Iraq warns of 'thunderous storm'

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (AP) - Saudi troops backed by U.S. Marines today took back the coastal town that saw the Persian Gulf War's first sustained ground fighting, the Saudi military said. But front-line commanders said they suspected the Iraqis were planning an even larger attack.

By mid-morning today, the remnants of an Iraqi armored column were cornered and under siege by U.S. artillery. At mid-afternoon today, a Saudi military spokesman said Khafji had been "completely liberated."

The spokesman said "large numbers" of Iraqis were taken prisoner and a large portion of their tanks and equipment destroyed.

Iraq's official news agency today quoted the newspaper of Iraq's ruling party as saying the fighting in Khafji was the prelude to a far bigger battle. The paper, Al-Thawra, called it "the beginning of a thunderous storm blowing on the Arab desert."

Marines on the outskirts of Khafji said they had been told that five or six Iraqi divisions - at least 60,000 troops - were massing near the Kuwaiti town of al-Wafra, about 25 miles to the west, and believed preparing for an attack.

The four-pronged Iraqi attack that began Tuesday evening and appeared to end today involved only about 1,500 ground troops and 50 tanks and was considered a probe to test allied strength.

The Iraqi newspaper boasted that Baghdad, not the allies, would set the timing of the ground confrontation.

By grabbing Khafji, "Iraq became the one who initiated the opening of new pages of the battle according to the date and place it decides," it said.

Allied commanders have said they would resist Iraqi efforts to drag them into a ground war before allied air assaults had beaten the enemy down.

On Wednesday, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater indicated President Bush would be the one to order a ground offensive, and said he had not given such a command.

In addition to the ground fighting, battles flared in the seas and skies. British Jaguar fighter-bombers attacked a 300-foot Iraqi landing craft in the northern gulf, reportedly leaving it in flames and dead in the water.

The Ministry of Defense said British forces sank five Iraqi craft on Wednesday and four others were beached.

British warplanes also flew ground attack missions today in support of allied forces at Khafji, struck an Iraqi commando camp and at Iraqi artillery emplacements, said RAF Wing Commander Ray Horwood.

The French, meanwhile, said their fighters attacked artillery and command centers of Iraq's elite Republican Guard. Italian fighter-bombers also flew missions today.

In an interview today on CNN, the allied commander, Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, said the Iraqi attack on Khafji was "about as significant as a mosquito on an elephant."

The allies have flown more than 30,000 combat and support sorties so far, and Schwarzkopf said Wednesday that Iraq is now all but defenseless in the face of the air assault.

The air attacks are systematically destroying Iraq's military supply system, smashing hardened shelters containing Iraqi jets, and continuing to knock out troublesome Scud-type missile launchers, he told reporters in Saudi Arabia.

Allied forces had destroyed all of Iraq's nuclear reactors, half of its biological warfare plants, and chemical storage and production sites, Schwarzkopf said.

"By every measure, our campaign is very much on schedule," he said.

But the commander also sounded a note of caution: "There's no way that I'm suggesting that the Iraqi army is close to capitulation and going to give up." The Iraqis, he said, "certainly have a lot of fight left in them."

That was more than clear when Iraqi forces backed by armored units slammed into Saudi Arabia beginning Tuesday night.

Staff officers at the 1st Marine Division's headquarters said today that 11 Marines were killed late Tuesday along Kuwait's southwestern border in an area of open desert about 15 miles west of Khafji.

They said the two light armored vehicles were lost in the same action but did not say whether the Marines killed were in the vehicles.

Schwarzkopf had put the number at 12 on Wednesday.

Late Wednesday, Saudi light armored forces reached the center of Khafji, but the Marines pulled back under heavy Iraqi rocket fire. "Let's get the hell out of here!" shouted a Marine captain in a vehicle with a mounted TOW anti-tank missile.

The successful allied push into Khafji followed the retreat by an hour. When the Iraqi columns first struck from Kuwait early Wednesday, some advancing T-55 tanks had their guns facing rearward - a sign of surrender - but the Iraqis then opened fire, the Marines reported.

Coalition officers said Iraqi casualties in fighting Tuesday and Wednesday were heavy but gave no numbers. They said 21 Iraqis were taken prisoner, and about two dozen Iraqi tanks and personnel carriers were destroyed.

Allied commanders have said they would resist Iraqi efforts to drag them into a ground war before allied air assaults had beaten the Iraqis down.

Deaths rekindle Capitol debate

WASHINGTON (AP) - The commander of Operation Desert Storm said today the first ground combat deaths in the Persian Gulf war ought to bring home to Americans that "war is going to kill people."

The casualties are heightening congressional debate over President Bush's ability to sustain popular support for a long and bloody land war.

Commenting on the deaths of 11 U.S. Marines in the initial Iraqi assault on the Saudi Arabian town of Khafji were disclosed Wednesday, some Democratic lawmakers said Bush needs to do more to prepare the public for the likely carnage that full-scale ground fighting could bring.

"I think we have expectations that are unrealistic," said Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee. So far, he said, the war has been "essentially devoid of casualties," creating "a standard impossible to match."

But House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., said the public has no illusions about the potential human cost.

"I don't think the country is without realism on this. Any idea that the war can somehow be costless... is now gone," Foley said. "People expect that it could be a war that could produce much more serious loss of life and casualties."

President Bush was silent on the deaths of the Marines when he went to Capitol Hill on Wednesday for a brief speech.

"He's very saddened by any casualties, and we certainly are following this incident," was the only comment from presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater.

In an interview on CNN, Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf, commander of U.S. and allied forces in the Persian Gulf, said that "perhaps in the euphoria of the high-technology weapons and this sort of thing, we had lost sight of the fact that lives are being lost. ... There are human lives involved here, and war is going to kill people."

The general added that "if this is sobering to the American people, I don't think that's unhealthy. As a matter of fact, I think it's important that the American people understand that."

The president plans to travel Friday to three bases in North Carolina and Georgia that have troops deployed in the gulf region. He plans to meet privately with the families of soldiers missing in action, the White House announced.

The bases he will visit are Cherry Point Marine Corps Air Station in Havelock, N.C.; Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro, N.C.; and Fort Stewart in Savannah, Ga.

Administration officials, meanwhile, went out of their way to deny a rift between the president and Secretary of State James A. Baker III. Fitzwater disclosed that Bush had not seen in advance a U.S.-Soviet statement, suggesting a cease-fire, that Baker issued shortly before the president delivered his State of the Union address Tuesday night.

The statement was widely interpreted as movement toward a new peace overture to Iraq.

Diverse plans put forward for schools

AUSTIN (AP) - Poor school districts that won a lawsuit against the state's public education funding plan don't want to rely on voter approval of a constitutional amendment to reform the system, their lawyer said.

But Al Kauffman of the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund said the school districts don't oppose a statewide property tax for schools, which would require a constitutional amendment.

