With satellite dish receivers

The sky's the limit

By JERI CURTIS
Staff Writer

"That sky don't belong to nobody," says Loren Barrick, explaining the attitude of satellite dish antenna dealers across the nation.

Barrick Furniture and The Unique Shop are two businesses that have brought the space age to Hereford. The two dealers report most queries are from rural viewers who cannot subscribe to cable or receive terrestrial beams and from persons able to receive cable who often want more channels -- close to 60 are available with a home satellite receiver.

The major difference between home dish reception and cable subscription, according to Fred Forslund of Birdview Satellite Communications, Inc., is that with a private dish viewers do not have to be members of a network of wires -- the waves are caught directly from the sky. "It's an explosive market. This is just the beginning," Forslund said. A few years back the home systems cost two to three times as much as they do now, but production efficiency and quantity dropped the price much in the way the pocket calculator market did in the early 1970s.

Prices range, in Hereford, from $2,995 to about $4,500. "That's fairly inexpensive when you consider the entertainment value," Forslund said, comparing it to the cumulative cost of taking an average family out for pizza and a movie once a week. Staying home is cheaper.

Owners can subscribe to a special program guide which lists all satellite stations. Barrick chose to sell Birdview because that company manufactures all of its equipment at a plant in Chanute, Kan., and sells directly to the dealer. Barrick's son, Ricky, went to a training school in Chanute to learn to install the dishes.

Randy Laing of The Unique Shop said they chose Leopete because it is the No. 3 such company on the market and the company engineer, Bob Murray, of Flourescent, Colo., has much experience in satellite systems.

The dishes are tough. Barrick said Birdview survived wind tunnel tests of up to 90 mph. Laing said the dish in front of his store withstood a battering from a 1979 Ford in a recent wreck.

Birdview's dish is spun aluminum; Leopete is a metal mesh coated with fiberglass.

A pole several feet in the ground supports the dish at a spot where nothing obstructs its "vision" of satellites. The dish direction may be moved manually or by remote control -- to point at different satellites. Reception bounced from 22,000 miles in space is as good or better than local Panhandle stations.

Mom, 106, still cooks son's meals

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) -- When 80-year-old Bill Schluter was a boy, his mother would give him three square meals a day and put him to bed on time.

Nowadays, she still does. Schluter's mother, Appy Kroll, is 106. About four years ago, when his wife died, Schluter asked his mother to move back in with him, and now they share happy times in their north Spokane home.

"I give him three meals a day and put him to bed on time. That's the best I can do," said Mrs. Kroll. She also reads to him and sings along when he plays the piano.

"She's a lot of company -- and she can cook. Sure, I love having her here," Schluter said Monday. Visitors to their place may find the house warm with the sweet smell of stewing prunes. Schluter is likely to be playing "When You and I Were Young, Maggie" on the piano.

If his mother coaxes him, Schluter will bring out his guitar and harmonica to play her favorite, "Beautiful Texas."

"That's the way he used to amuse himself while I was getting dinner, especially on Sundays," Mrs. Kroll said.

Mrs. Kroll was born in Anderson, S.C., in the national centennial year of 1876. She came to Spokane by train in 1901 -- shortly before Schluter was born -- and she remembers draft horses getting stuck in the mud downtown.

"The town was lousy with horses," she said. "Why, I saw the first Ford that came into town."

Schluter was born in Spokane, and the family moved shortly afterward to a homestead north of town, where they had a dairy herd.

Mrs. Kroll would bake all her own bread -- using 50 pounds of flour every 11 days. She also helped her husband cut wood and sometimes took the horse and wagon on the 3 1/2-hour trip to Spokane.

All that while raising six sons and two daughters. Four of her sons are still alive.

Schluter's father, Mrs. Kroll's first husband, died in 1915. Her second husband died in 1927.

Before his retirement in 1967, Schluter worked as a lumberman, a school janitor and an oil company employee.

Mrs. Kroll now needs a huge magnifying glass to make out the Bible verses, but she says she never passes up a chance to read scripture:

"If you have your Bible to read, the hard part of the world don't bother you."

And though she's happy, she still speaks fondly of the old days.

"We'd go to bed early and get up early," she said. "That helps strengthen your life. That and common food."

Dish Watching

Parabolic antennas for multi-satellite television reception are mushrooming across the country as a mode for home based entertainment. Dealers in Hereford report most queries for the systems, which cost from $2,900 to $4,400, come from rural folk unable to receive area stations or subscribe to cable reception. The dishes pick up waves from geostationary satellites 22,500 miles from Earth. (Brand Photo)

County certifies election results

BY BOB NIGH
MANAGING EDITOR
Accepting a correction due to an addition error in voting Pet. 2 the Deaf Smith County Commissioners' Court Monday formally certified the results of the Nov. 2 General Election.

The only change in figures from those previously reported was that U.S. Sen.

Lloyd Bentsen trailed Republican opponent Jim Collins by a 2,210-2,196 count in that election. Original reports had Bentsen a winner with 2,483 votes.

County Clerk B.F. Cain reported that Pet. 2 Election Judge Dean Herring had rechecked his box's figures and found an error. Bentsen had been credited with 784 votes in that box, but actually received 497.

The court also approved payment of $4,763 in expenses for the election, and Cain said that about $2,000 more in expenses is "anticipated due to ballot printing and other costs."

In other matters Monday the court approved a temporary setup by head custodian Jack Nunley to assume those duties for the county library in addition to his regular duties. Nunley requested the court to approve his assuming the duties of a county employee who had retired, asking to court to let him assume the $3,996 yearly salary as well.

Voicing concern that Nunley may not be able to handle the additional work, the court, on a motion by Pet. 3 Commissioner Bruce Coleman, agreed to let Nunley assume the duties on a three-month trial basis.

The court also approved a resolution approving a Grant Application for the Panhandle Regional Organized Crime Unit, and voted to pay $1,090 for dues to the Texas Association of Counties.

The court also approved two requests to cross a county road with gas lines and a water line in Pet. 1 upon the recommendation of Pet. 1 Commissioner Bill Brady.

Brady, Coleman, and Pet. 4 Commissioner James Voyles are preparing to leave for Washington, D.C. to attend the Third National Assembly on the Jail Crisis, which begins Wednesday and concludes Saturday.

The three commissioners will be accompanied on the trip by Sheriff Travis McPherson.

All four commissioners were present at Monday's meeting as was County Judge Glen Nelson.

Grad notice orientation Wednesday

A graduation announcement orientation will be held at 8 a.m. Wednesday for Hereford High seniors. Parents are also encouraged to attend the session, which will be held in the high school auditorium.

Samples will be available for viewing and order blanks are to be given out.

Students will have three of four days to decide on the quantity they wish to order. Payment must be received when orders are turned in.

Pheasant hunter breakfast Dec. 11

The Hereford Volunteer Fire Department and Ladies' Auxiliary's annual Pheasant Hunters' Breakfast will be held from 5-7:30 a.m., Saturday, Dec. 11 it has been announced.

The annual event, from which the proceeds will benefit the volunteer fire department, will again be held in the HHS cafeteria, corner of Ave. F and Union.

The meal is priced at $3.75 per person, with tickets sold at the door only. The menu includes ham, scrambled eggs, biscuits, cream gravy, milk, orange juice, and coffee. Coffee will also be available for thermoses at a cost of $1 and $1.50 depending upon the size of the container.

Hunters will be able to purchase licenses at the breakfast, and both resident and non-resident licenses will be available.

Persons needing additional information about the breakfast may contact Juanita Higgins at 364-1597.

'Red tape' caused confusion at wreck

By JERI CURTIS
Staff Writer

It was red tape that kept the body of motorcyclist Melvin Burges down in the roadway after his fatal traffic accident Saturday before last.

Friends and relatives of Burges have voiced their disfavor of the handling of the body, which was left out at the scene of the accident (the intersection of U.S. 60 and Progressive Road) for an hour and 47 minutes. According to ambulance crewmen the body was covered, but was not moved.

State law rules that a body at the scene of an unnatural or suspicious death may not be moved without the authority of a coroner. The job of the coroner is to investigate the scene and declare a cause of death -- not simply declare a person dead, as is often thought to be his task. It is unlawful to move the body because in the case of suspicious deaths the removal would be considered to be tampering with the scene of a crime.

Capt. Robert Russell of the Texas Department of Public Safety said if there is any doubt about a person being dead at the scene, medical personnel are allowed to take over. But, if medical crews are sure a person is dead there is nothing they can do. "It's really a problem for us," Russell admitted, adding that even if a body is in the road it cannot be moved -- "even on a crowded freeway in the middle of Houston you can't."

The snag in the Burges case was that Justice of the Peace O.K. Neal, who also is the Deaf Smith County Coroner, was out of town. He said he left word at the sheriff's office that he would be gone that weekend and County Judge Glen Nelson would be the next in line to serve as coroner. However, Nelson was out of pocket. Neal said it was the first time in four years that both were out of pocket and such a snag occurred.

DPS officers investigating the accident then tried to call the city judge, who also was gone.

DPS Sgt. Don Scott said at the time of the accident his patrolmen were not aware of a reciprocal agreement between neighboring counties which allows JPs to cross lines and help each other out.

Neal said he has documentation of a letter sent to all

NATO nuclear plans progress

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Despite the vocal nuclear freeze movement on both sides of the Atlantic, NATO officials say there are no plans to delay the stationing next year of new American atomic weapons in Europe.

