BERLIN (AP) - Tens of thousands of East Germans streamed into West Berlin and other parts of West Germany today after a heady night of celebrating the opening of the Berlin Wall and western borders for the first time in 28 years.

"The Wall is gone! Berlin is again Berlin," proclaimed a banner headline in the Bild Zeitung, the West Berlin tabloid. Revelers in downtown West Berlin early today waved copies of the newspaper, popped champagne corks and lit sparklers.

East and West Berliners joined in dancing atop the Berlin Wall during the celebrations, which lasted from about 10 p.m. Thursday night until about 5 a.m. More than 50,000 East Berliners crossed into West Berlin during the night, said the West German radio station Sender Fries Berlin. Only about 1,000 of them planned to stay, the radio said.

Today, lines of East Berliners waited at control points to enter West Berlin, and a number of them said Communist border guards were rapidly handing out visas. The visas were required as of this morning for those wanting only to visit the West.

West Berlin police said, however, that East Germans were being allowed in without visas.

About 9,000 East Germans crossed into the West German states of Lower Saxony, Hesse and Schleswig-Holstein during the night, border police said today. Most of them as well planned to return.

West German television showed East Germans crossing this morning into Lower Saxony at the Duderstadt border control point.

"It was so simple to come over," one young East German said. "The feeling is just indescribable."

East German radio announced that starting this morning, citizens would be required to get a visa to cross into West Berlin.

East Germany's surprise decision to open the borders came at a Central Committee meeting Thursday and followed a dizzying series of reforms announced by new Communist leader Egon Krenz.

Guenter Schabowski, a member of the ruling Politburo, announced the borders were being opened until a law is passed allowing East Germans greater freedom of travel. He did not say when the law would be passed.

President Bush said upon hearing the news that if East Germany makes good on its promise to allow free emigration, "this wall built in '61 will have very little relevance."

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl interrupted an official visit to Poland to return home for a Cabinet meeting on the developments.

In Moscow, Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady I. Gerasimov praised the East German reforms but cautioned that any speculation about a reunified Germany was "out of the question."

The sight of people dancing atop the barrier that epitomized the Cold War since it was built in 1961 was unthinkable only hours earlier. Some took hammers and chisels to the wall Thursday night, chipping it for souvenirs or joining in a symbolic effort to tear it down.

Hundreds of West Berliners took advantage of the newly opened borders to head in the opposite direction and catch a glimpse of the other side of the divided city.

"What joy! This is the best thing that happened in 100 years!" yelled a West Berlin man.

Many hugged and kissed strangers, while cars packed with East Germans and others paraded down the streets of West Berlin.

"It's crazy! It's crazy!" shouted one young man as he sat in the back seat of a car with his parents after a brief trip past the wall.

With decades of fortified frontiers apparently at an end, the wall that for decades represented the literal division between the East and West may become a mere monument to the Cold War.

Former leader Erich Honecker, replaced by Krenz last month, supervised the building of the wall before he became Communist Party chief.

Krenz on Thursday also advocated a law that would ensure free and democratic elections in his Communist nation, which has been disrupted by pro-reform demonstrations and weakened by mass flight to the West.

More than 200,000 East Germans, nearly 1 1/2 percent of the nation's 16 1/2 million people, have left so far this year - 50,000 since Saturday alone. Most are young, skilled workers vital to the economy.

Hundreds of thousands of people who stayed behind have filled the streets to demand democratic reforms and an end to 40 years of rigid one-party rule.

As the pressure gained momentum this week, the leadership took increasingly desperate steps in an attempt to turn the tide.

On Wednesday, Krenz purged the old guard from the party Politburo and slimmed it down from 21 members to 11.

Krenz, 52, touched on multiparty elections in a speech to the Central Committee that official newspapers published Thursday. He recommended a "new election law that ensures free, democratic general elections with a secret ballot."

He did not say whether he wanted a true multiparty system in East Germany, but has said previously that the supremacy of the Communist Party is not open to debate.

Bush lauds 'happening for freedom'

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush, lauding East Germany's lifting of travel restrictions as a dramatic advance for freedom, is ordering "all possible assistance" to help West Germany cope with the flood of refugees from its communist sister state.

The border-opening decree by East German authorities on Thursday caught U.S. officials by surprise.

If East Germany fully implements the promise to open its borders, the president told reporters, "this (Berlin) Wall built in '61 will have very little relevance."

It was just 6 1/2 months ago in a speech in Mainz, West Germany, that Bush added his voice to the chorus of U.S. presidents who have demanded that the Berlin Wall be torn down. He called it then a "brutal wall" that "stands as a monument to the failure of communism. It must come down!"

Former President Reagan said on the ABC television show "Prime Time Live" that "if the wall isn't torn down immediately, at least they could keep the gates open."

East Germany said it was opening its borders to the rest of the world and that its citizens may travel or emigrate anywhere, including through the 28-year-old Berlin Wall, erected at the height of the Cold War between East and West.

"It's a dramatic happening for East Germany and, of course, for freedom," Bush said.

The White House announced Thursday night that Bush had ordered U.S. military units and U.S. Ambassador Vernon Walters to give "all possible assistance" to the West German government struggling to cope with the flood of refugees. The Pentagon said it was making available housing for 980 people in three off-base installations.

