Jobs Incentive Program

Few local firms participating in HEDC grant project

By Don Cooper

Hereford Brand Managing Editor

When Poarch Bros. Inc. of Hereford received a $39,750 grant from the Hereford Economic Development Corp. last week, it became only the third area company to participate in a little-known HEDC jobs program.

The program was launched during the first quarter of 1996, with the first grant awarded in May 1997.

The first (and second) recipient of a Jobs Incentive Program grant was Valley Farm Services, which manufactures sprinkler parts for irrigation systems.

Hatley acknowledged there has been little participation in the program, which hasn't been advertised much in recent months.

"We advertised it heavily for the first six months," but slowed the promotion because the HEDC "didn't want to keep spending money in a program that isn't used," Hatley said.

Although the program is not being promoted vigorously, Hatley said HEDC doesn't intend to drop it.

"There's no intention to drop it. In fact, we're very glad Poarch Brothers executed their (grant)," he said.

One of the reasons many Hereford and Deaf Smith County business have not participated is because of the program's restrictions, Hatley said, noting that participants must derive 75 percent of their income from outside the county.

"It's not for everyone," Hatley said. "It's for 'basic' businesses. ... This eliminates such things as grocery stores and gas stations."

The process for obtaining the jobs incentive grant involves four steps:

The existing business that desires to enroll in the program has to initiate the process by contacting the HEDC office.

After qualifications are determined, the business agrees to sign a document pledging to abide by the grant program rules.

After the jobs are created, the business must show proof of employment/wage rates for 12 consecutive months.

HEDC pays a one-time grant after all obligations are met.

The grant is based on the number of new jobs created and the wage rate for each new job.

The grant is calculated to be about $200 for each $1 hourly wage rate. For example, a qualifying business will receive $2,000 for each new job paying $10 an hour. The minimum annual wage must be at least $12,000, with the maximum incentive per job set for $4,000 per $20/hour and higher position.

The qualifying business must provide proof of employment performance, such as company payroll registers, W-2 forms, Texas Employment Commission quarterly reports.

Seniors see Glenn's space trek as one especially for them

WALLINGFORD, Conn. (AP) — As 91-year-old Adelaide Samuelson watched John Glenn lift off in the space shuttle Discovery, she knew science wasn't the only reason the 77-year-old Glenn was returning to space.

"I think he's doing it for us, for senior citizens," said Samuelson, as she and more than 100 other seniors gathered around a big-screen TV Thursday to watch Glenn become the world's oldest astronaut.

"He is showing what we can do. We're not all sitting around doing nothing," said Samuelson, at the Masonic Geriatric Healthcare Center in Wallingford, 20 miles north of New Haven.

From New Jersey to New Orleans, seniors beamed with pride as the U.S. senator from Ohio returned to space, 36 years after the historic trip when he became the first American in orbit.

Thousands gathered in senior citizen centers, in nursing homes, in senior apartment complexes or in small groups at home.

Discovery's nine-day mission will concentrate on science.

Glenn, one of seven astronauts, will participate in 10 experiments on the effects of weightlessness on the human body and how those effects might relate to aging on Earth.

Margaret Hoffman, 83, made sure she put her wheelchair in the front row at the Masonic center so she could get a good view of Glenn's historic moment.

"God bless him!" said Hoffman, tears trickling down her cheeks. "This guy's got everything in him that America needs."

At the San Francisco Senior Citizen Center, seniors said Glenn's voyage has already helped change stereotypes about old people.

"NASA showed today that a senior citizen can do anything that he makes himself capable of doing," said Pat Lakey.

Horace "Tex" Weaver, 71, figured Glenn's second historic flight might even help people on Earth — or at least the U.S. — relate a little bit better to people farther along the aging experience.

"Nowadays, the older American is nothing but a doorstep."

Inquiry might disallow privilege assertions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican House impeachment investigators want to prevent witnesses from dodging testimony by citing confidential conversations with the president or their lawyers, GOP officials say.

If adopted, the rule could affect potential witnesses such as presidential adviser Bruce Lindsey, the officials said Thursday. But it would likely have no impact on many more notable figures in the Monica Lewinsky matter, including Ms. Lewinsky herself. Few of them may be called.

The officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said GOP investigators currently also are leaning against summoning people such as presidential friend Vernon Jordan; President Clinton's secretary, Betty Currie; and Linda Tripp, who taped conversations with Ms. Lewinsky. There is no indication Clinton would testify.

The House Judiciary Committee already has thousands of pages of those witnesses' sworn and publicly released testimony, and having them paraded in front of television cameras to repeat it could thwart Chairman Henry Hyde's timetable, the officials said. The Illinois Republican wants to finish the inquiry by year's end.

Lindsey and other White House lawyers previously have refused to answer some of Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr's questions before a grand jury, citing executive privilege and attorney-client confidentiality. Lower courts have ruled against the White House, and that dispute is now pending before the Supreme Court.

The officials laid out Republican investigators' thinking as they prepare to present their strategy to Hyde in the next few days.

U.S. economic growth helped by health consumer spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. economic growth perked up over the summer as healthy consumer spending offset a continued decline in export sales and a dramatic slowdown in business investment.

The gross domestic product, the sum of all goods and services produced within U.S. borders, advanced at a 3.3 percent seasonally adjusted annual rate in the July-September quarter, the Commerce Department said today.

"Reports of the expansion's demise are greatly exaggerated," said economist Stuart G. Hoffman of PNC Bank Corp. of Pittsburgh. "The economy actually performed quite well and beat expectations."

Hurt by the world financial slump, the economy grew at a subdued 1.8 percent rate in the April-June period after soaring at a 5.5 percent rate during the first three months of the year.

Though showing stronger overall growth than the 2 percent forecast by economists, today's report nevertheless clearly delineated the impact of the financial crisis that began in Thailand a year and a half ago.

Exports fell at a 2.9 percent rate, the third consecutive quarter of decline, while imports rose at a 3.4 percent rate. The resulting deterioration in the trade deficit knocked nearly a percentage point from the overall growth rate.

That wasn't as bad as the previous two quarters, when the ballooning trade deficit reduced growth by more than two percentage points in each.

Treasury bond prices sank after the report on the stronger-than-expected performance of the economy. Yields on 30-year

Treasury bonds soared to 5.16 percent this morning from 5.08 percent late Thursday. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks had gained about 65 points at midmorning.

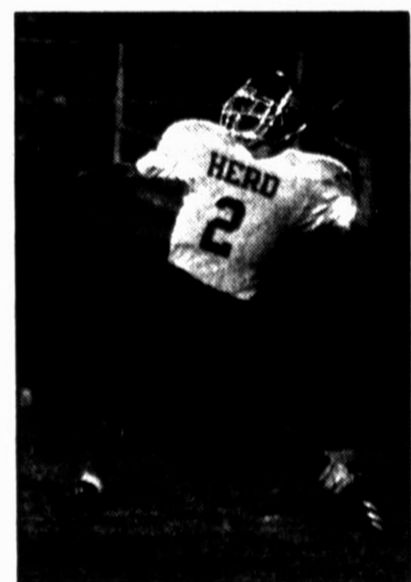

Businesses turned cautious in the third quarter. Though investment in new computers remained strong, overall spending on new equipment increased at a scant 1.1 percent annual rate, the smallest gain in nearly seven years. Spending on new buildings and structures fell at a 6.5 percent rate, the worst showing in 4 1/2 years.

Growth in another area of strength — housing construction — lapsed from a red-hot 15.3 percent in the first half of the year to a still-substantial 6.8 percent in the third quarter.

The Commerce Department said new-home sales fell for the

$40 million

The price of persuasion to kill tobacco legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hiring such heavyweights as former Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell and former White House chief of staff Howard Baker, the tobacco industry spent more than $40 million during the first six months of 1998 to lobby against legislation imposing new regulations and taxes on cigarettes.

Disclosure reports filed with the secretary of the Senate show the industry's spending on lobbyists rose 167 percent over the $15 million cost during the first half of 1997.

