Cotton Harvest At Halfway Mark

Vegetable Crops Nearing Finish

With the advent of strippers hitting cotton fields about two weeks ago, cotton harvest passed the halfway mark toward completion this week, according to local gin operators.

Two weeks of fair weather is all the time needed to get the harvesting of the crop in its final stages, one operator said Tuesday.

About 4,000 bales had been brought in to Hereford Gin and Ward Gin from the county's 11,000 acres Tuesday.

The crop this year has exceeded that of last year, both quantity and quality-wise, growers report. Favorable weather put the stripping or mechanical method of harvest into full swing about two weeks after the first frost hit the county.

With adverse weather conditions threatening the area this week, gin operators contend that moisture could harm unharvested cotton. Damage would be at a minimum unless serious weather hit the county, they said.

Although some fields are being harvested by field hands, most of the crop is being harvested by the stripping method. Most of the influx to gins has taken place during the last week to ten days, operators report. Some of the cotton taken to the gins has not matured fully, they said, but most of the crop is ready for harvest.

With the exception of a few fields, the harvesting of maize in the county is now complete. Elevator operators said that the quality is better this year than in past years as little damage has been caused by unfavorable weather. The yield, too, they estimate, exceeds that of last year.

Subtle Week's Top Grid Picker

Football scoring placed in the average run following the big slump of last week. This week's winner in the grid contest was LeRoy Suttle, coming out with 19 correct guesses. His prize is $5 in trade with Nelson Auto Supply.

Second and third place winners both had 18 correct guesses but the Phillips - Hereford game result broke the tie. Daniel Loerwald placed second in the contest this week, winning $3. E. H. Loerwald came in third with a $2 prize.

Prizes may be picked up at the Brand office.

"I CAUGHT IT! It's mine!" This little tabby, dwarfed by a Thanksgiving turkey, seems to be contemplating how he will brag to the boys in the back fence about his catch of a lifetime. But Tabby will find that this is the one that got away, for this fat would-be gobbler will head the menu when some family gathers to give thanks for their blessings Thursday. (Staff Photo)

Get Letter From Old Saint Nick

The Brand received the following letter from Santa Claus this week, authorizing it to print letters addressed to him: Nov. 25, 1958 North Pole

Dear Children:

Since I am so busy supervising my toy-making department, which is run by thousands of small helpers, and making out a list of places to go on Christmas Eve, I am writing to all of you in care of the Hereford Brand. This paper has agreed to publish letters written to me by all of my little friends.

In order to save time, and you know there isn't too much time left, you can mail your letters either to me at the North Pole or to the Hereford Brand, Box 673, Hereford. Either way the Brand will print the letters in the newspaper and send them on to me so I will know what you would like for Christmas.

As you know, this is a happy and busy time for nearly everyone, so don't wait too long.

Be good girls and boys and I'll come to see you Christmas Eve.

Love,

Santa Claus
P. S.: I will be in Hereford Saturday, Dec. 6, for a short visit.

Sigman To Head CROP Campaign

Stan Sigman of Hereford has been named the campaign chairman for the Christian Rural Overseas Program and will organize this year's Deaf Smith County appeal for farm commodities to be shared with hungry people overseas. Other local officers include Gerald McCaskill, treasurer; and Hugh Clearman, commodity manager. The county elevators and milling plants are cooperating in the program, along with the Farm Bureau, Farmers' Union and Ministerial Alliance.

"No goal has been set by the committee," Sigman said. "But it is hoped that farm people will take advantage of the opportunity to help other people who are less fortunate. All kinds of grain, as well as cotton, can be used, while cash donations will be used to purchase commodities."

CROP, the Christian Rural Overseas Program, is endorsed by leading farm organizations and citizens' groups as a community appeal of churches for food relief for hungry people in the world. CROP solicits farm-grown staple food supplies which are then distributed by missionaries and church agencies in other countries to hungry and destitute people.

The greatest need this year is among Arab refugees in the Near East and among refugees flooding into Hong Kong.

Hereford VFW Hosts Two-Day District Meeting

Hereford's Veterans of Foreign Wars, Post 4818, and Ladies Auxiliary, were hosts to a meeting of District 13, VFW, Saturday and Sunday, with about 140 persons attending. A social hour and dutch lunch opened the two-day affair Saturday evening, followed by a dance.

A breakfast-hour social opened the Sunday session, followed by a joint meeting of the VFW and Auxiliary, at which Bill Lenderman, manager of the Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce, gave the welcome address.

A church hour was followed by a dinner, served by the local post. Closed, separate meeting of the district and auxiliary concluded the meeting.

Cities in the District which were represented at the meeting included Canyon, Tulla, Plainview, Littlefield, Lockney, Childress and Floydada. Special guests were Victor Aflerbach of Lubbock, Department of Texas Junior Vice Commander, and Hedwig Eaton of Amarillo, Auxiliary Department of Texas Senior Vice Commander. (Continued on page 2)

Friday night, Hereford Whitefaces will mark up a rare honor: they will be the first basketball team to play Amarillo's newest high school, Tascosa. Game time is set for 8 p.m. in the Tascosa High gymnasium, with "B" squads competing in the curtain-raiser.

Tascosa's Rebels are not expected to be tough during their first season. In fact, they have been picked by sportswriters to finish dead last in the tough 3-AAAA district and are underdogs in their initial season of play against any other given opponent.

Rebel coach Clarence (Ace) Parker has an outstanding record but it should suffer during the next few months as he struggles to build for the future. Parker last year coached basketball at Amarillo's Sam Houston Junior High School. Previously he coached Fort Smith, Ark., High School for five years, directing them to a pair of state championships.

Parker is a graduate of Oklahoma A&M College, now Oklahoma State University, and played on some of their national championship cage teams.

Parker didn't get any breaks when territories were divided for the new high school. Since the Sandies had an all-senior squad, he didn't pick up a single letterman. (Continued on page 2)

Services Held For 40-Year County Resident

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon in Rose Chapel of Gilliland Funeral Home for R. J. (Jack) Naylor, 91. The Rev. Howard Scott, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Hereford, officiated. Further services are scheduled for Wednesday afternoon in Fordyce, Ark., where burial will take place.

Mr. Naylor was found dead in his apartment at 511 Lee Saturday. Death was attributed to natural causes. (Continued on page 2)

Toys Are Needed For VFW Drive

J. P. Jones, Commander of VFW Post 4818, reports the annual VFW "Toy Drive" is coming in fairly well, but not as well as last year.

The "Toy Drive" is an annual project of the VFW to provide needy children with toys for Christmas. During the drive the VFW collects as many toys as possible, whatever the condition, repairs them and distributes them to needy children in the area.

Repairing of toys has already begun but will go into full swing this week at the G. I. Agriculture School.

The VFW asks that all old toys, whether they can be repaired or not, be brought to one of the various collecting stations in and around town. Parts from toys that are beyond repair can be used in making another toy useful.

Round Town

Weather prophets, amateur expert alike, Tuesday happily sniffing the air strongly predicting, or not predicting, snow for Thanksgiving. We don't agree that fools and new-comers can participate. If you guess right, you try to be quiet as possible, and if you do happen to hit, then are entitled to crow all around town. One of our favorites about West Texas weather remains the oft-remarked by an Arctic traveler who plyingly died, after checking a thermometer that hovered around snow and vainly peering through whirling snow: "Gosh, bet it's cold in Amarillo morning."

County Commissioners Monday tentatively set Tuesday, for their inspection trip to the area. During their regular session, they discussed county tax rates, rice coverage and heard of Home Demonstration activities in Precinct Four.

Holy Communion Thanksgiving service will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday at St. Theresian Church. Rev. Readwell, vicar, said he was invited to attend.

Bowell did his part, and got one, in contributing to Hereford community Christmas activities. He donated a truck to carry the city's tree from Ruidoso, N. M. Driver Dick Linville, donated his time, left day and returned Tuesday the tree.

Ident Paul Schroeter real-estate have built a fire under the energetic, band-leaders Sunday. They put on a show in record time. But the best show probably be when they swarm that big tree, tying on. (Continued on page 2)

Four Student Teachers Get Practical Training And Experience At Hereford

By VERITA SANDERS BRAND STAFF REPORTER

Four student teachers from West Texas State College in Canyon are now practicing teaching in Hereford schools. They are Melvin Miller, Miss Betty Lou Sides, Miss Delores Wall and Miss Marsha Cockrell. Under the guidance of another teacher they are learning the responsibilities of teaching and the art of teaching.

Melvin Miller, 22-year-old student teacher from Darrouzett, Tex., is the assistant to Alvin Smith in high school shop courses. Miller will graduate from West Texas State College in May.

As to his reason for choosing teaching as a profession Miller states, "Well, it's not something you can just put your finger on. I guess I chose teaching mainly because I like to work with kids. You're always doing something constructive when you're adding to the knowledge of a youth."

One of the two English student teachers in high school is Delores Wall, 21-year-old senior at W. T. S. C. from Littlefield. Miss Wall is assisting Mrs. C. M. McDougle in junior and senior English.

Miss Wall, who will graduate in May, is a member of Alpha Chi and Mary E. Hudspeth at

W. T. S. C., both honorary fraternities based on scholastic achievement. She is also majoring in Spanish at West Texas State.

In answering why she chose teaching as a profession, Miss Wall said, "Well, it's always interesting. There's a constant turn-over of new faces and new people to meet. And then there's always the satisfaction of teaching people how to think. I think that's one of the greatest things a teacher can ever do — to teach a person to think for himself."

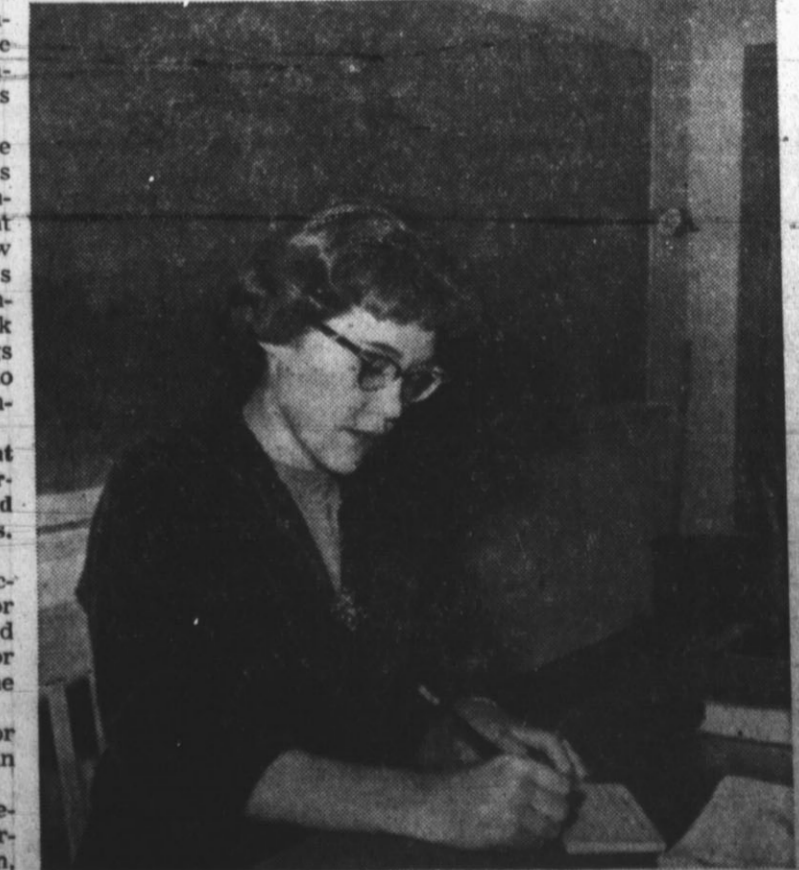

Another English student teacher in high school is Marsha Cockrell, 21-year-old daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Alby Cockrell of Hereford.

Miss Cockrell attended McMurry College in Abilene for two years and has attended West Texas State College for the past three semesters. She will graduate in January.

She is assistant teacher for Miss Sadye Rigler's classes in English.

"I guess I chose teaching because it presents a great variety of challenges. And then, the science of the English language has always been one of my most fascinating subjects," said Miss Cockrell.

Hereford schools. She is a 21-year-old art education and commercial art major at West Texas State and assistant teacher for Mrs. O. Wertenberger at Stanton Junior High School.