Other U.S. leaders reacted with a mixture of joy and surprise.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell of Maine called it a "symbolic destruction of the Berlin Wall" and urged East Germany to "take the final step and tear that wall down."

"The events of today are truly remarkable," said Vice President Dan Quayle.

Bush, with Secretary of State James A. Baker III at his side and a map of Germany open on his desk, said, "We salute the people in East Germany, whose aspirations for freedom seem to be a little more down the road now."

Bush seemed subdued in an exchange with reporters summoned to the Oval Office to hear his reaction to the latest startling news from the East Bloc.

"I am not an emotional kind of guy," he explained. But he added, "I feel very good about it."

Bush said he was prepared to give "maximum help" to Bonn to cope with refugees. Some 200,000 East Germans have fled their country this year through Hungary, Czechoslovakia or other routes West.

But recalling his advice last spring to Poles to stay in their homeland to work for democratic reforms, Bush said:

"These are Germans. And Germans love their country. And at some point, I think a lot of Germans who have felt pent-in and unable to move are going to say, 'Look, we can move but wouldn't it be better to participate in the reforms that are taking place in our own country?'"

Bush said that when he meets with Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev next month in the Mediterranean, he would discuss additional steps the United States might take to help spur change in East Europe - including possible restoration of long-denied U.S. trade benefits.

Sounding a note of caution, Bush said, "I don't think any single event is the end of what you might call the Iron Curtain, but clearly this is a long way from the harshest Iron Curtain days."

Old soldiers take look back

BARBOURSVILLE, W.Va. (AP) - Old soldiers die, but they never fade away at the old soldiers' home, where they celebrate Veterans Day with memories of glory past and make no apologies for the place they live.

"This is my home and I'm proud of it," says Lawson G. Taylor, 71, a two-year resident of the Barbourville Veterans Home. "I won $3 in bingo last night."

Barbourville is one of many such homes in West Virginia where veterans, often rebuilding lives broken by injuries and rejection, try to put things back together and relive tales of old battles.

West Virginia sent more soldiers per capita to the Korean War than any other state and the state's casualty rate in Vietnam was the highest in the nation, 28.8 per 100,000 residents, according to federal statistics.

Some say the state's traditionally poor economy pushes more soldiers to war; others attribute the figures to a fighting spirit among people whose ancestors conquered rugged terrain and seceded from Virginia during the Civil War.

"West Virginia is a very patriotic state," Secretary of State Ken Hechler said. "We have a lot of hunters who are very good in the use of guns. A few of them join up because of the tough times at home."

West Virginia officials say the state hasn't received a fair return on its investment. While the state's residents paid $1.59 billion in federal taxes that went toward defense spending in 1987, only $322 million in defense-related work was funneled back to the state, according to a study by Employment Research Associates.

But Barbourville residents say they aren't bitter, and draw from a healthy reservoir of patriotism even when it isn't Veterans Day, which will be observed on Saturday.

"If we ever have a war on our shores, the enemy will be in trouble," said David Hall, a 41-year-old Vietnam veteran and resident of the home. "If they got as far as West Virginia, they wouldn't get much farther."

"War was just something that had to be done. We had a man who told us what to do and we did it," said Taylor, a World War II veteran. "I've never talked to a West Virginian who came back and said he was sorry he went."

About 115 veterans live in the Barbourville home, a former state hospital that was renovated in 1975. The average stay is 16 months and residents double, triple- or quadruple-up in cramped quarters formerly used by mental patients.

There's little anger toward those who fled to Canada to avoid the Vietnam draft and those who protested the war.

A little known historical fact is that George Washington was born in South Texas, not in Virginia.

George grew up on a beautiful South Texas ranch, where his father had established a great stand of mesquite trees.

One day George's father went out to stand in the splendor of the mesquites when he saw one of the mesquites had been chopped down. The father found little George, who was hiding amidst the prickly pears.

"George," the father asked, "did you chop down my mesquite tree?" "Father, I can not tell a lie," George said. "I chopped down the tree."

George's father dropped his head and said, "Go in and tell your mother to pack all of our things.

We're moving to Virginia." "Why Virginia, father?" asked George.

"Because all of my life I dreamed you would grow up to be a politician," the father said. "But you can't tell the truth and be a Texas politician."

The Child Welfare Board of Deaf Smith County is sponsoring the canned-food drive. They will take all the cans of food and turn them (See BULL, Page 2)

Prairie Justice: Judgment

EDITOR'S NOTE: Half a decade after Rhonda Templin died, her widowed husband Bobby stood formally accused of her death. A reluctant justice system finally responded to the suspicions of Rhonda's parents, whose own investigations led to their son-in-law's indictment. As court convened on Nov. 6, 1981, Bobby Templin is ready to testify.

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

ROTAN, Texas (AP) - At week's end, Judge Weldon Kirk's courtroom in the nearby county seat of Roby was overflowing with spectators scrambling for prime spots on the front row.

Defense attorney Charlie Scarborough, arguing that the state failed to prove its case against Bobby Templin, had asked the judge for an instructed verdict of acquittal. It was a customary and predictable move.

Just as predictably, the request was denied by Judge Kirk.

Scarborough proceeded to call only a handful of defense witnesses, and it now seemed certain that Bobby's fate hinged on his own appearance before the jury of five women and seven men.

As expected, Scarborough led his client through a series of critical denials aimed at the heart of the state's case against him:

- Bobby did not, as Carroll cleverly called it, "plug up" dogs and cats with bare-wire electrical cords like the one found by Rhonda's body.

