Dabbling in devil worship

Are some Hereford residents really worshipping the devil?

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor
Although authorities are still in need of hard clues before they do more investigating into reports that up to 70 persons have been slain by a devil-worshipping cult in the Hereford area, there is no doubt that some persons have been dabbling in devil worship for quite some time.

If you know the signs, and know where to look for them, they are easy to see.

The signs include pentagrams, goat's heads, inverted crosses and the "peace symbol" that dotted the antiwar movement during the 1960s and early 1970s. The peace symbol was used by devil worshippers long before it became a peace symbol.

There are also signs of a dead animal, possibly sacrificed, at one of the "worship" sites, deep in the trees along Tierra Blanca Creek on the east side of Veterans Park in Hereford.

While no one has actually been caught participating in a satanic ritual, there is not much that can be done if no laws are being broken.
"Not everyone that is a satanist is involved in illegal acts," said Wayne Beighle, an education and safety officer for the Department of Public Safety during a talk earlier this year to the Hereford Lions Club. "It is perfectly legal to openly worship satan as long as it's done above board."

The "religious satanists" are above board. They public proclaim they are satanists. They dress in robes, have their own "Bible," and have ritualized ceremonies.
But not everything done is above-board. There are self-styled satanists who engage in bizarre behavior, and there are cults that are responsible for most of the criminal activity done by devil worshippers.

Not everything has been above-board in at least three cases in Hereford. There have been visible cases of trespassing, vandalism, and perhaps the sacrificing of animals. AT the very least, the animals were killed somewhere else, and their remains were brought to the location of the ceremony.

There could have been cases of sexual assault, or where persons under the age of 18 committed sexual acts under the influence of older persons.
Devil worship and satanism is increasing in Texas, according to Beighle. "Ten years ago people would have said you were crazy if you said this was going on," Beighle said.

But there have been people in this area at least dabbling in devil worship and satanism for quite some time.

"Amarillo claims there are from 200 to 600 people involved in satanism," Beighle said. "They have very strict goals they want to achieve."

Satanism and devil worship has a strong pulling power on teens, Beighle said. His "typical profile" of a person that becomes involved in the practice has very low self-esteem, comes from a "dysfunctional" family, is a follower, and has above-average intelligence but is a below-average achiever.

"When they come into the group they get so much given to them that they slip further and further in," Beighle said. "The longer they are in, the harder it is for them to get out. It gives them power."

"It is very self-centered and very self-satisfying. It provides gratification of flesh through free drugs and sex, gratification of ego, and love bonding."

Many persons who become in satanism have a life expectancy of no more than five years. One reason is that many of them become suicidal, and believe that even if they kill themselves, they will return the next day.

That may be one reason why Adolf Hitler and Eva Braun shot themselves in a Berlin bunker in 1945. Beighle said Hitler was "deeply involved in satanism." Hitler had 13 persons in his cabinet, the exact number needed for a coven. Another sign was his "SS" troops. The "SS" is another sign of satanism.

Just west of Hereford on U.S. Highway 60, the roadway travels high over Tierra Blanca Creek. Under the bridge, on supports and the concrete-covered slopes, the graffiti would amaze, and shock, most folks.

On the walls and supports are the usual assortment of profane words, music networks and groups, and who loves who.

Also painted on the walls are peace symbols, a cross with a question mark underneath, and other symbols used by devil worshippers.

"In almost all cases, you see them drawn or spray painted by kids who are just doing that for shock," Beighle said.

Seminars on cults scheduled

At least two programs or seminars have been scheduled in the area to deal with cults and satanism.

A three-day seminar on cults will be held Wednesday through Friday at West Texas State University.

A seminar open to educators, persons who work in any part of the criminal justice system, and community service workers are invited to attend a session Wednesday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Cost for Wednesday's session is $15 per person.

An abbreviated session designed for parents will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday at Mary Moody Northern Hall at WTSU. Admission to the program is $2 at the door.

Those two programs are part of a three-day seminar designed for law enforcement personnel.

A seminar on community awareness on the increased interest in satanism in the Panhandle will be held August 15 at 7 p.m. at the Tascosa High School auditorium in Amarillo.

Wayne Beighle will be the featured speaker. The program is designed for adults and parents of school-age children. High school students may attend if accompanied by a parent or guardian.

Beighle will present case histories, statistics, and ways to recognize the symptoms of cult involvement.

"To them (satanists and devil worshippers), good is evil and evil is good," Beighle said. "One of the best ways to understand them is to think backward."

In fact, satanists use several "backward" things, Beighle said that teachers at an Amarillo school last year intercepted a note written by a student.

"The whole thing was written backward," Beighle said.

Study shows Sales increase

It's estimated that retail sales in Deaf Smith County increased from $71.6 million in 1986 to $78.6 million in 1987, a 9.7 percent hike according to figures recently released by Sales and Sales Management Corporation.

This was a greater percentage increase than the national total, which showed retail sales rising by 4.7 percent for the same period--from $1.47 billion to $1.55 billion. SSM is one of the nation's most widely read and respected private economic reporters.

For statistical purposes, retail sales are divided into several categories. These include food, eating and drinking places, general merchandise, furniture and appliances, automotive products, drugs, and all other items and services. These definitions are somewhat arbitrary, as many supermarkets sell more than food items, and drug stores often sell appliances.

However, the biggest change in retail sales by store groups from 1986 to 1987 in Deaf Smith County was recorded by food stores and automotive groups. Sales by food stores increased sharply by 24.3 percent--from an estimated $23.2 to $28.8 million. Sales of automotive products increased by 18.7 percent, from $15.9 to $18.9 million.

At the same time, furniture and appliance sales fell by 2 percent from $2.8 to $2.75 million, while sales in the drug store category rose slightly--from $1.79 to $1.8 million. Sales of general merchandise fell by 7.9 percent in the county, from $3.65 to $3.36 million. Sales of other items and services declined by Hereford Police Det. Sammy Sanchez holds up an inverted cross made of sticks, found in a clearing used by devil worshippers in the eastern portion of Veterans Park in Hereford. On the ground next to the cross is a nightgown. Other wooden, inverted crosses, pieces of clothing and animal remains were also found in the area.

I'M BORED!

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer
Being a kid means chicken pox, bossy mothers, bossier teachers, school lunches, getting grounded, worn out sneakers and "gross out" contests.
But then, everything about being a kid isn't bad. There is always, thank God, summer.
I remember that first day after the school year ended. Summer seemed to stretch ahead like an infinity of pleasure. There were cartoons to watch, books to read, horses to ride, fish to be caught and games to play. Time was something to be squandered like a dollar in a candy store (today it would be more like $10 in a video game room).

But alas, the luster of leisure would soon pass. About this time each summer I would find myself battling the dreaded phrase, trying to bite back the inevitable words. Eventually, they would escape, almost as though they had a mind of their own.

"Mom, I'm bored," I'd say.
It is probably fruitless to give this advice, but give it I must. Kids, whatever you do, don't succumb to the temptation. Don't confess your boredom to your mother. You can be assured that mother will find something for you to do.
No official poll has been taken, but it should be safe to say that most 5-to-18-year-olds do prefer boredom over weeding.

Whatever you do, don't tell your Mom that you're bored. She'll find something for you to do.

You might check out the wonderful world of ants. If nothing else, the wonders of their world beat the wonders of a mop and broom.

the backyard water hose. Ants show their customary energy and productivity when dealing with flooding. Milligram for milligram, they could beat the best Olympic swimmer.
For the more sadistic observer, fire is always a possible in the "natural disaster" category. This method is best avoided by those who wish to observe ant behavior. After all, frying is not a voluntary reaction.
Once the summer is over, and school has begun, the ant experiment is still worth some mileage. A kid should be able to swing at least one essay on "ant-thropology."

Bored? Fernando Longoria, left, Bianca Medina, center, and Andrea Mendoza, right, are among children throughout Hereford who are currently battling mid-summer boredom.

Natural disaster is the next step. This is easily achieved with Just east of Hereford, near a feedlot, is an old, abandoned slaughterhouse. It was probably the first site used here for devil worship.

Throughout the building are warnings and epithets. There is a place where candles were obviously burned in a devil worship ceremony.

East of Hereford, about two miles, is an abandoned brick factory. The circular kilns, which used to burn bricks to a hell-like heat, have been used by devil worshippers.

On the floor of one of the kilns was drawn a nine-foot circle, one of the key marks to look for if devil worship is actually taking place.

There are wax leavings from candles that were burned during ceremonies.

On the sides of the round, sloping walls, symbols have been carved. Most of them are the symbols of satanism.

There is also a carving of a man and a woman engaged in intercourse.

There were also spray painted sayings and symbols on the walls.

This site was found first by "Christians." Some of the carvings and graffiti were painted over, but if Christians did the painting-over they used some un-Christianlike words to convey their feelings.

Even in the middle of the afternoon, with the west-side entrance open, the old kilns are extremely dark. In the deep of night when the ceremonies probably took place, it was likely very, very dark, excepting the dim light of a few candles.

On the east side of Veterans Park, you can follow a road as it goes back-and-forth along Tierra Blanca Creek.

Finally, your vehicle can go no more. You have to get out and walk.

There is a well-worn trail. Along the trail, someone has left inverted crosses built of twigs and bound together with twine.

You come to a small clearing where you see more signs of devil worship, including more inverted crosses. Strewn around the clearing are pieces of women's clothing, including shreds of a ladies' nightgown.

There are also the bones of a small animal, probably a goat. There are no bloodstains that would indicate that the animal was killed at the site, but the bones were probably used in some sort of ceremony.

Hereford police are concerned over the devil worship, although the practice is legal as long as there is no criminal activity.

There biggest worry is that the activity will lead into criminal activity, worse even than the vandalism and trespassing.

And there are signs that the devil worshippers are becoming more brave, and more shocking.

On a recent weekend, golfers preparing to tee off on the tenth hole at Pitman Municipal Golf Course were shocked to see a message lined out in twigs.

The message said: "Sacrifice your babies for the devil."

Some home-built picnic tables were placed near the old San Jose Catholic Church in southwest Hereford on Thursday.

On Friday morning, someone noticed that the brand-new tables, which had been sanded and finished to a shine, had been covered with graffiti. Someone had spray-painted the word "Satan" all over the tables.

Whether these acts were performed by devil worshippers or just something done maliciously by vandals for shock value is unknown, but police are trying to keep an eye out for more, open, signs of devil worship.

Large crowds attend Slaton cult seminar

A large crowd attended an all-day seminar on ritualistic cult worship in Slaton on Tuesday, where a police expert said that the practice may become the "crime of the 1990s."

Lee Reed, who began his study of cultism after working in missing persons for several police agencies, said that the public must become more knowledgeable about how cults work and must have a "slow controlled response" to cult activities.

Reed said that cult activities are becoming more widespread because kids are looking for something "a little more radical" than what their parents were in the 1960s and 1970s.

Reed told the Slaton Slatonite newspaper that "where the Woodstock generation's parents were saying 'Drugs! Not my kid!,' this generation's parents are saying 'Satanism! Not my kid!'"

The presence of cults in Abilene was handled "relatively quietly," Reed said, but in other towns around Abilene things did not go so well.

He said that a rumor cropped up in one town that devil worshippers were looking for a child to sacrifice. Some parents pulled their children out of school and other sat outside schools with guns.

Reed said that knowledge of cults would have helped the parents. He said that even if there were to be a human sacrifice, the person probably would have come from within the cult.

Graffiti or idolatry?

Under the bridge over Tierra Blanca Creek on U.S. Highway 60 west of Hereford, a variety of graffiti can be found. While some of it is run-of-the-mill graffiti, much of it can be related to devil worship, including the "peace symbol" in the foreground and the double esses on the next pillar.

Local Roundup

Police arrest one

A man, 29, was arrested Friday by Hereford police for violation of probation. Reports included disorderly conduct in the 600 block of Park Avenue; assault on West Park, but neither party pressed charges; neighbor problems in the 200 block of Avenue F; a possible kidnapping, still under investigation, on Lake Street; criminal mischief in the 700 block of 25 Mile Avenue, with $600 worth of windows broken out of a business; and a complaint filed against a man for disturbing the peace in the 500 block of Avenue K.

Police issued 11 citations on Friday and investigated one accident.

Band sets schedule

The Hereford High School Mighty Maroon Band will begin practice at 6 p.m. on August 7 at the HHS Band Hall.

Field commanders will have orientation Thursday at 6 p.m., and the drill team and twirlers will begin practice at 9 a.m. on August 7. Students should bring all necessary equipment and wear comfortable clothing and shoes.

The HHS Band and Orchestra Boosters will hold their first meeting of the year at 7 p.m. on August 7 at the HHS Choir Room. All parents are urged to attend.

Restlawn association to meet

The Restlawn Cemetery Association will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Community Center. All property owners are urged to attend this very important meeting.

EDC to meet Tuesday

The Hereford Area Economic Development Council will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Hereford City Hall.

The agenda will include a review of a community handbook and a report on current economic development projects.

Crimestoppers offers rewards

A reward of up to $300 is being offered for information leading to the arrest and indictment of persons responsible for the Crime of the Week.

The Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Office is investigating the theft of two diesel fuel pumps and the attempted theft of another pump in northeastern Deaf Smith County. A pump was stolen from a tractor in a field about three miles south of Wildorado sometime between June 10 and June 16. A second pump was stolen from a tractor eight miles north of Dawn sometime between June 13 and June 16. The attempted theft of another pump, also from a tractor, was about 10 miles north of Dawn sometime between June 12 and June 16.