About teaching as a profession Miss Sides said, "Well, I don't really know why I chose teaching. I chose art because I like to see beauty and I like to create it. I guess I just want to teach others how to create beauty in their own way."

It has often been said that the future rests in the hands of the teachers. It is with the patience and guidance of the teachers that this generation and all future generations to come will base their existence.

A teacher is the means by which we bring to light the many and varied talents of our country's children. Receiving the proper encouragement and instruction in the early years is the first step to that long ladder of success.

And with the growing population and the greater amount of progress, more and more teachers are needed desperately to satisfy the demands of an expanding future.

The years of hard work and study behind every teacher are many. They must first, with the help of other teachers, acquire the inclination to teach. They must then choose a field for which they are best suited to teacher.

After a future teacher chooses his field he must then acquire a thorough knowledge of his chosen field. But merely knowing all there is to know of a subject does not qualify a teacher. He must also learn how to present his subject in such a way that it is clear and understood and easily learned. He must learn the psychology of the human mind. Briefly, he must acquire the art of teaching. This takes more study and it takes practice.

Before an individual qualifies as a teacher he must undergo a period of practice teaching. He must put into practice his years of study under the constant surveillance of an accredited teacher. Then, and only then, is he qualified to help broaden the minds of the nation's youth.

The word, Easter, comes from Eostre, the Anglo-Saxon goddess of spring.

More old or discarded toys still are needed by the VFW for repair and distribution to less fortunate children. If you have any to donate, check the story on the front page about places to take them. The toys are needed now, so there will be enough time to get them fixed before Christmas.

A nameless airline official from Amarillo, drinking coffee with Townsend Douglas this week, says he has as much trouble as anyone else trying to get prompt, courteous service when he calls his company's reservation counter. He says it's a common problem, associated with growth, but is being fought grimly, since airlines have always been noted for their service. His best current story is about airline officials for one company, who are acting as stewardesses, since the hostesses are on strike. They might be just as efficient, but somehow it just wouldn't be the same... and we'll bet they aren't flirted with nearly so much as the girls.

Named as tentative starters for the first Rebel court crew are Bob Duvall, 6-3 sophomore; Buzz Field, 6-0 senior; Joel Low, 5-6 junior; Mike Sims, 5-8 junior; and Curtis Waters, 6-1 junior. The squad is filled out with inexperienced, and small, sophomores and juniors.

On the other hand, coach W. H. Kitchens will have some seasoned campaigners and some advantageous height from his regional champs of last season. He will also have the advantage of having played one game. (With an early press deadline, the Brand was not able to carry results of Tuesday's game in Tulia.)

Kitchens has named six seniors to his first team. They are: Steve Slagle, 6-3 center; Bobby Shelton, 6-1 guard; Ken Clearman, 6-1; Milner Duvall, 5-11; Paul Higgins, 6-1; and Donnie Renfro, 5-10. Slagle and Shelton were starters last year.

voice she would disturb the other classes. These are a reversal of the usual noise distractions and could be termed as acoustical politeness problems.

In the double-loaded corridor type school the two most mentioned causes of noise were the banging of lockers and corridor traffic. The survey brought out that doors opening into the corridor remained open most of the time for ventilation comfort. It was also brought out that the teachers felt that they needed the doors for privacy and to close off the noise if it became too disturbing.

Few of the schools had taken measures to control the interfering noise. In one doorless school, cabinets were placed at the end of the corridor with acoustical baffles. In a second school, because of high noise interference from adjoining classrooms during activity periods moveable acoustical baffles are placed across the corridor openings. In a similar type of school, the teachers complained of interference from adjoining classrooms. An investigation revealed that the lightweight partitions between classrooms stopped at the suspended louvered ceiling. Extending the partitions above the ceiling to the roof of the side by side classrooms stopped the complaints, even though openings still remain for cross ventilation for the back to back classrooms.

The acoustical measurements were taken by introducing a random noise in one room (source room) and by placing a microphone attached to a sound pressure level meter and octave band analyzer at the center of the other rooms. The difference between the sound pressure level of the source room and the sound pressure levels taken in the other rooms gives the noise reduction in decibels for the various frequency bands. Several tests were conducted to determine the influence of doors, windows, and the various corrective measures (baffles, cabinets, partitions, etc.) in use in the schools. The results of the survey definitely indicated sound problems do exist in schools and in some cases are so disturbing that the teachers are unable to perform their duties satisfactorily. The majority of complaints came from teachers of the open plan type school and from those of the double-loaded corridor type. In the double-loaded corridor schools the corridor doors remained open most of the time and they thereby functioned much like open plan type schools.

Where openings exist between classrooms and it is difficult to achieve desirable acoustical isolation, the designer must pay careful attention to his use of acoustical material and barriers in order to control airborne sound propagation Mr. Nowak believes. In schools where a great deal of activity is expected, it would be far better if the designer would go to a plan which would totally enclose the disturbing elements, he advises.

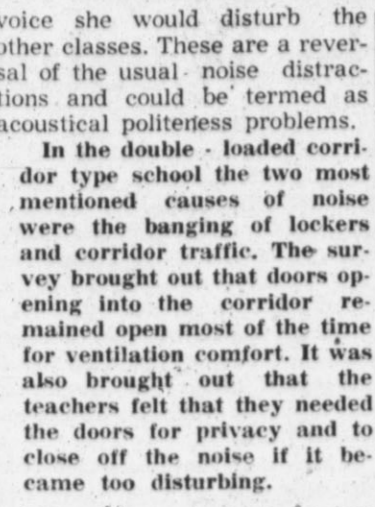

The researcher sees also a need for further investigation in the psychological conditions of the sound environment, especially in the case of the open plan type school. In the work he found that some of the teachers could tolerate higher noise levels whereas others under similar conditions complained of the disturbing element. In the schools tested, there was a connection between the loss of visual privacy and the number of complaints of disturbing noise. This possibly indicates that lower levels of acoustical privacy could be accepted provided visual privacy was also achieved, Mr. Nowak thinks.

Scholar In Iron Lung Asks For No Favors

Winston - Salem, N. C. — To some of her Wake Forest College classmates Martha Mason is the "intelligent, responsive" voice in the little gray box that sits on the professor's desk.

To others she is a gracious girl with more courage than a daylight burglar; a girl who can do practically nothing with her body but an "awful lot with her brain."

Martha can leave the iron lung for about an hour a day if she's feeling above par. Otherwise it's for a shorter time. Some days she's in it all the time.

With high school behind her, Martha wanted a college education. And, after some figuring and with the financial help of Cleveland County's citizens, to college she went.

An inter-communications system was set up at Gardner-Webb College near Shelby, one of the state's five Baptist junior colleges. Martha and her mother moved into a boys' dormitory.

"That," Martha said, "was lots of fun."

A special telephone system connected their room with classrooms, permitting her to "attend" classes. She achieved a 97 average.

Next Martha wanted to come to Wake Forest, one of North Carolina's two senior Baptist colleges. Setting up was more expensive this time, but the people in Cleveland County, particularly in Shelby, were eager for Martha to get all the education she wanted. They paid for the system.

Martha is taking Latin, philosophy, chemistry and two English courses this fall. At mid-term there was every indication that she's continuing her all-A tradition.

Her Milton teacher, veteran says: "She neither desires nor needs special favors. In accuracy and completeness of information, conciseness and clarity of phrasing, and good judgment she is unsurpassed in this group. She is a regular member of the group, participating in answering questions or expressing opinions, and her presence is felt as much as that of any other member of the class."

Bible Words for Today

I CORINTHIANS 1:3 — "Grace be unto you, and peace, from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ." (King James)

Grace, Here is one of the key words of the faith. Yet, it is an elusive word, and one which today is not generally understood.

It is possible to arrive at some understanding of this word of power by considering its antonym, "disgrace." Everyone knows what disgrace is. In one of his sonnets, Shakespeare wrote, "When in disgrace with fortune and men's eyes, I all alone beweep my outcast state." Alone, outcast — such is always the feeling of one who is in disgrace.

Grace, then, means restoration, being welcomed back into fellowship and communion with God. The prodigal son, he who had been in deepest disgrace, found at last the joy, the peace, the serenity of restoration. He returned to the grace of his Father's house.

Such restoration is always offered to those who in faith seek the "Father's house," and they come to know the truth of His words, "My grace is sufficient for thee."

NETBALL SEASON BEGINS SOON

Out-Of-Staters Hit Teams in Southwest Conference

AROLD V. RATLIFF Southwest Conference netball campaign begins and don't be surprised if some of the teams with as many boys from out state as from Texas.

produce enough top players to compete with the other areas. The other states have found the same situation. Arkansas of course has players from out of Texas but it wouldn't consider them foreigners. Because they are from Arkansas — all except one this year. He's from Missouri.

are bulging with veterans and there are plenty of tall fellows. The biggest men in the league are Wayne Clark, of Texas, a 6-foot-11 sophomore from San Antonio; Harold Hudgens of Texas Tech and H. E. Kirchner of Texas Christian, each soaring 6-foot-10. Hudgens is a sophomore from Ballinger. Kirchner is a senior from Houston.

SUBBING FOR THE FRUIT CAKE—If you agree with some epicures that it's time to relegate the ubiquitous fruit cup to the end of the meal, try this for a first course: marinated sliced tomatoes, cucumbers and onions.

Get First Course Out Of Doldrums

Let's rescue our first courses from the doldrums. Serve something savory! If you once try this way of menu-making, the chances are you'll relegate the ubiquitous American fruit cup to the end of the meal. That's where it belongs, many epicures say.

When we gave it first place at dinner recently, we let it accompany brisling sardines and found this hors d'oeuvre was just the thing to tease appetites.

Pretty up the marinated vegetables on a platter, if that appeals to you. But we like this time-saving, dish-saving way. Put the vegetables and marinade into an attractive casserole, top the dish with its regular cover, and refrigerate. Just before serving, uncover it and bring it to the table sprinkled copiously with minced parsley.

COLD TOMATO CASSEROLE Ingredients: 2 red-ripe medium-sized tomatoes (sliced), 1 medium-sized cucumber (pared and thinly sliced), 1 medium-sized sweet mild onion (thinly

Silverware

For scratched table silverware, buy a small amount of putty powder and put into a saucer with enough olive oil to form a paste. Then, with a soft rag rub this paste onto the silver and polish with a chamois. The scratches will no longer be visible.

Red Ants

If bothered with red ants pour liquid corrosive sublimate on pieces of cotton and lay the cotton where the ants are likely to travel. Another good remedy is to dissolve alum in boiling water and apply with a brush.

Lettuce

Always try to eat the lettuce that is with the salad. It is excellent for you and is a fine nerve tonic.

Stained Leather

To remove old stains from leather furniture, coat with a mixture of powdered pipe clay and water mixed to a paste. Allow this to remain for several hours, and then brush off and repeat the process if necessary.

Cod Liver Oil

Before giving the child a dose of emulsion or cod liver oil rinse the spoon in cold water, and this will prevent any of the medicine from sticking to the spoon and being wasted.

Sour Milk

If sour milk is needed for a cooking recipe and there is none at hand, add a tablespoonful of vinegar to a cup of sweet milk.

The Canary

Sometimes the canary will refuse to take a bath in its bird tub so try sprinkling a little clean sand in the bottom of the tub. Often, the bottom of the tub is slippery and this is the reason why the bird won't enter it.

Whipped Cream

Cream that has been whipped too much can be brought back to its smooth state by pouring a small amount of cold sweet milk into the cream. Stir gently until the cream is smoothed out again.

Broken Window

If one is replacing a broken window pane, pass a red-hot poker slowly over the putty, and it will greatly facilitate the removal of the pane.

Dyeing

If the dye is strained before tinting colored materials, the goods will take the color evenly.

FORTY STRANDS of aluminum garland were placed over Main St. and Highway 60 by Hereford Jaycee members, Sunday, when Christmas decorating started in Hereford. Placing colored lights on a strand are M. J. Layman and Dennis Lomas. (Staff Photo)

How Can I?

By Anne Ashley

Q. How can I make a good cement?

A. A good cement for mending almost anything around the home can be easily made by mixing one quart of wood ashes, 1/2-cup of table salt, and enough water to give the proper consistency. The dark appearance at first will afterwards turn almost white.