The object of the industry's ire: legislation to raise an estimated $516 billion over 25 years through a $1.10 tax increase on a pack of cigarettes and give the government new authority to regulate nicotine. Senate Republicans killed the bill in July.

In addition to the $40 million for lobbying, the tobacco industry spent $40 million on television commercials opposing the legislation, and contributed $5.6 million to parties and candidates this election cycle.

Tobacco representatives said they were simply exercising their First Amendment rights to express their opinions. "Philip Morris is an active citizen participating in the political process by expressing our views on issues that affect our businesses," Philip Morris spokeswoman Darienne Dennis said.

Local roundup

Schools sponsor book fairs

The Shirley School library will conduct the scholastic book fair during school hours through Friday.

Tierra Blanca and Northwest Primary Schools will hold book fairs Nov. 2-6 in the school libraries. The fairs will run from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 8:30 a.m. to noon on Friday.

Book fairs offer students, parents and faculty a chance to find old favorites as well as recent works and encourages young readers to read every day. Everyone is invited.

Football Raffle

Tierra Blanca Primary School is raffling football memorabilia as part of a fund raiser being conducted by the students. Items being raffled include a football bearing autographs by members of the 1998 Hereford Whiteface football team, which will be given away at halftime at the Nov. 6 game against Caprock High at Whiteface Stadium.

Raffle items are displayed at the school office.

Antique show and sale

Continental Shows, Ltd. is staging its Antique Show and sale extravaganza Oct. 30-Nov. 1 at the Amarillo Civic Center. Exhibits include china, glass, toys furniture, quilts and other collectibles.

Scientists prove adult brain regenerates

NEW YORK (AP) — Attention grown-ups: Your brain is doing more than a lot of scientists had thought.

For the first time, researchers have found that people create new brain cells during adulthood. That contradicts traditional wisdom and suggests that someday, scientists might be able to get the brain to fix damage from disease or injury.

Right now, the newly formed neurons are in the wrong place to overcome damage from such problems as alcoholism, Parkinson's or Alzheimer's disease, stroke or injury. The big question is whether scientists can find a way to make new neurons appear in the right places.

The new neurons were found in the hippocampus, a deep-brain structure important for learning and memory. It's not clear what they do, or even if they're functional.

The discovery is reported in the November issue of the journal Nature Medicine by Fred Gage of the Salk Institute for Biological Studies in La Jolla, Calif., and Peter Eriksson and colleagues at the Sahlgrenska University Hospital in Goteborg, Sweden.

"It's not providing an answer or a cure at this point in time for any particular disorder, but it's a very exciting discovery," said Dr. Ira Black, head of the department of neuroscience and cell biology at the Robert Wood Johnson Medical School in Piscataway, N.J.

He noted that adult rats had been found more than 30 years ago to make new neurons in their brains, but that conventional wisdom has said adult humans couldn't do it.

For the new study, the researchers examined autopsy specimens from people who'd been given a drug called BrdU because of cancer in their mouths or throats. BrdU is taken up by dividing cells, so doctors had administered it to see how rapidly the patients' tumors were growing.

But the drug also spreads through the body, including the brain. The researchers reasoned that if cells of the brain were dividing to spawn new cells, they would take up BrdU, and the substance could be detected later in the newly produced cells.

In hippocampus samples from all five patients, they found neurons containing BrdU, indicating the cells were produced on the day the substance was injected. Since the autopsies were done up to 781 days after the injection, some new neurons were able to persist that long, Gage said.

Two patients were in their 50's, two others in their 60's, and one was 72 when the cells were produced.

The brain makes neurons during its early development, of course, and "what we're saying is the same programs that are present during development are persisting throughout life," Gage said. "So it's not like something new is happening. Things we thought were ending are just continuing at a slower rate."

The neurons were generated by primitive "progenitor" cells. Animal studies have found progenitor cells widely in the brain and spinal cord, but they've been shown to produce neurons only in the hippocampus and the olfactory bulb, Gage said. The researchers weren't able to get usable olfactory bulb samples from the patients.

Harnessing these cells for medical treatment is a long term goal, Gage said. Scientists would first have to solve such riddles as what controls the proliferation of the progenitor cells, how the immature cells produced this way migrate to sites where they mature into neurons, and what influences them to become particular kinds of neurons, he said.

The researchers also found evidence of new cell production in tissue lining the brain's fluid-filled spaces, called ventricles. The newly produced cells weren't neurons. But animal studies suggest that immature cells produced here travel to the olfactory bulb and become neurons there, Gage said.

Lawmakers suggest extra safety for Halloween trick-or-treaters

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Along with the reflective tape and flashlights, a lawmaker suggests another tool parents can use to protect their trick-or-treating children: a list of sex offenders in their neighborhood.

The information is available as part of the revised Megan's Law that went into effect Oct. 1.

The law, named after a New Jersey girl killed by a sex offender who had moved into her neighborhood, requires persons convicted of sex crimes to register with the local police. It also requires police to make that list available to the public.

State Rep. Jim Amann, the author of Connecticut's version of the law, on Thursday urged people to familiarize themselves with the list before heading out to trick-or-treat.

"It's really simple," the Milford Democrat said. "Just go to the police department and ask for the list. You'll receive the list and while walking with the kids you will know what addresses to stay clear of."

Not everyone thinks it's a good idea. Critics said vandals could target addresses on the list. It also could give parents a false sense of security, said Rep. Richard Tulisano, D-Rocky Hill, who opposed passage of the law.

"Just because you have a list doesn't mean someone who is not registered is not out there, or someone who is registered is in that home," he said. "Parents should make sure they go out with their kids on Halloween. That is the way to make sure they are safe."

Police have reported a mixed response to the law, which went into effect on Oct. 1.

In Waterbury, Police Superintendent Edward Flaherty said very few people have asked to look at the list. The department is developing a Web site where they will post the information, he said.

Last year in the town, 13-year-old Stanley Edwards was lured into a neighbor's back yard and bludgeoned to death a month before Halloween.

Despite predications that few would venture out, there were plenty of trick-or-treaters in the neighborhood, said Stanley's mother, Jeanne Edwards.

"I myself took my neighbor's two little kids out trick-or-treating because she had to work," she said.

Recent rains cause aquifer level to rise

NEW BRAUNFELS, Texas (AP) — The Natural Bridge Caverns in South Central Texas are still underwater after the area received more than 19 inches of rain in just a few days earlier this month.

As a result of the unrelenting rain, the Glen Rose Aquifer rose more than 75 feet, flooding the caverns.

"If you have ever wondered what an aquifer looks like, this is your chance," said Brian Vauter, a cave geologist at Natural Bridge.

He said the water has receded, leaving one part of the caverns under 75 feet of water. Another area, known as Grendel's Canyon is under 60 feet of water.

He said depending on where he stands in the caverns, he can hear either a steady dripping of water or a rushing waterfall. The sounds are signs that the aquifer is recharging itself, he said.

"There's a lot of science going on down here," Vauter said.

The caverns were formed at least 20 million years ago by an underground river so a little water should not hurt the ancient formations, he said.

Grand jury returns indictments

Deaf Smith County grand jury returned the following 13 indictments Thursday.

- Mario Alberto Alvarez, 29, of Arlington, charged with theft of cattle, out on $5,000 bond.

- Kirk Ward, 30, of Dimmitt, charged with possession of a controlled substance, namely cocaine, out on a $5,000 bond.

- Ricky Aguillon, 18, 110 Catalpa, charged with three counts of burglary of a habitation, remains in jail pending $75,000 bond.

- Daniel Chavez, 19, 824 Brevard, charged with two counts burglary of a habitation, remains in jail pending $20,000 bond.

- Ramiro Ruiz, Jr., 19, 424

Maple, charged with burglary of a habitation, out on a $5,000 bond.

- Kathy Ybarra, 45, 118 S. Centre, charged with two counts of injury to the elderly, remains in jail pending $15,000 bond.

