Bombers, ships blast Iraqi troops

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (AP) - Baghdad was hit by intense overnight air and missile attacks that pounded on into the morning, and U.S. military sources said Iraq is using civilians to shield its anti-aircraft guns by moving the weapons into residential areas.

Off the coast of Kuwait, the USS Wisconsin followed the lead of its sister battleship, the Missouri, firing its 16-inch guns in battle for the first time since the Korean War. The Wisconsin turned its big guns on an Iraqi artillery position, military sources in the Saudi capital said today.

Also today, the U.S. command in Riyadh reported two Iraqi helicopters had been shot down by American planes, and said one U.S. Army UH-1 Huey crashed from non-combat causes, killing one soldier and injuring four.

Allied warplanes kept their round-the-clock pace today, roaring off to unload their bombs on Saddam Hussein's forces, including dug-in ground troops and their supply lines. French Jaguar and Mirage F1-CR jets hit Iraqi artillery sites in Kuwait and positions of the elite Republican Guards in Iraq, a French military communique said. Warplanes from Qatar's small air force also struck Iraqi positions today.

Iraqi officials said the overnight raids on Baghdad killed 22 civilians and injured many others. AP correspondent Salah Nasrawi, in the Iraqi capital, said the air strikes went on for 12 hours, hitting offices and homes.

Raja Hamid, a resident of Baghdad's al-A'ameiya district, said her husband and three of her children were killed when a rocket hit their home. She and her two other children were injured.

"We all were asleep in one bedroom when the ground was shaken beneath us and suddenly we were engulfed in a fire," she said from her hospital bed.

Baghdad radio, in a commentary today, called on Muslims worldwide to "destroy the interests" of the United States and its allies. "The major battle ... does not tolerate neutrality," it said.

Iraq says allied bombings have killed hundreds of civilians since the war's outbreak, but U.S. military sources suggested today that Iraq is deliberately putting non-combatants in harm's way - by moving anti-aircraft guns into civilian neighborhoods in Baghdad and Kuwait City.

The U.S. military officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said none of the Iraqi gun positions in civilian neighborhoods had been attacked, but said the matter was under review.

In the war's fourth week, top U.S. military strategists said they're in no hurry to start a ground battle. But out on the gritty, sand-whipped frontlines, there was foreboding about fighting to come.

"From here, you can see the bomb flashes at night," said a U.S. military officer deployed near the northern Saudi frontier. "This could get very ugly at any moment."

Attack rocks British leaders

LONDON (AP) - A mortar shell fired from a van exploded behind 10 Downing St. today, shattering glass and forcing Prime Minister John Major to move a War Cabinet meeting to another room, police and government officials said.

Police said two more shells were fired from the van and fell near the Foreign Office, which adjoins Downing Street. The van then burst into flames.

The only injury reported by authorities was to a government worker, whom officials did not further identify. The London Ambulance Service said the worker was hospitalized with slight head injuries from flying glass.

Police said two men were reported seen running from the van, which burned furiously on a cordoned-off street just off Whitehall, a busy thoroughfare lined with government offices.

The van was 100 yards from 10 Downing Street, where the prime minister lives and works.

No one immediately claimed responsibility for the attack and there was no immediate indication it was related to the Persian Gulf War.

The Irish Republican Army has staged attacks on high government officials but there was no immediate claim of IRA responsibility.

A spokeswoman for Scotland Yard said the mortar shell landed near a wall in the back garden of 10 Downing St., and the explosion

"blew out a few windows." Damage was minor, she said.

A doctor at the scene said he was told there were bodies in the van but this was not confirmed by police.

"Two to three mortars it would appear were fired from the vehicle, and then the vehicle exploded," a spokesman for Scotland Yard said.

Two women who were participating in a peace vigil near Downing Street said a piece of the metal landed in the street near them, several hundred feet from where the van was parked.

One of them said there was a series of explosions and the van burst into flames with black smoke. "A piece of metal came flying past us," Press Association quoted her as saying.

The burning van was on Horseguards Avenue, near the Old War Office and just off Whitehall.

Dr. Andy Ashworth, a former army doctor who heard the explosions, told the BBC he had been told that there were bodies in the van. Police would not confirm this.

"I heard three loud explosions sort of consecutively, followed a second later by another explosion, I mean just loud bangs basically," Ashworth said.

"When I turned the corner, I saw a white Ford transit van, its rear doors open, a couple of sheets hanging out the back of it. But the inside of the van was a burning inferno, just flames completely engulfing the van, and black smoke billowing up from the van."

Baker urges slow pace on arms accords

WASHINGTON (AP) - Declaring that Soviet credibility is at issue, Secretary of State James A. Baker III is proposing a delay in ratifying a sweeping treaty to cut tanks and other non-nuclear weapons in Europe.

As U.S.-Soviet relations took another skid, Baker also criticized the Kremlin on Wednesday for expanding the authority of the army and the KGB secret police and its tough response to rebellion in the Baltic republics.

"Perestroika (restructuring) cannot succeed at gunpoint," Baker told the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

The White House, meanwhile, said a package of medical aid will be sent to the breakaway Baltics "in response to their request for assistance to alleviate medical shortages there and demonstrate U.S. concern for the situation."

Declaring that "our hearts go out to the courageous people of the Baltic states," Baker urged the Soviets to fulfill a pledge to hold peaceful dialogue with independence leaders in Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia.

"There is simply no justification for the use of force against peaceful and democratically elected governments," he said.

Baker said the Soviet reconstruction program, undertaken nearly six years ago by President Mikhail S. Gorbachev to foster political and economic reform, was in reverse with "an apparent turn" toward a centralized economy.

He also described violence in the Baltics, a less free media and the departure of many advocates of reform from the Soviet government as "unsettling events."

"The Soviet leadership is at a crossroads," Baker said. "We have made clear that their last several steps have taken them down a path of no benefit for them or for us or for anyone else."

President Bush, speaking in New York on Wednesday night, defended his efforts to prod the Kremlin to ease its crackdown on the breakaway republics.

"We've got to see that no more force will be used against these Baltic states and that there can be peaceful resolution to these questions," Bush said. "Otherwise, not only will our trade relations be set back ... but the rest of our overall relationship could undergo a problem."

Bettie Dickson became the first female member of the Hereford Lions Club when she was introduced as a new member of the club Wednesday. Her late husband, Weldon, had been an enthusiastic member for many years. With Mrs. Dickson is her sponsor, Charlie Bell.

Richards rips insurance board

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Ann Richards, in her blueprint for a "New Texas," touched a wide range of subjects, but the biggest buzz in the Capitol came from the political bomb she dropped on the State Board of Insurance.

In her first State of the State address, the governor Wednesday called for creation of a state lottery and consolidation of some of the 250-plus government agencies.

She also told the Legislature that if Insurance Board Chairman James Saxton and board member Richard Reynolds don't resign, she will try to take over the agency by placing it in conservatorship.

Such a power, created by the Legislature in 1979, has never been invoked and would require a finding by legislative leaders that the agency is in a condition of "gross fiscal mismanagement."

Both Saxton and Reynolds refused to step down.

Reynolds said Richards is bowing to lawyers who fight insurance companies and contributed to her political campaign. "I'm accustomed to deep-down, heavy, ugly politics now and then, and that's all this is, is ugly politics at its worst," he said.

Legislative leaders refused to go along with Richards in calling for their resignations, or placing the agency in conservatorship.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock said he had not heard any evidence of gross fiscal mismanagement of the agency that would trigger conservatorship.

House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, stated: "When you have an industry that large and that complex, you just don't just tear it up and throw it away overnight and start all over again."

Richards said Texas needs to head off disasters in other areas of government before they occur.

"We will not sit back and let crisis overwhelm us," she vowed. "We've gotten in the habit of responding to problems about the time we're startled by the bright lights of looming catastrophe. As many a Texas armadillo has learned, that's too late to leap."

Richards said state government needs to become leaner and more efficient. To achieve that, she proposed consolidating many of the more than 250 agencies.

"Taxpayers are weary, and with good reason," she said. "They have long complained about a state government that is too large, unwieldy and expensive. They see an enormous bureaucracy whose only purpose, it seems, is self-perpetuation."

Richards said performance audits authorized by a new law would be used to find more areas for consolidation.

The governor renewed her push for creation of a state lottery that experts say could raise $731 million in its first year.

Referring to lottery opponents, Richards said citizens want the gambling games and the government could use the money.

"Public opinion polls show that as many as four out of five Texans want a lottery. We should be listening to the people instead of telling them what to do," Richards said.

On education, the governor called for streamlining the Texas Education Agency and reducing the amount of paperwork required of teachers. "Teachers must be free to teach," she said, adding that the state should order a minimum teacher salary with annual cost-of-living raises.