Q. How should white summer clothes be stored?

A. Dip a sheet in strong bluing, then wrap the garments in this sheet. It will prevent their turning yellow.

Q. How can I make a good hand lotion?

A. An excellent hand lotion can be made by mixing equal parts of glycerine and camphor; or equal parts of glycerine, rose water, and bay rum.

Q. How can I take the kinks out of yarn when reknitting a sweater, or similar article?

A. Wind the yarn on a skein, tie it together securely, wash it in lukewarm water, then fold in a towel and place in the sun to dry. The kinks will disappear.

Q. How can I keep and feed a turtle properly?

A. A turtle should be kept in an aquarium, in which there is plant life and sand. It should be fed vegetables, berries, and fruit.

Q. How can I avoid bluing streaks in the clothes after laundering?

A. Add a little salt to the bluing water, and this will not occur.

Q. How can I make a stiffener for dimity and organdy?

A. A good stiffener can be made by dissolving 2 ounces of gum arabic in 1 pint of hot water. Use 2 tablespoons of this solution in 2 quarts of water. It gives a body to the material without appearing starchy.

Q. How can I prepare croquettes when I find there is not enough fat to fry them?

A. Place them in a greased pan and bake in a hot oven, turning them until browned all over.

Q. How can I erase finger marks from a light felt hat?

A. Use a piece of very fine sandpaper, and rub lightly with the nap of the felt until the mark disappears.

Q. How can I make and sterilize bandages for home use?

A. Bandages can be made by tearing an old clean sheet into strips and rolling them. To sterilize them, place in a jar that is suspended in water, and allow the water to get boiling hot.

Q. How can I intensify the taste of coffee?

A. Try placing a pinch of salt in it while it is boiling.

Carrots and lettuce are the only vegetables still in harvesting stages, shed operators report. Harvesting of both crops is slackening off at a fast rate, they said.

Over-all quality and quantity of vegetables this year has been under-par, one operator said. He added that the market for the crop also has been very limited.

Two Birds Are Better Than One

Two golden brown birds on the table double the fun of holiday dinner. For the price of one large bird, two succulent young chickens provide double the number of drumsticks in half cooking time. As an added attraction, each chicken can be dressed with a different kind of dressing.

Whoever does the cook have to rise with the dawn to get a dinner started or leave the merrymaking every half-hour to tend the bird in the oven. Thrifty broiler-fryers or chickens roasting are so juicy that no basting is required. Simply brush with butter at the start.

Roast Stuffed Chicken
 2 young roasting chickens
 1 teaspoon salt, divided
 2 tablespoons softened butter, shortening or salad oil

Wash chickens in cold, running water; pat dry inside and out with paper toweling. Sprinkle each cavity with 1/2 teaspoon of salt. Fill neck cavity lightly with favorite stuffing. Hook wing to back to hold neck skin; if skin is short, fasten with skewer. Body cavity with stuffing; tie legs together with string, then legs and tail together. Rub entire body of each chicken with softened butter or shortening, or brush with salad oil. Place chickens on rack in shallow roasting pan. Roast in a moderate oven (375° F.). Allow 30 minutes per pound (2 hours for four-pound roasting chicken).

TEXANS IN WASHINGTON

John Nance Garner Is Still Popular Conversation Topic

By TEX EASLEY
Washington — They still remember and talk about John Nance Garner around here. The Texan, 90 years old Nov. 22, is one of those rare individuals who said he was quitting Washington for good and kept his word.

House, some still active and others in quiet retirement, it hasn't seen a sign of Cactus Jack since that cold day on Jan. 20, 1941, when he finished up eight years as Vice President of the United States and headed back to Uvalde.

While this busy capital teems with former members of both the Senate and the

When old timers get around the coffee tables in these parts and talk about famous and colorful personages, they are sure to bring up John Nance Garner. They tell about his hours with friends in the "Board of Education" room down below the House Chamber, where the select would "strike a blow for liberty." And, as Vice President with a suite in the Senate Office Building, he used to have turnip greens for lunch in preference to the fancy dishes being served in the restaurant. Mrs. Garner would cook them right there in the office.

When the new session convenes Jan. 7, there will be only 21 individuals still in Congress who were around when Garner wound up his 38 years on Capitol Hill, and none left who were with him during his first 10 years here.

He took his seat in the House on Mar. 4, 1903 and stayed there until Mar. 3, 1933, when he left to become Vice President in the first administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The dean of the house now is Texas' own Sam Rayburn, who took his seat on Mar. 4, 1913. Rayburn, incidentally will be 77 on Jan. 6. There are 12 others who were in the House with Garner who are due to begin a new term Jan. 7. There are only eight senators remaining among those in service when Garner presided over that body as vice president. The one with the most seniority is Carl Hayden (D-Ariz) who went to the Senate Mar. 4, 1927, after 15 years in the House.

Garner is the only Texan to be immortalized on both sides of the Capitol, as one of the leaders of the respective legislative bodies on the House and Senate sides. His portrait hangs in the Speaker's lobby off the House chamber where he served as the presiding officer in the 72nd Congress — Mar. 1, 1931 to Mar. 3, 1933. There is a marble bust of him on the Senate side, in one of the corridor niches reserved for the likenesses of U. S. Vice Presidents — who hold the title of "president" of the Senate during their tenure.

PUMPKIN PIE AND POLITICS

America's two most popular holiday desserts—pumpkin and mince pie—are much more than traditional holiday fare. During political and religious implications. They began to make them smaller and baked them within a crust shaped like a manger. This was too much for the Puritans. They outlawed the observance of Christmas because they thought that the manger-shaped pies were sacrilegious. But mince pie survived, and Christmas managed to outlive the controversial storm. As many as 28 ingredients were used in the pumpkin and mince pies baked by the Pilgrims. Today's housewife doesn't have to look for the spices, herbs and other ingredients essential to the baking of holiday pies. Her baker supplies a finished product which truly can be termed a kindly dish, not only a Baronial delight.

Commercial Refrigerator Space Growing In U. S.

College Station — An average of 23 million cubic feet is being added annually to the Nation's commercial refrigerators to match expanding home refrigerator and freezer space, reports the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Refrigerated warehouses have grown to total more than 900 million feet during the past two decades. Apples, red meats and eggs were once the chief occupants of cold storage facilities, but these items are now far exceeded in tonnage by a wide variety of frozen fruits, vegetables, poultry and dairy products.

The basic reason for this growth, suggest USDA marketing specialists, is that the American public has taken to frozen foods in a big way. Ready-cooked and convenience items have simplified the housewife's cooking chores and have brought a large variety of foods to the table which were previously unavailable except in limited areas or over short seasons. Enthusiastic consumer acceptance also is responsible for the large variety and assortment of foods found in today's refrigerated warehouses. This, in turn, means enhanced opportunity for growers, processors and marketers of America's abundant agricultural products.

Changes are being made all the way along the line to meet a growing demand for frozen foods. Refrigerated warehouses are springing up in new places — mainly closer to production areas so time and quality can be conserved in getting foods into the freezer. Newer warehouses are large, single-story structures that may cover several acres of land. Some are so large that electrically-powered scooters are necessary to transport warehouse personnel through the plant. These warehouses still provide both cooler and freezer space. But the emphasis is on more freezer space, some of which can, when needed, be converted into cooler space.

THANKS

for EVERYTHING

The tax assessor came to the door of the Jones house. "Do you have any possessions," he asked. "Oh, yes sir," said Jones. "I'm a very rich man." "That's wonderful." The assessor held his pencil. "Now please name your possessions." "Sir," said Mr. Jones, "I have a friendly, faithful, kind, loyal wife." "True enough," said the assessor. "But I can't tax you for her. What else have you?" "Five lively, friendly children who love the Lord." "Yes, yes," said the assessor. "But what else?" "A wonderful little church, my health, a job, and many friends." "Well," said the assessor, "You owe no taxes, but you certainly are a rich man." "Do you count your blessings the way Jones did?" Some people always complain. We invite you to come to church with us, especially this Thanksgiving Day, to thank God—for everything.

Win In League Bridge Games

At the American Contract Bridge League Duplicate Games at Clovis held recently, Terry Kirby and Tommy Carnahan of Hereford won first place with a score of 128 international match points.

Jane Kirby and Margaret Carnahan, also of Hereford, won fourth place with a score of 107½ international match points.

Duplicate bridge is a bridge game in which each hand is played by everyone present. The score is determined by how many points a player is able to score on the hand as compared to other players, or by how few points one allows his opponents to score if he is defending.

This type of game eliminates the luck factor. Those most skillful at bidding and playing will win regardless of the quality of the hands they

MORE ARRESTS

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The number of highway traffic arrests is doubled when violators are unaware of the presence of police, according to the State Traffic Patrol.

L. E. Beier, enforcement director of Wisconsin's Motor Vehicle Department, says patrolmen in unmarked cars have stopped twice as many drivers for hazardous driving as patrolmen in marked cars.

WHISKY CARS

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — What does a whisky-running car look like? State Alcoholic Beverage Control agents say it usually is six or seven years old, has a powerful engine and extra springs to handle heavy loads. Reason: Bootleggers have become increasingly wary of having newer and more valuable cars confiscated.

Nice with that before-dinner beverage: small squares of trim combread with a filling of butter and deviled ham.

Donna Howard Follows In Mother's Footsteps

By ARGEN DRAPER
I was glad to learn that Donna Howard, daughter of Letna and Bob Howard, is following in the footsteps of her mother, grandmother, and aunts. Donna has a miniature machine, one of those that makes the chain stitch, and during club when she wasn't busy with hostess duties, she was working on some doll sewing.

Two helpful hints: For lining jersey and other dresses that call for the entire dress to be lined, try lining with nylon marquisette panel. Those window panels come in almost every color. Some of us have looked for a long time to find marquisette for lining and one of the club women gave us this suggestion. Another suggestion from a club woman was to use isopropyl alcohol in washing windows rather than commercial window spray.

Mary King's Panhandle friends sent her their greetings and kept assuring me that they had all wanted Mary to stay in Pannanue rather than move back to Hereford. We realized all along that Panhandle's loss was Hereford's gain.

While at Panhandle, we visited with Clarence Williams, who is County Judge. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Williams.

Katherine and Byron Campbell, former residents of this county, are back from a wonderful vacation. They won a trip from the J. I. Case Company. They went to Nassau, Panama Islands, to attend the Nassau Premier. They stayed in the Emerald Beach Hotel, attended the presidents dinner, made excursion tours of the Islands and attended fashion shows. It sounds like a wonderful trip and congratulations to Katherine and Byron for their success in the implement business. Katherine tells us that they will move back to their ranch in the northeast part of the county as soon as the boys are through school.

This salad recipe is courtesy of Mrs. R. T. Stewart. One head of cauliflower, soak in salt water, and wash thoroughly, break flowerlets apart and add:
1/2 c. onion
4 boiled eggs
1/2 c. sweet pickles

1/2 c. olives
1/2 c. American cheese and ranches if desired. Marinate with mayonnaise.

HOLIDAY DELIGHT
3 cups sugar
1 cup light corn syrup
1 1/2 cups light cream
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla
Combine sugar, corn syrup and light cream and cook to a soft-ball stage over medium heat. Remove from heat and begin beating immediately. It will begin to thicken and change color. Add vanilla and continue beating. Have ready the following fruits and nuts, and add slowly to mixture.

1/2 lb. Brazil nuts, halved
1/2 lb. pecan halves
1/2 lb. candied cherries
1/2 lb. walnuts, coarsely chopped
1/2 lb. candied pineapple, cut in large pieces

When these are all added, mixture will be thick and sticky. Pack into waxed paper lined loaf pan, pressing down firmly with a wet spoon. Place in refrigerator to chill. After a few hours, the stick syrup will become firm and almost white in color. Cut into pieces after 24 hours. Store in refrigerator until ready for use.