If you have information about these incidents, call the Clue Line at 364-CLUE (364-2583). If your information leads to the arrest and indictment of persons responsible for the Crime of the Week, you could receive a reward of up to $300. Final rewards are determined by the Crimestoppers board of directors.

You may remain anonymous. Just call the Clue Line and talk to the officer on duty between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. At other times, leave your message on the recorder, and use a code name or number for future reference. If you have information about this or any other felony crime in Deaf Smith County and that information leads to the arrest and indictment of persons responsible, you could receive a cash reward of up to $300.

SALES

2.9 percent, from $18.2 to $17.65 million.

By comparison, national figures for these retail categories showed food sales up by 6.5 percent; eating and drinking places were up 4 percent; furniture and appliances were up percent; automotive sales increased by 13.2 percent; drug store sales were up 9.3 percent, general merchandise was up 5.6 percent, and other items declined by 5.7 percent.

Patterns of retail trade in Deaf Smith County in 1987 continued to differ somewhat from national patterns. For example, food sales accounted for 36.8 percent of local retail sales and 20.8 percent on the national level. Sales on general merchandise was 4.3 percent of local sales and 11.7 percent of national retail sales.

Sales by eating and drinking establishments in the county accounted for 6.6 percent of local sales and the ratio was 9.7 percent nationally. Furniture and appliance sales were 3.5 percent of local sales and the figure was 5.4 percent nationally. Automotive product sales were about even--24.1 percent locally and 24.7 nationally.

For a number of obvious reasons both government and private economists carefully monitor retail sales and other retail activity. Retail sales are almost by themselves evidence of both national and local economic conditions. Retail demand almost immediately translates into demand for manufactured goods and agricultural products.

There is considerable discrepancy between methods used by various state and local governments to report retail sales. Many rely on state and local tax figures. Since many states and localities exempt certain and different items from various taxes, it is often difficult to obtain comparative figures from one locality to another. This is one of the reasons that private reports which use a standard definition for retail sales are often considered to be more reliable sources of retail sales information.

Flag burning

Somehow it just doesn't make sense to me when we have two agencies of the government saying it's illegal to burn trash in the backyard but legal to burn the U.S. flag in the front!

According to the latest Supreme Court ruling (by a narrow 5-4 vote), desecration of Old Glory is "symbolic speech" and protected under the first amendment's freedom of speech. This ruling came despite the fact that the federal government and every state except Alaska and Wyoming have laws against flag-burning.

The Environmental Protection Agency outlaws burning of trash in your backyard, garbage in a landfill, or B.S. in a creek, but the burning of the flag is now protected under the First Amendment.

The U.S. government prints a lengthy official manual detailing how to treat the American flag. It gives specific instructions on how to show it, drape it, troop it, post it, fold it, salute it, fly it, hold it, respect it, revere it, and how to come home dead beneath it. The flag is more than a symbol. Justice Blackmun once wrote that "The flag is a national property and the nation may regulate those who would make, imitate, sell, possess or use it."

Objections to a constitutional amendment prohibiting desecration of the flag are based on the belief it would open the door to a lot of other restrictions upon American freedoms. We fail to see how such a narrow and specific amendment would endanger our right to free speech.

A liberal majority on the Supreme Court and a Congress that listens to the protests of the tiniest group of minorities has resulted in the nation ignoring the wishes of the majority of American people.

Protecting the voice of dissent is important, but dissent should not include the desecration of our flag.

Politics, pay hikes

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) - Thomas S. Foley knows a political trap when he sees one - he didn't become speaker of the House by walking into them.

So there will be no new pay raise debate in the Democrat-controlled House unless and until Republicans sign on enthusiastically, and declare the issue off limits politically.

Foley wants more than an endorsement of government pay raises from President Bush; he says the administration will have to be solidly and actively behind the measure. And he says that endorsement is going to have to be binding on the Republicans' national political committees as well as the White House.

"There has to be absolute bipartisanship," Foley, D-Wash., said.

For good measure, the speaker said there will have to be solid support in the Democratic Senate, too, before the House takes on the issue of congressional pay again. In the past, the Senate sometimes has had a free political ride on the issue, voting against pay raises while anticipating House action - or inaction - that would put them into effect.

It didn't work this year. The House did vote, spurred by public protests against a 51 percent pay raise that was due to take effect Feb. 8, and rejected the increase. In the process, raises for top executive branch officials and for federal judges also were scrapped.

So congressional salaries stayed at $89,500 a year, with senators and representatives still entitled to supplement them with the widely criticized practice of accepting speechmaking and similar fees. Judicial and executive pay stayed put, too, since the 22-year-old pay raise system was based on a package deal.

That provides the hook in the terms Foley set for action on a federal pay raise. While the speaker said he personally opposes tying judicial and executive raises to an increase in congressional pay, a House majority would not vote to pry them apart.

Bush has proposed pay raises of up to 25 percent for judges and top executive branch officials. He also recommended that Congress phase out its honoraria, cutting the ceilings by 50 percent on Jan. 1, 1990, and banning those payments entirely a year later. That is supposed to be done in tandem with a congressional pay raise. Bush did not specifically propose one, but said he would work with Congress toward that end.

That doesn't match the administration commitment Foley suggested at a luncheon with executives and reporters of The Associated Press.

Two weeks before he left office, President Reagan approved the 51 percent pay raises recommended by a government salary commission. After his inauguration Bush seconded that, but with faint praise. He said he didn't think he should undo Reagan's decision.

Under the salary commission system, dating from 1967, pay recommendations took effect with presidential approval unless both houses of Congress voted to reject them within 30 days. This time, both houses did, after former Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, scrapped plans to let it take effect Feb. 8 and put pay to a vote.

A bipartisan House panel on compensation and ethics is considering the problem now. It is likely to recommend an increase coupled with sharp restrictions on outside income. Foley said he wants to see its recommendations before deciding on the next step.

Foley said any new pay raise proposal will have to be reasonable, with political support spanning the parties, and with no revival of the public outcry that was urged on by talk show hosts and others in the media last winter. He said some people in the news media distorted that issue. He also acknowledged that the 51 percent proposal was too high, but said that in recommending it the pay commission really was concerned about boosting the compensation of federal judges and wasn't thinking about Congress.

During that first round, most Republicans stayed out of the way and let Wright and his Democrats take the heat. Even though two Republican presidents had endorsed the raise, the Republican National Committee sent out - and then withdrew - a fundraising letter which complained there was "a move afoot to let congressmen enjoy yet another whopping pay raise."

Foley wants a guarantee against that political tactic. "That's unacceptable, that sort of good-cop, bad-cop routine," he said.

Outside of Congress, congressional pay raises never are popular. The assurances Foley seeks would insure that the branches and the parties share the blame. After all, senators or representative, Republican or Democrat, the pay's the same.

THE GARAGE SALE

When did garage sales become so popular? By the time I knew what was happening they were an American tradition.

When I was a kid we did not have a garage much less a garage sale. We did not have enough money to buy so much stuff we had to sell off part of it. We wore clothes until they became dust rags or parts of a quilt. We did not have very many trinkets and the ones we had were on what-not shelves.

We are now in the garage sale generation. We had one of the things last weekend. One thing is for sure, people don't have sales because of the money. A garage sale can't possibly make enough money to be worth the work.

It takes about three days of solid effort to get the stuff together, displayed and priced. I figured up our sale and as best I can determine I made about fifty cents an hour. I mean, I would have made fifty cents an hour if my wife had not kept the money.

Bright and early on Saturday morning we opened for business. They always say it is amazing what will sell in a garage sale. What are these people going to do with this stuff?

Maybe they are saving up for their own sale. Maybe they are buying gifts for kinkfolk they do not like.

They hauled stuff out of my garage I would not use for target practice. A giant stuffed Garfield, a couple of black and white television sets, a foot-stool, and ten thousand trinkets.

I was not amazed at what sold. I was amazed at what did not sell. The good stuff was all we had left. There seems to be a garage sale law, "If it is good, forget it." People are looking for junk.

We have garage sales because we have an inborn guilt complex. Our mothers raised us on "Eat your food, there are children dying in China." That left us unable to waste anything.

If we have some stuff we no longer use we can't throw it away. We have to have a sale and see if anyone will buy the stuff. If the stuff doesn't sell, then we can throw it away.

Garage sales are an exercise in guilt reduction. I worked three days at fifty cents an hour so I could throw away some junk without guilt. And it was worth it.

Warm Fuzzies,
Doug Manning

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:
What is America coming to? We are making a political issue out of the word of God and bringing great confusion to the minds of people.

The devil, the deceiver, has called abortion murder, but murder as referred to in the Bible is the killing of a human being and a human being has the breath of life. According to the Bible, God breathed the breath of life into Adam and he became a living soul.

The deceiver has convinced many that science has proof that the fetus has a distinctive life while it is still in the mother's womb. But these same people dispute science when science says their ancestors were monkeys. They may be right part of the way. But some believe a living soul must breathe. But it is shocking to think what our nation will be like 50 years from now if the pro-lifers succeed in getting a strong anti-abortion law. We can be sure that the educated, well-to-do women will find a way to have abortions when they want or need to.

but the poor and uneducated will not be able to buy an abortion. Our citizens will come largely from the poorest mothers of all races including prostitutes, who can't afford to raise and educate a child. We can reasonably expect more suffering with these poor, uneducated, unwanted illegitimate children than the poorest nations of Africa have today.

We should be guided by the Bible all the way, not just when it suits us. We may be sure that the old deceiver is having a great time rejoicing because of the progress he is making in destroying our great nation. Let's all stop and think.

Banking on Change: Texas Group Chosen to Lead Holding Company

An interesting idea: Texas ownership of Texas banks. After half a dozen fire sales of Texas banks to out-of-state owners, federal bank regulators have chosen a group of Texans to manage and purchase the last remaining major group of holding company banks.

The Deposit Guaranty Bank, led by Dallas banker Ron Steinhardt, has been awarded 24 banks of the Texas American Bancshares group out of Fort Worth.

Meaning no disrespect to those out-of-state banks that are now Texans by choice, the passing of almost every single bank of consequence in Texas to the hands of strangers has been an economic, cultural and historic shock.

Since state law was changed two years ago to allow the sale or merger of Texas banks with out-of-state banks, these expensive dominoes have fallen fast and furious...

An infusion of new banking blood with fresh ideas and diverse expertise will be good for Texas. But having some folks who know their way around, who know the economy and the people will be good, too...

DFW Airport Must Get Act Together

American Airlines has announced it may build a huge, new 60-gate terminal at the Dallas-Fort Worth airport. If it does, the airport in Dallas could become the busiest in the nation, America's premier air crossroads, one of the busiest airports in the entire world.

We hope Dallas airport officials get their act together before that happens.

Surely DFW is one of the most confusing airports in the world. Few air terminals are as difficult to get around in. Few are as crowded. Few are as noisy.

The tram system connecting Dallas' collection of remote terminal buildings is not well-diagrammed for riders. Few signs alert passengers as to how the trams run and how to use them.

The place is a mess already. If it is selected for the American development, we hope officials at the airport work to correct its defects before taking on any more traffic.

Congressional Junkets' Sordid New Definition

Rep. Gus Savage appears to have elevated congressional junketing to a new and disgusting level. The Illinois Democrat is accused of spending much of a night on the town in Kinshasa, Zaire, trying to strong-arm a female Peace Corps member into going to bed with him.

The woman told the Washington Post that she attended a dinner in March in honor of the visiting congressman, who was said to have wanted a briefing on the Peace Corps. Savage's amorous advances began, she said, after she agreed to accompany him and several others on an after-dinner round of night spots. She said Savage insisted that she ride alone with him in the back seat of an embassy car.

She said Savage aggressively fondled her despite her repeated attempts to make him stop. She quoted Savage, who is black, as saying that "I was a traitor to the black movement if I didn't go along."

She said she finally was rescued by an embassy official. The Post reported that the U.S. ambassador privately rebuked Savage the next day...

Three House members appropriately have asked for an investigation of the incident by the House ethics committee. While the committee is at it, it should - but won't - look into the whole matter of congressional globe-trotting...

The ostensible reason for the travel is to study conditions abroad that might provide insight to legislators in making American law. Many of the trips, however, are mere junkets.

American taxpayers should not be asked to finance congressional partying around the world.

Reforms Paying Off

There is new ammunition for supporters of more stringent immigration controls: A study released July 19 by researchers for the Urban Institute and Princeton University showed that the rate of illegal immigration across the U.S.-Mexican border has slowed substantially - and suggested that tough new sanctions against employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens are reducing the job lure. Granted, the nation is still a long way from asserting full command over its borders - but the movement seems to be in the right direction.

Irrational fear

By Dr. Richard L. Leshner,
President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

WASHINGTON - "The only thing we have to fear," President Franklin D. Roosevelt told the American people at the nadir of the Great Depression, "is fear itself."

I can't help wondering what that former governor of New York would think of his state mothballing a $5.4 billion nuclear power plant that has never been used, only because of irrational, unreasoning fear. I wonder what FDR would think of the political leadership in New York that not only fails to allay such unwarranted anxiety, but actually goes out of its way to make it worse.

Such monumental folly will exact a severe price and the $5.4 billion price tag for Long Island's Shoreham plant will be little more than a down payment. Our capacity for generating electricity is already stretched to the breaking point in many parts of the country and demand is growing. By the year 2000, we may need upwards of 30 percent more capacity than we do now, simply because of our growing economy and population. Conservation and breakthroughs in energy efficiency can reduce the gap, but not all the way.

Estimates of the increase in demand for electricity vary from 2 to 3 percent per year throughout the 1990s. If it is 2 percent, the low estimate, we will need the equivalent of 200 new 500-megawatt plants, in addition to those now under construction. If it is 3 percent, we will need an additional 420 such plants.

