Clements says jobs a state priority

DALLAS (AP) - Gov.-elect Bill Clements says he's embarrassed that the Texas unemployment rate exceeds the national average.

And it's a problem he says he intends to fix. Clements named a 67-member task force Thursday charged with helping create jobs for Texans. Jim Adams of Dallas and John Cater of Houston were named as task force chairmen. Adams is president of the Texas Division of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. Cater is president of MCorp.

"The key issue facing us today in Texas is jobs, jobs and more jobs," Clements said at a news conference. "I am embarrassed as a Texan that our unemployment rate exceeds the national average."

The Texas unemployment rate for October was 9.5 percent. The national average was 7 percent.

Clements and the co-chairmen said the task force will recommend legislation when the state House and Senate convene in January. They would not discuss specific legislative recommendations. The task force will also work on mid- and longrange economic programs.

But Adams said an example of laws that will be addressed are those that hamper business, such as state regulations.

'We are an action-oriented group." Adams said. "We're looking to change trends, not predict them. That's what we're all about."

The task force will focus on small business development, capital formation, technology, energy, agriculture, relations with Mexico and international relations.

Cater said another committee will address issues such as transportation, worker's compensation and others that don't fall into one area.

While acknowledging that the drop in oil prices has hurt the Texas economy and caused unemployment, Clements said "oil is a piece of our economy and only a piece.'

"We're not going to let that tail wag our dog," Clements said. "The price of oil only contributes eight cents of every dollar to the state's economy.

"No one denies that the oil and gas sector is a significant part of the Texas economy," Cater said. "But the point that is so often overlooked is that we are in a state of overbuilding. So there's excess capacity,

Clements said he will press for a tariff on imported oil, and he is scheduled to discuss the issue early next year with President Reagan, has changed his mind. Clements said the Texas economy has also suffered because of "federal neglect." He said he believes having Jim Wright, D-Texas, as House Congress. Wright is expected to be elected speaker to replace the retiring Tip O'Neill, D-Mass.

Iran-Contra probe widens as top aides await call

WASHINGTON (AP) - A congres- help everybody if he told us about sional probe of the Iran-Contra scan- it. dal is expanding as both the House and Senate move to establish investigative units and one committee casts a net of subpoenas for a growing list of witnesses and documents.

The widening investigation is part of the increasing pressure being placed on President Reagan and some of his closest aides by members of Congress and Reagan's own administration.

The Senate Intelligence Committee on Thursday spent more than four-hours under tight secrecy quizzing Robert M. Gates, the No. 2 official at the Central Intelligence Agency, on what he knows about the deal that sent planeloads of arms to Iran and diverted as much as $30 million of the proceeds to Nicaragua's Contra rebels.

Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., the committee's chairman, said the committee's list of potential witnesses had been expanded and now included the National Security Council, except for the president and Vice President George Bush.

While he did not name them, that list potentially includes CIA Director William Casey, White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan, Secretary of State George P. Shultz, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and Adm. William J. Crowe, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The probe now also encompasses a long list of documents, and committee staff members were dispatched around the country Thursday to subpoena papers from a number of sources, including several businesses, Durenberger said. "We're putting together a lot of people and a lot of pieces and a lot of documents in order to come to an Speaker will help Texas' fortunes in answer, which I'm afraid the American public assumes the president already knows," Durenberger said. "If he does, it would obviously

Weinberger said in an interview in Brussels, Belgium, that it would be "clearly the exception" if the president did not know all essential details about something as important as the arms deal and the diversion of cash to Central America.

Weinberger said the episode was the result of bad advice from Reagan aides who told the president to seek rapprochement with Iranian moderates. The comment put Weinberger at odds with the White House, where spokesman Larry Speakes reiterated Reagan's belief that the policy goal was justified.

Some members of Congress were more blunt in their criticism. Said Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del.: "If the president is lying, he's finished. He is absolutely finished.

Borger bank declared insolvent

BORGER, Texas (AP) - The Panhandle Bank & Trust Co. of Borger has become the 23rd bank in Texas and the 130th in the nation to be closed this year.

The institution, with $94 million in deposits, was ordered closed Thursday by the State Banking Commission.

It was to reopen today as a part of Amarillo National Bank, said Julie Amberson, spokeswoman for the Federal Deposit Insurance

The Borger News-Herald reacted to the closing with an extra edition, only the second extra the paper has printed since the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in 1963. The last was six months ago when the First National Bank here was closed and reopened under new ownership.