FROSTED GRAPES
2 egg whites
2 teaspoons water
2 bunches grapes
Loaf sugar, crushed

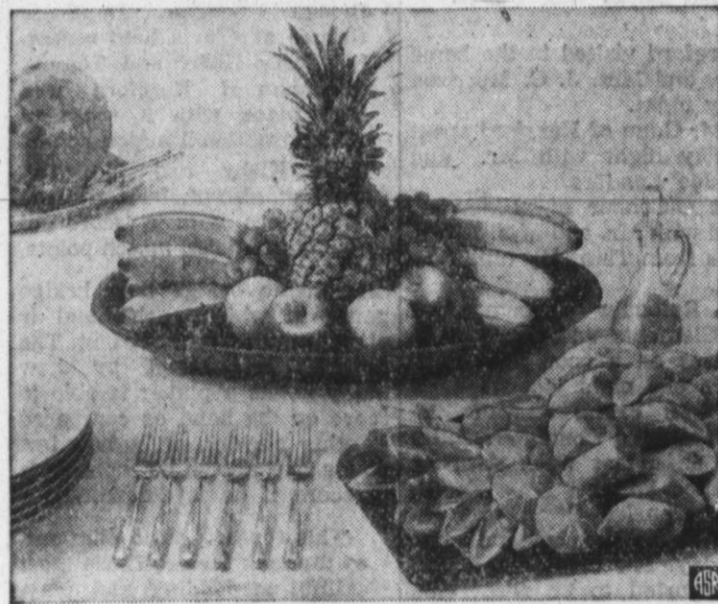

Beat egg whites and water together until frothy. Dip grapes into mixture, coating each one well. Drain slightly, then sprinkle with crushed sugar. Let stand overnight in a cool dry place.

SUGAR-COATED NUTS
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup water
1/2 teaspoon vanilla or peppermint
1 cup nut meats

Dissolve sugar in water and bring to a boil. Cook until syrup spins a thread (228 degrees to 230 degrees F.). Add flavoring and stir until white and creamy. Blend with nuts and spread on waxed paper, separating each coated nut. If sugar mixture hardens too rapidly, place over hot water to soften.

It's So Easy (And Beautiful) To Entertain With Fruit

No one needs a decorator to entertain with style and beauty. Have you caught on to the new way with fruit? It makes a patriotic party every time. The idea is to "decorate" with fruit—and eat the fruit, too. Pictured, for instance, is the centerpiece and theme of a lovely buffet. Elegant as the fruit centerpiece may look, if you'll analyze it, you'll see that it is just clusters of bananas in the sizes usually found at supermarkets, plus a whole pineapple, and a couple of other fruits merely placed casually in the bowl. The bowl itself is important in this new trend. Flat ones allow for easier arrangement of the fruit, and most important of all, they allow for easy eating of the fruit without tumbling down an elaborate arrangement.

A fruit centerpiece like this is meant to eat. Bananas, you know, have important vitamins, minerals and high food energy, yet a medium banana has only 88 calories. Isn't that good to remember in calorie-crowded festive menus? One of the smartest, simplest and most refreshing of dishes for entertaining is a handsome fresh fruit salad such as the one illustrated. It is made with just slices of fresh orange and luscious wedges of ripe banana, resting on a bed of crisp salad greens. Serve with the dressing of your choice, and guests will bless you for the beauty you bring them. A fruit salad is as refreshing to the glance as it is to the palate. Quick, clever, time-saving, beautiful, is the banana way of decoration and menu-planning when company is expected.

14 to 16 pounds 325 degrees F. Oven 4 1/2 to 5 1/2 hours

Tests for Doneness:

1. A roast meat thermometer inserted in the thigh muscle next to the body should read 190 degrees F.

2. The drumstick can be moved up and down easily.

3. The meat feels very soft when the thickest part of the drumstick is pressed between the fingers protected with cloth or paper.

NON-POLITICAL

VERNON, Conn. (AP)—The "smoke-filled room" was outlawed in this town more than 100 years ago.

Town records reveal this resolution passed on Dec. 6, 1830: "That the selectmen (town councilmen) procure as much stove pipe and put up same in the conference room as they may think necessary to prevent smoke in the room."

COACHED COOK

RAVENNA, Ohio (AP)—A home economist judging a boys' club baking contest asked an 8-year-old how he prepared a recipe when he was too young to read most of it.

"Another boy read the recipe and I followed his directions," the young man replied matter-of-factly.

They have also booked some Hollywood entertainment for the occasion, which will be held in conjunction with the annual Christmas Ladies Night. Walter Jetton, the caterer who handles our C-C banquet, will feed the boys this year. Charter members of the organization will be guests of honor. Sounds like quite a deal.

I notice where Roberta Campbell has been named editor of the Texas Home Demonstration Messenger. Miss Campbell is a remarkable woman and will, without doubt, be one of the best editors the communication has ever boasted. In addition to an arts and science background, she has also faced the problems of a farm woman first hand, including sheep breeding and growing blackeyed peas, two phases of farm production which have made her famous over this territory.

Appearance of sandwich board signs created some curiosity Saturday. At first, I thought we were being picketed, but it turned out that the Freshman class was doing its bit to help elect an annual queen. The Sophomores, Juniors and seniors also have seeds of schemes, including buffets, chili suppers, coin jars and other money raising projects. Proceeds are used to help finance the Whiteface annual which, otherwise, would have to sell for $10 or $12. At least, that's what the kids report.

The Hereford JayCees are once again the unsung heroes of the community.

No one ever worked harder than those boys who put up the Christmas decorations Sunday. Too often their thanks have come in the form of complaints from disgruntled donors to the Christmas program. Hereford went without any Christmas trimmings for a year or so back down the line — and you should have heard the complaints at that time. Today, the decorations would cost around three times as much, except for the generosity of the JayCee members who donate their time and talent. Some of us old cusses are too old to belong to this "junior" organization, but we can appreciate the boys who sacrifice their time and energy to make Hereford a better place to live. Contrast the local JayCee contribution with the young men and women who are holding up service stations, shooting policemen, stealing ears and dealing in narcotics every day — and you get a glimmer of what I am trying to say.

trade stamps — and let nature take its course. This means that the "free stuff" has shifted from the once dominant male to the female population — and this is probably the most far reaching social change in the history of our nation. Very few fathers have much to say in the rearing of their children anymore; the pastors consistently complain because so few men take an active part in church activities and the humble wife — who once asked her husband how to vote — has become an independent thinker qualified to argue out any political question.

The women spend 75 per cent of the American dollar, they own more than 50 per cent of the national wealth — and select and buy more than half of the men's clothing. If ever a nation was dominated, controlled and operated by women, it is "U. S. A. — 1958."

It reminds men of the old boy who said he was boss in his home, pointing out that he and his wife had an understanding that she would decide the little things and he would decide the big ones.

"She decides on where we will live, what kind of car we will buy, what clothes we will wear, what we will eat and how we will rear the children," he said.

"But when it comes to big things such as Federal Reserve interest rates, the Korean War and firing the missiles to the moon, she knows better than to interfere. She leaves these things up to me."

Labry Ballard, program chairman, was telling me the other day that the Lions Club is planning a real blow-out for their 30th anniversary Dec. 11. Labry says they will have Clarence L. Sturm, International First Vice President, who will become president of the vast organization in 1959, as guest of honor.

Truthfully, the JayCees are one of the better national organizations — and the Hereford group is outstanding in Texas.

Mother of four small children to friend: "So I told them the first one in the house who screamed would get his mouth soaped. And I can still taste the awful stuff."

Mr. Jimmie Gilentine Editor, "The Brand" Hereford, Texas Nov. 24, 1958

Dear Sir: I read your column in Sunday's edition of "The Brand", and in answer to your comments about the Minister's "attack on the Lion's club" I have the following to say:

First, I would like to suggest that there are better and more reliable sources to gather news through than "grapevine reports". I feel that before any news-paper prints reports on Ministers that would cast reflection on their work or create an unfavorable attitude toward them, that it should seek the news it prints through more reliable sources than this.

This is the second time within two years that "The Brand" has carried such unfavorable comments about the Ministerial Alliance in the "bull" column. Before, it was about alleged obscene literature being sold on local magazine racks that the Alliance was asked to investigate. We contacted the owners of such establishments and invited them to a meeting to discuss the situation. The meeting was conducted under very amiable conditions and the merchants were left to their own discretion in the matter. However, "The Brand" got wind of it "through the grapevine route", and the Ministers were scored very sharply and placed in the roll of "meddlers". The report was not only unfavorable, but unfair. No effort was made to correct the distorted news report and to learn the true facts in the case, so I went to the "Brand" office and gave the true facts. The result was an entirely different story in the next issue of the paper.

Your paper stated that "the Lions club seemed to be under attack from some of the Ministers". It further stated that the club had been "petitioned to drop the annual carnival". Sir, this is grossly erroneous. My signature was on that letter, along with that of almost every Minister in our City. I fail to remember seeing such a request anywhere in the letter. To the contrary, the Lions were commended for the good things they were doing. They were asked if they would not eliminate certain games of chance as did not meet the legality of the law. You forgot to state that the signature of one man was on the letter who is engaged in another profession. He stated that he was in full accord with the contents of the letter. Others not in the Ministerial profession expressed their desire to sign the letter also.

In studying your comments, I come to the conclusion that you have embraced the age-old false philosophy that teaches "it is permissible to do wrong as long as you do it for a good cause". You state that "if the motive in playing the questionable games is to gamble, then the preachers are right. But, if they go out to make a painless donation, and enjoy a low budget evening, then the pastors are wrong". Sir, this is contrary to the teachings of the word of God. In Rom. 3:8 Paul hotly denies teaching "let us do evil that good may come". Paul further teaches the Roman Christians against such a philosophy, saying in Romans 14: 16, "let not then your good be evil spoken of". To teach that it is not what you do that is wrong, but the motive you have in doing it, is a philosophy that would excuse all manner of wrong — doing and evil as long as a man could claim a "right motive". If this were right, then it would be permissible to steal as long as the money is given to charity; to lie as long as it protected someone else. I doubt that very many of our upright citizens would support such a philosophy.

In conclusion, the practice of "The Brand" in publishing erroneous and unfavorable reports about the Ministers of our City without seeking to gain true facts, is inexcusable. You are as near to any facts you wish to publish, about the Ministerial Alliance, as your telephone. Furthermore, "The Brand" is at liberty to send a reporter to any meeting of the Alliance any time it so desires. We meet in the fellowship room of the Hereford State Bank at 10:00 A.M. every first Monday in the month. This privilege is also extended to any other citizen of Hereford. We have nothing to hide; we have one interest, that is the spiritual betterment of our citizens.

From the two incidents I have mentioned in this letter I have gained the impression that either "The Brand" is antagonistic toward men who are engaged in the profession of Religion, or that it is unaware that

Disqualified In 3rd Fall

Doug Donovan was disqualified in the third fall of the main event grudge match at the Bull Barn Saturday night, which gave the winning nod to Sonny Meyers.

Meyers won the first fall in 13 minutes with a sleeper hold. In the second fall, Donovan took the win in the same amount of time with an arm hold.

In the first event, The Bruiser was unable to return to the ring for the third fall, and the win went to Iron Mike. The Bruiser took the first fall in 11 minutes, and the second fall went to Iron Mike in nine minutes when he jumped on The Bruiser from the top of the rope.

PUDDING DESSERT—Sometimes called a Mock Plum Pudding, this dessert has been given an up-to-date American version and the one pictured here was made from packaged spice-cake mix plus the addition of other ingredients. It's ideal for cold-weather buffets.

It's Time For Steamed Pudding

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

MY MOTHER DID an old-fashioned steam pudding an injustice. She labeled it "economical" which, to my sisters and I when we were very young, was the kiss of death!

It wasn't until we were teenagers that we allowed ourselves to enjoy this particular dessert—made from a steamed spice-cake base with the addition of dried fruit and nuts plus grated raw carrot and potato. Then we decided we had been missing a lot, and the pudding was served during fall and winter.

This pudding undoubtedly originated in some thrifty cook's kitchen—some say it had a Yankee beginning. Often called Mock Plum Pudding, it may well have been a frugal substitute for the richer dessert.

Like so many of our American recipes, this sweet has some English antecedents. That 19th Century Queen of Cooks, Mrs. Beeton, gave two recipes for carrot pudding. (Neither of them included potatoes.) Mrs. Beeton's American recipes. Similar to an English plum pudding, it includes bread crumbs, suet, "stoned" raisins, currants, sugar, eggs and nutmeg; then cooked mashed carrot and milk is added. She advised that this mixture be either boiled or baked.

The American version of the pudding has been brought up to date. Here it is made from packaged spice-cake mix plus the addition of carrot, raisins, walnuts and molasses. You can put the pudding in custard cups and improvise a steamer from a covered kettle and a rack.

Grown-Up Clothes Can Encourage Make-Believe

By Dorothy V. Whipple, M. D.