- Joe Christopher Zepeda, 19, 511 Miles, charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, remains in jail pending $20,000 bond.

- Robert Rodriguez, 23, 437 Ave. C, charged with forgery by making, out on a $3,000 bond.

- Jeremy Wade Lance, 19, 619 Ave. H, charged with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, remains in jail pending $7,500 bond.

Ranchers continue to feel effects of drought

Water and feed remain premium commodity

ALTUS, Okla. (AP) — Cattle in far southwest Oklahoma were so hot this summer that some ranchers built guards around water troughs to keep the cattle from leaping in for a cooling dip.

Ranchers did not want their cattle jumping in and contaminating the water they had paid for and hauled to their fields to replenish parched ponds.

Southwest Oklahoma was especially hard hit by this year's drought. Temperatures in the Altus area climbed to 100 degrees or more 89 times from mid-May until the end of September. Temperatures were above 105 degrees 39 times.

And there was precious little rainfall. The Oklahoma Climatological Survey reports that a Mesonet site at Altus registered less than 4 inches of rain between May and the end of September.

Mark Holder, a rancher and senior vice president of Stockmans Bank in Altus, said most of the land he ranches with his father and brother didn't see any rain between March 14 and Oct. 2. By the first of September, he said, the cracks in the ground were at least 3 inches wide and the water had completely evaporated from most ponds on their property. Any water that remained was stagnant.

Looking out over one of the fields — one devoid of shade and showing little or no evidence of green growth — Holder tried to explain how desperate his cattle were to cool off.

He said a few calves were trampled by older and bigger cattle trying to climb into the water to reduce their body temperatures.

"I've never seen anything like that," Holder said. "I hope I never do again."

Drought conditions and record-setting heat not only proved deadly for some cattle, it reduced calving rates and forced many farmers and ranchers to sell their herds.

Jeff Sanders operates Hollis Livestock, an auction barn in Hollis. Sanders said an average of one farmer a week for the past 60 to 90 days has liquidated his herd. Few if any farmers sold off entire herds in previous years.

Most of those liquidating are selling from 50 to 100 cattle, Sanders said, and most of the mother cattle being sold are 50 to 100 pounds lighter than normal. Current prices mean those selling often aren't generating enough to completely pay off creditors.

They are essentially getting out of the business altogether, he said. Because even if it rains and temperatures stay warm enough to create a winter grazing season, few bankers will lend to farmers with falling revenues and mounting debts, he said.

Holder agreed. "We have to really, really think through a deal before we do it."

Most of cattle producers in the southwest farm crops as well. That has been helpful for some, not so much for others.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I hope you will print this Associated Press article written by Malcolm Ritter. It confirms what has long been obvious to me -- that people who become involved with strangers on the Internet are prone to compulsive behavior. Those who use it as a vehicle for infidelity were already inclined to cheat.

Healthy people use the Internet as a tool and sometimes a toy if they have spare time on their hands. They do not go looking for situations that involve a good bit of risk. The "risk takers" should accept responsibility for their behavior instead of blaming the Internet. -- Surfers in Basking Ridge, N.J.

Dear Surfers: I agree wholeheartedly. What follows is from the article:

People who seem addicted to the Internet often show a bumper crop of psychiatric disorders such as manic depression. Treating those conditions might help them rein in their urge to be on line, a study suggests.

On average, Internet addicts in the study reported having five different psychiatric disorders at some point in their lives. It is unclear whether the Internet problem should be considered a disorder or a symptom of something else, or whether certain disorders promote the excessive on-line use, according to psychiatrist Nathan Shapira of the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine.

Shapira and colleagues studied 14 people who had spent so much time on line that they were facing problems such as broken relationships, job loss and dropping out of school. The striking thing, Shapira said, was the other psychiatric problems that turned up in the study:

Nine of the 14 had manic depression at the time of the interview, and 11 had it at some point in their lives. Half had an anxiety disorder such as "social phobia," which is a persisting and unreasonable fear of being embarrassed in public.

Three suffered from bulimia or binge eating, and six had experienced some sort of eating disorder. Four had conditions involving uncontrollable bursts of anger or buying sprees, and half reported such impulse-control conditions. Eight had abused alcohol or some other substance at some time in their lives.

The participants said medication for some of these conditions helped them gain control over Internet use.

So, dear readers, if you or someone close to you is an Internet junkie, please consider seeing a physician about prescribing chemical help. Here's another letter about the Internet:

Dear Ann Landers: I almost fell out of my recliner when I read the letters in your column from women who were having problems with their spouses and boyfriends because of pornography on the Internet. I thought I was the only one.

I hate our computer. My husband is totally addicted to Internet pornography. He gets up at 4:00 or 5:00 in the morning to log on. He lost a job over it, was arrested for voyeurism and still hasn't stopped. Needless to say, we have had a sexless marriage for quite some time.

I recently joined a support group called COSA (Co-dependents of Sex Addicts). It seems to be helping. If you have any other suggestions, please let me know. -- D.I.S. in Minneapolis

Dear D.I.S.: You seem to be on the right track, but your husband needs more help than he is getting. Ask your group leader to recommend a competent psychologist. For those interested in COSA, send a self-addressed envelope to: NSO-COSA, 9337-B Katy Freeway, No. 142, Houston, Texas 77024.

American Red Cross opens additional centers

American Red Cross has opened four more service centers in San Antonio (2), Floresville, and Rio Grande City where flood victims can go to receive Red Cross assistance to purchase those items they need most.

Individuals and families will meet one-on-one with caseworkers to discuss immediate and long-term needs. Depending on the individual need of the person or family, they may receive financial assistance to purchase groceries, new clothes, minor home repairs, household furnishings, rental assistance, prescription medicines, eye glasses, and other crucial items.

As Red Cross service centers open and relief efforts continue, eight shelters remain open. Mobile feeding units continue to drive through affected areas, and damage assessment crews are wrapping up visits to affected areas.

All American Red Cross disaster assistance is free, made possible by voluntary donations of time and money from the American people.

To become a volunteer help the victims of disasters, contributions can be made to the American Red Cross Disaster Relief Fund by calling 1-800-HELP-NOW or 1-800-257-7575 (Spanish). Contributions may also be sent to our local chapter at P.O. Box 1371 or come by our office at 224 S. Main, Hereford.

Flame Fellowship to meet next week

Flame Fellowship of Hereford will meet Nov. 5 at 7:30 in the lounge of the Community Center.

Our speaker will be Julie Wilson of Lubbock. She is the wife of Keith Wilson, and they have two children.

She has been leading Bible studies for 10 years and is the author of two books, A Mother's Confession, A Father's Reply and Women at the Well and Restoring the Spiritual Heritage of Christian Women. She and her family are faithful members of Trinity Church in Lubbock.

Julie is a frequent speaker to ladies groups in the Panhandle area. For further information, contact Joyce Landers or Mary Bartlett.

Men, women and children are welcome to attend our meetings.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Oct. 30, the 303rd day of 1998. There are 62 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Oct. 30, 1938, the radio play "The War of the Worlds," starring Orson Welles, aired on CBS. The live drama, which employed fake news reports, panicked listeners who thought its portrayal of a Martian invasion was true.

On this date:

In 1885, poet Ezra Pound was born in Hailey, Idaho.
 In 1961, the Soviet Union tested a hydrogen bomb with a force estimated at 58 megatons.
 In 1961, the Soviet Party Congress unanimously approved a resolution ordering the removal of Josef Stalin's body from Lenin's tomb.
 In 1974, Muhammad Ali knocked out George Foreman in the eighth round of a 15-round bout in Kinshasa, Zaire, to regain his world heavyweight title.
 In 1975, the New York Daily News ran the headline "Ford to City: Drop Dead" a day after President Ford said he would veto any proposed federal bailout of New York City.
 In 1979, President Carter announced his choice of federal appeals judge Shirley Hufstедler to head the newly created Department of Education.