- He did not buy a radio from Wanda Kiker in Roby on April 8, 1976, even though such a radio was found in the bathtub with Rhonda's body.

- Rhonda was not upset with him on the Saturday night before her death.

- He was not nervous and jittery when buying gas Sunday morning.

- He did not leave their home in Rotan on the morning of Rhonda's death for 10 minutes; it was more like a half hour.

- He did not buy the $10,000 insurance policy at the local bank; Rhonda bought it for both of them.

- He did not tell conflicting stories of severing the extension cord.

And finally, as he ended direct questioning, there was this exchange with Scarborough:

Q: How would you describe your relationship with Rhonda the last few months before she died?

A: I would describe it as very good and stable.

Q: Okay. Now if that were true, why were you having an affair?

A: I don't know. I realize it was wrong, but I don't know why.

Q: Did you kill Rhonda Templin?

A: No, I did not.

Scarborough: "Pass the witness."

In a voice rich in scorn and sarcasm, District Attorney Rusty Carroll cross-examined Bobby on every flaw or conflict in his testimony and the earlier sworn and unsworn statements taken by Rhonda's parents and district attorney's investigator Ken Crow.

It was an opportunity Carroll intended not to fumble. Along with Crow, he was among the first to believe Norbert and Jaye Nell Schlegel's dark representations of their son-in-law Bobby.

He sought to portray Bobby's denials as ludicrous, suggesting that prosecution witnesses Wanda Kiker, Susie Martin, Donna Shipp, Alta Hinson, the Schlegels and even Bobby's own aunt and cousins must be lying.

"Can you give this jury any explanation why all of these people are lying about you?" Carroll asked.

"...No, I can't," Bobby replied.

"Are they all sadly mistaken...?"

"I have no idea."

"Are they out to frame you?"

"I have no idea."

"You suspect a giant conspiracy among all of these people to get you wrongfully convicted?"

"I can't say it is a conspiracy of any kind."

During a break in testimony, Carroll and Sheriff Mickey Counts spotted Bobby cutting up with his giggling female fan club and flashing the girls a sign that said, "I'm the bad guy." Carroll and the sheriff hoped the jury witnessed the episode.

After a volley of parting shots about Bobby's adventuresome sex life outside his marriages, Carroll surrendered the witness, and testimony ended minutes later.

"Rusty crucified him," Ken Crow concluded. "Bobby was a lousy witness."

'Hobby Plan' filed for workers' comp

AUSTIN (AP) - Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby may be the most powerful man in the Legislature, but "he still has to get 21 votes" to have his workers' compensation proposal considered by the Senate, a state lawmaker said.

Hobby, the presiding officer of the Senate, has written two bills to overhaul the comp system. Sens. Kent Caperton and Carl Parker have pre-filed a competing plan.

Caperton, D-Bryan, on Thursday was referring to the two-thirds Senate vote necessary to bring a bill up for discussion.

But Caperton stressed the similarities in the proposals. "We had been anxiously awaiting his (Hobby's) product. I want to see where we can merge our bills," Caperton said.

The Legislature returns Tuesday for a special session devoted to overhauling the insurance system that employers have criticized because of high premiums and workers have blasted because of meager benefits.

Lawmakers failed to reach a compromise on reforming the $3 billion per year system during a 140-day regular session and a 30-day special session last summer.

Hobby's bills have been sponsored by an equal number of Democrats and Republicans. Hobby, a Democrat, said, "I am extremely pleased at the bipartisan support for these bills. Both of them are attempts to solve the problems that are driving up costs in our workers' compensation system."

His plan and the Caperton-Parker proposal differ in two major areas: calculating benefits for disabilities and resolving disputed claims.

Under the Hobby plan, compensation would be based on an impairment schedule set by the American Medical Association, while the Caperton-Parker bill is tied to lost wages and earning capacity.

Hobby's plan would also restrict juries to two issues: whether a worker's injury occurred on the job and the extent of impairment caused by the injury. The Caperton-Parker bill modifies the current system but does not restrict jury trials to those two issues.

Both plans increase benefits for injured workers and provide incentives for reducing the number of job accidents through rate discounts and penalties for unsafe employers.

Both plans also call for a phase-in of mandatory comp coverage, except for small businesses, and both call for major reforms in the insurance pool for employers who cannot buy comp coverage on the open market.

A proposal by Caperton and Parker to create a state insurance company to compete with private insurers was blasted by the Texas Compensation Insurance Association.

Jay Thompson, president of the insurance group, said the proposal would cripple the private insurance industry.

Prison site selection defended

AUSTIN (AP) - Amid criticism from some losing cities, members of the Texas Board of Criminal Justice defended the process for choosing sites for six new state prisons.

On Thursday, board Chairman Charles Terrell said the selection has been "absolutely" fair. "I'm also satisfied that we've got 12 good finalists."

The board on Monday is scheduled to choose six sites from a list of 12 finalists for three 2,250-bed maximum security prisons and three 1,000-bed medium security units. The 12 finalists were announced Wednesday.

"I think, probably the process is being handled as well as it could be," said board member F.L. Stephens of San Angelo.

People involved with two communities' proposals passed over by the board said they weren't convinced the selection has been conducted fairly.