"We are determined to go ahead with the deployment" of the Pershing II missiles, said Paolo Pansa Cedronio, former Italian ambassador to the United States.

Air Vice Marshall J. Gilbert of the British Defense Ministry reiterated that view, adding, "There is no question at all. The government of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher is absolutely committed on this."

The comments by Gilbert and Cedronio came Monday

The Social Security Administration announced Monday that under an automatic adjustment mechanism, the ceiling on wages taxed by Social Security will be lifted from $32,400 to $35,700 on January 1.

That means the 9.8 million workers expected to earn more than $32,400 in 1983 will face a payroll tax hike of up to $221.10. The maximum tax will be $2,391.90.

The change was based on the increase in the national wage level, as reflected in workers' W-2 forms sent to the Internal Revenue Service. The average wage rose from $12,513 in 1980 to $13,773 last year.

Congress in 1972 provided for the automatic increases in the amount subject to Social Security tax at the same time that it linked benefits to the Consumer Price Index.

The agency also announced that beneficiaries aged 65 to 69 will be able to earn $6,000 in 1983 without losing benefits, up from $6,000 this year. Those under 65 will be able to earn $4,920 without penalty, up from $4,440, and those 70 or older will be able to earn any amount without losing benefits starting with the month they turn 70. Currently those 72 or older are not penalized for earnings.

Meanwhile, the National Commission on Social Security Reform released a laundry list of reform ideas, including a later retirement age, a variety of ways to tax Social Security benefits, changes in the cost-of-living formula and higher levies on whiskey and gasoline.

There were no proposals for making Social Security voluntary or getting rid of its so-called "welfare" aspects, such as spouses' benefits or extra benefits for low-income workers.

The list suggests ways to revamp the system, providing estimates of savings and how much each idea could contribute to eradicating Social Security's

Shuttle launch still scheduled

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) -- The space agency voiced confidence that Columbia's first commercial mission will lift off on time Thursday despite a leak in the space shuttle's steering system that interrupted the countdown.

Engineers were evaluating the problem overnight and expected a final decision today on whether the countdown would continue, leading up to a scheduled liftoff at 7:19 a.m. EST Thursday.

A statement issued Monday by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said experts as a precaution were analyzing the leak found Sunday in a backup helium regulator in the system of 44 small jets used to steer Columbia in orbit.

"Engineers believe the test will show that leakage through the regulators is at a low enough level to permit use of the system in its normal configuration for the ascent phase of the mission," it said.

If officials decided to replace the leaky unit, the flight might have to be delayed several weeks because of the need to return the spaceship to its hangar for repair work.

Backing its confidence, NASA directed the four

Explosion kills welder, from compressed gas

MORGAN'S POINT, Texas (AP) — An official says an explosion that killed a Pasadena welder may not have been sparked by fumes from the docked drilling rig he was working on.

"There were no flames," said Bob Egan, manager of the Barber's Cut Terminal of the Houston Ship Channel, of the Monday afternoon blast. "I suspect it was some sort of compressed gas in a container, because no parts of the rig appeared from the ground to be seriously damaged."

Marcel A. Chiasson, 58, of Pasadena, was pronounced dead at the scene after the explosion at 4:18 p.m., said Department of Public Safety spokesman Larry Todd. Officials said his welding torch apparently set off some type of fumes.

"As far as I know, nobody knows what they are right now," said Tom Pallotta, a crew member of the Houston Port Authority's fire boat Captain Farnsworth. He said there were 30 or 40 workers on the rig at the time of the 3:30 p.m. blast.

The $30 million submersible rig is being built by Vemar Inc. of Houston for Portal Drilling Co. of Dallas, said Vemar marketing manager Jerry Dobson. Coast Guard Lt. Mark Gould said the rig was to set out for a Gulf of Mexico drilling site near Mobile, Ala., Wednesday.

Highway Patrol officials, Harris County sheriff's deputies and the Morgan's Town police continued to check for leaking fumes, Todd said.

Man charged after scuffle with officer

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A man charged with assaulting a police officer remains in stable condition in a hospital here recovering from a bullet wound received during a scuffle with the officer.

Brian Ray Alm, 21, of Harriet was charged Monday with aggravated assault on a police officer. He was kept under guard in Hendrick Medical Center awaiting surgery to remove the bullet in his left arm.

Justice of the Peace Roland Dundy set bond at $10,000.

Detective Capt. Ray Portalatin said Joel Lujan, a rookie patrolman, shot Alm once with his .38-caliber service revolver. Portalatin said the two men started fighting when Lujan tried to arrest Alm for public intoxication.

Police say Alm grabbed for Lujan's gun and the men began wrestling for it about 1:20 a.m. Sunday.

Lujan was treated at Hendrick for a concussion and minor cuts. Police say his head was knocked against the pavement several times during the fight.

Ten-week Bell hearing ends, ruling in January

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. can only sit and wait now for the Public Utility Commission's decision whether to grant Bell its highest rate hike request yet — $471.5 million.

The rate increase would boost basic residential service by $4.60 per month.

A hearing on Bell's latest rate request concluded Monday after 10 weeks of testimony from customers, Bell officials and technical experts.

The commission is expected to rule on the case in early January, after the PUC hearing examiner files her report in December.

Meanwhile, Bell is putting the higher rates into effect under bond effective Nov. 23. Bell would have to make refunds to customers if the rate increase is turned down or reduced by the commission.

The PUC staff recommended a $304.5 million increase.

The Texas Municipal League, representing several cities served by Southwestern Bell, argued Bell merits only $217.9 million more per year in rates.

Except for 1978, the phone company has asked the commission for higher rates every year since 1976, when Bell filed the first rate hike request at the newly-created PUC.

Computer a bit off in property values

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — No one wants to take credit — or the blame — for the latest assessment of property values in Gregg County.

A computer told county commissioners that the tax roll should be $37.5 billion.

It turns out that figure was a bit high — only $34.5 billion off the mark.

Commissioners will release tax notices next month based on a county-wide land value of $3 billion.

The world is taking its medicine

It was a great spending spree while it lasted.

We bought what we wanted and "charged it."

Politicians bought reelection by profligate of public money — and "charged it."

"Anytime we started to sober up, they'd buy another round "on the house" and postpone the hangover.

And charge it.

Until our "charge account" was so enormous that unborn generations were drowning in debt and the present generation's spending drove present generation prices higher and higher until our money was worth less and less ...

And headed for worthless.

Whole nations faced bankruptcy — Britain, France, West Germany, Mexico, Argentina, Sweden — and U.S.

But the orgy is over, the hangover hurts — but the world is taking its medicine. Socialism didn't work. Britain was first to throw out the spenders, elect fiscal frugality, tighten belts.

It was bitter medicine — but Britain suffered the most uncomfortable side-effect, unemployment, with minimal complaining. And now — in the past year — has increased its vote of confidence in Maggie Thatcher by a whopping 20 percent!

Next the United States hit the bullet, voted for Reagan, and began gradually to wean itself.

And the remedies are taking effect. The inflation fever has broken and the American dollar is again the world's most respected currency.

Even workers displaced by frugality acknowledge the need for it.

Next West Germany's socialist government — which ran up bills it could not pay — was thrown out, replaced by one led by fiscal pragmatist Helmut Kohl. He announced "no change in foreign policy" but said West Germany's "economy must be rebuilt" with "sacrifices," with a "willingness to spend less and work more."

Kohl's prescription for work ails West Germany is "Reaganomics," essentially the prescription with which Adanauer rescued Germany from drowning in red ink in the 1950s — drastically curtailed federal spending.

That remedy, for any nation, is bitter medicine. It includes worker displacement, less of what we've learned to expect as "public welfare," more years between new cars, longer waits for new houses, higher interest in new anything.

But the world is taking its medicine...

And getting well.

Kremlin leaders maneuver as Brezhnev grows weaker

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev's health is so poor that he is only in symbolic charge in the Kremlin while three probable successors jockey to succeed him, according to U.S. intelligence estimates.

The three are Yuri Andropov, former head of the KGB, the secret police; Konstantin Chernenko, the failing leader's closest associate in recent years; and Victor Grishin, head of the Communist party in Moscow.

A fourth erstwhile contender, Andrei Kirilenko, 76, is himself in poor health and no longer considered in the running. Intelligence sources here said Kirilenko will be dropped from the ruling Politburo when it meets Nov. 15 and also will be taken off top defense committees.

"Brezhnev keeps going up and down, but each time he comes back he comes back at a lower level of energy," said one U.S. official who watches Kremlin developments closely.

"He's able to cope, and it's clear that he may go on for a number of years still," the official said recently. "But his abilities to manage all the complexities of government are decreasing over time."

The Soviet leader, 76 next month, no longer chairs committee meetings. "He really isn't running the country anymore," said this knowledgeable official. But he said the Kremlin decided it was preferable to retain Brezhnev in office than have an open fight over succession.

The Soviet leader's infirmities, and the quiet struggle over succession, obviously are of acute interest to the Reagan administration.

There is a growing consensus that despite the infighting, the Soviet decision-making process remains vigorous — largely through the combined strengths of Andropov, Chernenko, Andrei A. Gromyko, the veteran foreign minister, Dmitri Ustinov, the defense minister, and Nikolai A. Tikhonov, the premier.

They are said to set policy and get Brezhnev to approve it, although there is no formal agreement on how to keep the Kremlin operating when the president is absent or unable to function.