Deputy banking commissioner Larry Chilton ordered Panhandle Bank & Trust Co. closed at 2 p.m., and the bank subsequently was tendered to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. for liquidation.

Chilton said the 50-year-old bank was declared insolvent due to loan losses well in excess of capital.

The majority of losses arose from "concentrated and liberal lending" in the Panhandle oil and gas industry, the commission said in Amarillo National Bank will assume about 10,400 deposit accounts and has agreed to pay the FDIC a purchase premium of $150,000. It also will purchase certain of the failed bank's loans and other assets for $70.4 million, Amberson said.

She said the bank had total assets of $106.6 million when it was

Admiral stands behind North

HOUSTON (AP) - Retired Admiral B.R. Inman says it is possible President Reagan did not know details about how money was diverted from the Iranian arms sales to Nicaraguan rebels.

But Inman, who served as deputy CIA director, also said Thursday he believed resigned national security adviser John Poindexter and his subordinate, Marine Lt. Col. Oliver North, had help in carrying out the ambitious operation.

"No lieutenant colonel, no matter how bright he is, has the time to open Swiss bank accounts, transfer funds and watch over weapons transactions," Inman told The Houston Club Forum. "It is not likely only two people knew - maybe 12 but not two."

He called on the Reagan administration to disclose all the details of the operation to congressional leaders. "They should get it over quickly," Inman said. "Any effort to stonewall only will lengthen the amount of time (of the uproar)."

All six presidents under whom Inman served had engaged in covert activities "out of frustration," he said, adding Reagan got involved in the Iran affair to get hostages out of Lebanon.

Beached whales killed by injection EASTHAM, Mass. (AP) - Volunteers who helped rescue about 25 beached whales pleaded with veterinarians not to kill other stranded animals, but officials said the lethal injections ended the whales'

One whale was launched back into the water Thursday by rescuers who slipped a tarpaulin under its 15-foot body as veterinarians prepared to administer the injection.

"It was a happy ending," volunteer Marilyn Schmidt said of the whale, which rescuers nicknamed Bianca. "She's swimming around out there right now. We ... watched her swim out to the ocean."

About 50 pilot whales beached themselves Wednesday, mostly in the vicinity of First Encounter Beach here. They averaged 15 feet in length and weighed up to 2 tons.

Rescuers and officials said Thursday about 22 had died or been put to death and about 25 had returned to sea. Two whales were being cared for in a small body of water called Salt Pond and two calves had been taken to the New England Aquarium in Boston. The larger of the calves, 450 pounds and 9 feet long, appeared to be recovering and ate 15 pounds of herring in two feedings Thursday, said aquarium spokeswoman Sandra Goldfarb. The younger calf, 300 pounds and 71/2 feet long, refused the fish, and if it continues to do so will be fed a formula similar to that given human babies, Ms. Goldfarb said.

Airline drug testing unlikely

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government, concerned about possible drug abuse in aviation, is exploring for the first time minimum federal requirements for drug testing and rehabilitation of airline employees, although officials suggested requirements for random drug testing seem unlikely.

The Transportation Department said Thursday it stands ready for suggestions from a broad spectrum of the industry on what kinds of new regulations might be needed "to help ensure the traveling public a drug-free transportation system."

"We need to find the best ways to enforce rigorous standards concerning drug and alcohol abuse" in the aviation industry, Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole said in a statement. She indicated she would not tolerate drug or alcohol abuse among workers involved in the operation of airlines.

Several Transportation Department sources, who spoke on the condition they not be identified, suggested random drug testing is unlikely to become part of the new regulatory package because of strong opposition from airline unions and expected lukewarm support from the industry.

While Mrs. Dole said the government is seeking a "comprehensive program" to deal with drug and alcohol abuse among airline employees, some senior industry officials have suggested the government has been slow to provide leadership on the subject.

The Air Transport Association, for example, proposed an outline for government regulations on drug testing and rehabilitation a year ago, and the Air Line Pilots Association, which represents more than 34,000 commercial pilots, also has tried for some months to get senior government officials to initiate new regulations.

During a recent aviation seminar, William Bolger, president of the Air Transport Association, said it was "absolutely essential" that the government establish some minimum standards for drug testing and rehabilitation programs so all airlines know what kinds of tests they can require.