"It is my belief that it was all in place, said and done, before yesterday's (Wednesday's) meeting," said Ernestine Beicker, who helped organize the proposal from Karnes County.

Harry Stafford of Woodville, which already has been awarded one prison, was told in its contract for that unit that "we'd be given due consideration for an additional prison."

But Stafford said, "I don't think we were given due consideration. We were told about a week before that the fact that we had one (prison) was not in our favor."

Both Stafford and Ms. Beicker said their communities worked hard to prepare their site proposals.

"Then we started getting rumors that we weren't going to get one because we already had one. It was pretty apparent there the other day (Wednesday) that was a big problem," Stafford said.

"We've been through a long, hard struggle to get this, and then to not even be considered is quite a blow to the county," Ms. Beicker said.

Stafford and Ms. Beicker said they had heard rumors before the selection of finalists that an unofficial "short list" of sites might exist.

Stephens and board member Allan Polunsky of San Antonio said they knew nothing of a short list.

Another board member, Robert Mead of Waco, said, "You can hear anything you want to hear... As far as I'm concerned they (all 12 sites) certainly do" have a chance.

Terrell said he thinks each board member probably has been narrowing down personal preferences. "I'm sure there is (a short list) in every member's mind. As you visit these towns, you get an opinion of where you think these prisons are needed," he said.

Asked if any of the 12 sites enjoys front-runner status, Terrell replied, "I'm not going to comment on any front-runners at this point. That would be presumptuous."

Forty-four communities expressed interest at the outset, and some spent thousands of dollars preparing their proposals.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Whenever we hear teachers complain or threaten to go on strike, someone ought to hand them the following piece. I found it when I was cleaning out the attic, getting ready to move. I don't know where it came from. If you think it's as amusing as I do, please run it. -- D.G.G. (Santa Fe)

DEAR D.G.G.: It's a hoot. Thanks for sending it my way.

The Alamosa (Colo.) Valley Courier has culled from a recent bulletin of the Piedra Valley Parent-Teachers Association at San Mateo, N.M., a reprint of rules for elementary school teachers in 1872. Among the admonitions:

Each teacher will bring a bucket of water and a scuttle of coal daily.

Men teachers may take one evening a week for courting purposes, or two evenings a week if they go to church regularly.

After 10 hours of school the teacher should spend the remaining time reading the Bible or other good books.

Women teachers who marry or engage in unseemly conduct will be discharged.

Any teacher who uses liquor in any form, frequents pool halls, taverns, or gets shaved in a barber-shop gives cause to suspect his character.

The teacher should lay aside from each pay a goodly sum of his earnings for his declining years, so that he will not become a burden to society.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Here's a suggestion for adult children: Go home to visit your parent or parents without your spouse from time to time. It will do wonders for all concerned.

I came to see the importance of these solo visits two years ago when my husband became seriously ill. Our son flew in from California, leaving his wife and daughters behind. It was so wonderful to have him all to ourselves that I'm sure it hastened my husband's recovery.

In July our daughter came home for a five-day stay. It was a treat for us and for her, too, because she had left four children and her husband in Ohio. We loved every minute of that visit, and you can be sure her husband and children appreciated her as never before when she returned home.

A few weeks ago I had lunch with a woman I've known for years. She told me that she had never had one day alone with her son since he married 20 years ago. "I love having his wife and children here," she said, "but having him all to ourselves would be like heaven." Yesterday I heard the same story from a friend with two married daughters. Although they both lived within 200 miles of their parents, they never once came home without husband and children.

I hope you will print this letter, Ann, and urge married children to brighten the lives of their parents by returning home alone. In a way it's an opportunity to relive their youth. -- Missouri Mom

DEAR M.M.: When children marry they become the nucleus of their own family. This is as it should be, and in well-adjusted families it is expected.

Generally, married children come home at vacation time and this means the whole kit and kaboodle come together. But there is always time for a one-on-one visit with a son or daughter if the children want it, and those moments can be precious.

Lonesome? Take charge of your life and turn it around. Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.15 (this includes postage and handling) to: Friends, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. (If Canada send $5.05.)

We are especially interested in those families who have children between the ages of two-and-one-half to five-years of age, who would benefit from such a program. All services are free. Services available are health, hearing, handicap, social service, nutrition, education and parent involvement.

When the families come to register their children they will need to have the following information available. Proof of migration, check stub, children's immunization record, adult's social security number, income tax return and children's birth certificate.

If you have a child or know someone that has a child two-and one-half to five-years of age please send the following information: Full name of family, address, ages of children and telephone to: Hereford T.M.C., 410 Irving, P.O. Box 1126, Alt. Tomas Salazar, Center Director.

Names in the News

NEW YORK (AP) - It may not have reached fever pitch yet but John Travolta once again is a hot item in Hollywood.

Travolta said in this week's US magazine he once considered becoming an airline pilot after his film career nosedived during the 1980s.

With the success of "Look Who's Talking," in which Travolta plays a big-hearted cab driver who woos single mother Kirstie Alley, Travolta is in demand again.

"All you need is the right movie and you're back," Travolta said.

Twelve years ago, Travolta was strutting his stuff in "Saturday Night Fever." Then came "Urban Cowboy" and "Blow Out." But interspersed with the hits were a series of flops.

Herd harriers head to state meet

The Hereford Whiteface girls cross country team will make its third straight appearance Saturday at the Class 4A state meet in Georgetown in an attempt to improve on last year's fourth-place finish in the team standings.