"I don't see any sign at all of paralysis," said a U.S. official as he described the largely informal Soviet arrangement.

Ironically, despite hard-line rhetoric from Moscow, a number of U.S. policy makers interviewed recently are convinced that during the transition period the Soviets might be more inclined to reach arms control agreements with the United States and follow a less bellicose course around the world.

They see precedents in the 1953-54 and 1965 periods, after the death of Josef Stalin and the forced retirement of Nikita Khrushchev, when the Soviets masked internal uncertainty by showing an interest in reaching understandings with the West.

Coit Blacker, a Soviet military analyst at Stanford University, referred to the process recently as seeking "a kind of breathing space."

Lanier and Allen have the responsibility for monitoring the satellites and ejecting them with spring devices from the ship's 60-foot-long cargo bay. They also will take the first shuttle space walks when they step together into the open bay on Sunday for 3½ hours of space suit and other tests.

on U.S. and Soviet nuclear weapons.

Starting late next year, the United States plans to put 108 Pershing II and 464 nuclear-tipped cruise missiles in five NATO nations. The weapons are in answer to the Soviet deployment in western Russia of intermediate range SS-20 missiles.

The United States has run into problems testing the Pershing II. The rocket blew up during the first attempt. A second test failed last week when the rocket did not ignite.

Alfons Boecker, deputy chief of the West German mission, said his nation is happy with the "two-track" Western approach of deploying the missiles while arms reduction talks are going on in Geneva.

"The peace movement is important to take note of," but there is support for the new nuclear weapons, he said.

Bernard Bot, deputy chief of the Dutch mission to NATO, said the European peace movement "has had a significant setback because of the Soviet repression in Poland."

"It is our hope that the cruise missiles will have a beneficial impact on the Russians" and make them talk seriously about arms reduction, he said.

Lawmen have suspect in office burglary

City police and county deputies have a suspect in a burglary at Wall and Sons early today after a woman spotted some of the stolen goods on the roadside west of town and a policeman checked out an abandoned truck.

Police found a file cabinet, a safe and a lot of business papers on the roadside where the woman told she had seen the goods. The papers had been set fire and were still smoldering when officers arrived. Sgt. Ted Langgood checked an abandoned pickup in a field on the northwest side of town and found some of the asbestos file cabinet lining in the truck, along with other suspicious items. The truck owner was contacted and is being questioned today.

Ten to a dozen storage sheds at Sixteenth and U.S. 385 were burglarized also. Only one had any merchandise missing — a helmet and a brown leather utility belt.

Monday evening 18-year-old David Bridges, 205 Brevard, was arrested for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle stemming from an incident on Oct. 20.

Police also made a domestic dispute call and issued six citations.

Hike — from page one deficits during the 1980s and over the next 75 years.

Social Security's old age fund, which had to borrow for the first time in history last month to cover the November checks, faces shortages of $100 billion to $200 billion during the rest of the 1980s.

The Medicare trust fund, now healthy, is expected to hit bottom sometime between 1988 and 1995. A separate blue-ribbon panel was sworn in Monday to address its problems.

The paper estimated that the system over the next seven years could save:

—$110 billion and reduce nearly 30 percent of its long-term deficit by forcing all government and non-private employees into the system in 1984.

—$133 billion by making the payroll tax 7.5 percent in 1984 instead of leaving it at 6.7 percent.

—$134 billion by making people pay income tax on Social Security benefits once they get back as much as they paid to the payroll tax.

—$56.1 billion by including half of the benefits in adjusted gross income for federal income-tax purposes. They would be treated like unemployment benefits, and 50 percent would be taxable if the total income exceeded $12,000 for an individual or $18,000 for couples.

—$41 billion by making employers pay Social Security tax on their entire payroll. The tax now is levied for both employers and employees on income up to $32,400.

—$100 billion by limiting the annual cost-of-living hikes now linked to the Consumer Price Index to 4 percent in 1983 and 1984, then increasing benefits at the rate that workers' average wages rise, minus 1.5 percentage points.

—$103 billion by giving cost-of-living hikes equal to the Consumer Price Index minus 2 percentage points.

—$20 billion by delaying the cost-of-living hikes one month a year for three years.

—$18 billion by increasing the payroll tax-rate for the self-employed, now 9.35 percent, to the combined employee-employer rate of 13.4 percent.

—$3 billion by adjusting the benefit computation formula to give slightly lower benefits to future retirees.

A 3-cent surcharge on gasoline could bring $23.1 billion into the trust funds by 1990; a 5 percent surcharge on individual income taxes earmarked for the funds would generate $134.2 billion; a 25 percent hike in the excise taxes on alcohol and tobacco could generate $14 billion; and a new inheritance tax applied only if there were no surviving spouse could bring in $21.6 billion.

A few options actually would liberalize benefits, including a proposal to give a 10 percent benefit hike to 80-year-olds, which would cost $6 billion by 1990; phasing out the limit on how much the elderly can earn without losing benefits ($10 billion), and allowing low-income mothers credit for up to 10 years rearing young children when computing a special minimum benefit ($15 billion).

Mitzi and her husband, Brad, moved to Hereford two months ago from Bryan when he accepted the position of Assistant County Agent in Deaf Smith County.

Brad graduated with a degree in agriculture education from A&M in August, and Mitzi graduated from West Texas State University in 1981, where she majored in agriculture business.

"We were married a year and two months ago, just after I graduated" says Mitzi, and moved to Bryan until Brad graduated.

Mitzi worked at the library on campus, got involved in school activities with Brad, and became an "almost official" Aggie.

Growing up on a farm, she says that agriculture had always interested her and she had participated in goat tying events at local rodeos at her hometown of Muleshoe.

Brad's family moved from Plainview to Muleshoe when he was in high school. "His family has always been really involved in showing animals," says Mitzi.

With his extension work, he is currently involved in all types of livestock shows and projects and Mitzi enjoys going with him to many of the sales, shows, and other events.

"Since I majored in ag business," notes Mitzi, "I understand much of what he's involved in and it's interesting to me. We communicate real well and I know what he's talking about when he tells me about things at work."

"This is the first time I've not worked full-time since we've been married," adds Mitzi "and I'm really enjoying it because it gives me the chance to go with Brad more often to different events."

"We go to a lot of 4-H things -- Brad gives programs for or helps with many of the suppers and banquets. It's fun, you meet a lot of people in his type of work."

Mitzi says that she's already met quite a few people since living in Hereford. She has visited Newcomers Club twice and plans to join that organization.

She put her name on the substitute teaching list when they first came to town and has substituted several times at the junior high schools. "I've really enjoyed it," she says. Mitzi has a sister who teaches at Stanton Junior High. She lives in Canyon.

"I've been to several home interior parties -- I love to decorate and enjoy rearranging furniture, pictures, etc," notes Mitzi. "Brad never knows how he'll find it when he comes home!"

"We owned a trailer house in Bryan; so this is the first time we have lived in a 'real' house. There is so much space."

The Morrises are living north of town, just outside of the city limits. "We're out in the country" but close enough to go to town whenever we need to without wasting a lot of gas," says Mitzi. "I really like it."

Mitzi enjoys painting and various handicrafts. Right now she is working on some Christmas stockings, shaped like cowboy boots, for the holiday season.

"She has done several pieces of tile painting -- things like an old fashioned milk can, spittoon, and a wooden stool -- and has decouped a number of plaques, mostly giving them away as gifts."

"I painted pictures when I was in high school," adds Mitzi, "and would like to take some oil painting classes."

Mitzi worked at Sakowitz in Amarillo during her last year at WTSU. She has also been employed as a secretary at Lawrence Systems, an ag business firm, and worked in a Baptist nursery while going to school. She was secretary of Cowboys for Christ in Canyon.

Traveling is another interest which Mitzi and Brad share. "My family never traveled much," says Mitzi, "but Brad and I have gone a lot of places since we've been married. We went to New Orleans for our honeymoon and hope to go back there sometime."

Caviness gives slide presentation at meeting

Certificates of appreciation were awarded by Eloise McDougal to Helen Eades, retiring president, and Susie Marques, retiring coordinator for ecumenical celebrations, during the World Community Day celebration held Friday at First Christian Church.

Kathy Johnson, along with Charlotte Tyler, pianist, led the group in singing.

Jeanette Caviness gave an informative slide presentation on her recent trip to Israel, Yugoslavia and Lebanon. She and her husband, Terry, accompanied a group of Jewish people from the United States who sent to attend a United Jewish Appeals Leadership gathering in Yugoslavia.

She said that the Yugoslavs nearly worship Tito because they had never known peace until he liberated them during World War II. They have freedoms other countries do not have, noted Ms. Caviness. She also showed slides of the Holy Land.

Election of officers was conducted by Ms. Eades. Elected to various offices were Troyce Hanna, president; Judy Kriegshauser, vice-president; Leta Kaul, secretary; Susan Barrett, treasurer; Ms. Marques, coordinator of ecumenical development; Sistar Rose Winkel, coordinator of ecumenical action.

Also, Ms. Caviness, coordinator of ecumenical celebrations; Nell Culpepper, finance; Edna Reinart, communications; and Ms. McDougal, Claudia McBrayer, and Betty Koelzer, nominating committee.

Also, Carole Armor and Wima Goettsch, First Methodist; Rosalia Gilbreath and Ms. Koelzer, St. Anthony's Catholic; Clara Trowbridge, Wesley United Methodist; Ms. Kaul and Shelley Burelsmith, Community Church; Ms. McBrayer, St. Thomas Episcopal; and Jeanie Galley, Assembly of God.