Highlights of Gov. Ann Richards' first State of the State address Wednesday to the Legislature and the "Blueprint for the New Texas" she presented:

INSURANCE REFORM

Called for "consumer-oriented" State Board of Insurance; demanded resignations of remaining two incumbent insurance board members or a conservatorship for the agency; urged an early warning system to monitor financial health of insurance companies; establish an independent method for collecting information used to determine insurance rates, rather than relying on industry data; repeal insurance industry's exemption from antitrust laws; promised a gubernatorial task force to design a plan to make health insurance available to working Texans.

FINANCES

Approve a state lottery as a new source of state revenues; reactivate the Select Committee on Tax Equity to recommend "improvements" in state tax structure; overhaul franchise tax now paid by corporations only to broaden the base of the state's business tax; begin an aggressive program to obtain more federal aid; consolidate the state's 200 special funds.

GOVERNMENT MERGERS

Combine the Texas Housing Agency and Department of Community Affairs; combine the Texas Public Finance Authority and Bond Review Board; use performance audits of the 250-plus state government agencies to determine other agencies with similar jobs that could be combined; merge the 28 state licensing agencies into one unit; have the governor's ombudsman monitor "how well government is serving people."

EDUCATION

The governor called on lawmakers to establish an "equitable" school finance system, but didn't specify how; proposal for a mandatory minimum salary for teachers with automatic annual cost-of-living raises; making schools more accountable with rewards for excellent performances and aid where adequate progress is not made; establish a Commission on the Future Workforce of Texas to help make certain high school graduates are prepared for further education and high-tech employment; establish drug-free school zones with effective enforcement.

Bush says long road for peace

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush is cautioning that "the road to real peace will be difficult, long and tough," as his administration inches closer to acknowledging ground combat with Iraq is inevitable.

"I can tell you firmly that tonight we are on course and we are on schedule," the president said Wednesday night.

Bush's remarks in a New York speech echoed the theme that Secretary of State James A. Baker III outlined on Capitol Hill hours earlier when he attempted to prepare Americans for the pain and costs of ground warfare.

"The military actions now under way necessarily involve many casualties, great hardships and growing fears for the future," Baker said. "Tough times lie ahead."

Bush, speaking to the Economic Club of New York, repeated his upbeat assessment of the Gulf War's progress, but tempered it with the difficulty ahead.

"Mission by mission, hour by hour, Iraq's capacity to wage war is

AUSTIN - Gov. Ann Richards, in her blueprint for a "New Texas," touched a wide range of subjects, but the biggest buzz in the Capitol came from the political bomb she dropped on the State Board of Insurance. ## Reagan celebrates 80th birthday in style

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) - Former President Reagan celebrated his 80th birthday surrounded by the rich, the famous and the powerful, leading them in a prayer for the safety of U.S. troops at war with Iraq.

"My wish is that God will watch over each and every one of our men and women who are bravely serving in the Persian Gulf, and their families wherever they may be," Reagan said at a birthday gala Wednesday night. "And may they know that we as a nation stand firmly behind them."

The crowd roared its approval as the beaming ex-president blew out eight birthday candles atop a four-tiered cake, then looked down to discover he had smeared his tuxedo with frosting.

More than 900 people paid $2,500 apiece to join Reagan, his wife, Nancy, and dignitaries including Vice President Dan Quayle, Gov. Pete Wilson, Elizabeth Taylor, Jimmy Stewart, Liza Minnelli and Lee Greenwood at the black-tie event.

Former British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, a close Reagan friend and featured speaker, also spoke of the Persian Gulf War against the forces of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

"With more than half the free world joined with our two countries against the despot of the Middle East, with our successors nurtured by the same ideals, the same belief in freedom and justice that sustained us, let there be no doubt that freedom will prevail," she said.

Also attending the celebration at the Beverly Hilton Hotel were actor Tom Selleck, MCA Chairman Lew Wasserman, brewer Joseph Coors, and Reagan's secretaries of defense and state, Caspar Weinberger and George Shultz. Former talk show host and business mogul Merv Griffin was emcee.

Videotaped greetings from Polish President Lech Walesa, Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, German Chancellor Helmut Kohl and President Bush were played on screens set up around the ballroom.

Bush thanked Reagan and praised him as "an evangelist for good." "Today, Ronald Reagan is 80 years old, but he's young as the American spirit," Bush said.

Dramatic changes, expenses could curtail global warming

WASHINGTON (AP) - Current technologies can sharply reduce "greenhouse" gases and stem global warming, but not without significant expense and dramatic changes in how Americans use energy, a congressional study said today.

The report estimated that substantially cutting carbon dioxide emissions that cause global warming eventually could cost the U.S. economy as much as $150 billion a year, about what Americans now pay for compliance with all existing environmental laws.

The study by Congress' Office of Technology Assessment comes as delegates from 130 nations are meeting near Washington to work toward a worldwide treaty on global warming.

It also follows pressure from some members of Congress to commit the United States to specific goals to reduce greenhouse gases, something the Bush administration says should await more study. There is division within the scientific community over the extent, and indeed the existence, of global warming.

The phenomenon has been attributed to a number of pollutants, including chlorofluorocarbons and methane. But carbon dioxide, primarily from the burning of fossil fuels, accounts for more than half of the greenhouse gases.

And significant cuts in carbon emissions will require sharp reductions in the burning of fossil fuels, scientists agree.

The OTA study concluded that carbon dioxide reductions of 35 percent are feasible over the next 25 years in the United States with adoption of "aggressive" energy-saving policies.

"Such emission reductions will be difficult to achieve and could be costly but (require) no major technological breakthroughs," said the study, which had been requested by several congressional committees.

It said the cost is difficult to estimate. Energy savings would increase because of conservation and fuel efficiencies, but the cost of appliances, cars and houses - most construction, for that matter - likely would increase.

The OTA report said predictions on how much it would cost to deal with global warming range widely - from saving the economy money to costing as much as $150 billion a year, or 1.8 percent of the current gross national product, by the year 2015.

Environmentalists have argued that at the very least, industrial nations must reduce carbon dioxide emissions by 20 percent to have any hopes of reversing the trend toward unusual warming of the Earth.

Scientists attribute such warming to pollution that traps the sun's warmth much like a greenhouse. While it is not clear what effect such warming might have, some scientists believe it could cause some fertile regions of the world to become arid and elsewhere cause coastal flooding because of rising sea levels from melting polar ice packs.

The OTA report said a substantial cut in carbon dioxide emissions would require energy conservation measures to be taken by virtually all sectors of the economy including construction, manufacturing, transportation and energy industries.

The energy savings likely would have to be brought about through a mixture of energy taxes, financial incentives and government regulation, the study concluded.

The OTA study did not endorse any specific approach or suggest what kinds of energy taxes or incentives might be preferred.

Airlines start price war

NEW YORK (AP) - America West started an air fare war, offering half-price tickets to all its U.S. destinations. While several carriers moved to match the promotion, some waited.

America West, based in Phoenix, said Wednesday night its offer was good for tickets purchased Thursday, Friday and Saturday, for travel up to nearly a year from now, Jan. 5. But the fares were non-refundable, non-transferable and non-reissuable.

America West's big competitor, Dallas-based Southwest, immediately responded by offering a variety of $20 tickets on travel between Phoenix, Las Vegas and other cities. Southwest said it put no restrictions on the fares.

Soon, two of the nation's largest carriers, Northwest and United, said they would match the America West promotion in some markets.

Other airlines were apparently just sitting back and watching for the time being, as they did after Northwest announced a $15 surcharge that would take effect Friday to help make up for higher fuel costs.

America West and Southwest took verbal jabs at each other Wednesday night as they explained their latest promotions.

Southwest spokesman Don Valentine referred to America West's promotion as a "fire-sale announcement" with too many complicated conditions.

America West spokesman Dik Shimizu pointed out that Southwest's $20 tickets are only available on flights in and out of Phoenix and Las Vegas.

"It's interesting they don't offer that to their home-state people,"

Shimizu said.

In announcing its promotion, America West said it was trying to "jump-start" the sluggish air travel industry, which has hit severe turbulence amid higher fuel prices, the recession and, now, widespread cancellations by Americans who are scared of terrorists.

America West said its promotion would cut the price of a New York-Honolulu roundtrip ticket, for example, from $667 to $334, or a Chicago-Phoenix trip from $175 to $88.

United, based in Chicago, said it would match the America West deal, but only on travel originating in Phoenix and Las Vegas, where America West has hubs.

"It's going to be a free-for-all out there," said United spokeswoman Sara Dornacker.

Bush pleads for optimism

NEW YORK (AP) - President Bush is urging Americans to be optimistic about the recession, promising that even the U.S. effort in the Persian Gulf War ultimately will help the world economy.