The girls team will be joined by Tim Stagner, who qualified for the meet as an individual, while Teresa Castillo will also be running for individual honors.

Coach Martha Emerson said she expects her runners to be competitive at the meet, which will have the top 12 teams and the 40 best individuals.

"We're running the best we have all year," Emerson said. "Our times are actually better than what we ran at state last year, and, from what I've seen, they compare well with what runners from the rest of the state have been doing."

Emerson was quick to add that several factors make comparing times from the regular season mean little.

"There's going to be a lot of variation in the course everybody else has been running on," she said.

As for the course on which the state meet is run, Emerson said it will provide a tough test for Hereford's runners.

"You finish on a little up-hill before you come in to the finish," she said. "You've got to be in shape to run well on that course. The times there are always a little slower than what people have been running, but, as long as it's that way for everybody, we'll be in good shape."

Emerson said one factor in Hereford's favor will be having four team members who have run at the state meet before. Senior Sally Garza will be making her third appearance at the meet while juniors Castillo and Lisa Zepeda and sophomore Denise Davila made the trip last year.

"It can only help us," Emerson said of the experience. "Those four will be able to handle the pressure and ignore all the activity much better than someone who hasn't been there. And they should be able to pass that along to the girls who are making their first trip down."

Emerson added that even making the meet has provided motivation for the runners.

"Tim is so sky high over just making it to state that he shouldn't have any trouble," Emerson said. "Plus, he knows how close he's been all year to the boys from Randall that we feel he could be able to finish in the top 10. It just depends on how many runners he lets get in between."

One thing Emerson has been pushing during workouts this week has been not to let up during the race.

"I've been telling the girls that they cannot ease off at the end of the race. Everybody they pass means points and one place could mean the difference between getting a medal or not."

Emerson added that the number of runners competing individually will also affect on the race.

"There's going to be so many people running not on a team that it will make a difference in the scoring," she said. "Last year, we had a girl that finished about 32nd, but because of the individuals, her score was down around 24." Another thing that may hamper the runners is the expected warm weather and humidity in the central part of the state.

"Last year, it was 93 degrees when the boys ran in the afternoon," Emerson said. "I think that really hurt some of them, especially over the last mile of the race."

"But I don't think it will be that bad this time. And I don't think it would hurt us as much in the fall, when we've had fairly warm weather, as it would if we went down there in the early spring and hit that hot weather after being cold up here."

Frosh take wins over 'Dogs, Demons

The Hereford Whiteface freshman and junior varsity football teams wrapped up their schedules Thursday with games against Dumas, Borger and Estacado.

Coach Jimmy Rowton's freshman Maroon squad split into "A" and "B" units to take on Dumas. The Demons took the "B" game, 12-8, at the South Field while Hereford won the "A" contest, 26-6, at Whiteface Stadium.

Coach Joe Cabezuola's freshman White team followed on the Stadium turf with a 34-18 win over Borger.

The JV traveled to Lubbock to take on Estacado, losing 36-12.

Dumas 12, Frosh Maroon "B" 8

Quarterback Jake Head scored Hereford's only touchdown on a one-yard sneak in the second quarter and tailback Joe DeLeon ran for the conversion as Hereford took an 8-6 halftime lead.

Dumas put the first points on the board with a nine-play, 65-yard drive that was capped off by Johnny Solis' 31-yard run.

The Herd responded by driving 55 yards with the ensuing kickoff for Head's score. The touchdown was set up when Head connected with tight end Cameron Bell for a 14-yard gain. Head completed two other passes, for 10 yards to Ruben Gutierrez and 15 yards to Bell, in the drive.

Dumas threatened to score in the third quarter, driving to the Hereford 9-yard line before linebacker Vince Castillo intercepted Paul Legg's pass and returned it 32 yards.

Hereford's drive stalled at the Dumas 38 and the Demons took the lead six plays later when Solis went 29 yards for the score.

Frosh Maroon "A" 26, Dumas 6

Hereford quarterback Richard Sanderson threw for two touchdowns to Jason Tatarevich and ran for two more to lead the Maroon "A" team.

Hereford scored on its first possession, moving the ball 70 yards in eight plays. Runs of 26 and 23 yards by Chris Brummett gave the Herd first down at the Dumas 10 to set up Sanderson's five-yard scoring toss to Tatarevich.

Hereford needed only four plays to get its next score when Sanderson and Tatarevich hooked up twice for 61 yards, including 27 yards for the score, and Brummett carried twice for 18 yards.

The Herd took a 20-0 lead on its next possession. An illegal procedure penalty on the first play wiped out a 35-yard Sanderson-to-Tatarevich pass, but the pair hooked up for a 41-yard gain on the next play. Sanderson found tight end Eric Sims for 17 yards over the middle to set up a 13-yard scramble for the score. Shawn Fogo added the run for two points.

Dumas got its touchdown when fullback Ismael Carbajal rumbled 44 yards to the Hereford-3. The Herd defense stopped the Demons for a three-yard loss and a pair of no gains, but an offside penalty gave Dumas the ball at the 2. Dennis Plunk finally breached the goal line on fourth down. The drive was set up by the Demons' James Smith's second interception of the game.

Sanderson added the Herd's final score when he kept on an option for 19 yards. Brummett ran six times for 41 yards in the drive and Sanderson found Sims for an 18-yard gain to convert a third down.