Ten years ago: Responding to Republican attempts to pin the term liberal on him, Democrat Michael Dukakis declared on the campaign trail, "Yes, I am a liberal, in the tradition of Franklin Roosevelt, Harry Truman and John Kennedy."

Five years ago: Martin Fettman, America's first veterinarian in space, chopped the heads off six rats and performed the world's first animal dissections in space, aboard the shuttle Columbia.

One year ago: A jury in Cambridge, Mass., convicted British au pair Louise Woodward of second-degree murder in the death of 8-month-old Matthew Eappen. The judge, Hiller B. Zobel, later reduced the verdict to manslaughter and set Woodward free. Confronting some of his harshest critics, Chinese President Jiang Zemin defended his country's human rights record before members of Congress. Movie director Samuel Fuller died in Hollywood at age 86.

Today's Birthdays: Actor Hamilton Camp is 64. Movie director Claude Lelouch is 61. Rock singer Grace Slick is 59. Songwriter Eddie Holland is 59. Actor Ed Lauter is 58. Actor Henry Winkler is 53. Musician Timothy B. Schmit (The Eagles) is 51.

THE KICK

The kick that wasn't meant to be still haunts Eagles' kicker Chris Boniol and his ill-fated holder Tom Hutton

By Ken Berger
AP Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA — Chris Boniol and Tom Hutton grabbed a few footballs and trotted away from the crowd to practice some kicks. Their solitary existence is about to end.

When the Philadelphia Eagles play host to the Dallas Cowboys on Monday night, Hutton and Boniol will be remembered with other infamous characters in football history, most notably Lucy and Charlie Brown.

Boniol, the Eagles kicker, and his star-crossed holder were the unwitting perpetrators of the kick that wasn't. Their botched field-goal attempt on the final play in Dallas last year is impossible for them to forget.

"I still think about it on my own sometimes," said Boniol, whose 22-yard chip shot was ruined when Hutton fumbled the snap last Sept. 15 against the Cowboys. "I don't have to be asked about it. I'll probably remember it as long as I live."

Trailing by a point after a late Dallas touchdown, the Eagles drove from their 16 to the Cowboys 5 with four seconds left. All Boniol had to do was hit a 22-yarder as time expired, and the Eagles would pull off an upset that could change the course of their season.

"We should make that 10 out of 10 times," Hutton said Wednesday.

What happened next still haunts holder Hutton, who dropped the snap and was tackled by Deion Sanders as he tried to run into the end zone. Dallas won 21-20. The Eagles are 6-14-1 since then.

"It's something you guys have to ask, and I'm not afraid to talk about it," Hutton said. "I watched the film, and it seemed like there was a chance I could have thrown it. But when you're in the game, there's so little time..."

The Eagles (1-6) meet Dallas (4-3) on Monday night at Veterans Stadium. They've had plenty of time to think about what happened last time.

"On Monday night this past week they showed a highlight of the fumble," Eagles coach Ray Rhodes said. "So quite naturally it was brought right back up."

Hutton was crushed when it happened, taking all the blame. He talked freely and cordially before practice on Wednesday, even though some believe that play started the Eagles' two-year collapse after two 10-6 seasons under Rhodes.

"It's something that I never wanted to happen," Hutton said, "but it did."

Somehow, the Eagles' fortunes always seem linked to the Cowboys. The more they deny never recovering from the chip shot that got away, the easier it is to believe.

"Says who?" receiver Irving Fryar asked. "We just died? We just folded the tent and quit because that happened? I don't think so."

But even Fryar has to admit that play took something out of the Eagles.

"If it weren't for that mishap at the end of the game," he said, "I think we would have come out of there a lot happier than we were."

The Eagles were coming off an emotional 10-9 upset of Green Bay when they went to Dallas on Monday night, Sept. 15. Although they beat the Cowboys at home later in the season, the Eagles finished 6-9-1.

TWO TO GO

Rick Castaneda/Brand

Hereford quarterback Eddie Lacey winds up to throw against Pampa during a District 3-4A game. Lacey will make his second varsity start tonight against Borger.

Borger, Hereford face off with district implications

By Bob Varnette
Hereford Brand Sports Writer

Cody Hodges or not — and its performance against Pampa notwithstanding — Hereford still has a potent offense.

The Whitefaces just have to find a way to redirect it.

And that's what Borger coach Marty McClintock is concerned about.

"I don't think it makes much of a difference," McClintock said about the absence of Hodges. "You've got to prepare for them the same way. There's no doubt he's a great asset, but we still have to be ready to play."

The game will be a key one as Borger (7-1 overall, 3-0 District 3-4A) and Hereford (6-2, 2-1) meet at 7:30 p.m. tonight at Whiteface Stadium. "I feel like the kids have a sense of urgency that was lacking the last two weeks," Hereford coach Craig Yenser said. "We've had a very good week of workouts."

The urgency for the Whitefaces is this. A loss to Borger would knock Hereford out of the race for the district title, although one win in their last two games would all but sew up a playoff spot — the Whitefaces' first since 1992.

McClintock's concerns are nothing new. They've been voiced by other district coaches — the diversity of Hereford's offense. Even without Cody Hodges at quarterback, the Whitefaces still have an impressive array of offensive weapons.

See DISTRICT, Page A7

THE GAME — Borger (7-1, 3-0) vs. Hereford (6-2, 2-1) at 7:30 p.m. tonight at Whiteface Stadium in a District 3-4A game.

THE COACHES — Borger: Marty McClintock, 6th year; Hereford: Craig Yenser, 3rd year.

THE OFFENSES — Borger: Multiple I-formation; Hereford: I-formation.

THE DEFENSES — Borger: Multiple 50; Hereford 5-2.

THE KEY PLAYERS — Sophomores Eron Haynes and Eddie Lacey. In eight games, Haynes has rushed for 1,266 yards on 189 carries — a hefty 6.7 yards per attempt — and has scored 10 touchdowns for the Bulldogs. Lacey went 5-for-18 for 95 yards in his first start against Pampa and had one pass picked. Lacey's a key player because the Hereford offense must generate yards. He has to be able to run the option and throw the ball effectively.

THE WEATHER FORECAST — Bad, and that's good — if you're a Whiteface fan. Bad weather is an equalizer. With temperatures expected to be falling through the 40s during the game and a 40 percent chance for rain, it will be miserable. A wet, muddy field may slow down Haynes better than any scheme the Hereford defense can come up with.

THE OUTLOOK — On a wet, muddy mess, Hereford has a chance. They'll have to hold down their own turnovers, while capitalizing upon the Bulldogs' miscues. If it comes down to special teams, Borger has an edge.

Hereford harriers capture district crown

From staff reports

CANYON — Boosted by four runners in the top eight, Hereford scored 45 points and claimed the District 3-4A boys cross country meet Thursday.

Mark Dotson led the foursome of Whiteface runners, finishing fourth in a time of 17 minutes, 53 seconds over the three-mile course. Coby Brown of Dumas won the boys individual title in a time of 16 minutes, 57 seconds.

Robert Chavarria was sixth for Hereford in a time of 18 minutes, seven seconds. James Mather and Justin Carrol were right behind in seventh and eighth places, respectively.

Borger took second place in the boys team standings with 64 points and Amarillo Palo Duro was third with 76 points.

On the girls side, Brionne Yosten won the girls individual title, covering the two-mile course in 11 minutes, 46 seconds. Pampa, however, claimed the girls team title with 29 points, placing six girls in the first 10 to finish.

The Lady Whitefaces finished second with 38 points. Hereford placed three runners in the Top 10 — Yosten, Amy Crox and Audrey Cabezuela.

Crox ran the layout in 12 minutes, 15 seconds to place fourth and Cabezuela crossed the finish line in ninth place with a time of 12 minutes, 31 seconds.

In the junior varsity girls division, Hereford won the team title with 17 points, getting six runners into the first 14 slots. Kitt Jennings led the Lady Whiteface JV with a fifth-place finish in a time of 14 minutes, three seconds.

Vanessa Orr of Pampa won the JV girls title with a time of 12 minutes, 58 seconds.