And the power to generate them must come from gas, coal and atoms. Remaining sites for hydroelectric power are few, and invariability provoke environmental complaints. And other potential sources - such as fusion, solar, wind, biomass and geothermal - cannot begin to fill the gap.

We do have ample supplies of coal, but it presents its own problems. There are many places in the country where air quality proscribes coal generation, or where space constraints are inadequate for transportation and storage of large amounts of coal.

If our society is to have the electricity it will need in the future, we simply must exercise the nuclear option, and there is no rational reason not to. We have the technology and experience to produce nuclear power safely and have, in fact, been doing so for many years.

The only thing we have to fear, as FDR said, is fear itself.

Ready for Fall

Back-to-school styles such as these will highlight the Aug. 17 'Fall Fling' fashion show to be held at the Hereford Country Club from noon until 1 p.m. Reagan Mabray of Houston, 11-year-old granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Gibson, and six-year-old Justin Ward model styles that are found at Sylvia's. Other merchants who will participate in the show are Betty's Shoes, Pants Cage, Littles, Originals Unlimited, ETCetera, and Class Act.

'Fall Fling' fashion show Aug. 17

'Fall Fling' will be the theme of a style show set for Thursday, Aug. 17 at the Hereford Country Club. The event will be held from noon until 1 p.m. and will include a meal of chicken salad, fruit, and strawberry mousse.

Seven local merchants who will display fall fashions include Littles, Sylvia's, Pants Cage, ETCetera, Class Act, Originals Unlimited, and Betty's Shoes. Styles for children and adults will be offered in the form of back-to-school or fall vacation fashions.

Keith Ann Gearn will emcee the event which is sponsored by the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. Door prizes will be offered. Division member Julia Laing is in charge of the show and leads a committee comprised of Ruth Newsom, Kyla McDowell, Jackie Murphy, Marilyn Culpepper, Linda Daniel, and Donna West, Division president.

Tickets for the show cost $7.50 and will be available soon at the Chamber office and participating stores. Tickets must be purchased prior to the show since seating is limited.

Proceeds from the fashion show will benefit the community.

The average 18-month-old little girl will be just about twice as tall and five times as heavy at the age of 18.

About high blood pressure

Facts you should know

If you have high blood pressure, you are not alone. A staggering 66 percent of all Americans over age 55 have some degree of elevated blood pressure, or hypertension, which can lead to heart disease, stroke and even death.

Simply defined, high blood pressure—pressure consistently higher than normal—is a condition which exists when blood exerts too much force or tension on artery walls.

Lifestyle changes can sometimes control this condition. Many doctors recommend weight loss, exercise, a low-fat diet, decrease in salt intake, and total cessation of smoking, as initial steps to lower blood pressure.

However, patients may also require medication to ensure that their blood pressure is regulated and to help prevent associated risks.

The two most common prescription medications are diuretics, often referred to as "water pills," and beta blockers.

Diuretics work by reducing the amount of salt and water in the body which, in turn, lowers blood pressure.

Beta blockers work by slowing the heart rate and cardiac output, thus lowering the blood pressure.

While comparisons of diuretics and beta blockers indicate that both can be equally effective in controlling blood pressure, a recent study revealed that patients who were given the beta blocker Lopressor (metoprolol tartrate) had 58 percent fewer deaths from heart disease over an 11-year period, than patients treated with diuretics. In 1984, Lopressor became the first and remains the only beta blocker indicated for acute therapy following myocardial infarction.

Medication can effectively treat high blood pressure, and should be taken in conjunction with the important lifestyle changes suggested by your doctor.

In fact, taking medication is a change in itself, and requires the patient's cooperation. It is important to follow your doctor's instructions about how often you should take your medication.

Some people may find it helpful to keep a calendar or chart, so that taking the medicine becomes part of their daily routines. Even if you feel well, you need to continue taking the medication for as long as the doctor recommends.

To maintain your health, see your doctor regularly, and follow his or her advice about behavioral changes that may be of long-term benefit. If your doctor tells you your blood pressure is high, ask about the treatment that will work best for you.

YOUR EYES

WHAT'S NEW ABOUT NEARSIGHTEDNESS?

Nearsightedness remains the most common vision abnormality. Scientifically known as myopia, nearsightedness makes it difficult to see distant objects clearly.

Very few people are born nearsighted. This abnormality of sight usually develops in childhood, the teens or the college years. The factors which bring on nearsightedness are not clearly defined. Some blame the visual stress of overloading the eyes with close work. Others blame metabolism, diet, poor lighting, posture and even heredity. However, taking care of general health and using reasonable precautions against strain and other physical abuse of the eyes may help slow the rate at which nearsightedness progresses in some people. In some instances, contact lenses or vision training can help — especially when tendency for nearsightedness is detected in younger children. Fortunately, almost all cases of nearsightedness are correctable with glasses or contact lenses.

If you or any member of your family have difficulty seeing at distances, an optometric examination is recommended to establish the extent of the problem and take steps to correct it.

Herd coaches head back to school

By SAM W. WALLER
Sports Editor

The Hereford High School coaching staff will head back to school this week at the annual Texas High School Coaches Association convention and coaching school in Dallas.

The convention, which runs Monday through Thursday at the Dallas Convention Center, will feature clinics in track and field, soccer, volleyball and training techniques in addition to the traditional football and basketball sessions.

Featured speakers at the clinics include Southwest Conference head coaches such as the University of Houston's Jack Pardee and Texas A&M's R.C. Slocum for football and Tom Penders from the University of Texas and John Shumate of SMU in basketball.

The convention is expected to draw between 8,500 and 9,000 of the THSCA's 10,900 members. That enrollment makes the association the largest organization of its kind in the nation.

The state's prep coaches will have one last chance to see the outstanding athletes from the Class of '89 in the Whataburger All-Star football and basketball games. The hoops contest will be played at 7:30 p.m. Monday at SMU's Moody Coliseum while the grid classic is set to go at 7 p.m. Tuesday at Texas Stadium.

Also on the agenda will be election of new association officers and discussion of new policies and proposed rules changes to be pursued with the University Interscholastic League. The major issue this year is expected to be the formation of a 6A classification for the state's larger urban schools.

Hereford High head coach and athletic director Don Cumpton said that while the 6A issue will have little impact locally, it illustrates the importance and influence THSCA has in high school athletics in the state.

"When (association members) get together and make a proposal on something, the UIL pays attention to it," he said. "The two teams per district playoff plan (which was implemented in the 1981-82 school year) came from the coaches."

Cumpton added that the convention provides coaches one last chance to relax before the new school year gets underway.

"We have a good time down there and get to visit with everybody from around the state; get caught up on what everybody's been up to," the Herd mentor said. "And we have the all-star games to go to. It's really a good time."

"But when we get back up here that next Monday (Aug. 7), we're going to hit the ground running and we won't stop."

Local organization aids Tech study

The Texas Waterfowling Association, a conservation organization headquartered in Hereford, has made a $1,000 grant to help fund a research project of the Texas Tech University range and wildlife management department which could determine the cost-effectiveness of pumping water to provide habitat for ducks on farmland.

Dr. Loren Smith, associate professor of wildlife management at Tech, said the study, which focuses on test playa lakes in Crosby, Floyd and Hale Counties, began this spring and should take about three years to complete.

Smith said the objective of the study is to determine how providing water in playas at certain times of the year will affect vegetation attractive to ducks and the overall waterfowl population. The study could also demonstrate economic benefits for landowners from leasing of waterfowl hunting on their playas.

"We hope to see how controlling water levels will affect duck foods like smartweed and barnyardgrass," Smith said. "We should get some idea of the cost of providing desirable waterfowl food and cover. If the landowner can make his playa attractive to waterfowl for the right price, there may be some money to be made from waterfowl hunt leasing."

The project is paying landowners $90 per acre foot for water pumped into the test playas, which are generally 15 to 20 acres in size. The study is guaranteeing the landowners involved a base price of 2 1-2 acre feet over the whole playa.

"Ag economists inform us it costs about $45 an acre foot to pump the water," Smith said, "and it's another $45 an acre foot in crop benefits. That brings us to the $90 an acre foot figure."

"Some of the findings from this study will lead us to the next key -- how to get hunters into this area to make use of the enhanced waterfowl area," he added. "If we can make the concept of enhancing the playas for waterfowl work, it could prove good for the landowners and the ducks."

High Plains Underground Water Conservation District 1 is also interested in the project for its potential in leading landowners to additional income from the water in their playas.

Cowboys sign Walsh

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) - Under new owner Jerry Jones the Dallas Cowboys have proved they aren't afraid to spend top dollar to sign quarterbacks.

University of Miami star Steve Walsh was expected to be in training camp today to sign a four-year contract for $4.1 million as the top pick in the supplemental draft.

The Cowboys gave top choice Troy Aikman a six-year, $11 million contract.

Coach Jimmy Johnson said the Cowboys didn't sign Walsh to trade him.

"He has a great talent for getting the ball into the end zone," Johnson said. "We're not considering a trade for him at this time. Steve knows our system and will fit into it in a rapid fashion."

Added Johnson: "I don't see any team offering us anything that's attractive enough for Steve. Basically, he should be worth a couple of number ones and a couple of number twos. That's what we think Steve is worth."

Walsh, who decided to pass on his senior year at the University of Miami to go into the supplemental draft, was asking for a six-year deal.

Johnson said he will decide between Walsh, Troy Aikman, Scott Secules and Babe Laufenberg shortly before the regular season begins.

"I believe the competition will make both Troy and Steve better," Johnson said.

A substantial bonus was included in Walsh's contract but it wasn't disclosed. According to the contract, Walsh could be traded to any other NFL team in 1989.

After this season, he will give Johnson a list of four teams to whom he doesn't wish to be traded.

Jones defended Walsh being paid less than Aikman.

"The difference is that Troy was the number one pick in the regular draft and Steve was the number one pick in the supplemental," Jones said. "We had to go to the do-right rule in that situation."

"We'll be a much better team because of having Steve on the team. He'll make us better. We're thrilled to have him."

Walsh threw 29 touchdown passes last year for the Hurricanes. Atlanta had the first pick in the supplemental draft but passed and Dallas took him. The quarterback had over 4,000 yards passing at Miami, his only loss in the last two years to Notre Dame.

Aikman said it wouldn't bother him having Walsh on the team.

"There's pressure and competition no matter where you go," Aikman said. "I just think there can only be one starting quarterback on a team and I think I can be the one."

'Pokes already bear Johnson's mark

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
THOUSAND OAKS, Calif (AP) - Jerry Jones may be the new owner of the Dallas Cowboys, but there's another JJ running this franchise in Thousand Oaks.
 This training camp runs on Jimmy Johnson time. From the first 9 a.m. practice until the last 10 p.m. meeting, things are done one way - Johnson's way.
 It's helmets and pads and intensity. It's the daily middle drill, meat-grinding seven-on-seven contact.
 "Get the job done," he shouts.
 "Show me what you've got."
 The Cowboys don't play an NFL regular season game until Sept. 10, but it might as well be tomorrow. Johnson's players couldn't work any harder.

 Johnson is on top of everything. He's on the telephone to Jones, telling him who to sign and for how much.
 He knows who's offering what for Steve Walsh and Steve Pelluer while he's running two-a-day drills.
 Johnson is a man possessed.
 "What makes me run is a fear of disappointment," he says. "I've been disappointed in the past, and I don't like the way it feels."
 Johnson is up at 6 a.m., running up a nearby mountain with his coaches. Their last meeting of the day ends at midnight.
 Besides replacing Tom Landry, a legendary figure in the game, Johnson wants to prove that his theories learned in the laboratory of collegiate football can be applied successfully in the NFL.

 Ask Johnson how important it is for his team to taste early success in scrimmages and preseason games, and his eyes take on the competitive glare of a Jack Nicklaus staring down a tournament-winning putt.
 "It (a good start) would be nice for the players' sake," he says. "Of course, early success would be good for the coaches, too. We'll be doing things differently than other clubs in the league."
 "We know what it looks like in college football, but the true evaluation is yet to come in the NFL. We want to see what happens when we go up against the Los Angeles Raiders and teams like that. As quick as we can, we want to win over the players to believe in us."

 Johnson is aware of the remarks of Philadelphia coach Buddy Ryan. Asked about Johnson, Ryan said the best formula for hiring a head coach in the NFL is to take an assistant from the pros - not someone from the college ranks who made a name beating less-talented teams.
 It's no secret the Cowboys need success in the early scrimmages and exhibition games.
 Jones already has put Johnson on the spot by predicting the Cowboys will win more games in the first third of the season than they did all last year (3-13).

 "Hmmm, let's see how many is that?" Johnson said, "Four of six? That's what Jerry guaranteed? Sometimes I have to double-check what he says. You can't believe everything Jerry says. If he said that, he'd better get out here and wash some socks and jocks."
 Jones said when he bought the Cowboys in February that he would be in charge of everything from "socks to jocks."
 But it appears that Johnson is the one in charge. Jones even took him along to a recent NFL meeting in Chicago. Johnson was in Jones' office the day the owner hired a new cheerleader coordinator.
 "I'm not sure what my job description is," Johnson says. "I'm involved in marketing, tickets, fines, public relations and trades."

 This franchise is Jimmy Johnson. He'll even have an hour-long statewide radio call-in show on Monday nights this fall, replacing the old "Ask Tex Schramm Show" that featured the former club president.
 "We're all in uncharted waters," Johnson said. "We're putting in a package, and let's see what happens."
 And whatever does happen will be orchestrated by JJ, the one from Port Arthur, Texas.
 The JJ with the 10-year contract and more power than any other coach in the NFL.