A welcome was extended to Mrs. Betty Freeman and Mrs. Norma Conrad, guests from Dummitt.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR LAMB -- I read yesterday that one is more apt to recover from cancer than to take off excess weight and keep it off. Put like that, the truth was made unpleasantly clear to me.

Most of us 20 pounds or more overweight people would like to take off the weight for esthetic reasons. We don't like to look down and see that tummy bulging out.

It would seem that the medical profession would intensify its study of obesity and come up with something that works. What are doctors doing? There is a big market out there and many willing and able to pay to eliminate the fat problem.

DEAR READER -- Because so many people who lose weight put it back on is one important reason that a diet-exercise program should be a sensible permanent change in lifestyle. Crash diets and rapid weight loss programs usually don't last long. When a person returns to the old habits he regains those pounds.

Most people who are 15 to 20 pounds overweight can lose that excess fat in a year's time if they just walk three to four miles EVERY DAY and don't increase their caloric intake. That is an example of a permanent change in lifestyle.

A lot more does need to be done about obesity. We need to learn how to avoid eating when it isn't needed. Perhaps we need to learn how to stimulate the body to lose more calories as heat loss. We do need some fresh ideas. Yes, there is a big market out there and a lot of hucksters are taking advantage of it, and the human tendency of wanting to "eat all you want and stay thin forever." It is another version of the old something for nothing desire.

But the problem is not just one for doctors. It is a socio-economic problem. Then there are special interest groups that market foods that are high in calories and the associated legislative problems. It is a problem for the whole society, not just health professionals.

You can use The Health Letter 4-7, Weight Losing Diet, which I am sending you, as a basis for starting a permanent sensible lifestyle that will help you lose and keep it off.

Aggie Moms plan annual bake sale

Hereford Aggie Moms will hold their annual bake sale next week, Saturday, Nov. 20, at Sugarland Mall. Cakes, breads, rolls, pies and other home cooked treats will be presented in time for the coming holidays and pheasant hunting season, says Pat Clark, president.

Each year before Thanksgiving the Moms hold their only money making project. Proceeds apply to the scholarship to be presented in the spring to an aspiring Texas A&M University freshman.

Hereford's club, which reaches out to other area towns with no organizations of their own, such as Dummitt, Adrian and Umbarger, recently welcomed two new members from Bovina, Shirley Garrison and Donna Roming.

Other new members, Juanita Bowles and Sue Sims of Hereford, also attended the meeting held in the home of Mary and Bill Lyles.

The Moms are presently sending cookies to be distributed to the TAM students working at the site of the enormous bonfire which will be lighted prior to the Texas A&M University - University of Texas football game to be played Thanksgiving Day in Austin.

The next meeting will be held Nov. 30 at 7:30 p.m. in the home of Merle and Wendall Clark.

Today's youth concerned

BY PENNY REINART
County Extension Agent
Working with today's youth, whether it be through 4-H or as a parent, can be very challenging and rewarding -- the same as yesterday's youth!

One of the most exciting experiences in working with youth is their concern for the problem of others and their desire to do something to make a difference. It is refreshing and encouraging to be a part of this enthusiasm.

This concern and enthusiasm are expressed in a song entitled "Waking Up".

"Waking Up"

Is that the morning light I see
Shining in on you and me
We must be waking up
It's been so long since this old world has seen day break.

Think we're awake this time

Grant Hanna appointed to national council

Grant Hanna, Post 102 adjutant, has been appointed to serve as vice-chairman on the National Americanism Council of the American Legion.

The appointment was confirmed in a letter to Hanna from Al Keller, Jr., National Commander, in which Keller stated, "The real strength in the American Legion lies in our communities, and this is the year to regain our rightful role as community leaders. I am counting on your help in this effort."

Local members congratulate Hanna on this honor and responsibility.

News breaks disgust viewer

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am so mad my eyes are crossing. Something has got to be done about the idiotic, stupid way networks break into the best programs to give "a special news report."

Almost always the news is of no great importance and nobody gives a damn.

Today they messed up my favorite soap, "All My Children." At a crucial point in the program, when the main character's entire life was hanging on what might happen in the next few minutes, some jerk on ABC cuts in with a so-called special news report. There was nothing in that report that couldn't have waited until 5 o'clock.

The only time such interruptions might be justified would be if the world was coming to an end. When that happens, we won't need to be told it by some network clown. I'm signing myself --

Disgusted With Break-Ins

DEAR GUS: Well! I guess you told 'em. (Stay tuned, Roone Arledge, viewers like Gus determine your ratings!)

DEAR ANN LANDERS: It is no secret that everyone is feeling the pinch of inflation. I am not an economist but I've figured out ways to stretch the dollar and I can tell you they work. Please share them with your readers. It has made a big difference in our lives, and these days people need all the help they can get. Here they are:

1. Buy quality. In the long run it's cheaper. Junk doesn't last. You will find yourself replacing inferior merchandise often. Some "bargains" turn out to be pretty darned expensive.
2. Pay cash whenever possible. Get rid of all your plastic cards except one that should be used only in an emergency. People who run up charge accounts and buy with credit cards end up paying a great deal more than they realize.

3. No matter how tight things are, you should have a savings account. Put it in your budget, and stick with it. Empty your pockets every night and put the change in a bottle. At the end of the month whatever is in the bottle goes into the bank.

4. Watch the ads and shop around. Use coupons. They can save you money. Take advantage of sales but don't be ridiculous. A two-year supply of detergent is foolish.

5. Take care of what you have. Shampoo your rugs, wash your curtains, polish the furniture, remove spots before they set. Clean every appliance after you use it, then put it away. Everything will last longer if you take care of it. -- We Live In Providence

Local members attend garden club convention

Mmes. Edgar Lemons, John Jacobsen, O.G. Hill, Sr., and Clinton Jackson, of the Hereford Garden Club, attended the northern zone, District I Garden Club Convention in Wellington on Friday.

During the business meeting, Mrs. Bayard Sadler of Tulia was elected zone director for 1983-84.

An informative slide presentation on "wildflowers in Collingsworth County" was given.

Mrs. Ellen Mae Wood and

Mrs. Janise Duncan, of the Wellington Garden Club, presented a humorous and unique film, "Ruth Stout's Garden," giving the "hows and whys" of 95-year-old Mrs. Stout's methods of gardening.

An entertaining program, "Daze of Our Lives," was given by Mrs. Jean Burchett, author from Childress who has been called "the Bombeck of the West with a class of her own."

Mrs. Burchett's book, "The Daze of Our Lives," may be ordered through the Christian Bookstore.

DEAR PROVIDENCE: When I started to read your letter, I just knew it was from Maine, Vermont or Rhode Island. Thanks for the splendid advice.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 25th wedding anniversary will be in 1983. We had a small wedding back in 1958. Would it be good taste if we had a lovely church wedding, involving our children and grandchildren, and invited family and friends? We would like to renew our vows and have a gala celebration. -- Sentimental In Washington

Contests set Thursday and Friday

Hereford hosts playoff games

BY LES GILES
Sports Editor

Despite the fact the Whitefaces got shut out of this year's playoffs, there'll be a pair of high school playoff games in town this week.

Thursday, Farwell and New Deal will tangle in a Class 2A bi-district game at 8 p.m.

Friday, it'll be Friona vs. River Road in a Class 3A matchup at 7:30 p.m.

Texas Stadium will host five schoolboy playoff games this weekend as teams in three classes begin the trek toward state championships. Classes 4A and 1A will head into the playoffs next week.

Games Friday at Texas Stadium match Eules Trinity against Irving Nimitz at 6:45 p.m. and Hurst Bell against Grand Prairie at 9:30.

Saturday, there will be a triple-header. Dallas Kimball and Plano will meet at 11:30 a.m.; Nacogdoches will tangle with Temple at 4 p.m. and Marshall will play Bryan at 7:30 p.m.

District 4-5A's playoff representatives (Plainview and Monterey) should have their hands full in this week's bi-district round.

Plainview travels to San Angelo, while Monterey hosts No. 1-ranked Permian Saturday at 8 p.m. in Jones Stadium (it will follow the Tech-SMU game).

I'd give the bulldogs the best chance of advancing. San Angelo survived a four-way coin flip to get into the playoffs. The Bobcats bring a 7-3 record into the game. Plainview is 8-1.

Although Monterey also is 8-1, its chances against Permian have to border on the "next-to-impossible". Permian has gone nearly 40 games in a row without losing (although there have been a few ties which sent them home from the playoffs).

The teams have met twice before in the playoffs. Permian won 21-0 in 1972 and 10-7 in 1977.

Hereford's boys finished eighth in last weekend's regional Class 5A cross country meet in Lubbock.

The Herd harriers scored 218 points in a meet dominated by El Paso runners.

In fact, the top four teams came from El Paso - Austin won with 34 points; El Paso High was second with 48; Riverside took third with 83 and Bel Air grabbed fourth with 86.

Palo Duro, runner-up in 3-5A, was fifth with 126 points. Midland took sixth with 134, while San Angelo was seventh with 183. Following Hereford were Fort Worth Southwest (288 points), Denton (276), Sherman (300) and Fort Worth Dunbar (355).

Francisco Saucedo was 39th individually to lead Hereford. Fernando Carrasco was 47th; Edward Flores 52nd; Eliseo Ramirez 57th, Cesar Valdez 61st; Gary Blevins 81st and Frank Vallejo 83rd.

