

Reaction mixed on dump, lawsuits filed

By MICHELLE LOCKE
Associated Press Writer

Texas Panhandle residents filed a legal challenge Thursday to a proposed federal nuclear waste dump and promised a full-fledged battle over a project they claim would undercut the region's thriving agricultural economy.

But some chamber of commerce officials contend opponents are overlooking the potential boon to area business.

Three groups and several individuals filed a petition for review, in the Washington, D.C. Circuit Court of Appeals, seeking to stop acquisition of land for the proposed site — one of three in the nation.

Feelings on the issue run high. "We're talking about storing something that's going to last for 200 unborn generations," said Tonya Kleuskens, who heads a group called POWER, People Opposed to Wasted Energy Repository.

Ms. Kleuskens said she was not surprised by the administration's announcement Wednesday that Deaf Smith County in northwest Texas is one of three sites being considered for the nation's first high-level nuclear waste dump.

However, Larry Milner, president of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce, said a study conducted by his group found the proposed site could inject from $600 million to $900 million into the area's economy.

Site opponents met Wednesday night in the small town of Vega, in Oldham County, to consider moving ahead with a lawsuit blocking acquisition of land for the proposed site, said Don Hancock, an advisor to several of the Panhandle anti-dump groups.

"The answer was yes and the lawsuit was filed Thursday runs a large hybrid seed business and owns 640 acres within the proposed site boundaries.

He said the Panhandle should not be considered for the dump site because of the dependence on agriculture and because of its proximity to the Ogallala aquifer which serves eight states.

"No drinking water, no life," said Richardson, who lives to the southwest of Vega. "That's the worst that can happen, but it can happen."

However, Milner said problems with the proposed site stem from misconceptions, beginning with using the term "dump" to describe the site, technically known as a repository.

"No one wants a dump. Everyone wants a repository," Milner said. "The difference between a dump and a repository is a dump is like Love Canal. A repository is a highly regulated federal research-oriented type of project."

Richardson conceded the dump will bring money into the area, but called that a short-term benefit. In the long run the site will force food processors out of the area, he said.

He said the proposed site has stirred up hostile feelings in the Panhandle.

"There's some animosity towards those people (officials in support of the site) because it sounds like they want to ride to prosperity on our backs," he said.

In Hereford, the city commission has attempted to step out of the line of fire by taking a neutral stand on the proposed site.

"We're monitoring the research and the activities that they're doing right now before we make a call as to whether it's good, bad or indifferent," said commissioner Joe Reinauer.

The commission has discussed the matter during the past year and has talked to the Department of Energy about how the proposed site could affect city services, such as streets.

For Gentry case

Jury in deliberation today

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Jurors resumed deliberations today in the case against two men charged with conspiring to defraud Hi-Plains Savings and Loan Association of Hereford.

Hereford Realtor James Gentry and Dallas financier W.W. "Doc" Taylor are accused of misapplying more than $3.8 million of the thrift's funds between September 1982 and February 1983.

The federal jury began deliberations Thursday after 2½ hours of closing arguments. If convicted on all charges, each man would face a maximum penalty of 30 years in the penitentiary and a fine of $35,000.

Before the jurors received written instructions from U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson, prosecutors and defense attorneys argued over the facts of the case.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Bill Alexander characterized the defendants as "vultures" who only wanted to "pick the flesh off the skeleton" of the financially troubled S&L.

But Clifford Brown, Taylor's chief defense attorney, countered by describing the defendants as "fine men" who had not violated any federal laws.

Alexander told jurors they could decide the case on the basis of the numerous documents of transactions and correspondence the government introduced, saying these documents constitute the "blueprint for a white collar crime."

Assistant U.S. Attorney Clint

Averitte, who aided Alexander, said in his final plea to the jury that if federal regulators had not intervened in the affairs of Hi-Plains, the S&L would have transferred as much as $10.8 million out of its accounts.

Taylor signed a promissory note for a $10.8 million line of credit with the S&L, according to testimony.

Regulators in February 1983 issued an order forbidding the S&L from transferring any more money to Taylor's business.

Lubbock attorney Travis Shelton, representing Gentry, said his client has an excellent reputation in Deaf Smith County, which was destroyed "in a few minutes" by the grand jury's indictment.

Gentry and Taylor contracted with Hi-Plains in the fall of 1982, promising to obtain high-rate loans for the financially troubled S&L, according to testimony.

Gentry was elected to the S&L's board of directors on Dec. 13, 1982, and became its chief executive officer one month later, according to court papers.

In December 1982, Taylor opened a $6.6 million line of credit with the association, purportedly for purchasing loans that would be assigned to the association, witnesses testified last week.

But, when the S&L transferred $3.8 million to Taylor's business at Gentry's direction in late 1982 and early 1983, the association had no collateral whatsoever for the transfers, according to testimony.

State budget shortfall could hit $2 billion

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas House members, convening in a rare off-year meeting, today were told that the state government's budget shortfall could hit $2 billion by next year.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock told lawmakers his February estimate that state revenues will fall $1.34 billion short of the amount budgeted still stands — "but only as a minimum."

"Don't be surprised if the budget shortfall for this biennium which ends Aug. 31, 1987, rises to $2 billion," Bullock said.

The shortfall was created largely by the worldwide plunge in oil prices and a corresponding drop in oil tax revenues. Bullock said he won't officially revise his $1.3 billion forecast until oil prices stabilize. "There's less money for Texas," Bullock said. "The price of oil has not stabilized."

House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said he wanted his 149 colleagues to hear first-hand where the state is in coping with the budget crisis.

"The main thing we want to do is get an overall analysis of where we are at this time, so we can start making preparations ahead of time for the next session," Lewis said.

Lewis said the Legislature that meets in January may have to deal with the shortfall and other spending constraints.

"It would be unwise for us to go in to January without any preparation as long as we're having budget problems," he said.

The speaker also said he hoped lawmakers would get an update on House Bill 72, the sweeping 1984 public school reform law which has generated considerable controversy since taking effect.

On the eve of the House meeting, Gov. Mark White said he sees no need to expand the state's sales tax base.

"I don't think it's necessary at this time," White told his weekly news conference, voicing the expectation that budget cuts be requested from state agencies will prove effective.

"I'm very optimistic that we will

Cost of site characterization near $1 billion

A nine-square-mile area in Deaf Smith County was approved Wednesday as one of three places in the nation where a site characterization will be conducted in the search for the nation's first nuclear waste repository.

All signs had pointed to the Deaf Smith site as being one of the candidates. Local reaction ranged from anger and fear the project could destroy a rich agricultural area, to an optimistic outlook that it could provide an economic boost to the community.

Many citizens are wondering what a site characterization is.

According to a Department of Energy (DOE) release, it includes "construction of exploratory shafts to a depth of a proposed repository—about 1,000 to 4,000 feet below the ground—so that scientific studies, evaluations and comparisons can be made in selecting a site which meets the criteria for construction of a repository."

The explanation continues: Site characterization will take about five years and will involve extensive interactions with Federal agencies and with states, Indian tribes and the public. At each site, surface facilities and access roads will be constructed; two exploratory shafts and underground testing facilities will be constructed; 200 to 500 people will be employed at each candidate site; and the estimated costs for site characterization is up to $1 billion per site.

These activities will be financed from the Nuclear Waste Fund into which nuclear utilities now pay 1 mill (one-tenth of a cent) per kilowatt hour for nuclear-generating commercial electricity and into which the Federal government's producers of defense high-level waste will pay an equivalent amount for disposal, stated the DOE release.

The Deaf Smith site is the only one on private land. The Yucca Mountain site is located in Nevada's Nye County and straddles the southern end of the west boundary of the Nevada Test Site and is on the eastern edge of the Mojave Desert. It is on land owned by the Federal government (DOE, the Bureau of Land Management, and the U.S. Air Force). The nearest town is

14,000 tax refunds unsigned

AUSTIN (AP) — About 14,000 taxpayers, mostly in Kansas, have received income tax refund checks that are not signed by the Internal Revenue Service's regional director.

The unsigned checks resulted from a malfunctioning U.S. Treasury department machine in Austin, officials said Thursday.

The machine stamps IRS Regional Director Gordon P. Hickam's signature on the refund checks at a rate of about 15,000 every 45 minutes.

The machine was out of whack for about 45 minutes late last week, according to Eugene Sides of Austin, deputy regional manager for the U.S. Department of Treasury's financial management service.

"This type of thing would normally be caught. It could have been caught through quality control procedures, but they got out," he said.

The unsigned checks, mailed last Friday, will be honored by banks, according to Sides.

Bob Branson, an IRS spokesman here, said Hickam confirmed that about 14,000 checks went out without signatures.