Over-30 players enjoy baseball leagues again

By MARISSA SILVERA
The Dallas Morning News
IRVING (AP) - Dominick Greco III lay down to sunbathe on the bleachers at MacArthur High School in Irving. He appeared distracted from his father's Sunday afternoon baseball game.
 But as his father, Dominick Jr., walked up to the fence in front of the bleachers and began swinging his bat in a make-believe on-deck circle, his son jumped down to a front-row seat. The 23-year-old son wanted to tell his 43-year-old father what to look for from the pitcher.
 When father hit a ground ball and couldn't beat the throw to first base, son shook his head and called, "Come on, Dad, let go of the caboose."
 Dad laughed.
 More than a decade has passed since the elder Greco played shortstop for a St. Louis Cardinals' Class AA affiliate. He never expected to play organized baseball again.
 Until last fall.
 One morning, he picked up a newspaper and read a classified ad seeking men 30 and over interested in playing baseball.
 He answered it and soon found himself playing second base for the Cubs, one of the original four teams in the Dallas Men's Senior Baseball League. Neither Greco nor at least one of his three sons has missed a game since.
 "He went to all of our baseball games," said son Dominick. "He didn't miss a game in almost 20 years of us playing baseball. We couldn't let him go to a game without at least one of us being there."
 The elder Greco, a supervisor for the U.S. Census Bureau, is one of a growing number of 30-plus men in the Dallas area who have not outgrown their love for baseball.

They tried softball but were not satisfied.
 "Playing softball is like dating your sister," said Pirates player-manager Pedro Reyes, 37. "There is a girl you want to go out with and that's baseball, but she won't go out with you. So you take your sister instead, because you really want to go somewhere. You settle for your sister, and that's softball."
 Today, there are eight Dallas teams. The only requirements to play are a birth certificate proving a player is at least 30, a registration fee and a love for hardball.
 The Dallas league was started last year by a financial analyst and a jewelry dealer who had read about a Long Island baseball league for 30-and-over men. Eddie Payne and Chris Pier contacted the president and founder of MSBL, Steve Sigler, for details. Sigler's own league had started with four teams in 1986 and has expanded to 46.
 Leagues have sprung up in 77 U.S. cities, Canada, the Dominican Republic and the Virgin Islands.
 "I went in with my own initiative and enthusiasm," said 40-year-old Sigler, a controller for a school bag-stationery distributor who also plays hardball. "It just takes one person to make something that was so obvious and bring it to the public's eye. Not like I'm a piper, but it was something that was natural. It was just there."
 Texas has leagues in Dallas, Houston-Beaumont, Lubbock, Bryan-College Station and San Antonio, and plans for leagues in Fort Worth and Cleburne.
 There is no official waiting list, but more than 100 players have expressed interest in joining the two expansion teams. Most have said they are tired of softball.
 "We got more than 300 calls when we first put the ad in the paper last fall," said Michelle Owens, whose husband Dusty plays, manages and presides over the Dallas league and serves as the Texas commissioner for MSBL.

 "One guy even called from New York while he was on a business trip. He said he lived in Dallas and had seen the ad when he read the paper on the plane trip."
 Sigler said the league's main attraction is that it allows men more chance to express their love for a sport they have played since childhood.
 Most players have at least high school playing experience. Some have gone as far as college. A few played in the minor leagues.
 Shawn McGinty, player-manager of the Cubs, played baseball at the University of Pittsburgh and once tried out for his hometown Pittsburgh Pirates.
 "This league has given people a chance to do something they thought they were done doing 10 or 15 years ago," said McGinty, 33, of Garland, a financial analyst for Texas Instruments. "There were probably hundreds of people out there like me. I thought to myself I had the opportunity once, but I let it lie and chose not to go play pro, but I can utilize my talent now."
 For 10 Sundays during the spring and fall, MSBL members travel to play on the few available baseball diamonds in the Dallas area. Lack of fields is slowing the MSBL's growth, Dusty Owens said.
 "It breaks my heart to see people playing softball on fields where I played baseball," said Mark McKnight, 30, a Dallas police officer and third baseman for the Cubs.
 At MacArthur High School, a sign on one of the fenced-in dugouts reads, "No softball allowed on the field."

The words fit the attitude most players bring with them to the field on 90-degree days. They look rugged in the layers of clothing that make up their professional-looking uniforms.
 It looks real enough.
 Several teams have tried to show corporations that this is a real league with dedicated players in hopes of attracting sponsorship. Most of the players cover their own expenses, and occasionally team managers and members will help each other out.
 Few have been fortunate enough to obtain partial sponsorship.
 The $150-$200 player fee can become a financial burden, prohibiting some from joining one of the two all-star teams that will represent Dallas in this year's MSBL World Series. The six-day series will be played in Phoenix beginning Oct. 30.
 But that is a relatively minor problem.
 "Being out there for three hours and spending half a day with your buddies is like a natural high," said 30-year-old John Ivy, one of the A's three managers. "I felt like I was in fantasy land."
 "Every time I go to bat, I still get butterflies. It doesn't take a whole lot to hit a softball, you can be big and fat and still play softball. At first, I really doubted whether I could do it. Now I know that I can."
 There are several players in the league over 40 and most would prefer to continue playing with the 30-and-over league even if a proposed 40-and-over league is established next season. However, Owens said that the Dallas league would try to send at least one team to represent each league to the MSBL World Series.
 "We all joke about how old and foolish we are to be playing a boy's game," said Dallas real estate broker Bob Walner, at 48 one of the oldest players in the league. "But if you can still perform and won't be an embarrassment to your team, you're welcome to try and play. "Everybody is welcome."

YMCA sets net tourney

The 1989 Hereford YMCA Deaf Smith County, Dimmitt and Frona Tennis Tournament has been scheduled for Aug. 18-20 at the Hereford High School tennis courts.
 Competition will be held in singles, doubles and mixed doubles in men's and women's A and B divisions, and in high school, junior high and elementary boys' and girls' divisions. A consolation bracket will be played in each division.

 Youth division players will be classified according to the grade they were in during the 1988-89 school year.
 Play will begin at 8 a.m. Aug. 18 and 19 and at 1 p.m. Aug. 20. Youth divisions will play on Aug. 18 and 19 only and Adult divisions will compete on Aug. 19 and 20.
 Entry fee is $5 per event for YMCA members and $7 per event for non-members. Entrants are limited to three events. High school students 16 years old and over may play in the adult A divisions.

 Entry deadline is Aug. 15 for youth divisions and Aug. 17 for adult divisions. No entries will be accepted without entry fees. Entries should be returned to the YMCA at 500 E. 15th St.
 For more information, contact the YMCA at 364-6990.

AGRICULTURAL MILESTONES

Early interest in improving native Texas cattle by using herd bulls of British breeding gradually evolved into the mistaken belief that the best beef animals could be selected by conformation and color.

One foremost educator and researcher in animal science with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station told how surprised he was many years ago when demonstrating cutting yields to a class at Texas A&M.

He had selected six calves of superior conformation and six of inferior conformation for the demonstration. These animals were dressed and used in a cutting test for the college meats class. The results were surprising; the animals of superior conformation (short legs, blocky and heavy) didn't yield best.

"Yield" is defined as the percentage of the weight of a carcass found in the boneless, closely trimmed cuts from the loin, the rib, the round and the chuck. It is this closely trimmed roast and steak meat of the carcass that is most likely to be consumed by humans.

The reason the animals of superior conformation had a lower cutting yield of edible meat was that they had more fat. When the researcher reported these facts to his professional society and to producers, the response was somewhat negative. Time and trial, however would prove him right. This pioneering research led eventually to development of cutability and yield grading as concepts for USDA grading of carcasses from red-meat animals.

Some wheat yields surprising

By DENNIS W. NEWTON
County Extension Agent
Deaf Smith County

This past year was a very poor year for wheat production in Deaf Smith County and throughout the entire region. The year started with dry conditions and ended with dry conditions. Top off those problems with insect infestations and diseases, then throw on some extremely cold winter temperatures and you have a very poor winter wheat crop.

As surprising as it may seem, after all that has just been mentioned, there were some very good wheat yields reported in Deaf Smith county. As was discussed in an earlier article, the reasons for some wheat producing and some not is a mystery as yet unsolved.

The wheat variety result demonstrations were planted in the fall of 1988 on the Gerald Marnell farm near Simms and on the Raymond Schlabs farm north of Hereford.

These two demonstrations were harvested recently and the results were very surprising as far as yields were concerned. There were, of course, variations in the yields of the various varieties, but the overall yields were quite good.

The varieties and yields in bushels per acre from the dryland demonstration on the Marnell farm were as follows: Hawk-8.76, Siouxland-12.0, Quantum 542-20.82, Thunderbird-22.12, Quantum 562-16.27, Milburn-6.19, TAM 200 11.7, Larned-14.3, Palo Duro-6.86, and TAM 105-24.67.

Complete results of the two demonstrations are available at the Deaf Smith County Extension office in Room 402 of the County Courthouse or by calling the county office at 364-3573.

Knox City SCS center plans event

A field day and tour will be held Aug. 30 at the USDA Soil Conservation Service (USDA-SCS) Plant Materials Center (PMC) located near Knox City.

The event will be held in conjunction with the center's silver anniversary.

During the noon lunch, a formal program will be held with Honorable Charles Stenholm, U.S. Congressman from the 17th District of Texas, as the keynote speaker.

Wilson Scaling, Chief of the USDA-SCS, Texas, and Budd Fountain, State Conservationist, USDA-SCS, Oklahoma, will also be on the program.

According to Robert Perry, SCS District Conservationist at Hereford, guided tours are planned through the PMC starting at 9:30 a.m. Tours will run continually until lunch, then again until about 2:30 p.m. Registration will start at 8:45 a.m. and a $5 per plate charge for lunch must be paid by Aug. 21.

Directions to the PMC are as follows: go north of Knox City on State Highway 6 about two miles, then turn left at FM 1292 for 2 1/2 miles. There are signs at both the turn-off and the PMC.

For more information, call the Soil Conservation Service in Hereford at 364-6995.

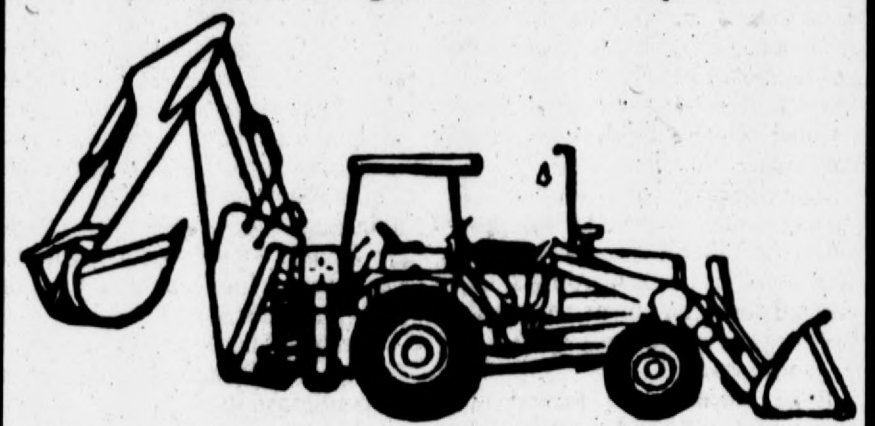

SCS programs and services are offered on a nondiscriminatory basis without regard to race, color, national origin, religion, sex, age, marital status, or handicap.

ATTENTION RURAL RESIDENT-LANDOWNERS

On August 5th, 1989, polling places will be opened 7:00 a.m to 7:00 p.m. for voting in a special election concerning The Creation of a Noxious Weed Control District. Absentee voting by personal appearance will be conducted each week day at the County Clerk's Office, room 203 Courthouse, Hereford Tx beginning on July 17, 1989 and ending August 1, 1989.

The Deaf Smith County Farm Bureau and Board Members encourage you to exercise your right, as residents and landowners of Deaf Smith County to vote and to VOTE FOR the creation of this district.

The noxious weed population is now reaching epic proportions and we feel the time has come for each of us to assume responsibility for maintaining this strong agricultural region as stewards of the land.

Let's continue the work of our forefathers in strengthening Deaf Smith County's role as a leader in agriculture.

Vote For The Creation of a Noxious Weed Control District.

Paid for by the Deaf Smith County Farm Bureau and Members.

LOWER & MAIN LEVEL

UPPER LEVEL

© by W.D. FARMER, A.L.B.D.
A full depth vaulted ceiling great room is first in view after passing through the covered front porch. Fifteen feet six inches by twenty-three feet six inches is larger than many great rooms in enormous homes, and the vaulted ceiling gives the appearance of a much larger room. The dining area is just three steps below and is on the same level as the garage. A laundry and pantry are shown from the kitchen. The kitchen is complete with an island cabinet space and snack bar along with excellent cabinet space and work surface.

There are three bedrooms on the upper level, the master being the larger, of course, and there is a private tub bath included. A central bath services the remaining two bedrooms.

The exterior style features horizontal wood siding, front porch, and front entry paneled garage doors. The roof style is gable.

This is a computer generated plan.

The plan is Number 473 S.L. It includes 1,473 square feet of heated area. All W.D. Farmer plans include construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information write to W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

On The House

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Certain needed house repairs can be neglected without causing anything more than raised eyebrows from the neighbors. But many repairs scream for attention because of functional problems they create and the mounting expenses generated by a failure to act. In the category of parts of houses that require constant awareness to prevent trouble is the gutter-downspout system. Fail to inspect it regularly and keep it in good repair and you will pay for it sooner or later. Overflowing gutters send thousands of gallons of water into the ground near the house

Empress Josephine, divorced wife of Napoleon, died in 1814.

