

Court Nixes NRC Assessment Method

Opponents of nuclear waste storage may have won a significant battle this week when the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington, D.C. ruled invalid a Nuclear Regulatory Commission method of assessing the environmental hazard from radioactive waste coming from new nuclear power plants.

According to a story in the Wednesday issue of "The Wall Street Journal," a three-judge panel of the appeals court ruled two-to-one that the NRC procedures fail to account for "uncertainties" still surrounding plants for long-term disposal of nuclear waste.

The decision may seriously damage the government's position that underground storage of nuclear waste is safe.

During the 1970's the NRC devised guidelines for evaluating the waste disposal plans of electric utilities seeking licenses for new nuclear power plants.

The guidelines said that applicants couldn't be challenged on that point because the government eventually would be responsible for burying the waste permanently in deep underground storage.

According to the Journal story the guidelines have been attacked for years by the Natural Resources Defense Council (NRDC), an environmental group, and by several state governments.

In this latest opinion Judge

David Bazelon, writing for the majority, said the NRC guidelines are still deemed "arbitrary" violations of the law, saying that "they fail to allow for consideration of uncertainties" about whether radioactive wastes will leak out once they are stored permanently.

The Office of Nuclear Waste Isolation (ONWI) has been studying several possible sites for permanent storage of nuclear waste for several years.

The Palo Duro Basin, of which Deaf Smith County is a part, is currently under study for possible repository locations, and two test holes have been drilled in the county to help determine the acceptability of salt deposits in the area for such a use.

Ronald Wilson, an attorney who represented the NRDC in the case this week, said a "clear conscience" of the decision "is that the NRC is going to have to reformulate a rule to be applied in the future."

NRC spokesman Joseph Fouchard said the agency's lawyers are "studying the opposition." The NRC has the option of asking the appeals court for a rehearing or appealing the decision to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Judge George Edwards joined Bazelon in the majority, while dissenting in part from the opinion. Judge Malcolm Wilkey voted the other way, and wrote a long dissent.

The NRC "has fulfilled its procedural obligations," he wrote. "Judicial sound-guessing of the NRC on policy grounds will mean a delay in the development of nuclear power," he added.

The Senate is expected to begin debate soon on a bill setting up a timetable for both interim and permanent storage of radioactive wastes at federal repositories.

Sweetheart Finalist

Lisa Snyder, Hereford Key Club sweetheart, will be among the 12 finalists in the sweetheart contest at the Texas-Oklahoma District Key Club Convention in Dallas this weekend. Key Clubbers Attend District Convention

The Hereford Key Club will have one of the largest delegations and one of the 12 sweetheart finalists when 270 clubs in the Texas-Oklahoma district meet in Dallas this weekend for the annual International Key Club convention.

Lisa Snyder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Snyder, was selected as one of the 12 finalists from a field of more than 200 entries in the sweetheart contest. She is the first Hereford Key Club sweetheart to compete in the finals.

The high school organization is sponsored by Hereford Kiwanis Club. Attending the convention with the 51 club members will be Gene Brock, faculty advisor; Wayne Winget and Bill Igal, Kiwanis advisors, and sponsors Mike Carr, Gerry Hollinger, Stan Rose, Rex Easterwood and Mel Holubec.

Hereford's Brent Glenn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Glenn, is the current lieutenant-governor of the T-O District and will preside at some of the meetings. Greg Palmer of Hereford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Palmer, will succeed Glenn as the lieutenant-governor of the big district. The local delegation leaves early Friday morning and a round of events are on the convention agenda that day, including a sweetheart breakfast, an award dinner, get-acquainted affairs, and regional caucuses.

The Key Clubbers will see slide presentations and be introduced to the sweetheart candidates Saturday night, then approximately 2,200 members will cast ballots to select the district sweetheart.

Brock, the faculty advisor, said he had been notified that the Hereford club will have the second largest delegation at the convention. A talent show is also planned at the convention and Scott Hamby will represent the local club in the event.

The clubs also compete for top achievement ratings at the meet, and Hereford hopes to improve on its No. 3 ranking at last year's convention. The club will also compete for honors in Single-Service Projects.

At the conclusion of the convention, the club members will go to Six Flags Over Texas park before returning home Monday.

U.S. Kids Flunk Fitness Testing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly half the kids in America are so out of shape that they flunked a standard fitness test, a study shows.

The analysis by the Amateur Athletic Union also showed that in some categories the average teen-ager's performance declined after age 14.

For example, the typical 15-year-old boy takes 13.3 seconds to sprint 100 yards while 14-year-old boys cover the distance in 12.6 seconds. The typical 17-year-old girl can do only 38 modified push-ups in two minutes, compared with 43 performed by an average 12-year-old girl.

Dr. Wynn F. Updyke, associate dean for graduate studies at Indiana University's School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, attributed the falling off — or leveling off — after age 14 to the fact that many schools drop compulsory gym and physical education after the eighth grade.

At a news conference Wednesday, Updyke made public the analysis based on the performance of 7,600 youngsters who were chosen at random from four million children given the tests during the last two school years.

"Although the basic standards are designed to be attainable by the average healthy youngster in each age and sex group, only 43 percent of participants were able to achieve them during the 1979-80 and 1980-81 academic years," a summary said.

Updyke said there were no significant differences in test results by geographic region and the scores in 1980-81 were no better or worse than those the previous year.

Light Turnout Predicted

Candidates Push for Late Support

By The Associated Press

If absentee ballots are any indication, most Texas voters will do something other than stand in line at the polls during Saturday's Democratic and Republican primaries.

Nevertheless, several candidates predicted that in their races they would draw the lion's share of the meager turnout predicted by Texas Secretary of State David Dean.

Dean, basing his prediction on absentee ballots in 50 counties where 72 percent of the state's voters live, estimated Wednesday only about 28 percent of the state's 6.6 million registered voters would turn out at the polls.

He said 36 percent of the voters turned out for 1980 primaries and 39 percent for the 1978 primaries.

Republican U.S. Senate candidate Walter Mengden said reports from 23 area campaign chairmen show him an easy winner with 55 percent to 56 percent of the GOP vote.

Mengden said opponent Jim Collins is "living in fantasy land" if he thinks he will win the nomination to face incumbent Democrat Lloyd Bentsen.

Jim Mattox said polls for candidates in other races show him "substantially ahead" in the Democratic race for attorney general. But he said 40 percent of the voters are undecided about the four-man race also including former U.S. attorney John Hannah, State Sen. Jack Ogg of Houston and Max Sherman of Amarillo.

Eight Americans Among 52 Held by Hijackers

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Five armed leftist hijackers settled down for the night with their 27 hostages aboard a Honduran airliner at the Tegucigalpa airport after the government rejected their demand for $1 million in ransom and the release of 52 political prisoners.