Lola draped a bright colored piece of cloth around her shoulders, put on an old black hat of her mother's and picked up a big pocketbook. "I'm the mommie," she said to Tess, "and you're the baby. I'm going to tuck you into bed all nice and comfy."

A minute later: "It's getting up time now. Did you have a nice nap?" Tess pops up and says: "I'll be mommie now and you be baby and we will go for a walk in the park."

Little children love dramatic play and it's good for them. They need the opportunity to play out what they see going on around them. It helps them understand themselves and their relations with their grownups. To act like mommie makes mommie more real and more understandable.

Sometimes mommies get quite an eye-opener to listen to what a small daughter may say and do as she is playing at being mommie.

Beth tied a big apron around her waist, picked up a broom and began sweeping vigorously.

"Company's gonna come," she said to herself, "hurry up, hurry up, clean the house." She ran over to her doll and gave her a good round smack.

"No, No. You're a bad girl messing up my clean house. You can't come to the party. You're dirty and nasty, go away." And Beth threw the doll across the room.

Mother, listening to Beth, was shocked.

"Is that the way Beth thinks I am?" she thought to herself.

Maybe, maybe not. Children's play is sometimes just a mirror to the life they lead. Sometimes it reflects the way they wish it were. And again children through dramatic play can act out hostile aggressive feelings they dare not bring to the surface without hiding behind some role.

Linda, dressed up like mother plastered her doll with band-aids. She was disturbed by the amount of attention her baby brother was receiving. She would have liked to "cut him up and throw him away" but of course was not allowed to hurt him. She felt easier about the whole situation after she had vented her feelings on the doll. Give your children the opportunity to play out all sorts of roles.

A big box of dress up materials will be a most welcome and used Christmas present for any little pre-school age girl.

Put in the box an old skirt of yours, some scarfs, a hat or two, some jewelry, gloves, a pocketbook, maybe an old window curtain. Anything the child can drape around herself and feel like a grown-up. Shoes are often a great success.

Children like the feel of different kinds of material. If you happen to have a scraggly old fur you can no longer use, your youngster will adore it. Also a piece of velvet is soft and cozy to touch. It certainly doesn't have to be new.

There has recently come on the market a whole line of adult clothes made small enough for little children to wear for dress up play. If your budget is unlimited go buy some. However your child will get just as much joy out of discarded pieces of clothing and other accessories of adult life as she will from expensive new ones.

Give these things to your youngster then stand back and watch and listen. I'll bet you will be in for some surprises and maybe some eye openers.

Company coming? Use a can of hearts of palm in that salad.

Cotton Yield Excellent

The third Texas Cotton Quality Report shows this year's of the best quality as well as one of the best crops in many years. W. Pfeiffenberger, vice president of the Texas Cotton Growers, said on the Quality Report released on the High Plains million-bale mark and the cooperative report of the PCG and the U. S. D. A. classing office shows that more than 85 per cent of the cotton harvested thus far is white cotton. This Quality Report covers only about three-quarters of a million bales of cotton harvested as the statistics run about a week behind actual ginnings, Pfeiffenberger explained. White cotton accounted for 85.2 per cent of the crop with 42.9 per cent being Middling white and above. Light spotted cotton totaled only 14.4 per cent with 11.6 per cent being Middling light spot and above. Full spotted cotton was only 0.2 per cent. The average staple length was 31.6 thirty-seconds, with 51.9 per cent being one inch and longer. Only 2.9 per cent fell below 15/16 inch. Micronaire average was 4.3 with 95.7 per cent above the tenderable micronaire limit of 3.5. The majority of the crop, or 71.2 per cent fell between 4.0 and 5.0. Pressley fiber strength averaged 76,000 pounds per square inch, with 51 per cent between 75,000 and 90,000 pounds. The Cotton Quality Report with correlations between grade staple, micronaire and Pressley is being mailed every two weeks to textile mill officials and cotton buyers throughout the nation. It is published to give buyers and mill officials up to date information on the kinds and type of cotton produced in the Texas High Plains area.

Pilgrims Would Be Shocked At An Annual Thanksgiving

The Pilgrims would have been shocked to their shoe buckles on Dec. 13, 1621, if they had known that their day of thanks was to become a yearly national holiday celebrated by millions of people in the United States and Canada.

Pilgrim Turkey Was Skinny Bird

The turkey which struts the barnyard today probably wouldn't recognize the gobbler that provided the Pilgrims with their first Thanksgiving feast.

The resemblance between the two birds is comparable to the "before and after" pictures which accompany most body-building advertisements. The pilgrim bird was a skinny, scraggly, long-legged athlete who toughened up the meat on his bony frame by scooting through the woods at a rapid clip.

According to authorities, the modern turkey is an overstuffed, full breasted beauty with a much larger body and short, meaty legs. Exercise for modern adult turkeys consists of walking around the barnyard at a slow, deliberate pace.

Possibly the only joy a turkey raiser gets from a turkey is counting the money after he gets rid of the bird. For turkeys have frail constitutions, miserable dispositions, and must be coddled and coaxed to market.

Trouble starts when mother turkey lays her eggs, and the father turkey does his best to search them out and break them. If the turkey egg hasn't been pecked or stomped into oblivion, it will hatch in 28 days, after being kept at a temperature of 100 degrees — no more, no less.

Then the little turkey gets the vitamin treatment and is carefully guarded until ready for market between the age of four to seven months.

Why do farmers raise turkeys? The answer might be in the Department of Agriculture report that last year turkey raising amounted to more than a 300 million dollar business.

and refused to celebrate even Christmas and Easter.

According to research experts with an encyclopedia, the Pilgrims referred to the religious holidays of the Church of England as "Roman corruptions." They believed in celebrating only when Providence granted them a particular blessing.

As if to prove their disdain for yearly calendar-fixed celebrations, the Pilgrims did not have a thanksgiving celebration the next year. How-

Care Of Uncooked And Cooked Turkey

College Station — Refrigerators will soon be bulging with extra supplies of turkey and all the trimmings for Thanksgiving dinner. Extension foods and nutrition specialists pass along a reminder that sanitary handling and proper storage are of utmost importance to the safety, appetite appeal and flavor of meat.

Uncooked turkey should be wrapped loosely in aluminum foil or waxed paper and stored in the refrigerator at 36 to 38 degrees F. Whole birds may be kept this way for three days; cut-up turkey for two days.

Whole-cooked birds without stuffing, such as barbecued turkeys, should be refrigerated at 36 to 38 degrees F. Wrapped loosely in foil or waxed paper, they may be kept up to three days.

Proper care of left-over stuffed roast turkey is especially important. Specialists suggest removing all stuffing from the bird. Wrap meat and stuffing separately in waxed paper and store at 36 to 38 degrees F. Use gravy and stuffing within one or two days and heat thoroughly before serving.

Questions are often asked on freezing uncooked stuffed birds. This is definitely not recommended by specialists. It is best to thaw a frozen bird before roasting it, specialists say. To do so, loosen the wrapping, but leave it on, and place turkey in the refrigerator to thaw. This may take two days or more depending on size of the turkey.

ever, other New England colonists picked up the idea and held "thanks days," usually around the end of November. The Pilgrim-inspired holiday is today a joyous family day celebrated with big dinners and happy reunions, but the history of the holiday in the United States has been fraught with argument.

In 1789 a resolution was presented by a member of the new Congress proposing that a day be set aside to give thanks for the Constitution. The resolution was finally adopted, but there was much opposition by those who believed the Federal Government was meddling in a matter that should be the concern of the individual states. Thomas Jefferson called such Government-proclaimed holidays a "Monarchical practice" and ignored thanksgiving during his eight years in office.

Mrs. Sarah Hale, editor of Godey's Lady's Book, worked for 30 years to promote the idea of a national thanksgiving day. Mrs. Hale had a double-barreled attack — she printed editorials promoting the idea and also included tempting recipes for Thanksgiving delicacies.

In 1863 Lincoln proclaimed that the last Thursday in November would be Thanksgiving Day. Each year afterward, the President of the United States formally proclaimed that Thanksgiving should be celebrated on the last Thursday in November.

However, some descendants of the original New England Puritans refused to observe the holiday, claiming that Thanksgiving should be inspired by the Deity, not by politicians.

The most recent Thanksgiving controversy arose when Franklin D. Roosevelt switched the date of the holiday from the fourth to the third Thursday in November. He hoped to help business by making the shopping period longer between Christmas and Thanksgiving.

Newspapers and magazines carried editorials advising readers to ignore the President and some Governors flatly advised their states to celebrate Thanksgiving on the traditional day. Three years after the change was made, Congress officially restored

YOU SHOULDN'T be just turkey but rather meet the perfect standard set by French epicure Brillat-Savarin described it as "charming to look upon, delightful to eat, and delicious to taste."

Give Thanks For the Noble Turkey

WILLY BROWNSTONE a most experienced cook has a sneaking feeling she could improve some holiday dishes.

If the list comes the turking. Does that old favorite have just the right amount of fat and moisture? Does it agree with the rich dark slices of the turkey the delicate flavor of the Do the first forkfuls the assembly around the dining table to want and more?

How about the bird itself, as the great French Brillat-Savarin once described a roast turkey he served in the United States, "charming to look upon, delightful to eat, and delicious to taste?" dressing first. At our following recipe was recently and pleased a lot of tasters — young and old Americans, a trans-Englishwoman and a man. In its bread crumbs, onion and a large amount of celery intermingled; but the flavor secret is the addition of sweetly-tart dried apricots. Although stuffing has its own distinctive character, well with any of the holiday vegetables — green peas, white onions, white turnip, squash, brussels sprouts, potatoes (white or sweet).

We use this dressing in frozen ready-to-stuff turkeys that weigh from six to eight pounds. Before stuffing, the bird should be given ample time to thaw in the regular refrigerator — usually a day and a night. If you choose one of these ready-to-stuff frozen birds, remember that a six-to-eight pounder will serve six to eight persons. One of the best things about these modern turkeys is that some of them come with the drumsticks tucked into a slit of skin at the base of the breastbone, a neat feature that eliminates trussing. All the cook has to do is to bend the wing tips under and back, akimbo fashion, and the bird can be put in the roasting pan.

ROAST TURKEY WITH NUGGET STUFFING

Ingredients: 1/2 pound dried apricots, water, 1/4 cup sugar, 1/2 cup (1/4 pound) butter or margarine, 1/3 cup (1 medium-size) finely chopped onion, 1 1/2 cups finely chopped celery, 1 package (8 ounces) herb-seasoned stuffing, 3/4 teaspoon salt, 1/8 teaspoon pepper, 1 ready-to-stuff frozen turkey (6 to 8 pounds), extra soft butter or margarine.

Girl Mixes Hula, Home Sewing

By VIVIAN BROWN
"We wear grass skirts to Hallowe'en parties and pageants, maybe, but that's about all," giggles Juanita Toomey, 14, of Honolulu.

"Some girls here might imagine we wear them all the time, even to school," laughs the junior high school student, in New York as first Hawaiian contestant to make the finals in a national dressmaking contest.

But that doesn't mean Juanita can't dance the hula — she's so good at it, she may make a career teaching it.

"Whenever there is a new song, such as 'Kapaue', one Method: Put apricots and 1 cup water in a 1-quart saucepan; simmer until tender; stir in sugar. Drain, reserving apricot liquid; measure 1 cup of the apricots and quarter each one; refrigerate remaining 1/2 apricots for some other use. Add enough water to apricot liquid to make 1/2 cup; reserve. Melt 1/4 cup of the butter in a 3-quart saucepan or kettle; add onion and celery. Cook slowly, stirring often, until partly softened — about 5 minutes. Add remaining butter and apricot liquid mixture; heat slowly, stirring to melt butter. Add quartered apricots, stuffing, salt and pepper; mix well with a fork. Spoon stuffing into neck and body cavities of turkey. Rub surface of turkey with soft butter or margarine; roast according to turkey wrapper directions or favorite method. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

five, but there are always new motions." Juanita has the long tapering fingers that add to the graceful beauty of a Hawaiian girl's hands, an absolute requisite to hula dancing.

"But if things don't pan out in the hula business, I'd like to be a model," says the brown-eyed, brown-haired daughter of an Irish-Hawaiian father and a Spanish mother.

Hips are important in hula, but it's the feet that help give a graceful look, she says, illustrating with three simple foot movements — put feet two inches apart, move the right foot slightly, then the left foot toward the right foot. Count to three, your hips swaying gently and s-l-o-w-l-y as you bend your legs gracefully.