Sir Edmund Hillary and his party reached the summit of Mount Everest in 1953.

foundation and are responsible for an assortment of ailments, the most common of which are leaking and flooding. Splash blocks, and sometimes drain tiles leading to dry wells, are designed to carry rain away from the foundation, but are of no help when the water doesn't get into the downspouts but comes from over the sides of the gutters.

This common condition usually is caused by an accumulation of leaves and other debris that clog the gutter runways. The way to keep this from happening is to inspect the gutters regularly, but at least twice a year. Leaves can be removed by hand or with a garden hose. Where safety might be a factor, a professional can be hired. Steps should be taken to clip overhanging branches that might drop leaves into the gutter.

Flushing gutters with water from a hose can have another purpose. It can be used to determine whether the pitch of the gutters is correct, which it is if the water is flowing properly to the downspouts. When it isn't, it sometimes is the result of sagging gutter supports. These can be straps or spikes. A readjustment of a single support often will clear up the trouble immediately. If necessary, a strap can be replaced or a spike removed and redriven into place.

Water that comes out of the gutter during a heavy rain, but from the bottom rather than the top, makes its exit through a gap in the gutter, often at a seam. When the opening is fairly small, spreading roofing cement over the area is often sufficient to halt the leak. But when the opening is large or if you simply want to do an extra good job, get one of the patching kits designed for gutter patching. This will contain everything needed to handle the repair, including a piece of material that fits into the gutter. Always remember that the patch on a gutter should always be on the inside, not on the outside.

When working on a gutter, you will notice the water flows to a downspout, but that if the run is very long, it will move towards one downspout on one side and towards another on the other side. The gutter then must be pitched from the center downward to separate downspouts. If any adjustment is necessary, the gutter should be pitched about half an inch for each 10 feet.

If the gutter is working properly, but the downspout is clogged, it sometimes can be cleared by pouring water into it from a garden hose, using as much pressure as possible. If this doesn't work, attach something like automobile chains to a length of rope and drop it into the downspout, jiggling it up and down. If the debris in the downspout falls most of the way through, but becomes clogged somewhere near the bottom, insert some stiff wire into the bottom of the downspout and push it upwards.

Should you live in a place where it is virtually impossible to keep overhanging tree branches from dropping leaves into the gutter, buy screening made to help that kind of situation. One part fits over the gutter, another part is placed over the top of the downspout at the opening. This system will permit water to flow freely, but keep out most leaves and other junk.

Outstanding artists to show at museum

The XIT Museum, 108 E. 5th St. in Dalhart, will host a three-day Openhouse during the XIT Rodeo and Reunion Aug. 3-5, from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

The Openhouse will honor three outstanding artists who will be showing in the Museum Gallery. Everyone is invited to visit the museum to see new exhibits and one of the finest art shows in the Panhandle.

Manuel Franco has been invited back for another show during the XIT Rodeo and Reunion. He will be showing some of his Southwestern art. Franco has been a professional since 1978 and has a long list of accomplishments since, including his annual showing at the High Plains Epilepsy Art Show and Auction in Amarillo since 1985; Art Expo, New York City at Jacob Convention Center, March, 1988; Art Expo, Los Angeles Convention Center, October, 1988; 83rd National Western Stock Show and Rodeo, Denver, January, 1989; Art LXXXIV and Art LXXXVI, Rotary Clubs of Amarillo Exhibition and Sale. This month he has the honor of being commissioned to do the poster for the Colorado State Fair.

Representing Manuel Franco Works are: The Vanishing Frontier Gallery in Arlington, Joan Cawley Gallery in Sante Fe, N.M., Three West in Clayton, N.M., Old West Gallery in Raton, N.M., Donlee Gallery in Calistoga, Calif., Indian Art Gallery in Munich, West Germany, American Art Gallery in Munich, West Germany-Distributors of Limited Editions, published by Front Line Graphics in San Diego, Calif. and the XIT Museum Gift Shop in Dalhart.

Shalah Perkins is a native of the Campo, Colo. area. A very talented lady, her sculpture and painting are some of the finest art to be found anywhere. Shalah lives on a historical ranch with her husband Jess. Their ranch runs along the Colorado River and her work relays her message of love for the western heritage of this ranch home.

Dino Cornay, is a cowboy artist from Folsom, N.M. He works with pen and ink producing western paintings. The artist lives and works on his family ranch where he raises buffalo along with cattle. Dino is also a musician and plays in a western band.

Congratulations goes to the after-schoolers at the Hereford Day Care Center. The children learned skills and knowledge necessary for them to identify potentially harmful situations, to be able to treat common injuries and respond in emergency situations.

The number of accidental injuries and deaths can be diminished if more children are trained in accident prevention and injury control. The basic aid training class for children is designed to teach children more than just first aid.

Couple to wed

Ronda Batenhorst of Hereford and Terry Lindsey of Memphis, Texas plan to exchange nuptials Sept. 30 in the Fifth Season Inn East in Amarillo.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Batenhorst of Route 5, Hereford, and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Lindsey of Memphis.

Miss Batenhorst graduated from Hereford High School in 1983 and is a 1989 graduate of West Texas State University where she majored in criminal justice and psychology.

Lindsey is a 1980 graduate of Memphis High School and is engaged in farming in Memphis.

Accidental Discovery May End Obesity

WASHINGTON - Obesity may be controlled naturally with a new type of pill, discovered by accident, a research scientist confirmed recently.

In studies, scientists noted an unusual side effect. Patients receiving an ingredient in what is now being called FS-1 all lost weight, while body weight in control groups remained constant.

Scientists say the mechanism behind the weight reduction is not clear, but suggest it is partially due to a decrease in the intestinal absorption of calorie-rich dietary fats. Although scientists for some time have known of substances with the capability of producing this effect, the dramatic impact on weight reduction was not known until recently.

The director of research and development at National Dietary Research, an organization committed to the investigation and research of nutritional solutions to world-wide health problems, stated, "The mechanism by which FS-1 works to decrease body weight is actually a more complex and sophisticated process called nutri-bonding. When chewed and swallowed immediately before meals, FS-1 releases nutrients with low calorie content into the body, while high-calorie fats are eliminated, thus providing optimum nutrition and a minimum number of calories."

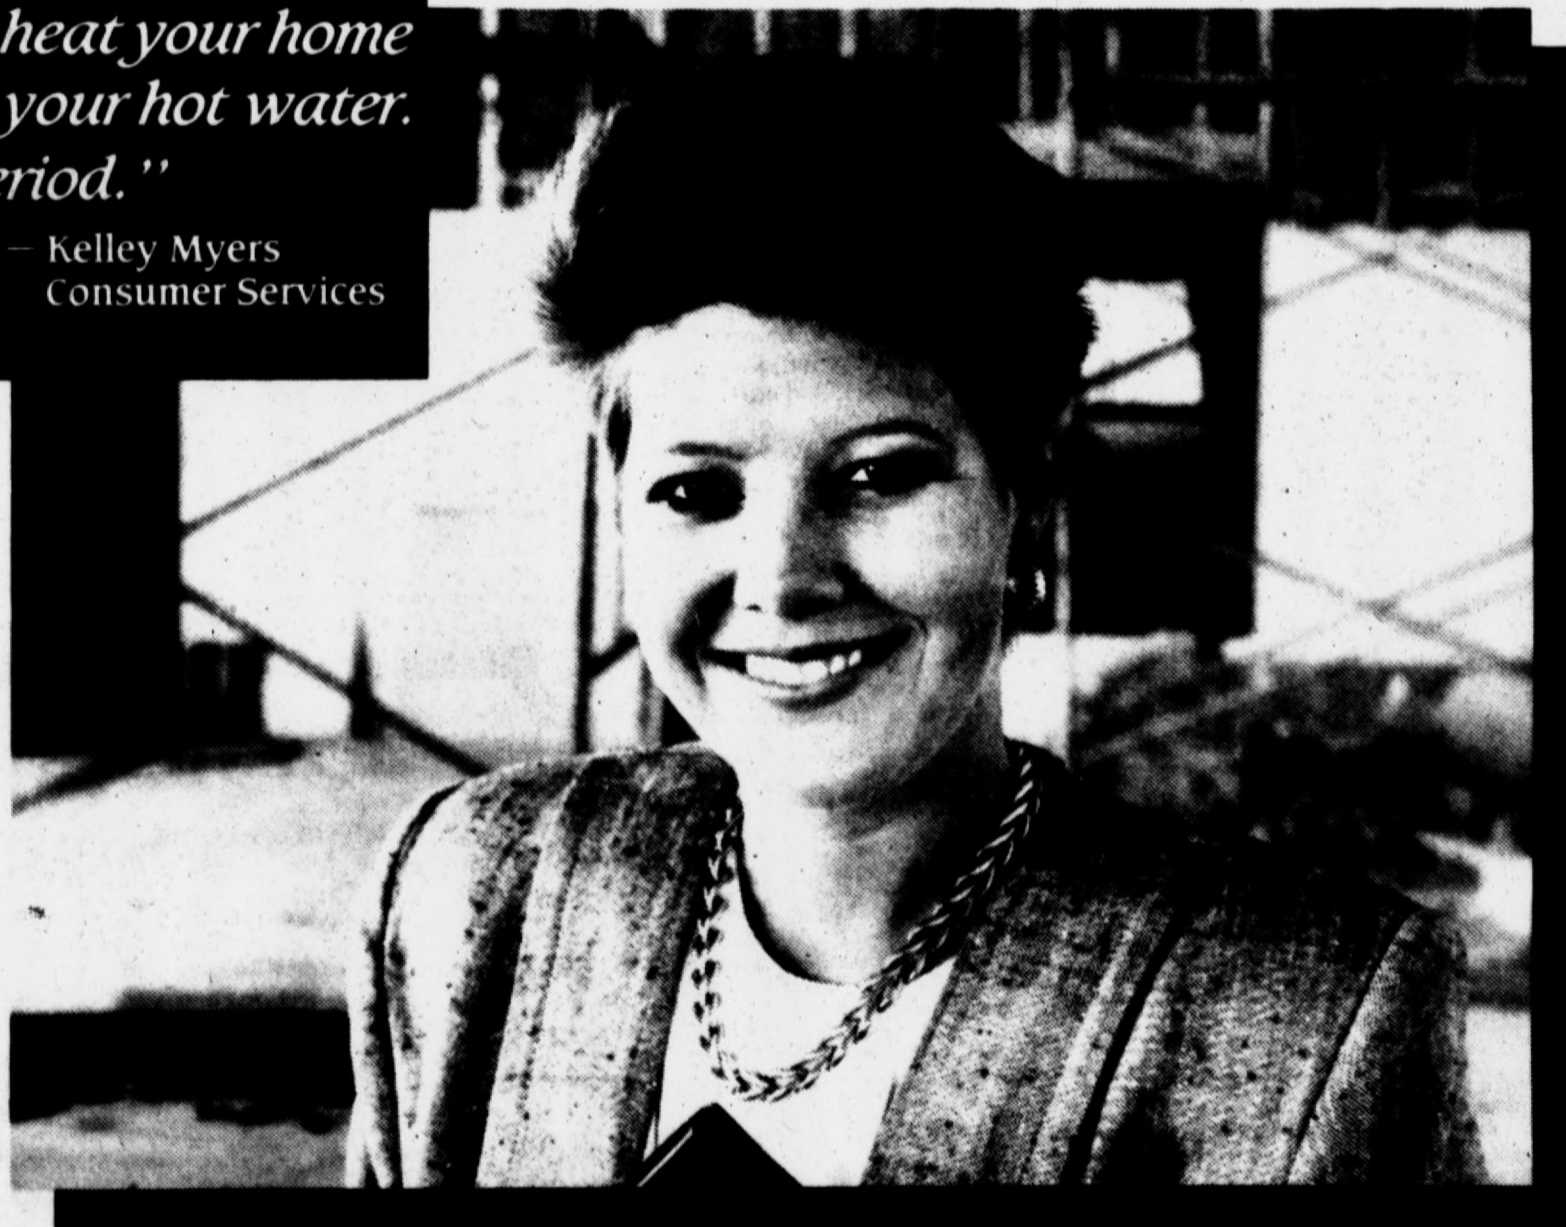

Studies with FS-1 indicate weight loss results clearly superior to products currently available for the treatment of obesity. In a comparative study by NDR, whose research topics have been the subject of articles published in recent medical and nutritional journals, FS-1 was found to be the most effective treatment for obesity and the most acceptable to patients.

The discovery comes as welcome news to thousands of obesity sufferers waiting years for this type of breakthrough. According to a spokesperson at NDR, "FS-1 can be made available to the public immediately, because it is not a drug and contains only natural ingredients recognized as safe. A drug with essentially the same weight loss capabilities might take as long as eight years to be available, due to lengthy delays encountered in the approval process. FS-1 is currently available on a limited basis through physicians and pharmacies. An instruction sheet for proper use and optimum results is provided with each bottle of 100 tablets."

MRS. ULRICH DREIFUERST
...nee Jeanette Grotegut

Grotegut, Dreifuerst wed Saturday in West Germany

Jeanette Agnes Grotegut of Munich, West Germany and Ulrich Josef Dreifuerst of Freising, West Germany were united in marriage early Saturday afternoon in St. Lioba Catholic Church in Petersberg-Fulda, West Germany.

The wedding ceremony was officiated by Father W. Juengst of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Josef C. Grotegut of Route 1, Hereford, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oskar Dreifuerst of Petersberg-Fulda, West Germany.