They just want a back-up plan in case voters reject the idea.

"We do not want to be in a situation where if it did not pass a constitutional plan, it was too late to do anything about it," Kauffman said.

State leaders have proposed replacing local property taxes for schools with a statewide levy to meet the Texas Supreme Court's order to even out funding between rich and poor school districts.

The Supreme Court set an April 1 deadline for lawmakers to devise a constitutional school finance system or face an order to stop state funding for schools. If the statewide property tax was approved by lawmakers, the constitutional amendment could be put before voters May 4.

"We don't object to it yet, but we want to find out more about it," Kauffman said of the statewide property tax idea. "We're not against the concept of a statewide property tax if that creates equality."

Many school districts have said they are troubled by the proposal.

Gorbachev, military may be sharing power

WASHINGTON (AP) - Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev is, in effect, sharing power with his military high command as the Kremlin tries to re-establish central authority over its restive republics, a key Soviet source says.

U.S. officials said the increased military influence is especially apparent in arms control talks and appears evident in the Soviets' handling of separatist movements in the Baltic republics as well.

"There clearly is new military influence that didn't exist two months ago" in arms talks, said one U.S. official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The White House on Wednesday accused the Soviets of backtracking on earlier agreed-upon elements of a nuclear weapons accord, and spokesman Marlin Fitzwater suggested internal Soviet problems were responsible.

He did not elaborate, but another official, speaking privately, said: "There are more and more people who believe the military's role is expanding" and that it was obvious during Foreign Minister Alexander A. Bessmertnykh's visit to Washington this week.

Another U.S. official, while acknowledging that Soviet authorities were imparting that message to their American counterparts, expressed some skepticism.

"It may be an effort to get us to pull our punches" on arms control and Soviet handling of the independence movements in the Baltic republics, said the American source.

President Bush's national security adviser, Brent Scowcroft, called the report speculative and said, "I wouldn't have any comment on it."

A prominent Soviet reformer, Deputy Moscow Mayor Sergei B. Stankevich, told The Associated Press in Moscow on Monday that Gorbachev appears to have fallen under the influence of Communist Party hardliners and militarists as his reformist colleagues have been dropped from power or have deserted him.

During the Bessmertnykh visit, one Soviet source told the AP the Soviet president "is not completely in control."

"He can't make decisions on his own and expect them to be carried out," said the source, who is well placed to observe Kremlin decision-making.

U.S. observers say the generals most likely to be sharing power with Gorbachev are Mikhail Moiseyev, chief of the general staff, and Boris Gromov, the last commander of Soviet troops in Afghanistan. Gromov recently was named deputy chief of the Interior Ministry, the agency in charge of internal security.

The United States and other Western governments have expressed concern and in some cases have condemned the Soviets' handling of the defiant Baltic republics, where a score of people have been killed in bloody military assaults.

The Soviet source said the military high command is pressing Gorbachev to go along with a nationwide crackdown to restore order in the crisis-torn country. Defense Minister Dmitri Yazov, who is generally viewed as loyal to Gorbachev and supportive of his reforms, is "not necessarily" among those urging the Soviet president to get tough, this source said.

The crackdown has ranged from bloody assaults on separatist government facilities in the Baltics to giving the KGB blanket authority to search foreign and domestic business offices for black-market activities.

A second Soviet official, also speaking on condition he not be identified, said preservation of the union has become the single highest priority for the Kremlin, taking precedence over the political, economic and foreign policy reforms.

Trailer damaged in AM fire

A trailer sustained about $2,000 damage in a fire early this morning in Summerfield.

The trailer, belonging to John Clark, suffered extensive smoke damage from the fire, which was reported just before 2 a.m. today. Hereford Volunteer Fire Department units responded to the fire and were able to extinguish it without problems.

Clark, who works at Gearn Industries west of Hereford, was not injured in the incident, but lost all of his towels, bedding, kitchen utensils and other goods. Persons who would like to make donations may call Clark's father, Alan Clark, at 247-2572 in Friona.

Recession may deepen in long war

NEW YORK (AP) - Alan Greenspan, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, says the recession could be long and deep if the Gulf War lasts past April.

Just last week, he told Congress he expected the war's economic consequences to be slight.

In an interview published today, Greenspan said he expected a swift recovery from the recession if the war is relatively brief and Persian Gulf oil fields are not extensively damaged.

"But if you get beyond three months, you begin to risk consumer confidence erosion and that would abort any meaningful recovery," he told The New York Times.

Greenspan said the optimistic assessment he gave Congress was based in large part on the assumption that the war would be short. He said last week that he expected the recovery to begin no later than summer.

Greenspan said the economy is in the "most confidence-sensitive cycle I've seen in decades. The risks that confidence will not come back sufficiently adequately to bring the economy out of its recession is regrettably higher than I would like," he said.

He refused to say what steps the Federal Reserve Board would take to ease the recession and strengthen banks. He also wouldn't say if he wanted to be appointed to another term.

State dogged with second suit

AUSTIN (AP) - A second prison inmate is suing the state to try to stop prisons from using inmates as prey in attack dog-training exercises, a practice civil rights groups say occurs only in Texas.

"This is a relic of 19th century Texas, when the prison system used to be penal colonies, sort of the old plantation idea," Jim Harrington, legal director of the Texas Civil Rights Project, said Wednesday.

"And it's a shame and sort of a national embarrassment we have to go through these trials to get them to end it," he said.

The Texas Civil Rights Project filed the lawsuit in Travis County District Court on behalf of Richard Kaelin, 33, of Austin.

Harrington said Kaelin was seeking damages and a judgment that the state unconstitutionally inflicted cruel or unusual punishment on him by forcing to serve as a "dog boy," or bait for packs of dogs being trained to track and attack prisoners.

A similar lawsuit was filed in November by Walter Gilchrist, who also said he was forced to participate in the dog-training exercises. Gilchrist is seeking compensation and a court order aimed at halting the practice.

Harrington said attorneys are gathering information on that lawsuit, which should go to trial at the end of this year.

In the hunts, the lawsuits say, the inmate would get a head start on a pack of dogs, climb a tree, tease the dogs, then jump among them and fight until prison officials arrived to pull the animals away.

Kaelin alleges he was forced to act as quarry some 20 to 25 times over a five-month period in late 1989. Kaelin had a severely injured back, which made it harder for him to protect himself from the dogs, and he was not given adequate protective clothing, Harrington said.

"He has scars, actually, from the bites on his arms," Harrington said. "Then there's the psychological trauma."

If he had refused to act as bait for the dogs, he would have lost his position as a trustee, possibly delaying his parole, Harrington said. In addition, he said, Kaelin wanted to keep the good faith of prison officials.

Kaelin, who left the prison system in May, said he hopes his lawsuit will help protect other inmates.