Borger's junior varsity won the boys team title. The Bulldogs JV was the only squad to field a full team.

Alex Nelson and Rusty Jordan finished 1-2 for the Bulldogs — Nelson in a time of 19 minutes, 43 seconds.

Juan Salazar was the top-placing Hereford runner in fifth spot, recording a time of 20 minutes, 22 seconds.

Williams hopes for big day against Nebraska

By Tim Korte
AP Sports Writer

LINCOLN, Neb. — Ricky Williams seems destined to become the NCAA Division I career rushing leader. The Texas running back knows a big game at Nebraska wouldn't hurt his Heisman Trophy chances, either.

"The Heisman voters get their ballots this weekend, so they will have their ballot in front of them when we play," Williams said. "It will be a big game in the Heisman voters' eyes."

It sounds like Williams is getting a little anxious, since the Heisman ballots won't be mailed until Nov. 11.

But he's right about this: the voters will pay closer attention to Williams in his last four regular season games against Nebraska, Oklahoma State, Texas Tech and Texas A&M.

But Saturday's showdown also is a big game in the eyes of the No. 7 Cornhuskers (7-1, 3-1 Big 12), who have been increasingly stingy against the run in their last two games.

Texas (5-2, 3-1) goes against Nebraska's 47-game winning streak at Memorial Stadium, where the Huskers returned to form on defense after poor showings on the road against Oklahoma State and Texas A&M.

Two weeks ago, Nebraska beat Kansas 41-0, limiting the Jayhawks to 99 rushing yards. In last week's 20-13 win over Missouri, the Huskers held Devin West — who came in averaging 175 yards per game — to 72 yards.

Nebraska is allowing 106.5 average rushing yards per game, but the Huskers realize stopping Williams — who leads the nation at 212 average rushing yards per game — is another matter.

"It will not be a small feat," said Nebraska coach Frank Solich. "But over the years, our defense has met a lot of big challenges."

With four regular season games remaining, Williams needs 444 yards to eclipse the NCAA Division I career rushing record of 6,082 yards set by Tony Dorsett at Pittsburgh from 1973-76.

Williams, who ran for 259 yards in last week's 30-20 win over Baylor, also averages 20.6 points per game, meaning he's outscoring 34 Division I teams. With two touchdowns in the final 2:03 against Baylor, he became the leading scorer in Division I history.

Williams now has 428 career points, topping the mark of 416 set by Roman Anderson of Houston in 1989.

The stocky but swift fellow who wears his hair in dreadlocks is clearly the Heisman front-runner, even he doesn't see it that way.

"I just know that I have to go out and keep playing hard," he said of his Heisman prospects. "If I have a good year and the voters think that I'm the best player in the country, then I will take the trophy."

Williams

Nebraska defensive end Mike Rucker said Williams has exceptional talent.

"What makes him different is he's big and fast," Rucker said. "He's got that combination, as a power back and a speed back. He gets around the corner, then uses his power to get those extra 15 yards after contact."

Chad Kelsay, Nebraska's other end, compared Williams' visit to historic showdowns pitting the Huskers against backs like Barry Sanders and Thurman Thomas, who both played at Oklahoma State during the 1980s.

"Nebraska in the past has faced some great running backs. When those guys came to Lincoln to play, our defense shut them down completely," Kelsay said. "That's the kind of outlook we have this week."

Hereford sets practice match

From staff reports
The Hereford Lady Whitefaces have scheduled a preplayoff practice match with Lubbock Coronado. The match will be at the Coronado High School gym at 5 p.m. this afternoon. The Lady Whitefaces will begin defense of their Class 4A volleyball title Tuesday when they play the winner of the El Paso Bowie-Fabens bidistrict match in the area round of the playoffs. The time and site of that match have yet to be determined.

Avs take bite out of Sharks, 4-2

DENVER (AP) — Joe Sakic broke a tie midway through the third period with his fourth shorthanded goal in five games as the Colorado Avalanche beat the winless San Jose Sharks 4-2 on Thursday night. Sakic, who tied it at 2 with 3:02 remaining in the second period, beat Mike Vernon with a low wrist shot at 7:03 of the third period. Peter Forsberg set up the goal after stealing the puck in the neutral zone. Craig Billington made 21 saves for the Avalanche.

Kick

Getting his team to forget that play was "the hardest job I've ever had in my life," Rhodes said.

Dreadful as the Eagles' season has been, a victory over Dallas would put Philadelphia only two games behind the Cowboys in the NFC East.

"I know this team's going to be fired up for the Cowboys," said Boniol, the Cowboys kicker from 1994-96. "We'll have a packed house full of fans who can't stand Dallas."

But what happens if the game comes down to another last-second kick? Will the ball be there when Boniol winds up, or will he end up flailing at air like Charlie Brown?

"When something like that happens, it's best just to go on and not think about it," Hutton said. "Because when you think too much, that's when you screw up."

District

There's Slade Hodges, the district's second-leading receiver with 22 catches for 370 yards. And Hereford has two other players in the district's top six receivers in Greg Ewing (18 catches, 317 yards) and L.J. Vallejo (17 receptions, 173 yards).

Ewing is also a factor in the backfield. The junior tailback has 677 yards on 122 attempts for the Whitefaces — good enough to be the district's third-leading rusher.

"They've got a really good offensive scheme," McClintock said. "They have the shotgun, their running game. It's everything... There's no way to fully prepare for it all."

Yenzer said the Hereford coaching staff has made some minor adjustments to allow Lacey to be more effective in much the same way as the Whitefaces adjusted when Cody Hodges was still trying to get a handle on the offense.

"We've tapered down a little," he said. "Eddie's had a good week. And we're going to try to get Greg more involved — some of the things we wanted to against Pampa."

"We'd like to do that to take some of the pressure off Eddie. There are some things we've thrown in that we feel are going to be positive."

While the Whitefaces' primary threat — Cody Hodges — will sit out his second straight game with a broken bone in his throwing hand, Borger's biggest cog will be looking to add to an already impressive season.

Sophomore tailback Eron Haynes leads the district in rushing with 1,266 yards and 10 touchdowns rushing for the Bulldogs.

"I think anybody in a situation like his would have to be a surprise," McClintock said. "He's still learning the game, learning what we expect out of the tailback position."

Yenzer seems more impressed. "I think it falls into the category of we can't let him break the big one," he said. "He's a strong runner and he's got some speed."

But like Hereford, Borger isn't a one-man show. The Bulldogs lead District 3-4A in total offense with an average of 304.3 yards and 25.6 points per game, and it's not just Haynes.

"He's not their only weapon," Yenzer said. "(Kevin) McNellis to Zane Willard is a scary proposition. Willard has good speed, he runs well. They can hurt you in so many ways."

McNellis is currently 58-for-122 for 851 yards and a district-leading nine touchdowns. Willard — his favorite receiver — leads the district in receptions with 23 for 437 yards and seven touchdowns.

And lastly, there's the weather. The forecast calls for rain, and a muddy field usually places a premium upon defense, turnovers, field position and special teams.

McClintock feels special teams could turn out to be a key in a close game fostered by adverse weather.

"We've been real good all year on special teams," McClintock said. "We've really worked on it and that's been a big positive for us."

The Bulldogs do have Colton Wilkinson, who's leading the district with a punting average of 36.7 yards. Hereford meanwhile will be without starting punter Cody Hodges — kicker Jose Martinez will handle the chores again this week.

That leaves Yenzer somewhat philosophical about the effect the weather might play.

"We've both got to play in it."

Singh leads Tour Championship

ATLANTA (AP) — Vijay Singh shattered the course record at East Lake Golf Club with a 7-under-par 63 for a three-stroke lead over Billy Mayfair in the first round.

Singh had a chance for the lowest score ever in the Tour Championship until a three-putt bogey from about 40 feet on the par-3 18th. His 63 tied the tournament record held by three others and last set by Jim Gallagher Jr. in 1993.

