Services planned Saturday for Gene Brock

Gene Brock, a teacher, preacher, friend of the mentally handicapped, and high school youth and civic leader, died Wednesday.

Services will be at 11 a.m. Saturday at First Baptist Church in Hereford with Dr. Ron Cook, pastor, officiating. Burial will follow in West Park Cemetery under the direction of Rix Funeral Directors in Hereford.

Survivors include his wife, Cathy; a son, Jerry, of Hereford; a daughter, Brenda Morton of Amarillo; five grandchildren; three brothers, Jerry of Beaumont, Kenneth of San Diego, Calif., and Archer of Oklahoma City; and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Scott Murphy of Houston.

Brock, a native of Chillicothe, was named Citizen of the Year in 1987 by the Hereford Lions Club for his many years of work in the community. He was honored in 1990 by the Texas-Oklahoma District Key Clubs with the first Gene Y. Brock Faculty Advisor Award, which was named in his honor. It was the second time he had been named the top faculty advisor in the Texas-Oklahoma District. The honor, carrying Brock's name, is now presented annually to the top faculty advisor for Key Clubs in Texas and Oklahoma.

He served as Region Counselor from 1987-90 and Faculty Advisor Counselor from 1986-90. In 1990, he was promoted to the Executive Key Club Committee of the Texas-Oklahoma District. He was a recipient of the Texas-Oklahoma Key of Honor, presented by the Key Club district committee, and had been named an honorary member of the Key Club at John Jay High School in San Antonio.

In 1991, he received the Key of Honor from Kiwanis International for his work in Key Club and in Kiwanis. The Key of Honor is the highest award given by Kiwanis International for work with youth. He was a charter member of the Texas-Oklahoma District Key Club Hall of Fame. He was the 1989-90 president of the Hereford Noon Kiwanis.

Brock's work was not limited to Kiwanis and Key Club. For many years he worked with the Hereford Satellite Center in its many programs and was its treasurer. He was very involved with Camp Wigwam, a special camp for the mentally handicapped, serving as a volunteer and a director.

Brock also served as a part-time pastor at several area churches.

After graduating from Chillicothe High School, he attended Hardin-Simmons University and was ordained as a minister. His college years were interrupted for service in the U.S. Air Force, where he achieved the rank of sergeant. He returned to HSU and pastored several churches during and after college.

He became a teacher in 1959 and moved to Hereford in 1966. He began his career as special education teacher at La Plata Junior High School, then moved to Hereford High School to become the vocational adjustment coordinator. He held that position until he retired, because of ill health, in 1990.

When he moved to HHS he assumed duties as Key Club faculty advisor. He retained his duties as faculty advisor through December.

He was a charter member of the Whiteface Kiwanis Club and served as its president in 1972-73 before moving to the Noon Kiwanis. He served as president of both clubs and was named Kiwanian of the Year by both clubs.

Brock was active in professional teacher organizations. He was a past District 16 president, in 1976, and past treasurer of the Texas State Teachers Association, a member of the TSTA executive committee, and served six years as Texas director on the board of the National Education Association.

Brock received the Bull Chip Award in December 1986 and was a nominee for the "Seven Who Care" award.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests memorials be made to the Hereford Key Club, Hereford Satellite Center, Casey Smith Memorial Scholarship Fund and Hereford Senior Citizens.

HHS will be drug-free school Friday

U.S. Attorney Marvin Collins will visit Hereford High School at 2:15 p.m. Friday to officially designate the campus a Drug-Free/Gun-Free Zone. The event will take place in the HHS Auditorium.

Collins will brief educators and students on federal legislation which mandated such zones and gives federal officials more authority in working with school administrators, faculty and parents to eradicate the growing problem of drugs and guns on America's campuses.

Jennifer B. Crabtree, director of U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm's regional office in Lubbock, will join Collins in unveiling a sign proclaiming the Drug-Free/Gun-Free campus. She also will read a letter from the senator highlighting the virtues of this new legislation.

The federal Drug-Free/Gun-Free campus initiative evolved from two separate pieces of legislation contained in the Crime Control Act of 1990: the Gun-Free School Zone Act, which prohibits the possession or discharge of a firearm on or within 1,000 feet of a public, private or parochial school; and the Controlled Substance Act, which mandates enhanced penalties for those caught possessing, distributing or manufacturing a controlled substance within this 1,000-foot parameter. The law encourages schools to post signs on school property stating that the school is a Drug-Free and Gun-Free school zone.

Collins credited visionaries such as Sen. Gramm, whose understanding of the drug problem and hard work on Capitol Hill, put the new legislation into motion.

"Phil Gramm has devoted a significant portion of his 13 years in Congress to visiting school campuses to educate students, faculty and parents about dangers of drugs. He is convinced that America will win the drug war through the efforts of our young people who commit to make the drug-free lifestyle popular. I look forward to visiting Hereford High School to help carry out this very important mission," Collins said.

"This initiative represents a significant endeavor to halt the spread of drugs and violence on our campuses," Sen. Gramm said. "I appreciate the leadership Hereford Independent School District is providing the community in fighting the drug war and in educating America's next generation of workers and leaders."