"I don't think it's right," Kaelin said of the manhunt during a brief telephone conversation. He referred other questions to his lawyers. Harrington said at least half of Texas prison facilities use inmates to train attack dogs.

Named as defendants in the lawsuit are the Texas Board of Criminal Justice; acting board chairman Jerry Hodge of Amarillo; and Charles Martin, warden of the Eastham prison unit, where Kaelin served his time.

Martin and other prison officials had no immediate comment on the lawsuit. Prison spokesman David Nunnelee said he did not know whether other states use inmates to train attack dogs.

Prison officials have said that the system uses 115 inmates at 22 units to help train more than 900 dogs, but that prisoners have been provided with more protective gear.

Award winning posters

WHO hosts poster contest

The Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center, sponsor of the WHO program, held a poster contest recently.

The first graders participating the WHO program colored a poster exhibiting the WHO puppets used in the presentation. The fourth graders drew pictures depicting an abusive or dangerous situation and a safe situation.

Winners from each class will be displayed the last week of January in the Atrium Mall.

The first grade winners are: Monica Grajeda, Aikman; Robert Casias, Tierra Blanca and Holly Coneway, Northwest.

Fourth grade winners include: Walter Gutierrez, West Central; Jessica Martinez, Bluebonnet; Erin Spencer, Shirley and Krista Warren, St. Anthony.

WHO is a program of primary prevention. It deals with child abuse, sexual assault, peer pressure, emotional abuse and domestic violence.

According to Shelly Moss, center director, the program is designed to train the group at risk.

"It helps children learn attitudes, behaviors and strategies so they may take responsibility of their own personal safety and health," Moss said.

WHO programs are presented during school hours and take approximately 50 minutes to present. There is a different program for K-3, 4-6, 7-8 and 10-12.

Each program targets the problems of that age group. "The K-3 program teaches the children about stranger danger, good touches and bad touches, using a puppet show as a learning vehicle," Moss said. "The video's and discussion try to show kids that 'stranger danger' doesn't just pertain to shifty looking characters in dirty trench coats; a pretty young woman or a clean cut teenager could represent danger."

Jr. high and high school programs deal with peer pressure, teen suicide, dating violence and date rape. The presenters use a video tape which depicts four of five scenarios. After each scenario is presented, the students are asked how they might respond.

"This program is only possible with the help of concerned individuals who volunteer their time to present programs in the school," Moss said.

Those interested in becoming a volunteer for WHO should contact the RC/DVC at 364-7822. A six hour training session is required to be a presenter. The session is free of charge.

Hereford State Bank awarded

Hereford State Bank has been awarded a five-star rating by a Florida research firm, identifying the institution as one of the safest, most credit-worthy banks in the U.S.

The report was released by Bauer Financial Reports, Inc., of Coral Gables, Fla. The award is based on a zero to five-star rating assigned by BFR based on its analysis of the June 30, 1990 financial data as filed with federal regulators.

A five-star rating indicates the bank's tangible capital exceeds 9 percent of tangible assets, that there are no excessive delinquencies or repossessed assets and that the bank is profitable. BFR announced that out of 12,504 banks reporting, only 3,228--or one out of four--received the five-star rating.

Each bank that qualified received a personalized award certificate in recognition of the achievement.

Soviet situation improving

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. (AP) - The absence of Soviet troops on the streets of Vilnius overnight signaled an improvement in relations with Moscow, Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis said today.

Foreign Minister Alexander Bessmertnykh, in an interview with Pravda, said the West was reacting emotionally to unrest in the independence-minded Baltics and endangering superpower relations.

Government spokesman Audrius Azubalis said there was no visible

Soviet troop presence on the streets of Vilnius overnight following a pullout of Soviet troops Wednesday.

Landsbergis, noting the absence of military patrols, said, "perhaps this is a good sign ... this is a step toward a better situation."

But, the Lithuanian leader warned Wednesday that Soviet soldiers still occupied several republic-owned buildings and cautioned the West not to be taken in by Kremlin promises of a pullout.

Soviet Interior Minister Boris

Pugo said all paratroopers had left the Baltic region and two-thirds of the "black beret" Interior Ministry troops were withdrawn.

Military officials said Soviet paratroopers were sent in early January to protect non-Lithuanian residents, mostly Russians, from alleged discrimination. They were also ordered to round up draft evaders.

County awarded grant

Deaf Smith County has been chosen to receive $5,096 to supplement emergency food and shelter programs in the area.

Under the terms of the grant, local governmental or private organizations chose to receive funds must be non-profit, have an accounting system and conduct an annual audit, practice nondiscrimination, have demonstrated the capability to deliver emergency food or shelter programs and if they are a private voluntary organization, they should have a voluntary board. Deaf Smith County was selected by a national board made up of affiliates of national voluntary organizations and chaired by the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

The United Way of America will provide the administrative staff and function as fiscal agent. The board was charged to distribute funds appropriated by congress to help expand the capacity of food and shelter programs in high-need areas around the country.

A local board made up of representatives from the community will determine how the funds awarded to Deaf Smith County are to be distributed among the local service organizations to assist those who are in need.

Deaf Smith County has distributed Emergency Food and Shelter funds previously with American Red Cross and American Red Cross, fiscal agent for Good Shepherd Program and San Jose Outreach Program. These agencies were responsible for providing 11,321 meals 360 nights of lodging.

Cotton may prove profitable in area

Cotton may be a profitable alternative crop for producers in the Hereford area, and the Deaf Smith County Extension Crops Committee and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, in cooperation with local agribusinesses, will host a Cotton Production Conference on Feb. 7 at 9:30 a.m. at the Bull Barn in Hereford.

The conference will also provide an opportunity for commercial, non-commercial and private pesticide applicators to receive three continuing education units as required by state law.

The morning program will begin with Tony Pardo discussing pesticide laws and regulations and general pesticide safety. Dr. Dan Krieg, agronomy professor at Texas Tech University, will then cover cotton fertilization and water management relationships. Dr. James Supak, cotton specialist with the Extension Service, will present information on general cotton production methods and management techniques. Ted Peabody, Deaf Smith County ASCS county executive director, will lead off the afternoon session with a discussion of the 1991 farm program alternatives and how cotton might fit into producers' cropping plans.

Dr. Jim Leser, Extension cotton entomologist, will present information on cotton insect identification and control. Mark Foster, branch manager with Wilbur-Ellis in Levelland, will cover the selection and use of harvest aid chemicals, followed by Alan Brashears, USDA-ARS agricultural engineer, discussing harvesting equipment and quality control systems. Completing the day will be Dr. Jackie Smith, Extension economist, discussing cotton marketing and production economics.

Commercial, non-commercial and private pesticide applicators wishing to receive three continuing education credits are asked to pre-register by calling the Extension office at 364-3573. Applicators should bring their license number to the meeting in order to complete the forms necessary for obtaining credit.