"We probably could have run a little better," coach Martha Emerson said, "but there was no way we'd beat the El Paso schools."

"They are far ahead of us at this point. Still, I am very proud of our team, and what it accomplished this season."

Former Hereford High football standouts Derek Dirks and Scott Daniels were part of Mid-America Nazarene College's upset of William Jewell College recently.

MANC upset a team which had won 28 straight games, and was ranked No. 1 in the NAIA Division II polls. The 9-7 win was the second big upset this season.

Earlier MANC (located at Olathe, Kansas) upset Colorado College, 24-14, when the latter was ranked 10th in the NCAA Division III polls.

Daniels' field goal against William Jewell proved to be the difference. Both are sophomores.

How different the money is in professional golf, compared to pro bowling.

Take for example: Earl Anthony, the leading money winner this year on the Pro Bowlers tour, won $133,075 to outdistance runner-up Dave Husted by $37,000.

But, how would Anthony rank on the PGA tour in money earnings?

How about 27th. Some 26 golfers earned more than Anthony, and some didn't win a tournament. Anthony won three times on the PGA tour.

Craig Stadler won over $446,000 on the pro golf circuit. In fact, seven players won more than $300,000.

But, even down the list in each sport, there is a major inequity.

Take for example: Sam Zurich, the 25th leading money winner on the pro bowlers tour, earned $42,320. Peter Jacobsen was 25th on the golf list with earnings of $145,832.

Farther down, at 50th, pro bowler Johnny Petraglia won $21,832, while his counterpart, Jim Gilbert, won $80,804.

Warren Nelson, 75th on the pro bowlers tour, earned $14,920, while Pat McGowan (who?) earned $58,673 for being 75th on the PGA list.

Ninety golfers earned more than $30,000 this past year, while 18 did it on the pro bowlers tour.

Georgia top "Dog"

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

For the second time in three years, the Georgia Bulldogs have climbed into first place in The Associated Press college football poll thanks to Notre Dame.

In 1980, Georgia beat Florida 26-21 and jumped from second place to first when No. 1 Notre Dame was held to a 3-3 tie by Georgia Tech. The Bulldogs went on to win their only national championship.

On Monday, Georgia jumped from third place to first following a 44-0 rout of Florida, while Pitt dropped from first to eighth by losing to Notre Dame 31-16. The victory also boosted the Irish back into the Top 20.

Georgia, Southern Methodist and Arizona State, the only three unbeaten and untied major college teams, held the top three spots in this week's rankings, while Louisiana State jumped from 11th to sixth - it's highest ranking since 1972 - and Arkansas fell from fifth to 10th.

The call from the AP two years ago that we had won the national championship was much better than this one," said Georgia Coach Vince Dooley. "Seriously, it will be a great point of pride this week. We play at Auburn and we'll find out if we're mature enough to handle a No. 1 ranking."

Last week, Pitt was first, SMU second and Georgia third, only three points behind the Mustangs. But Georgia swamped Florida and received 33 of 59 first-place votes and 1,150 of a possible 1,180 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

SMU, which defeated Rice 41-14, received 19 first-place votes and 1,126 points, while Arizona State, a 30-16 winner over Oregon State, received five firsts and 1,049 points. The Sun Devils were fourth a week ago.

Nebraska moved up from fifth to fourth with one first-place ballot and 984 points for a 48-10 triumph over Oklahoma State. Penn State received the other No. 1 vote and 955 points after crushing

North Carolina State 54-0.

LSU was sixth with 865 points following a 20-10 licking of Alabama, which dropped the Crimson Tide from eighth to 17th. Washington rebounded from its only loss of the season and edged UCLA 10-7, climbing from 10th to seventh with 779 points and dropping the Bruins from ninth to 12th.

Pitt, a 31-16 loser to Notre Dame, plummeted from first to eighth with 765 points. Florida State rose from 12th to ninth with 686 points by routing South Carolina 56-26. Arkansas, a 24-17 loser to Baylor, rounded out the Top Ten with 572 points.

The Second 10 consists of defending national champion Clemson, UCLA, Notre Dame, Michigan, Oklahoma, Southern California, Alabama, Maryland, West Virginia and Texas. Last week, it was LSU, Florida State, Clemson, Oklahoma, Michigan, Southern Cal, West Virginia, North Carolina, Maryland and Florida.

Besides Florida's demise, North Carolina fell out of the rankings by losing to Clemson 16-13. Notre Dame and Texas, which wallowed Houston 50-0, both reappeared after a two-week absence.

Bryant captures football contest

Beverly Bryant, 112 Kingwood, won $25 in Hereford Bucks by taking first place in the Brand Football Contest last week.

Mrs. Bryant and Johnny Schmucker of Nazareth each missed five games, but Mrs. Bryant took first on the tie-breaker total. She guessed 29 points on the Monterey-Palo Duro game, which wound up at 17 points (10-7). Schmucker guessed 38 points and won second prize of $15.

Third place was also decided by the tie-breaker as eight entrants missed six of the games. Joyce Lomas, 509 Star took the $10 in Hereford Bucks by guessing 21 on the tie-breaker total.

Others who missed six included Dorothy Grasmick, Jim McNaney, Bernadette Kalka, Jane Duggan, Bobby Baker, Billy Stephens, and Carolyn Schumacher.

All entrants got "two" games last week, since there were two boxes with extra games. Because of the inadvertent error, judges counted the two games correct regardless of the teams marked.

The 13-week contest ends the week of Nov. 23, so entrants have two more chances to get in the winner's circle and be eligible for the grand-prize competition.

Hereford Buck awards of $100, $35 and $15 will go to the top three winners among the Grand Prize entrants the final week. All weekly cash winners will be eligible for the Grand Prize competition.

Judges will divide the final week's contest in two categories - one for the regular weekly entrants and one for the winner's circle. Those who have won any cash awards during the season will not be eligible for the regular weekly contest, only the Grand Prize contest.

Those who have won Hereford Bucks this season, to date, and are eligible for the Grand Prize contest are: Ronnie Bell, Beverly Bryant, John D. Bryant, Rick Castenada, Hap Cavness, Frank Cogdell, Ben Conklin, Ed Delozier, David Emerick, Frances Farr, Jimmie George, Lois Hillwig, H.R. Johnson, Jason Jones, Keith Kalka, Melvin Kalka, Pam Lindley, George Loeberwald, Joyce Lomas, Mal Manchec, Pat Manchec, Kamille Martin, Tim Martin, Answel McDowell, Joan Milton, K. Phommyong, Johnny Schmucker, Dago Valdez, Violeta Valdez, Larry Wartes.

Leconte wins tennis tourney

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) - Henri Leconte upset top-seeded Mats Wilander of Sweden in straight sets to win the men's singles final in the $300,000 Stockholm Open tennis championships.

American Mark Dickson and Jan Gunnarsson of Sweden outlasted Americans Sherwood Stewart and Ferdi Taygan 7-6, 6-7, 6-4 in the doubles final.

The players right now are trying to find ways to save the season. If it keeps ticking like it is, I just don't know. There are deadlines on both sides of the fence.

"Everybody was pretty much expressing what they felt, whether for or against. But when we left the meeting, everybody was agreed."

Newhouse said the Cowboys' vote was immediately transmitted to union officials in New York.

Garvey charges "illegal tactics"

War of words goes on

NEW YORK (AP) - The war of words continues in the National Football League players' strike, with union leader Ed Garvey discounting an apparent crack in the Players Association's solidarity by noting that 25 teams had rejected the owners' latest offer.

Garvey accused the owners of further "illegal tactics" Monday night at an NFLPA news conference and said that a vote by the New Orleans Saints in favor of accepting the NFL's most recent proposal in principle "is just one of 28 teams and we're not too concerned."

"Once they see all the facts, I'm confident they will reject it, too."

"Most of the teams felt there was not enough there to warrant a vote. Twenty-four teams rejected it in one way or another. Another club voted against the proposal several hours after the news conference; the Houston Oilers said they would vote today and one other club had not reported its vote."

"We are delighted that management's latest illegal tactic has failed," he said. "They players don't think it's a representative offer. They know it's not the bottom line."

The Saints voted 45-1 with one abstention to accept the owners' offer and urged other teams to do the same, according to Guido Merkens, the Saints' alternate player rep.

The Saints "agreed to accept management's offer in principle while realizing there are details that need to be refined," Merkens said.

"I took what I heard up there (in New York at Players Association meetings during the negotiations, which broke off Saturday night) and explained it to our players here as it was explained to me," Merkens said on ABC-TV's 'Nightline.' "We asked, 'What do you want to do, accept it in principle or reject it altogether?' We think there is a workable framework there."

"It's not true that management persuaded us (on how to vote). We're trying to let the union reps know how the New Orleans Saints feel."

Garvey didn't seem worried by the New Orleans' vote.

"Twenty players met with (Saints owner) John Mecom Jr.," Garvey said, "and then they voted. The owners are seeing if they can sell their latest offer to the players by going over the head of the union."

Garvey had a stronger reaction to a statement made by Philadelphia Eagles owner Leonard Tose. Tose charged Monday that a

Cowboy players nix owners' latest offer

DALLAS (AP) - Dallas Cowboy players say they like the money but not the other terms of the latest management offer to end the National Football League Players Association strike.