The recession, which economists say began in late 1990, will be "mild and brief," and Americans should have "a healthy sense of confidence" about the economy, Bush told a dinner of the Economic Club of New York on Wednesday night.

"I predict that in a couple of quarters we'll come out of this and we'll have a robust economy," he said.

But the president didn't seem to generate much enthusiasm in the audience of some 2,000 business executives when he vowed that this year's $318 billion federal budget deficit will be reduced to zero by 1995. A smattering of applause was overtaken by snickers as Bush declared:

"True, the deficit is high - unacceptably high. The S&L (savings and loan bailout) costs, the war and the economic decline haven't helped a bit. But thanks to the budgetary reforms begun last fall, the deficit will be virtually eliminated by 1995."

Bush's evening trip to New York came a day after his administration unveiled a proposal to revamp the nation's banking system and two days after he released his deficit-heavy, $1.45 trillion budget for fiscal 1992.

Answering a question from the audience about his prediction for the future of the economy, the president said there has been "too much pessimism."

"I believe that by standing up to aggression in the gulf we are guaranteeing the future security and stability of that area that is so vital to global economic prosperity," he said.

Bush ticked off several reasons why he is optimistic about the economy, including declining interest rates and falling trade deficits.

Further, Bush said, the U.S. activity in the Gulf War will eventually provide for a brighter future.

"I can understand why. If I were

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several weeks ago you printed a letter about a Florida man who received a medical bill of $3,177 for removing a splinter from his foot. You said you had "a hard time believing such a thing could happen." May I tell you about a patient I took care of recently?

Mr. X arrived in my office with a splinter in his foot. He wasn't concerned but it "hurt a little." I examined the foot and saw that the splinter had punctured a joint space and developed into a septic osteomyelitis. I sent him to the hospital at once.

Saving his foot was the first priority. The patient required several weeks of intravenous antibiotics, surgical drainage, and the removal of the infected bone and splinter. The procedure was performed under anesthetic and required consultation of an orthopedic surgeon, an anesthesiologist and infectious disease specialist. Luck was with us and we saved the foot. You can be sure the patient did not complain about the bill. -- Arvind K. Goyal, M.D., president, Chicago Medical Society

DEAR DR. GOYAL: Thanks for the case history. I received a letter from the Tampa General Hospital that puts a vastly different light on what was presented as an outrageous case of overcharging. Here are the facts:

John McElhinney registered for outpatient treatment with a deeply embedded splinter in his right big toe. The splinter had been there four months and the toe was badly abscessed. The surgical procedure took one hour and 25 minutes. Without surgical intervention, Mr. McElhinney's infection could have resulted in amputation of the bone as well as a nasty case of blood poisoning.

The patient's original bill of $3,177.11 was incorrect and reduced by $1,061.32. The error occurred when McElhinney was mistakenly charged for the use of the operating room as an in-patient. Fortunately for him he carried Blue Cross/Blue Shield which had a managed care contract with Tampa General. This reduced his share of the bill from $476.56 to $220.29.

So, dear readers, I hate to bite the hand that feeds me, but the moral of this story is you can't believe everything you read in the papers.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was amazed at your cop-out response to "Sitting it Out in Beaumont," who complained about her fat, lazy stepdaughter wrecking her furniture. When you can't think of anything else to say, your pat answer is "get counseling." Wake up. A counselor cannot make the girl thin, interesting and tidy. The writer doesn't say whether she has asked her stepdaughter to pick up after herself. Some people are just naturally sloppy. They don't see the mess unless someone points it out to them.

I also have a daughter who is fat and sloppy. But since she's mine she can come over whenever she wants to and stay as long as she likes. The girl is also a bore. In fact, all my children are bores, but I love them, so I listen.

All families have some fat, boring, messy people. But they are still family and we owe them our support. What does Beaumont think a family is about anyway? If she wants to be amused by thin, neat people, she should look elsewhere. -- N.E., Evanston, Ill.

DEAR N.E.: What a great case for family togetherness. I hope your kids appreciate you.

Drugs are everywhere. They're easy to get, easy to use and even easier to get hooked on. If you have questions about drugs, you need Ann Landers' booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." ## What you should know about investing

Over 90 percent of American women will have to make their own financial decisions at some point in their lives, studies show. As a result, it is critical that women learn how to save and invest money, financial experts agree.

Unfortunately, most women don't know enough about investing. More than one-third of American women (35 percent) have never made investment decisions. Of those who had investment experience, 28 percent said they were "not confident" making investment decisions.

The survey also found that females between the ages 35 and 54 are the least knowledgeable about investment decisions, with 71 percent saying that they did not know how to invest. Only nine percent of women described themselves as "very confident" when making an investment decision. Of women 55 years of age or over, only 49 percent said they would invest a $10,000 windfall, versus 70 percent of men in the same age group who were surveyed. When asked "If you or your husband lost your job," 32 percent of women described themselves as financially secure for only one month or less; 27 percent of women between the ages of 18 and 34 said they would be in immediate financial trouble.

Here are some tips of women starting an investment program:

-Begin learning about finance and investment opportunities. Every major newspaper, magazine and TV station provides financial information geared to the layperson.

-Decide exactly what you're saving for and attach a dollar amount to it. Then put together a realistic time frame for meeting that goal.

-Make sure you're knowledgeable about your family finances, including bank accounts, insurance, tax and pension plan information.

-Choose a financial planner who can give guidance in selecting investments.

Now You're Cooking

BY KAY CRISMON
Staff Writer

After being actively involved with the Camp Fire for over 30 years, Nita Lea made a decision recently to retire as executive director of Hereford Camp Fire Council.

"I have always loved Camp Fire but due to health reasons I had to make a choice. I have severe arthritis and want to be able to spend time with my family and do some of the things I choose to do before rheumatoid arthritis sets in," she added.

Although Lea was somewhat apprehensive about retiring, she was overwhelmed by the support shown to her during a retirement party held Sunday afternoon at the Camp Fire Lodge. Approximately 100 guests were present to honor her and to share their Camp Fire memories. Lea explained to the group that although she will no longer serve as the executive director of the Camp Fire

Council, she will continue assisting the second and third grade boys as a volunteer leader.

Camp Fire has not only been a way of life for Lea but for her entire family. Her husband Lewis Lea, owner and operator of Leaway Roofing and part-owner of Leaway Fire of Dallas, began helping with Camp Fire as a volunteer on the camping committee and board of directors.

"When my daughter Sheila joined Camp Fire, the whole family did. I would bring the other children with me to meetings and they became just involved as we did. I guess that is the reason we all survived Camp Fire for 30 years," she said.

The Lea family includes three daughters: Cindy Bowery of Texico, N.M., Sheila Martin of Lubbock, and Stacy Lea of Hereford; and twin boys, Kelly Lea of Mesquite and Kevin Lea of Hereford.

"I have worked with Camp Fire as a volunteer leader, camp director, and volunteer secretary for Manned Office Chairman Leaders Association. When I took the job as temporary executive director, I never dreamed it would last so long.

"There have been a lot of rewards over the years and I have become a part of the Camp Fire family. It's hard to believe that Hereford Camp Fire was created due to someone reading a 1928 article in the Ladies Home Journal. There is a wealth of history of people involved in Camp Fire still living in Hereford and many are still involved in the organization.

"Camp Fire has touched the lives of everyone in some way, even if it was just through buying a box of candy.

"I left a structure that will continue forever in the future. It isn't the end of anything but a future of Camp Fire bright with new programs for today's needs and growth expansion. It involves dedicated volunteers who love children and care about their future and the future of Hereford," Lea added.

Now that she is retired, Lea is looking forward to reading the stack of books shoved back through the years; doing a little remodeling; helping her husband with his work; and traveling with him on out-of-town trips.

"I am excited about taking a big trip with my three daughters and grandchildren. Also, some of my relatives and I are planning a ski trip.

"I guess most of all, I'll just be taking life easy doing some of the things I enjoy. We have a close family and I want to spend as much time as I can with them," she said.

"All my friends laughed when I told them I was going to be interviewed for the Now Your Cooking feature. I'm the one who is never asked to be on a food committee.

Avoid common blunders

Being careless about tax planning can be an expensive mistake.

The following are some tax planning mistakes you should avoid:

- Not taking advantage of your employer's 401(k) plan, if it's available. Contributions-the deductible maximum for 1990, $7,979, will be adjusted for inflation for 1991-reduce gross income, and their earnings are tax deferred until withdrawal at retirement.

- If you have a prospective buyer for investment property owned by you, not thinking about asking that person to acquire the property you want, and then effecting an exchange instead of a sale. With an exchange, the gain (which is usually a capital gain) sometimes can be tax-deferred.

