Robertson says Texas win is key

By EVAN RAMSTAD
Associated Press Writer

Republican presidential hopeful Pat Robertson said he believes the candidate who wins Texas in the March 8 Super Tuesday primary, will end up in the White House.

One of Robertson's opponents, Kansas Sen. Robert Dole, and a leading Democrat, Mass. Gov. Michael Dukakis, joined the former television evangelist on the Texas campaign stump Friday.

"I don't have to tell you March 8 is critical. I believe whoever wins the southern Super Tuesday Primary in the Republican Party and comes out of here the winner in Texas will be the next president," Robertson told 3,000 cheering supporters at a rally in Fort Worth Friday night.

With the crowd cheering and chanting, "Go, Pat, Go," he declared: "I absolutely promise you if you win Texas for me, I will be the next president of the United States of America."

The rally capped a day of campaign stops in Texas for the former television evangelist, including speeches in Dallas and Sherman.

"It's wonderful to be in a place where you're not ashamed to stand in front of the American flag and talk about God ... and freedom," said Robertson, who was a no-show at a Dallas debate for Republican candidates last week.

In Sherman, Robertson attacked GOP front-runner Vice President George Bush by mimicking Bush's tactic of emphasizing his connection to states in which he's campaigning.

"I've lived in the South all my life and I'm running against a guy who said in New Hampshire 'I was born in Connecticut. I lived in Maine and I'm one of you.' Well, I was born in Virginia. I have a television station in Dallas and I'm one of you," Robertson said.

Bush was born in the East, but lists a Houston hotel room as his legal residence and often returns to Texas to vote.

Robertson told the audience at Austin College that he favors an income tax break for families that raise "God-fearing, law-abiding children."

Dole, campaigning in Houston, received the endorsement of former Texas Gov. John Connally, who called Dole a "tough" candidate who would bring toughness to the White House.

"I think today our campaign goes up another notch," Dole said after receiving the endorsement.

Dukakis spoke at the University of Texas' Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs and likened his candidacy to that of John F. Kennedy and LBJ.

"They didn't talk about building walls around the country. They didn't talk about hunkering down. They went to us with a message of hope and optimism and strength," Dukakis said.

Hereford seniors love SCC

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

After a dozen years of organization and three years in its new building, the love affair is still on between the area's older citizens and the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

"There is nothing else in town that can come close to what this center does," said Robert Thompson. "This center transcends religious barriers, political ideas, racial lines. It can be everything to everybody."

The association began in the mid-70s, meeting for many years in the old Central School on West Fourth in Hereford.

"Most of the members had gone to school in the building," Thompson said. "It was built in about 1906 or something." The group started with 12 charter members, and quickly gained popularity.

"At first, we had our meals brought over from the Hereford High School," Thompson said. "We soon grew too big for that, and built some cafeteria facilities." Lunch had to be eaten in shifts, too, because there was room for only about 40 persons at a time.

Now, about 400 people have lunch served by the center. About 300 eat at the center. Some days, over 150 meals are served to homebound or weatherbound residents.

"It kind of depends on the weather, how many meals we serve out of the center," Thompson said. "Today (Thursday) it snowed so a lot of people didn't get out."

Kenneth Duncan, 21, volunteers time every day to help with the home deliveries. "I delivered 73 meals today," Kenneth said. The meals are delivered in one of the center's three vans—two are driven by volunteer drivers, while another is driven by a paid driver.

"He doesn't just drive for lunches," Thompson explained. "He picks up people and brings them to the center, takes them back home—just about anywhere they need to go."

The center, though, is not just for eating and meeting.

At just about any given time, you'll see a group of women making a quilt in one of the back rooms.

"They've sold some of their quilts for $400 and more," Thompson said. "Some of them are custom-ordered with grandkids or the family tree or something. Other times they just make a quilt."

Another popular pastime is dominoes.

"This room is pretty well full all of the time," Thompson said, pointing out 10 domino tables going full-steam.

In quieter climes, two bridge tables are in action.

"We only serve meals Monday through Friday, but these rooms are usually in use on Saturday," Thompson said. On Sundays, the Center is usually used for receptions of one sort or another.

"They have most of the receptions in the large room now," Thompson said, "but this room (a parlor originally intended for receptions) is beautiful. It's just a little too small for the crowds we usually get."

The center boasts a dues-paying membership of over 800, but you don't have to be a member to use the center, or to eat at meals open to the public.

"We estimate we provide some kind of service to about 1,200 people," Thompson said. "Of those, some don't pay anything, some pay 50 cents for a meal, some the suggested donation ($1.50 for senior citizens, $2.75 for guests), but some kick in extra."

"It's not uncommon for someone to drop a $10 or $20 bill in the donation box for meals," Thompson said. "And I've had more than one check put into my hands for $500 or $1,000. Thanks to these very, very generous people, we've never been in the red."

"Of course, our volunteers help a lot with that. We have over 100 volunteers that help with everything."

"We're extremely happy we have this center. It just does so much good for so many, many people."

The center's choir is one of the most heard-about-town activities.

Trial set for Mecham

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A last-minute plea by Gov. Evan Mecham's new defense team failed to win a delay in his impeachment trial as the Arizona Supreme Court refused to intercede.

The four justices who heard his appeal for an emergency stay Friday cited constitutional separation of powers in refusing to intervene in the trial scheduled to begin in the state Senate Monday.

However, they said they would consider a more detailed request during the court's regular conference Tuesday.

Senate Minority Leader Alan Stephens, a Democrat, predicted the justices would not interfere with the nation's first impeachment trial of a governor in half a century.

The court's rebuff to Mecham capped a turbulent day for the first-term Republican governor, who also faces criminal charges of concealing a $350,000 campaign loan.

First, Mecham's chief lawyer, Murray Miller of Phoenix, disclosed he had resigned. Taking his place was Jerris Leonard, a Washington lawyer and former assistant attorney general under President Nixon.

"We brought in a number of new people and Murray chose to leave," Mecham told The Associated Press Friday night. "We parted as friends. I've got the best of representation."

Leonard and another addition to the defense team, Thomas Crowe, promptly launched a last-ditch effort to win a delay that the Senate had refused to grant Wednesday night.

By late Friday afternoon, they had filed a stack of legal documents with the Supreme Court, and the emergency hearing was granted.

Crowe argued that the governor's constitutional right to due process would be violated if the Senate judged him before a jury trial.

Mecham was impeached Feb. 5 on a 46-14 House vote, forcing him to turn over power temporarily to Secretary of State Rose Mofford.

Several days later, the House approved 23 impeachment articles, charging Mecham with concealing the $350,000 loan to his 1986 campaign, misusing $80,000 from the governor's protocol fund by lending it to his auto dealership, and trying to thwart an investigation of an alleged death threat by a state official.

Services set for Hill

Foster Hill, prominent rancher and cattleman and a native of Deaf Smith County, died Friday in Aspermont. He was 61 years of age.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 2 p.m. in First Baptist Church with Doug Manning, retired Baptist minister, officiating. Burial will be in West Park Cemetery under direction of Rix Funeral Directors of Hereford.

Mr. Hill was born in Hereford. He was married to Jean Tilton in 1945 at Hereford. He was a veteran of World War II. Mr. Hill was a member of First Baptist Church and the American Quarter Horse Association.

Survivors include his wife; two daughters, Trisha Lemons of Hereford and Cherrie Gentry of Amarillo; two sons, Bill and Terry, both of Clovis, N.M.; his mother, Mrs. O.G. (Bessie) Hill of Hereford; a brother, O.G. Hill Jr. of Hereford; two sisters, Orvella Daniels and Mozelle Neill, both of Hereford; and nine grandchildren.

McAllen is U.S. hot spot

WASHINGTON (AP) — McAllen, Texas, was the hottest community in the 48 contiguous states last year, capturing first place after years as an also-ran.

Gunnison, Colo., meanwhile, retained its status as the coldest city. It has been so since 1965.

The annual analysis of the nation's hottest and coldest communities, a list often challenged by residents of towns that are not included, was released Thursday by Weatherwise magazine.

David H. Hickcox, a geographer at Ohio Wesleyan University, compiled the list, basing his decision on the number of days a community recorded either the nation's highest or lowest temperature.

McAllen captured first place by recording the nation's highest daily temperature on 49 different dates in 1987, moving the city on the Mexican border up from third place the year before.

It captured the sweltering honors in 1987 by edging out Bullhead City, Ariz., which was the nation's hottest place on 48 days, one fewer than McAllen.

At the other end of the scale, Gunnison seems frozen in the top place. The Rocky Mountain community was the nation's coldest on 43 days in 1987, according to Hickcox's records. It was also the nation's coldest community in 1986, and 1985 after placing second in 1984 and third in 1983.

While he compiles the annual listings, Hickcox characterizing the communities as the nation's "premier" hot and cold cities. He notes, however, that other systems of measurement are also possible. Using annual averages or the most extreme temperatures, for example, might result in other findings, he says.

But the study does give a sense of which places are hottest and coldest most often.

The report covers only National Weather Service reports from populated communities and does not include Alaska and Hawaii.

The lowest low recorded in 1987 was -45 degrees at Warrond, Minn., on Jan. 24, the report found. The highest high was 124 degrees, set at Death Valley, Calif., on both July 14 and Aug. 3.

Man suspected of fraud

An Hispanic male sold a Hereford merchant $100 worth of calendars Friday, but the address and phone number on the invoice are fraudulent, said police.

The man calling himself Gilberto Gil sold Pablo Villarreal, owner of Villarreal & Sons Bakery & Mexican Products at 147 N. Main St., 300 calendars worth $100 with a down payment of $32.

Villarreal noticed Gil recorded his address incorrectly on the invoice and called the San Antonio number on the invoice to change it. The woman living at the number said she knew nothing about calendars.

"She was mad," said Villarreal. "She said I wasn't the only one that had been calling down there."

Villarreal said he also called the calendar's manufacturer, but even the manufacturer was nonexistent.

Villarreal described Gil as being in his late 20s or early 30s and weighing 160 pounds.

Police arrested a 49-year-old man on charges of assault in the 400 block of Ave. D after assaulting his wife.

Offenses include three 13-packs of beer stolen from an Allsup's Convenience Store Saturday; Friday, two men were reportedly disturbing Hereford High School students at lunch; a radar detector was taken from an unlocked vehicle in the 600 block of Ave. J;

Someone had forced open the front door at a residence in the 300 block of Ave. I but nothing was missing;

A bicycle was stolen from the 700 block of Blevins St.; harassment was reported in the 200 block of Ave. D; a baby sitter reported that a man had knocked on the door and stated he was to attend a party there in the 300 block of Hickory St.

Police reported one minor accident, and firefighters were called to a fire in the 100 block of Beach St.

DSHD board to meet

The Deaf Smith County Hospital District board will meet Monday at 5 p.m. at Deaf Smith General Hospital.

The meeting will be held to approve a contract agreement with a physical therapist.

The meeting is open to the public.

WDIC nominations still open

Nominations for the Economic Development Strategy Council, which will coordinate the effort to develop a Strategic Plan for Economic Development, are open through 5 p.m. Tuesday at the Waste Deposit Impact Committee office at 201 Park.

Nominations may be made in person, by calling WDIC at 364-4445, or by contacting a WDIC board member.

Nine persons will be chosen to fill open spots on the EDSC, and should be willing to be actively involved in the work of the council and able to help meet a final deadline of May 31.

Classes to be offered

Amarillo College and the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission will offer business education courses in Hereford beginning March 7.

AC and PRPC will also offer classes in reading, math and communications for persons ages 17-21 who are high school dropouts, and to adults who are enrolled in the AFDC program through the Texas Department of Human Services.

Applications will be taken this week at the Hereford Community Center during regular business hours.

Texas executions take place in dead of night

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas kills its condemned in the dead of night.

It may stem from a subconscious societal need for secrecy, or perhaps the dread of crowds and publicity. The law requires it, but in the end, nobody is sure exactly why.

"Whenever the sentence of death is pronounced against a convict, the sentence shall be executed at any time before the hour of sunrise on the day set for the execution," says the state's death penalty law.

Dean Cobb sponsored that law when it was approved in 1973. He does not know why it included the death-at-night provision, other than that is the way the state has always done it.

"As far as the time is concerned, I don't remember," said Cobb, an Austin lawyer who authored the death penalty bill when he was a Dumas state representative. "I recall an old sheriff up in the Panhandle telling me that the reason they didn't do it until late at night was there was less chance of family and friends showing up."

Cobb's bill re-instated the Texas death penalty after the U.S. Supreme Court cleared the way for the resumption of executions. The pre-sunrise provision was carried over from the state's previous capital punishment law, approved in the early 1920s.

Prior to that, the condemned were killed in the county of their crime.

The Texas Department of Corrections begins executions as soon as possible after midnight on the death date set by a district judge. In many cases, the convict is dead by 12:30 a.m.

But a recent execution, the Jan. 7 lethal-injection death of Robert Streetman, was not over until 3:26 a.m. because of last-minute legal spats and a measure of uncertainty about their outcome.

Death penalty proponents say the last-minute appeals of a death row inmate are not compromised by the hour of execution.

Capital punishment opponents are split: Some say it can be a life-or-death problem, while others say the hour of death is just a curiosity about the most final power a society has given itself.

"It's inevitable there are going to be cases that go down to the wire. What is not inevitable is to have a Keystone Cops situation at the end. I think the Streetman execution was Keystone Cops," said George Kendall, staff counsel for the American Civil Liberties Union capital litigation project in Atlanta.

"It makes it very difficult," said Will Gray of Houston, a defense lawyer who has represented several death row inmates. "These judges don't like to work at anytime, in particular at night or weekends. It doesn't create very good feelings with them when you are compelled to do this at the last minute."

Gray said the nighttime executions create an aura of "a bunch of thieves killing somebody."

But Streetman's lawyer, Robert

McGlasson, said the hour of death is a low-priority issue.

"A much more important question is, 'Does the guy have an attorney? Is the guy crazy? Has he ever been examined by anybody other than a state prison doctor, who maybe doesn't even speak English?'" said McGlasson, who is with the University of Texas capital punishment clinic and handled Streetman's last-minute appeals.

"Texas is not the only state that executes its citizens at night. Many states do it when there is no light being shed on the face of the Earth. There is probably some collective sense of need for secrecy," McGlasson said.

TDC spokesman Charles Brown said prison officials view nighttime executions as "another means for control of crowds."

"You figure after midnight, there's not going to be a lot of people out there," Brown said. "It's more convenient."

Rider Scott, general counsel for Gov. Bill Clements, said the hour

"It's more difficult to get a stay at midnight than in the daytime. You've got to round up judges, and if they don't want to be found..."

—Jimmy Vanderbilt, Amarillo death row inmate

"I recall an old sheriff up in the Panhandle telling me that the reason they didn't do it until late at night was there was less chance of family and friends showing up."