Treasury Department spokesman Jim LaForest in Washington said the agency, which writes 800 million checks a year, occasionally had problems with the check-signing machines.

"This has happened from time-to-time. But the checks are perfectly good. Someone who received one should just take it to the bank and the bank will process it," he said.

The Treasury Department has notified the Federal Reserve Bank of the serial numbers and date (May 23) of the unsigned checks, according to LaForest.

"It was a print malfunction. Sometimes the ink will run out and fade. We don't really know why it happens," he said. "Fourteen thousand is a fair amount. It's happened before for 100 at a time. Everybody knows what to do about it."

Sides said he did not know the specific problem that caused the machine to malfunction.

Baptist power struggle goes to TV

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia Baptists have turned to television to help pick the next president of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Concerned Southern Baptists will sponsor an hour-long sermon June 9 on Atlanta station WVEU to push the candidacy of the Rev. Winfred Moore, of Amarillo, Texas, who is running against the Rev. Adrian Rogers of Memphis, Tenn.

The election will mark the eighth year of a struggle within the denomination between fundamentalists, who advocate only the literal interpretation of the Bible, and moderates, who tolerate diverse interpretations.

Moore is known in the denomination as a moderate, Rogers as a fundamentalist.

Because local congregations provide a large chunk of the vote at the annual assembly, candidates and their supporters have been spending a great deal of time touring Georgia and rallying local congregations.

"They are using television as a tool to help."

The Moore sermon is to be taped the day before the broadcast at the First Baptist Church of Chamblee, according to pastor David Sapp.

"There's not going to be a political agenda. It's just a worship service," Sapp said. The pastor said that his church, which does not regularly televise its services, would be picking up production costs and perhaps some of the broadcast cost.

Probe to begin on Deaver

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal court chose a former U.S. attorney to investigate lobbyist Michael K. Deaver, and told him to pursue all possible leads in determining whether the ex-presidential aide should be prosecuted.

Whitney North Seymour Jr., once the top federal prosecutor for New York City, was named by the court Thursday and quickly pledged to "let the chips fall where they may" in the conflict-of-interest probe.

The three-judge panel not only listed specific subjects for investigation, but said Seymour should look for "any related matters and other allegations or evidence" developed during the inquiry.

The panel, established under the 1978 Ethics in Government Act, said the probe should cover:

—Deaver's lobbying for the Canadian government in its successful effort for a jmglnq on.

—His lobbying to retain a tax break for businesses locating in Puerto Rico, also successful so far. The court said Deaver represented the Commonwealth government, but his office said his client was a corporation.

Federal law restricts, and in some cases bans, former federal officials from lobbying the government on issues with which they were "personally and substantially" involved.

Separate provisions of the law restrict a former government official's contact with his or her former agency, and with issues once under the official's domain. Those restrictions last one or two years, depending on the circumstances.

Soviets accused of blackmail

LONDON (AP) — Yelena Bonner today accused the Soviet Union of trying to blackmail the West into keeping silent over the condition of her husband, exiled Soviet dissident Andrei D. Sakharov.

Mrs. Bonner, 62, who has been abroad nearly six months for medical treatment, met with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher for a half-hour and then spoke to reporters while arm-in-arm with the British prime minister.

She was asked her reaction to British news reports from Moscow quoting Viktor Louis, a Soviet journalist who often relays information from the Kremlin, as saying that Mrs. Bonner's remarks while in the West were jeopardizing Sakharov's chances of having his exile ended.

The physicist, winner of the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize, was banished to internal exile in the closed city of Gorky, 250 miles east of Moscow, in January 1980 after he denounced the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan.

Mrs. Bonner was exiled at Gorky in 1984 after being convicted of anti-Soviet slander.

Louis was quoted as saying the Soviets wished to give more freedom to Sakharov, a physicist who won the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize, but that Mrs. Bonner was damaging Soviet interests.

"The statements seem to me to be simply blackmail," Mrs. Bonner said today. "It seems to me they wanted to scare Madam Prime Minister (Mrs. Thatcher) by this statement and other Western political leaders into not meeting me."

Growing old doesn't mean blindness

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The coordinator of New Mexico's Eye Care Project says growing old doesn't have to mean going blind. "A certain number of elderly accept losing vision as part of growing old, and that's not necessarily the case," said Dr. Randolph Black, an Albuquerque ophthalmologist.

He said that in the first three months the project has discovered a dozen cases of cataracts, four or five cases of glaucoma, two cases of skin cancer around the eye and two previously undiagnosed cases of diabetes that were causing vision problems.

The project's tollfree helpline, 1-800-222-EYES, went into operation Jan. 27. Since then, it has referred more than 350 elderly New Mexicans to ophthalmologists, Black said.

The project, sponsored by the New Mexico Society of Ophthalmology and the Foundation of the American Academy of Ophthalmology, is designed to provide free eye care to needy U.S. citizens and legal residents age 65 or older who aren't under an ophthalmologist's care.

The 10-state Western region that includes New Mexico was the first in the nation to get a helpline under the National Eye Care Project. Tollfree eye care hotlines will open region by region until all are in operation by July 21.

Wine market reported

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — There are stock exchanges, commodity exchanges, precious metals exchanges, a cocoa exchange, among many. Now, there is a wine exchange, reports a management information systems journal.

The wine exchange, headquartered here, links more than 125 wind-and-brandy producing, selling, buying and shipping companies in 56 countries handling thousands of transactions a day, according to MIS Week.

A computerized system provides members with access to a central data bank, where they can determine immediately what wines are available on the international market and then sell or track orders as they are shipped.

Sellers list their wines in the database, which records thousands of wines by vintage, location, price, packaging and terms of sales.

When a sale is completed, wines are automatically deducted from inventory, confirmed purchase orders printed at each dealer's terminal and shipping instructions listed. The network also provides sellers, buyers and shippers up-to-the-minute information on their transaction, a procedure that formerly took months of paperwork.

And how are the pioneers in this tradition-bound industry — who want to taste the wine and discuss it as part of the negotiations — taking this innovation?

There was resistance at first but it has faded into a feeling that automation is great, the publication says, adding that some brokers continue to deal with others on a one-to-one basis and use the exchange to improve the procedures of purchasing and shipping the product.

see the savings that we are achieving today expand into a position where we'll make certain we don't need any new taxes at all next (legislative) session," White said.

Earlier this week, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby suggested that the sales tax base could be broadened — and more state revenue raised — by including under the 4½ percent levy some items now exempt. Hobby said exemptions should be retained for food and medicine.

But White said his executive order urging 13 percent spending cuts by the approximately 200 state agencies

"All the bugs in the project are being worked out here," Black said. For example, patients in Grants, which does not have an ophthalmologist, were being referred to Farmington. However, Grants residents traditionally have sought care in Albuquerque or Gallup because of the distance and poor roads between Grants and Farmington. "So now they're being rerouted to Albuquerque or Gallup. It's mainly been things like that," Black said.

The premise of the project is that early detection and treatment are keys.

Black said the incidence of certain eye diseases, such as glaucoma, increases with age.

Glaucoma, the leading cause of blindness in the United States, is a progressive disease in which pressure builds up in the eye due to blocked fluid and destroys the optic nerve.

Blindness is the third-leading reason for disability in the elderly. National Society for the Prevention of Blindness statistics show about 25,000 people, half of them elderly, go blind each year in this country.

"By far the majority of those cases could be prevented by early detection," Black said. "That's why we're targeted toward the elderly, because that is the population at risk."

Older people also face fixed incomes and increasing health care costs, and the project wants to "make sure no one stays away (from eye care) for economic reasons," he said.

Black said the helpline had received 516 calls by May 1, and 354 of those callers met the criteria. The program refers eligible callers to the closest ophthalmologist and sends them information on eye diseases in the elderly and on early detection.

No statistics are available on the types of treatment given or on how many of the patients might not have sought medical care if the program had not been available, he said.

Thirty-seven ophthalmologists all over the state have volunteered to work with patients in the project and more are expected to sign up in the future, Black said.

Most of the patients call in from outside the Albuquerque area and most have come from the southern part of the state — such communities as Las Cruces, Carlsbad and Hobbs, he said.

"I think the best part of the project is that it stimulates public awareness of eye disease, not just in the elderly, but everyone in general," Black said. "Our ability to find a certain number of people who would be staying away from medical care on the basis of cost and availability also is real nice."

Computer design big market

By The Associated Press

From clothing designers to architectural draftsmen, CAD-CAM is lending a helping hand to a broad spectrum of American industry these days.