On the conversion attempt, Smith picked off Sanderson's pass and returned it 103 yards, but a clipping penalty during the runback kept Dumas from claiming the points.

Frosh White 38, Borger 18

Tailback Pety Colvin went 75 yards for a touchdown on Hereford's first play of the game as the White crew brought its year to a successful conclusion.

The Herd defense up the score with a fumble recovery and stopped the Bulldogs next drive on downs at the Hereford 27.

Following a Hereford punt, Borger reached the Herd 32 before running out of downs again, and Colvin went 68 yards on the next play.

Hereford opened the second half with a five-play drive to take an 18-0 lead. Colvin gained all 65 yards on the drive and got the touchdown on a 49-yard run.

The Herd increased the lead on its next possession as Chad Sandoval hit Michael Ramirez for a 71-yard gain to the Borger 2. Colvin scored his fourth touchdown two plays later and ran for the conversion.

Borger came back with a 72-yard return of the kickoff and then added a 65-yard scoring run after forcing Hereford to punt.

Hereford snuffed the comeback attempt Jason Paetzold intercepted a pass and returned it to the Borger 3. Colvin put the game out of reach with a two-yard run for the score.

Hereford squibbed the kickoff and Nathan Henderson came up with the ball after it bounced off a Borger player.

Fullback Kyle Hansen carried seven times as the Herd tried to run out the clock, getting the final touchdown on a 10-yard run.

Estacado 36, Herd JV 12

Estacado scored on its first two offensive plays to jump out to a 14-0 lead in the first three minutes.

Larry Brown scored on a seven-yard run and Chris Blair connected with Amado Lopez for the Herd's other score.

Ex-Ranger sues team physician

ARLINGTON (AP) - Edwin Correa, a right-handed pitcher who spent the entire 1989 season on the disabled list, has filed suit against Texas Rangers team physician Michael Mycoskie, alleging the doctor allowed him to pitch with an injured arm.

The suit, filed Wednesday in state district court, seeks an unspecified amount of actual damages and 10 times that much in punitive damages.

Mycoskie and Correa could not be reached Thursday, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported.

The suit accuses Mycoskie of improper examination and diagnosis of Correa's shoulder problems. It says he allowed Correa to continue pitching during the 1986 season without diagnosing the problem, to pitch during 1987 spring training when the condition was worsening and to return to professional play in October 1987.

"Edwin Correa has remained on the disabled list throughout the season of 1989 and in all probability will be unable to return to baseball as a profession," according to the suit.

Correa, a native of Puerto Rico, was acquired by the Rangers in 1985 from the Chicago White Sox. His career major-league record is 16-19, with an earned-run average of 5.16.

During the 1986 season, Correa led major-league rookies in strikeouts with 189, ranked ninth overall among American League pitchers and tied for second in number of victories by a rookie with a team rookie record of 12.

The Rangers last month took Correa, 23, off their roster and offered him a pitching spot with their Triple-A affiliate in Oklahoma City, according to Barry Meister, Correa's agent.

Meister said Correa refused the minor-league assignment, choosing instead to become a free agent.

Meister said Correa does not have bad feelings towards the Rangers, who paid him $130,000 last season.

"They have always treated him with the utmost respect," said Meister, adding the suit shouldn't preclude Correa signing future contracts with the team.

NBC wins rights to NBA games

NEW YORK (AP) - Baseball will be on CBS. The NBA will be on NBC. The networks will split the Olympics. Things sure are changing in sports television.

NBC took the NBA away from CBS Thursday with a $600 million, four-year contract that continued the escalation of rights fees. The deal could push average pro basketball salaries into the $1 million range next season.

NBC has been the harshest critic of the increase in prices, accusing CBS of overbidding for the $1.06 billion four-year baseball deal and the $243 million 1992 Winter Olympics contract. Is NBC the guilty party this time?

"Perhaps," NBC president Robert

C. Wright said. "It's hard to draw the same explanation for every company at every time." He continued to criticize the CBS baseball deal, saying, "I would not be standing here today if we had that baseball contract hanging over our heads."

CBS, in the final season of a four-year, $176 million deal with the NBA, turned down the $600 million deal. "The increase in the total cost of the package sought by the league... was substantially more than we were prepared to pay," Neal H. Pilon, the president of CBS Sports, said in a statement.

"It's a big increase, but one I think is justified," NBA commissioner

David Stern said.

The next contract up is the NCAA basketball tournament, which concludes a three-year, $166.2 million arrangement with CBS this season. NBC officials said the network is interested in reacquiring the NCAA, but wouldn't go beyond that. Bidding on a new contract is scheduled for later this month.

Meanwhile, NBC was happy with its pro basketball coup, which gives the network the NBA for the first time since 1962. Dick Ebersol, the president of NBC Sports, said he expected CBS to renew and "was unbelievably surprised that this deal came to the street." He called the NBA "an unbelievable national success."

Charles Grantham, executive director of the NBA Players Association, also was excited. Under the collective-bargaining agreement between the league and the union, 53 percent of gross revenue goes to player salaries.

"It looks like we hit a home run," Grantham said. "This makes the owners and players very happy. We were close to the $1 million per player projected when the collective-bargaining agreement was signed in 1988.

