," she added.

Those seeking matches pay a $5 fee and fill out an application. Program volunteers visit the homes of people who have space available, and give the homeowners information on possible homesharers.

The homeowner's identity is not revealed to homeseekers unless the homeowner thinks a match is possible. If the two work out arrangements, a three-week trial period is held.

The homeowner and sharer work out arrangements for rent, usually about $100 a month, and household chores. In 40 percent of the matches, the homesharer pays no rent, but provides some service, such as housekeeping, yard work or driving.

Ms. Henson agreed that the program helps young people adjust to being away from home. She said her living arrangement with Mrs. Mantz, and her contact with Mrs. Mantz's nearby relatives, was "just like having a family away from home."

Ms. Henson came to Kansas City from Audubon, Iowa, to attend Penn Valley Community College. She signed up for Homesharing to save money and because her parents didn't want her to live alone. She has lived with Mrs. Mantz since August 1982.

Mrs. Mantz, a 1918

graduate of the University of Missouri, is a widow and former teacher. She wanted to remain in her home of 23 years. But her children encouraged her to join the program because they didn't feel it was safe for Mrs. Mantz, who has poor vision and heart trouble, to stay alone.

Ms. Henson pays no rent for living in the two-story, three-bedroom house in an upper middle class neighborhood. She cooks dinner for the older woman, eats dinner with her and sees that she takes her medication.

Mrs. Mantz's daughter, Mary Griffith, lives nearby and comes to the house whenever Mrs. Hansen is gone.

"All we ask of her is that she be here in the evening, or tell us she plans to be away," said Mrs. Griffith.

The social aspect of sharing dinner is important, Ms. Ossorio said, adding that an elderly person living alone often doesn't bother to eat a nutritious meal.

Some young people, after sharing a home with an elderly person, "have expressed the feeling they really didn't know how much knowledge and skills and wisdom went into old age," Ms. Ossorio said.

Others, she added, are uncomfortable.

"Some have said it's hard to be around a feeble person. It's a little overwhelming to some young people."

CAMBODIA

Where the fighting rages

Renewed fighting along the Thai-Cambodian border has spurred emergency U.S. arms deliveries to Thailand. Vietnamese troops, in a dry season offensive, overran bases of opposition Cambodian forces at Phnom Chat and Sihanoukville (named for former Cambodian chief of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk), crossing at points into Thailand. The United States, China, Thailand and its allies in the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) support the anti-Vietnamese coalition of Sihanouk, his former prime minister Son Sann and the Communist Khmer Rouge.

Task force calls for doubling quotas of visas

AUSTIN (AP) — The federal government should double its quota of visas for Mexicans and Canadians and give the Immigration and Naturalization Service more money, a state task force says.

But the Governor's Task Force on Immigration warned that if Congress adopts a proposed law to punish people who hire non-citizens, residents who look or talk like foreigners could be discriminated against.

The 46-page report, issued Tuesday, was compiled by a 28-member panel chosen last March by Gov. Mark White to come up with some recommendations he could forward to Congress while it works on proposed changes in immigration laws.

The task force endorsed a proposal to grant resident status to non-citizens who have lived in the United States since January 1982. The report said changes in the federal laws are expected to be approved by Congress sometime this summer.

"We recognize that a major part of the problem is that Congress has historically underfunded the immigration service," said Charles Foster, a Houston lawyer who headed the task force.

Foster gave no specific recommendation on how much more money INS needs. "I would say we debated between doubling and tripling" current amounts, he said. "We decided it was not appropriate to talk in terms of specific amounts."

He said improvements are needed to "at least try to substantially improve a system that is completely out of control."

The task force report said official estimates of the number of illegal aliens working in the United States are as high as 12 million.

"Policies on citizenship and the integrity of national borders are properly the responsibility of the federal government," the report said. "Problems such as understaffing and underfunding are widely recognized and are cited as the reasons the agency is not able to adequately enforce immigration law."

The task force endorsed a proposal in the Senate version of the bill to double the quota, from 20,000 to 40,000 annually, of visas granted to people immigrating from Canada and Mexico, with any unused visas of one country being allocated to the other country.

The report neither endorsed nor opposed proposals to make it a federal crime to hire an illegal alien, but

Foster said there was a "lack of enthusiasm" for that suggestion among panelists.

The report quoted witnesses at its hearings around the state as saying sanctions against those who hire aliens could leave employers in fear of giving jobs to "individuals who look or sound foreign."