Hula is danced at all celebrations in Hawaii, she says, but the hula-dress is rather like a long sarong with a train. Teen agers dance it at soirees where roast turkey, baked ham, potato salad and punch make up the fare.

"Our homes are more modern looking than yours, and we have as many conveniences," says Juanita. "But our young people do not have as modern clothes as girls here."

Juanita, who says "I reckon so" like a mid-westerner, is a good pal to her 17-year-old brother, and it pays off in dates.

"But now we're both going steady," she says, explaining that although most Honolulu girls go steady, they do it without their parents consent, as it isn't approved. "Hawaiians do not marry young. We must get permission to marry before 18. Boys wait until about 22."

Her four days in New York include many side tours, but her own choices are to see the Statue of Liberty and St. Patrick's Cathedral. Then, she and her mother (who accompanied her) will spend a week sight-seeing in Los Angeles before Juanita goes back to school and babysitting at 50 cents an hour.

She should make good use of her prizes as she always keeps a safe balance in the bank — $5 for emergencies. "I only spend whatever I make above that," she explains.

Her mother taught her to sew, then she took the sewing center course, and instructions in home economics class. This washer second contest try and she won with the simple dress of bright red linen sheath with navy and white trim topped with a white linen jacket. She is 5-foot-5 weighs 123, and measures 34-24-37.

JUMBO SIZE COLDHARBOR, England — Heaviest marrow a vegetable at a horticultural show in this Surrey village weighed 16 pounds six ounces.

SAM BROWNE'S GONE DENVER, Colo. — The Sam Browne belt is a thing of the past as far as Denver patrolmen are concerned. Used by patrolmen here for more than a quarter of a century, the Sam Brownes were ordered removed by Safety Manager Ed Geer. Instead, a single strap now holds up the patrolmen's pants and pistols.

SNAKE IN SENSATIONALIZER

HAMILTON, Ohio — It wasn't a snake in the grass that disrupted power service to 30 customers of Butler Rural Electric Cooperative northwest of here. It was a snake in the sectionalizer.

That's a device on a power pole, and when the snake crawled up to it, the lights went out. No report whether it was lights out for the snake, too.

OPPOSE WORDING

KELOWNA, B. C. — Delegates to the annual convention of British Columbia School Trustees sent back a resolution for re-wording because it described public schools attended by Indian and white children as "integrated" schools.

ADVERTISING PULL

TOLEDO, Ohio — For 19-year-old Otis Clark, it didn't pay to advertise a movie projector for sale at $450. A police detective answered the newspaper ad and arrested Clark on charges of stealing the projector from a high school.

MADE HIS OWN

MANGUM, Okla. — Calvin Atchley wanted an electric guitar but couldn't afford to pay $600 for the one he chose.

He started tinkering and in a year's time built one. The parts cost him $35.

New Wheat Variety Is USDA Goal

College Station — Wheat possession outstanding capabilities is the goal-in-prospect of a long-term hybridization program being conducted by U. S. Department of Agriculture agronomists.

The wheat is capable of protecting the soil, resisting insects and diseases, yielding a forage crop after normal grain harvest, producing high protein grain and has high drought tolerance, reports the USDA.

The program began in 1923 when an Agricultural Research plant breeder crossed wheat with wheatgrass and other similar grasses. It took 12 years to create the original crosses and another 23 years to produce the present encouraging hybrids. More work is required before seed will be available.

Original crosses have been used to develop a true perennial wheat that may lead to commercial varieties capable of producing crops for as many as four years without replanting. The first year's yield from this perennial-type hybrid yielded as well as the best annual varieties grown commercially. However, crop management practices must be developed if this

Thanksgiving Can Start With Brunch

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

That breed of diners who sit down to Thanksgiving dinner at six or seven o'clock will relish a holiday brunch. In view of the meal preparation ahead, we suggest that this combined breakfast and lunch be easy to prepare.

perennial is to produce commercially economic crops after its first year.

Even if crop yield in later years is not up to the first year yield, the soil protection and forage from subsequent plant growth should make this wheat-grass a beneficial addition to any small grain rotation program.

Some of the hybrids have superior disease and insect resistance. Resistance to stem rusts is evident in some, while others are highly resistant to such diseases as leaf rusts, yellow dwarf and streak viruses, mildew, smut and septoria blotch. Other selections show considerable tolerance to insects such as the hessian fly, joint worm and aphids.

High protein flour was produced from one selection. In baking tests, this flour made highly satisfactory loaves of bread.

Here's our way with it. Before Thanksgiving, we put fully-cooked boneless rolled ham on our market list. Then we ask a member of our family, or a guest, to heat slices of the meat in a little butter in an electric skillet (or on an electric grill) right at the brunch table.

Before brunch, another helper gets out and butters copiously the dishes in which we shirr eggs. At our house these plates are heat-resistant glass individual pie dishes (about six inches in diameter and one inch deep) that are widely available and inexpensive.

Two eggs are carefully broken into each dish so that the yolks are not punctured. Next the eggs are sprinkled with salt and a tablespoon of heavy cream is dripped over their entire surface. Now the eggs are sprinkled with two tablespoons of finely grated Romano cheese so that the yolks are well covered. (We use an exceptionally fine variety of sharp cheese that comes in two sizes of shaker-top glass jars.) A dusting of paprika is the last touch.

OUT OF THE PAST

SUMMIT, N. J. — The schooner Iris of New Bedford, Mass., plied the Atlantic and Pacific some 20 years before the American Civil War. She was captained by George B. Spooner.

Spooner's granddaughter, Mrs. J. M. Rose, has the ship's log. Much of the Iris' time was devoted to whaling but the men weren't too busy to stay out of trouble.

On one occasion, Spooner wrote: "At 4 p.m. a disturbance arose between the mate and one of the boatswains. He gave some most abusive language. Likewise, he clinched the captain and struck at the mate.

HOOLIDAY BRUNCH may be the answer to food planning for Thanksgiving. With the big holiday dinner ahead, combining breakfast and lunch—especially one that is easy to prepare—offers a tasty answer. Here is an egg dish, served with rolled ham.

The eggs in their small dishes are placed in a preheated slow (325 degrees) oven for 12 or 18 minutes — or until as firm as desired. To finish the eggs, they're garnished with sprigs of water-cress or parsley.

For festivity's sake, we like a variety of breads — crusty hard rolls, brioche, croissant, sweet buns — with the ham and eggs.

How about the customary offering of breakfast fruit? Our way is to place attractive individual compotes or sauce dishes of a fresh fruit medley at each person's place. These may be eaten first or last — to individual taste. A tiny bunch of seedless grapes as a topping for each serving of fruit is pretty to look at and fun to nibble.

If you like this Thanksgiving brunch pattern, you can use it on other occasions with scrambled eggs. Years ago we found a way of scrambling eggs that's utterly delectable. It appeared in a cook book whose recipes were those used in a distinguished book lovers' club — Boston's venerable Club of Odd Volumes. This way of scrambling eggs was said to be relished by President Roosevelt when he was present at club suppers. To prepare them you melt butter in a skillet and add bits of cream cheese before adding the lightly beaten eggs. In the Odd Volume version, heavy cream is also added, but we find the cheese alone yields a delicate haunting flavor.

criminary practices and because of out-and-out myths. "In the past, many managements have had an employment policy completely dissociated from union rules, by which they would not hire anybody over 40," the secretary asserts. "Their reasons were varied: pension considerations, or the expectation of absenteeism problems, or welfare and health difficulties. In this area, management could change its policy with less difficulty than it expects."

Personnel expert Howard S. Kattenborn outlines in the book some of the most often heard reasons for restrictions on hiring older women: they are slower and thus less productive; absent from work more often than younger women; higher turnover; less mechanical ability than men; emotionally more unstable; more inflexible and set in their ways; greatly increase the cost of financing employee pension plans.

"Most of these alleged liabilities of older women workers are based on hearsay and uninformed opinion, or at best on isolated examples," says Kattenborn. "The few limited studies that have been made indicate that some of the most widely held of these employer beliefs are erroneous."

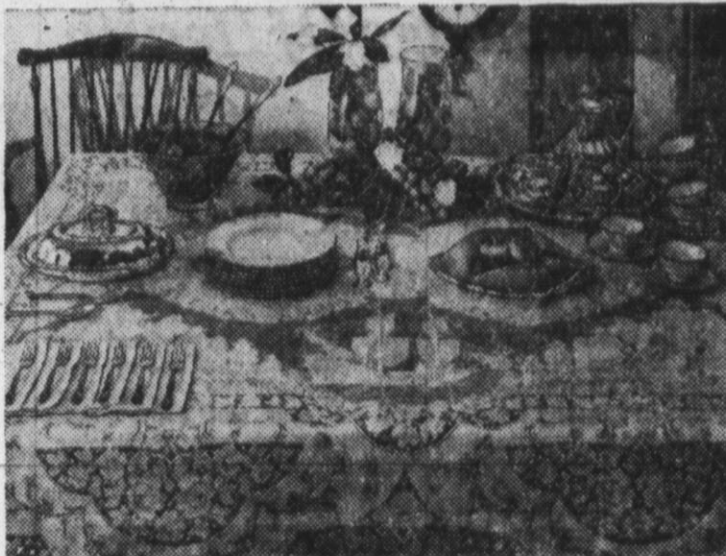

One detailed study found no difference in job performance between younger and older women workers; little difference in absenteeism — and that older workers had better job turnover records than younger ones.

In spite of barriers and handicaps, however, women in their 30s, 40s and even 50s continue to reenter the labor force in increasing numbers. A recent Census Bureau report found that "the continuing uptrend in working women 35 years old and over has been one of the most striking labor market developments in the past several decades." Since the end of World War II, the number has jumped by 50 per cent while the numbers of younger women has increased by 5 per cent and of men, by 10 per cent.

This is a logical development for the women involved. Professor Esther Lloyd-Jones points out in her report that the average woman today has her last child at age 26, lives to be 75 and has 10 years to live as an adult, many of them without responsibility for raising children. At the turn of the century, a woman's youngest child married and left home about 10 years before the mother might be expected to die.

"We know that women's behavior, as they enter the labor market, is haphazard, for the most part opportunistic, that it involves little individual planning, and that it finds almost no channeling either from precedent or from counselling agencies," said Professor Lloyd-Jones. "Mature women are going back into the labor market in spite of social resistance and in spite of a considerable amount of verbally expressed opposition to its happening." And far-sighted employers, implies the tone of the entire book, better get with the trend if they hope to survive.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The parking meter business is booming in this resort city. Sherwynn Fincher reports parking meters took in $722,000 last year. He expects even more money to come in this year, because 700 meters have been added.

THANKSGIVING SETTING—The Mayflower and pilgrims land on drip-dry cotton cloth used over a festive apricot-colored under cloth. Paint the walls to match for Autumn.

Thanksgiving Table Preserves Tradition

You can look for a traditional Thanksgiving table this year, if advance notices are any indication. The oversized turkey platter is in great demand, cornucopias are favorites for centerpieces of fruit, gourds or what-have-you, and the American theme is being played to the hilt.

An unusual new cloth depicting the landing of the Mayflower is another evidence of traditional feeling. It may be used with an undercloth of one of the Autumn tones — gold or russet to emphasize the design of the ship and Pilgrims landing on the table. The Mayflower cloth in a creamy natural color is woven of cotton, easy to wash and drip dry. Decorate the table with Autumn leaves and clusters of grapes, perhaps grouped around brass candlesticks for an effective centerpiece.

A complete redecorating job may be accomplished too, in these days of fast-drying paints in time for Thanksgiving. You can be dramatic with the wall paint if you like, because painting is getting to be such a simple job, you can change your walls with the seasons.

Gay, cheery colors are good choices for dining rooms as those hues are said to stimulate appetite and conversation. There are some colors that may be nauseating — yellows and yellow-greens, as airlines found. Apricot and melon are gay colors for Autumn, and through the winter, dreary or cheery.

Deep colors are warm, friendly and gracious, an excellent choice for the dining room. Blue dining room walls with a deeper blue ceiling may be especially attractive with bright white. If you dine in an alcove of the living room, you can combine some compatible colors — a turquoise-walled living room, for instance, may gain distinction when the dining alcove is painted a deep moss green. Or perhaps you'd like a honey-beige living room with tangerine accents to balance off a dining area painted in a tangerine hue.