Annual Summer Job Fair set for Feb. 11 at WTSU

Enterprising individuals with at least one year of college education will have an opportunity to end the frustrations of a summer job search with a visit to the Summer Job Fair. The annual event, sponsored by the West Texas State University Office of Career Planning and Placement, the WTSU Recreation Club, the WTSU Residence Hall Association and the Amarillo College Job Center, is scheduled from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Monday, Feb. 11 in the Jack B. Kelley Student Center on the WTSU campus.

Representatives from more than 40 companies, hospitals, summer camps and governmental agencies will be available to discuss summer employment and internship opportunities.

According to Gene Parker, director of career planning and placement at WTSU, employer representatives are looking for individuals with a wide variety of backgrounds and interests.

"Summer camps, including those offered to special and gifted children, employ a great many young people every summer," Parker said. "And agriculture agencies are looking for interns to work in areas of soil conservation, animal research and marketing. Opportunities extend to store management, accounting and computer science.

"The opportunities are endless if you know where to look, and this summer job fair is a great place to start."

Parker advises individuals serious about securing a job to dress appropriately and to be prepared with resumes in hand.

Although the fair is of primary interest to job seekers, parents interested in visiting with camp directors and registering their children at summer camps are welcome to attend.

Admission is free, and the public is invited.

For more information about the summer job fair, contact the WTSU Office of Career Planning and Placement at 656-2345 or the Amarillo College Student Job Center at 371-5314.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This will be a different kind of letter. It is to our sons. We hope you will print it for the benefit of all parents who are working hard and raising young families.

Dear Sons: Your mother and I were a couple of poor kids when we started out. Our parents lived hand-to-mouth and had no education or so-called "advantages." They weren't able to give us anything but a sense of decency, a feeling of pride in doing our best and the motivation to make something of ourselves.

I don't know if you would call it luck, or just plain hard work -- it was probably a combination of both -- but your mother and I put in a lot of hours, made a lot of sacrifices and ended up with a very successful business. When we sold it a few years ago we made you both millionaires.

We have never asked you boys for anything. All we ever wanted was a little respect, if you couldn't give us love. Sad to say, we never received either.

We don't have too many years left, but before we check out, we would like you to know one thing: Your mother and I made a big mistake. Instead of giving you so much money, we should have given you what our parents gave us -- the opportunity to make it on your own. You missed all the fun. -- No Name, No State

DEAR N.N.N.S.: Thanks for a dynamic letter. Again you've proven that the real joy in life is not arriving at the destination, but struggling to get there.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A while back you printed a letter from the mother of a teen-age girl asking that you emphasize the importance of saying no. I am the mother of a 17-year-old boy who wants you to know that you're a little out of date. The problem isn't the boys; it's the girls.

Our son "Johnny" gets at least three phone calls a night from girls. Some are as late as 11:30. You would not believe how aggressive those girls are. One drives over in her own convertible and offers to help him with his homework. I've heard him tell her that he really doesn't need any help but she hangs around anyway. She wears spandex tops and short shorts with absolutely no underwear.

A few weeks ago my husband had a talk -- not the first -- with Johnny about sex. Johnny is not sexually active yet but says he doesn't know how much longer he can hold out. He claims the girls carry condoms and put so much pressure on the guys that they almost feel they have to give in. One girl told him that any guy who has not had sex by the time he's 17 must be gay.

So please, Ann, stop worrying about the girls. These are the '90s. Direct your concern to the guys who are virtually being hit over the head and dragged into the back seat. -- Southern California Mom

DEAR CALIFORNIA MOM: Thanks for the update. Yours is not the first letter conveying this message, but it's the most graphic. Any other mothers of teen-age boys want to comment?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently my husband and I sent his cousin a fairly expensive fondue pot as a wedding gift. A few days ago we received a thank-you note which consisted of one line: "Thanks for the gift, but we are not fondueers and would like to exchange it."

I was shocked by this display of unbelievable bad manners. How would you handle this? -- Idaho

DEAR IDAHO: I would applaud their honesty. A fondue pot for people who aren't fondueers is about as useful as a hat rack for a moose.

Is life passing you by? Want to improve your social skills? Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.15 (this includes postage and handling) to: Friends, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562-0562. (In Canada, send $5.05.)

OUTDOOR WORLD '91...The name given to the largest sportsman exposition between Dallas and Denver. While this name may not mean anything to you now, if you wait 30 days until the first weekend in March, OUTDOOR WORLD '91 promises to be the ultimate in entertainment for anyone interested in the great outdoors.

Beginning at noon on March 1, the Tri-State Fairgrounds in Amarillo will be the site of an extravaganza featuring the "worlds" of the great outdoors.

Jimmy Houston, the man hailed as America's favorite fisherman, will come to town and conduct a series of fishing seminars. Houston is well known for his unique brand of humor and his success with a fishing pole. It will be worth a trip just to see and hear Jimmy in person.

Other outstanding fishermen confirmed are:
--Ted Miller of Apache Junction, Ariz., 1990 winner of the BASS Invitational at Lake Havasu, 1990 Sun Country Classic at Possum Kingdom, and a four-time winner of major tournaments on Ute Lake. Last fall, Ted qualified for his second $100,000 Red Man All-American Tournament by again outfishing most of the field at Ute. Ted will share some of the secrets of his success and reveal his secret lure, a gitzit glider.

--Dreabon Joiner, professional guide and fishing consultant who won the 1990 Red Man regional at Ute by catching some 27 pounds, while second place had 15 pounds. Dreabon, special assignments editor for Honey Hole magazine, is a great guy and frequent guest on my Wednesday evening radio talk show.

--John Hope, field editor for Honey Hole and the man who conducts the radio tracking studies on Texas bass. While you and I guess the location of the fish, John uses a radio transmitter to "know" their habits. Don't miss his seminar.

--Dale Wagdy, of Elephant Butte, N.M. A professional guide and expert angler will unlock some mysteries of "The Butte." Dale was the 1990 Angler of the Year for the New Mexico BASS Federation.

--Butch Colantonio of Amarillo, who has won more tournaments on area lakes than any other fisherman. The best thing about Butch is that he gladly shares his secrets and, in my opinion, know more about fishing "our" lakes than any pro on any circuit.

Thanks to Boots and Jeans, the hourly seminars are free to anyone who attends.
Did I tell you about the fishing boat that Tanglewood Marine is giving away? What about free fishing line? What about hunting, boats, RVs and motorcycles?

There's much more to talk about but I'm out of space. Be here next week for more details.

Dumars makes up for loss of Isiah

By The Associated Press

Chuck Daly has a simple solution for winning without Isiah Thomas: playing Joe Dumars more minutes. "If it ends up that Joe's got to spend the long minutes in there at the end, that's the way it's going to be," Daly said Wednesday night after Dumars scored 27 points in a 93-84 victory over Cleveland.