As a result, the task force said, employer sanctions "may not be enforceable. The task force is also deeply concerned that employer sanctions may result, if not carefully monitored, in unintentional discrimination against American citizens and permanent resident aliens that appear 'foreign.'"

However, the panel, apparently feeling that increased sanctions are inevitable, offered eight recommendations for such sanctions, including an assumption that the employer is innocent if he hires workers referred by a union, an employment agency or the state or federal government.

The task force disagreed with proposals in the federal bill to "de-emphasize family reunification," recommending it retain its present policy of allowing brothers and sisters of adult U.S. citizens to cross the border legally. The bill in Congress would restrict admittance to unmarried brothers and sisters.

Air force officers console families

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — An Air Force cargo plane carrying six people turned into a "burning mass of metal" after crashing on a training flight, and officers were sent to console spouses of those on board, authorities said.

However, the Air Force refused to say how many of the six aboard the four-engine C-130 had been killed in Tuesday's accident.

"They're not going to notify anybody until they are 100 percent sure," said Lt. Pam Fenner, a public relations officer at Dyess Air Force Base in Abilene, Texas, where five of the six people were based.

Rescue teams from Nellis Air Force Base were to return this morning to the crash site in a desolate area of the base some 100 miles northwest of Las Vegas, Ms. Fenner said. They abandoned the site Tuesday as darkness approached.

The propeller-driven C-130, which was on a training mission, apparently hit a mountain and burned, she said.

"You've got an incredibly large burning mass of metal there," Ms. Fenner said. "It's very hard to be sure who you've got there."

Asked if those aboard the plane were dead, she said, "I cannot say that, they did not specifically tell me that."

Ms. Fenner said teams of Air Force officers from the base had been sent to comfort spouses of the crash victims and would stay with them as long as necessary.

Five crew members were aboard the C-130, along with one passenger, an Air Force member stationed at Nellis, she said.

The weather was clear and "not a factor" in the 12:10 p.m. crash, Ms. Fenner said.

The crewmen, assigned to the 463rd Tactical Airlift Wing out of Dyess, were on a two-week Red Flag training mission out of Nellis.

A helicopter rescue team from Nellis reached the crash site shortly after the plane went down on the test range, which adjoins the Nevada Test Site, the nation's nuclear testing grounds.

Ms. Fenner said the crash occurred in a "very, very rugged" area. Inside Nellis, the elevation ranges from near sea level at dry lake beds to 10,000-foot mountain peaks.

Col. Virgil Batten, vice commander of the 463rd wing, said the plane had been at Nellis for about 10 days while participating in the Red Flag exercise.

"Red Flag is an exercise where our crews are practicing ... under combat conditions," said Batten. "It's a combat environment."

It was the second crash in the Nevada desert involving a C-130 from Dyess Air Force Base in two years.

In September 1981, a C-130 on a training mission crashed while attempting to land at a darkened airstrip at Indian Springs Air Force Base about 45 miles north of Las Vegas.

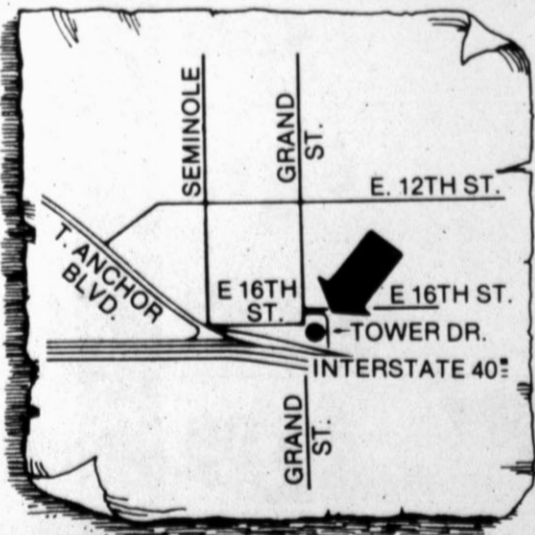

Seven Army Rangers were killed when the plane landed short of the runway and burst into flames. Another nine crew members were injured.

RAGWEED

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Ambrosia artemisiifolia, more commonly known as ragweed, is a major cause of hay fever.

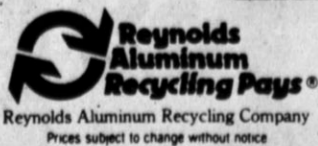

The annual plant, which thrives throughout the United States, has erect stems that grow from 1 to 6 feet tall. The irrigating pollen and seed heads are located at the branch tips and leaf bases.