- Not waiting until after your 55th birthday before selling your principal residence to take advantage of the $125,000 gain exclusion.

Progress of women's education discussed

"From Women of the Past to Women of the Future" was the program topic presented by the Professional Affairs Committee when Delta Xi Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma met at the Community Center Feb. 4. Dee Ann Matthews was the program leader, assisted by Brenda Campbell, Betty Volkman and Patsy Giles.

Using material from the book In the Company of Educated Women, the participants told about the progress of women's gaining formal education from the early days of American history to the present.

Karen White of the membership committee gave campus representative recommendation forms so that new members of the society may be nominated. She told about the qualifications for society membership and asked each campus to consider nominating at least two candidates. Formal initiation rites for new members will be conducted in the fall of 1991.

The chapter achievement award was given to Dolores Foster for her being chosen as the Big Sister of the Year by the local Big Brother/Big Sister agency as well as for her providing chapter members with laminated clippings of their personal activities. Marion Goodin received the achievement award in January in recognition of her outstanding work as a group leader on the membership committee.

The chapter voted to buy new program books and song books to enhance the program planning.

Betty Sue Worthan led the chapter collect and the Delta Kappa Gamma Moment was given by Virginia Jackson.

Pat Montgomery led the group in singing "Honor to Womanhood" as well as "The Delta Kappa Gamma Song."

Prior to the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostess committee: Marie Stringer, chairman; Joan Latham, Alta Mae Higgins, Pat Simmacher and Brenda Campbell.

Attending the meeting were Alice Christman, Leta Kaul, Della Stagner,

Rubber band facts

Here are some facts about rubber bands that may stretch your imagination.

Did you know that:
-The United States government has 10 pages of specifications for standard rubber bands, including a requirement that tensile (breaking) strength be 1,200 pounds per square inch. One manufacturer, Arrow Rubber Products of Shelton, Conn., produces bands that require more than twice that strength to break. Arrow's bands exceed 3,000 pounds of tensile strength per square inch and stretch to more than seven times their original length.

-Pure, natural rubber gives a better snap than synthetic materials that don't provide quality. Poor quality bands don't snap back to their original size and don't last as long.

-Arrow rubber only uses imported natural rubber from Southeast Asia to make its bands—rubber right from the tree. The tree, Hevea brasiliensis, is tapped just like trees in New England are tapped for maple syrup. A thin layer of bark is removed allowing the raw latex to drip into a cup for about three or four hours. The liquid is then coagulated and processed into bales that are shipped to manufacturers elsewhere in the world.

-The largest bands made by Arrow are about six inches in diameter and will stretch to go around 55 gallon steel drums. The smallest have a diameter of just 90 thousandths of an inch.

-Rubber bands have many industrial uses. They're used to manufacture golfballs—holding the ball as a machine wraps elastic around a core. Rubber bands are also used to manufacture aerospace equipment and by photographers for extra grip on stuck tripod knobs.

-High quality rubber bands are needed to hold the ropes in a parachute—to make sure the chute opens as it should when someone jumps from a plane.

-Christopher Columbus first observed people native to Haiti playing a game with a ball fashioned from smoke-dried latex.

Senator Teel Bivins Reports

Austin - With Scud and Patriot missiles flying, environmental terrorism contaminating the Persian Gulf with crude oil, and our nation's armed forces engaged in a full scale war against Iraq, legislative developments in Austin are seen in a new light. It's not that these State issues have diminished in importance to Texas, it is just that we now see them from a different perspective. The liberties that we take for granted every day on the floor of the Texas Senate are the very liberties the allies are fighting to restore in Kuwait.

On the same day that war broke out in the Persian Gulf, Lt. Governor Bob Bullock announced committee appointments in the Texas Senate. News of the outbreak of war overshadowed good news for Senate District 31.

For the first time in 14 years, the Senator from Senate District 31 has been appointed to the Finance Committee. This is clearly the most important committee in the Texas Senate. Lt. Governor Hobby probably described it best when he said, "There are two kinds of bills: one, budget bills and two, all the others." In my view, the State budget is the hub of government from which all of the spokes emanate. Serving on the Senate Finance Committee will put me in the center of the hub. It will also place me in a strategic position to insure that State institutions in Senate District 31 receive fair and equitable treatment.

The Finance Committee works harder and longer hours than any other Senate Committee. That's fine with me. I didn't come to Austin to play golf.

Another appointment that I am extremely pleased about is my appointment to the Senate Education Committee. Over half of the entire State budget is spent on public or higher education. Thus, serving on the Education Committee puts me at the heart of this major enterprise. With the recent Texas Supreme Court decision relating to the way we pay for public education, the work of the Senate Education Committee will be more important than ever before. The school children of this State are our future. What we do with regard to public school finance in the next 60 days could impact our State well into the 21st century. I don't take this responsibility lightly.

Steering away from the headlines, I will also take on the challenges of the Intergovernmental Relations Committee. This Committee deals with smaller scale topics such as the creation of municipal utility districts, police officer and firefighter union issues and seemingly every problem that arises in the City of Houston and Harris County.

When I called home to tell my family about my committee appointments, my 11-year old son, Andrew, demonstrated his keen political insight. He cut to the truly important, politically significant issue of seniority. He said, "Yea, Dad, those appointments are great but did you get a bigger office? Did you get a parking spot closer to the door?" I was pleased to answer both questions in the affirmative. I do indeed have a parking spot that is closer to the entrance of the Capitol. And my Senate office is no longer located on the 3rd floor just outside of the Senate gallery where all of the elementary school classes line up before going into the gallery. My new office, 332 is located in the "back hall" on the 3rd floor behind the Senate Chamber. It is far quieter, more convenient and, yes, Andrew, it is bigger.

February's best buys

Texas consumers will find some good February buys in supermarkets, although crude oil prices, swinging with the volatile events of the Persian Gulf war, will continue to increase some food costs at checkout counters.

"Quite a wide range of foods will be available in ample supply despite the December-January freezes and higher fuel and transportation costs," said Dr. Dick Edwards, a food marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Edwards said produce, some meats—especially beef and poultry—and cold-weather foods will be discounted in February.

"The dip in beef prices seen recently will continue in early February," Edwards said. "All beef prices will be off about 10 percent, and specials will take prices of these cuts to 25 to 30 percent below December's non-sale prices."

But, Edwards said, the beef surplus that caused prices to drop will end later this month, so consumers may want to buy extra packages for family freezers.

Chicken keeps getting in a stronger price position with greater production efficiency, he added.

"The market should continue to see sale prices of 49 cents a pound for whole chickens," Edwards said. "Turkey prices of 79 to 89 cents per pound should be seen frequently."

Canned tuna, generally heavily discounted in February and March, will cost more because of the use of "dolphin safe" methods of harvest. Leading processors in the industry are prohibiting the use of drift nets on tuna boats, a more cost-effective means of catching tuna but one that has been criticized for drowning dolphins and other species.

While canned tuna will still be on special, Edwards said, prices will range from 59 to 69 cents per can rather than previous sale prices of 49 cents per can.

Edwards said table oranges will be in shorter supply as a result of California freezes, but orange juice prices will be down because of greater supplies for the same reason.

At the produce counter, best buys will be on earlier-season oranges and grapefruit, grown in California, Florida and Arizona. Other featured items will be cabbage, collards, kale, broccoli, brussels sprouts, green peas, bell peppers, spinach and avocados.

Consumers shop better

If you're like most people, you're pretty "green" where the environment is concerned. According to a recent Gallup Poll, most consumers would not buy a product packaged in a non-recyclable container if they could help it.

The poll also showed consumers are increasingly sophisticated about product claims of "recyclability."

Better than two-thirds of those polled believe true recycling is a closed-loop process with the recyclable items made into the same product again and again.

"This poll confirms that consumers are making long-term commitment to understanding and saving the environment. We are already seeing a record number of Americans challenging the need for non-recyclable packaging and turning to 100 percent recyclable packaging, such as glass. The environmental enthusiasm generated by Earth Day is far from wearing off," said Lewis D. Andrews, Jr., president of the Glass Packaging Institute, a Washington, D.C.-based trade association representing the nation's glass container manufacturers.

The poll also revealed many more Americans prefer curbside recycling to returning recyclable materials to recycling centers or taking deposit containers back to stores for redemption. Forced deposits are less popular than ever, according to the poll.

Other poll findings include:
-89 percent of those polled think glass can definitely or probably be recycled;

-49 percent say enough glass is being recycled to make a difference;

-27 percent think enough plastic is being recycled to make a difference; and

-89 percent believe enough aluminum is being recycled to make a difference.