The hostages included eight American men, the U.S. Embassy said. One of them, Gregory Bascom of the Standard Fruit and Steamship Co., told the control tower by radio: "The hijackers say that if you don't free the prisoners, I will die."

Another American reported among the captives

"It's close enough I wouldn't be surprised if I ran first or second or perhaps third," said Hannah. "I don't think I'm going to run fourth and I don't think I'm going to run third."

Hannah predicted Ogg would finish fourth.

But Ogg said two statewide polls show the contest a "horse race with Ogg leading the Pack."

Campaign workers for Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown let others quibble about frontrunners, they were busy trying to explain Brown's racial slur in a speech to agriculture educators Tuesday. The comment later was aired by a was NBC-TV correspondent Brian Ross.

"Honduras is a poor country confronting a tremendous economic crisis, and it cannot enjoy the luxury of handing over $1 million to a terrorist group," Deputy Foreign Minister Rodol Rosales Abella told The Associated Press.

"Neither can we free 52 political prisoners who do not even exist in our jails since no one here is persecuted for his political ideas."

However, the government said it would let the hijackers, who it said were members of a guerrilla group called Revolutionary Popular Forces-Lorenzo Zelaya, fly to another country if they freed the hostages.

Police said there were 44 passengers, including 15 Americans, and four crew members aboard the Honduran Air Service Dash-7 turboprop when the guerrillas, armed with pistols, commandeered it Wednesday morning during a flight from La Ceiba, 115 miles north of Tegucigalpa, to the capital.

Siren Testing Postponed

The testing of the tornado warning system has been postponed until Friday at 10 a.m., weather permitting, civil defense coordinator Jay Spain has reported. The test was originally set for 10 a.m. today, but was postponed due to overcast skies.

The tests will be run Friday morning, provided the skies clear, Spain said.

Police Arrest Theft Suspect

Hereford police Wednesday apprehended a juvenile female from Friona in connection with the April 21 theft of $30 worth of merchandise from Louise's clothing store in Sugarland Mall. The girl is expected to be charged with the alleged theft of two pairs of socks and a T-shirt from the store.

The PD also received a report of a woman being hit by an assailant in her bedroom at 12:44 a.m. today. The woman reported that she awoke to find the man standing in her room at the home on Lawson St. The suspect reportedly struck the woman on the head with an unknown object, but ran from the residence when the woman's baby began crying after being awakened.

In other reports officers failed to find a suspect who ran from the back yard of the Paul Clayton home at 305

Ave. K about 12:27 a.m. today. Clayton reported he heard noises in the yard, and after investigating, saw the suspect, who fled the scene.

Jose Alvarez, 117 Ave. F also told police that someone walked into her back yard around 7:45 p.m. Wednesday. After she asked him what he wanted, the suspect allegedly fled.

A broken window was discovered at Hereford High School in one of the shop buildings, while Hi-Plains Lab at 626 East First, reported that someone threw a beer can at a window there around 6:15 p.m. The window was not damaged.

Mrs. B. Lee Cocanougher, 108 W. 8th, reported the theft of a battery from a vehicle there sometime Tuesday night. The battery was valued at $109.

Police also received one report of a dog bite.

A long-time Hereford landmark, the Pitman Grain elevator, is in the process of receiving a facelift. Painters have begun replacing the Pitman name with the name of the current owners, Hereford

Talking Billboard Interferes Texas

Radio Station

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Some motorists near Memphis International Airport are being caught up in a battle of the airwaves between a Texas radio station and the sultry voice from a "talking billboard" wooing customers to topless nightclubs.

"This billboard talks turn now to AM 1200," says a huge billboard off Interstate 240 near the airport. The sign also features a pouty lipped blond.

By day, motorists who tune their radios to AM 1200 hear a pitch for four local topless nightclubs — Danny's, Follies, Gigi's Angels and the Pink Garter.

"In Memphis there are now four exciting and provocative places for you to enjoy a few of life's little pleasures," the billboard says. "Remember, we are looking for that special someone who is both bold and courageous enough to try something unique, just like you tried out this talking billboard."

But by night, the glib billboard must compete with radio station WOAI in San Antonio — on whose frequency the billboard is apparently legally infringing. The billboard's message is interrupted by Spurs basketball games, newscasts, down home Texas music and soft drink commercials originating from WOAI.

"This is the first report of a talking billboard that I've heard of," Fred Broce, a spokesman for the Federal Communications Commission in Atlanta, said Wednesday. "We haven't had any complaints...and we always get plenty of complaints."

"It is within the realm of possibility that it's legal. I would assume that it's legal without any information to the contrary."

FDA Recalls

Pacemakers

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — A spokesman for the federal Food and Drug Administration says his agency has ordered a recall of experimental pacemakers manufactured by a Boulder medical firm.

"There is a reasonable probability that the use of or exposure to the product will cause death," Bill Rados said Wednesday.

He said the pacemakers were distributed under the brand names Synthemed and Valleylab.

Pacemakers are battery-operated devices which regulate heartbeats by delivering electrical shocks at a predetermined rate. Synthemed's pacemakers have a reserve battery cell for backup power.

Ed Cheatham, president of Synthemed, said his company notified the FDA about the potentially defective pacemakers after one of the 108 devices the company has manufactured stopped working in a patient. He said the patient didn't suffer any immediate ill effects.

"We advised the physicians managing the patients about the problem," Cheatham said. "For a very great percentage of patients, it's not a lethal situation."

"It depends upon what their underlying heart problem might be," he said. "It's the doctor's decision whether it's in the patient's best interest to remove the pacemaker."

Firefighter Killed

In Plane Crash

HOUSTON (AP) — As soon as he heard a radio report of an airplane crash, lawyer Harry Noe said he knew who the victim was.

Noe and Houston firefighter William Spradley were supposed to fly a pair of light planes from Houston to Georgia and they took off in tandem. Moments later, Noe heard that a private plane had gone down.

"I just immediately thought it must be Bill because I had lost him," Noe said of the Wednesday crash that killed Spradley.

Witnesses told fire investigators the left engine of Spradley's Cessna 411 appeared to catch fire as the plane lifted off from Hobby Airport.

A fire official said the plane circled back toward the airport but hit a telephone pole and narrowly missed a mobile home before it crashed and exploded in flames. Spradley was alone aboard the twin-engine light plane, officials said.

Noe pleaded no contest last week to charges he filed a false $134,000 insurance claim involving the airplane Spradley was flying. Noe said he and Spradley intended to take the plane to Georgia to sell it.

FAA executive George Masterson said officials from his agency's regional office would investigate the crash. Spradley, a captain who was a 21-year veteran of the fire department, had been named an unindicted co-conspirator in a federal drug trial of Houston country-western singer Roy McLemore and two Miami men. The case is pending in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., on charges that arose after Spradley and McLemore crash-landed in Colombia in 1979 and were detained there for more than a month.