Perot, Smith so much alike they couldn't share space

NEW YORK (AP) - Personality was a bigger factor than culture in breaking up the relationship of Roger Smith and H. Ross Perot, says a student of corporate society.

Oddly, the personality problems arose not from dissimilarities but because the two men were so much alike in their entrepreneurial zeal to change and rebuild General Motors Corp., the world's largest manufacturing concern, says Eugene Jennings, a professor at Michigan State University.

"In no way could the two men share the center of the room," says Jennings, who has been called on often to oversee the reorganization and rebuilding of much smaller corporations.

Jennings observes that Perot, the founder of Electronic Data Systems, whose acquisition by GM was engineered by Smith, its chairman, share many personality traits.

Among them, he says, are impatience, volatility, the inability to suffer fools gladly or to tolerate opposition, and a tendency to make quick decisions that are regretted later.

In the professor's opinion, there has been a tendency to lose sight of these similarities and to focus instead on the conflict of GM's large bureaucracy and what is viewed as EDS's more entrepreneurial corporate culture.

Jennings comments that Smith's *criticism of Smith and GM, Jennings entrepreneurial personality has been constrained by GM's management system, while Perot's has been allowed freer rein at the newer, rapidly growing, highly successful

"People told me to put him in an institution and forget about him," said Paula Hayward of Killeen, remembering the birth of her 14-year-old son, David, who has Down's syndrome.

Another disturbing comment came from a physician.

"He had written in the file, 'Mother does not know how to take care of child," Mrs. Hayward said.

At the time, the physician had not detected the Down's syndrome and blamed her for the boy's inability to breast-feed.

"He was 9 months old when I told the doctor he had Down's," Mrs. Hayward said.

Down's syndrome is a chromosomal defect that occurs in an average of one of every 650 births. Its exact cause is unknown, but the risk of having a child with Down's syndrome increases after a woman reaches age 35.

It is characterized by such physical features as slanting eyes, a flat nose, small head and short, stubby hands Reconstructive surgery can be performed to remove the telltale signs, but few people opt for Down's syndrome may be accompanied by heart disorders, poor vision and respiratory problems. The degree of mental retardation can range from severe to very mild. "Very little was known about Down's sydrome when (my daughter) was born" 31 years ago, said Dr. Lula Lubchenco Josephson, retired professor of pediatrics at the University of Colorado Health Science Center in Denver.

"They called them Mongolian idiots," she said. "It was such a negative term. Doctors strongly recommended that you didn't take them home from the hospital."

Cyrene Baskett, a social worker at the Heart of Texas Center for Mental Health Mental Retardation who leads a Down's syndrome support group, said some people still give up babies for adoption without ever seeing them.

But more people than ever recognize that most people with Down's sydndrome are capable of living normal lives.

Mrs. Josephson's daughter, Gretchen, works as a busgirl at a Denver restaurant. She relies on the bus for transportation and lived alone until moving back in with her mother when her father died. She was married for a brief period but later had the union annulled. She attends church, enjoys country music and takes vacations.

"Some people can't face the issue of Down's and walk away," Gretchen said while accompanying her mother on a visit this fall to Scott & White Memorial Hospital in Temple. "They don't want to know about it."

But once familiar with Down's, many people no longer fear it. Four mothers of Down's syndrome children interviewed by the Tribune Herald said they were willing to have another Down's child.

All had pregnancies since the birth of their Down's children, but they chose not to have an amniocentesis, a prenatal test that can detect Down's syndrome and other birth defects.

"Abortion was not an option, regardless of the way the test came out," said Mrs. Gentry. "My husband and I decided that if we have another Down's child, we will."

linebacker Cornelius Bennett believes his performance on the field, not his silence off it, helped him win the 17th annual Lombardi

"I guess my plays on the field showed (the media) that I wasn't a hot dog, that I was out there doing my job," Bennett said Thursday night after being the first Alabama player to win the award honoring the nation's outstanding college football

Bennett said he started being called a "hot dog" after refusing to talk to the media much of the first half of

was announced. In garnering the award, Bennett became the second linebacker to win the honor since it first was awarded in 1970. Tim Stillwagon of Ohio State, the first recipient, was a linebacker.