Only eight players in the field of the top 30 money-winners managed to break par on a sunny, breezy afternoon that made the greens run faster as the day went on.

Tom Lehman, who hit all 18 greens in regulation, and Jim Furyk were at 67. Another stroke back was Jeff Sluman.

Texas politics

Perry airs double-whammy Bush ad

AUSTIN (AP) — With days to go until the election, Republican lieutenant governor candidate Rick Perry took to the airwaves with an ad featuring two big guns: former President George Bush and his son, Gov. George W. Bush.

The television commercial includes an indirect plug for Perry from former first lady Barbara Bush, whose popularity often is humorously be-moaned by the former president as eclipsing his own.

Democrat John Sharp's campaign said his response is already in voters' living rooms — a television ad asserting that Perry "says we should elect him just 'cause he'll always be the governor's man."

"Well I'll work with any governor for the good of Texas, but as your lieutenant governor I won't be anybody's man but yours," Sharp says in the ad, which began airing statewide Tuesday and will continue through the election.

An earlier ad by Sharp, the state comptroller, showed him shaking hands with Gov. Bush. It's no longer on the air, but that Bush footage also is used in a Spanish-language television ad that began Thursday, said Sharp spokesman Kelly Fero.

The Bush-duo ad by Perry began running statewide Wednesday night and may continue through the election, said his spokesman Ray Sullivan.

The commercial includes footage of Perry, the state agriculture commissioner, with the governor at a Plano rally and with the former president at a Houston fund-raiser. The President Bush video also was used in a previous Perry ad.

"Barbara and I have known him for a long, long time. And everyone in our family strongly supports him. You have a good man. He's demonstrated his integrity and honor in office," President Bush says in the ad.

Gov. Bush says, "Rick, I look forward to having you by my side. It's important that Texans elect Rick Perry. He's a man of honor, he's a man of integrity."

His father gets the last word, saying, "My heart is where Barbara's is, where George's is, in the Perry corner."

Other campaign developments

In other Texas political developments:

—Democratic comptroller candidate Paul Hobby released a new television ad saying his opponent is trying to "smear" him by calling him a liberal.

"Carole Rylander doesn't want you to know about her broken promises so now she's trying to smear Paul Hobby," says the ad, which is airing statewide.

Ms. Rylander's spokesman

Scott McClellan said that's not true.

"This race is about who will protect our tax dollars," McClellan said. "Carole Keeton Rylander is the conservative choice in this race."

Carole Keeton Rylander released an ad earlier this week saying Hobby is a liberal who refused to vote for property tax cut backed by the governor. Hobby didn't vote in that election but said he supported the proposal.

— Bush, who is being challenged by Democrat Garry Mauro, toured the El Paso County Juvenile Detention Center and spoke to a group of teen-agers enrolled in a boot camp program for repeat offenders.

"I care about you, and a lot of people do ... we really want you to do well, and I hope this program helps," Bush said.

Term-limits backers target lawmakers

WASHINGTON (AP) — East Texas Rep. Jim Turner has only been in Congress for two years, so why is the term-limits crowd going after a freshman?

Because the Democrat won't sign a pledge to serve no more than six years, and his Republican opponent, Brian Babin, has.

Term-limits supporters also have set their sights on 20-year Rep. Charlie Stenholm, training a barrage of advertising against the West Texas Democrat at a time when he's in a difficult rematch against Republican Rudy Izzard.

The two Texas races are among 26 nationally where term-limits supporters are pouring $5 million in TV and radio ads, mailers and phone banks.

Americans For Limited Terms vice president Paul Farago says the 26 House races were selected because they present the best opportunities to send to Capitol Hill politicians carrying the term-limits banner — either because they are open seat races or competitive matchups in which one of the two candidates has signed a term-limits pledge.

"After next week, we are going to have a self-limit caucus that will be several times greater than it is today, and that's the way to build term limits," Farago said in an interview.

The Texas targets cry foul, however, saying their opponents signed the pledge merely to unleash an onslaught of outside spending against them.

"The people of the 2nd District deserve to know the reason why Babin signed the term limits pledge. It was money, pure and simple," Turner said.

Nonsense, said Babin's campaign manager.

"It's very nice if Term Limits wants to help us in this race, but that is not the reason that Dr. Babin signed that pledge," said Gwen Pharo. "Dr. Babin signed that pledge because that's what he believes."

While Turner voted for a constitutional amendment that would limit congressional service to 12 years, he said he refused to sign the six-year pledge because his district's vote is "not for sale."

The term-limits crowd operates as a loose alliance, with U.S. Term Limits asking every congressional candidate to sign its pledge, while Americans for Limited Terms funds the campaigns against those who refuse to sign. Of the congressional candidates on the ballot Tuesday, 187 have signed the pledge, said a group official.

This week, U.S. Term Limits scrambled to clarify Izzard's position.

Reports that Izzard had relaxed his six-year pledge prompted a volley of phone calls and letters between Izzard and U.S. Term Limits. In a letter Tuesday to Jacob, Izzard said: "I intend to honor my pledge."

In an interview last week with The Associated Press, Izzard said: "I won't stay any longer than 12 years."

Clinton hits road, seeking votes for Demos in Florida, New York

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senior citizens, blacks, women and now — with John Glenn in orbit — converted space buffs. All are at the fore of President Clinton's aggressive homestretch appeal for Democratic votes.

Hours after the nation paused open-mouthed to watch Glenn's liftoff on the space shuttle Discovery, Clinton appropriated the astronaut-turned-senator's space sequel for his political message. He paired it with last week's Mideast peace accord, calling them both the embodiment of so much of what I've tried to do as president.

The space program, which was "under complete assault when I became president," Clinton said, "... is Exhibit A for the idea that the government can give you more at less cost."

On the heels of two Thursday night fund-raisers that collected some $500,000 for Florida Democrats, Clinton was crisscrossing the New York area today on behalf of Rep. Charles Schumer's neck-and-neck fight to unseat Republican Sen. Alfonse D'Amato.

The president was appearing with Schumer at an assembly of predominantly black clergy members in Jamaica, N.Y., and at a fund-raiser in Brooklyn.

At the pair's first stop, at the St. Sebastian Parish in Woodside, N.Y., Clinton's planned remarks on Social Security were expected to echo his appeal to Florida's vote-rich elderly community.

Clinton said he needed Democrats both in Congress and in statehouses in order to "really do what we need to do for the seniors here — for the integrity of their health care, and the security of their retirement, and the stability of their lives."

With gubernatorial candidate Buddy MacKay at his side, Clinton spoke to reporters at the Palm Beach International Airport, where some two dozen invited guests gamely attempted to chant "Bud-dy! Bud-dy!"

The awkwardly staged appearance was meant to give

"It is not rational that he (Democratic gubernatorial nominee Buddy MacKay) should be behind in the polls. I've just been obsessed with this — not that I have any hard feelings about (Republican nominee) Mr. (Jeb) Bush."

President Clinton

news cameras a shot of Clinton, MacKay and Rep. Peter Deutsch, who is seeking re-election, before the politicians disappeared behind closed doors with their campaign contributors.

While Clinton said Democrats were "doing quite well in a blizzard of close races in which we're being outspent," he nonetheless voiced frustration that MacKay is trailing Jeb Bush in these last days before the Nov. 3 election.

"It is not rational that he should be behind in the polls," Clinton said. "I've just been obsessed with this — not that I have any hard feelings about Mr. Bush."

As part of Clinton's concerted get-out-the-vote effort aimed at black voters, he scheduled a round of broadcast interviews with black media outlets starting two days before the election Tuesday, and was appearing Sunday at a church in Baltimore at the invitation of a black congressman, Rep. Elijah Cummings.

"The black electorate is so thoroughly behind Clinton, there's a logic to it that he really can't deny," said Wade Henderson, executive director of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights. "This is a twofold example of the importance of the black vote to the Democratic Party in general and to Clinton in particular."

Clinton adviser Paul Begala said the president was trying to structure his efforts to energize Democrats while encouraging all Americans to vote, regardless of political affiliation.