Babies Having Babies

Pregnancy among school-agers is not new.

The Salvation Army founded and funded the Booth Memorial Home in Chicago to care for unmarried mothers in 1897.

A home for babies having babies...

There's one other, I understand. In Dallas.

Girls those many years ago were usually in love with an equally young boyfriend...

Recent years they were more often victimized by older men...

But Booth Memorial Home provides a clean, comfortable environment—

Where the girls, who may be as young as 11, tend the scrubbed halls and their own rooms—

Which they decorate, often with cuddly dolls or posters of the Rolling Stones.

The girls attend school every morning, eight to noon—study math and English, sewing and cooking...

Each semester, several graduate from high school—or from grammar school.

Christmas at Booth Memorial Home has to be the only place in the world where, when the Christmas play is re-enacted, both Mary and Joseph are pregnant.

And Easter Sunday there was an Easter egg hunt.

After 85 years, the Booth Home will close this year.

The need is greater but the funds are less.

And that is a tragic loss.

The record is so excellent. Nobody squeezes more cents out of a dollar than does the Salvation Army.

The army has been able to care for, feed and educate these girls for $30 a day. Hospitals charge hundreds of dollars a day.

And though most all pregnancies at Booth are problem pregnancies and many babies are premature, Booth has the second lowest infant mortality rate of all area hospitals.

Eighty percent of these girls keep their babies, adjust to a productive life...

Where elsewhere only 20 to 20 percent do.

John Shadeuck of Blue Cross calls Booth the "cleanest, most compassionate, most cost effective health care facility in the city of Chicago."

And it will close when what money is left runs out—sometime this year.

Twice in my life I've wished I were very rich—had a lot of money.

Once when my widowed mother went to work as a charwoman. And now.

Temple, a railroad commissioner, said he would support the Democratic nominee against Republican Gov. Bill Clements. However, he said he expects to be that nominee after a June 5 runoff with Attorney General Mark White. Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong is the third major Democratic candidate in the race.

Luther Jones, Temple's campaign manager, said Temple returned a $50,000 contribution from Clinton Manges, a South Texas banker-rancher who gave $270,000 to Armstrong.

"Buddy decided he didn't want to take that size of contribution from anyone other than from his own family," said Jones.

Pete Snelson, a land commissioner candidate, said he returned a $25,000 donation from Manges' political action committee. The Manges contribution "was greatly out of proportion to our other contributions," said Snelson.

Manges was convicted in the 1960s of making false statements in a loan application. He also has been involved in banks that drew government attention for various reasons. His Rio Grande City bank was closed after he withdrew it from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Snelson drew heat from his Democratic opponents Wednesday for his decision to sponsor a constitutional amendment to abolish the state property tax. The amendment will be considered at a May 24 special session.

Snelson had proposed a 3-cent property tax during the 1981 Legislature.

Land commissioner candidate Dan Kubiak said he didn't think Snelson would "be so wishy-washy on an issue he fought so hard on" during the 1981 Legislature.

Candidate Garry Mauro said Snelson "single-handedly blocked" the legislative effort to kill the tax.

"Now Snelson has suddenly got religion and has abruptly decided to stop worshipping this repressive, irresponsible tax," said Mauro.

Hannah said, if elected, he would seek to force the federal government to help pay the cost of educating illegal aliens. A federal court has ruled illegal alien children are entitled to free education in Texas public schools. Hannah said he expects the U.S. Supreme Court to affirm that ruling.

"It would affect almost every school district in the state, but the hardest hit by this decision would be some of the poorest school districts in Texas — those least able to pay," he said. "I would seek to force the federal government to pay this added expense. After all, it is their failed immigration policies that have caused this problem."

Mattox, after his news conference, walked into the Capitol press room to say he has filed federal legislation that would force federal payment of the education expenses. Mattox is not seeking re-election to his U.S. House seat from Dallas.

Wilson Asks Daycare for Funding

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Parents who can't afford to pay for daycare for their children will be forced back onto welfare rolls if the state doesn't pay for a program that has become a victim of budget cuts, says Houston state Rep. Ron Wilson.

"Two-to-three thousand children will turn into 'latchkey kids,'" in Houston alone, Wilson told a Capitol news conference Wednesday.

He said he had asked Gov. Bill Clements to open the special legislative session to include passage of emergency daycare funding.

The May 24 special session was scheduled solely to consider repealing the state property tax. But Wilson called the daycare closings a "crisis" and said he expected a "compassionate and sensitive" Clements to "find it in his heart to save these children."

Between $1 million and $1.5 million is needed to fully fund the program statewide, Wilson said.

Wilson said about 20,000 Texas children are affected by the loss of federal funding for daycare. Some are in contract daycare centers in the interim by virtue of a temporary federal-state funding setup.

If the state does not pick up the program, Wilson said, the children either will be unsupervised or the parents — mostly single mothers — will have to quit their jobs and return to welfare rolls.

He said a 2-year-old Houston child was severely burned recently when its 90-year-old grandmother failed to watch after it properly. The child had been in a daycare center until the budget cutbacks.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,

When we are born into this world God has special work for us to do. Many fail to find the work that they were put here for, others just don't do it. But one wonderful day, Mrs. Ola Newton Davis, must have found what our Lord wanted her to do and she has done it well. So when the angels escort her to the throne of God and her record is read from the Lamb's Book of Life we will all be proud of her record and God will be pleased.

Ola was born April 23, 1892 at Mt. Vernon, Texas. Converted when she was 16 at a Methodist brush arbor revival and married John B. Davis when she was 21 and has one son who lives in Amarillo. Mr. Davis died in 1944.

Ground breaking for our beloved home, Kings Manor, was April 20, 1962. This lovely little lady was there and has been a part of our home from the beginning. She and Emma Blake slept on a mattress on the floor before there was a bedstead. Emma became the Manor's first resident. Ola became the first hostess, along with many other duties as she was needed, such as kitchen supervisor, dining room seating, telephone, housekeeping and about anything that was needed except plumbing. She never quite qualified for this service, but did pinch hit a little.

Ola had an accident in 1974 that left her with a broken hip and this was the cause of her retirement. But she stayed on here as a resident and retained her interest in all that goes on in Kings Manor. Although she cannot help much physically, she is able to give helpful advice about many things and likes to feel helpful. Her love for the home and her ready smile are an inspiration to all of us.

The Manor gave a birthday party for Ola April 22 and the attendance was great. It seemed that everyone wanted to show their love for her. The party was one day early, but we felt like helping her celebrate two days instead of only one for her ninetieth birthday. We feel that we of the Manor owe her more than we can pay for her part in making our home the lovely place it is. I speak for many. We thank you and we love you, Ola.