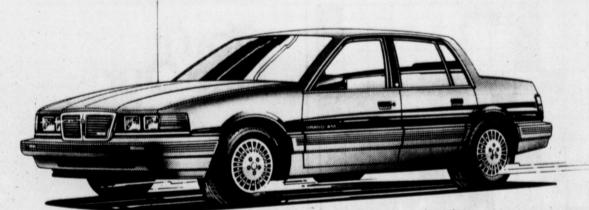

Other finalists for the award voted on by 208 sportswriters and broadcasters were University of Miami tackle Jerome Brown and linebackers Brian Bosworth of Oklahoma, and Ohio State's Chris Spielman. All four finalists were All-Americans this season.

Beginnings of Heisman Trophy recalled

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

America was in the depths of the Depression in 1934 when officials at the Downtown Athletic Club approached Frank Eliscu, a young New York sculptor, and asked him to design a trophy for them.

Trophies never have been terribly popular jobs among sculptors.

"Nobody wanted to do them," Eliscu said. "It was like doing a doll's head. It was no big thing. It was not like a portrait bust or a monument in a park."

It was instead to be a monument to the best college football player in the

And sculptor Eliscu, 20 years old, out of work and facing an economy that was more concerned with surviving from day to day than it was with fine art, was hardly in a position to turn down the assignment.

Especially when the DAC came up with $500 as a fee.

"It was my first commissioned job, my first important work," he said. "I had exhibited at te National work and recommended me. I was very excited about it."

Using his imagination, Eliscu submitted three wax proposals for examination by the DAC. The committee studying the work included Hall

"I needed somebody with a uniform and equipment," the sculptor said. "He was a big guy, a friend, and I asked him to do me a favor. He knew how to pose."

What Smith did not know until a few years ago was that he had posed for the most prestigious award in collegiate sports.

"I really didn't know what it was for," Smith said. "He was a sculptor who had a studio in Greenwich Village. He was looking for somebody who looked like a football player and he knew just what he wanted. He told me to do what a football player would do if somebody was coming at him."

Smith, a single-wing fullback in college, assumed the classic

"The work took three weeks to a month to complete and Smith posed

Later, Eliscu would do other important work including the doors at the Library of Congress. Nothing, however, has been more significant for him than the Heisman.

"No candidate ever worked harder trying to win that trophy than I did creating it," said Eliscu, who will travel to New York from his home in Sarasota Fla. for Saturday night's 52nd Heisman presentation. "There is more than bronze in that trophy. There is love in it.'

ter is prompted by the plea from 'Determined in Minnesota," the bulimia-stricken young mother. I can't tell you how many times I have picked up my pen and started the same letter when I was desperate and alone with my disease.

Your advice was right on target. Determination and willpower have absolutely nothing to do with bulimia. Every morning for three years I woke up and swore to myself that I was NOT going to binge and purge. In less than four hours, I was in the grocery store buying whatever appealed to me at the moment, filing up my cart with cookies, potato chips, doughnuts, ice cream, frankfurters, peanut butter and candy bars. Then I'd break out in a nervous sweat when I paid the cashier because I felt so guilty

When I got home I'd stuff my face until my stomach looked like I was six months pregnant. I'd make myself vomit and become so weak I shook for 15 minutes.

Three months ago I knew if I didn't put an end to my bizarre behavior I would either die form the illness or kill myself. I entered the Baylor University Medical Center Disorder Unit in Dallas. For two days I did nothing but cry. Then I began to meet dozens of people who didn't think I was disgusting or nuts. They were men and women who had been afflicted with the same problem, some for as long as 15 years. They all admitted that they were powerless when it came to food, just as the alcoholic is powerless when it comes to alcohol. The difference is that the alcoholic need not take another drink. The bulimic must eat food every day.

The program at Baylor is patterned after Alcoholics Anonymous, Ann; it really works.

I have been out in the real world for six weeks. I am living one day at a time. I am not looking ahead a month or a year. All I want to do is get through today. I know I am going to make it because I have found the formula. God bless the support group

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This let- associated with the clinic and the wonderful therapists who will help me if I weaken.

Please keep telling people who write with this problem to quit trying to conquer it alone. They are fighting a losing battle. They must get with some professionals or join Overeaters Anonymous or another self-help group. The listings are in the phone book. Or the nearest university can provide guidance. Just ask for the psychology department or the department of nutrition. I'm signing my letter - HELLO SUN-GOODBYE HELL SHINE.