—Dean Cobb, former Dumas lawmaker is of no moment.

"In terms of mechanics (of completing an execution), I don't think one hour is different from any other. It's an issue of having finality to the sentence," Scott said, adding that death row inmates' last-minute appeals are not unfairly stifled by the hour.

In addition to the courtroom efforts, death row inmates can ask the governor for a 30-day reprieve. None has been granted since Texas resumed executions in December 1982.

Executions in Texas — there have been 27 of them, the most in the nation, since December 1982 — have become routine enough to go unnoticed by many Texans. Gara LaMarche, executive director of the Texas Civil Liberties Union, said that is part of the problem.

"I'm not sure we don't do executions late at night because it minimizes press attention," he said.

The early-morning executions miss most morning newspaper deadlines. By the next day, it's yesterday's news.

"Even though we have a large majority that say they support the death penalty, it's one of those things people prefer to have done out of view. They say they want it done, but they don't want to be too immersed in the details of it. That's what perpetuates the tradition," LaMarche said.

"There is no reason whatsoever to do it in the middle of the night except the psychic concerns of corrections people who are concerned about unrest and anxiety and the potential for disturbance. That's not a terribly significant worry, and it's probably largely fictitious," said Henry Schwarzschild of New York, director of the ACLU capital punishment project.

Texas death row inmate Calvin Williams, who won a last-hour stay of his scheduled Feb. 11 execution for killing a Houston woman in 1980, said that "people should know what's going on. I want people to see. I don't want it in the middle of the night."

Jim Vanderbilt, convicted in the 1975 abduction-slaying of an Amarillo girl, said TDC likes to kill the condemned at night because "it's more difficult to get a stay at midnight than in the daytime."

"You've got to round up judges, and if they don't want to be found..." he said.

But Bob Walt, an assistant Texas attorney general who represents the state in appeals filed by death row inmates, said the condemned always have been able to find judges to hear the final appeals.

"These are normal business hours for the judges. They adjust to the system," he said, adding that defense lawyers could avoid last-minute problems by making their appeals earlier.

The nation's top judicial officer recently said he wants to find a better way to handle the last-minute appeals. In a Jan. 27 speech, U.S. Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist called the current system "disjointed and chaotic."

Rehnquist's remarks were not addressed to the time of day of executions, but to the last-gasp court fights that immediately precede executions.

"We judges have no right to insist that matters such as these proceed at a leisurely pace... but I think we do have a claim to have explored the possibility of imposing some reasonable regulations," Rehnquist said.

In the end, executions at night are fair, said Scott, the governor's general counsel.

"We certainly seek to protect all legal rights of the accused, but there must be an ending point," he said. "The individuals involved as defendants in capital litigation didn't accord their victim the same due process they received. They were generally summarily executed in the middle of the night with no judge, no jury, no Supreme Court and no defense attorney."

at 365.25 days, while it really was 365.2422 days. That means Sosigenes was about 11 minutes off over the course of a year.

"Although Caesar and his astronomer were long gone before anyone noticed it, some 1,500 years later, 11 minutes per year had added up to a whopping 10 days," Cleere said. "And so, the seasons were slipping backwards again — spring into winter, winter into fall, and so on."

That prompted the current calendar, instituted by Pope Gregory in 1582, who dropped the offending 10 days — a change that took a while to be accepted in non-Catholic countries. Indeed, England and her colonies didn't join in until 1752, by which time the error had grown to 11 days. Japan came over in 1873, China in 1911 and Russia held out until its Bolshevik Revolution in 1917.

That's why many history books refer to dates during the transition period as either "old style" or "new style" depending on whether a country was following the Julian or Gregorian calendar at the time.

Mix of state, local issues on Super Tuesday ballots

By MIKE SILVERMAN
Associated Press Writer

The battle for the White House won't be the only thing on the minds of some Super Tuesday voters. In Mississippi, they'll begin choosing a new senator; in Louisiana's 4th District they may elect a new congressman, and in Monroe, N.C., they'll decide whether to legalize sales of mixed drinks.

Of the 20 mostly Southern and border states holding presidential primaries and caucuses March 8, four — Arkansas, Mississippi, Maryland and Texas — are holding their regular state primaries at the same time.

But even in places where the state primary will be held later, officials have slipped statewide or local issues onto the Super Tuesday ballot.

"It's a cost-effective measure and it would tend to draw a larger turnout for both issues," explains Jim Hamilton of the Florida division of elections.

In Mississippi, the retirement of Sen. John C. Stennis after 41 years has sparked a close Democratic primary race between Rep. Wayne Dowdy and Secretary of State Dick Molpus. Ed Cole, state Democratic chairman, says the combination of the presidential and Senate primaries "should ensure a pretty good turnout." Rep. Trent Lott is unopposed for the GOP nomination.

In Maryland and Texas, Democratic Sens. Lloyd Bentsen and Paul Sarbanes faces token challenges for renomination and will be heavily favored over whichever Republicans win their party's nominations. Texas also has primaries for five of nine seats on its Supreme Court, which has become a political battleground with two justices publicly reprimanded, two others quitting and Republicans hoping to achieve an unprecedented majority.

Arkansas features a heated Democratic primary in the 1st Congressional District, where 10-term Rep. Bill Alexander is challenged by campaign consultant Darrell Glascock, who says the incumbent neglects his district and spends too much time jetting to Central America.

The Texas secretary of state estimated it would have cost $12 million extra to hold separate state and presidential primaries. Bob Fisher of the Arkansas attorney general's office said the two parties would have had to "raise filing fees to an unholly amount" to finance separate primaries.

In Louisiana, voters in the 4th District will select a replacement in the U.S. House for Gov.-elect Buddy Roemer, who takes office on March 14. Roemer asked that the balloting be scheduled for Super Tuesday to cut down on election costs in his financially strapped state.

Nine Democrats and one Republican are competing in the open primary in which a candidate is electd if he receives a majority. Otherwise, the top two finishers compete in a runoff. The field includes former Rep. Claude "Buddy" Leach, who lost to Roemer in 1980 following Leach's acquittal on vote-buying charges.

In Georgia, legislators added a statewide referendum to the ballot with the hope of bolstering turnout for the presidential primary. The measure asks voters whether to increase from $8,000 to $10,000 the amount of gross income people 62 and older may receive and still be exempt from some school and property taxes.

In North Carolina, referendums on whether to permit mixed drink sales are scheduled in Monroe and three other cities and counties.

"This is an excellent way to avoid the cost of a separate election," said state Treasurer Harlan Boyles. "In Wake County, for example, they're having a separate election and it will cost something like $100,000."

In Tennessee, state Election Coordinator David Haines estimates that about 40 of 95 counties will hold their primaries for tax assessor and school superintendent on March 8, mainly to save money.

Dallas police officer killed

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas police officer trying to stop an attempted robbery of a grocery store manager was shot and killed, becoming the third officer in two months to die in the line of duty in two months.

Police Chief Billy Prince said Officer Gary D. McCarthy, 33, died at Parkland Memorial Hospital shortly after 9 p.m. Friday, four hours after the shootout at Brancato's Warehouse market in West Dallas.

After being shot three times, including once in the heart, McCarthy returned fire at the attacker and two others in a car before they sped away.

"It makes you feel horrible. The officers in the department all feel bad. We are the people who worked with him, loved him," Prince said.

"I'm angry at a system that permits so many people to be out on the streets. I only hope when we catch them, they will get the justice they deserve. They should get the death penalty, and they should get it immediately, not 10 years from now."

The gunman and two others remained at-large early Saturday, but Investigator Lloyd Watkins said the armed man has been identified. A car believed to be the one used by the three suspects was found a few blocks away.

One of the bullets fired at McCarthy, who served on the Dallas force for 14 months, lodged in a ventricle of his heart, Parkland spokeswoman Paula Sears said.

McCarthy was in surgery for more than three hours and died after his family authorized doctors to take him off life-support systems, Ms. Sears said.

McCarthy, who was clad in street clothes, was escorting the store's manager, Mark DeCardenas, from a bank visit when a man jumped out of a car and to rob the manager, police Sgt. S.G. Shaw said.

"The officer went for his weapon and they got into a shootout," Shaw said.

Robertson rally set here Monday night

The Deaf Smith Chapter of "Americans for Robertson" will hold a campaign rally Monday, Feb. 29, beginning at 7 p.m. in the Hereford Community Center ballroom.

All interested voters are invited to attend the rally, according to Randy Tooley, Deaf Smith County coordinator for the Robertson chapter. The rally will feature a 25-minute video on "Pat Robertson, Who Is The Man?" Several Hereford citizens will also speak in support of the candidate.

SPS offers $14.4 million rate reduction to cities

Southwestern Public Service Company (SPS) and a committee representing the cities SPS serves in Texas have agreed to $14.4 million, or 3.1%, overall reduction in electric rates for SPS's residential, commercial, industrial and other retail customers.

Of that amount, $10.9 million is applicable to customers within the city limits of the communities SPS serves in Texas. The remainder would apply to rural areas when approved by the Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUCT).

The decrease reflects lower SPS costs of providing service, principally through savings made possible by federal tax reform, said Sam Hunter, SPS vice president of rates and economic research. Effective with SPS's current fiscal year, federal tax reform decreased the company's federal income taxes.

SPS announced in October it intended to request a rate reduction. A committee representing the cities was organized to examine the proposed lower rates. Chairman of the committee is Merrill E. Nunn, Amarillo City attorney.

SPS is filing the request with 74 cities it serves in Texas. If approved by the cities, the decrease is expected to go into effect March 28. A monthly bill for a residential customer using 1,000 kilowatt-hours would drop $3, from $73.51 to $70.51. In Texas, cities have original jurisdiction over rates within their city limits.

The PUCT regulates rates in rural areas, and SPS will request the commission approve an identical reduction for SPS's rural customers. SPS expects these rates to be approved within the next few months, Hunter said. The staff of the PUCT has been reviewing the effects of federal tax reform on electric and telephone utilities throughout the state to ensure tax savings are recognized in rates.

Leap Day: Getting the calendar back on time was complicated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Like Olympiads and presidential elections, Leap Day comes but once in four years. Monday's calendar adjustment, like setting a watch back in the fall to get an extra hour, adds a day in the year to keep things in tune with nature.

Except for owners of some day-date watches, of course, most people don't have to make any actual calendar adjustments. The printers have done that for them by adding a 29th day to February.

For folks born on prior February 29ths, it's an eagerly awaited chance to celebrate that doesn't occur every year. For some aged 80, perhaps having to list only 20 birthdays is a joy.

Others anxious for adulthood struggle to prove that five birthdays makes them old enough to vote and drive a car. Indeed, the problem was crucial for Frederick, the hero of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pirates of Penzance," a young man born Feb. 29 and indentured until his 21st birthday.

For both the fun and frustration of this added day, reader unto Julius Caesar the blame that is his.

Caesar wanted to make the calendar accurate, and it almost worked.

The day is designed to compensate for the fact that calendars count in whole days, 365 or 366 depending on the year, while it takes the earth 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes and 46 seconds to get around the sun.

Adding an extra day every fourth year helped compensate for that difference of about a quarter day, but problems became obvious as the Romans' inaccurate calendar got three months out of line with the seasons.

So, in 46 B.C., known ever since as the "Year of Confusion," Caesar added 67 days to the calendar to set it right again. And to keep the calendar accurate, he instituted the system of slipping in one more day on Feb. 29.

That reform, suggested by the Roman astronomer Sosigenes, became part of what is known as the Julian Calendar and remained in use for centuries.

"There was one small problem: Sosigenes had done a little too much rounding off," explained Gail S. Cleere of the U.S. Naval Observatory.

Sosigenes had estimated the year

Letters to the Editor

An open letter to citizens in the Deaf Smith County Hospital District:

For the past six months the primary effort of the board of directors had to be the issuance of bonds for the conversion of short-term debt to long-term debt. It was a long and very difficult process. The original attempt which consumed a year or more were unsuccessful. About six months ago the process began again. Much credit for the success of the issuance of the bonds should go to Pat McGinty, Phillis Morrison, and E.T. Manning. If these efforts had not succeeded all of our other objectives and goals would have been of no consequence.

The bond monies will have to be repaid with interest over a 15-year period. The bond monies are now being used for:

1. Payment of old debts which were incurred on equipment and renovation;
2. Purchase of several pieces of new, much-needed operational equipment;
3. Renovation of the present physical plant (new roof).

Our primary goal has been the resolution of financial problems. We are and will remain a caring and a patient-oriented institution with continuance of all present services.

If prudent fiscal policies prove inadequate to keep our hospital solvent, then it will be necessary for the community to bear an increased tax burden.

The administrative policy decisions Mr. (Gary) Moore (hospital administrator) has made in the time he has been here have been made in the best interests of the hospital's continued operation. These policy decisions are the results of careful, thoughtful input of many people. They will be constantly reviewed and adjusted as necessary. These policies have the full support of the board.

Red Cross Month Proclaimed

March has been designated American Red Cross Month in a recent proclamation signed by President Ronald Reagan. Looking over a poster detailing upcoming events set by the local chapter are, from left, Pat Michael and Lupe Chavez, vice-chairman and chairman of the Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross, respectively.

March set as Red Cross Month

Proclaimed American Red Cross Month by President Ronald Reagan, March 1988 will feature a variety of Red Cross chapter activities and events, some of them local.

A volunteer recognition dinner will be held Friday, March 25, in the Community Center beginning at 7 p.m. as local volunteers will be recognized for their hours of service. A blood pressure screening is set for Saturday, March 26 in Sugarland Mall from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Local leaders of the Deaf Smith County Chapter will be preparing for participation in two conferences.

Lupe Chavez, chairman of the board of directors for the local chapter, will attend the American Red Cross Regional Border Conference April 8-10 in El Paso. The conference will be attended by officials from the Mexican Red Cross as well as the American Red Cross and will address "Challenges and Opportunities of Working Together."

According to chapter director Betty Henson, Chavez will represent 32 counties throughout the Texas Panhandle and Oklahoma designated as Territory 3. "We have never sent anyone to such a meeting; it is a great honor for our chapter that Mr. Chavez will represent such a large area that includes Lubbock and Amarillo," she said.

Chavez has also been nominated for the Midwestern Advisory Committee, also a first for a local volunteer. If selected, Chavez will attend the St. Louis, Mo., based Committee to address national issues on programs to be implemented by the American Red Cross.

According to National Red Cross President Richard F. Schubert, "During March, Red Cross Chapters throughout the United States and overseas will conduct special programs and place increased emphasis on the local Red Cross and the support it provides to the community."

"People turn to the American Red Cross for help following disasters, for facts about AIDS, for classes in First Aid, CPR and water safety, for blood, and for the many services provided to members of the Armed Forces, veterans and their families," said Schubert.