Dear Editor:

On May 1 Democratic Party votes will be selecting two candidates for places on the ballot for the Court of Criminal Appeals. Most people probably do not even know there is a race going on for those positions, and certainly do not know much about the candidates. As Criminal District Attorney I would like to take this opportunity to inform the public about some of the candidates.

Unfortunately, most candidates for the Court of Criminal Appeals do not have the funding to conduct an effective statewide campaign. His performance on the court has given him the reputation of being a law and order judge.

I believe both these men would be law and order judges and deserve the support of the voters.

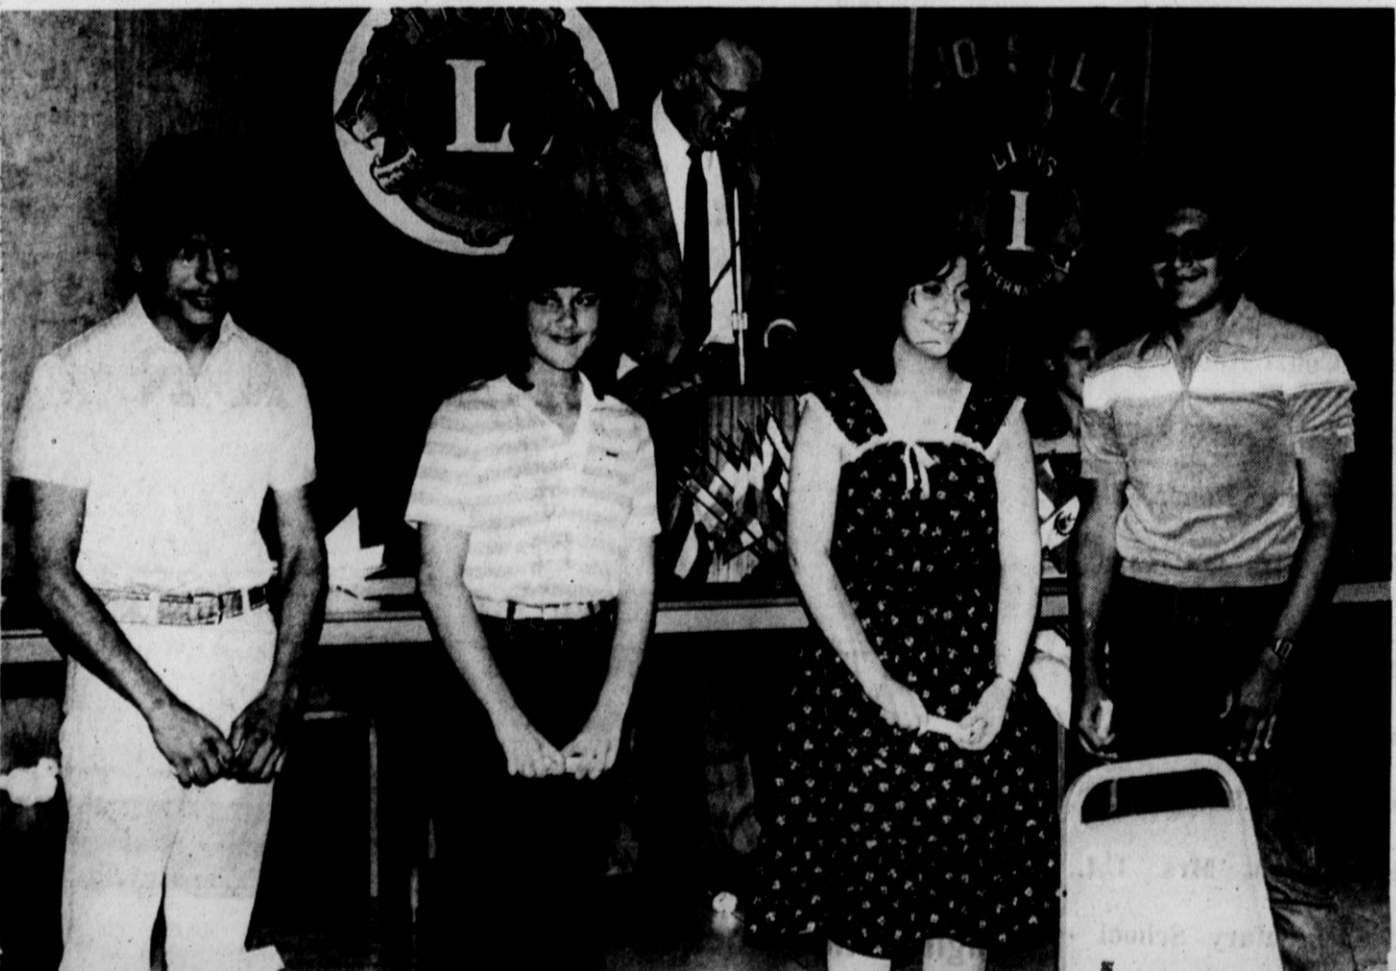

One of those persons is Andrew Jackson Shuval, the former District Attorney of Deaf Smith County. I believe Mr. Shuval to be State's minded and concerned about the rights of the victims of crime, as well as the criminals. He is running for Place 2 on the Court of Criminal Appeals.

Running for Place 1 on the Court of Criminal Appeals is the incumbent, Carl E. F. Dally. Judge Dally has been on the Court of Criminal Appeals for 10½ years and has written over 2500 opinions. In a recent survey conducted by the Texas District and County Attorneys Association, Judge Dally's record was the second highest among the 9 judges in voting to uphold convictions.

His performance on the court has given him the reputation of being a law and order judge.

I believe both these men would be law and order judges and deserve the support of the voters.

Sincerely,
Roland Saul,
Criminal District Attorney

Ann Landers Girdle Helps Back Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I usually agree with you, but we parted company when you called a man a transvestite because he wore a girdle and stockings.

I can tell you from experience that stockings are necessary to keep a girdle from riding up and bunching around the middle. Support stockings also help circulation.

Years ago I had back problems. I couldn't afford a surgical corset. My wife gave me an old girdle and a pair of nylons. She said I'd need the nylons to keep the girdle down.

In a matter of days I was amazed at how much better my back felt. It really was miraculous.

I would also suggest the man wear nylon panties under the girdle. It will help the girdle slide on more easily.

A great many people have faith in you, Ann, so please don't go tossing labels around irresponsibly. You could hurt some innocent people.--Straight In Baltimore

DEAR STRAIGHT: O.K. All those guys who are wearing ladies' girdles, nylons and underpants (black garter belts, too, maybe?) are straight fellas with back problems. If you believe that, I have an igloo in Finland I'd like to sell you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your answer to "Ticking Away," who was distressed by her company's insistence that she see a psychiatrist and bring a note every week to prove she had kept her appointment--or be fired--was revolting and dehumanizing.