CAD-CAM is an acronym for computer-aided design and manufacturing systems. The CAD-CAM industry, which posted $3.56 billion in sales last year, is expected to hit a total of $4.35 billion in 1986, according to Daratech, Inc., a Massachusetts-based market research firm.

Computer-aided design had its beginnings in the automotive and aerospace industries more than 20 years ago but the early systems used expensive mainframe computers and because of their cost were available only to large companies.

Recent advances in technology, including the development of the minicomputer and the personal computer, have now extended CAD usage to a much wider range of occupations.

Skilled drafters are needed in many industries to translate concepts and sketches into workable plans. By using the computer, this process becomes more efficient and the user becomes more productive, according to Richard Ralstin, a spokesman for an Indianapolis-based technical training organization.

"No matter what the industry, most CAD operators are responsible for four basic functions," says Ralstin, placement director for ITT Educational Services, Inc. These functions are:

— Replication, taking part of an image and using it in other areas when the design or drawing has repetitive features.

— Translation, transferring features from one part of the screen to another.

— Scaling, changing the size of one part of the design in relation to another.

— Rotation, turning the design on the screen so that it can be examined from different angles and perspectives.

In the field of architecture, for example, a drafter uses the rough sketches of the architect to create images on the computer screen — replacing pens, compasses and rulers with a keyboard, graphics tablet, digitizer and light pen.

With the help of a glowing phosphorus line on the screen and through a series of programmed commands, Ralstin explains, the drafter can produce high-quality designs in much less time than if produced manually.

According to High Technology magazine, some auto industry use of CAD systems has resulted in remarkable increases in productivity.

As an example, it says, Chrysler reports the engineering drawings for the basic steering and suspension geometry in its 1984 models took only 15 minutes to produce.

Ann Landers

Stop and think

Dear Ann Landers: Please print this letter. I believe it could save some young lives.

An 18-year-old died in an automobile accident. "John" was killed on impact and seriously injured an innocent family. When he was found he still had a can of beer in his hands.

I am angry that someone so young died so needlessly, but I am angrier because some people cannot or will not accept the truth that is so evident.

When John was 14 (and all through his school years) his parents thought nothing of letting him have beer parties at home for his friends. When local authorities (school and police) would not look the other way, these same parents were outraged that their rights were being threatened and infringed upon.

When John became involved in other accidents (snowmobile, motorcycle, and jeep), attempts were made to cover up his guilt and get him off the hook.

His parents encouraged his suicidal, anti-social behavior by not controlling it. Those her tried to intervene were abused, threatened and reviled. Now that 18-year-old lad is dead. Today is his funeral. I hear weeping and moaning. "How could this happen?" they ask. If they read this letter they and others will find the answer. — ANGRY IN POTOSI, WIS.

DEAR ANGRY: I wonder when parents will wake up to the fact that beer can be just as intoxicating as hard liquor if taken in substantial amounts. In fact, beer drunks can be the most dangerous of all because they don't consider beer an intoxicant.

Thank you for sharing your thoughts today. I hope it will make many teenagers as well as parents stop and think.

Dear Ann Landers: This problem is driving me nuts and I need your help. It's our neighbors. They are nice people, good friends and usually very thoughtful. But they (and many of their acquaintances) are honk-honkers.

At 7:30 every weekday morning friends honk for their daughter to let her know they have arrived. On Sunday mornings, usually at 8:15, the first person in the car sits there and honks for the rest of the family to hurry up. They also honk for each other regularly at other times of the day and night.

What is wrong with these people? Why don't they realize that while they are up and about, others may be trying to sleep, or just have a restful day?

It only takes a minute to go to the door. Better yet, when someone is expecting a ride he or she should be watching and ready to leave when the car pulls up.

I have three teenagers and they do not honk for others, nor do their friends honk for them. If you print my letter I'm sure the guilty parties will recognize themselves. Thanks so much. — REDMOND, WASH.

DEAR RED: Don't bet the rent. My advice is to speak to these neighbors in a friendly way and ask that they show a little consideration, not only for you, but for the other neighbors on your block. Sometimes people don't realize they are annoying anyone until they are told. So my advice to you is as follows: Don't just sit there and steam. Speak up!

Church News

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The Rev. Bruce Kochsmeier's sermon for the regular 10:30 a.m. Sunday worship service is "A Call to Care." The scripture lesson is Luke 10:25-37.

The Women's Association luncheon will be Wednesday at 11:30 a.m. Bring a covered dish.

The Scripture for Lunch Bunch will meet Wednesday at noon in the church library. For preparation, read Galatians 1:11-24. Everyone is welcome.

The church annual picnic is Sunday, June 8, at 6 p.m. See Lee Witten or Brenda Barrett for details of what to bring.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

The handbell choir will play during the morning worship service Sunday.

All children's choirs and mission groups are dismissed for the summer. Prayer meeting and youth activities will be held at 7 p.m. each Wednesday. Also, the adult choir will be held on Wednesday at 7:45 p.m. until further notice.

PALO DURO MISSION

Beginning at 11 a.m. Sunday, the Palo Duro Mission starts its 15th season in the Cottonwood Grove just beyond water crossing No. 5 in Palo Duro Canyon. Services will continue through the last Sunday in August.

J.C. Newton, Canyon's cowboy preacher, is still the pastor. Ken and Louise Baker continue to lead the music. Earl McDaniels and his R.A. boys will help Glenda Wilkerson and Ann Broen with the publicity this year.

The mission is sponsored by the First Baptist Church of Canyon, but layment of all faiths are invited to speak. The mission provides campers a place to worship without leaving the canyon.

The public is invited on a come-asyou-are basis. Anyone who has instruments is invited to bring them and help with the music.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

A noon dinner honoring Dr. and Mrs. Weldon Butler will follow the morning worship service in First United Methodist Church on Sunday. Dr. Butler, who has been pastor of the church the past four years, is retiring from the ministry.

The Butlers will move to Lubbock at the close of his service here June 8. His retirement will be effective at the annual session of the Northwest Texas United Methodist Conference in Amarillo next week, and he will be succeeded by Rev. Steve McElroy, present pastor at Slaton.

Members and friends are invited to the covered dish dinner, Sunday noon in the church fellowship hall, to wish the Butlers a happy retirement.

Butler is completing 40 years as a United Methodist minister, with service as pastor in churches at Wildorado, Follett, Vega, St. Paul at Amarillo, St. Lukes at Midland, Borger and Big Spring.

Also, he has been director of the Wesley Foundation on West Texas State University Campus, executive secretary of the Northwest Texas Conference, and superintendent of the Plainview and Amarillo Districts. Service on various church boards and as delegate to the general and jurisdictional conferences has marked his years of ministry.

Weemes graduates at WTSU

Carla Weemes, daughter of Tommie and Cleta Weemes, graduated from West Texas State University recently with a bachelor of science degree in nursing.

Prior to graduation exercises, she was awarded the WTSU nurse's pin in the pinning ceremonies held in Amarillo.

Weemes, a 1982 graduate of Hereford High School, has accepted a position in nursing at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo.

By chemical fumes

Investigators puzzled

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Investigators remain puzzled about the source of chemical fumes that sent 50 people to hospitals and drove nearly 10,000 from classes, jobs and homes, emptying a four-block area.

People overcome by the fumes Thursday, including two police officers and six ambulance workers, were treated at hospital 6e said.

John J. Higgins, regional environmental engineer of the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering, said investigators today would check sewers and drains and dig up soil around trees planted two weeks ago by workers who complained then of gassy odors.

By late afternoon, with Deputy Police Chief Robert P. Flanagan reporting the air back to normal, police removed barricades and allowed people to return to their homes and jobs.

About 3,500 students from three high schools and Springfield Technical Community College and about 1,500 pupils from three elementary schools got the rest of the day off, officials said.

No schoolchildren were reported felled by the fumes, but the youngsters were evacuated as a precaution, said school spokeswoman Carol W. Kinsley.

Higgins said the fumes could have been caused by someone pouring a toxic substance down a drain either deliberately or without knowing it was poisonous.

He discounted a deliberate act and said investigators would check the science laboratories in three nearby high schools to determine if any substances could have been disposed of improperly.

First word on the evacuation was that ammonia was responsible for fumes that sent people in stores and on the street to their knees in a faint. But health authorities said they had no definite information on the cause.

More than 100 shoppers were evacuated from Kavanagh Furniture Co. after the store owner's son and nephew fainted during a sale in the warehouse, store president Jack Nelen said.

The nephew, furniture salesman Luke Napolitan said, "I was standing there with my pen in one hand and sales board in the other waiting for customers. Then I went out, and the next thing I remember seeing was my cousin, Tim, fall down cold." He was treated and released from Baystate Medical Center.