One of the most devastating problems to challenge the Red Cross is the AIDS epidemic. In an attempt to battle the fear and prejudice against AIDS patients, and to help reduce further spread of this disease, the Red Cross has instituted a comprehensive public education program. Last year, Red Cross Chapters distributed 67 million AIDS brochures, 6 million people viewed the Red Cross film "Beyond Fear," and nationally distributed television spots are now urging the public to "get the facts" by calling their local Red Cross Chapter.

The Red Cross helps people avoid, prepare for and cope with emergencies. Last year, Red Cross clothes, fed, sheltered or assisted 450,000 disaster victims, helping them recover from single family fires, hurricanes, floods, earthquakes and other disasters.

Another major concern of the Red Cross is collecting and testing for disease more than half of this nation's blood supply. Last year, 4 million volunteers donated blood through the Red Cross, helping restore life and health to millions of blood recipients.

The Red Cross battles hazards to health and safety by training individuals in CPR, first aid, swimming, water and boating safety, preparation for parenthood and babysitting, to name a few. Last year, 7 million certificates were issued to people who successfully completed Red Cross coursework.

The Red Cross helps combat the solitude and estrangement or service personnel. Last year, servicemen and women and their families turned to the Red Cross 2.5 million times for help. Daily, the Red Cross relays 4,000 messages of birth, death and illness to military posts worldwide.

"The American Red Cross exists today because of the generosity of the American People," Schubert said. "The month of March provides us a special opportunity to talk about our local activities and to thank our communities for their continued support," he said.

Red Cross Update

Congratulations to the sixth grade classes of Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Johnson at West Central School. The students recently completed an adult CPR class.

The Civil Air Patrol will be taking an Adult CPR class Saturday morning at the Community Center. Call the chapter for information if your group or club would like to take a CPR class. Adult CPR can be learned in four hours of study and work.

The disaster committee is working with the victims of several recent fires. We need a baby crib mattress and size 16 ladies slacks to help complete our work. If you could help with these items, call the Red Cross office at 364-3761.

We are planning a class on babysitting to be held March 14-15 and 16 from 2-5 p.m. at the Red Cross office. Those wishing to take this class must pre-register by calling the Red Cross.

The territorial meeting will be held March 17 in Amarillo. The main topic will be disaster relief. Call our office to register for this meeting.

The disaster committee will be conducting a disaster training class March 4, 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the Red Cross office. This class is a must for those volunteers helping with disaster relief work.

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from around the state:

Next President Must Address Deficit

Ronald Reagan is going down in history as the country's biggest spendthrift president. He has put the nation in hock to the hilt, and mortgaged the future of our children and their children. The budget he presented to Congress last week raised the national debt to $2.5 trillion — a figure that has doubled during his administration. Interest payments alone cost $140 billion a year. ...

To be sure, the president has had lots of help getting us into all this trouble. It was only with the help of a spineless Congress that he was able to borrow vast sums to finance his massive defense buildup and to offset revenues lost in his tax-cutting programs.

The next president simply must force the country to face the fact that we can't continue spending money we don't have. With all the presidential candidates whistling Dixie this month, voters would be wise to listen closely for who is sounding the clear notes on this issue.

It Would Be Wrong To Count Illegal Aliens

It is hard to find fault with the court suit by conservative reform groups who seek to stop the Census Bureau from counting illegal aliens as part of the population. It is true that the curious practice gives Texas extra political clout, but it is wrong nevertheless.

The problem is that the census is not just a people count, period. It is also the basis for assigning U.S. House seats — political power. And when the census takers count illegals, they are in effect giving border states like Texas and California extra representative power at the expense of those states where nearly all the people are here legally.

It is sad enough that the federal government cannot enforce the immigration laws, sadder still that it awards and takes away political influence on the basis of its failure.

Redistricting Congress on the basis of a skewed census is like drawing up a federal budget that counts as revenue all the money that tax evaders in fact have slipped past the Internal Revenue Service. As the present census practice stands, no one can say that crime doesn't pay — and illegal immigration, lest we forget, is a crime.

That's abominable, regardless of the fact that Texas voters are drawing some of the payoff of the aliens' crime — in the form of extra representation.

A Light Penalty

The Maryland court which approved a plea bargain and five-year sentence for the engineer who caused the worst train wreck in Amtrak history deserves the criticism it will get across the nation.

Sixteen passengers were killed and more than 170 were injured when the Amtrak train crashed into a freight train that ran a stop signal. The crash occurred a year ago near Baltimore.

Federal investigators claimed the engineer of the freight train failed to obey a stop signal because of marijuana and possibly alcohol use. The engineer denied the accusation, but a brakeman signed a statement that he and the engineer had smoked a marijuana cigarette in the cab of the locomotive before the accident.

Prosecutors said they went along with a plea bargain because they never had tried a case involving manslaughter by locomotive.

The court should not have disposed of the case with a plea bargain but heard evidence to determine whether the engineer who caused the crash was operating a train with impaired faculties. Families of the victims were owed that much, not to mention those who continue to entrust their lives to others when they travel on public conveyances.

Lets Think About This

The George R. Brown Convention Center says it needs a major hotel nearby to attract major conventions. Unfortunately, no private developer has plans to build one right now. So City Council is considering applying for $25 million in federal funds to help get a proposed $100 million Hilton hotel under way. To that end, council voted to spend $40,000 (of the city's federal fund) hiring a law firm to prepare such grant applications.

This is all very troubling. The private sector's reluctance to build such a hotel raises serious doubts about its commercial viability. And should the city concentrate such a considerable sum in a "single" project? We hope this $40,000 expenditure doesn't represent a total commitment to the hotel project. This is a subject that needs much more consideration.

Texas Should Take Offer

For years, New Mexico drank too freely from the Pecos River. Throughout the Pecos Valley, farmers took too much to quench the thirst of their crops. Too little of the water was left as it crossed the state line, violating year after year the compact reach with Texas in 1949.

The bar tab totals 340,000 acre-feet of water — about 110 billion gallons. New Mexico wants to pay off in cash. Texas says New Mexico's money is no good — Texas wants the water. ...

New Mexicans ... have offered $10 million to let bygones be bygones in the Pecos River dispute. The offer was rejected. ...

New Mexico officials say repaying the debt with water will devastate water users along the Pecos. That includes cost of the water rights now held by cities and industries, as well as irrigation. Some estimates say nearly all irrigated land in the Pecos Valley would go without water to meet the ... preliminary recommendation for paying back the debt — 34,000 acre-feet a year for 10 years. ...

New Mexico was wrong to take water that belonged to Texas. But there seems little justice and little sense to turning the Pecos Valley into a dustbowl to satisfy the debt. Texas should come up with a reasonable price for the water it should have received to reopen negotiations between the two states.

Get The Message Out

A poll shows a majority in favor of holding down oil imports, that poll may be suspect, though, since it was conducted by the National Energy Policy Council, a consortium of 11 energy companies. Still, if the problem is stated to them correctly — that rising imports pose a security threat to the country, and leave it open to economic blackmail as well — there is reason to believe a majority would see the need to limit imports and revive the domestic industry. The run-up to Super Tuesday, as candidates seek votes in Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana, is a good opportunity to get the message out.

Gorbachev A Man To Watch — Carefully

A man of peace, or of ambition? Is Mikhail Gorbachev to be believed? That's a question many are asking after his announcement last week that the Soviet Union will begin a pullout of troops from Afghanistan on May 15.

The truth is, Gorbachev may not have a choice, especially if he wants to continue with his economic plans for Russia. It may be a matter of money — and a matter of politics. ...

With the help of nearly $1 billion in U.S. arms, the mujahedeen have proved to be mighty fighters. Billions of dollars, eight years and thousands of dead and injured Russian soldiers later, Gorbachev has decided that perhaps such money would be better spent bolstering the troubled Soviet economy.

Then there is politics. With his glasnost image as a man of peace, it doesn't look good to the world if Gorbachev keeps 115,000 soldiers in a losing battle in Afghanistan. It goes counter to his outspoken criticism of former leaders' expansionist policies and use of brute force. ...

Is Gorbachev a man of peace? Perhaps not so much a man of peace as of ambition who has different ideas from his predecessors. But that ambition, if successful, may pave the way to a more peaceful Afghanistan.

The Penultimate Word

LISTEN

I run around the country doing seminars on listening. I always ask the audience to name the best listener they know. Invariably they name some quiet person. The feeling is quiet people are automatically good listeners. A good listener is someone who hears. They may be quiet. They may be loud. The key is what they hear. During an election year it may be that the most important thing we can learn is how to hear, how to read, not between the lines, but behind the lines. Good listeners are the hardest people in the world to manipulate. Good hearers are almost impossible to film flam.

I got a call the other day from some company that called itself the American Clearing House. The lady told me I had won one of four fabulous prizes. Fourth prize was a Sony television. Third prize was $7,500.00. Second prize was a car. First prize was a check for $25,000.00. I had already won. I told her fine, send the prize. It seems it wasn't that simple. She began to explain and I began to listen. It is hard to listen when someone has just told you a prize has been won.

She explained that if they just sent me the prize I would owe taxes on the prize. That sounded plausible. Then she said the taxes could be very high. She said as an example the tax on a Sony television could be $900.00. Thank goodness I heard that. Taxes are high but there is no way the tax on a television set that cost $400.00 could be $900.00. She said the way to avoid the tax would be for me to be a customer of the company. As a customer they could include the prize as a bonus and no tax would be owed. The way to become a customer was to purchase some pens with my company name engraved on the side. The pens were to be purchased first and then I would get my prize. It all sounded so good and plausible, but I was hearing. I told her just to send the prize and I would take my chances on the tax. She promised the prize would be in the mail. I have two chances for a prize: little and none. I asked for her name and number so I could call and check on the progress of my prize. What would you bet the number is no longer in service?

There are a lot of film flammers out there. There are a lot of manipulators out there. There are a lot of snake oil salesmen out there. Some of them are running for public office. The only hope we have is to hear. I call that laying ears on them. Try it, it is amazing what you will hear.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

I started to write this letter in January. Then I decided to let it slide. Tonight I changed my mind after reading the article about Deaf Smith General Hospital.

In January my father spent 13 days in the hospital. After he had been there for several days, my Mother came down with a serious case of the Asian flu, and Dr. Perales ordered her to bed at home, with strict orders to stay away from the hospital and my father.

A few days later my mother called me at work in tears. Someone from the hospital had called her demanding that she bring $250 down to the hospital immediately. She wanted me to call the hospital and tell them that she was very ill and couldn't come in, and to also try to convince them that my father's deductible was only $100.00. Instead of $250. (The hospital had called Blue Cross of Texas instead of Blue Cross of Colorado. The deductible is different).

Dear editor:

I would like to thank all of the following people and businesses that donated their time and livestock to Girlstown, U.S.A. Johnny Trotter - 2 Hogs; Tri-State Feeders - 1 Hog; Mrs. Lawrence "Grandma" Carlson - 1 Hog; Pat Robbins - 2 Lambs; Wall & Sons Drilling - 1 lamb; Garrison Seed - 1 lamb; West Texas Rural Telephone - 1 lamb; Jimmie Christie - 3 lambs; Hereford State Bank - Steer; Ted Walling - auctioneer; James Wright - auctioneer; Cecil Mabe of Sirloin Stockade - provided lunch for the girls from Girlstown. N.E. Tyler gave $5 to each of the four girls that came from Girlstown. Nicole Axe accompanied the girls throughout the day. And thank you to the Young Farmers and Tom Schlabs for all their hard work. This is appreciated very much.

Sincerely,
Marn Tyler
Cattlewomen, Beef for Girlstown
Chairman

I called the hospital. Talk about harassment! I finally managed to straighten out the matter of the deductible. Although they still didn't care how ill my mother was. The latest they wanted my mother was by noon the next day! (Shades of Old Tombstone and the OK Corral?) When I told them that my mother was not to enter the hospital, per doctor's orders, they wanted me to get the money from her and bring it myself. I wasn't about to do that. My aunt was taking very good care of my mother. So I sure didn't see any need of going to her house and exposing myself or my family to that type of flu. I also wouldn't of been able to visit my father after seeing her. So I refused their demands, and told them that at the first possible moment they would get their money. I found out when I visited my father that they had been to his room wanting money. They had upset him with their demands also. I don't know of any sick person that is in the hospital that has $100 bills in their robe pocket. In fact the hospital tells you to send all of your valuables and money home.

The shame of all of this is the fact that my father uses this hospital a lot, and their bill is always paid up. What the insurance company doesn't cover, my parents take care of right away.

I would hate to see us have to drive to Amarillo to use a hospital or see a sick member of our family, but if we are going to be harassed every time we enter the hospital here, it will be worth the drive. High Plains at least waits until you are ready to check out before they discuss money. If you have insurance they usually wait until it pays off before they want a penny. I really see no need for this to happen. People that pay their bills without having to be turned over to bill collectors should have that opportunity, without being harassed in their sick beds!

I realize this hospital has a financial problem. But what comes first? People that need the first class care we can give them in Hereford, or money?

What would happen to a mother in labor if she was turned away for the lack of money. Newborns don't always arrive into this world pink and healthy. Sometimes they arrive very blue and in very serious trouble. What would happen if that baby was born in the back seat of a car, while it's mother was being taken to Amarillo, Friona or Dimmitt. I can tell you. It would most likely die from the lack of care. What about a heart attack victim? Will they be expected to write a check in the ambulance before they can get into the E.R.

I know other people that have been treated to the pay up now system. I really think these matters can be handled in a more business like manner. Strong arming people is not the way.

As for our doctor's being unhappy and the hatchet job that Gerry Hollinger was given, that's even worse. Maybe Gary Moore doesn't realize how hard it is to get really good doctors to move to a town the size of Hereford, but a lot of us do. I have seen a lot of good doctors leave and it takes months to replace them. When we are short of doctors, the ones we have are even more overworked than they already are. Let's keep our doctors happy should be the motto of Deaf Smith General, because without them, there is no need for a hospital.

As for Gerry, I hope someone comes to their senses and rehires him. I know from experience that he cares far beyond duty for the hospital, it's staff and patients. When I was in the hospital in June of 1987 he stopped by my room several times to see if I needed anything, or if there were any problems that he could take care of himself. I have never heard a bad word about him. After 13 years of service I can't understand

Bootleg Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnsongrass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek examines the Presidential candidates' qualifications this week.

Dear editor:

As I understand it, if you're running for President and do worse than you expected in New Hampshire, you might as well drop out.

Furthermore, if you win big there you more than likely will become President.

This is a suitable arrangement for the other 49 states. It relieves them of all blame for what kind of President we get.

Looking at all the candidates seeking the nomination—there were 13 but some have been New Hampshired—some people have wondered out loud whether any of them are really qualified to be President. "What are their qualifications?" they ask. "What evidence do we have that they've got the experience to run the government? Look at them. Why many of them are running on borrowed money and trying to borrow more. One of them is $800,000 in debt already. They're all scrambling for more money to run on. Is that the kind of people we want to run the government?"