The company may have a legal right to do this, at least under current laws, but there is no reason to assume those laws are fair or that the woman is "lucky to be kept on."

Such a response reinforces the image of the "mentally ill" held by not only the general public, but by mental patients themselves, as second-class citizens who have somehow earned the humiliation and condescension that are visited upon them. It also, by implication, reinforces the myth that the psychiatrist and his diagnosis are always right.

Would you have responded so condescendingly to "Ticking Away" if she had been suffering from diabetes? Are you sure?--Just Asking

DEAR J.A.: Your comparing mental illness to diabetes is absurd. Diabetes does not alter behavioral patterns. Obviously, the disturbed person did something she could have been fired for. Her job was spared with the understanding that she get professional help. It seems to me that a note to verify that she kept the appointment leaves her with more dignity than phoning the doctor's office and checking.

Granted, psychiatrists are not always right, but one of the difficult aspects of doing my job is formulating a realistic picture of a situation when I have limited information.

Paula Alexander Is Named Merit Scholarship Recipient

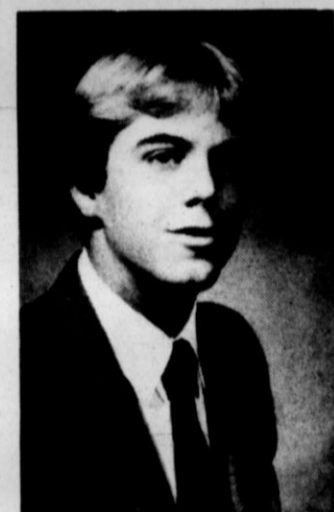

Paula E. Alexander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl G. Alexander, 602 E. Fourth St., is recipient of a four-year college-sponsored Merit Scholarship from Baylor University in Waco.

She is among some 2,000 winners of such scholarships sponsored by about 185 colleges and universities, nationwide. Approximately 5,300 academically talented students have received National Merit Scholarships in 1982, many sponsored by corporations and other organizations.

Miss Alexander, a senior at Hereford High School, plans to study pre-medicine and biology. Voted "Most Intellectual," she is a presidential scholar finalist, a member of the National Honor Society, has been named to the honor roll three years, and has participated in the gifted and talented students program.

She is a member of the National Forensics League, Speech Team, Math and Science Team, and has been drum major for two years, in honors band two years, and orchestra three years. She made all-region band three years. She also attended Bluebonnet Girls' State and is a church pianist.

Scholarship Recipients

Three Hereford High School seniors have been named National Merit Scholarship recipients. In two previous releases, Robert Foster, left, and Katherine Geiger, center, were named winners of corporation-sponsored scholarships, from Pfizer, Inc. and Amstar Corporation, respectively. Paula Alexander has received a college-sponsored merit scholarship through Baylor University in Waco. Through a selection process considering academic records, achievements outside the classroom, qualities of leadership, two sets of test scores, and recommendations by school officials, approximately 5,300 scholarship winners were chosen from 13,500 finalists nationwide.

Dinner Scheduled

The Heart Association Appreciation Dinner is scheduled at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Ranch House Restaurant.

Dr. Jese Perales will speak on coronary artery disease and Dr. Roberto Estenes of Amarillo will talk on heart catheterization.

Good riddance

Pennsylvania was founded because King Charles II owed 16,000 pounds to a dead admiral, who had been grieved by his son's embrace of the Quakers and by his son's run-ins with the establishment. The king was happy to get rid of this son, William Penn, by settling the debt with a grant of land in America, 300 miles long and 160 miles wide.

FAME

BEAUTIFUL MUSIC — Burt Bacharach and Carole Bayer Sager, who recently copped Academy Awards for composing "Arthur's Theme," are again collaborating on a song for a major motion picture — "Night Shift" starring Henry Winkler.

JUST WORKING — Twentieth Century-Fox's successful comedy hit, "Porky's," features a cast of actors and actresses whose names may not be well-known. But many of them have had extensive acting experience. Kim Cattrall is a veteran Canadian actress who has had several TV movie roles including the lead in Operation Prime Time's "The Gossip Columnist." Cyril O'Reilly had a critically acclaimed role opposite Melissa Gilbert in the remake of "Splendor in the Grass." Boyd Gaines is seen as Valerie Bertinelli's fiancé on CBS' "One Day at a Time."

ON THE AIR — ABC/Hearst's morning venture "Daytime" boasts two well-known news personalities, Sharron Lovejoy and Alanna Davis. Ms. Lovejoy was a CBS news correspondent in Los Angeles and New York, while Ms. Davis served as special contributor to NBC's "Today" show.

Now You're Cookin'

By JERI CURTIS
Staff Writer

"I told the kids when we first started that we'd be eating some of them," says Jerry Brock. However, he hasn't run into a situation where his kids' show rabbits end up in their plates.

Plenty of other rabbits have, though.

"I've had them off and on before, but we started eating them regularly about a year ago," Brock said. "We started it out as a project for the kids to raise them as show rabbits."

Brock chose rabbits as a stock for his children because they were easier to handle and inexpensive and are good producers. "You can get a lot of meat rabbits in a hurry," Brock laughed.

Most fryers are New Zealand or Californians because they gain size quicker than the other breeds. Five to six-pound fryers sell for about $6 and may reach 10 to 12 pounds when full grown.

At about a dollar a pound, it's cheaper than steak. Its rich taste makes it more popular than chicken in the Brock home, too.

"I can get my kids to eat rabbit sausage better than pork sausage," Brock said. Carmella, his wife, didn't have any qualms about cooking up rabbit dishes, Brock recalled. "Only thing was, she didn't know if she had to do anything special—which you don't."

The Brocks eat rabbit and dumplings, prepared like chicken and dumplings.

"You can fix it up anyway you would chicken or other meats," Brock said. "Make a rabbit salad like chicken salad, or just boil the meat. I heard someone at a rabbit show in Amarillo say they had it fried in strips like bacon for breakfast."

The Brocks shared a few recipes from a rabbit cookbook which has dishes from the simple fried rabbit to the practical casserole to elegant Rabbit Cacciatore.

Golden Brown Fried Rabbit

1 rabbit fryer, cut up
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
butter or fat
Moisten rabbit meat, drain, but do not dry. Shake pieces in paper bag in flour and seasoning mixture. Place pieces in 1/2-inch hot butter or fat in heavy skillet, turning to brown evenly on all sides. Reduce heat, cover and cook slowly 40 to 50 minutes or until tender. For a crisp crust, uncover for the last 10 to 15 minutes.

Rabbit Casserole

2 rabbit fryers (about 2 pounds each), cut up
4 slices bacon
3 medium onions, quartered
2 green peppers, cut up
1 clove garlic, crushed
1/2 cup white wine
1 1-pound can whole tomatoes
1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. marjoram, crushed
1 tsp. thyme, crushed
Saute bacon until crisp. Drain on paper towels and set aside.