Monica Grotegut served her sister as maid of honor and the groom's brother, Bernhard Dreifuerst of Koenigswinter, West Germany, was best man.

Donna Grotegut, the bride's sister, was bridesmaid and the groom's brother, Norbert Dreifuerst of Zwolle, Holland, was groomsman.

The bride's cousin, Anne Schniederkoetter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schniederkoetter of Osterfelde, West Germany, was flower girl. The groom's nephew, Linus Dreifuerst, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernhard Dreifuerst of Koenigswinter, West Germany, was ring bearer.

A repertoire of classical music was featured and some selections were vocalized by the bride's brother, Christopher Grotegut of Hereford, accompanied by Christoph Medler of West Germany. Among the songs presented included "Psalm XVIII" ("The Heavens Declare The Glory Of God") by Marcello; "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" by J.S. Bach; "Arioso" by Handel; "Fur Elise" by Beethoven; "Hail Mary: Gentle Woman" by Landry; and "Trumpet Voluntary" by G. Clarke.

Presented in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a candlelight regal satin wedding gown fashioned with a Victorian neckline which featured a keyhole. It had a princess waistline and the fitted bodice was crowned with clusters of jeweled flowers. The Edwardian style sleeves came with points on the cuffs and the full flowing satin skirt was embellished with Venice lace medallions and crystallized hand-beaded designs and featured a draped triple-tiered peplum in back. The back runner was adorned with pearl buttons and the crystal organza skirt flowed into a chapel-length train.

Her fingertip-length veil was attached to a sequined floral arrangement accented with bead work. She carried a floral summer bouquet. Bridal attendants were attired in peacock colored, satin, tea-length dresses designed with princess waistlines, tulip sleeves and triple-tiered peplums at the backs marked by bows. Each carried a bouquet of summer flowers.

The reception, which included a dinner and dance, was held in the Berghof Hotel in Petersberg-Fulda, West Germany.

The couple will make their home in Freising, West Germany following a wedding trip to Spain.

The bride is a 1984 graduate of Hereford High School. She received a bachelor of music education degree from West Texas State University and is a member of Mu Phi Epsilon. She studied German and is studying music education at the Ludwig Maximilian University in Munich where she is working on her masters degree.

The groom received his masters degree in mechanical engineering from the Technical University in Munich, West Germany. He attended WTSU and worked for the Alternative Energy Institute at WTSU through a work-study program. He is currently employed for Nixdorf Computer Co. in Munich.

Lundry installed at meeting

During the Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228 meeting Tuesday evening, Lodge Deputy Lydia Hopson installed Dorothy Lundry as outside guardian. Hopson also gave a brief school of instruction.

Noble Grand Stella Hershey presided as reports were made. Twenty-six visits to the sick and 32 cheer cards were reported. Also, thanks was extended to those who supported the lodge's recent garage sale.

Marie Harris was commended for her work as noble grand during her term of office.

Peggy Lemons served as hostess. Others present included Jo Irlbeck, Anna Conklin, Erma Loving, Susie Curtsinger, Rosalie Northcutt, Irene Merritt, Leona Sowell, Sadie Shaw, Verna Sowell and Ursalee Jacobsen.

Pan, a Greek god, was believed to delight in frightening travelers. The word "panic," derives from his name.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: With summer upon us, I thought this letter that appeared in the Waterbury Republican was timely. You may want to share it with your readers. I will certainly share it with my students.--C.A.C., Teacher (Waterbury, Conn.)

DEAR TEACHER: I'm grateful to you for sending one of the most poignant letters I've ever read. I pray that everyone who knows a cyclist will pass it on. It would be a real upper for Donald Lundstrom to know that his accident helped to prevent similar tragedies around the world. Here's his mother's letter:

Helmetless Cyclists, Meet My Son Motorcyclists are lobbying against helmet laws, twisting statistics in their favor. But all you need it one statistic.

As I drive out to visit my 24-year-old son in a nursing home, motorcyclists without helmets pass me. I'd like to say to them, "Slow down and come with me." I would then take them to the Forestville Health and rehab Center, a facility caring for 60 brain-damaged people. I would introduce them to my son, a nationally ranked karate black belt, who has been in a wheelchair for more than two years, unable to walk; a college student who can't talk; a Mensa member who now reads only TV Guide; a second lieutenant who can't raise his right hand to salute.

Donald had a motorcycle license and was an expert driver. He wasn't drinking or speeding, and he wasn't hit by a car. He had an expensive helmet that he almost always wore, but one day he didn't wear his helmet, and that's the day he totaled his bike and went flying. He was a little bruised and got up and walked into the ambulance.

It was his last walk because his brain was hemorrhaging. He was operated on to remove a huge blood clot. Now when we carry him to the car for a ride, he points to motorcycle riders without helmets and taps his skull.

I told him I would write this letter, and he wants me to send it. He's a statistic. He's my son.--Christine Lundstrom, Northfield, Conn.

DEAR READERS: There's a ton of advice in that letter. Please clip this column and send it to your favorite cyclist. Read on for one more reinforcer.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been a nurse for 11 years and have taken care of many cyclists who suffered head trauma in an accident because they didn't wear a helmet. I have gone cycling without a helmet myself. Not very smart, considering what I know about the subject.

Last week, my husband was involved in a serious motorcycle accident. He is alive today because he was wearing his helmet, along with full gear: boots, jacket, gloves and jeans. He does not remember the accident, which is normal and probably just as well.

I thank the good Lord that I am not a widow today. We are young, and, God willing, we have many good years ahead of us.

I might add that my husband is not a typical biker type. He is a full-time student and was on his way to a business appointment when the accident happened.

Although I have always been a proponent of freedom of choice where helmets were concerned, you can bet that I have had a serious change of mind. My message to all riders is this: Don't think it can't happen to you. That blind rationalization is foolish, and it could cost you your life.--A Rialto, Calif., Reader

Nuptials unite Evers, Beck in marriage Saturday evening

The local American Legion Hall was the site of Saturday's early evening wedding of Sandra (Sandy) Lynn Evers and Ronald Stephen (Steve) Beck, both of Amarillo.

Johnnie Turrentine, Justice of the Peace, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Allen (Sonny) and Carolyn Evers of Hereford. Mrs. Mary Beck of Amarillo and Joseph Beck of Whittier, Calif., are parents of the groom.

As the couple recited their wedding vows, they stood before a white arch set in front of a picture of Christ. A white stand placed on each side of the arch held three crystal candle sticks containing peach candles in crystal votive cups. Candle rings of white roses encircled the votive cups and cascaded down the candle sticks.

Green potted ivy plants decorated the floor in front of the stands. A unity candle topped a stand beneath the picture of Christ and was flanked by two candle sticks that were a wedding gift from the groom's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Stoney Beck of Whittier, Calif. A lace candle ring, created by the bride, edged with miniature pearls and peach silk roses encircled the unity candle.

Maid of honor was Shannon Evers of Amarillo, the bride's sister. Best man was Ricky Perez of Amarillo. Laurie High of Hereford was a bridesmaid and Robert Glenn of Canyon was a groomsman.

Ushers were Richard Evers of Amarillo, the bride's brother; Rob Mosier of Amarillo, the groom's brother-in-law; and Marvin Kuper of Vici, Okla., the bride's uncle.

Danielle Kuper of Vici, daughter of Marvin and Jo Kuper, served as flower girl as did Karen Kuper of Carrollton, daughter of Larry and Peggy Kuper. Both youngsters are the bride's cousins.

Randy Evers, the bride's brother, carried the unity candle. Ring bearers were Stephen Beck of Arlington, son of the groom, and T.J. Johnson, son of Kim and Tom Johnson of Amarillo. Stephen carried the bride's ring while T.J. carried the groom's ring on pillows made by the bride's mother. The pillows featured a counted cross stitch rose, the couple's names, and their wedding date and consisted of the same fabric as the bride's dress. The pillows were edged with scalloped lace.

Sandy Mosier of Amarillo and Cindy Beck of Arlington, both sisters of the groom, lighted candles.

Sharon Cramer of Hereford performed as organist and Larry Kuper of Carrollton, the bride's uncle, was vocalist. Such selections as "Panis Angelicus", "His and Hers", "Walk Hand in Hand" were performed.

"Ave Maria" was sung as the mothers were seated. Mrs. Cramer played the processional and recessional with Russell Evers accompanying on the trumpet. "Gift of Love" was performed by the brides' mother on the organ, Russell on the trumpet, and Kuper as singer.

During the lighting of the unity candle, Kuper and Cramer performed the musical selection, "The Greatest Thing" and "The Lord's Prayer" was featured at the close of the ceremony.

Following the introduction of the bride and groom prior to the recessional, the couple introduced their immediate family.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a tea-length dress of white charmeuse composed of puffed sleeves with a lace overlay and scalloped lace edge. The dress was fashioned with a cameo neckline graced with a double lace ruffle. The bodice dropped to a point at the waist, flowing into a gathered skirt of charmeuse and lace trimmed with scalloped lace at the edge. Bows on the front of the bodice and on the sleeves further enhanced the garment, which was designed and made by the bride and her mother.

Completing her wedding ensemble was a halo which she made of miniature peach roses, baby's breath, and streamers of peach ribbon and white lace that cascaded down the back.

Bridal tradition was fulfilled as she wore a gold bracelet as something old. It belonged to her maternal grandmother, Emma Moser of Summerfield, who received it 50 years ago as a high school graduation gift. Her wedding dress was something new; a three-strand pearl necklace belonging to her mother, which was presented from her father as a birthday gift before they were married, something borrowed; and a blue garter, something blue.

The bride also wore, in her shoe, a penny depicting the birth year of the couple.

Her bouquet was comprised of white and peach roses accenting a background of white lace edged with miniature pearls and satin roses. Streamers exuded from the creation, made by the bride, and matched those of the halo.

She also arranged the attendants' flowers, which were long-stemmed peach and white roses tied with peach ribbon and white lace, and the boutonnières, flower girls' baskets, and corsages which were of silk peach and white roses.

The gowns worn by bridal attendants and flower girls were of peach brandy and lace and were made similar to the bride's dress. They wore halos similar to that of the bride and wore single strands of pearls with matching earrings that was a gift from the bride.

The flower girls carried white wicker baskets filled with peach and white roses. Bows of peach ribbon marked the baskets' handles and lace covered the baskets' top edge.

A reception followed in the hall as did a buffet dinner and dance.

Angela Evers of Amarillo, the bride's sister-in-law, registered guests. The registrar table was topped with a peach cloth and lace overlay. It was centered by a photo of the bride and a wooden candle holder containing a crystal votive cup encircled by peach and white flowers.

The bride's table and groom's table were also topped by a peach cloth with lace overlay. The bride's table was centered with crystal candelabra holding two peach candles used at the bride's parents' wedding. The bride's bouquet, flanked by two porcelain doves which belonged to the bride's paternal grandmother, Anna Evers of Umbarger, adorned the front of the candelabra.

The bride's aunt, Lynda Herrin, made the bride's cake and the groom's cake. The bride's cake was a traditional white cake iced in white and was trimmed with peach garland. The cake was composed of three tiers separated by crystal columns. A curving staircase cascading down the side of the cake was covered with peach roses and miniature white candles.

Topping the cake was an upright crystal heart topped with two miniature crystal doves.

Serving the bride's cake was by Sandy Mosier. She cut cake with a silver cake server that was used at the weddings of the bride's maternal grandparents and parents.

Ladling punch from a crystal punch bowl belonging to the groom's mother was Stephanie Evers, the bride's cousin.

Centering the groom's table were black wrought iron candelabra containing cut glass votive cups with peach candles encircled by candle rings of peach and white roses.

The groom's cake was a chocolate creation featuring white icing edged with peach icing. Figurines topped the cake, displaying the groom's love of such sports as football, basketball, and baseball.

Cindy Beck served the groom's cake. She used a cake server that was used at Mosier's wedding.

Serving coffee from a silver service was Deana Fleming of Optima who also served tea from a crystal punch bowl belonging to the bride's maternal grandmother.

Also assisting with the reception were the bride's aunts, Lynda Herrin of Summerfield; Peggy Kuper of Carrollton; Dolores Kuper of Optima; Jo Kuper of Vici; and Judy Kuper of Moody. Others assisting were Maria Garcia and Lupe Castillo, both of Hereford.

As the couple left on a wedding trip to Las Vegas, Nev., the bride wore a dress designed by the late Anna Dupnik, her great aunt, which had been worn by the bride's mother as her traveling costume following her wedding. The peach-colored dress featured a pleated skirt and jacket fashioned with a stand-up collar and three-quarter length sleeves.

A pearl necklace and earrings worn at the wedding completed the bride's costume, as did a peach and white rose corsage which she made.

The couple will make their home in Amarillo.

Dement, Downs married in Amarillo Saturday evening

Judith Alane Dement of Amarillo became the bride of Ricky Allen Downs of Borger Saturday evening in a candlelight ceremony held at the Harvey Hotel in Amarillo.

The ceremony was conducted by the bride's brother, Greg Dement of Amarillo.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Dement of Amarillo, former Hereford residents, and is the niece of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Lomenick of Hereford. The bridegroom is the son of Brenda Downs of Borger.

Candelabra and greenery were used for decoration during the ceremony and teal and peach bows marked the rows where guests were seated. The registry table was adorned with candles and pictures of the bride and the groom together and as children.

Sheila Mangum of Amarillo served as maid of honor and the bridegroom's grandfather, Jerry Browning of Borger, was best man.

Bridesmaids included the bride's cousins, Kathi Dement of Amarillo and Shalyn Henson of Conway, Mo., and the groom's sister, Carla Downs of Amarillo.