Such people don't understand what it takes to be a President these days.

What it takes above all is a man capable of running the government on borrowed money.

If anybody ever had training in that line of work, those candidates sure qualify.

If a man can run his campaign on borrowed money, well, with that kind of Presidential training, what makes you think he couldn't run the government the same way?

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

GENUINE HONESTY

"Honesty is always the best policy, but it is not genuine honesty when pursued merely because it is the best policy, but only when the heart is honest and insists upon strict honesty in the life."

—J.E. Nunn, Amarillo Daily News, Aug. 22, 1926.

"Many people admit that honesty is the best policy but the sad commentary is that if often takes an inquiry to make them realize it."

—Clarendon News, Clarendon, Texas, Sept. 28, 1933.

"A man may be industrious and yet he may not be honest, but a man cannot be honest in the broadest sense of the word, without being industrious."

—R.L. Howsley, Olso Posten, Guyton, Okla., Oct. 14, 1910.

TODAY'S INSIGHT: True, sincere honesty is developed by moral education, working hard to understand what is right and by learning to respect the rights of others. True honesty is not fully developed by only being honest after having been caught doing wrong or violating the law.

In a land of freedom, honesty is a responsibility, and the fact that it is a responsibility implies the necessity of living the Golden Rule. "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

J.A. Hill wrote, "A free society, such as ours, has no place for the pessimist or pessimism. Freedom is built on faith and hope and love and respect for Deity. To thrive it must have an optimistic atmosphere. Men must believe in each other, in a spiritually endowed government, and in the ultimate triumph of divine will." (Canyon News, Nov. 16, 1961.)

Honesty is the best policy because it is a policy of responsibility. Honesty is the best policy because it is a Golden Rule policy. Honesty is the best policy because it is a policy of industriousness.

how he all of a sudden can be charged with "lack of competence". I would of thought that would of come to light years ago. Sounds strange to me. I hope someone with some power will come to his aid. I am clearly on Mr. Bradley's side. Let's keep Gerry Hollinger on the job. We have a fine staff of nurses. It takes a fine director of nursing to have that. After all who does all the dirty work? A nurse of course. They have my thanks any day. I can't say that I have ever met a nurse at the hospital that I didn't like. So someone is doing something right. LET'S KEEP GERRY ON THE JOB.

Thank you,

"We have great natural and man-made resources in this county. All we need to do is let others know about these assets, and I think the Chamber is instrumental in selling Hereford and its products.

"CONSERVATIVE WITH AN OPEN MIND."

RESPONSIBLE

LUPE CHAVEZ & Family

In seeking to be your Precinct 1 Commissioner, I would strive to be responsive to the ideas and needs of the people I serve.

I believe I'm capable of representing the people of the county and community. I want to work in a positive manner toward the betterment of Deaf Smith County. I have served on boards and in civic organizations aimed toward those ends.

I have no axe to grind, but I do have the experience in working with all kinds of people that it takes to get along.

The people of Precinct 1 deserve the best county government—and certainly the best roads their tax revenues can provide. I'm dedicated to the proper maintenance and improvement of our roads. I'm willing to exercise the supervision necessary to see that this occurs...and I'm willing to be available to the people for questions, comments, and whatever input is necessary to see that roads are kept up. Our roads link our people and carry commerce. They are vital and they must be well-kept.

I work within budget limitations in my job, my family, church and civic organization life. I know the importance of responsible spending. That same responsible spending is a priority with me for county government.

I believe with your help I can serve the people of Precinct 1 and Deaf Smith County well. I'll work hard to be a good commissioner and do a good job. I would appreciate your vote in absentee balloting through March 4, and in the March 8 Democratic primary.

Respectfully

Lupe Chavez

Vince by Michael O'Brien, a personal biography of Vince Lombardi, is based on manuscripts never touched before. It is written by previous students and held by Lombardi's son, Vince Jr. and daughter Susan.

Other sources of information for this book are 205 personal interviews of intimate friends such as Bart Starr, Earl Blaik, and Jim Crowley. "How does a man meet his failures?" Vince asked in opening remarks once. "That is the measure of the man. If he does not quit or curl up he has the right stuff in him. Be a hard loser," he urged. "There is no such thing as a good loser, but in losing one can still be a good sport."

Another asset one must have for success is "mental toughness," by this he meant the singleness of purpose. "Once you have agreed upon the price that you and your family must pay for success, it enables you to forget that price. It enables you to ignore the minor hurts, the opponent's pressure, and the temporary failures." Vince insisted on a winning attitude and winning. The winning attitude is a constant struggle to improve, to achieve one's maximum ability and then to push on to perfection.

The winning attitude can only be measured by wins. You can't always be first but you must believe you should have been. You aren't beaten he said, "time just runs out on you." This is truly a book that the reader cannot help but leave inspired and ready for life's challenges. And this is from a person that is not football crazy.

Mrs. Pollifax is back in Mrs. Pollifax and the Golden Triangle. If you have not had the pleasure of meeting this delightful character you must take advantage of this opportunity. Emily Pollifax is described as New Jersey's garden-clubbing grandmother and part-time CIA Agent. Mrs. P. and her new husband are on their way to Thailand for a delightful holiday when Bishop (Emily's CIA contact) shows up with a last minute request. The delivery of a package to a Hong Kong contact does not seem out of line, dangerous, nor much of an interruption in their holiday plans.

When the liaison is found murdered, and new husband, Cyrus is kidnapped; Emily, on her own is determined to rescue her husband. Dorothy Gilman once again thrills us with a reckless, lovable, and daring Mrs. P. adventure.

C.C. Risenhoover has a new mystery entitled Child Stalker. In this tale of mystery and suspense America's favorite investigative reporter uncovers a bizarre plot to kill American children. After McCall's friend has a child murdered by a terrorist, McCall leaves his newspaper job and relentlessly tracks the killer.

It becomes evident to McCall that there are many others involved in this movement, and they must be stopped. This book was quite a surprise to me when I discovered Becky Walls is the mother of one of the children involved in the terrorists plots.

Helen Hayes has written a wonderful whodunit entitled Where The Truth Lies. This is a tale of glamour and murder in Hollywood. The murder is committed on stage and camera, in front of millions of people. The victim, Arthur Strickland, leaves a long list of suspects such as Kathleen Havens—the temperamental superstar bumped from Strickland's movie.

Courtney Ware - the lovely newcomer brought in to replace Havens. Jack King - the hard-drinking movie director. Halcie Harper - a luminous star whose long and distinguished career resembles that of real-life actress Helen Hayes. Helen Hays and Thomas Chastain, author of Who Killed The Robins Family?, have teamed together to write this fictional, yet surprisingly believable mystery.

Consider all ingredients in 'healthy' snacks

Some of the snack foods found in the health or natural foods sections at the supermarket may be giving you more sugar, sodium or fat than you bargained for, says a Texas Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist.

"Granola bars, dehydrated fruit bars, trail mix and other health snacks can be convenient and nutritious food choices, but also have their drawbacks," says Mary Kinney Sweeten.

Granola bars are a good example. The nutritionist explains that plain granola bars contain grains, such as oats, that add protein and fiber to the diet. With added fillings, chocolate pieces or coating and syrup added to enhance flavor and chewiness, however, some snacks are more like candy than granola.

"Dehydrated fruit snacks which come in bars, bits and rolls are convenient lunch-box treats, but don't compare to fresh fruit for nutritional value," she maintains. "The fruit snacks also have added sugars and sweeteners."

Sweeten says that microwavable popcorn, like regular popcorn, will vary in fat and sodium according to how much butter and salt is added. "While consumers control how much salt and butter they add to the popcorn made the conventional way, the microwave product may contain more than they would normally use," she says.

According to the nutritionist, many of the trail mixes and bulk fruit and nut mixes have high nutrient values. But some such as the bulk party mixes, are high in fat, calories and sodium.

"Moderate amounts of almost any snack can fit into a balanced diet," Sweeten says, "but consumers shouldn't assume all foods are healthy because they're advertised that way."

If you're really concerned about nutrition, she advises carefully reading the ingredients list and nutrition information on snack food labels to find out just what you're getting.

Whitefaces edge Tascosa Rebels, 4-3

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

Hereford Whiteface pitchers Clint Cotten and Jason Scott combined to strike out 10 Tascosa batters and limited the Rebels to three hits in helping lead their team to a 4-3 victory over Tascosa Friday in Hereford.

Hereford led 4-3 after five innings of play, but Tascosa scored a pair of runs in the top of the sixth to threaten to take the lead. And in the seventh inning, it took a diving catch by left fielder Keith Brown to prevent a game-tying RBI hit.

Tascosa gained a 1-0 lead in the top of the first. A Rebel player hit a double to the left field fence and later scored on an error by the HHS shortstop.

In the bottom of the first, Michael Phibbs tripled for the Herd with one out. Rodney McCracken drove home Phibbs with a ground-rule double, and Robby Collier doubled to drive in McCracken, giving Hereford a 2-1 lead.

Phibbs also scored in the third inning, increasing the Whiteface lead to 3-1. Phibbs singled, stole second base, and scored on Derrel Page's single which was hit into left field.

Clint Cotten pitched the first three innings, striking out five, allowing one hit and walking one batter. Tascosa did not get a runner on base in the second and third innings against Cotten.

Jason Scott then retired the next six straight batters, including three on strikeouts, to keep Tascosa off the basepaths in the fourth and fifth innings.

Hereford scored again in the bottom of the fifth. Glenn Parker reached base on an error, stole second base, and advanced to third on a fly ball into center field.

Rodney McCracken was then at bat. McCracken struck out on a pitch that was dropped by the Rebel catcher. The catcher, instead of throwing the ball to first base for an out, attempted to throw out Parker at third base.

The ball was thrown into left field for an error, and Parker scored, with McCracken reaching second base on the play. McCracken later advanced to third base on a groundout, but was left stranded on the basepaths.

Tascosa opened the sixth inning with a single. Scott got the next batter to hit a fly ball into center field for an out, and then struck out a batter.

An RBI single into right field brought Tascosa within two runs, 4-2. A stolen base plus a catcher's throwing error enabled the Rebels to get the runner to third base. The runner then scored on an error, and Hereford's lead was trimmed to 4-3.

In the seventh inning, Scott struck out the first Rebel batter he faced, and got the second one to ground out. Tascosa then got a player on base with a walk.

A pitch was hit hard by the next batter into left field, where Keith Brown made his diving catch to prevent Tascosa from tying up the game.

Scott struck out five in his four innings of pitching, allowing two hits and walking two batters.

Hereford had seven hits in the game. In addition to Phibbs' single and triple, the doubles by McCracken and Collier, and the single by Page, the Herd got singles from Bill Ruckman and Ross Torres.

Each team committed three errors in the game.

"Our pitchers did a heck of a job. We played pretty good defense. You've got to win some games like this one," Hereford Coach T.R. Sartor said.

It was the second straight win for the Whitefaces, who defeated Amarillo High 16-10 on Tuesday. Hereford was scheduled to play Caprock on Saturday in Amarillo, and will play at home on Tuesday against Palo Duro at 4 p.m.

KEVIN HANSEN, RODNEY McCRACKEN

Hansen, McCracken on all-district team

Hereford High School varsity boys' basketball players Kevin Hansen and Rodney McCracken were named to the all-district 1-4A second and third teams, respectively.

The all-district team was announced after district champion Levelland lost to Snyder 55-53 in the class 4A bi-district playoffs on Friday night. On Thursday, district runnerup Lubbock Estacado lost its bi-district game to Lamesa, 93-68.

The all-district team is selected by the head coaches in the district.

Scott Moore of Levelland was voted the district's most valuable player, and teammate Dennis Cunningham was named the defensive player of the year.

Two players tied for sophomore of the year honors — Michael Irvin of Lubbock Estacado and Travis Thompson of Borger. Levelland head Coach Mark Weir was voted the district coach of the year.

First team selections were Eric Essix of Estacado, Dustin Miller of Pampa, Kieth Palmer of Lubbock Dunbar, Zac Parker of Canyon, and Dallas Smith of Dumas.

McCracken and Hansen combined for an average of 23.4 points per game for the Whitefaces in the 1987-88 season. McCracken led the team with a 12.4 average, and Hansen was second with an 11.0 average.

Hansen, a 6-2 senior guard, led the Whitefaces in assists, steals, free throw percentage, and three-point goals. Hansen averaged 5.7 assists and 4.8 steals per game, made 68 of 97 free throws for 70 percent, and scored 17 three-point goals.

McCracken, a 6-4 senior post, also led Hereford in rebounding with 8.7 per game. He shot 39.2 percent from the field, hitting 121 of 309 shots, and made 53 of 90 free throws for 58.9 percent.

Here are the 1987-88 District 1-4A all-district selections:

Most valuable player: Scott Moore, 5-11 senior, Levelland, 16.0 points per game, 6.1 rebounds per game, and 3.2 assists per game.

Defensive player of the year: Dennis Cunningham, 6-0 senior, Levelland, 10.6 points and 6.1 rebounds.

Sophomores of the year: Michael Irvin, 5-9 sophomore, Lubbock Estacado, 5.2 points; and Travis Thompson, 6-2 sophomore, Borger.

First team: Eric Essix, 6-4 junior, Lubbock Estacado, 10.1 points, 9.8 rebounds; Dustin Miller, 6-5 junior, Pampa, 22.0 points, 12.0 rebounds; Kieth Palmer, 6-0 senior, Lubbock Dunbar, 15.9 points, 4.5 rebounds; Zac Parker, 6-4 junior, Canyon, 18.6 points, 8.8 rebounds; Dallas Smith, 5-9 senior, Dumas, 24.0 points, 6.1 rebounds.

Second team: Kevin Hansen, 6-2 senior, Hereford, 11.0 points, 4.5 rebounds; Kenneth Jackson, 6-2 junior, Levelland, 15.3 points, 4.9 rebounds; Jason Farmer, 6-3 senior, Pampa, 14.5 points, 7.0 rebounds; Steve Ford, 6-2 senior, Borger, 17.4 points, 7.4 rebounds; Kevin Andrews, 6-5 senior, Lubbock Dunbar, 9.0 points, 10.4 rebounds.

Third team: Rodney McCracken, 6-4 senior, Hereford, 12.4 points, 8.7 rebounds; Tim Taylor, 6-2 senior, Lubbock Estacado, 10.6 points, 8.8 rebounds; Danny Loftis, 5-11 junior, Borger, 15.0 points, 7.4 rebounds; Kirk Aduddell, 6-2 senior, Canyon, 13.1 points, 4.9 rebounds; Marvin

With handicapping system

Racquetball league planned at 'Y'

A racquetball league with a system of handicapping is being organized at the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA.