DEAR HELLO, GOODBYE: Your letter was a long one but I couldn't bear to cut it. You helped a lot of people today. Thanks and God bless

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've been going with a very attractive man for nearly three months. He was married to a woman called Dolly for five years. He has called me by her name at least six times. I laugh it off but actually it is quite upsetting.

I, too, was married before. My husband's name was Larry but I have never called this guy Larry - not even once. What does this mean? Is my fella still torching for Dolly? Did Larry mean less to me than I

DEAR OHIO: I believe slips of the tongue, contrary to what some experts say, often have no real significance. But if your honey is still in touch with Dolly it might be wise to ask how often he sees her, and

Do you feel awkward, selfconscious - lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, selfaddressed envelope to Ann Landers. P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois areas of Nepal in the Himilayas. In the midst of this situation, the gospel comes through the actions of the United Mission Hospital operated by the cooperation of the Presbyterian Church and other demoninations. All the equipment for this ministry of compassion must be carried in on the backs of people because the terrain is so rough. Prayers are requested for this needy

Most people realize there is positive and negative stress, however, a Texas Christian University psychologist said many may not realize that both kinds ar equally stressful. Stress is the body's non-specific response to any demand placed on it," said Dr. Hap Klinefelter. A persons attitude toward stress is the determining factor to how it will affect them. Klinefelter said. He advised planning for the holidays by taking time to remember past years. Try to avoid situations that caused stress in the past.

Cartoonists to urge boycott

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Many of the country's best-known editorial cartoonists plan to use their newspaper and magazine spots to protest the sale of war toys for Christmas, a time when much of the world celebrates peace on Earth.

"Our cartoons ask America to put Gumby, not Rambo, under the Christmas tree," said Bob Staake, a St. Louis free-lance cartoonist who is organizing the effort. "At a time when we are supposed to be celebrating peace, it seems insane to turn war into a Christmas present."

More than 40 editorial cartoonists, including nine Pulitzer Prize winners, plan to take part in an effort to keep parents from giving their children toys with violent themes, Staake said Tuesday. When I see these products it is like looking into (Marine Lt. Col.) Oliver North's garage," Pulitzerwinner Ben Sargent, who draws for the Austin (Texas) American Statesman, quipped in a reference to the ex-National Security Council staff member involved in clandestine

'There are some fierce-looking weapons out there," Sargent said.

The cartoonists have agreed to draw anti-war-toy cartoons for editorial pages Dec. 10-24, Staake said. Other Pulitzer-winners supporting the effort include Tony Auth of The Philadelphia Inquirer; Paul Conrad. Los Angeles Times; Tom Darcy, Newsday; Dick Lochner, Chicago Tribune: Eugene Payne. The Charlotte (N.C.) Observer; Mike Peters, Dayton (Ohio) Daily News; and Don Wright, The Miami

Cartoonists who draw many of the strips on the nation's funny pages have used their comics this year and last at Thanksgiving to draw attention to the plight of the hungry, in Africa and in the United States.

Toy companies like Coleco Industries Inc., the manufacturer of Rambo Action Figures, and Hasbro Inc., the maker of G.I. Joe Action Figures, will feel the satiric wit of the cartoonists' so-called "educational campaign" this year, according to Paul Szep, a Pulitzer Prizewinner for the Boston Globe.

The G.I. Joe line of action figures and accessories now ranks first in sales at the nation's toy stores, according to Jodi Levin, spokeswoman for the Toy Manufacturer's Association of America.

War toys account for 35 percent of all individual toy sales, Staake said

Szep criticized what he said was the "massive proliferation" of afterschool TV commercials promoting war toys. The commercials turn children into "incessant nags' demanding bigger and better war toys, he said.

There has to be some psychological effect," Szep said."We always talk about world peace, but we are raising our kids on war.'

Ms. Levin said the blame lies at

"I don't have any sympathy for parents who cannot discipline their kids," she said. "If parents don't want to turn their kids into superconsumers, they should discipline them and decide what they watch."

Coleco spokesman Barbara Wruck agreed. She also said the cartoonists are trying to decide what other people should buy.

"No one group or facet of the population has the right to decide what anyone can or cannot buy," Ms. Wruck said."A larger portion of the population believes action figures are a form of entertainment that is not responsible for the country's

Trolley cars to be restored

ment is under way after a volunteer group and the Job Corps agreed to dust off trolley cars that were once part of an international mass transport system.