Dumars is averaging 23.8 points in the four games - all Detroit victories - since Thomas left the lineup with an injured wrist that required surgery this week. Dumars, averaging 18.9 points for the season, played 42 minutes in three of the four games, and the Pistons won by 40 points in the only game he didn't. "I get plenty of rest and work out hard in the summer in case something like this happens," Dumars said.

The Cavaliers, meanwhile, are 5-22 since losing Mark Price to a knee injury on Dec. 3.

"We don't have a guard like Joe Dumars waiting behind Price the way the Pistons have behind Thomas. We're not that deep," Cleveland coach Lenny Wilkens said.

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Boston 144, Orlando 102; Indiana 123, Charlotte 105; Phoenix 115, Miami 104; and Minnesota 95, Sacramento 86.

The Cavaliers, after trailing 38-23 in the second quarter, used the hot shooting of Larry Nance and Brad Daugherty to get back in the game.

Nance, who scored 20 points, hit four straight shots to help get the Cavs to 42-41. Daugherty, who finished with 23 points, scored 15 of Cleveland's remaining 17 points in the quarter, tying the score four times.

Danny Ferry's 3-point jumper with 11:20 left in the game gave the Cavs their first lead, 63-61. Detroit regained the lead, 72-71, on Dennis Rodman's tip-in and never trailed again.

Celtics 144, Magic 102. Boston rolled to its most lopsided victory of the season behind Brian Shaw's 26 points, 13 assists and nine rebounds.

Kevin Gamble and Michael Smith scored 23 points apiece and Ed Pinckney, starting in place of the injured Larry Bird, had a season-high 19.

Boston led 31-23 after one period following a 15-3 run.

The loss was the sixth in seven games for Orlando, which got 20 points from Sam Vincent.

Pacers 123, Hornets 105
Reggie Miller had 22 points and a career-high 11 assists.

Indiana began the game by outscoring the Hornets 9-2, and then opened its largest lead at 32-13 on a slam dunk by Miller with 2:44 left in the first period. The Pacers made 12 of their first 17 shots.

Del Curry and rookie Kendall Gill scored 26 points apiece for the Hornets.

Suns 115, Heat 104
Phoenix handed Miami its sixth consecutive loss as Dan Majerle scored 22 points and Tom Chambers 21.

The Suns led 101-82 with 7:57 left in the game before Sherman Douglas led a comeback for the Heat, scoring 15 of his 21 points during a 22-9 run that made the score 110-104 with 1:50 to go.

Miami, which was led by Glen Rice with 23 points, made only four of its first 20 shots in the second quarter and fell behind 58-43 at halftime.

Timberwolves 95, Kings 86
Tyrone Corbin scored 27 points, including nine in a span of 2:39 in the fourth quarter, for the Timberwolves.

Antoine Carr led the Kings with 25 points, and Pooh Richardson had 15 points and 14 assists for Minnesota.

Hogs, Hoyas win again

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

It was a question of time, no matter how one viewed the Big East showdown between ranked powers Georgetown and St. John's.

"As time goes, we'll improve," forward Alonzo Mourning said almost apologetically after the 18th-ranked Hoyas slowed the pace - going without a basket in the final 9:08 - en route to a 59-53 victory Wednesday night over No. 5 St. John's.

Hardly loaded with experience, Georgetown coach John Thompson is searching for patience.

"We had to take our time and work the halfcourt offense, and sometimes we just show our age," said Thompson, who starts three freshmen with big men Mourning and Dikembe Mutombo.

But it worked out well because St.

John's lost its composure over the final 4:30 of the first half and was unable to recover from an 11-0 run by the Hoyas.

"The game went away with those four minutes in the first half," coach Lou Carnesecca said of his Redmen.

In other games involving ranked teams, it was No. 2 Arkansas 104, Alabama-Birmingham 72; No. 4 Indiana 73, Wisconsin 57; No. 7 Duke 77, No. 23 Georgia Tech 75; No. 11 Nebraska 89, Missouri 75; Southern Cal 76, No. 12 UCLA 74; Mississippi State 82, No. 14 LSU 79; No. 16 East Tennessee State 105, Memphis State 102 in overtime; No. 17 Southern Mississippi 97, Southwestern Louisiana 91; Villanova 75, No. 19 Pittsburgh 72; Iowa State 82, No. 21 Oklahoma 79; and No. 22 New Orleans 83, Northeast Illinois 51.

Charles Harrison had 18 points and Mutombo 17, and Georgetown (13-5, 5-3 in the conference) was 12-of-12 from the foul line off a spread offense in the last eight minutes. The 7-foot-2 Mutombo added 12 rebounds and five blocked shots while Mourning, playing his fourth game since returning from an injury, had 9 points.

The Redmen (15-3, 6-3), who had won their previous five games, got 13 points from Malik Sealy.

No. 2 Arkansas 104, Ala.-Birmingham 72

Todd Day had 10 of his 33 points in a 21-2 surge to start the second half for the Razorbacks. Day also had a career-high 11 rebounds and was 8-for-8 from the free throw line.

No. 4 Indiana 73, Wisconsin 57
The Hoosiers got 21 points from freshman guard Damon Bailly in beating the Badgers for the 22nd time in a row.

The Hoosiers held the Badgers scoreless for periods of three and four minutes in the first half.

No. 7 Duke 77, No. 23 Georgia Tech 75

Thomas Hill, who led the Blue Devils with 20 points, won the game with a layup at the buzzer after tying it with 27 seconds left when he put back a second shot after his first was blocked by the Yellow Jackets' Malcolm Mackey.

No. 11 Nebraska 89, Missouri 75
Freshman Eric Piatkowski had a career-high 22 points and six of Nebraska's 10 3-pointers.

Southern Cal 76, No. 12 UCLA 74

Harold Miner scored 20 points and eight of the final 12 for the Trojans, who also got 18 from Ronnie Coleman. Miner put USC ahead to stay on a 3-point basket with 2:50 remaining.

Mississippi St. 82, No. 14 LSU 79
Cameron Burns scored 24 points and Keith Hooper preserved the victory for the Bulldogs on a pair of free throws with '16 seconds remaining.

No. 16 E. Tennessee St. 105, Memphis St. 102

Keith Jennings scored 31 points, including two clinching free throws with nine seconds left in overtime for the Buccaneers, who overcame 42 points by the Tigers' Elliott Perry.

No. 17 Southern Miss. 97, SW Louisiana 91

Reserve Bernard Haslett hit seven 3-point baskets en route to a career-high 29 points as the Golden Eagles hit a season-high 13 of 20 3-pointers.

Villanova 75, No. 19 Pittsburgh 72
Greg Woodard had a career-high 33 points, including seven 3-pointers for the Wildcats.