Stern said that for purposes of the salary cap, the contract was evaluated at $126 million for 1990-91. Under the formula, the salary cap would rise from $9.8 million to at least $11.5 million per team. It would increase even more if non-television revenues increase.

NBC will show 20 regular-season games a year under the contract. There will be a November Sunday broadcast, a Christmas telecast and a series of Sunday afternoon games beginning in January. NBC will show the All-Star Game and up to 30 playoff games, all in the afternoon or prime time. Games 3 and 6 of the NBA Finals will be played on Sunday afternoons and the other games in prime time.

CBS, under a contract that expires at the end of the season, televises some West Coast games at 11:30 p.m. Eastern time. NBC, however, will have those games start during prime time in the East. NBC officials said the request was made by the NBA. NBC also has the highly rated "Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson" at 11:30 Eastern time.

A&M gets break in SWC

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

Only Texas A&M will be out of harm's way as the Southwest Conference football race gets critical for Texas and Arkansas Saturday.

The league-leading Aggies, 5-1, will be off two straight weeks before they play Arkansas on national television the day after Thanksgiving in College Station.

Arkansas, the defending SWC champion, hopes it can get there with just one league loss. The Hogs host Baylor at 3 p.m. in Fayetteville before a national television audience (ESPN). Portable lights will ring the stadium because the sun will set during the second half.

While Arkansas will be struggling with the Bears, the Texas Longhorns will be trying to corral Andre Ware, Houston's amazing quarterback who is just 263 yards short of the SWC passing record of 7,179 yards held by SMU's Chuck Hixson from 1968 to 1970.

Texas is 3-1 with four conference games remaining, including the 4 p.m. clash against the Cougars. Two years ago, Houston won 60-40 in the Astrodome.

The Longhorns hope wide receiver Tony Jones' sprained ankle heals because he has had two big games in the Dome. Against Houston, he caught five passes for 173 yards and two touchdowns. In a Bluebonnet Bowl game two years ago, he won MVP honors with eight catches for 242 yards and two touchdowns.

Jones will travel with the team, Longhorns coach David McWilliams said Thursday.

"He is still doubtful, but we sure can't play him if we leave him home,"

McWilliams said.

In another league game on Saturday, those giant-killing Texas Tech Red Raiders, who have two league losses but own victories over Top 25 teams Arizona, A&M, and Texas, hope to impress bowl scouts in a noon (Raycom TV, locally on KAMR-TV, Ch. 4) game against the pesky Texas Christian Horned Frogs. The Independence Bowl has been eyeing the Red Raiders.

Southern Methodist closes out the SWC's non-conference record in an 11 A.M. game against defending national champion Notre Dame, which is going for a school-record 22nd consecutive victory.

The Mustangs will get a $200,000 guarantee for making the trip to play against coach Lou Holtz, who once coached at Arkansas.

The SWC is 18-8-1 in non-conference games, one of their best ledgers of the decade against outside competition.

SMU coach Forrest Gregg said the Ponies welcome the chance to play Notre Dame.

"To perform well against the best tells you where you are and what your capabilities are," Gregg said. "I hope more of our players gain confidence by playing well at Notre Dame."

Arkansas' improved passing attack has Baylor worried.

"Their ability to throw the ball deep like they did against Houston really concerns me," Baylor safety Robert Blackmon said. "Quinn Grovey is a tough quarterback to contain because of his athletic ability and the ability to scramble." Rice is also idle on Saturday.

PRAIRIE

Markley led off final arguments for the state, branding Bobby a "handsome and clever lady killer" who committed the "almost perfect crime."

Rhonda's death, he declared, was "the most calculated, premeditated murder that probably ever happened in this county."

He said Bobby grew up electrocuting animals and that Rhonda's death proved that "practice makes perfect."

Markley claimed Bobby killed for insurance money and Melanie's affections and said he "set a deadline on himself" when he "shacked up" at the Holiday Inn and charged it on his Gulf credit card.

Markley explained that Bobby knew he must kill Rhonda before the credit card statement arrived in the mail and she learned of the motel rendezvous.

"It wouldn't be long and she would find out," he said.

Charlie Scarborough blamed the Schlegels for Bobby's plight, maintaining they could not come to grips with their daughter's death, which he insisted was a "tragic accident" and nothing more.

"Yet they have pursued and pursued and pursued and they have spent thousands of dollars pursuing Bobby and finally got him indicted," he said.

Rhonda's death was a "great tragedy," he added, but Bobby's ordeal was almost as tragic.

Rusty Carroll closed for the state with a withering attack on Bobby's purported "plugging up" defenseless dogs and cats and said it "shows the depravity of this man's mind."

In a case that took five and a half years to bring to trial, the jury's verdict was remarkably swift: Guilty.

Rusty saved one zinger for the punishment stage. As Bobby's father, new wife and civil lawyer attested to his good reputation, the prosecutor posed this question:

"Have you heard that while employed as a lab tech Bobby sexually abused a black female patient of the hospital by placing his mouth on her genitals?"

No, they said, they had not heard that.

With Scarborough's objections ringing in their ears, jurors retired for their second round of deliberations. Again they were out only briefly. They returned with the maximum penalty: 99 years in prison.

"Did he say guilty or not guilty?" Jaye Nell Schlegel wondered aloud in the moments after the verdict was rendered. Her husband Norbert's sigh of relief answered the question.

She and Norbert had been struggling more than half a decade to reach this point and both were almost speechless.