Emergency medical technician Pamela Bryant was overcome while attending to people who had collapsed in the furniture warehouse. "They were dropping right and left. I was taking somebody's pulse and then I was out," she said.

Carole Trudell of Agawam, who was at the store, said she saw the two salesmen and a friend's daughter fall over. "They were dropping like flies. But it was hitting some people and not others. We don't know why."

DR. GOTT Science sprints ahead of society

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

A medical breakthrough seems more and more likely to surpass our legal-ethical-moral dicta to cope with it; the situation is like a marathon runner easily outdistancing middle-aged, paunchy joggers.

In the past, for example, a person had always been pronounced dead when his heart stopped beating. Not so anymore: Electrical pacemakers and heart transplants have forced us to re-evaluate this antiquated and simplistic definition of death.

Similarly, artificial insemination, frozen embryos and test-tube babies promise to provide provocative judgments and interesting fireside chats about who begat whom. A few years ago, a surgeon in the Midwest transplanted a testicle from one twin to another. The procedure was relatively simple, but it raised some fundamental questions that you won't find answered in any of the standard lawbooks.

The recipient was born without testicles, but was otherwise normal. By using male-hormone injections, starting at the time puberty should have appeared, doctors were able to permit the lad to develop physically. He later married. Although his wife knew of his "disability" and the couple was able to enjoy sexual relations, he was unable to father a child. After years of discussion and planning, he agreed to accept a testicular implant from his normal brother.

The operation appeared to be successful; the transplant "took" and the previously infertile man is now able to achieve erections without the use of hormone shots. Of course, the brother-donor remains sexually potent, because one testicle is sufficient for a man to be fertile.

As yet, testicular transplants from non-brothers are impossible; the postoperative medication required to prevent rejection would destroy sperm-producing cells. With respect to the testicle recipient described above, only time will tell whether he will be able to conceive a child with the use of his brother's organ. If he cannot, the operation will be deemed an interesting and unsuccessful medical curiosity. But if it works...

Whose child would it be? Technically and genetically, the brother would be the father of his sister-in-law's baby. Questions of legal adultery aside, what about maintenance, support and inheritance?

As Alice discovered, the dilemma becomes "curiouser and curiouser." What are the donor's obligations if his brother fathers children, then dies prematurely? What are the psychological and social consequences of such a biological relation? The humorous connotations of the 1940s song "I'm My Own Grandpa" become serious ethical and legal considerations.

I am certain that the parties in this situation have worked out the potential effects of their actions. However, those of us to whom the experience may be new — including lawyers and judges — may have some "eas-scratching mental gymnastics" to perform. By agreement, sperm donors for artificial insemination are anonymous; only biological features are known to the prospective parents. You must admit that the case at hand is a bit more personal.

I find it fascinating. Scientists play with life and, really, society isn't sure what to do about it. We're just not prepared yet for the harvest of intriguing problems that are bound to result from our spring planting of technological wonders. In my opinion, the greatest mistake we could make would be to harness science so that it must shuffle along at half-pace.

Shandling steps in as substitute host

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If you want to know the latest in Garry Shandling's life all you have to do is listen to his comedy on television.

"I've just bought a new house and moved into it," he said. "I live alone. I have a dog. I'm thinking of naming my next dog Mrs. Shandling."

"I tend to talk about things in my life. Relationships, my new house, my dog. I don't talk a lot about politics, although that's an area I'd like to explore more."

For more details about Shandling's life, tune into "Garry Shandling's Show," which starts in September on pay-cable's Showtime. The show will run for six episodes. He created the show with Alan Zwiadel, one of the original writers for NBC's "Saturday Night Live."

"It's like the old 'George Burns Show,' where Burns talked to the camera. It's like a situation comedy but I break the fourth wall and talk to the audience. The first episode is right out of my life. I break up with a girl and move into a new place."

If you can't wait until September, he'll be the guest host of NBC's "Tonight Show" for the weeks of June 2 and July 14.

He'll be subbing for Johnny Carson during the weeks Joan Rivers was supposed to sit in. That is, before she announced her new late-night show on the fourth network being planned by the Fox Broadcasting Co.

"I'm just doing the two weeks," he said. "There's been no talk about me replacing Joan Rivers as permanent substitute host. I've no idea what they're going to do."

Shandling refused to comment about the well-reported feud between Carson and Miss Rivers.

Shandling has been host three times in the past three years. He is the only person besides Miss Rivers to be substitute host during that time.

Shandling said many people think he's from New York, but actually he was born and raised in Tucson, Ariz. He studied electronic engineering at the University of Arizona and took business and creative writing in graduate school.

He moved to Los Angeles and quickly became a writer of television situation comedies, including "Sanford and Son" and "Welcome Back, Kotter."

POLLY'S POINTERS Chicken fat is just under skin

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — Some chickens and chicken parts are bluish in color, while some have a rich yellow color. I thought the rich yellow color was due to the diet of the chicken, however, now I'm not so sure. Recently, I purchased chicken parts with yellow skin. Under the skin of several thighs there was about one-third cup of a yellow substance, the exact color of the chicken skin. How are these yellow-skin chickens brought to the yellow color? — E.S.

DEAR E.S. — The chickens' diet does indeed cause the various colors you have observed. Without seeing exactly what you found, I'd guess that the yellow substance was chicken fat, which tends to be a similar color to the skin. Yellow-skin chickens have fat that is quite yellow while paler skinned chickens have pale fat.

To reduce the calories and fat in your diet, whatever color chickens you buy, always remove and discard any clumps of chicken fat that can be easily pulled off the chicken. Skinning the chicken also reduces calories and fat since most of the fat is just under the skin. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Here are a few pointers from the bachelor's kitchen: Health food stores are not just for dieters. They also stock many items not seen in the ordinary supermarket: several varieties of rice, beans, dried fruit, nuts and spices, for instance.

A generous pinch of sweet fennel seeds, preferably bruised in a mortar and pestle, sprinkled on wedges of cabbage before steaming, gives that homely vegetable a gourmet taste.

Spicy-hot V-8 vegetable juice is a flavor enhancer for some otherwise too bland soups and stews. It's easier to measure optimum amounts of juice than more concentrated ordinary spices. — JACK

DEAR JACK — I love your Pointers: they're in such good taste!

Fingerprint checks are underway

AUSTIN (AP) — As more stores yank Anacin-3 off their shelves, police tried today to identify partial fingerprints on nine capsules found in the bottle with a cyanide-laced pill that killed an Austin college student.

Kenneth Wayne Faries, 24, a University of Texas senior, died of cyanide poisoning that authorities linked to a bottle of Anacin-3 purchased at a Walgreen drug store.

Walgreen stores nationwide immediately pulled the capsules from their shelves, but state health officials said Thursday that tests on 2,897 capsules taken from 10 Austin Walgreen stores found no further trace of the poison.

Meanwhile, Rochester, N.Y.-based Wegmans Food Markets Inc. removed Anacin-3 capsules from its supermarkets' shelves Thursday, spokeswoman Mary Ellen Burris said.

"We're waiting for word from the manufacturer," she said. "We're checking the codes and expiration dates to see if they were those involved in the Texas incident."

And Patrick Mongillo, regional supervisor for Fay's Drug Co. Inc., said that all 23 New York-area Fay's drugstores have pulled products off their shelves.

He said it was possible that one store might have the matching lot number and expiration date of the Anacin-3 found in Austin, but that couldn't be confirmed.

Austin police Sgt. David Parkinson said partial fingerprints were found on nine of the 46 capsules from the bottle that killed Faries.

"We have not made positive comparison with any known print right now," Parkinson said Thursday, adding that he hoped the fingerprint checks would be completed by the end of today.

But as far as the city-wide Anacin-3 checks, "all of those tests are completed and the results were uniformly negative — no tampering and no poison," said Bob Henna, director of the food and drug division of the Texas Department of Health.

Henna said a U.S. Food and Drug Administration lab in Dallas tested the capsules Wednesday night and Thursday. Capsules taken from other Austin-area stores will be tested over the next few days, he said.

FDA spokesman Bill Grigg said the agency still was awaiting an analysis of the 46 remaining capsules found in Faries' apartment. Originally in police custody, that bottle now has been transferred to FDA and is being taken to the agency's Cincinnati laboratories for analysis, Grigg said.

Until all investigations are completed, Health Commissioner Robert Bernstein warned Texans to exercise caution with Anacin-3 capsules.

"Of course, we hope this is an isolated incident, but until all tests of the victim's body are done and our investigation is over, we must stress that each person must take the responsibility of double-checking the products they use," Bernstein said.

Faries, a UT chemistry senior, died May 21. But lab tests from the autopsy weren't completed until Wednesday, when word of the Anacin-3 link was made public.