Iowa St. 82, No. 21 Oklahoma 79

Victor Alexander scored 24 points, including three key free throws in the final 1:24.

No. 22 New Orleans 83, NE Illinois 51

Freshman Melvin Simon had 19 points and Tank Collins 17.

Hall of Fame picks players, coaches

NEW YORK (AP) - In 1971, Auburn quarterback Pat Sullivan edged Cornell running back Ed Marinaro for the Heisman Trophy.

On Wednesday, both were winners. Sullivan, Marinaro and 1969 Heisman winner Steve Owens of Oklahoma were among 12 players and three coaches named to the college football Hall of Fame.

Also selected were receiver Fred Biletnikoff of Florida State, running back L. Parker Hall of Mississippi, defensive back Kenny Easley of UCLA, end Hub Bechtel of Texas and linemen Alex Karras of Iowa, Bobby Bell of Minnesota, George Savitsky of Pennsylvania, James Stillwagon of Ohio State and Wayne Meylan of Nebraska.

The three former coaches elected to the Hall were Dave Maurer of Wittenberg, Tommy Prothro of Oregon State and UCLA and Allyn McKeen of Memphis State and Mississippi State.

The new members will be inducted into the Hall of Fame at the National Football Foundation's awards winner Dec. 10 in New York. The foundation sponsors the Hall of Fame.

Owens, Sullivan and Savitsky attended Wednesday's announcement ceremony.

"I'm very honored and flattered," said Owens, a running back who played seven seasons with the Detroit Lions before a knee injury ended his football career. "I know it's difficult to get into the Hall of Fame because there have been so many great players in college football."

Sullivan, now the quarterback coach at Auburn, said he felt "very humbled" by the honor.

"I'm sure as time goes by, it will mean even more than it does today," he said.

Savitsky, who played on two NFL championship teams with the Philadelphia Eagles in 1948 and 1949, said getting elected to the Hall of Fame was "the cherry on top of my career. I'm elated to be in such great company."

Bell, Karras and Stillwagon won the Outland Trophy as college football's best lineman. Hall was the nation's leading scorer in 1938, while Marinaro and Owens led the country in rushing.

Maurer compiled a career record of 129-23-3 from 1969-83 and guided Wittenberg to seven Ohio Athletic Conference championships.

Prothro coached 10 seasons at Oregon State and six at UCLA before moving to the pros. His college record was 104-55-5 and two players he coached, Oregon State's Terry Baker and UCLA's Gary Beban, won the Heisman Trophy.

McKeen won more games at Mississippi State than any coach, going 65-19-3 from 1939-45.

To be eligible for the Hall of Fame, a player must be out of college 10 years. He also must have been a first-team pick on one of the major All-American teams during his college career. Coaches must be retired at least three years.

Pebble Beach Tourney will play at Poppy Hills

Golfers will miss Cypress Point

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) - The most imposing shot in golf - one of the most difficult in the game and almost certainly the scariest - is missing this week.

Ultra-exclusive Cypress Point is gone from the line-up of three Monterey Peninsula courses used for the first three rounds of the Pebble Beach National Pro-Am.

Cypress Point chose not to adhere to the PGA Tour's guidelines concerning open membership policies.

It was replaced by Poppy Hills, a 4-year-old public course, in the rotation that also includes Pebble Beach and Spyglass Hill.

"Some of the glamor and glitter is gone," Jack Nicklaus said before the start of today's first round.

Also gone is one of the most attention-getting shots the game can offer: the tee shot on the par-3 16th.

"In intimidation, it ranks up there with the second shot to the Road Hole (on the Old Course at St. Andrews) and, when the wind is blowing, with the tee shot on the 12th at Augusta," Nicklaus said, then reconsidered.

"No, the 16th at Cypress is probably the most intimidating," he said.

The 16th is a 231-yard par-3, from the tee on a cliff over the pounding surf of the Pacific to a green on another cliff.

"One of the great shots in golf," Tom Watson said. "You try not to think about it, but it's there, in the back of your mind, all the way around Cypress Point."

Mark O'Meara, who has won this event three times including the last two in a row, had mixed emotions about the shift to Poppy Hills.

"There's no question Cypress Point is the most beautiful of the three," he said.

"But it's been very difficult for me. It's been a nemesis for me. Up until last year, I'd never played it very well.

"Poppy Hills is a question," he said.

"Sure, I'll miss it," said Arnold Palmer, making his first start in this tournament since 1980, back in the days when it was still called the "Bing Crosby National Pro-Am."

"But I don't think the change will have a disastrous affect on the tournament," Palmer continued.

"The tournament is about people, not golf courses," he said.

And the celebrity amateurs, who have added so much to the flavor of the event, are very much in evidence.

They include Steve Young, once again substituting for Joe Montana.

Others are Clint Eastwood, Craig Nelson, Tommy Smothers, Larry Gatlin, Randy Quaid, Peter Ueberroth, Hal Linden, Orel Hershiser and Dave Righetti.

The 180-man professionals, who will play one round on each of the three courses before the field is cut for the final round at Pebble Beach, is led by three men who already have achieved 1991 tour victories, Nolan Henke and former Pebble Beach winners Tom Kite and Lanny Wadkins.

Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by CBS.

Arkansas-UNLV matchup eyed

By The Associated Press

Alabama-Birmingham coach Gene Bartow says the Feb. 10 matchup between No. 2 Arkansas and No. 1 Nevada-Las Vegas will be interesting.

Bartow's Blazers lost 104-72 to Arkansas (21-1) Wednesday night. On Dec. 1, in a game played at Vancouver, British Columbia, UAB lost 109-68 to UNLV.

In other games involving SWC teams Wednesday night, Texas whipped Southern Methodist, 96-80, Texas Christian defeated Texas Tech, 72-66 and Rice defeated Baylor, 102-96.

"They are two phenomenal teams," Bartow said after Wednesday's loss. "What makes Arkansas tough is they keep coming at you, at you."

Bartow said he thinks the 1-2 rankings of UNLV and Arkansas are accurate, but "Arkansas will have the advantage at home."

UAB (13-8) stayed close to Arkansas throughout the first half, which ended with the Razorbacks up by just 4 points, 46-42. The opening period saw the score tied 11 times, and the lead change hands 10 times.

But in the first 5 minutes of the second half, Todd Day hit 10 of his 33 points to spark a 21-2 surge that gave Arkansas firm control.

Roosevelt Wallace added 17 for Arkansas and Miller had 14. Andy Kennedy led UAB with 20, Elbert Rogers had 13 and Stanley Jackson and Jack Kramer added 12 each.

Dexter Cambridge came off the bench to score a career-high 26 points as Texas won its sixth straight conference game, defeating Southern Methodist 96-80.