Employers' Misconceptions Hurt Chances Of Older Women

ANTHIA LOWRY
K (AP) — Today's world is longer than it used to be. She is marrying later, completing her family later, in spite of generations, going back to the beginning. Her opinion so far has not changed with this face of modern life. Many employers take a dim view of hiring older women workers, and some labor unions oppose the idea too. But the experts say that in seven short years, this mature matron will be the only answer to an anticipated manpower shortage. At this moment, in a changing woman's world many a middle-aged woman with grown children is eager to get a job — to supplement the family income, to keep busy. She is likely to find it hard to land, even when employers are short-handed.

Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell says in the National Manpower Council's newly published "Work in the Lives of Married Women" that employment opportunities have been denied older workers by discriminary practices and because of out-and-out myths. "In the past, many managements have had an employment policy completely dissociated from union rules, by which they would not hire anybody over 40," the secretary asserts. "Their reasons were varied: pension considerations, or the expectation of absenteeism problems, or welfare and health difficulties. In this area, management could change its policy with less difficulty than it expects."

The Knowledge Of Health Can Foil That Cold

By Dorothy V. Whipple, M. D.
The long pull of winter lies ahead. Can you keep your baby well during the season of bad weather with all the coughs, sneezes and wheezes that will be about? You probably can. But be sure to take advantage of all our modern knowledge of keeping healthy. First and most important of all — take your baby regularly to the doctor. Take him when he is quite well and learn all the tricks about keeping him healthy. Don't hesitate to ask all the questions you want to ask. Doctors are accustomed to questions. Your doctor won't think you're silly because you ask.

The question of going outdoors during the winter season puzzles many mothers. There is, of course, no hard and fast answer. But in general take your babe out every day for an airing when the weather is pleasant enough for you to enjoy it yourself. While fresh air is good for everyone — you as well as your baby — don't be a slave to the daily airing idea. When it's clear and sunny, when there is little or no wind it is exhilarating for both of you to be outdoors for a while.

There are a few don'ts about the baby. Don't take a baby less than six weeks old out on days when the temperature is below 60. Don't take a baby under three months out into temperatures below freezing. Sudden warm days in the winter may not be as good as you think. If the ground has been covered with snow and the whole world seems one mass of melting slush the atmosphere will be cold and damp even though the sun may be shining. This is not a good atmosphere for a baby of any age — better stay in.

Dress your baby warmly for winter outdoor excursions but don't overdo it. More mothers put too many, rather than too few clothes on a baby. The only way to judge is to feel the baby. Hands and toes should be warm (he has enough clothes on) back and trunk should be dry (if they are damp he is too warmly dressed). A baby whose body is wet with perspiration will chill just about as easily as one who is too lightly dressed.

Indoor temperatures are important in the wintertime too. The general tendency in most American homes is to have the house too warm in the winter. When a house is much over 70 it's apt to be very dry unless you have a good modern humidifying device on your furnace. Dry air is irritating to mucus membranes and makes it easy for cold germs to grow.

A baby does best indoors in a fairly even temperature and in a room free from draughts. For the baby's bath the room temperature should be a little warmer than the rest of the house — between 75 and 80.

A small heater in the bathroom is a great help. If on some blustery days you cannot keep the house warm or free from draughts better skip the baby's bath. If your baby hasn't reached the creeping age he isn't very dirty anyway. If he is a creeper wash off the exposed grime and let him go. During the winter season keep your baby away from crowds. Many people have coughs and runny noses during the bad weather season. Crowded public places are apt to be full of cold germs. And if guests of your house suffering from colds do not let them near you. This may take all the time when the guest mother-in-law or your husband!

Squanto Taught Pilgrims How To Plant Their Crops

By FRANKIE SHARP.

He was the Indian Saint of Plymouth and Governor Bradford called him "a special instrument sent by God for their good beyond expectation" — but few people would recognize his name today.

Historians say that without him, there would have been no first Thanksgiving Day 337 years ago — for the Pilgrims would have had no crops to give thanks for.

But there are no towns named for him, no highways or bridges — only a lonely point on the Massachusetts coast and a dreary little side street in Plymouth.

He is the forgotten man of Thanksgiving. He was Tisquantum, a Patuxet Indian whom the Pilgrims called Squanto.

Squanto was captured in 1605 by an English exploring party led by Capt. George Weymouth who wanted a souvenir of his trip to the New World.

The young Indian was taken back to England for exhibition as a curiosity. He was apparently well treated — although there is very little information on these years — and he was sent back to America in 1614 with Capt. John Smith. Freedom was short.

One of Smith's ships was instructed to tarry in what is now Plymouth Harbor and trade with the Indians for fish and furs. When ready to depart, the captain lured some Indians on board, threw them in the hold and later sold them as slaves in Spain.

Squanto was one of the unfortunates. Luckily for him, he was bought by a kindly group of friars who treated him well and converted him to Christianity.

After several years, he escaped and made his way to England where kind-hearted men sent him back to America with Capt. Thomas Dermer. He landed at Plymouth about six months before the Pilgrims. With two round trips to Europe behind him, he undoubtedly was the most traveled Indian in New England.

But homecoming this time was sad. Disease — probably measles or smallpox — had killed Squanto's entire family and tribe. He stayed with the neighboring Wampanoag tribe, also much weakened by disease. Several months after the Pilgrims landed, Squanto attached himself to the European colony.

Squanto's personal tragedy was life-saving good fortune for the Pilgrims.

If the little band of Englishmen had landed in territory held by a strong tribe of Indians, they would probably have been killed or driven off immediately.

But they happened upon the empty Patuxet lands. Then came Squanto, Governor Bradford's "special instrument sent by God," to show the Pilgrims how to plant the seed corn they had found hidden by a tribe on Cape Cod where they stopped before coming to Plymouth.

The Patuxet lands were old and not too fertile, but Squanto showed the Pilgrims how to plant the corn in properly spaced hillocks with three herrings in each to fertilize the plants.

Squanto showed his new friends how to hunt and fish in the strange woods, what crops were good to eat and how they could be grown and he acted as a tireless interpreter between the Pilgrims and neighboring Indians.

Squanto was the interpreter who negotiated the treaty with Massasoit — an important chief in the Massachusetts area. That treaty gave the Pilgrims peace and the opportunity to build their first little settlement into a thriving town. He died of an "Indian fever" about two years after the Pilgrims arrived.

Squanto's title of the Indian Saint of Plymouth was earned — not given. Those who could stick to the most stern regulations of the hard Pilgrim life were called Saints. Those families who did not quite measure up were known as Strangers. Squanto, the one-time slave and captive, lived up to the most rigid rules. . . and earned his title of Saint.

About Your HEALTH

Tetanus, often called lock-jaw, is still prevalent in the United States. Figures for 1958 show that there were 447 cases of the disease in the country from Jan. 1 to Nov. 1. Twenty five of these cases occurred in Texas.

The history of tetanus goes way back. This disease was clinically described by Hippocrates and Arataeus very accurately.

In 1885 Nicolaier produced the disease experimentally in animals. He did this by inoculating them with garden soil.

Four years later, Kitasato isolated the bacilli in pure culture. Hew went on to produce a tetanus toxin in 1890 and the antitoxin a year later.

For the past five years the incidence of the disease has been holding its own in Texas, fluctuating only little. The disease is caused by the introduction of the tetanus bacilli into the body through a wound.

The bacilli in turn produce a toxin which reacts in much the same manner as a poison on certain bodily functions.

It is characterized by stiffness of the jaw and neck muscles. Before the development of antitoxin, about 80 per cent of all inflicted persons died.

The disease was more prevalent then because of few paved roads and sidewalks, besides the abundance of horses and other animals before the coming of automobiles. Today, soils, street dust and animal excreta are still the principal reservoirs.

Since 1941 the U. S. Armed Forces have protected their men with tetanus toxoid. During World War II there were only 12 cases of tetanus in the Army and Air Force. Six had not received the toxoid shots and two had received the toxoid, but not an emergency booster. Out of 600,000 battle wounds, only one case developed tetanus.

Meanwhile in the Navy there were two deaths from four cases. Only one had not been fully immunized. Compared to high tetanus rates of other warring nations, low incidence among allied troops proves the benefits of tetanus toxoid.

In contrast to the antitoxin the toxoid does not contain horse serum, a decided advantage for allergic people.

Active protection can be obtained from inoculations of the tetanus toxoid with a booster shot at regular intervals as suggested by your physician. Any one who is subject to incur an open injury such as construction workers and farmers should protect themselves. And certainly little children running around barefoot need the protection of tetanus toxoid.

THANKSGIVING

is a time for prayerful gratitude . . . for the love of one's family, food to eat, and freedom to enjoy all this of life. We too, give thanks for these things . . . and for your loyal patronage.

WALTER ROGERS WRITES:

Accidental Fatalities Total 97,350 in 1957

The people of the 18th United States Public Service recently published a book delineating the principles of accidents from the United States. The definition of the word implies the unexpected or unusual. Most of us have, in childhood, been taught to look for the unexpected, and the statistics in this survey would certainly confirm the wisdom of that advice. Accidents resulting in fatalities in 1957 totalled 97,350. The leading killer by far is the automobile accident, which accounts for some 40 per cent of the accidental fatalities.

Automobile accidents claim 20 per cent of all other accidents are responsible for some 32 per cent. Many recent newsletters with the all-important sub-traffic safety promotion, giving information helpful in the avoidance of accidents, for some comfort in frightening causes of accidents. In 1956, 1,422 people died from accidental poisoning, of which almost 90 per cent were under five years of age. Aspirations, especially aspirin, also barbiturates, laxatives, tranquilizers, anti-stomach iron pills and many over-the-counter and prescription drugs are acdentally swallowed most frequently. Pesticides, kerosene and related products, and household preparations such as bleach, soaps and detergents are frequently taken internally also. In the overwhelming majority of instances, the substances were not properly stored out of the reach of pre-school children.

The survey states it has been shown positively that alcohol is an accompaniment of accidents and deaths on the highways far in excess of the numbers expected. Physiologically, it produces effects which are still not completely known, but does show clear deficiencies of skill with even small amounts in the blood.

Far more important, however, is the lack of recognition by the average driver of such ill-effects. In addition, there are probably dangerous changes, also unrecognized, in his risk-taking tendencies and attitudes of care and responsibility.

The greatest single phenomenon associated with automobile deaths and injuries is ejection through doors which have popped open in crashes. Three out of four injured in automobile crashes sustained some degree of head injuries. These injuries occur most frequently to the front passenger near the driver, and least to rear passengers. Impact with the steering wheel and post cause a large proportion of the severe injuries to drivers.

It is pointed out that most fires occur in the home, and can be prevented by careful practices and proper equipment, such as the encouragement of home inspections by the local fire department, a constant look-out for fire hazards to children and the aged. In 1955, some 27,200 persons died from home accidents. Falls accounted for 13,636 deaths; fires and explosions for 5,347 deaths; mechanical suffocation for 1,222; poisons, liquid or solid, for 1,207; firearms accidents for 1,067; and poisonous gases for 839. More than 80 per cent of falls in the home occurred to persons over 65.

Because of their relative helplessness, young children and aged persons were frequent fire victims. It is estimated that at least 20 million are injured in the home annually. In other words, each year approximately one person in eight in the United States is disabled one or more days by injuries received in home accidents.

In farm areas, careless storage and use of petroleum products for cooking, heating, and tractor fuel is the cause of many severe burns. In 1956 there were 1,200 accidental deaths caused by poisonous gases and vapors, 90 per cent of these contributed to carbon monoxide. Mortality figures only partially indicate the extent of carbon monoxide poisoning among the population.

Despite increased distribution and consumption of electricity, the death rate of electrical accidents has decreased over the past 25 years. Nevertheless, such accidents take about 1,000 lives annually and account for a considerably higher number of burn and shock injuries. The hazards of low voltage accidents are frequently overlooked, as evidenced by an increasing number of fatal electrical accidents in and around the home.

It is not wishful thinking, I believe, to suppose these statistics could be sharply reduced, since the majority of accidents can be prevented with elementary precautionary measures. To paraphrase an old axiom — "Eternal caution is the price of safety."