The Cowboys met for 3½ hours Monday night in quarterback Danny White's north Dallas office and unanimously rejected the latest offer from the NFL management council.

But the Cowboys approved of the economic terms of the plan - a move that White called a breakthrough.

"If you have to say 'Would you accept or reject that offer as it is,' we would reject it," White said. "But the Cowboys did agree to accept the economic package that the owners have presented."

Cowboys' player representative Robert Newhouse said the 35 Dallas players at the meeting rejected the owners' 75-page proposal after listing 13 non-economic issues not addressed in the latest offer.

"The guys were considering the economic package but if the other things are not addressed, the players would reject it," Newhouse said.

"We have some reservations in terms of the squad size, the no strike clause, the part about re-entry once you leave the league - there are 13 in all," Newhouse said. "I think they are pretty major reservations."

Union chief Ed Garvey said in New York Monday night that 25 teams rejected the offer in "one way or another." The New Orleans Saints, in an almost unanimous vote, supported the offer.

Houston Oiler player representative David Carter player representative had been threatened with bodily harm if he continued to appear on television making statements not approved by the union.

Though he refused to identify the player, Tose said at a news conference that a player rep was told they "would break both arms and both legs if you don't stop being on television. And, not on-

Schramm says answer lies with players

DALLAS (AP) - Tex Schramm, the President and General Manager of the Dallas Cowboys, said Monday night on his weekly radio show that the fate of the National Football League season is in the hands of players who have silently been on the sidelines since the strike started seven weeks ago.

"I feel we've reached a point now where it is extremely difficult to make an agreement with leadership of the (NFL Players Association) union," Schramm said. "It seems everytime we moved in their direction they move a little farther away."

"It doesn't seem to be a sincere effort (by the union) to make an agreement."

Schramm said "the answer does now lie with the players in the field...the members of the teams who have not had a strong voice or exercised one. If there is a solution that is where it must rest."

He said "We're at the point now where something has to happen, you can't go on and on this way."

"I think there is a tremendous difference in the feeling here and the feeling around the league with the union," the Cowboy quarterback said after players, most of them tight-lipped, emerged from the meeting.

"And that is that the players here are basically ready and willing to go back in and accept the economic package which has been the big hurdle all along," White said.

White accompanied Newhouse to New York Monday to hear the latest proposal from NFL owners, and then returned to Dallas to help officiate at the team meeting. Newhouse said he would return to union headquarters Tuesday to keep tabs on negotiations.

Newhouse said the Cowboys "all had something to say" at the meeting Monday night.

"The players right now are trying to find ways to save the season. If it keeps ticking like it is, I just don't know. There are deadlines on both sides of the fence."

"Everybody was pretty much expressing what they felt, whether for or against. But when we left the meeting, everybody was agreed."

Newhouse said the Cowboys' vote was immediately transmitted to union officials in New York.

ly that, but we'll violate your wife."

"We would have to conclude that Leonard Tose has lost it," said Garvey. "His comments reached a new low...to suggest that the union used physical intimidation on a player representative. We demand a retraction from him. It's really incredible to make such a statement."

Olympians to have Hall of Fame

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent
Sometime this month, America will begin the process of formally recognizing and enshrining its most neglected group of athletes — the Olympic heroes and heroines — with their own Hall of Fame.

It won't be easy to pick the cream of the cream — hundreds of competitors dating back to 1896: runners, jumpers, throwers, rowers, skiers, boxers and members of diverse sports teams.

It should be interesting to learn who has been the greatest Olympian of them all. Our own personal choice comes easily: Jesse Owens, a giant of the movement on the field and off.

There will be debate. Baseball, football, basketball, boxing and other major sports have seen fit to honor their great. Until now, we have been derelict in immortalizing our Olympians, the truest representatives of the nation.

Baseball initiated its Hall of Fame in 1936, enshrining only five in its first class — Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb, Honus Wagner, Walter Johnson and Christy Mathewson, all players. Basketball launched its museum in 1959, honoring a variety of personalities, plus such players as Hank Luisetti and George Mikan and two whole teams — Dr. James Naismith's first team of young Christian athletes (Amos Alonzo Stagg was one and also honored along with basketball's creator) and the original Celtics.

Jack Dempsey was in boxing's first class in 1954, Gene Tunney had to wait until 1955. Pro football didn't start erecting plaques to its greatest stars until 1963 in Canton, Ohio. The charter class of 13 included founders George Halas and Curly Lambeau as well as such early greats as Red Grange, Bronco Nagurski and Jim Thorpe.

The Olympic Hall of Fame's first class will be limited to 20, chosen by members of the National Sportscasters and Sportswriters Association from a list of 50 gleaned by a special committee headed by Dick Connor of Denver's Rocky Mountain News.

A dinner will be held in February, honoring the charter class, with enshrinement later in a city yet to be chosen. The Coca Cola Company is underwriting the project in cooperation with the U. S. Olympic Committee.

The original selectees — as in other sports — will have to be special people, and none could be more special than Jesse Owens. Born of a black family in Alabama, he rode a world record-setting trail to Adolf Hitler's Nazi Olympics in Berlin in 1936 and shattered Der Fuehrer's boast of a "super Aryan race" by winning four gold medals.

He won the 100- and 200-meter dashes, the long jump and shared the victory in the 400-meter relay. He was the first to break the 21-second barrier in the 200 meters, winning in 20.7 for a mark that stood for 20 years. His long jump of 25 feet, 4 1/2 inches lasted until Ralph Boston barely beat it at Tokyo in 1968.

Hitler watched icily from his rostrum and departed the stadium without saluting one of the greatest individual feats in history.

"It didn't matter to me," said Owens later. "I didn't go to Berlin to shake hands with Der Fuehrer."

It was typical of this fine, sensitive human being, who the year before while representing Ohio State in a dual track meet against Michigan at Ann Arbor had shattered five world records and matched a sixth in a single day.

America failed to embrace him as a great national hero. For a few years afterward, Owens scraped out a bare living by running against race horses and giving exhibitions for small town promoters.

He refused to show bitterness or resentment. He stuck it out, became a successful businessman in Arizona and a valued advisor to the U. S. Olympic Committee. He emerged the supreme patriot.

It was he who cooled the black uprising in the 1968 Olympics at Mexico City. In the raging '60s, he toured the country, urging fellow blacks to eschew violence and work for justice within the system. President Ford presented him the Medal of Freedom. Owens died in 1980 at age 66.

The Games have presented a parade of Herculean heroes and heroines — Al Oerter, four straight discus titles; Mark Spitz, seven swimming golds; Eric Heiden, a sweep of five speed skating medals from 500 to 10,000 meters; Bob Mathias, decathlon king at 17 and a repeater at 21; and Babe Didrikson Zaharias, our greatest female athlete of all-time, to name a few.

All deserving, but none — in our mind — who reached the plateau of Jesse Owens.

Leonard will reveal plans

BALTIMORE (AP) — The suspense over what the future holds for world welterweight champion Sugar Ray Leonard will end tonight.

With the same hoopla that precedes a multimillion-dollar bout, the 26-year-old Leonard will get into the ring to tell boxing fans whether he will fight again or throw in the towel.

Leonard has invited a host of entertainment and sports celebrities to the Baltimore Civic Center, the site of his first professional fight, for "An Evening with Sugar Ray Leonard."

His announcement will come six months to the day after he underwent surgery to repair a detached retina in his left eye.

"Probably Ray and Juanita (the champ's wife) are the only persons who know his plans," insists Charles Brotman, Leonard's publicist. "I'll be here Tuesday to find out, along with everyone else."

The elaborate plans, including the appearance of television sports announcer Howard Cosell as master of ceremonies and entertainer Wayne Newton, has been taken by some observers as a sure sign that Leonard will be saying goodbye to the sport that made him a millionaire in five years.

But some cynics have been quick to note that the handlers who carefully promoted Leonard's career might use the event to promote the fighter's return to the ring.

Just two weeks ago, Dr. Ronald Michels, the noted Johns Hopkins Hospital ophthalmologist who performed the retinal surgery, told reporters that Leonard had fully recovered from the eye injury.

Leonard says he is rested and in good physical shape, but tonight he will reveal whether he still has the desire for more ring victories.

The lure of a reported $15 million offer to fight middleweight champion Marvin Hagler may be too attractive for Leonard to pass up.

Fight promoter Bob Arum says it's possible Leonard "would take it because it is $15 million, and that's a lot, no matter how much money you have."

But Arum predicted "he'd refuse it because he's accomplished what he wanted to and because he's a wealthy man, and wealthy men don't take money to get in the ring with dangerous men like Marvin Hagler."

Hagler is scheduled to be in hand for tonight's festivities along with two of Leonard's former opponents, Tommy Hearns, and Wilfred Benitez. Former heavyweight champions Muhammad Ali and Ken Norton have also accepted invitations along with contender Gerry Cooney and light heavyweight Matthew Saad Muhammad.

The VIPs will be charged $100 for the ringside cocktail party at the Baltimore Civic Center while the general public will be admitted for $1 and $2. Proceeds will benefit Baltimore's youth jobs program.

Leonard's last bout occurred on Feb. 15, 1982 when he scored a third-round TKO over Bruce Finch in Reno, Nev.

Free agent stock high this year

NEW YORK (AP) — There aren't many million-dollar babies among them. Still, this year's family of baseball free agents comes from some pretty good stock.

They number 41 in all, 23 from the American League and 18 from the National League. Among them are 11 pitchers, six catchers, 14 outfielders and 10 infielders.