Cambridge sparked the Longhorns in the first half, scoring 15 points. During one three-minute stretch, the 6-7 junior from the Bahamas scored 13 straight points as Texas (13-5, 7-1) jumped to a 35-23 advantage with 4:18 left before intermission.

Before Wednesday, the Mustangs (9-10, 4-4) had won six of their last seven games.

Tim Mason led the Mustangs with 21 points on 9-of-12 shooting from the field. Mike Wilson followed with 17 and Chad Allen 13.

Kelvin Crawford scored 17 points at Texas Christian used a balanced attack to beat Texas Tech 72-66.

The victory was Coach Moe Iba's 199th career win.

TCU (13-5, 5-3) held an 18-point lead, 54-36, early in the second half but had to regroup as the Red Raiders rallied to pull to within two points on Bryant Moore's 3-pointer with 3:12 left in the game.

Texas Tech (6-15, 2-6) equalled the Horned Frogs from the field, shooting 52 percent.

Senior Steve Miles led Tech with a career-high 27 points.

Dana Hardy and Marvin Moore scored 23 and 18 points respectively to lead Rice to a come-from-behind 102-96 victory over Baylor.

The 102 points were the most scored by Rice (8-10, 3-5) this season.

David Wesley led Baylor (9-8, 3-6) with a season-high 35 points.

The Owls outscored Baylor 29-14 in the first 10:22 of the second half, including a 17-4 run paced by Hardy, who had eight points, including two three-point field goals.

Strickland blossoms for Spurs

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Rod Strickland was running down the lane and out of options. This is nothing new. Rod Strickland lives for this sort of on-the-brink excitement, even if his coach doesn't.

Looming to Strickland's immediate right was 7-foot Benoit Benjamin. Directly ahead was 6-10 Charles Smith. There was no place for Strickland to go, no way out.

Out of options, out of control. Or so it seemed.

As the San Antonio Spurs' point guard barreled toward the basket and into trouble in the form of the Los Angeles Clippers' big men, he suddenly faked a pass to David Robinson, standing off to one side. The feint moved Smith and Benjamin just enough to create a sliver of an opening. That was all Strickland needed. With his left hand, he kissed a soft underhanded lob high off the glass for two points.

"I had no idea what he was going to do," Bob Bass, the Spurs' vice president of basketball operations, said later. "And I'll bet you anything he didn't know what he was going to do, either."

"He waits and sees how the defense reacts, then he reacts to that. Rod just likes to go off on his own like that. He's an acrobat. That's just the kind of player he is."

And that, essentially, is the charm - and the intoxicating danger - of Rodney Strickland.

In his first full year as an NBA starter, Strickland has blossomed into arguably the second-most valuable Spur behind only Robinson. He's done it with an effective kamikaze flair that bewilders and bedevils many, not the least of whom is Coach Larry Brown.

Strickland sees his role as a relatively simple one.

"With the talent here," he said,

"I don't have to do a whole lot of anything except get the ball to the right people."

But the way the DePaul product goes about doing it is anything but simple. Therein lies the reason for Brown's struggle to come to grips with not so much what Strickland does, but how he does it.

Brown, a perfectionist who believes success comes when everyone is in the right place at the right time on the court, has had to throw out his basketball Bible to accommodate Strickland's free-wheeling freelancing. Brown finds himself in the delicate position of giving Strickland enough rope with which to express his creativity, but not enough to hang himself - and the Spurs.

"It's tough," Brown said. "I've always had point guards who were really fundamentally sound. I've had other players who were kind of wild, but never at point guard. Sometimes I just cringe at some of the things Rod does, but I want him to have fun and I don't want to curtail what he does best."

"He's going to take chances," Brown added. "He's going to go after steals and not get back on defense. He's going to shoot wild shots and get a little fancy sometimes. But if you tie him down so much that it prohibits him from being creative, you take a great part of his game away from him."

What Strickland does best is make things happen. Mostly, it's been for the good, which is why the Spurs consider him one of the top talents in a Western Conference loaded with talent at his position.

"I'm really happy with how I've gotten better. And the thing is, I've still got a lot of room to improve," he said. "I'm not the player I'm going to be someday."

FEMME FATALE

CINCINNATI (AP) - Silent movie star Theda Bara was born here in 1890. Her real name was Theodosia Goodman.

In 1914, the dark-eyed Theda Bara became famous in a Hollywood movie based on Kipling's poem "The Vampire." Typecast as a seductive "vamp," she appeared in some 40 movies, including "Cleopatra" (1917), before retiring from films in 1926. She died in 1955.

Woman's Health

Some of the most common gynecologic complaints are those associated with yeast infections (also called candidiasis or moniliasis). Caused by a fungus, Candida albicans, yeast infections are usually first noticed as intense itching and inflammation of the vaginal tissues. Other symptoms include pain during urination or intercourse and a white "cheesy" discharge. Although they can affect anyone, yeast infections are more common among women who are pregnant, diabetic or obese. These conditions can alter normal vaginal acidity and promote the growth of the fungus. Use of antibiotics and birth control pills also can cause changes in the normal protective balance of organisms in the vagina, making a woman more susceptible to this infection. If you notice any unusual vaginal irritation or discharge, you should make an appointment with your doctor to find out the cause of these symptoms. Your doctor will do a physical exam and lab tests to determine if you have an infection. Yeast infections are usually treated with medications to kill the fungus. The form of medication may be vaginal suppositories or tablets or a cream or gel applied into the vagina. Usually the treatment eliminates the infection, but occasionally, the infection resists the therapy or recurs and retreatment is necessary. Sometimes personal habits or poor hygiene may contribute to the development of vaginal infections. Here are some things you can do to keep the vaginal area healthy and clean: *Always wash the vulva area thoroughly and keep as dry as possible. *Avoid tight jeans or panties which can trap moisture. *When wiping, use a front to back motion to avoid spreading bacteria from the rectum to the vagina. *Don't use anything that may irritate the genital area—harsh soaps, feminine sprays or perfumed toilet paper—as these agents can make tissues more susceptible to infection. Most women will have a yeast infection at some time in their life. Although it is an irritation and unpleasant condition, it poses no risks and can easily be cured. When any unusual symptoms occur, see your doctor as soon as possible for an exam and treatment. The sooner you begin medication, the sooner you will feel normal again. The British humor magazine Punch was first published in 1841. During the Spanish-American War, the Spaniards surrendered to the Americans July 17, 1898, at Santiago, Cuba.

Tips on ridding legs of varicose veins

Your mother has them. Your sister got them. You thought you would never get them. But then you got them: unsightly varicose veins.

Varicose veins, swollen veins usually in the legs, are a common complaint among both women and men, although women are more prone to than men. No one really knows why some people develop varicose veins and others don't, but there is evidence that they may be inherited. Injury, infection and unusual strain are some known causes of swollen veins.

Many women develop varicose veins for the first time when they become pregnant. Usually these swollen veins disappear after the baby is born.