Beauty at Home

By Lynn Carter

Q. What is the best way to keep the hairbrush clean?
 A. By washing regularly in lukewarm water to which a little household ammonia has been added. Rinse in clear water, and place the brush on a window sill or some other light, airy place to dry. Don't allow the brush to remain wet or damp for a long time, as this will cause the bristles to loosen and eventually drop out.

Q. Please suggest a good after-shampoo rinse for hair that is very fine-textured.
 A. Very good for fine hair is a stale-beer rinse, which tends to give the hair more body, and leaves no odor. It should not be rinsed out of the hair — and be sure that the beer has been uncapped and allowed to stand for at least 24 hours before using.

Q. The lower lip of my mouth is very heavy. How should I apply my lipstick?
 A. You can create an optical illusion if you use a lighter, brighter shade of color on your upper lip than on your lower lip. This makes the upper lip appear fuller and calls attention away from the heavy lower lip.

Q. What can I do about excessively falling hair?
 A. This is usually a physical matter and calls for a specialist's attention. Meantime, remember that worry and nervousness tighten your scalp and hamper circulation. If you are conscious of the fact that these faults are yours, try keeping your scalp loose and relaxed with daily scalp manipulations and brushings.

Q. What is a hand cream I can mix for myself at home?
 A. Mix two-thirds cup mutton tallow, one-third cup mineral oil, one teaspoon borax, and three tablespoons water. You can also add a nice aroma to this with some oil of geranium.

Q. How can I exercise for slimmer-looking legs?
 A. Extra doses of walking and rope-skipping are good for this. Also, a stretching kind of exercise: Sit on floor with legs apart and backs of knees close against floor. Reach forward with the hands and grasp the toes firmly, pulling them gently toward you.

Q. How can I bleach some of the dark hair on my arms?
 A. With cotton pads, apply some peroxide with a few drops of ammonia added — as much as the arm will hold. When this has dried, wash off.

Q. Is it all right for me to use face the cream type of rouge on my rather oily skin?

A. Better not. Instead, use the dry compact rouge. Apply it AFTER the face powder, rather than before. Then blend off a little more powder over the rouge.

Q. How can I camouflage small brown spots, freckles, and other such discolorations on my face?
 A. You can try using a tinted foundation a shade or two darker than your skin tone. To hide serious discolorations, such as birthmarks, there are any number of good special makeup preparations on the market especially designed for this purpose.

Q. How can I minimize the appearance of laugh-lines on my face, those deep crevices running from the side of the nose to the corner of my mouth?
 A. Use a highlighting foundation cream base on these (one about two shades lighter than your over-all base). This has a way of adding a more youthful appearance to this part of the

WET WAIT

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A man being chased by police after he abandoned a stolen car tripped over a coil of rope on a dock and went into the water of the Elizabeth river. Police enlisted the help of the Coast Guard, Shore Patrol and Fire Department. Search by land and sea failed to disclose the fugitive.

He was arrested the next day when a taxi driver reported a dripping wet man in the bus station. He had clung to the underside of the dock all night.

The domestic science department of the public school is in receipt of a flour-milling exhibit. The cabinet contains twenty-four different process products from the Washburn-Crosby Company, who sent the exhibit complimentary to the school. A tabulated statement of the process of milling is also given and each sample is fully explained, showing the intricate process of making flour, beginning with the raw wheat and ending with the refined finished product.

Thanksgiving is destined to be a quiet day in Hereford this year. Both banks, all grocery and mercantile stores, barber shops and cream stations have agreed to close shop Wednesday night and not reopen until Friday morning.

As usual drug stores and cafes will keep open, some all day and others for part of the day. Filling stations usually keep open, while some garages will probably be kept open for work on emergency calls.

THANKS TO YOU

It has been another good year!

And today as we pause in our busy endeavors to give Thanks, we will include in our long list of blessings, our many friends and customers who have come our way over the past year.

In The Beginning

... God created all things. He gave us science and He gave us religion . . . they never conflict. His words and His works harmonize. He can perform both scientific and spiritual miracles. God can take the nucleus, the cell, the molecule and get staggering results. He can also take a body that has almost gone to hell and convert it into a man. The laboratory and the human body are the Lord's work shops. He can pull a switch and set it all to work. He is still saying . . . "My thoughts are not as your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways." His church on the corner is a good place to learn that fancied discords blend in perfect harmony. Won't you attend services somewhere this week?

"Let Us Come Before His Presence With Thanksgiving..." Ps. 95-2

As THE DAWN of this THANKSGIVING DAY approaches, millions of Americans will pause to Express Gratitude for the Health, Prosperity and Happiness of our nation and give Thanks for the Freedom we Americans enjoy.

The Year 1958 has been a good one. We folks of the Hereford area have concluded a most bountiful harvest. Our granaries are bulging. Our livestock is fat and plentiful and our homes radiate peace and comfort. We think back to the experiences of the Pilgrims and we too set aside a day for Thanks, for God has been most generous.

AND ON THIS THANKSGIVING DAY, speaking in behalf of myself and the entire personnel of Hereford Grain Corporation, we pause to Give Thanks for the bounty of this harvest, and extend our sincere wishes to you and your family for a HAPPY THANKSGIVING DAY.

Drinking Driver Will Be Prime Target Of Patrolmen Nov. 26-30

Working hours of all Texas Highway Patrolmen in this District will be increased during the Thanksgiving holiday week-end, Captain J. W. Blackwell, Commanding Officer of this Area, announced today.

In addition, all days off for our Patrol personnel have been cancelled in an effort to increase the enforcement effort.

This announcement came as a warning to those planning trips over the long weekend which will tend to increase the hazards of highway driving due to the large volume of traffic on the roads.

Blackwell said that from all indications traffic would be heavy and the threat of an accident greatly enhanced. He further pointed out that all radar units will be used continuously to cut down on the number of speeding violations usually found on the highways during holidays.

Formby will continue in the capacity of director. Warhek Carr, Lubbock lawyer, was elected president of the association, and replaces Curtis Sterling, Brownfield publisher, retiring president.

"With shorter days now upon us," Blackwell said, "Driving has become more dangerous. During this holiday period of Nov. 26 to Nov. 30, more drivers will be inclined to drink and drive. The drinking driver has been earmarked as the prime target of the highway patrolmen for this period."

Exceptional Range!

Vocal range is what counts in a soprano. In a motor oil the important thing is the temperature range at which the oil is effective. Phillips 66 Trop-Artic Motor Oil is exceptional in this respect. Trop-Artic permits easy starting in a cold engine because it doesn't get too thick. And it provides dependable protection in a hot engine because it doesn't get too thin. Formby Attends Homecoming Clint Formby, a director of the Texas Tech Ex-Students Association, attended the institution's 29th Homecoming in Lubbock last week.

Formby will continue in the capacity of director. Warhek Carr, Lubbock lawyer, was elected president of the association, and replaces Curtis Sterling, Brownfield publisher, retiring president.

indications traffic would be heavy and the threat of an accident greatly enhanced. He further pointed out that all radar units will be used continuously to cut down on the number of speeding violations usually found on the highways during holidays.

"With shorter days now upon us," Blackwell said, "Driving has become more dangerous. During this holiday period of Nov. 26 to Nov. 30, more drivers will be inclined to drink and drive. The drinking driver has been earmarked as the prime target of the highway patrolmen for this period."

Higher Pay For Legislators Issue Buried But Not Dead

By VERN SANFORD
AUSTIN Higher pay for legislators is an issue that's buried, but not dead. Voters buried it under a two-to-one avalanche of disapproval when it was submitted as a constitutional amendment Nov. 4. But already there is talk of trying again.

It is being discussed both by those who supported "Amendment One" and those who fought hardest against it. Sen. Dorsey Hardeman of San Angelo, leading spokesman for the opposition, has indicated he may submit a pay raise plan of his own next session. Hardeman attacked the recent proposal, not on the principle of better pay for lawmakers, but on the grounds that the amendment was a muddled conglomeration of too many things.

State AFL-CIO, which worked for Amendment One, is plunging for re-submission of the annual pay question. AFL-CIO headquarters officials sent a letter to legislators expressing regret that the amendment did not pass and placing the blame on labor's favorite targets—business lobbyists and newspapers.

The captain added that if the driving public will use common sense and comply to the strict adherence of our traffic laws, the possibility of accidents would be reduced. "This time of the year normally proves more fatal for motorists," Blackwell said as he urged all drivers to pay particular attention to their own driving to compensate for the increase in traffic and hours of darkness.

Whatever the merits of the case, a lot of people in the state agencies in Austin are clamoring about the prospect of facing a disgruntled, punch-permy Legislature next year. With the general revenue fund in the red, there's bound to be an effort to cut expenses. In addition, state employees fear there'll be a feeling among lawmakers that "If we can work for peanuts, so can you."

State Board of Water Engineers has completed public hearing on one squabble over Trinity River water and is faced with another soon. Probably as a result of the recent drought, there seems to be an increasing intensity in the struggles between various areas of Texas for water rights.

In the case of a major river like the Trinity, which passes through or near three major cities—Fort Worth, Dallas and Houston—there's always a fear that one city will take out so much water another will run dry.

Water Board has under consideration now Dallas' request for a permit to build Flinn Dam on the East Fork of the Trinity. There was strong opposition from the North Texas Municipal Water District, particularly Rockwall County, on the grounds that the dam would secure Dallas' water future at the expense of north county neighbors.

In the making is another wrangle over Houston's request to build a reservoir at Livingston. Houston wants to divert 1,100,000 gallons daily to the reservoir—practically all the appropriated water from the Trinity. Dallas is attempting to organize Upper Trinity towns and cities, including Fort Worth, to oppose the plan.

Texas Social Welfare Association at its meeting in Austin asked the next Legislature to:

1. Pass laws putting into effect the new constitutional amendment permitting medical aid for the aged, disabled and dependent.
2. Overhaul laws dealing with delinquent, dependent and neglected children.
3. Appropriate money to the Texas Youth Council for more staffs, including parole supervisors for juveniles.
4. Pass a minimum standard hospital licensing law.

Association also passed a resolution praising State Welfare Dept. Director John Winters and presented its Distinguished Service Award to Miss Ina Haag of Houston (daughter of the late Gov. James Hogg) for her generosity on the behalf of mental health work.

Next Legislature will be asked to ask auto mechanics to have a license before monkeying around under the hood of your car.

Texas Independent Garagemen's Association has voted to work for such a law. Under the association's proposal, all independent auto repair shops, all authorized car dealers' shops and all mechanics would be examined and licensed under a state board. Purpose, say the garagemen, is to protect the public from those who pad bills and do little, if anything, for cars.

An attempt will be made next session to patch up the savings and loan association law after a part of it was declared unconstitutional.

Atty. Gen. W. L. Wilson held unconstitutional the law which provides for automatic cancellation of a savings and loan association's certificate to do business if it fails to start operations within six months after the certificate is granted. Wilson ruled this violates the constitutional guarantee against being deprived of life or property without due process of law. State Banking Commissioner J. M. Finkbeiner said he will ask to have the savings and loan law made like the banking law. This gives the Banking Commission authority to act on a bank's certificate if business is not begun within 90 days.

Texas regulatory agencies cannot set rates for railroads, truck lines, etc., carrying goods and personnel for the federal government in Texas.

This ruling by the Texas Supreme Court was made in a last case brought by the Texas and Pacific Railroad and others. It had been knocking around in the courts for some years. Former Atty. Gen. John Ben Sheppard had ruled that the Texas Railroad Commission did have authority to set rates for trains.

RAINMAKERS

LAS CRUCES, N. M., (AP)—This Southwestern New Mexico town doesn't need to hire professional rainmakers, the Lions Club of the community takes care of the problem adequately.

An annual Cotton Carnival which the club holds to raise funds has been rained out the past three years. Even a change of dates hasn't helped.

Oddly enough the dates selected usually come during cotton picking season and the wet weather at this time of the year doesn't make the cotton farmer very happy.

partation entirely within the state's borders. Final ruling was based on a decision by the U. S. Supreme Court in a California case of the same type.

Court of Criminal Appeals insists the evidence has to be 100 proof to convict a man of manufacturing an "illicit beverage."

Appeals Court threw out the conviction of a Lamar County man who had pled guilty to a charge of "possessing a still to manufacture intoxicating liquor."

Majority opinion said, in effect, that the law prohibits possession of a still to make "illicit beverages" but that "illicit beverages" are not necessarily "illicit."