The handicap system gives one player a point advantage over another in a match. The league will have its matches on Tuesday nights, said Weldon Knabe of the YMCA.

Entry fee is $10 for YMCA members and $20 for YMCA non-members, with a registration deadline of March 10 at 5 p.m.

The league season will be for six weeks, plus a single-elimination tournament. Scoring will be the best three out of five games to 12 points using the handicap system. Playing days will be Tuesday nights, beginning at 7 p.m.

As an example of the handicapping system, Knabe noted that a women's "A" player going against a men's "A" player would have an advantage of six points according to the handicap system.

The lower ranked player serves first.

Here is a list of the handicaps for the league:

MEN VERSUS MEN OR WOMEN VERSUS WOMEN:

OPEN PLAYERS' SPOTS: "A" players, four points; "B" players, six points; "C" players, eight points; "D" players, 10 points.

"A" PLAYERS' SPOTS: "B" players, four points; "C" players, six points; "D" players, eight points.

"B" PLAYERS' SPOTS: "C" players, four points; "D" players, six points.

"C" PLAYERS' SPOTS: "D" players' spots, 4 points.

MEN VERSUS WOMEN (OR WOMEN VERSUS MEN):

OPEN MEN'S SPOTS: "A" women, eight points; "B" women, nine points; "C" and "D" women, 10 points.

"A" MEN'S SPOTS: "A" women, six points;

"B" women, eight points; "C" and "D" women, 10 points.

"B" MEN'S SPOTS: "A" women, no points;

"B" women, six points; "C" women, nine points;

"D" women, 10 points.

"C" MEN'S SPOTS: "B" women, no points;

"C" women, four points; "D" women, six points;

"D" MEN'S SPOTS: "C" women, no points;

"D" women, 2 points.

"A" WOMEN'S SPOTS: "C" men, four points;

"D" men, eight points.

"B" WOMEN'S SPOTS: "D" men, six points.

For more information on this racquetball league, contact Knabe at the YMCA at 364-6990.

Question: CAN WE BE SINCERELY MISTAKEN?

Answer: "Not everyone who says unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he who does the will of my Father who is in heaven.
"Many will say unto me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in your name? and in your name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, you who work iniquity." - (Mt. 7:21-23).

Meet the Herd set Tuesday at La Plata gym

The "Meet the Herd Night" for the Hereford High School spring athletic teams will be held this Thursday night at the La Plata Junior High School gym.

Hereford school athletic director Don Cumpton said the "Meet the Herd Night" will begin at 7:30 p.m. Baseball, tennis, track, and golf team members will be introduced to Hereford High School sports fans.

The event will take place after a Hereford Whiteface varsity baseball game versus Palo Duro in Hereford. That game is scheduled at 4 p.m. at the HHS baseball field.

McCracken led Whitefaces in scoring, rebounding

Hereford Whiteface varsity basketball player Rodney McCracken was the team leader in scoring and rebounding for the 1987-88 season, averaging 12.4 points and 8.7 rebounds per game.

Other team leaders included Kevin Hansen with 5.7 assists and 4.8 steals per game, 17 three-point goals, and a 70.1 free throw shooting percentage with 68 of 97 made; and Brad Smith with a field goal shooting percentage of 46.6 percent.

The Whitefaces had seven players average at least five points a game. In addition to McCracken, these were the others averaging more than five points a game: Hansen, 11.0; Smith, 8.7; Marcus Brown, 7.5; Pat Mercer, 6.1; Clint Cotten, 5.4; and Bobby Robbins, 5.1

Smith averaged 4.7 rebounds per game, and Hansen and Robbins both averaged 4.5 rebounds. Brown was second to Hansen in assists and steals with averages of 2.6 assists and 2.3 steals. Brown was also second to Hansen in three-point goals with 14 for the season.

Mercer had the second best free throw percentage for those with 30 or more attempts, 65.6 percent, making 61 of 93. For those with fewer than 30 foul shots attempts, Ross Torres had the top percentage, 70.4 percent with 19 of 27 made.

Robbins was second to Smith in field goal percentage. Smith hit 106 of 230 shots from the field for his 46.6 percent, and Robbins made 59 of 130 shots for 45.4 percent.

U.S. export outlook continues improving

WASHINGTON (AP) — The outlook for U.S. farm exports continues to improve as the Soviet Union begins a new round of corn purchases.

Overall, the Agriculture Department says the value of U.S. agricultural exports will rise to a four-year high of $32.5 billion in the 1988 fiscal year that began Oct. 1.

Spurred by recent heavy sales of grain to the Soviet Union and China, partly under a special export subsidy program, the new 1988 forecast is up $500 million from $32 billion indicated on Dec. 17.

Steve MacDonald of the department's Economic Research Service said the Soviet Union may account for $1.7 billion of the total export value this year, the most since 1985 when Moscow's purchases totaled $2.5 billion. Soviet purchases last year were valued at about $700 million.

China's U.S. purchases are expected to be around $500 million, more than double the $200 million of 1987, he said.

The new export forecast came Thursday as the department announced another cash sale of corn to the Soviet Union, the second in two days.

With a shipment value of $32 billion, this year's exports would be up 16 percent from $27.9 billion in 1987 and 24 percent from a decade low of $26.3 billion in 1986. Agricultural exports were valued at $31.2 billion in fiscal 1985 and $38 billion in 1984.

"Most of the increase (from the earlier estimate) stems from additional wheat sales under the Export Enhancement Program," the department said. "Since the December forecast, EEP offers were announced for 2 million metric tons of wheat to the Soviet Union and 1.2 million tons to China, among others."

Under the EEP arrangement, private exporters get free surplus commodities from the Agriculture Department as subsidies so they can sell grain and other products overseas at reduced prices.

On the basis of actual volume, 1988 exports were indicated at 142.5 million metric tons, up from 141 million forecast in December and 129.2 million tons shipped last year.

"The U.S. share of the world market, particularly in grains and cotton, is rising," officials said in their report. "Relatively low world prices and improved U.S. competitiveness through lower (price support) loan rates, the EEP and a lower dollar have reduced production incentives for foreign competitors."

Meanwhile, private exporters reported the sales of 601,600 tons of corn for delivery to the Soviet Union this year under a long-term supply agreement between the two countries.

On Wednesday, the Soviets bought 350,000 tons of corn, the first substantial amount since last October. Corn sales are not qualified for EEP subsidies, however.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 39.4 bushels of corn or 36.7 bushels of wheat or soybeans. The 601,600 tons of corn would be about 24 million bushels, having a farm value of around $44 million at recent prices of about $1.82 per bushel.

French develop market for goods

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers hear a lot about the European Economic Community's barriers to U.S. agricultural exports, but there is a brighter side too.

The Europeans, particularly French consumers, are developing as an even larger market for U.S. food products.

Overall, the 12-nation bloc took $6.8 billion of the $27.9 billion in U.S. farm exports in the 1987 fiscal year that ended last Sept. 30, up 5 percent from 1986. A further gain to around $7 billion is expected this year.

Despite the increase and prospects for further growth, U.S. farm exports are still far below the record levels of the early 1980s. Thus, every possibility is examined eagerly by USDA trade experts.

The EEC ranks second only to Asia as a regional market for American farmers. Japan, with U.S. farm imports of $5.55 billion last year, is the largest single-country foreign market.

A recent USDA report says, "The time is right for U.S. exporters to consider the French food market."

Last year France imported $495 million worth of agricultural products from the United States, up from $435 million in 1986 and $403 million in 1985. In the heyday of the early '80s, France bought a peak of $625 million worth of U.S. food and raw commodities.

France is the largest country in Western Europe, with a population of 55 million and an area of 213,000 square miles — about four-fifths the size of Texas, says the report by the department's Economic Research Service.

"Changing lifestyles — more working women, urban rather than rural life, eating lunch at work, and a greater standard of living — have led to changes in the food habits of the French people," the report said. "They are consuming more processed products, like canned food and precooked dishes."

For example, the report said, France's per capita consumption of fresh vegetables held steady from 1967 to 1982 but the average use of frozen vegetables rose from 0.5 pounds per capita to 6.6 pounds. The consumption of canned vegetables jumped to 44 pounds per person in 1982 from 24.9 pounds in 1967.

"According to the French Food Industry Association ANIA, there have been dramatic changes in consumer spending patterns since 1960," the report said. "The association's data show that the French buy more pastries, cooked and preserved meats, cheese, ice cream, cooked dishes, confectionery products and non-alcoholic beverages as a percentage of their total budget."

Meanwhile, the report added, the share of family spending on wine, bread, fruits and vegetables, and butter, has decreased.

The analysis, prepared by Mark D. Newman and Victor H. Miesel Jr., was included in the current National Food Review, a quarterly magazine issued by the USDA agency.

American goods compete with agricultural products from other EEC member countries, which are generally admitted freely into France.

Proper maintenance on herbicide equipment can save on frustration and money. All of us know there never seems to be a good time to take care of equipment breakdowns or to do proper maintenance. However, experts say preventative maintenance can go a long way towards making those frustrations and costly breakdown bills lighter. Equipment that handles herbicides may have different problems than petroleum equipment. Herbicide equipment is usually thick and heavy with various assortments of mechanical components and carriers. Experts recommend basic maintenance be carried out as soon as possible after the season ends and anytime the equipment is left idle for six months or more. Close valves on tanks. Remove suction hoses from valves. Place garden hose adapter on suction hose and run water through the entire system. Start pump to insure complete rinsing. Run water until it is clear. Remove lower drain and check hoses for complete drainage. Drain meter and clean strainer screen. Wipe everything clean. Store any component with moving parts wet. Fill pump and meter cavities with anti-freeze.

QUICK-SIDE TANK SYSTEMS from Wylie Sprayers

Apply and incorporate pre-emerge herbicide in the same operation utilizing the "Quick-Side" tank system from Wylie Sprayers. With the "Quick-Side" modular system, each tank and saddle may be removed separately, while the mounting frame remains on the tractor. The exclusive "Quick-Side" design maximizes ground clearance on both 2-wheel and 4-wheel models. "Super-Slim" tank design allows greater accessibility to cab and tractor, without sacrificing visibility. "Quick-Side" tank systems are also excellent for fertilizer application, both deep-placement and broadcast.

Available at Wylie Spray Centers and authorized Wylie dealers.

Wedding announced

Rita Ann Collins and Harvey Hodges exchanged wedding vows Saturday afternoon at Wesley United Methodist Church with the Rev. Derrell Evins, pastor, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Boyd and Ellen Collins of Hereford and the groom is the son of Mary Hodges of Portsmouth, Va.

Principal wedding selections were vocalized by the bride's sister and brother-in-law, Tim and Georgia Riley of Hereford. They were accompanied by Marilyn Bell, pianist.

Lighting candles were the bride's nieces, Mary Ellen and Jill Marie Ramaekers of Nazareth.

A reception followed in Ward Parlor.

The bride graduated from Hereford High School in 1982 and the groom graduated from Manor High School in Portsmouth in 1977.

People believe if you rub your feet with garlic, you will be healthy.

Lifestyles Policies

The Hereford Brand welcomes new articles of interest from local residents, groups and organizations. Because this is a daily publication, certain guidelines should be followed when submitting news items.

The Brand reserves the right to edit any and all copy submitted to the Lifestyles department.

Photos of club officers, donation presentations, etc., can be made at The Brand office, preferably after 2 p.m. Appointments for such photos must be made at least 24 hours in advance.

Lifestyles reporters do not take photos for engagements, weddings, anniversaries or showers.

On-location photos can be made, on approval, providing The Brand has at least TWO DAYS notice.

No polaroid pictures are acceptable under any circumstances.

New items or changes for the Lifestyles calendar of events must be submitted one week BEFORE the Wednesday or Sunday publications.

General news items for the Lifestyles section must be submitted by 1 p.m. the day before publication and by noon on Friday for Sunday's publication.

The Brand has forms available upon request in preparing engagement announcements and wedding stories. Neither will be taken by phone.

Engagements should be announced six weeks BEFORE the wedding to ensure publication. Couples submitting engagement announcements after that deadline must choose to have either the engagement or the wedding photo published. Photos should be in black and white. A color photo may be used if the contrast is suitable for reproduction.

Wedding and anniversary writeups must be submitted at least five days prior to the ceremony. Wedding notices submitted late will be edited considerably.

Birth announcements are obtained from Deaf Smith General Hospital. Information on local babies born elsewhere, or who have grandparents in Hereford, must be reported to The Brand within two weeks.

Club reports must be submitted within THREE DAYS, of the meeting or will be subject to considerable editing or omission.

Brief items of interest about former residents or children of Hereford residents are welcome when they concern degrees earned, academic honors, college news, career promotions, etc.

Birthday celebrations will only be written for those Hereford residents who are 80 years old and up. All other birthday wishes, including Quinceaneras, may be submitted to the advertising department.

Photos may be picked up from The Brand after 3 p.m. of the publication date. Published photos taken by Brand staffers may be purchased for $1. Reprints are available at $3.50 for 5x7 photos and at $5.00 for 8x10 prints.

Obituary information, with or without accompanying photo, must be submitted to the office by 11 a.m. for that day's publication.

To submit an article or obtain more information, contact Sandy Stagner, or Gaye Reily at 364-2030 from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. After 5 p.m., stories may be placed in the night drop located at the front door of the office. We take no responsibility for articles left in the night drop which may be lost.

Caviness to chair music festival March 5

The Junior Music Festival, Section I, First District, Texas Federation of Music Clubs, and Division I, National Federation of Music Clubs is scheduled from 8:30 until noon Saturday, March 5, in First Baptist Church.

Kay Lynn Caviness of Hereford Music Study Club is general chairman of the annual event and assisting her will be music club members.

Piano, voice and violin students are scheduled to perform in solo and ensemble numbers on a non-competitive basis. Each entrant will receive a certificate commemorating his or her participation. Studios to be represented include Patti Brown Piano Studio; Junior Etude Music Club, Francis L. Parker; Manning Studio, Doug Manning; Melodic Lines, Thelma McMinn; Susuki Violin Studio, Elizabeth Criner; Hacker Music Studio, Evelyn Hacker; Susan Shaw Studio; and Mrs. Johnnie Walters.

A luncheon will follow the festival at noon at Caison House Restaurant for teachers, judges and parents. Those planning to attend need to contact Mrs. Caviness at 364-8060 by Wednesday, March 2.

Judges for the 1987 festival include James Lyon, Janna Johnson, Jim Rauscher and Joe Ella Cansler.

Voice judge, Joe Ella Cansler, a former Hereford resident now living in Canyon, is a vocal instructor and has a private studio in Canyon. She attended West Texas State University and received a bachelor of music education and master of arts degree in vocal performance. She studied voice with Royal Brantley.