You can help make a difference, too; you can buy foods and drinks in recyclable containers and then recycle them.

High school athletes pick colleges

Local boys pick ENMU

Three graduating senior athletes at Hereford High School made it official Wednesday which college they would attend.

Ralph Martinez, Chris Steward and Ben Weatherly each signed letters of intent to play football at Eastern New Mexico University, a Division II school in Portales, New Mexico.

Martinez and Weatherly both overcame obstacles to make the 1-AAAA All-District squad last season.

Weatherly, a two-year starter, had to learn a new position; he moved to tackle from tight end at mid-season. He said he expects to play guard at ENMU.

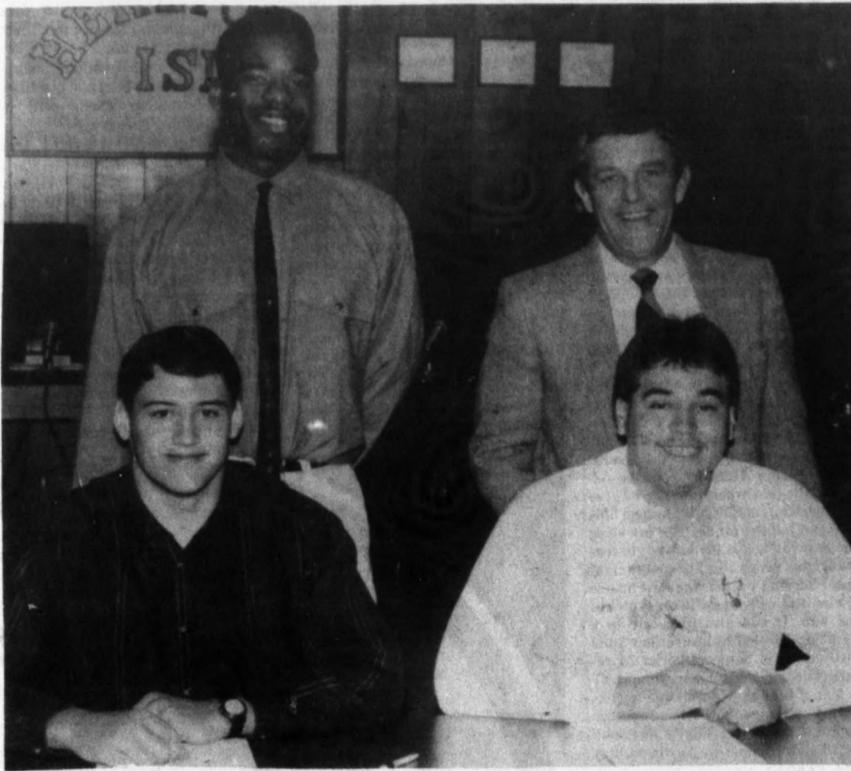

Martinez, a two-year letterman, missed four games early in the season and underwent arthroscopic surgery to repair his knee. He started at both tackle and guard in 1990. He said he hopes to play guard at ENMU.

Steward, a two-year letterman who runs 40 yards in 4.5 seconds, was the starting free safety and captain of last year's Herd. He also played at receiver, running back and quarterback during his career. He will play either free safety or wide receiver at ENMU.

The trio signed their letters shortly after noon at the Hereford Independent School District administration building. Representing ENMU was Mike Scott, a 1985 graduate of Hereford High School who also played quarterback at ENMU.

Scott said the boys would receive partial scholarship. The budget of a Division II program is limited, he said, so instead of giving full scholarships to only 35 or so athletes, they give partial scholarships to about 100.

Another Hereford senior may be close to signing elsewhere. Matt Bromlow told KFDD-TV in

Aggies, Bears winning SWC recruiting game

By MIKE DRAGO
Associated Press Writer
Texas A&M scored two of the state's best running backs and Baylor stockpiled several blue-chip defenders and the best Class 5A rusher.

The Aggies also garnered a pair of top-notch quarterbacks from Texas and California Wednesday during national letter of intent day.

Texas appeared to finish a close third in Southwest Conference recruiting, signing the state's best Class 4A rusher and several top offensive linemen. But the Longhorns failed to attract many of the top skill position players they sought.

Meanwhile, Baylor had an impressive campaign recruiting defensive talent and grabbed the state's best Class 5A rusher.

Rodney Thomas of Groveton, the Associated Press Sports Editors Class 2A offensive player of the year from Groveton High School, and Wilbert Biggens, an APSE Class 5A first-team selection from Aldine MacArthur, both signed letters saying they would play in College Station.

Biggens, who gained 1,878 yards and scored 29 touchdowns last season, had given an oral commitment to the Aggies, but reportedly was considering a commitment to the Texas Longhorns if Thomas went to Texas A&M.

MacArthur coach Bob Alpert said Biggens can help the Aggies immediately.

"I'm telling you he'll be taking the opening kickoff against LSU, he's that good," Alpert said. "He's not very big but he's such a strong kid. The difference between the good and great runners is how many yards they made after they're hit. Wilbert makes a lot of yards after he's been hit."

Biggens squats more than 500 pounds and benches more than 300, Alpert said.

Thomas was wavering as late as Tuesday night. On Monday he gave an oral commitment to Louisiana State. But Thomas, who carried for 3,701 yards and 41 touchdowns in 16 games last season, decided to be an Aggie.

"He's the best player I ever saw," said Groveton coach Don Hill. "He's got the size and speed. He's a tough kid and I think he can play right away for the Aggies. LSU turned his head. He was misled by LSU with some things they said that were not true. He's glad the recruiting race is over. His mother said it had been a big strain."

One of the top quarterbacks from California, Matt Miller of San Diego Mount Carmel, also chose Texas

A&M. Miller threw for 2,800 yards and 15 touchdowns last season. He chose the Aggies over Michigan State and Brigham Young.

A&M Consolidated quarterback Tommy Preston, an APSE first-team choice in Class 4A, chose the hometown Aggies along with teammate Cliff Groce, a running back.

The Aggies also fared well on the other side of the ball, landing the top defensive player in the state, Sam Adams, a lineman from Cypress Creek. Adams, who had 23 sacks last year, chose A&M over Texas.

Other top players who selected A&M were center Darius Smith and receiver Percy Singleton of Dallas Carter, defensive back Mike Hendricks of Converse Judson, tight end James McKeehan of Willis and Port Neches-Groves place-kicker Keith Waguespack.

Baylor's list was headlined by Waco running back Louis Fite, the APSE Class 5A offensive player of the year, but defense seemed to be the strength of the Bears' recruiting class.

Defensive linemen Charles Horton of Dallas Carter, Steve Strahan of Class 5A champion Aldine and Chad Boyd of Tyler Chapel Hill all chose the Bears. Horton and Strahan are listed among the top five linemen in the state. Boyd is among the top 15.

Linebackers Donnie Laurence of Kerrville-Tivy, Chris Dull of Houston Northbrook, and Shelton Lewis of Gainesville committed to Baylor. All three are listed among the top 10 linebackers in Texas.

Baylor also signed blue-chip defensive backs Kendrick Bell of Tyler Chapel Hill and Philip Kent of Houston Washington.

The Texas recruiting class included the top rusher in Class 4A and several of the most-heralded offensive linemen.

James Thornton, who gave oral commitments to both Houston and Texas, signed with the Longhorns. Thornton had 221 carries for 2,008 yards last season and was the APSE Class 4A offensive player of the year.

The Longhorns also signed offensive linemen Tim Barron of McKinney, Jay Boulware of Irving Nimitz, John Elmore of Sherman and Joe Phillips of Midland. All are considered among the best in Texas.

Blake Brockermeyer of Fort Worth Arlington Heights, the most highly touted offensive lineman in the state, also signed with the Longhorns.

The only quarterback to sign with the Longhorns was Schulenburg's Bo Adams.

Several blue chips sign out of state

By MIKE DRAGO
Associated Press Writer
Southwest Conference schools received letters of intent from most Texas blue-chip players on schoolboy signing day, but several top recruits bucked the state for teams in the national limelight.

Mike Miller of Sugar Land Willowridge, one of the top wide receivers in the nation, joined linebackers Huntley Bakich of Dallas White and Tremayne Green of Marshall in shunning Texas schools.

Miller and Bakich both committed to Notre Dame over Texas.

Miller had received queries from more than 70 Division I-A schools. At Willowridge, he played wide receiver, wingback, flanker and ran from both running back positions. He also returned kickoffs and punts.

Miller says he doesn't want to become another Raghieb Ismail.

"I want my own identity," Miller said. "When Coach Lou Holtz came in to visit me, he said he didn't want me to be another Rocket. He wanted me to be better. If Rocket hadn't left, the chances of me going there were slim. When he left, that opened up the door for me."