Brown rabbit a few pieces at a time in bacon drippings, then arrange in a 10-cup baking dish. add onion, green pepper and garlic to same skillet and add wine. Cook, stirring and crushing tomatoes until slightly thickened (about 5 minutes). Then stir in cream of mushroom soup, marjoram and thyme. Heat to boiling, stirring frequently. Spoon over rabbit in baking dish and cover.

Bake at 350 degrees one hour until rabbit is tender. Just before serving, crumble reserve bacon and sprinkle over rabbit and vegetables. Serve with hot buttered rice or noodles.

Rabbit Cacciatore

1 rabbit fryer cut in serving pieces
1 large onion
2 8-ounce cans tomato paste
1/2 tsp. oregano
1/2 tsp. garlic
2 bay leaves
1/2 tsp. sugar

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

They're one of the last groups to come out of the closet. They're the men and women who are unable to have the baby they so desperately want. They number one out of every six couples of childbearing age.

They're infertile and they've heard more advice than people with bad backs.

"Just relax. It'll happen. You're trying too hard."

"Be grateful. You have a husband (wife) who undertands."

"Hire a surrogate mother."

"Volunteer in the children's ward. You'll get your fill of kids."

They get about as much sympathy as an 83-pound woman who is trying to gain weight.

We live in an ignorant world where people feel if you can drive a car you can have a baby, which only adds to their feeling of inadequacy.

A support group for infertile couples in Iowa wrote that they suspected I had had a miscarriage and asked me to write something on their behalf if only to create a little understanding and lure the rest of the people out of the closet.

I had six years of marriage without children, followed by two miscarriages. After having three children, I still indulge myself in the sin of wallowing in self-pity and dwelling on what might have been.

Without children, I became a person that even my best friend was reluctant to tell when she was "expecting." I cried for a week. I went through a who-cares period and lashed out with, "Thank God, it's you and not me."

I wanted to physically hurt any woman who complained she had a bad day around the kids. I did physically hurt anyone who said, "How come you don't have kids? Don't you want them?"

I vacillated between grabbing every baby to my breast to shoving them away and saying, "You're a mess. Go to your mother."

Unless you have experienced the emptiness, there is no describing the pain. Unless you have held a baby and despaired at having to give it back, you cannot possibly know what it is like.

Closets are without air. They cannot sustain life. If you can't come out for yourself, do it for the millions of unplanned, unwanted children in this world who have to know there are people like you who exist. Who truly want them. Just the knowing is important.

Californians Divided Over Battle Of Peripheral Canal

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — It's 43 miles long and wider than a 12-lane freeway, a mammoth, winding ditch designed to carry California's lifeblood — water — from north to south.

On June 8, after more than a generation of fierce debate, California voters will decide whether to build the $1.3 billion Peripheral Canal.

The proposed canal is the final link between an extensive river and reservoir system in water-rich northern California and the cities and irrigated farmlands of the south. It gets its name from the path it will travel around the periphery of northern California's lush Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta at the northeastern tip of San Francisco Bay.

Currently, 250 million gallons of water flow daily through the meandering channels of the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta to the northern end of the California Aqueduct, a 400-mile water project completed a decade ago.

The Peripheral Canal and $4.1 billion in related reservoir and pump projects are intended to double that flow of water to the south.

The proposal has divided Californians sharply — principally north vs. south, where about 70 percent of California's population lives, and agricultural vs. environmental interests.

Pollster Mervin Field's latest survey showed 68 percent of the voters in Southern California favor the canal, while only 16 percent of voters in the northern part of the state support it. Field reported 71 percent of the voters in the north and only 15 percent in the south oppose the project.

In the debate, there has not even been agreement on basic facts, such as whether the canal will help or hurt the environment, whether water will cost more or less because of it, and whether the project will produce the water its sponsors say it will.

State engineers say the combined projects listed on the ballot as Proposition 9, including the Peripheral Canal, would nearly double the "yield" of the State Water Project over the next 20 years.

The project, authorized by voters in 1960 and constructed over the next decade, is a package of major water works aimed at improving the state's water delivery system.

The Peripheral Canal is the so-called "missing link" in the network of dams and aqueducts that ship northern water to the San Joaquin Valley and Southern California.

In 1960, the north-south fight had already been going on for years, but then-Gov. Edmund G. "Pat" Brown pushed the state project bill through a reluctant Legislature and campaigned successfully for voter approval of construction bonds.

His son, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., helped get the Peripheral Canal bill through a still-reluctant Legislature last year after a four-year fight.

But when opponents succeeded in qualifying a referendum — the first since 1952 — to force a public vote on the Legislature's action, the governor backed off. Now running for the U.S. Senate, the younger Brown says he still favors the canal, but he is not campaigning for it.

Besides the Peripheral Canal, the bill would authorize two additional reservoirs in northern California, groundwater storage facilities in both northern and southern California and facilities to protect fish, wildlife and water quality in the Delta and the Suisun Marsh.

Altogether, the state says it would increase the amount of water the state project could deliver from 1.6 million to 3.1 million acre-feet a year.

In the Field poll, people said the biggest argument against the $5.4 billion water plan was that it was too expensive and would raise taxes. The state says it won't affect taxes because most of the cost will be paid by water users.

Lt. Gov. Mike Curb, who is seeking the Republican nomination for governor, says that adding all interest and bond payments, it's "a $17 to $20 billion package" that will send water bills out of sight.

Curb's opponent for the GOP gubernatorial nomination, Attorney General George Deukmejian supports the canal. Both men are from Southern California.

The leading candidate for the Democratic nomination, Mayor Tom Bradley of Los Angeles, is also for it.

The Peripheral Canal would be 300 to 400 feet wide and 30 feet deep. It would be an unlined ditch, which at several places would be carried under waterways of the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta in huge siphons.

A mile-wide fish screen would prevent fish from being pumped into the canal.

Canal backers say Southern California will need the water soon because it will lose more than half of its Colorado River water, to be diverted to the Central Arizona Project starting in 1985. But opponents contend Southern California wouldn't need the water if people would conserve, and farmers worry that diverting fresh water to the south will allow salt water from San Francisco Bay to flow into the Delta, increasing salinity and damaging rich farmland.

Sunne McPeak, a Contra Costa County supervisor, said, "They want to build a ditch 400 feet wide and three stories high that has the capacity to divert 70 percent of the water from the Sacramento River, and they say, 'don't worry, folks, we will only export surplus water.'"

Underlying 20 percent of the world's land, permafrost in some places extends only a short distance beneath the surface. But on Alaska's North Slope, it reaches depths of 2,000 feet.

Patriots, Colts Draft 'Winners'

NEW YORK (AP) — Their rosters have been stocked for the 1982 National Football League season — assuming there is a season. The question is: who did best in the draft?