Johnson, who resides in Amarillo, will be the elementary piano judge. She earned her degree in keyboard performance from West Texas State University. She has performed extensively throughout the United States. She and her husband, guitarist Hansford Johnson, debuted as a harpsichord-guitar duo in Carnegie Hall in 1984.

Johnson has maintained a private piano studio for the past 13 years and is experienced as a choir director and organist at St. Luke Presbyterian Church. She holds memberships in Amarillo and Texas Music Teachers Associations as well as other professional organizations.

Serving as the advanced piano judge, Jim Rauscher is on the music faculty at Amarillo College. He received his bachelor of music education degree from the University of Wisconsin majoring in piano and trumpet. A master of music in piano performance and literature followed from the University of Illinois.

He is currently pianist for the Amarillo Symphony. Since 1982, Rauscher has been the accompanist for soprano Mary Jane Johnson in recitals across the United States.

James Lyon will be the violin judge. He is a graduate of the North Carolina School of the Arts and the Eastman School of Music. He has performed professionally as violinist with the Rochester Philharmonic, the Louisville Orchestra, the Spoleto Festival Orchestra, the Des Moines Metro Opera and the Kentucky Center Chamber Players.

His teaching experience includes serving as a teaching assistant at the Eastman School of Music and as a faculty member of the University of Louisville and Indiana University Southeast. He is currently residing in Canyon where he is Harrington Lecturer in violin at WTSU, second violinist in the Harrington String Quartet and Concertmaster of the Amarillo Symphony. He is married to cellist Carol Purdy Lyon.

Card of Thanks

We the brothers and sister of Bernice (Fern) Hagar Jones, would like to say thank you to our many friends who have shown their love in our time of sorrow.

The flowers, food, visits, calls and prayers have been most comforting.

God Bless You,
Bess Cottrell, Carroll,
G.B. and Paul Hagar

Card of Thanks

We would like to thank the hospital staff, nurses, and especially Dr. Revell for all they did. When our beloved mother Candelaria Gonzales was in the hospital, the love & care for her was obvious. Also, thanks to everyone that participated in the funeral and sent cards and flowers.

Again Thank You,
The Gonzales Family

Chamber Singers to perform

A special worship service entitled "Praise-fest" will be performed by the Hereford Chamber Singers at a silver tea set for 3 p.m. today in the Lamar Garden Room of King's Manor Methodist Retirement Home. The public is invited to attend.

The service features choral numbers from a variety of contemporary and classical sacred music in addition to the congregational responses. Amy Gilliland serves as president of the group and Bill Devers is the director of the community choir. Piano accompaniment is provided by Elva Devers.

The Chamber Singers are preparing for their trip to World Expo 88 in Brisbane, Australia, in June.

American naval hero John Paul Jones was born in 1747.

McCathern, Newland recite vows here Saturday evening

Amid the soft glow of candlelight, Kolleen Kay McCathern and Kevin Scott Newland, both of Austin, recited their wedding vows in an early evening ceremony Saturday in the First Church of the Nazarene.

The ceremony was officiated by the Rev. Bob Huffaker, pastor.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Gerald McCathern of 419 Centre and the bridegroom is the son of Tom Newland of Pasadena, Texas.

White silk flowers and black silk bows marked the church pews and at the main altar was a brass arc holding 15 tapers entwined with greenery and white flowers. The arc was flanked by two 15-branch candelabra softened by green plants at the base and in a semi-circle. A classic memory candle was nestled in an arrangement of greenery and delicate miniature white silk flowers.

Annabeth Roming of Austin served the bride as matron of honor and Todd Muse of Amarillo was best man.

Bridesmaids included the bride's sister, Kathy Parker of Maryland, Karen Friemel of Austin, April Aleman of Amarillo and Jolisa Corbin of Andrews. Groomsmen were Brett Bryant of Amarillo, Doug Walker of Canyon, Brad Thompson of Lubbock and Spencer Hayes of Austin.

Guests were escorted by the bride's cousin, Kelley Cassels of Lubbock, and Mark Dickerson of Canyon.

The bride's niece and nephew, Amber and Michael McCathern, were junior attendants. They also lit candles during the ceremony.

The bride's niece, Tara Sealy, daughter of Kathy Parker and Kim Sealy, was flower girl; and the groom's brother, Matthew Newland, son of Tom Newland and Phyllis Dahn of Pasadena, was ring bearer.

Cathy and Mike McCathern, brother and sister-in-law of the bride, vocalized "The Wedding Song," "Evergreen" and "Nobody Loves Me Like You Do" accompanied by Cynthia Streun.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a white satin designer's gown with a fitted bodice overlaid with lace medallions which were enhanced with hand-sewn pearls and iridescent sequins. The Queen Anne neckline framed her face. The long puffed sleeves were sheer to the elbows and sprinkled with embroidered flowers, tapering to a lace encrusted scalloped edge at her wrists and a sheer yolk in the back came to a point at her waist. The back was appointed with tiny white satin buttons. The A-line skirt flowed to a cathedral-length train with lace medallions up the front and outlining the entire train.

Her fingertip-length veil had a double row of puffed meline in the back and the headpiece was made of a double row of pearls coming to a point on her forehead and accented with a pearl flower spray on one side with cascading leaves also of pearls and tiny white flowers. The edges of the double veil were hand-rolled.

Her jewelry consisted of a strand of pearls and matching earrings which were given to her by her parents. In keeping with bridal tradition, as something old, the bride wore her grandmother's wedding band; something new, her dress, earrings and necklace; something borrowed, a lace handkerchief belonging to her mother; and something blue, a lace garter.

The bride carried a cascading arrangement of all white silk flowers consisting of miniature roses and rosebuds, gardenias and a variety of cluster flowers all enhanced with lace tufts and pearl sprays.

The matron of honor and bridesmaids wore tea-length gowns of moire taffeta. The bodices were in black with mock turtlenecks and the skirts were gathered white moire taffeta. Accessories included black elbow-length gloves and matching earrings and pumps. They carried arm bouquets of silk white roses with baby's breath, all accented with black and white lace and pearls with a touch of dusty mauve picked up in the form of very small lilies.

Both the flower girl and junior attendant were attired in tea-length moire taffeta with short waisted white skirts and bodices of black with scoop necklines and long sleeves trimmed with white gathered edging. They had white belts tied in the backs made of white moire taffeta. Their shoes were also black. The flower girl carried a white lace basket filled with the same flowers the bridesmaids carried.

The bride's cousins from Pueblo, Colo. registered guests. Tammie Haney invited guests to sign the book and Lind Haney presided at the registry table at the reception held in the church fellowship hall.

Melissa Osmun of Huntsville served cake. Cookie Reyes of Hereford ladled punch and Michelle Axe of Abilene poured coffee. Shay Klinneet, the groom's sister, served the groom's cake.

The bride's table was covered with a white imported Chinese linen cloth emphasized with embroidered white flowers and edged with a cutwork design of scallops and scrolls. The floral arrangement, placed in a silver bowl, was constructed of white silk roses and mauve ribbons trailing to the table. A silver punch bowl was placed at the end of the table and was balanced by the bride's cake. The three-tiered white confection was spaced with white columns, each topped with black bows. The tiers held a cluster of white silk flowers and black ribbons and the uppermost tier held a Precious Moments bride and groom, a gift from the matron of honor.

An ecru tablecloth, edged in wide matching lace, covered the groom's table. The cake was made of German chocolate and decorated with the bride and groom's initials in ecru. A silver coffee service was also used and the centerpiece was an arrangement of white silk roses accented with black ribbon and baby's breath.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Crested Butte, Colo., the bride wore a black and white designer dress and hat. The couple will make their home in Austin.

The bride is a 1963 graduate of Hereford High School and plans to attend Austin Community College in the fall.

The groom, a 1982 graduate of Clarendon High School, graduated from West Texas State University in 1987 with a bachelor's degree in economics. He is employed by Allied Ed. Crop. in Austin.

Out-of-town guests included the groom's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Newland of Borger, and Nadine Scott of Stinnett; the groom's sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Shane Klinnert and Melody of Stinnett; the groom's father, Tom Newland of Pasadena and the bride's sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Parker, and Trae, Ty and Tara of Maryland. Other relatives of the bride represented Lubbock and Colorado.

Richard III was crowned King of England in 1483. A brother of Edward IV, Richard was accused of involvement in the deaths of his two nephews in order to gain the throne. His reputation has not been enhanced by theatrical portrayals of the king. The death of Richard, the last Yorkist king, at Bosworth Field in 1485, ended the Wars of the Roses.

TERESA WILCOX, RODNEY ALLEN

Couple to wed

Teresa Lynne Wilcox of Hereford and Rodney Don Allen of Friona plan to exchange nuptials at 6:30 p.m. May 21 in the Sixth Street Church of Christ in Friona.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Wilcox of 105 Mimosa and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frankie Allen of Friona.

Miss Wilcox is majoring in elementary education at West Texas State University and is a December candidate for graduation. She is presently employed at Panhandle Plains Historical Museum in Canyon.

Allen also attends WTSU and is majoring in biology education. He is currently employed at Blake Brothers Construction in Canyon.

Speaking project to begin

The 4-H Public Speaker project will begin Monday at the Community Center at 4 p.m. This contest involves method demonstrations and illustrated talks. There will be five training meetings and parents and 4-H'ers are urged to attend this first meeting.

The contest date for County Round-Up will be April 18. The 4-H'ers will be presenting a number of community service programs in conjunction with this project.

For information contact the County Extension Office at 364-3573.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion, handicap, or national origin.

YOUR EYES

YOUR BABY'S EYE

If your baby is less than six months old, it is not unusual for his or her eyes to cross or turn occasionally. Your baby has not yet developed full eye muscle control.

If the crossing or eye turn continues, however, or increases in frequency, the baby's eyes should be examined. Children do not outgrow crossed-eyes, or an eye that turns outwards to the side of the head. The earlier treatment is started, the better chance exists for straightening out the eyes.

Many cases of crossed eyes, or eyes that turn out, can often be corrected through a combination of prescription lenses and vision training. Any visual acuity weakness will be corrected at the same time that the eyes are being straightened. In time, the child is taught to use the two eyes together, so that the eyes remain straight and in alignment. Surgery is only recommended when other methods of correction are unsuccessful.

WE HELP... WHEN HELP IS MOST NEEDED

The day a member of your family dies is the day you will need help of a special kind. Regardless of your grief there are a hundred details to face and decisions to make.

Suddenly you have many questions about such things as which funeral director to call, the cost of funeral services, which cemetery you should use. More questions about the time and place of services, flowers, pallbearers, newspaper notices, insurance. Anything more? Yes, much more.

It's the day when a funeral director from Rix can give you the answers you must have: Answers based on experience patiently repeated as many times as you need to hear them to make wise decisions. You will find that you may arrange all details at our office or in the privacy of your home.

When death comes to your family, as it does to every family, or when you know death is imminent, call us for any information you need. This creates no obligation. We will give you answers to your questions, and you may make your decisions based on facts.

We invite your call before the need arises when you can examine the facts calmly and make unemotional decisions.

Remember, we want to help you.

Indian arts lecture set for March 6 at Canyon museum

At 3 p.m. on Sunday, March 6, Dr. Bertha P. Dutton, of Santa Fe, N.M., will present a lecture on Native American cultures and arts, in conjunction with the opening of the Museum's new exhibit "In Beauty May I Walk."

A renowned ethnographer, Dr. Dutton was director of the Museum of Navajo Ceremonial Art, now known as the Wheelwright Museum, in Santa Fe, for 10 years.

She is the author of several books, including American Indians of the Southwest and Sun Father's Way. She has also produced a number of tourguide books dealing with Indian villages of northern New Mexico. Although retired, she now serves as an Adjunct Curator for the Museum of New Mexico, Santa Fe, and she continues to lecture on Native American topics.

Dutton has lived in northern New Mexico for half a century. She holds a Ph.D. in anthropology from Columbia University, and she had been a student of Southwestern and Meso-American anthropology for fifty years.

Following Dutton's talk, there will be a reception and informal walk through the exhibits "From the Heart to Paper" and "In Beauty May I Walk."

Both the lecture and reception are open to the public, and there will be no admission charge.

Planning Jamboree

The annual Senior Citizens' Rock 'n' Roll Jamboree is planned to begin at 9 a.m. Tuesday, March 15, at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center, 426 Ranger. All donations are tax deductible and will benefit the American Heart Association. Those serving on this year's planning committee include (seated from left) Helen Spinks

Discussing Annual Crusade

Board members for the Deaf Smith County Unit of the American Cancer Society have been busy finalizing plans for the annual Cancer Crusade set for April 24-31. The door-to-door campaign is planned from 2-5 p.m. Sunday, April 24. At that time local residents will be given the opportunity to donate to the ACS and will receive information packets from crusade walkers. Discussing the event with local board members is Kee Ruland, president of the DSC Unit.

Wedding planned

Tanya Evon Holmes will become the bride of John Robert McQuigg on March 18 in the home of the bride-elect's parents.

Miss Holmes is the daughter of Robert and Janice Holmes of 1101 Grand. Parents of the prospective bridegroom are Dale and Gloria Mullins of Hereford.

The bride-elect is a student at Hereford High School and will be a candidate for graduation in 1989.

McQuigg, an '84 graduate of HHS, is employed at Brandon and Clark.

The Mohicans were a fictional tribe created by author James Fenimore Cooper. There was, however, a real tribe known as the Mahicans.

Annual Rock 'n' Roll Jamboree set

Ruth Knox is heading up this year's Senior Citizens' Rock 'n' Roll Jamboree scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. Tuesday, March 15, at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center, 426 Ranger.

Those interested in rocking in a rocking chair or rolling in a wheelchair may sign up at Golden Plains Care Center, Westgate Nursing Home, King's Manor Methodist Retirement Home and the Senior Citizens Center.

Participants will be accepting pledges for each minute or hour they rock or roll during the jamboree. According to Helen Spinks, jamboree publicity chairman, all donations are tax deductible and will benefit the American Heart Association.

Those planning to rock 'n' roll include various Hereford dignitaries, local citizens and residents of the three nursing homes. Refreshments will be served throughout the day and entertainment will be provided, said Margie Daniels, Hereford Senior Citizens Center director.

Two prizes of $15 in Hereford bucks will be awarded to the rocker with the most hours and to the largest individual monetary contributor. Also, a plaque will be presented by the Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Heart Association to the business that makes the most contributions.

Serving on the planning committee are Helen Spinks, Alby Cockrell, Ruth Knox, Addie Cunningham, Margie Daniels, Jean Patten, Rosie Wall, Nila Cockrell, Mildred Garrison and Hope Loerwald.

'Moonlighting' in big eclipse this season

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If loyal fans of ABC's "Moonlighting" are gluttons for punishment, that may be an asset for watching the show this season.

Not within memory have television viewers had to put up with so much and gotten so little.

"Moonlighting" is the most disappointing show this season, and for those who loved the show it is a terrible thing to see it self-destruct right on the screen.