Police are treating Faries' death as a homicide, but suicide hasn't been ruled out, said police spokeswoman Kellye Norris.

"We're treating it as a homicide because our medical examiner did rule it a homicide. But we haven't ruled anything out yet. We're not saying it's definitely a homicide," Ms. Norris said.

"Our investigators right now are going out and doing all the checks," she added.

The Anacin-3 taken by Faries was from a bottle containing 500-milligram capsules from Lot 6B11, bearing the expiration date 10-88, police said.

Dr. Robert Bayardo, Travis County medical examiner, said one capsule in the bottle showed evidence of tampering.

"It is my personal opinion that this is the only bottle that has been tampered with. But we have to prevent some other deaths, so we are warning the public about this product," Bayardo said.

Faries was the third person to die this year from cyanide in cases related to over-the-counter drugs. The February death of a New York woman remains under investigation. That of a Nashville, Tenn., man in February was ruled a suicide.

Farmers add new land to program

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a disappointing start two months ago, the government's new soil conservation program has gotten off the ground with farmers agreeing to idle 3.8 million acres of the nation's most delicate cropland this year.

The Agriculture Department announced Thursday it was accepting bids for an additional 3 million acres of highly erodible land into the long-term Conservation Reserve Program, a substantial boost over the 838,000 acres accepted after an earlier round of bidding in March.

Despite the increase, the total area recruited for the 1986 land-idling area still fell short of the 5 million-acre goal for the first year of the five-year effort. The department said it plans a third sign-up period for later this year.

"We are pleased with the excellent response from farmers during the second sign up," said Daniel G. Amstutz, undersecretary of agriculture for commodity programs. "We are well on our way to our goal of taking 40 (million) to 45 million acres of highly erodible land out of production within the next five years."

In the new bidding round, the department accepted bids from 22,863 farms, agreeing to pay an average of $44.23 per acre in annual rent to keep the land out of cultivation, a slight increase from the $41 average in the initial round.

Total annual rental payments for the additional acreage will be $132 million. A total of 34,156 bids had been received during the latest sign up, for a total of 4.6 million acres.

Norman Berg, an official of the conservation group the American Farmland Trust, called the new results encouraging.

"This will give us a good base to build on for the future," he said. "We're off and running."

The conservation reserve, part of the farm law enacted late last year, is designed to take at least 40 million acres of fragile U.S. cropland out of production over the next five years, and keep it idled for at least 10 years.

Farmers are to receive annual rental payments on the land they idle, as well as initial financial help for planting grasses, trees or other soil-conserving cover on the acreage.

Under the program, farmers submit bids stating how much they will accept in rental payments to take their erosion-prone land out of production for at least a decade. The department accepts the most attractive bids, limiting eligibility to the 69 million acres it has classified as the most highly erodible cropland in the nation.

To be eligible, soil has to be eroding at a rate of at least three times as fast as it can be restored through natural processes.

The program has been hailed by conservationists as the most significant anti-erosion step in 50 years.

At a congressional hearing last week Peter C. Myers, deputy secretary of agriculture, said it would be hard to meet the 40 million-acre target set by the program.

He said many farmers find it more attractive to participate in competing government subsidy programs that pay them based on their production — an incentive to keep their land in production.

Berg said to get further land out of production the department may have to gradually increase what it is willing to pay per acre.

Berg also said it may be necessary to soften the requirement that land remain idle for 10 years, or to extend the program beyond its current five-year life.

Colorado was the leader in the second round of bidding, with farmers there agreeing to idle 526,000 acres for a total annual rental of $20.4 million. Next highest were Minnesota, with 214,000 acres at $10.5 million rent, and Texas, 279,000 acres at $10.1 million.

Here is a state-by-state list with the number of farms submitting acceptable bids, the total acres accepted in each state, and the value of annual government rental payments for that acreage:

Alabama, 655 farms, 51,548 acres, $1.9 million; Alaska, 5, 3,846, $125,000; Arizona, no bids accepted; Arkansas, 241, 20,677, $974,000; California, 101, 59,452, $2.8 million; Colorado, 1,209, 526,424, $20.4 million; Connecticut, no bids accepted; Delaware, no bids accepted; Florida, 228, 17,353, $653,000; Georgia, 965, 55,140, $2.1 million; Hawaii, 1, 85, $6,800; Idaho, 369, 95,160, $3.9 million; Illinois, 653, 30,991, $2 million; Indiana, 345, 12,032, $717,000; Iowa, 1,578, 101,609, $7.3 million; Kansas, 1,788, 134,236, $9.1 million; Kentucky, 699, 35,547, $2 million; Louisiana, 75, 7,507, $314,000; Maine, 64, 2,662, $128,000; Maryland, 17, 344, $20,000; Massachusetts, no bids accepted; Michigan, 241, 11,035, $602,000; Minnesota, 2,379, 214,665, $10.5 million; Mississippi, 1,064, 75,110, $2.8 million; Missouri, 1,452, 136,665,

Names in the News

NEW YORK (AP) — Chrysler chairman Lee Iacocca, who led efforts to restore the Statue of Liberty, says he was red-faced when he realized he hadn't visited the monument since he was a child.

Iacocca said despite numerous trips to New York City, he never even took either of his daughters to the statue, and that he only returned to the site in 1982, after President Reagan asked him to lead the restoration efforts.

"The answer was simple and it was embarrassing," Iacocca wrote in Sunday's Parade magazine. "The Statue of Liberty didn't mean the same thing to me that it did to my father."

Iacocca said his father, an immigrant from Italy, took him to the statue when he was 5 years old.

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Singer

JIMMY Buffett and artist Robert Wyland have unveiled a life-size wall painting of a manatee and its baby to make people aware of the endangered marine mammal.

Buffett, chairman of Florida's Save the Manatee Committee, said Orlando International Airport was chosen for the 8-by-14-foot painting because more than 1 million passengers a month pass through the terminal.

"We're trying to make people aware of the plight of the manatee, which represents the quality of life in Florida," Buffett said.

Wyland, 30, considered one of the nation's foremost environmental artists, spent two weeks on the painting, which he valued at $100,000.

Early, bow-shaped harps with four strings weighed less than a pound, while today's 46-string concert harps weigh 80 pounds.

Information about your changing telephone service from Gary Stevens, Manager-Community Relations

We've got the answers you need

There have been a lot of changes in the phone business the past couple of years. And, if you're anything like the average telephone customer, you probably wonder from time to time what's going on? We've always considered keeping you up to date a critical element in your service. Even though we don't furnish all of it anymore, you're still our customers, and we appreciate your business.

That's why we began offering free Tele-Help booklets shortly after the breakup of the Bell System in 1984. These booklets answer commonly-asked questions about telephone services and equipment.

17 ways to help you

We recently introduced five new booklets explaining long distance-operator services, telephone etiquette, phone use for children, services for disabled people and services for older adults.

And, of course, our original 12 Tele-Help booklets can still be ordered. They talk about phone service, phone bills, home phone-repair, telephone equipment, long distance service, saving money on phone service, easy access dialing, home security, establishing new service, home telephone wiring, local service options and handling annoying telephone calls.

Booklets are short, easy to read and understand — a handy quick reference. So, you can now choose from 17 different booklets! The booklets are also available in Spanish.

And business customers will also enjoy reading our special guide entitled "The Tele-Help Guide for Small Business Customers." It provides information on topics such as repair, customer contacts and telephone security.

Help is here: Tele-Help

Tele-Help booklets are just one part of Southwestern Bell Telephone's customer service program. Each month you receive either a business or residence customer Tele-Help insert in your bill. These inserts tell you about important telephone services, industry changes, various community relations programs, happenings around Texas, and other tips and tidbits.

Just look in the front of your Southwestern Bell Telephone's white pages directory, and you'll find a Tele-Help section there, too. Your business office, emergency and other important numbers are also listed.

Tele-Help is only one of our many projects geared toward helping customers get the most value from their service.

We're here to help, so call on us. We pay attention to your questions, because we want you to be happy, feel comfortable with and understand your phone service.

To order Tele-Help booklets, call toll-free 1-800-325-2686 or look for the order coupon in your monthly Tele-Help bill insert.

Mexico seeks improved image

World Cup starts Saturday

By SOLL SUSSMAN
Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) — All roads, it would seem, lead to Aztec Stadium as the 1986 soccer World Cup finally is ready to start Saturday.

Shiny new signs throughout the city point to the capital stadiums where World Cup games will be played from Saturday's inaugural match between defending champion Italy and Bulgaria to the June 29 championship.

For Mexico, the five weeks dominated by soccer hopefully will bring some joy to a population accustomed to chronic economic ills and declining purchasing power in recent years. At times it has appeared that even nature has been against Mexico, with the worst natural disaster in its history occurring last September when an earthquake ripped apart the heart of Mexico City.