Receiver Brian Brown of Grand

Prairie defected for Arkansas. Felman Malveaux of Hamshire-Fannett, the Associated Press Sports Editors offensive player of the year in Class 3A, signed with Michigan.

Green gave an oral commitment to Miami, but signed a letter of intent for Oklahoma. Green led a heady list of Texas players who signed with the Sooners.

The group included linemen Joseph Asbell of Tyler Lee and Chuck Langston of Beaumont West Brook, quarterback Gerald Farley of Groveton, linebacker Mario Freeman of Austin LBJ and quarterback Albert Hall of Bay City.

Perry and Terry Collier, the "Twin Terrors" from Munday, also committed to Oklahoma.

Oklahoma State signed tight end Scott Waterbury of Class 5A runner-up Arlington Lamar.

Quarterback Ryan Huffman, who passed for 1,714 yards and 14 touchdowns for League City Clear Lake last season, signed a commitment to LSU.

Bob Aylsworth, who led Irving MacArthur with 1,761 yards and 15 touchdowns, will play at Tulane.

Bufs transfer to new schools

A total of 26 former West Texas State football players, including Pat Mercer of Hereford, will continue their careers elsewhere, according to interim athletic director Steve Graf. WTSU has dropped football and the players will be eligible to play elsewhere.

Mercer, a wide receiver at HHS and WTSU, will go to Central State of the Lone Star Conference. Teammates Mark Reiland, sophomore quarterback, and soph tight end Tyler Kemp will join him.

Texas Tech has signed three former Bufs, including Mark Bounds of Stamford, a Division II All-American punter. Offensive lineman Jay Clark, a 6-5, 250-pound freshman, and Stance Labaj, a 6-2, 270-pound sophomore, will also play with the Raiders.

Four former Bufs are going to Arkansas State. They include defensive lineman Orlando Strait of Childress, defensive back Roy Collier of Dallas, and linebackers Mike McDonald of Austin and Cedric Buckley of Dallas.

Southwest Texas State drew three former Bufs--running back Maurice Williams, leading rusher the last two years, and defensive back Craig Hemphill and nose tackle James Roof.

Others going to LSC schools are tight end Steve Malin at East Texas State, and defensive end Adam Cates to Eastern New Mexico.

Freshman center Jeff Williams of Perryton and freshman lineman Preston Bell of Austin have gone to Northwest Louisiana. Sam Houston State was the choice of defensive tackle Mike Rhodes.

Bruce Palmer, frosh receiver from Iowa Park, and frosh linebacker Clint Perkins of Vernon are staying close to home at Midwestern State in Wichita Falls.

Freshman center Rich Dubroc is going to Stephen F. Austin, while freshman running back Cory Davis is going to Navarro Junior College. Defensive back Darrell Smith of Waco is going to Boise State, and brothers Codie and Jody Scott of Garden City are going to Hardin-Simmons.

Hereford to host 8th grade tourney

Several Hereford basketball teams play district tournaments this weekend. The eighth grade girls play in Dumas and the freshman boys go to Pampa.

But the eighth grade boys get to play their tournament at home.

Hereford hosts the 1991 eighth grade boys district basketball tournament, which will use all of Hereford's basketball facilities and will start at 5:30 this afternoon and run until noon Saturday.

The tournament is made up of two brackets. The higher bracket includes all six "A" teams plus the two "B" teams with the best records. Those eight teams play in what looks like a double elimination bracket, although all teams are guaranteed three games.

Hereford's "A" team, the Maroons, will help kick off the tourney at 5:30 p.m. today against Pampa Blue, the top "B" team, at the junior high's west court. Coach John Nino's Maroons finished district play at 5-5, 7-6 overall.

Hereford's "B" team, the Whites, is the other "B" team in the upper bracket. Their 8-2 district record was the second best of the six. They play Borger's "A" team at 6:45 p.m. today in the junior high's east court.

Coach Henry Perez' Whites are 10-3 overall.

The lower bracket consists of the four "B" teams with the worst district records: Borger, Canyon, Dumas and Valley View. Each will play three games in a round-robin format.

At any one time, three games will be going on. Today's and Friday's games will be at 5:30 and 6:45 p.m. and Saturday's will be played at 9:30 and 10:45 a.m.

Two lower bracket games will be played each day: today in the varsity gym, Friday in the high school gym and Saturday at the junior high's west court.

Meanwhile, four upper bracket games will be played each day. Today and Friday, both junior high courts will be used. Saturday morning, the championships will be played in the varsity gym, while the consolation half of the bracket will wind up in the junior high's east court.

Kings pound Portland

By The Associated Press

The Sacramento Kings, one of the NBA's doormats, are putting a little mud on the sparkling record of the Portland Trail Blazers.

The Kings, with the third-worst record in the league, became the first team this season to beat Portland twice as Travis Mays scored 14 of his 27 points in the fourth quarter of a 97-93 victory.

"I don't understand it," said Portland coach Rick Adelman, whose team still has the NBA's best record of 39-9. "Last year we played decent here (at Sacramento's Arco Arena). I don't know what is going wrong."

Sacramento coach Dick Motta said the outcome was more amazing considering injuries to Wayman Tisdale and Anthony Bonner and the loss of Antoine Carr with six fouls with four minutes left.

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Boston 133, Charlotte 117; Miami 134, New Jersey 119; Philadelphia 108, Washington 100; Houston 111, Milwaukee 109; Utah 103, Phoenix 99; and Seattle 107, the Los Angeles Clippers 104.

Among the Trail Blazers' problems against Sacramento were 20 misses in 50 free-throw attempts.

"We didn't make our free throws and we missed a lot of easy layups," guard Kevin Porter said. "That's why we lost."

The Kings converted 33 free throws - a season high - in 43 attempts. Mays was 4-for-14 from the field but 17-for-18 from the line, including nine straight in the final 73 seconds.

Carr added 18 points and rookie Lionel Simmons 16 points and 19 rebounds, the high for Sacramento this season.

Porter scored 20 points, while Buck Williams and Clyde Drexler each scored 14 for the Blazers, who lost 100-88 to the Kings on Dec. 13.

Celtics 133, Hornets 117
Boston, buoyed by the return of Larry Bird, routed Charlotte to maintain a nine-game lead in the Atlantic Division.

The Celtics got 28 points from Kevin McHale, while Bird, sidelined the past 14 games with a back injury, had 18 points, 13 assists and nine rebounds.

Boston, 7-7 without Bird after going 26-5 with him, took control with a 16-2 second-quarter run started by Bird's short jumper. The Celtics led 58-49 at halftime and stayed ahead by six to 25 points the rest of the way.

76ers 108, Bullets 100
Philadelphia defeated Washington behind Hersey Hawkins' career-high 39 points and Charles Barkley's 25 points and 14 rebounds.

The 76ers held All-Star Bernard King, averaging 29.9, to 12 points on 6-for-19 shooting. Harvey Grant had 24 points and a career-high 15 rebounds while A.J. English added 21 points for the Bullets.

Rockets 111, Bucks 109
Kenny Smith hit the game-winner with six-tenths of a second left as Houston rallied from seven points behind in the final three minutes.

Smith, who scored 25 of his 30 points in the second half, dribbled around a double-team, drove to the basket and was fouled as his shot went in. He missed the free throw, but the Bucks' Jay Humphries, who missed a jumper with 12 seconds left, hit the rim with a 30-footer as the buzzer sounded.

Otis Thorpe led the Rockets with 35 points. Humphries scored 30.

Jazz 103, Suns 99
Utah got 29 points from Karl Malone and 22 points and 15 assists from John Stockton.

The Suns had a 50-45 halftime advantage before the Jazz outscored the Suns 34-24 in the third quarter and never trailed in the final period. Jeff Hornacek finished with 25 points for Phoenix.

Heat 134, Nets 119
Sherman Douglas and Glen Rice scored 30 points apiece, sparking Miami to a team scoring record.

The 134 points by the expansion Heat surpassed their scoring record of 131 in a double-overtime game against Denver on March 10, 1989.

The Nets got 29 points from Derrick Coleman.

SuperSonics 107, Clippers 104
Eddie Johnson's 35-foot shot with 1.1 seconds left broke a tie.

Johnson, a key Sonics' reserve since being acquired in a trade from Phoenix on Dec. 7, scored 18 of his 27 points in the fourth quarter. Jeff Martin led the Clippers with 21 points.

Raiders fall to Aggies

By The Associated Press

Brooks Thompson wasn't surprised that the Texas A&M Aggies ended their Southwest Conference drought.

"It feels great," Thompson said after the Aggies beat Texas Tech 70-63 in Lubbock Wednesday night for their first victory in 10 conference games. "I knew it was going to come sometime - that we'd get one somewhere."