"We'll help with the materials, which we hope will be donated," said Cookie Mapula, secretary of the Paso Del Norte Streetcar Preservation Society. "Some of our people had been working on them, but it was hard because these are people who have full-time jobs," she added. El Paso's trolley system began in 1880 with muledrawn streetcars taking passengers between El Paso and Juarez. Mexico, over the Rio Grande on the Paso del Norte Bridge.

David Carrasco, director of the El Paso Job Corps Center, said the partnership is a learning opportunity for some of the 450 young people being taught trade skills at the

"Not only that, but we like the idea of serving the community," said Carrasco after the agreement was announced Tuesday. "There's a mystique in a restoration project like this, in that some say it can't be done, and we are looking forward to being part of a great victory."

Attorney David Chew, society president, said he hopes to obtain the help of the Fort -Bliss 70th Ordinance Battalion, which in March transported the cars from the old city storage barn to their current location.

Chew said he sees the part-

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - A nership with the Job Corps streetcar restoration move- resulting in "the only training school in the nation for working on electrical cars.'

The nine cars are now on federal land and the society must pay $1,500 a month in rent to keep them there, said Ms. Mapula. The new, openair location isn't any better, as the vehicles are exposed to the elements and even more rapid deterioration, she said.

A new batch of cars arrived. in El Paso in 1937 from San Diego. The privately-owned service continued until 1973. when Juarez merchants complained that the cars were taking shoppers away from them and into El Paso, said Ms. Mapula.

The city ran the system for another year then put it out of commission. The year-old society of about 50 members leased the cars from the city last March.

"They were getting ready to scrap them and San Diego wanted to get them back,' said Ms. Mapula.

Recently, the Preservation Society purchased a 1902 car from a local family that had it in its back yard, said Ms. Mapulo.

'What we'd like to do eventually is festore service to south El Paso Street." she said. "If we could talk Juarez into it, maybe have it going across the river again."

Most of the tracks on which the system ran in downtown El Paso are now under asphalt as streets have been resurfaced over the years. Juarez officials pulled out the tracks on their side of the

Rates drop

Communications has cut its by AT&T to Southwestern long-distance rates within Texas by 10 percent in line with a new rate structure approved last week by the Public Utility Commission, company officials said.

The reductions, totalling about $112 million, follow final approval last week by the Public Utility Commis-

The reduced rates - which went into effect on Monday affect long distance calls, both incoming and outgoing WATS service, and long distance directory assistance, AT&T spokesman Steve Parrino said.

The company said the lower prices are the result of AUSTIN (AP) - AT&T reduced access charges paid Bell and independent telephone companies in Texas, as well as lower payments to Bell for providing billing and collection services for AT&T.

> Under the new rates, a 5-minute daytime call from Dallas to Houston, San Antonio or Austin will be $1.86 instead of $2.02. A 10-minute evening call drops from $3.02 to $2.78, and a 10-minute weekend call falls from $2.41

Company officials said the lower rates are the result of lower access charges paid by AT&T to Southwestern Bell and other local telephone companies in Texas.

The Newspaper BIBLE

IT'S EITHER/OR; NOT BOTH/AND

What I am saying is that those who offer food to these idols are united together in sacrificing to demons, certainly not to God. And I don't want any of you to be partners with demons when you eat the same food, along with the heathen, that has been offered to these idols. You cannot drink from the cup at the Lord's Table and at Satan's table, too. You cannot eat bread both at the Lord's Table and at Satan's table. (I Corinthians 10:20-21)

Don't be teamed with those who do not love the Lord, for what do the people of God have in common with the people of sin? How can light live with darkness? And what harmony can there be between Christ and the devil? How can a Christian be a partner with one who doesn't believe? And what union can there be between God's temple and idols? For you are God's temple, the home of the living God, and God has said to you, "I will live in them and walk among them, and I will be their God and they shall be my people." That is why the Lord has said, "Leave them; separate yourselves from them; don't touch their filthy things, and I will welcome you, and be a Father to you, and you will be my sons and daughters. (II Corinthians 6:14-18)

And if you are not faithful with other people's money, why should you be entrusted with money of your own? For neither you nor anyone else can serve two masters. You will hate one and show loyalty to the other, or else the other way around--you will be enthusiastic about one and despise the other. You cannot serve both God and money." (Luke 16:12-13)