Varicose veins develop when valves in the veins become weakened. Veins are the blood vessels that return blood to the heart. Normally, movement of the blood upward to the heart is aided by a system of valves that close to keep blood from dropping back. If, for some reason, the valves do not work properly, the blood may reverse flow, causing the veins to become swollen and twisted. These distended bluish veins are what you see just under the skin.

Usually, varicose veins present on health risks and are bothersome only because they stand out on the legs and may cause aching and swelling of the legs and ankles. Occasionally, however, they do cause more serious problems, including blood clots in the leg and skin ulcers.

If you think you have a chance of developing varicose veins or you already have them, you should discuss the problem with your doctor. If the problem is severe, he or she may recommend surgical removal of the veins or chemical injection treatment.

All people with varicose veins can take the following steps to help relieve swelling and pain: avoid standing or sitting for long periods of time, elevate your feet whenever you are sitting, wear support stockings, and walk or exercise your legs whenever you have the opportunity.

Movement of the leg muscles helps push the blood upward. Even people who don't have varicose veins should rest their legs with care. Exercising and avoiding stress on the legs helps muscle tone and circulation and may reduce your chances of developing varicose veins later.

Many people unselfishly volunteer their time and energy to various causes. Kee Ruland is not unique. However, she explained that her dedication to the American Cancer Society (ACS) has not been something temporary, it has become a life-long project.

Ruland was diagnosed as having breast cancer several years ago. The news, the surgery and the post-operative period not only changed her lifestyle, but changed her attitude.

"Having cancer changed my entire outlook on life. One seems to think it will never happen to them, at least I did. The experience has taught me to make the most out of each moment and to help others to be happy," she explained.

"At one time, all I could do was constantly talk about my cancer to anyone that would listen. In retrospect, I know this was a healing period. About two weeks after my mastectomy, I woke up in the middle of the night scared to death. It was the first time that I became aware that I might actually die from cancer. After a time, however, I decided I had to face the fact that my surgery might not mean a cure, that the cancer could occur again. I had to go on with my life and do the best I could with the time I had. That decision was made in 1978," she smiled, "And I'm still here."

"After I had recuperated from the surgery, I attended an ACS board meeting where I was approached by a volunteer asking if I would be interested in helping the ACS. I was not hesitant in giving my answer. I recalled being visited at the hospital by a certified support volunteer, a woman who had also had a mastectomy. That visit had meant so very much to me and I wanted to do the same thing for someone else who was facing a cancer crisis," Ruland explained. "Everyone needs to be aware that they don't have to be alone with their fears."

Because of her total dedication to the ACS, Ruland was recently awarded a plaque as an "Exemplary District PACEsetter Volunteer" which is presented to those who exhibit outstanding leadership and personal commitment to the cause of cancer control. She is currently the education service chairman for ACS. The presentation was made recently at the monthly ACS board meeting by Tony Lloyd, a field representative for the ACS District 15. Ruland also received a 10-year membership pin.

Currently, Ruland is helping to organize a new patients support program for the Deaf Smith County Unit of ACS called Road to Recovery.

"Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer to council with cancer patients, their families or friends is welcome to the first meeting tentatively scheduled in mid-February," she said. "The board members are very enthused over the addition of this new program."

Ruland is also involved in other activities such as the Rebekah Lodge, Order of Eastern Star, Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, bridge clubs, and the Wesley United Methodist Church.

She was born in Hereford and attended Hereford public schools and West Texas State University.

Ruland and her husband Fred were childhood sweethearts. They married when Fred came home from the service. They have two children: Chelli Wilkinson of Amarillo and Robin Ruland of Hereford.

She was music director at the First Baptist Church kindergarten for 19 years before retiring last May. She was employed by Harmon's as a part time employee for two years and now works part time for Wishes.

Even with all the organizations and help Ruland displays throughout Hereford she still finds time to crochet and make baby blankets (for her March grandchild). She is also making two bedspreads and a baby afghan.

She also likes to cook and is sharing some recipes from her family and her Deaf Smith County Cancer Society Cookbook.

Clarification of VA liability issues

The Department of Veterans Affairs has announced a clarification of two issues concerning tax liability for veterans who are entitled to VA disability compensation and also eligible for either retirement pay or disability severance pay from the military.

Normally, military retirement pay based on age or length of military service is taxable income and reported to the Internal Revenue Service (IRS). However, if all or a portion of the veteran's retirement pay is waived due to receipt of VA disability compensation, the veteran's taxable income is reduced by an amount equal to VA compensation. This means the veteran would normally pay less taxes based on a reduced gross taxable income.

However, VA officials have been informed that IRS was unable to credit some veterans who had waived their retired pay for VA compensation because the award letters provided by VA did not provide sufficient information for IRS purposes.

Affected veterans should refile for the exclusion by submitting a completed VA Form 20-8993 or an official VA letter granting retroactive benefits that clearly states "in lieu of VA Form 20-8993" with their annual Federal tax forms.

The second tax liability issue concerns cases where veterans have paid taxes on the total amount of disability severance pay awarded VA disability compensation.

In these cases, VA is required to recoup the entire lump sum paid by the military, including the amount paid for taxes. This is generally accomplished by reducing monthly compensation payments by a set amount until the lump-sum military payment is reached.

Some veterans erroneously believe they are due a tax refund on that portion of the recoupment paid for taxes. IRS has determined, however, that disability severance pay is taxable income because it is received as a lump-sum payment rather than a monthly disability benefit. IRS also concluded that no reduction in tax liability would occur if the veteran were subsequently entitled to VA disability benefits for the same disability.

Veterans with questions concerning either of these tax issues should contact the nearest VA Regional Office for clarification and guidance. Toll-free numbers are available in each state.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Readers: Those sleeping bags lying there collecting dust in a closet are handier than you think. After a nap, children can just roll them back into the closet rather than fumble with bed covers.

Teen-agers can tote them to a sleep over, saving friends time and trouble with bedding.

And in cold climates, store one or two in the car trunk in case car problems leave you stranded. A warm sleeping bag would be a lifesaver!

Although most sleeping bags can be cared for easily, some precautions you should follow include:

- Before cleaning, repair tears or broken stitching and presoak heavy stains. Point out all problems to a dry cleaner.

- When you're ready to clean, check care labels for cleaning instructions. Most can simply be laundered or dry-cleaned.

- If you do wash at home, set the washer on a slow speed and high water level.

- A suds cycle should remove heavy soil, and a second rinse should thoroughly remove detergent from the filling.

- To get that sleeping-bag comfort and plushness back, tumble dry. To fluff down-filled ones, throw in a clean pair of sneakers or tennis balls.

- Do not use coin-operated dry-cleaning machines.

- When they are dry, check the bags, especially nylon ones, for broken seams.

Enjoy a comfy cozy nap! — Heloise