Ragweed, which grows from July to October, can be controlled most effectively when sprayed early in the season when the weed is small, according to the maker of 33 Plus lawn weed killer.

HELP WANTED!

The Lord now chose 70 other disciples and sent them on ahead in pairs to all the towns and villages He planned to visit later.

These were His instructions to them: "Plead with the Lord of harvest to send out more laborers to help you, for the harvest is so plentiful and the workers so few. Go now, and remember that I am sending you out as lambs among wolves. Don't take any money with you, or a beggar's bag, or even an extra pair of shoes. And don't waste time along the way. "Whenever you enter a home, give it your blessing. And if it is worthy of the blessing, the blessing will stand; if not, the blessing will return to you.

"When you enter a village, don't shift around from home to home, but stay in one place, eating and drinking without question whatever is set before you. And don't hesitate to accept hospitality, for the workman is worthy of his wages!

"If a town welcomes you, follow these two rules: (1) Eat whatever is set before you. (2) Heal the sick; and as you heal them, say, 'The Kingdom of God is very near you now.'

"But if a town refuses you, go out into its streets and say, 'We wipe the dust of your town from our feet as a public announcement of your doom. Never forget how close you were to the Kingdom of God! Even wicked Sodom will be better off than such a city on the Judgment Day.'"
Luke 19:1-12

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Wednesday, June 29, the 180th day of 1983. There are 185 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On June 29, 1966, the United States bombed North Vietnam's capital of Hanoi and the port of Haiphong for the first time during the Vietnam War.

On this date:
In 1880, France took control of the South Pacific island of Tahiti.

In 1946, the British arrested more than 2,700 Jews in Palestine in an attempt to stamp out alleged terrorism.

In 1967, Israel defied international protests and united the city of Jerusalem for the first time in two decades.

In 1973, former White

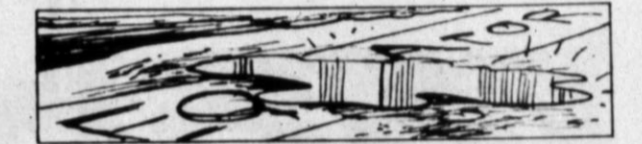

House counsel John Dean completed his testimony before the Senate Watergate Committee, unshaken from his central charge that President Richard Nixon had taken part in a cover-up.

Five years ago the United States warned the Soviet Union to consider the broad implications of its libel charges against two American newsmen.

One year ago: Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin offered to let Palestinian guerrillas leave Beirut with their personal weapons.

Today's birthdays: Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands is 72. Black activist Stokely Carmichael is 42.

Thought for today: "Knowledge comes, but wisdom lingers." — Alfred Lord Tennyson, English poet (1808-1892).

Africa's largest lake, Lake Victoria, is on the equator.

Phillips, Meiwes attend workshop

Robbie Phillips and Dan Meiwes, local FFA's, recently attended an FFA Electrical Workshop held at the Episcopal Church Camp. Phillips is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Phillips and Meiwes is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Meiwes.

Phillips and Meiwes received training in methods and techniques of wiring including housewiring with the use of a single pole switch and a 3-way switch.

They also were trained in the operation and maintenance of electric motors and were taught how to change direction of electric motors and other factors in the operation of electric motors.

A total of 75 Panhandle FFA's attended the workshop sponsored by Southwestern Public Service.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The acreage of three major processing vegetable crops may be down about 3 percent from last year.

Surveys of producers show that acreage declines may be in the offing for snap beans, tomatoes, and sweet corn.

Vegetable short course set in July

COLLEGE STATION — Creating a good growing environment for greenhouse vegetables will be the focus of the 20th Annual Texas Greenhouse Vegetable Short Course and Conference.

The event is slated for July 16-18 at the Aggeland Hotel here, announces Dr. John Larsen, plant nutrition specialist in greenhouse vegetable production with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

First day discussions beginning at 10 a.m. deal with greenhouse structures, environment and designs; cooling systems; soilless culture; rice hull bag culture; tomato and cucumber culture; and insect control.

The second day of the conference will feature talks on lettuce transplanting and production, tomato production and disease control, and tomato research. In addition, a panel of greenhouse growers will discuss various heating media, and speakers will discuss income tax revisions and vegetable production under shade fabric.

A business meeting of the Texas Greenhouse Growers Council and a special "question-and-answer session" will conclude the second day's program, says Larsen.