The economic crisis started here in 1982, ironically the last time the teams of 24 nations competed for what is perhaps the world's most popular sports championship.

Mexico also is hoping that the exposure to a television global audience estimated as high as 3 billion will boost its lagging tourism industry. Each broadcast of the games, 52 in all to be played at 12 stadiums in nine Mexican cities, will feature a segment promoting tourist attractions here.

An estimated 20,000 to 40,000 foreign soccer fans will travel to Mexico to watch the games.

It is not clear that ticket sales, sponsorships and related revenue will make the event a financial success.

There is little tradition of openness about financial matters in Mexico, and the agreement by the private sector to finance the bulk of the World Cup tournament has kept most arrangements behind closed doors.

Mexico will be the first nation to host the World Cup, held every four years, twice. It took over from Colombia three years ago after that South American nation said it could not justify the expense in a time of financial troubles.

The private, and affluent, Mexican television network Televisa agreed to spearhead the organization of the event here.

The government has said only that security for the World Cup will cost about $5 million, with an estimated 30,000 agents deployed at airports, hotels, stadiums and other strategic points.

Officials say every reasonable precaution has been taken to insure that the World Cup is marked only by soccer fever and not terrorist incursions into Mexico.

"Mexico '86" souvenirs and related objects featuring the cartoon mascot Pique — a chili pepper sporting a big moustache and an oversized sombrero — are everywhere from newstands to restaurant placemats.

Giant television screens will be set up in some city parks and public places for those who might not be able to watch World Cup games otherwise.

Stadium ticket prices, ranging from $3 to $50 a seat if bought individually but sometimes higher if purchased in package deals, are well out of reach for the average worker in Mexico where the minimum daily wage goes up Sunday from $3.06 to $3.61.

The Organizing Committee says it hopes to top the 82 percent capacity reached in the 1982 tournament held in Spain, but with just days remaining until the tournament advertisements for seats still available were plentiful.

Only Mexico, as the host nation, and Italy, as the defending champion, gained automatic entry to the month-long championship. The other 22 competitors went through rounds totaling 312 elimination games in the past two years to whittle down the 110 hopeful nations.

This 13th World Cup will break a tie between Europe and South America, the two traditionally powerful regions in South America, with each no holding six titles.

The field this time includes 14 European nations, four South American, two from Asia, two from Africa, Mexico and Canada.

Among those mentioned as favorites are France, West Germany, Brazil and Argentina.

LaPoint is winning pitcher

Tigers win fifth straight

By The Associated Press
Rod Carew was gone and Reggie Jackson was not in the lineup. Still, Detroit left-hander Dave LaPoint had to face Don Sutton, who was trying to win his 29th career game.

"Every time you play the Angels it's like you're going against six Hall of Famers and three others trying to make it," said LaPoint, who held California hitless for five innings in the Detroit Tigers' 7-4 victory Thursday night.

LaPoint gave up an infield hit to Gary Pettis leading off the sixth and left the game after Dick Schofield hit a grand slam in the seventh that pulled the Angels within 6-4.

But reliever Willie Hernandez shut out California the rest of the way and LaPoint raised his record to 2-3, with both victories coming against the Angels.

Detroit's fifth straight triumph also helped erase LaPoint's memories of Anahem Stadium. As a rookie with Milwaukee in late 1980, he got shelled in his only previous appearance against the Angels. LaPoint, who faced seven batters, recalled, "I was out of there before my wife could get to her seat."

Carew was released at the end of last season and Jackson, a left-handed batter, did not start against the left-handed LaPoint.

Lou Whitaker and Lance Parrish hit home runs and the Tigers pinned the loss on Don Sutton, 2-5.

In other American League action, New York beat Seattle 2-0 and Baltimore downed Oakland 6-4.

Yankees 2, Mariners 0

Dennis Rasmussen allowed three hits in 8 2-3 innings and Mike Pagliarulo drove in the game's only runs with a homer and a double as New York beat Seattle in the Kingdom.

The Yankees have won nine of their last 11 games, and have beaten Seattle in nine of the last 10 meetings.

NO CHAWS IN N.E.
BOSTON (AP) — There were no "chaws" bulging from the jaws of college baseball players in the New England area this spring.

The use of tobacco by collegiate players in that section of the country was outlawed by their coaches. The New England Intercollegiate Baseball Association approved a recommendation that "all members of the association should prohibit the use of tobacco substances by baseball players during practice sessions and games."

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — After eight weeks, the Texas Rangers are in first place in the American League West and experiencing their best start since 1979.

But they say they're not done yet. "Everybody on the plane is in their proper seat, but the plane hasn't arrived yet," manager Bobby Valentine said. "Just because we are now getting national attention doesn't mean we have landed."

The Rangers just completed what Valentine had said would be a big test, playing 20 games in 19 days. They passed with an 11-9 record.

Now, for a team which last season spent only four days higher than last place, this is the next test in the 162-game trek: 15 of 16 games on the road.

It begins tonight in Kansas City when the Rangers open a three-game series against the world champion Royals.

"We're going to continue to have tough stretches," Valentine said. "That's what the season is all about. Darrell Porter said it perfectly: As soon as you feel you've got this game beat, it sneaks up behind you and gets you in a headlock."

The Rangers opened the season with their only established starting pitcher — Charlie Hough — on the disabled list. They went 11-12.

Within a four-day period in the last two weeks, their two RBI-leaders — Don Slaught and Larry Parrish — went on the disabled list. The Rangers were 3-3 in the first six games after Parrish joined Slaught on the DL. They scored only 15 runs and hit 194.

Texas, however, has won six of its last nine games.

"We looked around for a couple of days and wondered what we were going to do," Valentine said. "We met the challenge. Meeting the challenges is part of being a good team."

An inability to meet the challenge is part of the Rangers' past. Three summers ago, the Rangers were in first place in the AL West at the All-Star break with a 44-34 record. Then, they lost 15 of their next 20 games, which dropped them to 49-49. That was the last time they were at the break-even point until the start of this season.

"I'm not a historian," Valentine said. "I don't even know what the Rangers did in 1983. What happened in '83 means absolutely nothing today."

One reason for the Rangers' confidence is the their youth, especially among the pitchers. Valentine expects the young players to get better as the season progresses.

Valentine wants the Rangers to keep their attention on the record — not the standings.

"We can't get excited about the standings," Valentine said. "We have to be happy to be three games over .500, and build on that. We've got to shoot to be five games over, then 10 games over. Once you are staring at 20 games over .500, you can start worrying about what each game means, about what other teams are doing."

"When people look back at the 1986 season, I want them to remember the Texas Rangers as the most improved team in baseball."

Mets beat Dodgers,

Valenzuela, 5-2

By The Associated Press
If Fernando Valenzuela was a little off his game, Manager Davey Johnson figured the New York Mets must be on theirs.

"I think it says something for our offense that we scored five runs off Valenzuela," the New York Mets manager said. "That's probably unheard of against him."

Indeed, in his last two starts, Valenzuela had pitched two-hit shutouts against Montreal and Philadelphia. He had won six of his last seven decisions and his last three starts.

Thursday night, however, he lost to former teammate Sid Fernandez as the Mets got game-breaking doubles from Ray Knight and Keith Hernandez to beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-2. Fernandez, 5-1, gave up both runs on four hits through eight innings, while Valenzuela, 7-3, yielded all five runs on six hits and an uncharacteristically high six walks in seven innings.

"Still, I thought Fernando pitched well enough to win," Dodgers Manager Tom Lasorda said. "But the Mets have a hell of a club. Everything they're doing now is right. Their pitching is good, starters and relievers."

In the only other National League game Thursday, Philadelphia edged San Francisco 5-4.

The victory was New York's fifth in a row and gave the Mets a three-game sweep of the series with Los Angeles. In the two earlier victories, the Mets got complete-game victories from both Ron Darling and Dwight Gooden. Darling gave up one run and Gooden two as the Dodgers were held to five runs in the three games.

"We're scoring more runs now than at the same time last year," said Dodgers catcher Mike Scioscia. "But the Mets have the toughest pitching staff in the league."

Phillies 5, Giants 4

Slump-ridden Milt Thompson singled home Steve Jeltz with two outs in the ninth inning to give Philadelphia the win and a sweep of its three-game series with visiting San Francisco.

Jeltz walked with one out, went to second on Greg Gross' 100th career pinch-hit and to third on Jeff Stone's fly to center before Thompson, hitless in his previous four at-bats in the game, singled up the middle off Greg Minton, 2-3.