Serving as groomsmen were the bride's brother, Randal Dement of Lubbock, Robert Scott of Borger and Stacy Jones of Amarillo. Groomsmen also served as ushers.

The groom's cousin, Bethany Whitworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Whitworth of Borger, was flower girl. Ringer bearer was Whitney Hamill, son of Melanie Hamill of Roswell, N.M.

Candles were lit by the bride's cousin, Melanie Henson of Conway, Mo., and the groom's cousin, Amy Moore of Borger.

Tapers placed by the unity candle were lit by the bride's mothers.

Melanie Hamill and William Lawler, accompanied by pianist, Elizabeth Lookingbill of Hereford, sang "Flesh of My Flesh", "The Lord's Prayer" and "Wedding Song." A special musical selection, "After All" was sung by Kathi Dement.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a satin floor-length gown accented with lace at the hem and neckline. The fitted bodice was encrusted with sequins and seed pearls and lace and seed pearls draped over the bottom of the gown. The sleeves were made of lace tulle and the back was designed with a low V-shape cut marked by a large bow covered with dangly pearls.

The lace hat, embellished with seed pearls, featured tufts of lace tulle at the back. She carried a silk arrangement of white-roses, orchids and greenery adorned with white lace streamers.

Her jewelry consisted of a gold bracelet belonging to her maternal grandmother and a gold band bracelet given to her by the groom.

Attendants were attired in teal satin tea-length gowns designed with scalloped necklines and deep backs with bows. They carried minuscule arrangements of peach mixed flowers with greenery and teal streamers.

The bride's mother wore a teal-length peach chiffon dress and carried a lace handkerchief given to her by her mother on her wedding day 33 years ago. The bridegroom's mother wore a deep royal blue chiffon dress.

The groom's sister, Tammy Barnard of Mesquite, Texas, invited guests to register at the reception held in the hotel atrium and pool area.

Kelli Aderholt of Roswell, N.M. and the groom's aunt, Mrs. Alvin Paulsell of Borger, served cake, and punch and coffee were poured by the bride's cousin, Mrs. George Letterman of Conway, Mo., and the bride's aunt, Mrs. Neal Lomenick. Also, assisting was the bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. Greg Dement of Amarillo.

The reception area was decorated with candles and greenery and the focal point of the main refreshment table was the bride's three-tiered white cake decorated with fresh peach roses, baby's breath and greenery placed above a fountain with teal colored water. Also, served was the groom's

German chocolate cake, fresh fruit and cheeses.

A special toast to the bridal couple was offered by the maid of honor, Shelia Mangum, and groomsman, Robert Scott.

Wearing their bridal attire, the couple left for a wedding trip to Puerto Vallarta, Mexico. Bags of birdseed and confetti were tossed.

The couple will make their home in Amarillo.

The bride graduated from Amarillo High School in 1981 and is a graduate of Eastern New Mexico University.

She is presently employed as a registered nurse in neonatal intensive care at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo.

The groom, a 1981 graduate of Borger High School, served five years in the U.S. Navy. He is presently employed by Ed Brown and Sons Funeral Home in Borger. He plans to attend mortician school in Dallas this fall.

Special out-of-town wedding guests included Mr. and Mrs. George Letterman and family of Conway, Mo. and Mr. and Mrs. Don McDermitt of Allen, Texas.

It's been thirty years since Margaret was five. With spouse and siblings She has arrived.

Kerr, Taylor united in marriage July 15

Helen R. Kerr became the bride of Mitchel C. Taylor during a wedding ceremony held July 15 at First Baptist Church. Officiating for the couple was the Rev. Don Kirklen, pastor of Immanuel Lutheran Church.

The bride is the daughter of Gordon Kerr of Route 3, Hereford, and Christine Curtiss of Denver, Colo. The bridegroom is the son of Joe B. and Elaine Taylor of 127 Beach.

Jan King served as the bride's honor attendant and Jay Beene was best man.

Guests were escorted by the groom's brother, Wesley Taylor; the groom's cousin, Clifton Morgan; and Ben Kirklen.

The bride's cousin, Ray Lee, sang "Colour My World", "Twelfth of Never" and "I Believe", accompanied by Judy Hollingsworth playing the piano.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white tea-length dress with a fushia sash and bow marking the fitted waist. The strapless dress was designed with a full skirt formed by layers of ruffles.

In her hair, she wore a comb adorned with miniature white satin flowers. She carried a cascading bouquet of pink and white silk carnations decorated with two wedding rings symbolizing marriage. The bouquet was further enhanced with greenery and pink ribbon streamers.

Keeping with bridal tradition, she wore her grandmother's wedding ring as something old; her dress, something new; earrings belonging to the honor attendant, something borrowed; and garter, something blue.

Tara King, daughter of Randy and Jan King, registered guests at the reception held in the church fellowship hall.

Sue Powell served the bride's cake and Rhonda Lee, the bride's cousin, presided at the groom's table. Betty Taylor, the groom's aunt, poured punch and coffee.

Leaving on a wedding trip to Denver, Colo., the bride wore a denim skirt with pink and white accessories. The couple will make their home in Hereford.

The bride attended Hereford High School and is employed at Taco Villa.

The groom, a 1988 graduate of Hereford High School, is employed at Oglesby Equipment.

Help a friend in mourning

It's amazing how productive one can be while postponing doing something they don't want to do like putting off calling friends who are mourning a tragic loss.

It's very difficult for many people to work up the courage to call or visit a friend who's mourning the death of a loved one.

"Will it be a bad time?" "Will I say the wrong thing?" These are valid questions asked by countless people who want to help, but who are haunted by the age-old complaint, "I never know what to say."

Communication can be maintained in a number of ways: In person, by telephone, by "thinking of you" notes, with flowers or food, or by helping with cleaning, child care or other chores or errands.

Often it isn't necessary to "know what to say"-only to be there. Your friend may need you only to listen-which is actively giving to another-to take a hand in silent sympathy.

Above all, don't worry if you "never know what to say." The good that friends can do in trying to comfort mourners almost always outweighs any well-meant misstep made during the process.

Extension News

BY BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent

Today's trend in housing designs features hardwood floors and entrances. Hardwood floors can be a special asset in your home, especially if they're well-maintained. Summer seems to bring a surge of home cleaning so here are hints to help you if this is a task needing attention in your home.

A good floor polish will help you accomplish this task. For best results, sweep, clean and dry-mop the floor before applying polish. Loose dirt and old polish residue will prevent the new polish from working, so the floors will still look dull.

Apply the polish in thin coats. The label instructions will tell you the correct materials to use, quantity and method of application. Some hardwoods with urethane finish may require special instructions or products.

Vacuum, sweep and dry mop regularly to keep dirt from being ground into the floor. Remember to wipe up spills immediately before they attract more soil.

If you have some dark spots on wood floors, it may be from exposure to alkaline substances which were left to dry on the floor. To remove the spots, follow this procedure:

- Remove solvent-based wax with mineral spirits.
- Apply white vinegar to the spots and leave for three to four minutes.
- Wipe dry with a clean cloth.
- Repeat these steps as necessary.
- If the spot is not removed after several applications, try a four percent oxalic acid solution. Oxalic acid is available at most home improvement stores. Carefully read and follow label instructions.
- If the oxalic acid doesn't work, you'll just have to live with the spot, or call in a professional floor finisher.

The scratches and small worn areas on wood floors can often be concealed by applying a small amount of polish with very fine steel wool to the floor.

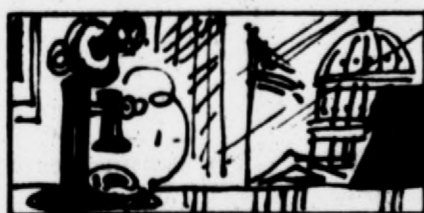

Wherever possible, apply the polish in the direction of the wood grain and rub it gently until the color blends with the floor. Wipe off the excess and then polish the area with a clean, dry cloth. Polish alone will work well for light and medium colored floors.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Former resident weds in Cloudcroft

Standing before a gazebo at The Lodge in Cloudcroft, N.M., former Hereford resident, Melissa Ann Sanders of Lubbock, became the bride of James Malcolm Gulley, also of Lubbock. Wedding vows were exchanged July 8 with David Langford, a Church of Christ minister from Lubbock, officiating.

The bride's parents are former Hereford residents, Mr. and Mrs. Julian W. Johnson of Lubbock, and the groom's parents are Mrs. Davis Gulley of Muleshoe and the late Davis Gulley.

Mrs. Frank Cooke of Lubbock served as matron of honor and John Gulley of Muleshoe served as his brother's best man.

The bride wore a tea-length gown of ivory lace over taffeta. The elongated bodice featured a rounded neckline accented with seed pearls and Venice lace appliques. Puffed lace sleeves gathered into cuffs at the wrists and the ruffles fell over the hands with tatted lace edging. The gathered lace skirt fell into a handkerchief hem and was also edged with tatted lace.

To complement her attire, the bride chose a halo headpiece of ivory silk flowers intertwined with pearl strands. Attached to the crown of the halo was a pouf of ivory net. Also, combined in the headpiece was a side-comb of ivory silk flowers with a drop-spray of three strands of lily-of-the-valley and scattered seed pearls. She wore pearl earrings and a pearl necklace.

She carried a cascading silk flower bouquet of roses in different hues of pink, ivory stephanotis, pink baby's breath and silk greenery. The bouquet was accented with teal silk leaves, sprays of seed pearls, pale pink net and attached were ivory lace ribbons, pink and teal satin ribbons and pearl strands.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony on the lawn adjoining the gazebo. Servers were Mary Barrier and Ms. Jose Baca, both of Lubbock.

Guests represented Lubbock, Midland and Corsicana.

The bride is a 1973 graduate of Hereford High School. She graduated in 1977 from West Texas State University School of Nursing. She is currently employed at the Lubbock State School as the nurse manager of the infirmary.

The groom, a 1971 graduate of Muleshoe High School, graduated in 1976 with a degree in agri-business from Texas Tech University. He is employed at Gro-Agri Seed Co. in Lubbock as assistant operations manager.

After a wedding trip to Santa Fe, N.M., the couple are now at home in Lubbock.

The highest price quoted for a share of stock was $38,400 for a Swiss drug company in 1976.

The first polo game in America was played indoors at Dickel's Riding Academy in New York City in 1876.

Eager to enter

Mackenzie Gonzalez, nine-month-old son of Armando and Debbie Gonzalez, is ready to enter the upcoming Diaper Derby 1989 and claim this T-shirt as his own. It will then serve as his uniform as he competes with other crawling toddlers in the event set at the Dameron Park at 1 p.m. Aug. 12 during the Town 'n' Country Jubilee. Mackenzie wants to remind his parents and others that entry fees of $2 are due at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office by Aug. 10. The sporting event is being sponsored by the Chamber's Women's Division.

Crawling youngsters to be in Diaper Derby

A Diaper Derby will be featured at the Town 'n' Country Jubilee next month and youngsters age 6-18 months are invited to participate.

The "crawling" race will be held in Dameron Park along with other Jubilee booths on Saturday, Aug. 12. The Diaper Derby will follow the Jubilee's parade and will start at 1 p.m. as three races will be featured.

Toddlers age 6-9 months will compete at 1 p.m. Youngsters 9-12 months will race at 1:30 p.m. and children 12-18 months will race at 2 p.m.

An entry fee of $2 per child should be brought to the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce at 701 N. Main by Thursday, Aug. 10. Entry forms are available at the Chamber office.

Ireland family reunites

Thirty-five members of the E.S. Ireland family gathered at the home of Johnny and Martha Ann Henslee Rickman, 239 Ave. D., during the Fourth of July weekend for a reunion.

Attending the celebration, which included a barbeque and all the trimmings, were Ed Ireland of Sweetwater, Mrs. Charlie Holt and Mrs. Donald D. Henslee, both of Hereford, and Richard Ireland of Albuquerque, N.M., along with spouses, children and grandchildren.

Before a visit to the family home at 500 Union was made, the children played various games and the adults enjoyed visiting.

It was noted that the Fourth of July celebration was always a grand occasion at the Irelands, so on Sunday evening the family gathered at the country home of Elizabeth and Charlie Holt for a picnic supper where they also watched old and new movies, looked at memorabilia and watched a display of fireworks organized by Mickey Bonesio, the Holts' son.

NEW YORK (AP) - Move over Pepsi. Michael Jackson is stepping out with the California Raisins.

Jackson helped create and choreograph an ensemble of hip, animated clay raisins, including one modeled on himself, for the latest California Raisin commercial.

In the commercial, Michael Raisin and six backup singers perform a Jacksonesque version of the Motown classic "I Heard It Through the Grapevine." The raisins, including a rapper called Brad and a punker called Flash, appear before a screaming audience of animated fruit.

The characters are products of the patented Claymation process from Will Vinton Productions of Portland, Ore.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Comedian Joan Rivers accepted a star in the Hollywood Walk of Fame while poking fun at the official conducting the ceremony, who mistakenly called her Joan Collins.

"Both Joan Collins and I are thrilled about this," Ms. Rivers quipped to Hollywood's "honorary mayor" and Walk of Fame Chairman Johnny Grant, who got his Joans mixed up.

"I blew it," Grant said after Wednesday's ceremony.

Rainbow Carwash To Our Customers

We would like to thank all of you for your business during the last 8 years. We certainly appreciate each of you.

We are leasing the carwash to Conny Whitehorn, who is a nine year veteran in the carwash business, effective August 1, 1989. We know Conny and Jesse Figueroa, our present staff, will give you good service in the automatic bay, self-service area and will do a great job full servicing your cars, pickups and vans. They will be looking forward to serving you.

Thank you again! God bless you! We love you.