Four free agents hit 300 or better, eight drove in 50 or more runs, and four homered 20 or more times. Three of the pitchers won in double figures, and four had ERA's of 3.50 or less.

The 1982 free agents, who will be drafted on Wednesday, include major league RBI king Hal McRae of Kansas City (133) and American

Bannister is one of three A-ranking free agents, who will require compensation in the form of a professional player from a special pool created for the draft. The others are outfielders John Lowenstein of the Baltimore Orioles and Steve Kemp of the Chicago White Sox.

Besides McRae, the 50-plus RBI men included Steve Garvey of Los Angeles (86), Reggie Smith of San Francisco (93), Bruce Bochte of Seattle (70), Al Cowens of Seattle (78), Kemp (98) and Lowenstein (66). The 20-plus homer group starred McRae with 27 and also included Baylor (24), Cowens (20) and Lowenstein (24).

Some of these players were not ranked because they either had 12 years or more of major league service or had gone through the free agent re-entry draft before.

Despite his A ranking, Bannister is expected to be selected by more teams than any other free agent. He compiled a record of 12-13 with the struggling Mariners this season, and he had an ERA of 3.43.

Other double-figure winners were Bob McClure of Milwaukee, 12-7, and Paul Splittorff of Kansas City, 10-10. The under-3.50 ERA men were Bannister, Tom Burgmeier of Boston (2.29), Terry Forster of Los Angeles (3.04) and Randy Moffitt of Houston (3.02).

Among the free agents were four men ranked in the B group — like the A rating, a result of a collective bargaining agreement reached in 1981 — and they were infielder Bill Almon of the Chicago White Sox, catchers Alan Ashby of Houston and Joe Nolan of Baltimore, and pitcher Pete Falcone of the New York Mets. Compensation for B players chosen in the draft consists of two amateur draft picks.

Dry needs rabbit's foot

By DENNEH FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Christian Coach F.A. Dry would like to see what happens to his job if his Horned Frogs should upset Texas and Texas A&M in the final two games of the season.

"That would put everybody in a bind, wouldn't it?" Dry told The Associated Press in a telephone interview Monday from his office at the TCU athletic complex in Fort Worth. "I just wish you'd ship me a rabbit's foot or two."

Dry's job is on the line in his sixth year as TCU coach and hardly anything lucky has happened to him.

TCU lost 16-13 to SMU, 31-27 to Houston and 16-14 on a last-second field goal Saturday on homecoming to Texas Tech.

"We're 3-6 and we could easily be 6-3," Dry said. "I don't know what you have to do. We're just running the clock out against Tech and fumble. We have the game won."

Asked if he had received a vote of confidence from the TCU administration, Dry quipped "That's one of your better one-liners. Nobody has said anything to me."

Two games were the most any TCU team has won under Dry until this year. He took over from Jim Shofner after the Horned Frog program had reached rock bottom.

TCU has beaten Utah State, Rice and Baylor this year.

"We lose three conference games by a total of nine points," Dry said. "It makes you want to blow your brains out."

"I'd like to have just a LITTLE luck. I guess Jerry Moore got all of it this year at Texas Tech."

Asked if he thought the Horned Frogs had a chance to beat Texas or Texas A&M, Dry joked "You want to come over here and play quarterback for me, you sucker?"

Center rehabilitates injured birds, hopes to breed eagles

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — George and Breck Stewart were joiners, members of a variety of conservation groups with a variety of goals. But something happened that caused them to take a more active role in conservation.

"About 1973 when we were at Rice, my wife and I had the opportunity to rehabilitate some barn owls," said George Stewart, 37, an associate professor of parasitology at the University of Texas at Arlington. "We realized it was very exciting and rewarding."

In 1978, the Stewarts got together with an Arlington physician, Dr. James Doyle, and founded the Phoenix Bird Rehabilitation Center in their home. Four years and 2,000 birds later, the trio oversees a membership of 250 concerned ornithology enthusiasts who hope to make a contribution to America's national symbol — the bald eagle.

"We're desperately searching for land for a major rehabilitating and captive breeding center in Texas, the only rehabilitation center trying to specialize in bald eagles in the United States," Stewart said.

Project Eagles Nest was conceived as a 200th anniversary present to the bald eagle, he said. "I think it's very important that we captive breed these birds to make sure they don't become extinct," Stewart said. "The precedent has been set. It can be done and I certainly think we have the expertise to do it."

Stewart said the group already has had some success with the captive breeding of other birds of prey, and has had a total of seven eagles, including three bald eagles, brought to the center.

The eagles, all suffering gunshot wounds, were sent to the Phoenix center by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Two of them, a pair of golden eagles, live at the two-acre site that makes up the other half of the Phoenix facilities.

"We do have 2,000 to 4,000 bald eagles in Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arkansas, and that's the area we'd be serving," he said.

"There's some excellent habitat in Texas due to the reservoirs," Stewart said. "We have about 14 active nests in Texas — a vast improvement over what it has been — and we'd like to augment that."

The group plans to use injured eagles brought into Phoenix as breeders, rehabilitating them in large flight pens so that any young bred in captivity could learn to act like birds.

There are an estimated 50,000 bald eagles in North America. The birds are officially listed as endangered in 43 of the lower 48 states, with populations labeled threatened in several Midwestern and Northwest states. Only in Alaska and western Canada are the birds holding their own now, Stewart said more than 100,000 were shot in a 10-year period and pesticides have further decimated their ranks.

While Project Eagle Nest is the attention getter at the Phoenix center, the rehabilitation of ordinary birds continues.

There are now about 100 birds distributed between the two Phoenix sites, 65 living at the Stewarts' Arlington home. Outside their back door is a songbird aviary, a large, caged and covered patio filled with blue jays, grackles, cardinals, thrashers and quail. Most have had run-ins with cats, though others have been struck by youngsters' BB guns. Some are so severely incapacitated they will never leave the facility.

"Sometimes we get real neat birds in here, like a pelican," Stewart said. "If we can't do the best job with it, we'll send it somewhere where they can do the best job."

The back yard resembles a miniature zoo. There are burrowing owls, screech owls, horned owls and barn owls. There are several varieties of hawks. There's even a black vulture. The birds of prey keep Phoenix members picking dead animals off the road to feed the caged carnivores.

They also get live feed, Stewart said. "You always have to give a young bird the opportunity of going after live prey. Not only to hone its skills on them, but to prove to yourself that they are capable of doing it. The majority of birds that come to us are babies. Basically we're getting them right out of the nest."

Phoenix also farms out a good many birds to volunteers in the area for care. "We're getting to the point now that we have people who specialize in individual birds. If it weren't for volunteers we'd have gone under years ago," he said.

The center is financed by $5-dollar memberships. "The money goes directly to rehabilitating birds, not some high-priced president," Stewart said. Though the operation ran $13,000 in the red last year, Stewart is optimistic that the future will be brighter.

Restaurant soup

"Restaurant" was originally the name of a soup invented in 1557 by a Frenchman named Palissy. The soup consisted of finely-minced fowl and broth highly spiced with cinnamon and coriander. In 1765, a tavern was opened in Paris under the title "Restaurant" for the purpose of supplying this soup.

School song ruled unconstitutional

HOUSTON (AP) — Lyrics to suburban Aldine High School's song remain on a wall above the building's auditorium despite a federal judge's ruling that they represent a prayer and official use of them is unconstitutional.

"Everything is as it was at the end of school," principal Vernon Lewis said. "We have not had a court order telling us to remove the sign. We don't ask the students to sing it but they do it when they want to."

The song, which begins "Dear God," concludes "in Jesus' name we pray, Amen," and was formerly known as the "school prayer," was written by a student in 1951.
Rex Van Middlesworth, attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union, said Monday no specific injunction was issued because by the time of U.S. District Judge John Singleton's ruling, the anonymous student on whose behalf the action was filed was no longer a part of the school system.
But he said the school is morally obligated to remove the three-inch tall letters.

The student argued that official recognition and use of the song violated the constitutional guarantees to separation of church and state and to freedom of religion.
"It is inconceivable to me that a school district, which is charged among other things with teaching our children to obey the law, would persist in an action that has been ruled unconstitutional," Van Middlesworth said.
He said he has written twice to school district attorney James Wunderlich warning that further legal action may be taken.
"Normally, when somebody is apprised that they're violating constitutional rights, that is the end of it," Van Middlesworth said.
The song reads: "Dear God, please bless our school and all it stands for. Keep us free from sin, honest and true. Give us courage and faith to help make our school the victor. In Jesus' name we pray, Amen."

Closing arguments to start

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Both sides have rested their case in the retrial of a prison inmate Eroy Edward Brown, whose first trial on charges he drowned a warden ended when two jurors refused to join the 10 who voted to acquit him.

State District Judge Darrell Hester of Brownsville told attorneys to present their closing arguments today.
Brown, 31, is accused of capital murder in April 4, 1981, drowning of prison warden Wallace Pack, 54. Prosecutors have said Brown could be tried later on charges he shot prison farm manager Billy Max Moore, 49, to death.

The defense claims Brown killed the men in self-defense because he feared they were going to torture him. Brown said he tried to persuade Pack to quit fighting him and drowned him only when the warden persisted.
The inmate's first trial ended in March with jurors, after 3½ days of deliberations, deadlocked 10-2 for acquittal.
The current jury will be asked to decide whether State District Judge Henry Dalehite declared a mistrial too soon. If the panel rules the judge should have allowed more time, Brown will be acquitted, defense attorneys said.