"The president has a duty to ask citizens to participate in their democracy," Begala said.

The bottom line

The application: your first step

An old Chinese proverb states a trip of a thousand miles starts with the first step. No one every gets anywhere they'd like to be by spending all of their time planning for the trip and never pulling out of the driveway. But just like taking that trip, it takes a little planning, too.

Filling out an application is only the first step of many steps toward getting that job you're looking for. Depending on how the organization selects its employees, there might be two steps - or a lot more. Some companies have an application, a letter of application, a resume, an interview and so forth. Other jobs might come to you by word of mouth; still others might allow you to be hired on the spot. No matter how simple or complex the process, there's some information for which they'll ask. Without some planning on your part, those questions might be pretty hard to answer off the top of your head.

There's easy stuff like your name, address and home telephone number. After that is where a little planning on your part will pay off. Say you don't have a home phone where you can be contacted. Have a phone number of someone who'll know how to contact you should the need arise.

There are more complex questions, such as: "List your last four jobs, starting with your last, your supervisor, dates of employment."

I don't know about your, but I have trouble remembering some of those dates, names and numbers. By taking a 3x5 index card or small notebook with you, that information can be right in your pocket or purse.

Some applications are pretty short; others are several pages. When filling out one, make sure you look at every part of the application and write in N/A where you have no information.

N/A (not applicable) lets you and the employer know you've considered that question or category.

More and more companies are asking for a resume as their form of application. Some are even requesting a letter of application with that resume. Larger companies are using computers to sort through hundreds of resumes instead of paying someone to read them all. There are benefits for employers using resumes. Companies don't have to keep updated applications on hand. The biggest benefit has to do with all the laws with which employers must comply in their applications. There are lots of question employers can no longer ask, but information offered by a prospective employee in a resume can be checked immediately.

Bottom line: No matter what the application looks like, there are two things you must remember before filling one out:

- If you really want that job, do your homework.
- Carry as much personal information with you as you can.

Plan to post casualty figures raises alarm about terrorists

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government proposal to post potential casualty figures for disasters at all major U.S. chemical plants on the Internet is raising alarm that it will give terrorists a blueprint for attacks.

The FBI, the Central Intelligence Agency, the chemical industry, the national fire chiefs' association and key members of Congress have all objected to the Environmental Protection Agency's idea for the "worst-case scenario" information.

The dispute highlights the challenges facing the government as it strives to make useful information available to citizens on the lightning-fast, far-reaching Internet, where it can fall into unintended hands.

The data include chemical inventories as well as detailed information regarding where and how accidental chemical releases could occur in a worst-case scenario, how far released chemicals could travel and the populations that would be affected.

Americans hop to new nests about every 5 years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans seem to be a restless bunch, moving to new homes about every five years.

A new Census Bureau study of how long people remain in one home found that folks who own their own digs stay longest, 8.2 years, while renters tend to shift every 2.1 years.

The median for people aged 15 and over is a move every 5.2 years. That means half moved sooner and half remained longer in their nest.

"America is an extremely mobile nation," said Kristin A. Hansen, Census Bureau analyst. "Every year, millions of people in the United States pack up and move to a different home."

The bureau has reported previously on how many people move each year — about one in six. The new figures are its first look at how long they stay put. The study is based on an analysis of data collected in 1993 for people aged 15 and over.

Few people will be surprised to learn that summer is the most popular time for moving.

"Most people prefer to move in the summer when the weather is good and the children are not in school," Hansen reported. "Some moves may be timed to coincide with the end or the beginning of the school year."

June was the leading month, with 13.1 percent of all moves, followed by August, at 12.6 percent.

The farther people went the more popular summer moves were.

Rates of moving in the three summer months were 34.8 percent for those moving within the same county, 35.9 percent for those moving between counties in the same state and 41.0 percent for those making interstate or international moves.

Summer moves were the most popular with all races and ethnic groups, the report found.

However, people over age 45 were somewhat more likely to move in October, after school has resumed, than younger people.

How long a person remained in a residence varied by race, with whites staying in the same place longest, at 5.5 years — 8.4 years for owners and 2.0 for renters.

By comparison, blacks had a median residency of 4.2 years, staying slightly less time than whites at homes they owned, 8.1 years, but somewhat longer in rental accommodations, 2.6 years.

Asians and Pacific islanders managed just 3.3 years per residence, 5.2 for owners and 2.0 for renters. And people of Hispanic origin, who can be of any race, had a median residency of 3.1 years, 6.6 for owners and 1.9 for renters.

Overall, women stayed at the same residence for 5.6

years, compared with 4.9 years for men. Women in owner-occupied housing units had a median duration of 8.8 years, compared with 7.6 years for men. In rental places women stayed 2.2 years and men 2.0.

Agency, margarine maker in showdown

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new margarine touted as a way to help Americans reduce their cholesterol levels has a problem: The government says its maker is trying to sell it illegally.

McNeil Consumer Products plans to sell Benecol margarine nationwide next year, and had set the first test-marketing for next week in Portland, Ore.

But the Food and Drug Administration warned the company Thursday that it is violating the law in attempting to sell Benecol as a dietary supplement instead of as a food subject to government approval. If McNeil persists, FDA said it could even seize the product from grocery shelves.

It is a matter "that we regard as very serious," FDA food chief Joseph Levitt wrote Thursday to McNeil.

McNeil spokesman Ron Schmid said the company still plans to go ahead with the test marketing but will meet with FDA to try to resolve the issue.

Yellow smiley face topping choices for symbols of '70s

WASHINGTON (AP) — Asked to pick the symbols and events that best reflect the 1970s, Americans' top choice was the yellow smiley face. Have a nice day!

The popular children's television show "Sesame Street" finished second, trailing by nearly 100,000 votes in balloting sponsored by the Postal Service.

Americans across the country cast their ballots in post offices and via the Internet for the subjects to be portrayed on a set of 15 stamps to be issued next year.

Earth Day was third, followed by the disco dance craze and videocassette recorders.

Among the subjects that failed to get enough votes to become stamp subjects were the Watergate scandal, the oil shortage and the opening of China.

"The Smiley Face has endured over the years as a very simple, recognizable icon of hope and happiness," said Postmaster General William Henderson. "It is appropriate that we continue this friendly tradition on the nation's cards and letters, as we celebrate the 1970s on postage stamps."

The 1970s stamps will be part of the post office's Celebrate the Century series with stamp sets being issued to commemorate each decade of the century. The public will also be invited to pick subjects for the 1980s and 1990s. The smiley face collected 469,867 votes, postal officials reported. "Sesame Street" got 378,785; followed by Earth Day, 366,626; disco, 365,221; and VCRs, 344,729.

The rest of the 15 stamps to be issued are: the nation's Bicentennial, 344,134; televised "Monday Night Football," 338,572; Pittsburgh Steelers football dynasty, 323,070; travel via jumbo jets, 320,147; new developments in medical imaging, 292,850;

Also, women's rights movement, 285,217; fashions of the 1970s, 284,555; Pioneer 10 spacecraft, 256,330; racehorse Secretariat, 251,370; television show "All in the Family," 209,752.

In February the public picked drive-in movies as the top stamp subject to commemorate the 1950s while in May they selected "man walks on moon" as the top subject of the 1960s.

Stamp subjects for the first five decades of the century were selected by postal officials.

Other subjects that failed to make the cut for the 1970s were the book and television show "Roots," the movie "The Godfather," public broadcasting, photorealism, "A Chorus Line," Spiral Jetty artwork in the Great Salt Lake, the growth of soccer leagues, the increasing popularity of tennis, the Oakland Athletics baseball team, jogging, citizens band radio and postmodern architecture.

Cruise, Kidman accept settlement

LONDON (AP) — Tom Cruise and Nicole Kidman accepted a "substantial" settlement Thursday from a newspaper that reported he was gay and their marriage was a sham to cover it up.

Cruise showed up in court to hear a public apology from Express Newspapers for a "highly offensive" article in the Oct. 5, 1997, Express on Sunday Magazine, which also said he was impotent and sterile.