Glenn Wilson rallied the Phillies from a 3-0 deficit with a three-run homer in the fifth inning.

Don Carmen, 2-0, the fourth Philadelphia pitcher, pitched three shutout innings for the win.

LITTLE BIG MAN

DENVER (AP) — Spud Webb, the 5-foot-7 guard of the Atlanta Hawks and winner of the Slam-Dunk contest at the All-Star Game, was the choice of rival coach, Doug Moe, as the 1985-86 Rookie-of-the-Year in the NBA.

"Webb gives his team another tempo," Moe said. "And besides that, he makes the coaching staff—the little people—feel good. They've got somebody they can see eye-to-eye with."

SELF MOTIVATION

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Linebacker Scott Studwell of the Minnesota Vikings believes in self-motivation.

In goal line stands, he uses little psychological gimmicks to pump him up. One is stomping his feet.

"It adds intensity," Studwell said. "Anyone who digs in for a goal line stand will tell you the same thing. You have an opportunity to make big plays. You're either a goat or a hero."

Studwell has led the Vikings in both unassisted tackles and tackles for five seasons.

But now play next games in home territory against Celtics

Houston Rockets face tough uphill battle

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics are a bunch of bangers with a built-in bell that sounds at the start of the second half.

The Houston Rockets have the awesome Twin Towers in 7-4 Ralph Sampson and 7-foot Akeem Olujuwon, but the Celtics are the ones flexing their muscles in the showdown for the NBA championship.

"It was a good physical game, the kind we like because we have a lot of big bodies and like to bang," Boston forward Kevin McHale said Thursday night after the Celtics outmuscled the Rockets 117-95 for a 2-0 lead in the best-of-7 series.

"We played well, we did a lot of things, but it was the third quarter again," McHale said. "It's the same story. It always seems to be that quarter. I don't know what it is."

The Celtics, who outscored Atlanta 36-6 in the third quarter of an earlier playoff game en route to the finals, whipped Houston 112-100 with a 30-17 third period advantage in the first game here Monday.

Then, after toying with the Rockets in taking a 31-30 lead after one quarter in Game 2, they went on to a 60-50 advantage at halftime before breaking things wide open after the intermission.

Dethroned as NBA champions by Los Angeles after losing the second game of the finals here last year, the Celtics, in general, and Larry Bird, in particular, exploded in the third period, outscoring the Rockets 34-19.

"We have to do three things to be at the top of our game," McHale said. "We have to run, we have to work inside and we have to be aggressive. Tonight we did."

"When we get it going, it's tough to stop us. We played very good defense and had our offense going. Once we get it going like that, we're awfully tough to beat."

"To say that we had a letdown in the third quarter takes away from what the Celtics did," said Houston Coach Bill Fitch, who directed the Celtics to one of their 15 NBA championships in 1981. "We played pretty well in the first quarter, even the first half. After that, we were never in it."

You have to give the Celtics credit for the way they played in the third period. We were humiliated. It's embarrassing to reach the finals and play like this. We're a much better team than we've shown and, fortunately, it's a seven-game series."

The suffocating heat which turned ancient Boston Garden into a giant sauna hurt the Rockets, along with the pounding dished out by the Celtics.

"Our running game just went dead in the heat," Fitch said. "When you can't run, you can't make up points quickly."

Bird, who became the third player in history to win the NBA's Most Valuable Player Award three consecutive years on Wednesday, celebrated with a game-high 31 points, 8 rebounds, 7 assists, 4 steals and 2 blocked shots in leading a relentless attack which enabled the Celtics to carry the 2-0 lead to Houston for the next three games.

"Larry was happy to win the MVP award," said McHale, who had 25 points. "And I think he showed how much he wanted this second game in the third quarter."

"Bird played the game," said Sampson, who had 18 points. "All you've got to do is give him the ball."

"He played great," agreed Olujuwon, who had 21 points. "He's the greatest player I've ever seen. He'll shoot from anywhere and there's nothing you can do. You can't stop him. You can only slow him down."

The Celtics hit a rare cold spell so Bird decided it wouldn't hurt to end it, and his hot hand pushed the Houston Rockets closer to the end of their season.

The team that knocked off the defending champion Los Angeles Lakers 4-1 to get to the NBA finals returns home for Game 3 Sunday with a 2-0 deficit in the best-of-7 championship round.

"If a team is playing well, they could play five games in Edmonton and it wouldn't make a difference," McHale said.

The Celtics are playing very well.

They are 30-3 in their last 33 games and 13-1 in the playoffs. Ten of the 13 victory margins have reached double figures. If they sweep the title series and earn their 16th crown, their combined record for the regular season and playoffs will be 82-16, surpassing the NBA mark of 81-16 set in 1971-72 by the Lakers.

Boston cruised to its 40th consecutive home victory Thursday night on the strength of that 34-19 third period.

"We went out (in the second half) and missed three shots and we didn't get up and down the court very well, and they cut it down to eight," said Bird. "From then on, I said to myself, 'you might as well start shooting the ball and see what happens.'"

Houston Coach Fitch said, "I thought we stopped him up to the third quarter. Then he got into one of those 'playing in his own back yard' situations, where he is in his own world and it seems like he is out there on his own. When he gets along like that, he's awesome."

"His hands were on every ball, stealing, rebounding, passing and shooting," said Celtics' center Bill Walton. "He could do anything he wanted to tonight."

Bird wanted to win badly.

In 1982, Boston beat Philadelphia by 40 points in Game 1, then lost the next game and the division finals. Last year, Boston whipped Los Angeles by 34 points in the opener, then lost the next game and the championship series. On Monday, Boston dominated Houston 112-100 in this year's opener.

"The win takes off a lot of pressure," said McHale. "It eliminates a lot of stuff from our minds."

Boston established a championship series record by hitting 23 of 24 free throws for a .958 percentage. The Lakers set the old mark of .943 when they made 33 of 35 shots at Philadelphia on May 16, 1980.

Thursday night's game was played in 90-degree temperatures in Boston Garden, which has no air conditioning.

"The running disappeared in the heat," Fitch said. "If we can't run, we can't make up the quick points."

Houston was led by Akeem Olujuwon with 21 points and Ralph Sampson with 18, but the Twin Towers combined for just seven second-half points. One starting guard, Robert Reid, had eight points and the other, Lewis Lloyd, just six.

"Lloyd is most effective when the Rockets are running," Boston guard Danny Ainge said. "We've taken that away. Every timeout we talked about the need to get back on defense."

On offense, the Celtics did their usual brilliant job of finding the open man. Several times, Bird was isolated on Rodney McCray or Jim Petersen. He almost always won the battles.

"I don't think they can handle it," Bird said. "If they double up on me I will swing it (the ball) around. I think it's our best play."

Olujuwon said, "We didn't look like the team that brought us here. This was the worst game of the season. I was ashamed."

If they are to win their first NBA title, the Rockets would become only the fifth team in playoff history to survive a 2-0 deficit.

They must win four games in 11 days. In the last 80 days, Boston has lost three games. But Houston is unbeaten at home during the playoffs and the next three games are scheduled there.

"If we keep poise and play the way we know we can, I think anything can happen," Fitch said.

Said Bird: "We're a great road team and we're not afraid to go down there."

Cooney-Gregg bout is Saturday afternoon

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Boxing Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — In training for his fight with Eddie Gregg, Gerry Cooney has had 16 sparring partners, breaking one's jaw and causing another to flee home in the middle of the night, says manager Dennis Rappaport.

"I'm doing what I want to do, what I always wanted to do," Cooney said Thursday.

He meant fighting, not sparring. And fight is what the 29-year-old heavyweight will do for only the fifth time in a little more than five years when he meets Gregg in a 10-round bout Saturday at the Cow Palace.

It also will be Cooney's third bout since he was stopped by Larry Holmes in the 13th round for his only loss June 11, 1982; his first fight since he stopped George Chaplin in the second round Dec. 8, 1984, and his first bout since he announced his retirement last July 30.

A victory would earn Cooney a ranking and probably give him a shot at Michael Spinks, who won the International Boxing Federation title from Holmes, then kept it on a split decision in a rematch.

Gregg, who turned professional in 1979, has a 24-1-1 record, with 18 knockouts, and is ranked No. 3 by the World Boxing Association.

Gregg's loss came when he was stopped in the eighth round by James Broad on Aug. 13, 1984. He has won his last three fights.

"I've waited a long time for this opportunity and I cannot let it slip through my hands," Gregg, who celebrated his 32nd birthday today, said Thursday at a joint news conference.

Cooney, who has a 27-1 record, with 22 knockouts, is a strong favorite to jump back into the championship picture with a victory in the match that will be televised live on ABC's "Wide World of Sports" at about 2 p.m. PDT.