Testimony ended Monday after three fellow prisoners refused to testify about the reputation of Pack, saying they feared reprisals.
A fourth inmate, Robert J. Franks, at first refused but later agreed to testify.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BGMBECK

It's probably a trade secret, but I am intrigued by waiters and waitresses who instinctively know whom to give the check.

A friend of mine who waited tables this summer said he's no expert, but he followed certain guidelines.

The man who summons the wine list is fingered as the man in charge and gets the check.

The man who says in a loud voice, "I think you'll like this place. I'd personally recommend the barbecued ribs," sets himself up as an authority-check figure.

The man who sees the check coming and still doesn't bolt to go to the restroom or to make a phone call gets the bad news.

The man — even if he just stopped by a table full of women to say hello — gets the check.

This last bit of information fascinated me. With all the freedom that has been accorded women they still fell more comfortable with "separate checks."

Every woman at one time or another has been to one of those famous luncheons where the waiter, ignoring pleas to bill individually, puts it all on one check. He places it in the middle of the table like a hand grenade, then steps back so that each may quickly toss it back and forth to one another with cries, "I had the iced tea and the apple brown Betty. Do they still charge for extra whipped cream?"

"How much is the pot of tea and the meringue sandwich?"

"I'll get the parking if someone gets the tip."

"I only have a ten. You owe me 3.26."

"I'm paying for Ruth's lunch. She drove. Take back Ruth's money."

"I'm not leaving a big tip. When I asked where the women's room was, he just grunted."

Men generally regard all this as tacky. My husband took me to lunch the other day and when the check came, I instinctively reached for it — an impulse from raising three teenagers. "What do you think you're doing?" he shouted. "As long as you are eating with me, I assume the responsibility for the check. Frankly, I still find it a blow to my ego when a woman picks up the tab. Just sit there and be feminine and thank me for being so generous and accommodating. By the way, you got two bucks for the tip?"

Now, that's tacky.

Harrelson professed his love to women

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The man accused of the contract killing of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. professed his love for two female witnesses during secretly recorded conversations and urged them not to talk to the FBI.

Prosecutors said they would continue today to play tape recordings of Charles V. Harrelson's telephone and jail visiting room conversations with the wife of a friend and another woman who hired him as a bodyguard.

Two tapes made in 1980 and played late Monday showed Harrelson on two consecutive days told the two women how much he loved them and how much he abhorred people who talked to the FBI.

Both Jo Ann Robinson, the wife of Harrelson's friend Hampton Robinson III, and wealthy El Paso businesswoman Virginia Farah have testified for the prosecution in the trial of Harrelson, his wife, Jo Ann Starr Harrelson, and Elizabeth Chagra.

"I love you so much," Harrelson told Mrs. Robinson in a Nov. 18, 1980, telephone conversation recorded by the FBI. "God, I miss you."

"I dream of you everytime I go to sleep," he told wealthy El Paso businesswoman Virginia Farah the next day in another recorded telephone conversation. "Virginia, I love you."

Harrelson and his wife, seated two chairs apart at the defense table, did not look at each other while the tapes were played, but afterwards he went to her and whispered something before both were taken back to jail for the night.

Harrelson, 44, is accused of killing Wood on May 29, 1979, for a $250,000 fee. Mrs. Harrelson, 41, is charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice and Mrs. Chagra, 28, the wife of the man accused of paying for the judge's murder, is charged with conspiring to kill Wood and to obstruct justice.

Imprisoned narcotics trafficker Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra will be tried later on murder charges alleging he paid for the killing to prevent Wood from presiding over his pending drug trial. Joe Chagra, Jimmy's brother, has pleaded guilty to conspiring to kill Wood.

Harrelson's step-daughter, Teresa Starr Jasper, 25, told the jury during sensational testimony earlier in the trial that she had an "affair" with Harrelson in late 1979 and early 1980.

"I love you with every fiber of my being," Harrelson told Mrs. Jasper in a letter he wrote to her last year while she was jailed for contempt of court for refusing to testify before the grand jury investigating Wood's death.

Mrs. Harrelson is the only one of four women Harrelson claimed to have loved that has not appeared as a prosecution witness. The letters and phone calls showed that Harrelson was trying to persuade the women to be distrustful of FBI agents, whom he referred to in obscene terms and contended were trying to frame him.

Mrs. Farah, the government's 78th witness, told jurors Monday she employed Harrelson as a bodyguard in the summer of 1980 until the time of his arrest in Van Horn, Texas, for jumping bond in Houston on state firearms, narcotics and gambling paraphernalia charges.

Mrs. Farah, a widow, told the jury that Harrelson was introduced to her as "Joe Robinson" and that she had no idea he was a fugitive or suspect in the Wood slaying, until after his arrest.

Mrs. Farah said she let Harrelson store two stacks of $100 bills in her safe while he was staying at her house from late June 1980 until his arrest.

Mrs. Jasper testified earlier that her mother and Harrelson sent her to Las Vegas to pick up $250,000 from a pregnant woman.

Another witness, Cindy Cote, said she accompanied the then pregnant Mrs. Chagra while she took a briefcase to the Las Vegas Hotel where Mrs. Jasper received a briefcase.

—Dealing with aging parents;
—What to expect from growing older - Fact and fiction; and —Graceful aging of women.

The Thursday night meeting is open to anyone interested in the aging process and the needs of "Older Americans."

An FBI agent Monday identified a tan briefcase found in one of Harrelson's suitcases at Mrs. Farah's house. Mrs. Jasper and Miss Cote earlier identified the same briefcase that the prosecution contends contained the "payoff."

See a penny, pick it up

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP) — When Terry Armstrong finds a penny on the ground or a dime in a phone booth, it goes to the University of Idaho instead of his pocket.

Armstrong and about 200 other people are saving money they find in odd places and giving it to the university for an endowment fund. So far, they've got $120, and their sights are set on $6 million — in a century or so.

"We call it the Found Money Fund of Idaho," said Armstrong, executive assistant to the university president. "About 200 of us true philanthropists donate all the money we find around town."

It all started with a penny in Armstrong's shoe. "I walk a half-mile to work and over the years picked up pennies or nickels and put them in my shoe for good luck," he said Monday.

One day in January 1981, Armstrong spotted 8 cents on the sidewalk in front of a sorority house. "I decided it was time to put all that money in a jar and see how much I could collect in a month," he said.

Armstrong's colleagues took to the idea and started depositing their "finds" in the jar. "In five months, we had $6 or $7 and realized we had to put the money to good use," he said.

Armstrong decided to start buying shares in Idaho's Fund for Academic Excellence, a general university trust fund that finances honors programs, special projects and faculty development.

Shares in the fund sell for $10 to $12, and each time the jar fills up, Armstrong buys a share in the name of the Found Money Fund. "We already have 10 shares of stock valued at $120," he said. "And there's another $12.05 in the jar."

"We're really smokin'," Armstrong said. "We've calculated it out and by plowing all the interest back into the principal, we'll have $5 million or $6 million by the 200th anniversary of the university — in 2089."

The Found Money Fund has no official roster of its contributors, whose finds usually are pennies, nickels and dimes.

Occasionally, however, there are bonanzas. "Just last week, our director of high school relations found two $5 bills on a cafeteria floor in Twin Falls," said Carol Yenni, co-founder of the fund.

"But we do have our rules," said Ms. Yenni, admissions assistant at the university's College of Law. "You must find the money. It can't be your own change. And if you know who the money belongs to, you've got to return it."

Finders also must be "totally dedicated." Armstrong said. "If you find $100, you've got to turn it in to the fund. But believe me, anyone who goes around checking phone booths for lost money has got to be pretty committed."

Armstrong says the Found Money Fund also "promotes fitness, sharpens observation skills and develops laudable philanthropic qualities. But mostly, it's just funner than the dickens."

Fruit stains disappear

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — How does one go about getting various food stains (fruit, beet, etc.) off one's hands. Some of the acids in these foods turn my skin a dreadful color and it's quite embarrassing to give a dinner party with stained hands. Washing with lots of soap and water doesn't do a thing! — CAROL

DEAR CAROL — Boy, am I glad you asked that question — especially since I've just had a chance to try out the solution to this problem and it works beautifully! The other day, I spent a couple of hours peeling and coring 15 pounds of apples (all by hand!) and the juice from the fruit turned my hands bluish black. It was awful! Several hours and many incidental and purposeful handwashings later, the stains were worse, if anything. Finally, I decided to practice what I preach and so I soaked and rubbed my hands liberally with lime juice (didn't have any lemon juice, though that works, too). Stains disappeared and I could go to the office next morning with head — and hands, if necessary — held high. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — To remove fat from hot soup, toss a lettuce leaf into it. This will absorb the grease. Then just remove the lettuce. Another method is to skim the soup with handful of ice cubes wrapped in a clean cloth. The grease will cling to the cloth.

When baking, try substituting cold coffee for milk. Adds a different flavor.

A few drops of lemon juice will make hard-to-whip cream whip more quickly.

Marshmallows or maraschino cherries make good holders for birthday candles. Place them around the top rim of the cake to leave room in the center for other decorations. — FLORENCE

DEAR POLLY — When lemons are on sale, I buy several and freeze them whole in plastic zip-type bags. When thawed and used immediately, they will be soft, but very juicy. They seem sweeter, too. — ELLIE