Discussions the final day will deal with greenhouse strawberry production, growing ornamentals and bedding plants, and the future of direct marketing in Texas.

Numerous greenhouse growers in Texas as well as in Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Oklahoma will be on the program along with Texas Agricultural Extension Service and Texas Department of Agriculture officials.

The annual short course and conference will also feature a trade show and tours of vegetable greenhouses at Texas A&M University, notes Larsen.

Bergland heads REC

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former secretary of agriculture has been selected as the new chief executive officer of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association.

Bob Bergland, 54, will succeed Robert D. Partridge, who plans to retire early next year. Partridge has headed the association — which represents about 1,000 rural electric systems — since 1968. The association is regarded as one of the strongest and most effective rural lobbies in Washington on a wide range of issues relating to rural development.

Bergland, a former Minnesota congressman and farmer, was agriculture secretary during the Carter administration.

The choice of Bergland was announced by Guy C. Lewis Jr. of Bowling Green, Va., president of the association, after a meeting here of the group's board of directors.

Officials said Bergland will assume his new duties next March upon the retirement of Partridge. He will be the third head of NRECA, as the organization calls itself.

Feds drop threat to halt cattle shipments

AUSTIN (AP) — Federal officials, satisfied with the Texas Legislature's quick action, have dropped their threat to hold up interstate shipment of the state's livestock.

State lawmakers, meeting in special session last week, approved a brucellosis program that put the state in line with federal requirements.

"A legal basis now exists for Texas regulations to meet minimum national standards for controlling this disease," said John Ford, deputy assistant secretary of agriculture for marketing and inspection services.

Ford said he had been assured by Gov. Mark White and the Texas Animal Health Commission "that this bill will give Texas the authority it needs to meet requirements of the national brucellosis eradication program."

Abortion debate flares across Canada

TORONTO (AP) — A long-smoldering debate on abortion has flared up in cities across Canada, inspiring activists on both sides to carry picket signs, press court challenges and risk jail terms to force changes in the law.

Since 1969, the Canadian criminal code has permitted abortion, but only if a committee of doctors at an accredited hospital certifies that the woman's life or health is in danger.

The law is under attack on one side from activists who say abortion on demand is a woman's right, and on the other from those who say it is murder.

Dr. Henry Morgentaler, who spent 10 months in jail in 1975 despite three acquittals on charges of performing illegal abortions in Montreal, has escalated the battle by opening abortion clinics in Winnipeg and Toronto.

"I believe what we are doing is perfectly legal," Morgentaler told a pro-abortion rally in Toronto. "No longer will women have to beg to committees of strangers to decide whether their pregnancies should be maintained or terminated."

Police have raided the Winnipeg clinic twice since its opening in May. Morgentaler and six members of his staff were charged with conspiracy to perform an illegal abortion, which has a maximum penalty of life in prison.

Morgentaler says he is confident a jury in any major Canadian city will ignore the letter of the law and return innocent verdicts in an abortion case.

His first acquittal in Montreal was overturned by an appeals court, which imposed an 18-month sentence. He served 10 months before the Supreme Court of Canada reinstated the acquittal.

After two more innocent verdicts and a change of government in Quebec, provincial officials dropped all efforts to prosecute abortion cases.

The practical result is that abortion is freely available in Quebec, even in government-run clinics, though the Canadian criminal code is supposed to apply in all provinces.

"It shows how unfair the law is," says Judy Rebick, a spokeswoman for the Ontario Coalition for Abortion Clinics. "We've been trying to change it through legal channels for 10 years now. We think the majority in this country agrees with us."

The government says 65,127 abortions were performed in Canada in 1981. Another 2,651 Canadian women that year obtained abortions in the United States, where restrictions on abortion have been struck down by the Supreme Court.

Right-to-life activists say few, if any, of the 65,000 abortions performed in a year could be justified on medical grounds to protect the mother. They contend that most of the hospital screening committees in fact do little screening, making abortion available on demand.

The champion of the anti-abortion forces is Joe Borowski, who resigned as Manitoba highways minister in 1971 to protest use of tax money to pay for abortions. The government-run health insurance program, which pays nearly all bills for doctors, hospitals and drugs in Canada, covers abortion like any other medical expense.

He also went on a hunger strike against abortion and has led picketers in front of Morgentaler's Winnipeg clinic.