NEC takes on Nintendo with sharper graphics

NEW YORK (AP) - Look out, Nintendo.

The newest player in home video games is out to zap and blast your Super Mario Brothers with special effects so dazzling that its electronic athletes dance home-run shuffles and its space battles display arcade-quality flash.

"Dad, I got to get this system. This is the greatest game I ever saw. We'll sell the Nintendo," said Joey Silverman, 9, after a trial run on the TurboGrafx-16 system made by NEC Home Electronics (U.S.A.) Inc.

Ditching Nintendo seems like heresy. It is the hottest-selling toy in America and Super Mario Brothers, named for its mustachioed heroes, the most popular game.

Yet the 20 people who played the systems in a week-long, side-by-side trial by The Associated Press unanimously praised NEC's sharper graphics, blazing color and better sound.

NEC's system, due in stores in November, has twice the computing power and at least twice the price-tag. The basic unit lists at $199, with a compact disc option for an extra $399. Game cartridges the size of a credit card will sell for $45, and about 20 games will be available.

A Nintendo unit costs about $80. Its 120 games sell for $25 to $40 each.

But even a telecommunications giant like NEC is going to need more than heavyweight wizardry to challenge Nintendo, which monopolizes 80 percent of the video game market.

Eight-year-old Emmet O'Hanlon preferred NEC's graphics during a test run but said, "I wouldn't trade Nintendo at all. No way."

Josh Taylor, 18, agreed after playing a baseball game that features a post-game show and lacks only gold chains and pine tar for realism.

"NEC blows it away. It's far superior." Still, he said, "If I owned a Nintendo, I don't know if I'd go out and buy the new one."

Jenny Boyd, 12, said it would take "a million dollars to give up my Nintendo." But after playing NEC, she told her 9-year-old sister, "Start saving your money. Any money we get will go toward this. This is a fresh game."

Like Nintendo, the NEC system is a game kids, and some adults, can't stop playing. In a space battle, white-knuckled players raced to see who can go the farthest and blast the most aliens. In pinball, getting the high score earned bragging rights.

James Herman, 9, was particularly awestruck by one NEC game in which a karate-chopping warrior battles bullies. The hero's eyes blink, his side bruises and his mouth bleeds.

"That's what I call excellent graphics," James said. "This is such an awesome game."

NEC's gadgetry has a 16-bit microprocessor, twice the power of a Nintendo. A bit measures how much information the processor can handle at once. Nintendo is testing a souped-up version, and a Sega of America Inc., subsidiary of Japan's Sega Enterprises Ltd., also has a 16-bit system on the market.

But experts say marketing and game appeal may mean more than raw computing power.

"The 16-bit guys are looking for a small niche of the market. I can't believe they're going to upend Nintendo," said Larry Carlat, editor of Toy & Hobby World Magazine. "After all those kids and parents have invested in Nintendo, now you're telling them to put it away in a closet and start all over again with more money for better graphics."

The battle for the hearts and minds of video game players is far from child's play because of the megabucks at stake.

Nintendo of America Inc. sold $1.7 billion worth of games last year and sales should reach $2.6 billion this year. Since it introduced its boxy toy in 1985, Nintendo has sold 13 million in the United States and expects to have 19 million sold by year's end.

New show: 'Prime Time Live' or 'Sam & Diane Show'

LOS ANGELES (AP) - ABC's new "Prime Time Live" promises no gimmicks, no re-creations, no sensational stories, but it will have distinct differences from other prime-time news programs: Diane Sawyer, Sam Donaldson and a studio audience.

It's been a struggle for TV critics meeting here to get any kind of handle on the three networks' new newsmagazines. CBS didn't bring anyone in to discuss the revamping of "West 57th," and the three stars and producer of NBC's "Yes! Today and Tomorrow" spent most of their time fending off questions about their intended use of "re-creations."

And with all the competition, the news divisions don't want to reveal formats or planned stories for fear of someone stealing their brilliant ideas.

ABC News' "Prime Time Live" will premiere Aug. 3. In the meantime, co-hosts Sawyer and Donaldson described what sounds like part "Nightline," part "60 Minutes" and part "Donahue."

"We're not going to do just another program in which we have pieces that have been prepared for months, weeks, long-form, perfectly shot, perfectly scripted, put together right," said Donaldson, trying to explain what the show isn't.

"And it's a little bit looser format," said Sawyer, trying to explain what it is. "I mean, apart from the technologies, we all know that in the end, after the cameras have gone on and the satellites work and don't work, and the people show up or don't show up, it has to rest on what you say and what kind of information you're bringing."

Sawyer said that test runs of the show included some on-location reporting, but also interviews in the studio, "and some of it did have some of the components that Ted Koppel (on 'Nightline') uses, done in a slightly different way on our broadcast."

"Or that (David) Brinkley uses," said Donaldson.

"Or that Brinkley uses," agreed Sawyer.

"Or that '60 Minutes' uses," said Donaldson.

"That's right," confirmed Sawyer.

"Or that '20-20' uses," Donaldson added.

This is not just another newsmagazine?

No, it isn't.

One reason is the studio audience. Other news shows have had audiences, notably Koppel's on-the-road "Nightline." But this is the first time in recent memory there's been one for a prime-time news program.

Donaldson promised he would not become Sam Donahue. "I'm not going to run up and down the aisle of the studio audience (asking), 'Sex in the morning? Do you like it?' 'Yes.' 'Oh, how about you?'"

The real heart of the show, however, is the pairing of Sawyer and Donaldson, though Donaldson argued that is not the case.

True, Donaldson was hired for the new broadcast before he left the White House beat earlier this year and no co-host had been selected.

Yahoo's serious about Einstein

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

Did you know that Albert Einstein was born in Tasmania, had a romance in Australia with Madame Curie and discovered rock 'n' roll as well as the Relativity theory? You didn't? Then you should bone up on history according to Yahoo Serious by seeing "Young Einstein."

It's not a bad idea, really. While the music may not be as memorable, "Young Einstein" is as innovative and delightful as Richard Lester's "A Hard Day's Night," the first of the Beatles movies.

The plot is as outrageous as the filmmaker's name. Albert Einstein, played by the director himself, grows up on an apple farm in remote Tasmania, where he discovers the theory of atomic energy by forcing bubbles into his father's home-brew beer. He leaves home to peddle his theory in Sydney. On the train he meets a brainy, beautiful Frenchwoman, Marie Curie (Odile Le Cluzio).

Albert is rejected in Sydney and is reduced to living in squalor. Marie tries to help him introduce his theory at Sydney University, but he is thrown out. Meanwhile the scheming brewer Preston Preston (John Howard) has stolen Albert's theory and uses it to enhance his beer. He is also trying to steal

Marie, with whom Albert is smitten.

Preston Preston manages to have Albert confined to a loony bin, where he escapes with the help of his new invention, the electric guitar. One adventure follows another until the climax at a science convention in Paris. The world's first atomic explosion is threatened. All this in 1906.

Such a plot requires vast imagination, and Serious, who wrote, directed, produced and starred, succeeds most of the time.

BETTY SIMS SOLT

Solt to be featured at roundup

Betty Sims Solt of Roswell, N.M., will be one of the persons participating in a cowboy poetry roundup on August 11 before the first performance of the Hall of Fame All-Girl Rodeo at The Barn, northwest of Hereford.

The events are part of the festivities of the Town and Country Jubilee in Hereford.

Ms. Solt was born and raised on a ranch 20 miles west of Santa Rosa, N.M., and grew up doing all kinds of ranch work.

"I always would rather help in the corral rather than the kitchen," Solt said. She participated in rodeos in high school and college, and worked to promote more opportunities and recognition for girls in rodeos. She helped get the girls breakaway roping event started in high school and college.

"In the 1950s, girls sometimes received nothing for winning, maybe a $10 watch, while the boys received saddles and scholarships," said Solt, a record holder in roping who also won two National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association titles in barrel racing.

Solt is now a language arts teacher at Berrendo Middle School in Roswell, where she has a "western" unit in her classes. She includes "a lesson or two about cowgirls because I want the students to learn about ranch life and rodeos firsthand."

Solt also was instrumental in getting the first New Mexico Cowboy Poetry Gathering started, last May, in Roswell.

"After visiting my brother, Al Sims, in Newcastle, Wyo., during their cowboy poetry gathering and talking to Waddie Mitchell of Elko, Nev., who asked why New Mexico didn't have one, I thought I'd try to get one going. We had a very successful event and plan a two- or three-day event next year."

Her family includes a brother, Tom Sims, of Hereford.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - J.R. Ewing will have a new "bad girl" to contend with this season: blond actress Kimberly Foster, who will play a vixen on "Dallas."

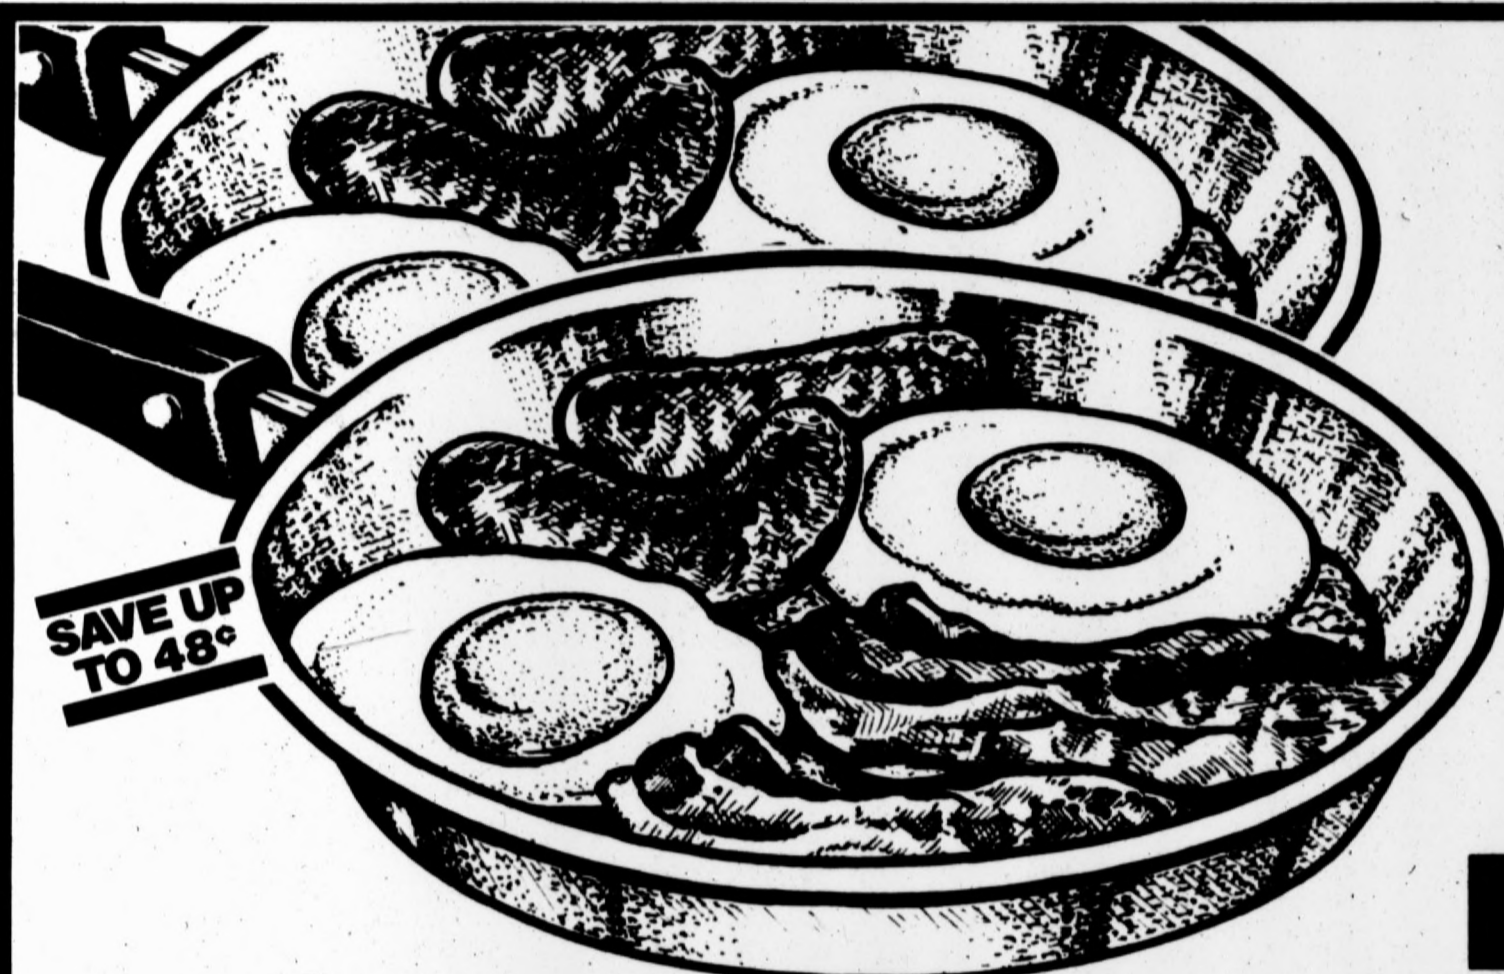

Foster said she screamed in delight when told she had the part on the CBS television show.

"It's scary going into a show that's been going for 12 years. It's kind of like I've been invited to a really big party where you don't know any of the guests," said Foster, who will be relatively new to prime-time audiences.

In an unusual step, her name will appear in the main titles.

"You always need someone to stir up the pot," said executive producer Leonard Katzman. "And everybody loves a bad girl."