Thompson scored 20 points for the Aggies (6-15).

In the only other conference game Wednesday, Texas edged Baylor 100-95 in Waco.

A&M flustered the Red Raiders (7-16, 3-7) with a trapping, full-court press and shut down Tech's leading scorer Steve Miles, who finished with 12 points.

Freddie Ricks added 12 for the Aggies and Rashone Lewis and Shedrick Anderson each had 11.

In Waco, Courtney Jeans scored seven of his 17 points in the final two minutes and Texas got a career-high 31 points from Locksley Collie.

Texas (15-5, 9-1) sprinted to a 21-8 lead as Baylor sought a way to stop Collie, who finished the first half with 21 points.

Baylor (9-10, 2-8) rallied behind Melvin Hunt, who sank three 3-pointers to help cut the Texas lead to 47-45 at the half. The Bears were led by Kelvin Chalmers' 16 points.

"Courtney's performance down the stretch was the key to the ball game. He had to step up and make it happen, and he did," Texas coach

Tom Penders said. "Baylor is a good basketball team. We knew it would be a close game. We knew that if we kept our poise and hit our free throws we would win."

Penders complained about the students seated behind the Texas bench, saying the Longhorns brought their own security officers Wednesday because of past experiences at the Ferrell Center.

"The language and insults we heard have no place in college athletics," he said. "If they said those kinds of things out on the street, there'd be a riot."

Baylor officials said two rows of seats already have been eliminated behind the visitor's bench in reaction to earlier complaints.

Wolfpack wins Round 1

By DICK BRINSTER

AP Sports Writer

North Carolina State will be in the mood to celebrate should it beat North Carolina tonight, but it's almost a certainty the Wolfpack will be too tired to stage much of a party.

The Wolfpack beat the ninth-ranked Tar Heels 97-91 Wednesday night by using just six players while North Carolina employed 14. They play again tonight at Chapel Hill, meeting back-to-back because their first game was postponed Jan. 16 when the war began in the Persian Gulf.

"The real party will be if we win tomorrow," the Wolfpack's Chris Corchiani said Wednesday night.

But to win, the Wolfpack will have to take it slow, perhaps relying again on 3-point shooting. The Tar Heels will try to speed up the pace.

"The key will be to go out and play as hard as we can," said Rick Fox, who scored 22 points to lead North Carolina.

"They have to be tired," King Rice said of the Wolfpack. "We're just going to get after them."

Wednesday night's game between the Atlantic Coast Conference rivals was a mad bomber's dream.

Rodney Monroe scored 21 of his 37 points in the second half as North Carolina State unleashed its 3-point arsenal, making 12 of 23 long-range shots.

Despite losing, the Tar Heels were even more impressive, hitting 14 of 25 from beyond the 3-point line.

In other games involving ranked teams Wednesday, it was No. 18 Kansas 85, No. 15 Nebraska 77; No. 20 Georgetown 79, Providence 65; Arkansas State 76, No. 21 New Orleans 65; and No. 22 Oklahoma State 83, Iowa State 62.

Tom Gugliotta added 28 points and 10 rebounds for the Wolfpack (12-6, 5-3). Pete Chilcutt added 19 points for the Tar Heels (15-4, 4-3).

No. 18 Kansas 85, No. 15 Nebraska 77

Richard Scott scored the first six points in a 14-4 second-half surge, vaulting the Jayhawks over the taller Cornhuskers.

Kansas, averaging 6-foot-4 to Nebraska's 6-8 and down the starting lineup, carved out a 45-39 halftime lead despite Rich King, Nebraska's 7-2 senior center who had 19 points in the first half while working against Kansas' 6-9 Mark Randall. King finished with a season-high 25 points while Randall had 16.

No. 20 Georgetown 79, Providence 65

Dikembe Mutombo had 20 points and eight blocked shots, and Alonzo Mourning added 15 points and six blocks as the Hoyas avenged a January loss.

Joey Brown added 17 points, including seven free throws in the final four minutes for Georgetown, which had only one basket in the final 10. That was a layup by Mutombo with 15 seconds remaining.

Providence got 25 points from Eric Murdock.

Arkansas St. 76, No. 21 New Orleans 65

Bobby Gross had 20 points and the Indians became the first team this season to outrebound the Privateers.

Arkansas State, which outrebounded New Orleans 29-25, sank 13 of 14 free throws in the final four minutes to pull away.

Tank Collins and Dwight Myvett scored 19 points each to lead New Orleans.

No. 22 Oklahoma St. 83, Iowa St. 62

Byron Houston scored 18 of his 20 points in the second half when the Cowboys broke away from the Cyclones.

Iowa State got 21 points from Doug Collins.

Houston took over in the second half, consistently getting the ball inside. He scored 10 of the Cowboys' first 16 points in the second half.

Later, he made consecutive baskets to start a 20-6 spree.

Cincinnati Red manager Lou Piniella was the American League rookie-of-the-year while playing for Kansas City in 1969.

Pitching for Cleveland in 1968, Luis Tiant set a record by striking out 32 hitters in two consecutive games.

Kiam's mouth overloaded with Olson remark

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) - Victor Kiam, who likes to talk so much he makes commercials for his own company, is in trouble again.

At a Monday night banquet, the owner of the New England Patriots and Remington razor company told an off-color joke about Lisa Olson, the Boston Herald sports writer who was sexually harassed by Patriot players.

More than four months earlier, he allegedly called Olson "a classic bitch," although Kiam denied saying that.

On Wednesday, there were no denials, only apologies from Kiam and concern from the NFL about the outspoken owner.

The league did not rule out punishment for the latest incident. It had fined the club and three of its players for a Sept. 17 incident in the Patriots locker room in which Olson was sexually harassed.

"It should go without saying that this office does not condone offensive comments of any type," NFL spokesman Greg Aiello said. The league said Kiam called Olson to apologize personally.

Kiam was one of 15 persons honored at the awards banquet of the Stamford (Conn.) Old-Timers Athletic Association. About 750 people were in the mostly male audience, said Bob Kennedy, sports editor of The Advocate of Stamford.

The joke repeated by Kiam began circulating soon after the Persian Gulf War began.

The joke got a "big laugh," Kennedy said, but was not told maliciously.

"We all went, 'I don't believe he just said that,'" Kennedy said. "I had a feeling he just read the group and thought it was alright. Boy, did he make a mistake."

Herb Kohn, the banquet's master of ceremonies, said Kiam was "the butt of locker room jokes (and) responded by repeating a remark others had heard before."

Herald sports editor Bob Sales said, "I'm disappointed that Victor would tell such a joke. He, of all people, has seen up close the pain that this caused Lisa Olson, and I hope he would refrain from telling such jokes."

The original incident involving Olson occurred while she was interviewing defensive back Maurice Hurst at his locker. She said several Patriots exposed themselves to her or made lewd remarks.

Houston signs deal with Carman

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Astros, who have spent the off-season conducting a fire sale of their high-priced talent, signed lefthander Don Carman, their first free agent grab of the winter.

Carman signed a one-year deal Wednesday for roughly $500,000. He can earn an additional $300,000 in incentives based on games and innings pitched.

Carman, 31, was 6-2 with Philadelphia last season.

The Astros have lost five free agents this winter, including lefthanded reliever Juan Agosto, who signed with St. Louis. Carman likely will take Agosto's place in the bullpen.

Though Carman was used as both a starter and reliever during his eight-year career with the Phillies, the Astros reportedly are leaning toward putting him in the bullpen. Last year, he was used almost exclusively in relief and was happy with the results. In 59 games (58 in relief), Carman had a 4.15 ERA and one save.

"I think lefthanders hit only .175 against me last year, so if they want me to get a lefty or two, I can do that," Carman told the Houston Chronicle. "But I can start, too, if that's what they want. I feel comfortable doing both."

The Astros also invited pitcher Bill Laskey to spring training as a non-roster player. Laskey, 33, has not pitched in the majors since 1988, when he was with Cleveland.

Steinbrenner's papers termed garbage by exec

NEW YORK (AP) - A 135-page petition by New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner, claiming that baseball had a vendetta against him, is garbage and may only have helped to "deforest the Pacific Northwest," baseball's deputy commissioner says.

The petition, accompanied by another 400 pages or so of documentation, was mailed to baseball's 10-member executive council on Oct. 9 but not made public by Steinbrenner's lawyers until Wednesday.

"I think it's probably long since been filed in the circular file," deputy commissioner of baseball, Steve Greenberg, said.

The petition, first reported by the Los Angeles Times last fall, attracted attention again Wednesday when the New York Daily News published details.

The petition accuses commissioner Fay Vincent of orchestrating and overseeing "a totally biased and unfair 'investigation'" in order to "gather damning, negative, and one-sided information" against Steinbrenner.