Scheduled to be at ringside is the 36-year-old Holmes, who says he wants to fight Cooney.

"He's not in the picture anymore," said Cooney, who gave as a reason for his announced retirement his inability to get a rematch with Holmes.

But Rappaport said Holmes can get into the picture. If he cannot negotiate a deal with promoters Butch Lewis and Don King for a Spinks-Cooney fight, Rappaport said, he would consider Holmes' call for a 12-round bout with Cooney for the "People's Championship."

Sports briefs

By The Associated Press
COLLEGE BASKETBALL

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Former Tulane University basketball star John "Hot Rod" Williams must stand trial again on June 9 as scheduled, said a judge who refused to throw out sports bribery charges against the 6-foot-10 forward.

Williams, once considered a certain first-round NBA draft choice, is accused of engaging in a plot to shave points in three Tulane games in the 1984-85 season and of actually carrying out the scheme in two games. Tulane abandoned men's basketball in the wake of a scandal that also produced allegations of NCAA violations.

GENERAL
COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Former U.S. Olympic champions Floyd Patterson and Joe Frazier, who went on to become world heavyweight professional boxing champions, are among 10 finalists for the U.S. Olympic Hall of Fame Class of '86.

Other finalists selected by the National Sportscasters and Sportswriters Association and officers of the U.S. Olympic committee include: Bruce Jenner, 1976 Decathlon champion; the 1956 U.S. basketball team led by Bill Russell, K.C. Jones, Chuck Darling and Jim Walsh; Debbie Meyer, 1968 swimmer triple gold medalist; and Glenn Davis, 1956 and 1960 400 meter hurdles champion and 1960 gold medalist in the men's 4x400 meter relay.

PARIS (AP) — Chris Evert Lloyd says Life magazine misquoted her when it reported she had said that she and Martina Navratilova laugh at the chances of other players replacing them at the top of women's tennis.

"I definitely didn't say that," Lloyd said Thursday at the French Open.

The article, in the June issue of Life, quotes Lloyd in a photo caption as saying: "Other girls say they're going to replace us at the top, but we just laugh."

Asked about the comment at a news conference, Lloyd replied: "I was misquoted a lot. ... Martina and I don't laugh at the other girls."

LIKES ADVERSITY
NEW YORK (AP) — The position of nose tackle in pro football is a difficult one and when Joe Klecko, a star defensive end for the New York Jets, was moved to it last fall there was concern about how he would take it.

He took it well enough to be named to the Pro Bowl. Klecko explained his approach to the change in positions. "If you say no to me, I'll say yes," he said. "I live on adversity. I feed on situations where someone tells me I can't handle it. Adversity give me a lot of extra motivation."

God made a farmer

This next arrived unsigned in my mailbag. I've tried but cannot trace its source. A farmer perhaps; more likely a farmer's wife. I've embellished the essay in places and cropped it in others but I hope the sense of it remains intact.

And on the eighth day, God looked down on his planned paradise and said, "I need a caretaker."

So God made a farmer.

God said, "I need somebody willing to get up before dawn, milk cows, work all day in the fields, milk cows again, eat supper—and then go to town and stay past midnight at a meeting of the school board."

So God made a farmer.

"I need somebody with arms strong enough to wrestle a calf yet gentle enough to deliver his own grandchild...."

"Somebody to call hogs, tame cantankerous machinery, come home hungry and have to wait lunch until his wife's done feeding visiting ladies—then tell the ladies to be sure and come back real soon — and mean it."

So God made a farmer.

God said, "I need somebody willing to sit up all night with a newborn colt and watch it die and then dry his eyes and say, 'maybe next year'..."

"I need somebody who can shape an ax handle from a persimmon sprout and shoe a horse with a hunk of car tire..."

Who can make harness out of hay wire, feed sacks and shoe scraps....

Who, planting time and harvest season, will finish his 40-hour week by Tuesday noon. Then painin' from tractor back, put in another 72."

So God made a farmer.

God had to have somebody willing to ride the ruts at double-speed to get the hay in ahead of the rain clouds and yet stop in mid-field and race to help when he sees the first smoke from a neighbor's place.

So God made a farmer.

God said, "I need somebody strong enough to clear trees and heave bales..."

And, yet, gentle enough to yean lambs and wean pigs and tend the pink-combed pullets.

And who'll stop his mower for an hour to split the broken leg of a meadow lark.

So God made a farmer.

It had to be somebody who'd plow deep and straight and not cut corners...somebody to seed, weed, feed, breed and rake and disc and plow and plant and tie the fleece and strain the milk and replenish the self-feeder...and finish a hard week's work with a 5-mile drive to church.

Somebody who'd bale a family together with the soft, strong bonds of sharing...

We would laugh—and then sign—and then reply with smiling eyes... When his son says he wants to spend his life doing what dad does.

So—God made a farmer.

The Newspaper BIBLE

DO YOU HAVE A GUARDIAN ANGEL?

"See, I am sending an Angel before you to lead you safely to the land I have prepared for you. Reverence him and obey all of his instructions; do not rebel against him, for he is my representative - he bears my name. But if you are careful to obey him, following all my instructions, then I will be an enemy to your enemies.

For my Angel shall go before you and bring you into the land of the Amorites, Hittites, Perizzites, Canaanites, Hivites and Jebusites, to live there. And I will destroy those people before you." (Exodus 23:20-23)

"This poor man cried to the Lord - and the Lord heard him and saved him out of his troubles. For the Angel of the Lord guards and rescues all who reverence him." (Psalm 34:6-7)

"Beware that you don't look down upon a single one of these little children. For I tell you that in heaven their angels have constant access to my Father. And I, the Messiah, came to save the Lost." (Matthew 18:10-11)

"The High Priest and his relatives and friends among the Sadducees reacted with violent jealousy and arrested the apostles, and put them in the public jail.

But an angel of the Lord came at night, opened the gates of the jail and brought them out. Then he told them, "Go over to the Temple and preach about this Life!" (Acts 5:17-20)

Church home backers harrasing Mattox

AUSTIN (AP) - The leader of a Tarrant County church home ordered closed by a state judge says his followers are calling Attorney General Jim Mattox at home - at all hours - to register their protests.

Mattox said the calls began at about 1 a.m. and continue all night.

The callers talk about "all manners of things," according to Mattox.

"Everything from preaching mini-sermons to saying very insulting things toward me and my family and my staff, uttering an assortment of veiled threats all the way from being political to being physical," he said of the calls.

Some of the callers identify themselves as supporters of Pastor W.N. Otwell of the Community Baptist Church in Forest Hill, near Fort Worth, Mattox said.

A state judge has ordered the church's boys home closed because it does not have a state license. Mattox's office filed the suit to close the home.

Otwell confirmed Thursday that "some of our people are calling" Mattox.

"It's not harassment. How can it be harassment when someone can help you and all you are doing is knocking on their door and asking for relief? That's pleading. And anytime you have to do it is proper. These people can't get to Jim Mattox during the day," Otwell said.

"If it's in the middle of the night, it's in the middle of the night," he added in a telephone interview.

Mattox said many of the calls "most certainly would not be considered very Christian."

"They are calling at one, two, three, four o'clock in the morning. I don't mean just one call. I'm talking about constant calling," he said.

"Sometimes I ask them 'if they had a mama that taught them any manners,' Mattox said.

Otwell said any nasty calls are not coming from his backers.

The calls began last week after Otwell and his supporters returned to Tarrant County after several days in Austin. Last Wednesday, after meeting with Gov. Mark White, Otwell told his supporters that Mattox "needs a little harassment."

Mattox, who said he once planned to be a Baptist minister, said, "I don't think the Christian community in the state ... would approve of the kind of tactics these people are engaged in."

Assessment proposed

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas' public colleges and universities should be judged on their overall excellence - not on minimum standards, a study group of the Select Committee on Higher Education was told.

"The idea is to try so far as possible to challenge institutions to do their best at whatever they do best rather than concentrate on a minimum level of performance," said Dr. Peter Ewell of the National Center for Higher Education Management Systems at Boulder, Colorado.

Ewell appeared Thursday at a work session of a subgroup of the Select Committee considering ways of assessing the quality of Texas' public colleges and universities.

Dr. Earl Lewis, chairman of the Task Force on Quality and Access, said the subgroup would study Ewell's recommendations and then he would work with them later in making recommendations to the full committee.

Ewell said his organization had worked with about 50 institutions in 12 states in considering programs to determine "just what results the institutions are achieving."

A total of seven states now require their public colleges and universities to show the quality and character of their studies.

Ewell urged the Texas group to make their assessment program a part of the state school reform effort and to take a "positive" approach to the institutions.