That, of course, may not be known until the end of the 1982 season, if it isn't decimated by a players' strike. For that matter, it may not be known for several years. That's often how long it takes for a player, even one of star caliber in his rookie season, to blossom in the NFL.

Among those for consideration as the top drafting teams this year are the New England Patriots and the Baltimore Colts.

The Pats get an almost automatic nod because they drafted first and took Ken Sims, the defensive tackle from Texas. Scouts said he was the man in what was ostensibly a one-man draft. They said he could do for New England in the next decade what Joe Greene did for Pittsburgh in the past one.

The Patriots also ended up with the last pick of the first round, Lester Williams, a defensive tackle from the University of Miami, by way of a trade with San Francisco.

The 49ers, as befits the defending champions, had the last pick in the 12th and last round, 16 hours and 58 minutes after the Pats had started the proceedings. They picked a defensive back, Tim Washington of Fresno State, whose next task is to find a spot on a roster which, with three rookie defensive backs, won the Super Bowl. Washington's brother, Anthony, plays defensive back for the Pittsburgh Steelers.

The Colts, in trading quarterback Bert Jones to Los Angeles, obtained the No. 4 pick in the opening round to go along with their own No. 2. With their own they shored up the defense, the worst in the NFL last year, by picking linebacker Johnnie Cooks from Mississippi State. And with the Rams' pick, they filled Jones' shoes (maybe) by drafting Ohio State's Art Schlichter, a quarterback considered so good that Woody Hayes had to get away from his three yards and a cloud of dust ground game.

The 49ers, in exchange for the first-round and fourth-round picks sent to New England, acquired one of the best tight ends in the game, Russ Francis. And, although they didn't get him in the draft, they filled another spot on their roster a couple of weeks ago by signing Renaldo Nehemiah, the world-class hurdler. He could be, some observers say, the Bob Hayes of the '80s.

But in a bizarre way, the San Diego Chargers may have come out of the 1982 draft with the best package of players — even though they had only five picks in the 12 rounds.

They traded the others away. In exchange, the Chargers got running backs Chuck Muncie (from New Orleans) and Ricky Bell (Tampa Bay), wide receiver Wes Chandler (New Orleans) as part of the deal that sent John Jefferson to Green Bay, linebackers Dewey Selmon and David Lewis (both from Tampa Bay) and safety Tim Fox (New England).

The five picks by the Chargers are the fewest since Washington had four in 1979.

TV Coverage For Derby 90 Minutes

By LARRY SIDONS AP Sports Writer

The Kentucky Derby lasts approximately two minutes. ABC's telecast of Saturday's race will be 88 minutes longer. Chuck Howard worries whether that will be enough time to tell the story of what he sees as a festive happening in America.

"That may sound ludicrous, that 90 minutes isn't enough time to do a two-minute race, but it's true," said Howard, who is producing the Derby show.

This will be ABC's eight consecutive Run for the Roses, but the first time 1½ hours is being set aside specifically for the race. The telecast starts at 4:30 p.m. EDT, approximately 1 hour and 10 minutes before post-time.

"We felt we just didn't do it justice in 60 minutes (the previous on-air time)," said Howard. "It had nothing to do with ratings; it was a matter of journalism. When you take away the race itself, plus the time we're live in the paddock and the replays and interviews afterward, plus the commercials, you have literally less than 15 minutes to fill in the background."

"The Kentucky Derby is not just a horse race, it attracts its own audience. And a majority of the people who watch it watch one race a year. They don't know about the horses, the tradition. We have to tell them the story of a festive happening in America."

"When we first proposed expanding to 90 minutes, we wondered if we could fill the time. But once we looked at the story possibilities, it became obvious we wouldn't have any trouble. The way the field is going this year, we may run out of time before we run out of material."

With injuries knocking out many of the early favorites, this year's Derby is expected to draw a wide-open field with the maximum 20 horses entered. "Each one of those 20 horses has an owner, a trainer and jockey who each have an interesting story," Howard said.

To help tell all of those stories — or at least as many as time allows — ABC is using 19 cameras, including one in a crane and four minicams to cover the paddock, barn, winner's circle, infield and grandstand.

Much of the early part of the show will be filled with taped profiles of the participants, both two- and four-legged.

Last year's telecast of the Derby earned ABC an Emmy as the outstanding live sports special. You usually don't fiddle with a winning formula, but there are two major changes among the announcers covering this year's race — Jack Whitaker, who recently joined ABC after more than 20 years at CBS, and John Veitch, the trainer from Calumet Farm, who will serve as expert commentator.

Veitch replaces Eddie Arco, the Hall of Fame jockey who long had been ABC's racing expert. Howard said Arco lost touch with the sport he was paid to cover.

The handshake originated in medieval Europe as a gesture between two men to show that each was unarmed.

Washington Evens Series With Celtics

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer

Frank Johnson says the Washington Bullets need to "play well for 48 minutes" to beat the Boston Celtics.

They needed nearly every second of that time Wednesday night to even their best-of-7 National Basketball Association playoff series 1-1 as Johnson connected on a 30-foot three-point field goal with three seconds left to beat the Celtics 103-102.

It was the first victory for Washington over Boston in eight tries this season. The Bullets finished 20 games behind the Celtics in the final NBA standings.

"He's a knucklehead," veteran Spencer Haywood said of Johnson, a rookie. "A knucklehead is a guy who has got a lot of guts and is not afraid of making mistakes."

Haywood and Johnson both scored 26 points to lead the Bullets. The rookie guard from Wake Forest had 24 of his in the second half as the Bullets fought back from a 51-44 halftime deficit.

In the other Eastern Conference semifinal, Philadelphia took a 2-0 lead over Milwaukee with a 102-108 victory. The 76ers will be at Milwaukee and Washington plays host to Boston in Landover, Md., in the third and fourth games of those series Saturday and Sunday.

In the Western Conference, Los Angeles whipped Phoenix 117-98 for a 2-0 lead in their series, while Seattle pulled even with San Antonio with a 114-99 triumph. The scenes shift to Phoenix and San Antonio Friday night and Sunday afternoon.

The Bullets were trailing 102-100 when an offensive foul on Boston center Robert Parish gave Washington the ball with 10 seconds left.

Coach Gene Shue said the winning play was set up for Johnson to take a three-point shot if he was open or drive the lane if he wasn't.

Shue called it "the perfect situation" for a three-pointer. "We had lost seven in a row to the Celtics and needed a win."

Boston shook off a 10-0 Bullet lead to grab a 60-50 third-period advantage. Washington led 77-74 entering the fourth quarter, but Boston shot back on top, 86-84, with 6:02 left. The Celtics stayed in front until Johnson's winning basket.

"They keep coming at you," said Larry Bird, who led Boston with 26 points. "We got beat on a great shot."