"I don't take a whole lot of pleasure in being here today," he said later. "It is the last recourse against those that published vicious lies about me and my family. I have to protect them. This was certainly not about money. Every penny of this very substantial sum will be donated to charities."

The amount of the settlement was undisclosed, but Express Newspapers is believed to have paid more than $167,000 to each of the two actors and their legal costs of about $250,000.

James Orr
SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Producer-director James Orr was sentenced Thursday to three years' probation for slamming ex-girlfriend Farrah Fawcett's head to the ground.

Superior Court Judge Robert T. Altman also ordered Orr to perform 100 hours of community service, attend a batterer's counseling program and pay $500 to a domestic violence fund.

444 Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

This is a dramatized version of facts taken from the book of I Samuel intending to show some of the customs of these ancient and traditional times.

DAVID AND SAUL

SAUL, WITH A LARGE ARMY OF PICKED MEN, SEARCHES IN THE WILDERNESS TO FIND AND DESTROY DAVID AND HIS SMALL ARMY OF FOLLOWERS...

...USING ALL AVAILABLE COVER IN THIS ROUGH LAND, DAVID AND HIS MEN FLEE DEEPER INTO THE HIDDEN REGIONS OF THE WILDERNESS...

WE MUST NOT LET SAUL FIND US, FOR HOW CAN I FIGHT AGAINST MY KING? ...THE UNRELENTING SEARCH CONTINUES, BUT NOWHERE CAN A SINGLE TRACE OF DAVID'S SMALL ARMY BE FOUND!

I AM TIRED - HERE WE WILL REST! WE SHALL PITCH OUR CAMP HERE, AND MAKE OUR FORAYS INTO ALL THE SURROUNDING COUNTRYSIDE UNTIL WE HAVE FOUND DAVID AND DESTROYED HIS THREAT TO MY THRONE IN ISRAEL!

BESIDE THE SLOPES OF THE HILL HACHILAH, KING SAUL GIVES THE ORDER TO ABNER, COMMANDER OF ALL HIS ARMIES, TO SET UP CAMP FROM WHICH THEY WILL BASE THEIR DAILY SEARCHES TO FIND AND ULTIMATELY DESTROY DAVID AND HIS SMALL BUT FAITHFUL ARMY!

Next Week DAVID'S SPIES!

Writing Want Ads that really sell!
 Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.
 For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:
 --Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
 --Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
 --Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
 -- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Tax-exemption case involves politics, religion

By Richard Carelli

The Associated Press
It was the Friday before Election Day in 1992 when a small New York church bought a full-page ad in two newspapers urging voters to reject Democratic presidential nominee Bill Clinton on moral grounds.

Clinton won anyway, and the church later was stripped of its tax-exempt status.

That is because federal law says tax-exempt groups must steer clear of partisan politics. The requirement can present dilemmas for churches whose members want the votes they — and others — cast to reflect their religious convictions.

Such varied groups as the Internal Revenue Service, Pat Robertson's American Center for Law and Justice and Americans United for Separation of Church and States offer "dos" and "don'ts" guidelines.

Soon, a federal judge, Paul Friedman, will add to that literature. He must decide whether the IRS was justified in revoking the tax exemption of the Church at Pierce Creek in Vestal, N.Y.

In its "Christians Beware" advertisement run in USA Today and The Washington Times, the nondenominational Christian church said Clinton supported abortion, distribution of condoms in public schools and homosexuality. "Do we really want as president ... a man of this character who supports this type of behavior?" the ad asked.

Americans United for Separation of Church and State filed a complaint with the IRS, and the tax agency in 1995 took the extraordinary step of ending the church's tax exemption.

The American Center for Law and Justice then sued the IRS, contending it had violated the church's free-speech and equal-protection rights.

Friedman presided over the last in a four-year series of court hearings Thursday and said he is prepared to decide the case.

During the hearing, the judge asked what might happen if a church's pastor endorsed a political candidate from the pulpit on a Sunday. Government lawyer Alan Swirski acknowledged the difficulty facing an IRS agent who receives such a complaint.

Should undercover agents sit through future sermons to discover if illegal activities are repeated? Should the pastor be interrogated under oath? Should church members be quizzed about what they heard?

All seem intrusive and troubling, but law and justice center lawyer Jay Sekulow asked the judge why the loss of a tax exemption should be any more palatable if the pastor later decided to publish and more widely disseminate his comments.

"Either the churches can say these things, or they can't," Sekulow said.

After the hearing, Sekulow contended the case focuses on religious liberty and the government's campaign "to haarrass, intimidate and stifle the free speech of a Christian church and its pastor."

But Barry Lynn of Americans United accused Sekulow of arguing that churches are above government scrutiny. "Churches were never founded to be political organizations," Lynn said. "Saying churches need not obey tax laws is a completely bogus argument."

Some guidelines for churches:

— Stands on political issues — abortion or legalized gambling, for example — are permissible, but endorsement or opposition of candidates based on their voting patterns on such issues is not permissible.

— Distribution of voter guides is permissible, including a candidate's track record on certain issues. But the guides cannot encourage voters to support or oppose any candidate.

— Sponsorship of candidate forums is allowed, but all legally qualified candidates for a given office should be invited and the questions should be nonpartisan and cover a broad range of issues.

Of course, churches that do not want to comply with the federal tax laws are free to give up their tax exemptions.

As Glenn returns to space, Cronkite returns to cover him

NEW YORK (AP) — John Glenn wasn't the only man with a sense of deja vu.

Walter Cronkite, who was in the anchor's chair at CBS when Glenn became the first American to orbit the earth in 1962, came out of retirement Thursday to swap stories about America's space program on CNN.

Not only did Cronkite appear to enjoy his own nostalgic ride, he made it clear that even at age 81 he hasn't given up his dream to become the first journalist to fly in space.

"If they came up here now," he said, "I'd walk out there and put on a suit."

The 77-year-old senator's trip back to space was covered live on several TV networks. The mixture of old astronauts and video game graphics evoked both the space program's golden era and the passage of time.

Luring Cronkite to the air was CNN's coup. The broadcaster, who retired as "CBS Evening News" anchor in 1981, won the tag of "most trusted man in America" partly because of the many space flights he described to viewers.

CNN landed Cronkite both because it asked first and because he believed the cable network would cover the flight more extensively than CBS. A taped interview of Cronkite with Dan Rather was shown on CBS 40 minutes before liftoff.

Cronkite and co-anchor Miles O'Brien conducted Thursday's only live network interview with President Clinton, in Cape Canaveral to see the event.

Mostly, though, Cronkite told stories and tried to show how the space program had changed since Glenn's first flight in 1962. "I get the feeling this is an old man's show," famed test pilot Chuck Yeager said while Cronkite interviewed him.

At times, Cronkite showed his age. He had trouble reading NASA's display of the countdown. And CNN had to quickly cut to a commercial when he couldn't stop coughing in the midst of complaining how much he hated the movie adaptation of "The Right Stuff."

Still, CNN recognized the symbolic power of his return, twice replaying the image of Cronkite's wistful look as Glenn lifted off.

The former astronauts — turned broadcasters for a day — conveyed the event's true excitement. NBC's Tom Brokaw observed how his partner Scott Carpenter, Glenn's former Mercury backup, pounded his chair at liftoff.

"It's hard to be unmoved by that," Carpenter said.

Gene Cernan, his voice nearly cracking on ABC, said watching Glenn made him change his mind and want to return to space. James Loyell admitted on Fox News Channel that he was a little envious, too.

CNN dedicated its coverage to John Holliman, its space reporter who would have been Cronkite's co-anchor if he hadn't been killed in a car accident last month. At NASA's request, a picture of Holliman was sent on the shuttle flight with Glenn and his six fellow astronauts.

ABC and CBS both used computer animation and graphics that seemed plucked from a science fiction movie. At one point, graphics gave rapidly-changing readouts on the shuttle's speed and altitude.