What made this show go, what gave it its charm and appeal, were the scenes between Cybill Shepherd as Maddie Hayes and Bruce Willis as David Addison. These two opposites, irresistibly drawn to each other in a love-hate relationship, made the screen sparkle with their witty repartee.

But Shepherd's pregnancy caused a dilemma for the show's producers. Instead of shooting around it, as most series do, they made it a part of the story. Allyce Beasley, who plays Miss Dipesto, was also pregnant, but on the show she ignored it. Besides, with her layered look, it was hard to tell.

It might have seemed a smart move at the time to incorporate Shepherd's pregnancy into the story. But it has turned into labor for the viewers.

Maddie, telling no one she was pregnant, went off to Chicago to brood with her parents. David was left to deal with her absence.

"Moonlighting" was left to slowly twist in the wind.

It was embarrassing watching the show deal with her absence. It squirmed and made up stories like someone caught in a lie. The whole point of watching "Moonlighting" was to see those two carry on like cases they solved were merely an excuse to get them together so they could disagree.

And when Shepherd and Willis finally got back together, it wasn't any better. Forget the witty dialogue. "Moonlighting" turned into "Days of Whine and Roses."

Although Shepherd had twins, Maddie is still pregnant. She told David the baby's not his.

But the clincher was when she announced she had married a stranger — a whole new character, Dennis Dugan as a businessman she met on the train from Chicago — on impulse. Maddie, married on impulse? Maddie, the woman who wouldn't cross the street on impulse? David is standing there with egg on his face, trying to grin through it. What a low blow. What a letdown for the audience.

Where is the famous "Dallas" shower when we need it? Tell us the season was only a dream and not a nightmare. Maddie and David have become an unfunny, bickering couple who have overstayed their welcome. It was gone. nice while it lasted, but the magic is

Ladd seeks revenge, success in 'Bluegrass'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — As Maude Breen in the CBS miniseries "Bluegrass," former "Charlie's Angel" Cheryl Ladd is a woman out for revenge, success, her own horse farm and a winner at the Kentucky Derby.

This being television and the wind-up of the February ratings sweeps, the two-part series, to be shown Sunday and Monday, also is rife with intrigue, back-stabbing, and social climbing. There are lots of blue skies and green pastures, beautiful horses and a rousing finale at Churchill Downs.

"I play a woman who was raised in the area but is forced to leave after her father is accused of burning a barn," Ladd says. "He was the farm manager and he took the blame for the son. The son also tries to rape me at the beginning of the picture. He's played by Wayne Rogers."

Laughing, she adds, "He's so charming. You just know he's a snake." "Bluegrass," from a novel by Borden Deal, also stars Brian Kerwin, Anthony Andrews, Shawnee Smith, Diane Ladd, Kiernan Mulroney and Mickey Rooney.

Filmed entirely on location around Lexington, Ky., it was directed by Simon Wincer, who also directed the Australian movie about horse racing, "Phar Lap."

"Maude is a kind of steel magnolia," Ladd says. "I liked her because of that. She's pretty determined to do it her own way. I liked that, too. I liked that she's not afraid to get her hands dirty. She can dress up, then turn around and put on jeans and muck up a horse stall."

"She's an underdog. I think a lot of people will be rooting for her. I grew up in a small town in South Dakota. My aunt had a farm and my grandfather lived in an even smaller town. I can identify with these kind of people. And my husband and I have a quarter horse ranch in Colorado, so I know something about horses, too."

"Bluegrass" opens with some brief scenes that show Maude as a teenager and the unhappy memories she left behind.

"They asked me if I wanted to play her as a 15-year-old," she says. "That would be quite a stretch. It was flattering, but I thought better of it. What I really said was, 'Get real!'"

Then it jumps ahead 15 years, as Maude, now a widow, returns to buy a run-down farm with a vow of turning it into a breeding stable for winning thoroughbreds.

Ladd is married to producer Brian Russell, whose Indian Neck Productions has turned out such films as "Hoosiers," "From the Hip," "Flight of the Navigator" and "The Witching Hour."

"We'll go up to our ranch and load up some pack horses and ride into the mountains for four or five days," she says. "We'll pitch tents and live outdoors. I ride a buckskin cutting horse named Half a Buck."

"It's funny, but I didn't have much luck with horses when I was a kid. I had a bad experience of being thrown and kicked. I thought there was something about me that horses didn't like.

"On 'Charlie's Angels' I had to jump out of a Jeep onto a horse and ride out of the camera frame. Thank goodness for the wrangler. The horse looked at me, laid his ears down and went for the lowest branch. The wrangler went after me and pulled me off the horse. It was like a scene from a movie. He said, 'This horse is trying to kill you.'"

Whatever it was, Ladd got over it, learned to ride and has even been in a few races.

This is the third miniseries for Ladd, who previously starred in "A Death in California" and "Crossings." Last year she was in the TV movie "Deadly Care" as a nurse battling her addiction to drugs.

Bandstand still gets a '98' from fans

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — In 1955, 8-year-old David Frees discovered "American Bandstand." The show was then 3 years old, broadcast daily from south Philadelphia by a local station and hosted by a local disc jockey, Bob Horn.

By the time "American Bandstand" hit the national airwaves 13 months later, Dick Clark and his cast of dancing regulars were whipping Frees and the rest of the Howdy Doodly generation into a jitterbugging, bunny-hopping frenzy.

A mere wink or smile from one of the saddle-shoed, poodle-skirted girls whirling around the "Bandstand" dance floor could reduce him to a puddle of adolescent longing.

Today, at 40, Frees still thinks the show has a good beat, he can dance to it and he gives it a 98 on a scale of 100.

He is the president and founder of the American Bandstand Fan Club, which has 836 members in the United States, one member in France, one in England and one in Japan.

Tom Stepanchak, publicity director for Dick Clark Productions in Burbank, Calif., said that as far as he or Clark knows, Frees' fan club is the only major "Bandstand" club remaining.

Frees has become somewhat of a national authority on "American Bandstand." He was interviewed about his longstanding infatuation with the show for the book "The History of American Bandstand," by Michael Shore with Dick Clark.

Frees' house is kind of a "Bandstand" Hall of Fame, packed with memorabilia from the show's pre-California heyday.

Two Dick Clark dolls — grinning that familiar grin — rest on a chair and a shelf in the living room of Frees and his housemate, Richard Burkner. On the bar stools are stacks of magazines from the '50s and early '60s, including issues of Teen Magazine's "Bandstand Blast" and "My Bandstand Buddies."

And on the room's paneled walls are blown-up photos of old "Bandstand" dancers, a 1973 photo of Pop Singer with "Bandstand" kid Marlene Mizanin and a long-haired Frees, autographed by Clark, and framed issues of 16 Magazine's "Your Secret Bandstand Album."

Frees, the divorced father of a 17-year-old daughter who watches "American Bandstand" but prefers "Dancin' On Air," is an outgoing, chatty man who seems to have discovered Clark's formula for youthful looks.

Clad in a purple "Bandstand Boogie" T-shirt and designer jeans, he sat on a crushed velvet couch in his living room and explained his unflagging affection for "American Bandstand."

"It was just a period of my life that I liked and I want to keep it alive. Some people collect rocks, I collect 'Bandstand,'" Frees said, glancing around his memorabilia-filled home.

As a youngster, Frees didn't live far from south Philly, but he never attended a "Bandstand" show because his parents were afraid to let him take the train into the city by himself. By the time he had turned 16 and could drive, the show had moved to California.

He joined his first "Bandstand" fan club in 1960, a club devoted to the Jimenez sisters. When the president of the club went off to college, she sold the club's membership list and materials to Frees for $10.

Eventually, Frees took on a number of clubs, each one promoting a different "Bandstand" regular.

In 1967, Frees was drafted into the Army. A month before his tour of duty ended in Vietnam, he broke a leg making an emergency jump from a helicopter. He was sent to recuperate in a Philadelphia hospital. Many of the old "Bandstand" regulars were still in Philly and one of them — Doris Olsen, who had written to Frees when he was in Vietnam — visited him in the hospital.

When he was released, Frees returned to his parents' home to reclaim his memorabilia. To his horror, much of it had been ruined by water from a leaky attic roof.

A lesser fan might have surrendered, but Frees wrote to fan club members and former "Bandstand" kids, asking for any memorabilia they could spare. From his pen pals came magazines, snapshots and enough "Bandstand" kid glossies to fill five scrapbooks.

In 1970, Frees consolidated his individual fan clubs into one national club, offering members — for a lifetime fee of $10 — pen pal lists, membership cards, souvenir 45-rpm records, "Bandstand" kid photographs and an annual newsletter, "Bandstand Boogie," named for the "Bandstand" theme song lyrics by Barry Manilow.

As he'd done throughout the '60s, Frees continued to correspond with old "Bandstand" regulars. In 1972, Marlene Mizanin invited him to her Philadelphia home for a party to celebrate Ivette Jimenez' birthday.

Through Ms. Mizanin, he went on to meet other aging "Bandstand" kids in the Philadelphia area.

"They all think it's pretty neat that someone wants to keep the whole thing alive," said Frees. "I think it's something that deserves to be alive. It was an important part of our history."

Professional organist to play here

Hector Olivera, a professional organist, will play for members of the Hereford Community Concert Association at 8 p.m. Tuesday, March 8, in the Hereford High School auditorium. This is a substitute program.

Olivera, born in Buenos Aires, Argentina, in 1946, started playing the pipe organ at the age of three and was appointed organist for the Church of the Immaculate Conception two years later. At age six, he entered the Buenos Aires Conservatory to study harmony, counterpoint and fugue.

The performer became the youngest student to enter the University of Buenos Aires at 12. By the time he was 18, he had been appointed head of the organ department, and in addition to being featured regularly on radio and television, had performed over 350 public concerts and recitals. He also served for three years as the senior improvisational accompanist for the Colegium Musicum in Buenos Aires, a role credited as being a major building-block in his noted ability to improvise.

Olivera has studied at the Juillard School of Music in New York City, N.Y. and studied privately with Dr. Vernon de Tar. In 1968, he won first place in the National Improvisation Contest sponsored by the American Guild of Organist.

He has performed extensively abroad, including performances in Australia, Germany, Japan, Taiwan, Holland, France and the United Kingdom. In 1980, Olivera decided to create a custom electronic touring organ that would permit him to perform anywhere in the world regardless of whether or not the auditorium or hall contained an organ. After a three-year period, he custom crafted the "O-1 Orchestra," a portable instrument whose tones could rival world renowned orchestras, bands and pipe organs.

Olivera and his "O-1 Orchestra" have dazzled audiences across the United States, from a capacity crowd of 5,000 people at the Constitution Hall in Washington, D.C., to an outdoor performance at Balboa Park in San Diego, Calif.

He resides with his wife Alison and their daughter near Atlanta, Ga.

THE FIRST POUND CAKE

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The first printed "receipt" for pound cake appeared in a 1747 book.

It called for a pound each of sugar, butter, eggs and flour. It contained no baking powder and was leavened solely by the air incorporated into well-beaten butter and well-beaten eggs. Preparing a perfectly risen cake with a fine, even texture required experience, skill and a strong arm.

In the 1800s, pound cake was served with afternoon tea, according to Country Home magazine. Day-old pound cake was cut up and used in such desserts as fruit trifle.

Today, few pound cake recipes follow the pound-for-pound formula. Though most recipes include baking powder or baking soda to ensure proper leavening, it still is necessary to incorporate as much air as possible when beating the butter and eggs.

A WORD'S IN A NAME

NEW YORK (AP) — Many everyday words, such as diesel, ampere, mesmerize, fahrenheit, boycott and pasteurize, come from the names of real people.

Mechanical engineer Rudolf Diesel patented the diesel engine in 1894. Ampere, a unit of electrical current, came from French scientist Andre-Marie Ampere in 1881. Dr. Franz Mesmer, a German physician, developed the theory of mesmerism, a type of hypnotism, in 1784.

Physicist Gabriel Fahrenheit (1686-1736) invented the first scale for thermometers. In 1897, Capt. Charles Boycott, an English land agent in Ireland, was ostracized for refusing to lower his tenants' rents. The pasteurization process was developed in France by Dr. Louis Pasteur (1822-1895).

cludes 3,424 square feet of heated area. All W. D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information write, W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

Improvements coming for TV

Imagine a television set equipped with robotics so it moves under its own power and doubles as a security device.

What about a tiny solar-powered portable to keep you up-to-date on the big game or your favorite soap opera while you're working outdoors or lazing on the beach?

These ideas have won their two originators $5,000 scholarships, a trip to Japan and a new TV set in a contest for design school students sponsored by Sony Corp. of America.

Rusty Snell, an Arizona State

University student, originated the solar-powered portable. Brian Addison Elliott, a student at the Art Center College of Design in South Pasadena, Calif., came up with the TV robot.

Though none of the 10 prize-winning ideas will actually be made, Aki Amanuma, Sony vice president of design, said they could inspire new features and designs in actual products.

In one respect the students were onto an idea that will soon be widely accepted: namely, that the television set as a square box is an outmoded concept, said Dick Komiyama, president of Sony's television division.

Other innovations in personal TV that the executives singled out as interesting include a set whose controls are equally convenient for left- and right-handed individuals and another that straps onto the knee for viewing while seated.

Jason Lee, a student at Pratt Institute in Brooklyn, N.Y., originated the ambidextrous TV set. Andrew March, of the Art Center College of Design, thought up the flat knee-pad-like TV that straps onto the viewer's limb.

For at-home viewing, a television with detachable speakers was an award winner with potential, according to Amanuma. The design by Lori Eickemeyer Aphorp, also a student at the Art Center College of Design, separates TV components into parts so that speakers and picture tube are treated as accessories whose color, shape and texture can be varied for decorative variety.

According to Elliott, 28, a junior at the Art Center College of Design, the concept that inspired the idea of a robotic TV was broadcast animation. Broadcasters would prepare commercials or programs with programmed animation sequences which could be carried out by the TV robot. His inspiration was the dancing cigarette pack that used to be advertised on television. He sees it as also applicable to TV cartoons for kids. To keep the set from bumping into walls, automatic and manual controls could stop the action.

The unit also could function as a home security system preset so it would sense movement and/or sound. "Sensing motion or sound, it could turn on and make lots of loud noises and stomp around," said Elliott. He added that technology exists to build the product though "it's not necessarily practical."

Rusty Snell, 24, a senior at Arizona State, created the solar-powered personal television set prototype. He developed the concept after speaking to owners of personal TV sets who complained they went through too many new batteries.

"I wanted to get a new source of energy without new technology so solar energy seemed ideal." There is a battery backup so programs can be viewed even when the sun isn't out.

According to Komiyama, solar technology is not yet advanced enough to support solar powered personal TV because a small collector could not draw enough power. However, he added, combining solar power with a flat personal TV worn like football kneepad is a solid marketing idea.