76ers 120, Bucks 108
Andrew Toney, playing in a starting role because of Lionel Hollins' injury, scored 31 points and Julius Erving added 24 as Philadelphia took a 2-0 lead in its series with Milwaukee.

Toney also held Bucks star guard Sidney Moncrief to nine points as the 76ers took control of the game early and were only seriously challenged once.

Philadelphia led by as many as 16 points in the second quarter, at 51-35, but the Bucks cut the deficit to 67-61 in the third quarter before falling behind again when the 76ers scored 20 of the next 29 points for an 87-70 lead at the end of the period.

Brian Winters topped the Bucks with 21 points, while Marques Johnson contributed 19 and Mickey Johnson 18 for the Central Division champions.

Lakers 117, Suns 98
Los Angeles beat Phoenix by 19 points for the second night in a row, and again the Lakers used a balanced scoring attack to pull away from the Suns.

NL Roundup

Laskey's First Start A Dream

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

It wasn't bad for a first major league start — a three-hit shutout and an RBI single to boot.

"This is the first dream-come-true in the big leagues for me," Bill Laskey said Wednesday after pitching the San Francisco Giants to a 7-0 victory over the Montreal Expos. "A lot of fans and friends in Toledo are going to read about it and say, 'I can't believe he did it.' I won't believe it until I read it."

At any rate, Laskey's parents came to San Francisco from Toledo, Ohio, to watch their son's fine debut. That alone made him nervous.

"I was nervous the whole first inning," he said. "But then I settled down and started getting ahead of the batters. I didn't think people knew me here, but then they started chanting my name by the end of the game."

Laskey's teammates, and Manager Frank Robinson, then gave him a big hand in the dressing room.

"This is a shot in the arm for the whole club," Robinson said. "He was the last one we cut in spring training, but he knew if he stayed in the groove, he'd be back soon. He's in the rotation now."

Laskey, called up last week from Phoenix where he had a 1.29 earned run average, pitched no-hit ball for 32-3 innings before yielding a double to Al Oliver. The 24-year-old Laskey gave up a pair of singles in the fifth, then retired the final 14 hitters he faced.

The Giants took a 3-0 lead in the fourth with the help of five singles. Jack Clark singled home one run, Jeff Ransom's sacrifice fly delivered another and Laskey's first major league hit, a hard grounder between first and second, capped the rally.

Bill Gullickson, 1-1, took the loss, becoming the first Montreal pitcher to fail to go at least six innings in a start this season. He gave up three runs in the four innings worked.

Elsewhere in the National League, Philadelphia beat Los Angeles 9-3, New York edged San Diego 5-4 in 15 innings, St. Louis tripped Houston 5-4, Chicago blanked Cincinnati 6-0 and Atlanta beat Pittsburgh 7-6 in 10 innings.

Phillies 9, Dodgers 3

Pete Rose tied an NL record with his ninth career five-hit game, and Philadelphia scored all its runs in the last two innings, including a six-run ninth, to come from behind to beat the Dodgers.

Bob Dernier's double broke a 3-3 tie for the Phillies in their big ninth inning and Ivan DeJesus contributed a two-run single.

Rose singled his first three appearances, doubled in the eighth inning, and singled again in the ninth. His ninth five-hit game and first since 1978, ties Max Carey. The major-league record of 14 five-hit games is held by Ty Cobb.

Cardinals 5, Astros 4

David Green's two-run single capped a four-run sixth inning that led St. Louis over Houston. The Cardinals trailed 3-1 at the start of the sixth against Houston right-hander Joe Niekro. Lonnie Smith's grounder bruised the index finger on Niekro's right hand, however, forcing Dave Smith, 0-2, to take over two batters later. Smith eventually absorbed the setback as the Cards batted around in the inning.

Cubs 6, Reds 0

Dickie Noles pitched a one-hitter — Eddie Milner's line-drive single in the fourth inning — as Steve Henderson and Jerry Morales each belted two-run triples to lead Chicago over Cincinnati. "It was a hit all the way," Noles said of Milner's single.

Noles posted the first complete game of his major league career.

Blue Jays 6, Rangers 4
Toronto pinch-hitter Rance Mulliniks smacked a two-run single in the seventh inning that snapped a 4-4 tie and handed Texas its sixth loss in a row.

The victory gave Toronto a sweep of the two-game series and was the first time this season the Blue Jays have won consecutive games.

Jim Clancy earned his first victory in three decisions, getting relief help from Joey McLaughlin in the eighth. McLaughlin yielded homers to Buddy Bell and Lee Mazzilli.

George Brett started the Kansas City first with a double, and Amos Otis drew a walk from Boston lefty John Tudor, 3-1. McRae, a right-handed hitter, then sliced an 0-2 pitch from Tudor down the right-field line, which measures only 302 feet. Singles by Jerry Martin, Frank White, Dennis Werth and Greg Pryor produced the final two runs of the inning.

The Royals scored their final three runs in the next inning on McRae's two-run double and an RBI single by Frank White.

Dennis Leonard, 2-1, allowed five runs on seven hits in the first three innings, but blanked the Red Sox the rest of the way for the win.

Yankees 6, Angels 0

By a special act of Congress in 1939, baseball was the first sport to be honored with a commemorative postal stamp.

LESS IMPATIENCE

abundant life

By Bob Wear
Less impatience will do as much as any one other thing to improve all human relationships. "Impatience" does not function as a virtue, but often as a vice. Many of us know, from our own experiences, how much strain and stress can be generated by "impatience."

We have seen and felt the loss caused by restlessness and short temper, and we know it is easy to express irritation by being impatient.

The rush of present-day living contributes to impatience, unless we consciously and constantly protect ourselves. We may not be able to stop or even slow down the rush, but we can manage ourselves so that we do not react by being impatient.

Impatience hurts us. It makes us speak and act too quickly. Anxiety becomes more intense, and much of our anxiety is caused by our "impatience." This is not all.

When we are impatient, we are almost overcome by frustrations, disappointments, confusion and strife. We cannot see the true view of any life situation, as long as we look at everything through the fog of "impatience."

We sacrifice quality by being impatient, because we will never take the time or have the mind to do our best. "Impatience" is not a time saver, but actually prevents our getting the most out of our time.

"In all evils which admit a remedy, 'impatience' should be avoided, because it wastes that time and attention in complaints which, if properly applied, might remove the cause."—Johnson. Impatience prevents us from doing many of the things we want to do, and are capable of doing; because our "impatience" will not allow the necessary time, or effort, or preparation. It also keeps us upset and disorganized.

"One of the greatest drawbacks to success is the common American trait of 'impatience.' Each of us would like to accomplish great things right-away-quick."—Zu Tavern.

Less impatience will make us more effective individuals, and improve our associations with others.

—Bob Wear