Along with about a dozen other protesters, Borowski was arrested recently at a sit-in at the Manitoba College of Physicians and Surgeons, which his group says should suspend the licenses of any doctors working at Morgentaler's clinic.

Borowski is also pressing a constitutional challenge to the abortion laws which won nationwide headlines when it went to trial in May in Regina, Saskatchewan, and which may be the vehicle for putting the abortion debate finally to rest.

The judge's ruling is expected this fall, but will almost certainly be appealed by the losing side.

Sensational developments at the trial included testimony from a woman who said God has punished her for having an abortion and from a French geneticist who said 8-week-old embryos "leap for joy" in their mothers' wombs.

The government attorneys assigned to defend the existing law were criticized in pro-abortion circles for not matching the eye-catching case put on by Borowski and his lawyer, but they said the issue eventually would be decided as a question of law. Borowski contends that Canada's new Charter of Rights and Freedoms, proclaimed just last year, protects fetuses from abortion when it says, "Everyone has the right to life, liberty and security of the person."

His opponents, though, contend that the very same language in the charter gives any woman the right to choose for herself whether to have an abortion.

Six-year quest ends in oil riches

GRAHAM, Texas (AP) — A.L. "Red Dog" Creswell's six-year quest for "one good oil well" was a joke to most people in Graham.

As he worked on a shoestring budget and drove a battered Dodge, most people considered his dream laughable.

Now, when he rides down the street in his son's chauffeur-driven Rolls Royce, they don't laugh.

Creswell has drilled fifteen oil wells in a one- or two-square-mile area that straddles Texas 16 on the northeastern outskirts of Graham. And the oil wells are better than "good."

Darrell Creswell, Red Dog's son and partner, says their Cresoper Oil Co. is selling 1,000 barrels a day from the 15 wells on the leases they bought for $10 an acre because nobody wanted them.

And that only includes 250 barrels a day from a well they have tested at 2,100 barrels a day.

"It's hard to believe even now that all those wells are out there," the elder Creswell said. "It's just becoming a reality now."

Riches have not spoiled Creswell, though. Dressed in old oil-stained blue jeans and cowboy hat, Creswell stopped by his office just long enough to sign some papers before heading back out to the oil wells.

"We've got to frac a well in about 30 minutes," Creswell said.

The younger Creswell said his dad deserves all the credit for the discovery.

"I raise the money and my dad had all the land and the dreams. He would have made it with or without me. He is the man I admire most in the entire world and he's the only honest man I know," Darrell Creswell said.

"He likes to get out there and get dirty. Me, I don't ever get dirty," the younger Creswell said.

When to fertilize
DEAR POLLY — When is the best time to fertilize my lawn? I've always done it in the spring, but a neighbor says it should be done in fall instead. — G.H.
DEAR G.H. — For best results, fertilize at both times. Fertilization is more important during late summer and fall than in spring. In spring, the grass is using nutrients stored through the winter. A light application of a balanced lawn fertilizer will give it the extra boost needed for a lush, green growth.
This is also the time to use a fertilizer containing a weed killer, if you want to inhibit weed growth. (However, please note: If you plan to use grass clippings in a compost pile or as mulch in gardens, do not ever use a combination fertilizer and weed killer.) By late August or September, all the stored nutrients have been pretty well used up. A heavier application of fertilizer at that time will promote good root growth so the grass will withstand the ravages of winter. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — This Pointer is for home sewers. When looking for a pattern in the fabric shop catalog counter, I always carry a pencil with an eraser and use the eraser to turn the pages. This eliminates the distasteful habit of licking my finger to turn to the next page (which I have seen many people do), and keeps you from transmitting all the germs from your mouth to each page. It also enables you to look through the catalog at a much faster pace. A rubber finger tip can serve the same purpose. — ALICE
DEAR ALICE — Or the germs from the page to your mouth! Many thanks. — POLLY
DEAR POLLY — Before grating cheese on a four-sided grater, rub the grater with cooking oil or spray with a non-stick spray. The cheese will wash off quickly and easily, even if you let the grater sit for a while before washing it. — MRS. O.R.

HEALTH
Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Four months ago my doctor surgically removed my left thyroid gland because I had a lump in it. The lump was benign, for which I am thankful.
Since then I have been gaining weight (10 pounds) and I'm not eating any more than I was before. I've never had a weight problem.
I'm 54, female and never weighed more than 115. Most of my life I weighed just a little over 100. Now I weigh 125. My doctor won't put me on thyroid and I feel I need to replace what was