The contest — a first for Sony — had two purposes: to expose the Sony name among design students, raising their awareness of the company; and to gain fresh thinking about television by the youthful users who are an important market for new equipment.

Komiyama said his goal of seeing "dramatically futuristic" ideas for television had been realized. He added that new technology on the horizon would change everyone's conception of what television sets should look like.

Forces that will make the square box obsolete include flat television screens and projection systems in which screen and broadcasting functions are separated into different components. High-definition television will result in screens that are wider and not so tall.

They will offer a wider horizontal viewing area. For example, in a televised baseball game, viewers will be able to see first and third bases while the camera is trained on the pitcher's mound, Komiyama noted.

The contest was open to industrial and interior design students, and it drew 130 entries from some 25 design schools.

School to help save battleship

Students at Northwest Elementary School will join school children across Texas in a campaign next week to save the Battleship Texas. Popcorn sales at the school will be held Friday, March 4, and will be sponsored by the Northwest School PTA. Cost of each bag of popcorn will be 25 cents; all money collected will go toward the "Save the Battleship Texas" fund set up by Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Voice students sing for Calliopian Club

Jane Gulley introduced Frances Parker and five students from Friona who sang show tune selections when members of the Calliopian Study Club met Thursday evening in the home of Irene Coneway. Marjorie Mims served as co-hostess. Students who performed included Marcia Blackwell, Raina Roden, Mindy Johnson, Lory Tannahill and Leigh Neelley. The youth will be singing in the Junior Music Festival, Section I, First District, Texas Federation of Music Clubs and Division I, National Federation of Music Clubs, March 5 in First Baptist Church. The Hereford Music Study Club will be sponsoring the annual event in which piano, voice and violin students will perform in solo and ensemble numbers on a non-competitive basis. Each entrant will receive a certificate commemorating his or her participation. Mrs. Parker is sponsoring the five entrants from the Junior Etude Club in the musical theater vocal event. Club members also recognized Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Roden as special guests.

A brief business session, presided over by Cherry McWhorter, was held in which members voted to contribute to the roofing project as the Ruth Warner Memorial Day Care Center. The next meeting was set for 7:30 p.m. March 10 in the home of Claudia McBrayer.

Those present included Linday Gilbert, Jane Gulley, Virginia Holmes, Faye Holt, Mary Sue Hull, Claudia McBrayer, Cherry McWhorter, Kay McWhorter, Wilma Nobles, Kathlee Palmer, Kathryn Ruga, Vera Threewit, Jan Walsler, Meredith Wilcox and the hostesses.

While the Battleship Texas is now floating, it had been sitting in 12 feet of mud, rusting, up until November, 1967. It is estimated that restoration efforts may total over $10 million, so the Cypress students picked March 2, Texas Independence Day—as the target date for their "Two Bits For The Texas" campaign. Northwest School's participation on March 4 will also be a part of this effort.

In conjunction with Public School Week, March 7-11, an open house will be held Tuesday, March 8, at 7 p.m. in Northwest School. March 10 has been designated as Grandparents Day, whereby grandparents may join the children for lunch in the cafeteria at students' prices. April has been designated as Popcorn Month at the school, with popcorn available each Friday for 25 cents. Proceeds will go toward various school projects, including paying off the popcorn machine.

Program on Denmark given during meeting

Members of L'Allegria Study Club met Feb. 18 at the home of Joyce Lomas with Junita Bowles serving as co-hostess.

Vice President Cathy Guseman presided over the business meeting in the absence of President Jody Skiles. The March 3 meeting was canceled to allow L'Allegrians to attend the intensive training session in preparation for their sponsorship of the "We Help Ourselves-Anti-Victimization" pilot project to be conducted in four Hereford schools between March and the end of the academic year.

Presenting the day's program was Charlotte Lund, a foreign exchange student from Denmark. Lund is the guest of the Jack Mars family and is a Hereford High School senior. She gave a slide presentation to depict life in Denmark in general and her family life in particular.

While presenting her slides, she

Accent on Health

Gov. William P. Clements has proclaimed the week of Feb. 29 through March 4 as Radiation Protection Week in Texas to mark the 25th anniversary of a cooperative arrangement between the state and federal government for the regulation of radiation.

Regulation of radiation as in its infancy on March 1, 1963 when Texas became the fifth state in the country to be designated as an "Agreement State." On that date, the Texas Department of Health (TDH) launched its radiation control program, a partner to the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission (AEC).

The Agreement States program was created by a 1959 amendment to the Atomic Energy Act of 1954. That legislation was designed to recognize the interests of states in the peaceful uses of atomic energy. The amendment also clarified the respective responsibilities of the states and the federal government in regulating radiation.

Before becoming an Agreement State, Texas was on the forefront in regulation of radiation. As early as 1949, TDH became concerned about radiation safety. It adopted regulations on radiation exposure in 1956. The Texas Radiation Control Act was adopted in 1961, establishing the Texas Radiation Advisory Board and designating TDH as the primary radiation control agency.

The state's 1963 agreement with the AEC (now the Nuclear Regulatory Commission), allowed Texas to assume all licensing and regulatory authority formerly administered in Texas by the AEC, with three exceptions. The federal government retained authority over: nuclear reactors; certain nuclear materials; and radioactive materials used by other federal agencies.

As an Agreement State, Texas became part of a burgeoning network of states cooperating to develop relatively uniform standards for regulating radiation. The agreement also provided for cooperation with other Agreement States regarding licenses.

Native American art featured in exhibit

The Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum continues its spring Exhibits Showcase with the March 1 opening of "In Beauty May I Walk: Native American Art from the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum." In conjunction with the exhibit, at 3 p.m. on March 6, Dr. Bertha P. Dutton, Adjunct Curator of the Museum of New Mexico, will present a lecture on culture and arts of North American Indians.

Illustrating the diverse artistic expression utilized by Native Americans in North America, the exhibit showcases the scope and quality of the Museum's large ethnographic collection, according to Michael Grauer, Curator of Art, who put the show together.

"Virtually every culture group north of Mexico is represented in this show," said Grauer.

"The Museum is especially strong in materials from the Plains, Southwest, California, Great Basin, and Woodland culture areas," he said. Beadwork, basketry, pottery, and textiles are among the media that are on exhibit.

"We chose to highlight this portion of the Museum's collection because Native Americans have fascinated non-Native Americans for hundreds of years. But there's a popular misconception—from movies and television—of Indians as 'half-naked savages' decked out in feathers and chasing a wagon train," he explained.

"In reality, Native American culture was very diverse, and all of them spent time creating beautiful objects. Each group had a different economy, different value system, and lived in a different natural environment, and so it's easy to see why their methods of artistic expression varied from group to group," he said.

"The concept of 'art' was nonexistent in Native American cultures, but in each group people decorated useful things, like clothing and utensils."

For instance, Plains tribes beaded their mocassins and bags in geometrical designs. Woodlands peoples, who lived primarily east of the Mississippi, decorated objects of wood, birchbark, and clay, and created pipes, bowls, and so forth. They also created beadwork designs, but the designs took floral motifs.

California tribes were famous for their basketry, which were used as domestic items, religious objects, and for trade. Alaskan tribes used whalebone and ivory as objects to carve.

Examples of all of these art forms are on display through Aug. 31, in "In Beauty May I Walk."

Some people believe a spark from a candle foretells a letter.

AIDS Conference March 10

An AIDS Conference for health care professionals will be held at Texas Tech Health Science Center Auditorium in Amarillo on March 10, from 2-4:30 p.m.

An evening session will be held for physicians dentists and office staff from 7-9:30 p.m. also at Texas Tech auditorium, 1400 Coulter.

An update on current information about the AIDS process, workplace issues and universal precautions will be discussed by Vonda Reeves, M.D. who is the Director of the AIDS Program, Texas Department of Corrections. She is the hospital liaison physician between the Texas Department of Corrections Hospital and the University of Texas Medical Branch, Galveston, Texas. She is presently a member of the Texas Department of Health Commissioners Task Force on AIDS.

The conference is sponsored by O.P.T.I.O.N. Care and cosponsored by Northwest Texas Hospitals, High Plains Baptist Hospital, St. Anthony's Hospital, Family Hospital Center and Texas Tech Health Science Center. There is no charge for attendance.

The charter of the United Nations was signed in San Francisco June 26, 1945. Representatives of 50 countries joined to outline future peaceful settlement of any disputes endangering world peace.

★ JOBS ★ U.S. POSTAL SERVICE

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT...FOR ALL CANDIDATES PLANNING TO SIGN UP FOR THE CLERK-CARRIER AND AREA LETTER SORTING MACHINE EXAMS AT THE HEREFORD POST OFFICE WHEN THEY ARE SOON ANNOUNCED. LAST GIVEN IN 1985, AND SINCE THEY WON'T BE OFFERED AGAIN FOR AT LEAST 3 YEARS...DON'T MISS OUT.

A recent issue of Newsweek magazine noted that the average Postal worker earns $27,500 in salary and benefits. Men and women, regardless of age or experience are eligible to apply. Courses to help you prepare for the above exams will be offered by Postal Exam Workshops. Instructors Larry Herman and Bill Harold are considered by many to be the most qualified on how to gain employment with the Postal Service. These exams do not test general knowledge. Proper preparation is the key to getting hired, because people are hired for these positions based on their exam score. The easy to learn techniques taught in these courses were designed by Mr. Harold. He is a former Postal employee, the author of 3 Postal Exam Guides, and has repeatedly scored 100% on Postal tests.

3 HOUR WORKSHOP: SCORE 95-100%

GUARANTEE: The time saving and accuracy-increasing methods taught in this course are so powerful that we will enter into written agreement.
• You will score 95% or higher or your money will be refunded.
• If you do not receive a job application/interview within 90 days of your score, your money will be refunded.

WORKSHOP TUITION is $30 and includes the guaranteed workshop, workbook, interview hints, study guide with 25 complete take-home exams, follow-up consultation privileges with free information phone number, home study program kit, personal notification of future application dates, and more... WANT TO RELOCATE? We offer the free Postal Alert Bulletin giving you postal exam dates nationwide. You are invited to bring your tape recorder to record the workshop for personal review.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a tip for "Faceless in Amarillo" and others who may test positive for AIDS antibodies. "Faceless" said he wasn't gay, had no symptoms of the disease, and claimed he wasn't promiscuous. He was puzzled over how and when he could have become infected.

I am gay but gave up gay sex because I was afraid of AIDS. A few months after this decision, I took the AIDS test and it was negative. Then I read that the lag between exposure and a positive result may stretch from one to six months or longer. So, six months later, I took the test again and was horrified to learn it was positive. I was retested by the same doctor who said the results were confirmed by the more sensitive Western Blot test done in the doctor's own lab.

After months of plain hell waiting for AIDS symptoms to appear, I decided to try for a second opinion. I went to a free clinic and to my surprise, I tested negative. I then went to the AIDS clinic of a prestigious Washington hospital and got the same result—negative. I now know the positive tests were inaccurate.

A recent article in the Washington Post stated that the accuracy rate of private lab tests may vary widely. So please, Ann, tell your readers who test positive to try a different lab, preferably one with a reputation for accuracy, before they accept the decision as final. Thank God I did.—Celibate in D.C.

Auditions for musical set today

Archie Coplen, invites residents to tryout for the community-wide production of "Joy In The Morning" today at First Baptist Church.

Those wishing to audition for singing parts need to be at the church at 2 p.m. today, and those wanting to tryout for the speaking parts need to be present at 3 p.m.

"Joy In The Morning" is a musical-theater production depicting Jesus Christ's resurrection and the events leading to that resurrection. The production, incorporating a 25-member orchestra, will be presented March 27 at 3 p.m. and 7 p.m. at the Hereford High School auditorium.

Tickets for the program, led by David Danner, will be priced at $3 per person; $5 a couple; and $10 for a family.

The program will feature a large choir selected from local talent and a live orchestra composed of the Amarillo Symphony.

Concert to kick-off celebration

Patsy Montana, a 1987 honoree of the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center, will be in concert Friday June 24 to lead off the Hall of Fame Weekend.

The concert will benefit the Cowgirl Hall of Fame and the annual Rhinestone Roundup, set for Saturday, June 25, will feature five new Western Heritage honorees and two Cowgirl Hall of Fame honorees. Chosen by the Honoree Research and Selection Committee as 1988 inductees are Marie Tyler of Bismarck, N.D.; Stella Hughes of Clifton, Ariz.; Hope Carol Varner of Lake Ozark, Mo.; Mari Sandoz of Sheridan County, Neb.; and Elizabeth Boyle Smith of Crosbyton, Texas, all Western Heritage honorees, and Mildred Douglas Chrisman of Lawton, Okla., and Ruth Parton of Toppenish, Wash., both Cowgirl honorees.

Hereford man cast in SPC production

Clifford McElhaney of Hereford has a role in the upcoming South Plains College mystery spoof, "Abra Cadaver."

The one-act play is scheduled for a performance at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the SPC Theater for the Performing Arts. Admission is free.

McElhaney plays a member of a masquerade party in the one-act thriller, according to Helen Roberts, SPC professor of speech and drama.

McElhaney, a sophomore sound technology major at SPC, is the son of Jan and Gayle McElhaney and a graduate of Hereford High School.

He has had roles in "Once Upon A Mattress," "Dog Patch U.S.A.," "Little Abner," "Bye Bye Birdie," and "Requiem."

people are opposed to mandatory testing for the very reason you have stated. Add another: Although confidentiality is promised, medical records sometimes fall into the wrong hands and an incorrect positive result can be ruinous. I haven't even mentioned the cost of the tests, which for some can impose a heavy financial burden.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My father-in-law is driving me crazy.

The man is always breathing down my neck being entirely too "helpful." If I go to the cabinet to get a glass, he's there. If I take my little boy's coat off, he's there. If I start to set the table, he's there. (He never helps my mother-in-law with anything.)

Lately he has been trying to brush against me and cop a feel. I am fed up with his disgusting behavior.

I love my mother-in-law. I know she is aware of what is going on and is embarrassed by it. Also, other family members must notice that he hangs around me entirely too much. My husband is the happy-go-lucky type, the sort who never wants to think ill of anyone.

What can I say (or do) to make the lech stop this nonsense? I'm — Up to Here in Boise

DEAR UP: Take the creep aside and tell him in no-nonsense language that his excessive "helpfulness" is not appreciated and that you want him to keep his distance. Make it plain that if he gets too close for comfort one more time you will announce (in a voice that can be heard in Colorado) that you want him to keep his pea-pickin' hands off you. Then do it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In a recent column you said, "Dream castles are fun to visit but don't try to live in them." I read something apropos that you may feel is worth printing:

"Dream castles are built by neurotics. They are inhabited by psychotics and the rent is collected by psychiatrists."—Waukegan