"I was just overwhelmed," Norbert said later. "I always felt like if we could sit down and talk with 12 people, they'd find him guilty. But you never know what a jury's going to do."

Their sense of justice and love for their daughter had not been the Schlegels' only motivations.

"We had to do this for our other kids," Norbert said. "They can say, 'Mom and Dad would do this for us, too.' I think it made a stronger bond between all of us. But we simply did what we had to do."

"There was nothing special about it."

Charlie Scarborough appealed the verdict, citing five grounds for reversal, the foremost being that there was insufficient circumstantial evidence to support the murder conviction.

Scarborough maintained the evidence did not exclude any reasonable hypothesis of accidental death or suicide.

The 11th Court of Appeals disagreed and upheld the conviction.

In so doing, the court also overruled Scarborough's contention that the conversation regarding Bobby's electrocuting dogs and cats was irrelevant and too remote to be admissible.

The court's ruling was recorded on Jan. 28, 1983, a little over two years after Bobby was convicted and sent to the state prison at Huntsville. And there he remained until April 23, 1986.

That was when the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals ruled that Rusty Carroll went too far in using the "plugging-up-puppies" issue to demonstrate prior misconduct on Bobby's part.

Said the state appellate court: "The prejudicial and inflammatory nature of this evidence was so great that it outweighed the probative value."

After serving a little over four years of his 99-year sentence, Bobby, then 32, was released on bail.

He remained free for some eight months while a new trial was scheduled and a special prosecutor was selected to try the case. Rusty Carroll had moved on to a new job at Belton in Central Texas. The new district attorney, Norman Arnett, could not prosecute because he had represented Bobby in the wrongful death suit filed by Norbert and Jaye Nell Schlegel to keep the investigation alive.

The Schlegels wanted Rusty to retry the case, but he couldn't break away from his new duties.

The second trial was moved 20 miles down state Highway 70 to Sweetwater on a change of venue and was set for March 16, 1987.

In the end, Pete Greene, a Snyder lawyer and a former district attorney, was selected as the special prosecutor to oppose Charlie Scarborough, who now was court-appointed because Bobby had no money for the retrial.

Greene was a popular choice, and it helped that he liked the Schlegels and was impressed with their investigative efforts.

"Their persistence and involvement was probably a better approach in the long run," he said. "If a guy with a badge tried to get the same information, he wouldn't have gotten it."

Despite the evidence and the previous conviction, Greene was more than a little worried. He knew he could not use the "plugging up dogs" testimony and he was afraid it had contributed to a conviction based more on emotion than evidence.

He also had doubts about motive, since the money was hardly substantial and Bobby had little to lose by simply getting a divorce.

"A guy having an affair could get a divorce a hell of a lot easier than he could kill his wife," he said. "And here, you're probably talking about a $5,000 property settlement at the most."

But whatever his misgivings, Pete Greene knew a shrewd country lawyer would not miss this opportunity, and he was nothing if not shrewd.

"Once every 10 years, you get a case like this," he said, pointing out that this was the kind of courtroom drama that gets people's attention.

He hurled himself into the prosecution and, like the Schlegels, became emotionally involved. It took four days to present a case based largely on the same evidence and witnesses as the original.

And if Greene lacked the high octane oratory of his predecessors, he did offer jurors a provocative murder plot in his closing statement.

According to this scenario, Bobby enters the bathroom with a new radio for Rhonda.

"She doesn't have any reason to suspect her husband is going to electrocute her while she's bathing," he said. "He...takes the radio and shows it to her. She says: 'Plug it in, let's listen to it.'"

"He says, 'Well, let me get a stool, we can put it over here where you can look at it closer.'"

"But it wouldn't quite reach. 'He says, 'Let me go get an extension cord.'"

"Comes back in the room, plugs the extension cord in, walks over carrying a similar extension cord close to her. He says: 'Here, hold the radio a moment.'"

"She reaches up to hold the radio, he places the wire under her arm. What happens? The electricity starts to make her muscles contract and he had it under her arm until she gets sufficient electricity passed through her heart to kill her, to take her last breath away."

Defense attorney Scarborough's scenario was lukewarm by comparison: "Her towel is in the bathtub. She reaches for the towel. I don't know if she's got soap in her eyes. I don't know what she did."

"If she reaches for it and that towel or her arm hits the radio, if the radio plops in, the radio first, that can cause the shock; gets her arm down on the cord, you've got it."

"That's what happened. Maybe. I think that's as likely as any other part of this whole case."

Scarborough's story didn't sell, and it's a safe bet that Bobby realized it. Sheriff Tickey Counts noticed that the defendant's demeanor had changed noticeably since the first trial.

"He'd spent some time in Huntsville and he wasn't in a giggling mood anymore," the sheriff said dryly.

It took the Sweetwater jury only 90 minutes to convict Bobby of murder and just 30 minutes to assess punishment once again at 99 years in the Texas Department of Corrections.

Immediately after the verdict, members of the original 1981 jury received a surprising letter. It made no mention of the earlier reversal or the results of the second trial but said:

"Of all the murder cases that I have been involved in, in my career as a prosecutor, no conviction was ever more satisfying than the one obtained against Bobby Templin as a result of the brutal and senseless murder he committed."

"I certainly feel that the verdict and the punishment assessed by you was just and proper."

The letter was signed by Rusty Carroll.