Steinbrenner signed an agreement last July which bars him from any involvement in the day-to-day operations of the Yankees, based on his association with known gambler Howie Spira.

Boston Red Sox general partner Haywood Sullivan, an executive council member, said baseball's ownership stood behind Vincent and the investigation.

"I think it's time that some of us stand up and be counted," Sullivan said from his Boston office. "There are reports that some people say there has been a vendetta to get George. I think the majority of ownership thinks that Fay Vincent has done an excellent job."

Los Angeles Dodgers owner Peter O'Malley said the issue was dead as far as he was concerned.

"This matter was dealt with by the executive council last fall and it was determined the council does not have jurisdiction," he said in a telephone interview on Wednesday. "I fully support the commissioner on this matter."

Paul Curran, a Steinbrenner attorney who helped draft the petition, said he had not spoken to any member of the executive council since the document was mailed.

"But my understanding is that they are looking into it," Curran said. "Certainly, we have not been told by anyone that they are not considering it or that they have rejected it."

The first automobile show was held in New York City in 1900.

WAR

for the gulf tonight to get a first-hand look at the readiness of U.S. forces for a ground offensive.

On Wednesday, Cheney and Powell briefed members of Congress in a closed-door meeting, and one key lawmaker, House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., said afterward that "there seems to be no rush" to a ground war.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III painted perhaps the grimmest picture yet by the Bush administration of what a land battle would be like.

"Tough times lie ahead," he said. "The task is formidable, and no one should underestimate Saddam's military capabilities."

Baker, appearing before the House Foreign Affairs Committee on Wednesday, spoke soberly of "many casualties, great hardships and growing fears for the future."

In the desert war zone, reporters who toured a major U.S. air base in Saudi Arabia on Wednesday for the first time were given a look at sophisticated and deadly weapons, including the so-called fuel air mines.

Dropped from the air, they release and then ignite a cloud of flammable mist, creating an explosion resembling a small nuclear blast. Maj. James McClain said the explosives have yet to be used against Iraq.

What has been used is more conventional firepower, and U.S. strategists are closely watching the bomb damage done to Iraq's formidable Republican Guard.

"We're dropping a lot of ordnance on the Republican Guard... We're out there to destroy the Republican Guard," Marine Brig. Gen. Richard I. Neal told reporters in Riyadh on Wednesday. "I think we're experiencing good success."

At the Pentagon, a senior military officer warned against writing off the 150,000-member guard too soon. "We've not annihilated any of their primary war-fighting capabilities," the officer said. "It's going to be a tough nut to crack."

If the effectiveness of the bombing campaign against the guard was difficult to pin down, the allies could point to some clear successes. Air Force F-15s destroyed two Su-25 fighter bombers trying to flee to Iran, officials reported Wednesday.

Two Iraqi MiG-21s, listed Wednesday as probable kills in the same engagement, were upgraded today to definite ones, the military said.

Allied officials have reported the capture of more than 850 Iraqi soldiers since the fighting broke out. Today, a British newspaper, The Independent, reported that four Iraqi deserters had surrendered to Western journalists in northern Saudi Arabia.

The Iraqis were "unshaven, exhausted and famished," said the journalists, who turned them over to a mixed unit of special forces.

Iraq has reported severe shortages of food and medical supplies, and United Nations officials said U.N. agencies will send emergency medical supplies for Iraqi children and mothers as early as next week. Diplomats said the shipments will probably go overland from Iran, but final arrangements have not been made.

Diplomats also said the U.N. Security Council met briefly in private on Wednesday and decided to convene next week for private discussion of the war.

Any communication between the warring parties may be complicated by Iraq's decision to sever diplomatic ties with the United States and other principal members of the alliance.

Iraq's Foreign Ministry announced the decision in a broadcast by Iraq radio Wednesday night. It urged other countries to follow Iraq's lead and break relations with Britain, France, Italy, Egypt and Saudi Arabia, in addition to the United States.

While stopping short of cutting ties with the allied coalition, Jordan's King Hussein issued his harshest denunciation yet of Iraq's enemies. "This is a war against all Arabs and Muslims and not only against Iraq," the king said Wednesday in an emotional televised speech.

The Jordanian monarch, previously known for his pro-Western moderation, called on Arabs and Muslims to "make the alliance accept a cease-fire," but President Bush immediately rejected any truce without an Iraqi pullout from Kuwait.

Piled atop the other problems in the gulf was the giant oil spill blackening its waters and beaches. The slick has touched the shore at Safaniya in northeastern Saudi Arabia and may threaten production in the world's largest offshore oil field.

Snake-like booms stretched across the turquoise water in the path of the spill, which the allies say began two weeks ago when Iraq began pumping Kuwaiti crude into the northern Persian Gulf. The spill is about 17 miles from Jubail, site of a desalination plant that provides much of the Arabian peninsula's fresh water.

being systematically destroyed by American and coalition forces," he said. "And the road to real peace will be difficult, long and tough, I'd say, but we will prevail."

The president's two top military advisers were stopping by Capitol Hill today before leaving for Saudi Arabia to discuss the next stage of the war with the commander of the allied forces, Army Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, planned to testify in public to the House Armed Services Committee, a day after meeting privately with key lawmakers.

Baker also was returning to Congress to appear before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The administration was speaking carefully in discussing the prospects of shifting from the air war, now in its fourth week, to ground combat. Bush himself said this week he was "skeptical" the war could be won solely through the bombing campaign.

His spokesman, Marlin Fitzwater, went further, saying there probably would be a ground war.

"It's no secret that at some point it probably will require ground forces to reach our final conclusion of getting Iraq out of Kuwait," Fitzwater said.

Some in Congress, concerned about the likely casualties in a long ground combat, have urged Bush to rely on the air war for months longer.

"I don't think it has gone on long enough to convince anyone it is time to commence the ground phase," said Rep. Dave McCurdy, D-Okla., new chairman of the House Intelligence Committee.

House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., said after meeting with Cheney and Powell that members of Congress "feel good that there seems to be no rush" to a ground war. He added, "I'm just confident that General Powell feels the same way."

Bush rejected a cease-fire call from Jordan's King Hussein, who made that plea in delivering a sharply critical speech that sided with Iraq. Hussein said allied air attacks were destroying Iraq in "a war against all Arabs and Muslims."

"There will be no cease-fire," the president declared to reporters aboard Air Force One as he flew to New York.

Referring to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, Bush said: "There will be nothing of that nature until this man commences a credible, unilateral withdrawal, and then we'll see what happens."

At the Economic Club, Bush touted the success of high-technology weaponry against Iraqi targets. He said that despite Iraqi protests of civilian casualties, the successful use of high-technology targeting had saved lives, including those of Iraqis.

He said they are evidence his new defense budget proposal should not be cut by Congress.

Hints from Heloise

Q. I'm sure you have been asked this question many times, but what is the best way to clean water spots from shower doors and tiles? — Cathy Roselli, Seattle, Wash.

A. An easy way is to rub the shower door with lemon-oil furniture polish to soften the gunk. Leave it on for a few minutes and scrub with a swatch of nylon net. If the lime deposit or gunk is real stubborn, use a single-edged razor blade and carefully scrape the remainder off, being careful not to scratch the glass.

Do not get the oil on the floor of the tub because that could make it dangerously slippery.

Once it is completely clean, apply another coat of the oil to prevent the water spots from reappearing.

For the tiles, you will need to remove all the soap and hard water buildup first with a tile cleaner. Once clean, apply a good paste wax and buff with a dry cloth. This will help deter future water spots.

MINERAL OIL

Dear Heloise: Recently after painting, I was left with the irritating and smelly chore of removing paint splatters from my skin with turpentine or paint thinner.

My father suggested I try mineral oil. I did and it worked great! The paint came right off with no scrubbing and it didn't irritate my skin. — Patty Simpson, Battle Creek, Mich.

Be sure to leave a sponge in your shower and wipe down the walls after each use. This will help more than anything! — Heloise

Dear Heloise: For all you car poolers, here is a tip that can save time on those busy mornings.

If you are not going to work or school that day, place a piece of colored paper in the front window of the front door of your home to let the driver know he does not have to stop. — Mike Grossman, Houston, Texas

A thoughtful gesture that will certainly make the driver's job easier. And no honking to disturb the neighbors! — Heloise

HOME ASSEMBLY

Dear Heloise: Many things that I have bought lately require home assembly. I found a way to keep track of all the nuts and bolts that might get misplaced.

I get a long piece of masking tape and press the ends together with the sticky side out. Then I attach it to my work table and use the adhesive side to hold loose pieces. — Rick Miller, Cold Spring Harbor, N.Y.