Walcott holds first DARE graduation

Fourteen sixth graders at Walcott School graduated from the school's first DARE class recently. Sheriff Joe Brown, at bottom right, was guest speaker. Terry Brown, upper left, of the Hereford Police Department, is the DARE instructor. The students were given certificates and a DARE t-shirt. Pecos Alford and Nellie Chavez were given a DARE jacket for their outstanding achievement in the program.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says you can't turn back the clock...but you can wind it up again.

In order to change, we must be sick and tired of being sick and tired.--Dr. Robert Anthony

President Bush's economic recovery plan, revealed in his State of the Union address Tuesday night, offers some hope for this nation to get on the move again. But that hope lies with a Congress that has too few statesmen and too many politicians who think mostly about reelection.

Most Americans know where to place the blame for our problems. CBS television ran an "America on the Line" poll Tuesday night, asking citizens to call a toll-free number and respond to a number of questions. Asked to place the blame on government, business mismanagement, or Japan, citizens selected government by a strong majority.

The network reported several hundred thousand took part in the unique poll, but more than seven million attempted to get on the line.

Those numbers should concern our elected representatives in Washington! Had one of the questions been on limited terms of office, we think politicians would have been even more concerned.

We tried about 30 times before finally getting a line and having a chance to respond to four questions. "Are you better off than you were four years ago?" No. "Do you think President Bush understands the problems of the middle class?" Yes. (He's no dummy; he just can't do anything without Congress' support.) "Would you pay another $100 in taxes to improve your local schools?" Yes. (But, of course, I've already done that.) "Are you satisfied with Gov. Clinton's explanation about his alleged affair?" No. (But I had rather answered a question about the state of the union.)

President Bush said his plan will "lift the nation out of hard times, inch by inch and day by day." It will not be easy, but we can only hope that it happens and that the time frame turns out to be shorter than it appears!

A West Texas publisher tells the story about a policeman who stopped a senior citizen motorist.

The patrolman had begun to write the ticket when the feisty old man snapped, "What are you putting on that ticket?"

"Well, mister, I'm writing that you crossed over the center line three times in two blocks, that you ran a stop sign, that you ran a traffic light, that you almost ran into a car in front of you, and that I had to follow you five blocks with my lights flashing before you stopped."

"That's just typical of you guys," responded the indignant motorist. "Instead of picking on innocent, law-abiding citizens whose worse offense is to jaywalk now and then, why don't you arrest some of these drunk drivers that are a danger to us all?" "To tell you the truth," the cop said, "I thought I had just nailed one!"

TDCJ plans visit here in February

The Texas Department of Criminal Justice will send a staff team to visit Hereford's proposed prison site in February, and a short list of communities will be announced March 16, it was revealed Wednesday.

The TDCJ board held a regular bi-monthly meeting last Friday and developed a review and selection process to choose prison sites from the 63 communities who submitted applications.

Following team visits to the sites, a short list will be developed for review by the board in March, with plans for board sub-committee review in late March and early April. It is anticipated that final selection for sites will be made April 10.

The TDCJ board will pick sites for three 2,250-bed maximum security prisons and six 1,000-bed minimum/medium security facilities. The board is also scheduled on Feb. 10 to determine the total number of substance abuse facility sites to be selected.

Each community that makes the short list will be required to hold a public hearing between March 17 and April 2. TDCJ staff members will attend these meetings in order to observe and report citizen input to the board.

According to a TDCJ official, the public comment meeting "will insure a full hearing of both proponents and opponents of particular sites in the community and alleviate the need for the board to hold a lengthy hearing at the time of the selections."

Voter signup needed

Prospective voters in the March 10 party primaries in Texas must register in the office of Deaf Smith County Clerk David Ruland if they do not have valid registration cards.

Persons who did not receive new voter registration cards mailed in December must register to be eligible to vote, Ruland reminded.

Residents who have moved since receiving the new cards also must notify Ruland, who serves as voter registrar for Deaf Smith County.

Deadline for applying in person for voter registration is Feb. 9. Mailed registration applications must be postmarked on, or before, Feb. 10, said Ruland.

New voter cards, which are valid for two years, were mailed in mid-December to 8,419 Deaf Smith County residents. The post office returned 974 cards, undeliverable because the resident no longer lived at the address. Cards were not forwarded.

Eight are sentenced

Probated sentences were assessed seven defendants and another defendant was sentenced to a prison term during sessions of 222nd District Court this week.

Judge David Wesley Gulley also revoked the probation of a defendant previously convicted of felony driving while intoxicated.

Probation of a sentence given Jesus Manuel Gonzales for felony DWI was revoked by Judge Gulley and the defendant sentenced to seven years in Texas Department of Criminal Justice institutional division. He also received a four-year sentence on a plea of guilty to felony DWI.

A six-year term in TDCJ institutional division was handed Ramon Rodrigo Rodriguez on his guilty plea to a charge of unlawful possession of a firearm by a felon.

On a plea of guilty to theft over $750 and under $20,000, Albert Ramirez Jr., received a probated sentence of seven years in the TDCJ institutional division. He also was fined $1,500.

Lorenzo "Lawrence" Maldonado entered guilty pleas on two burglary charges, receiving a 10-year probated TDCJ sentence for each.

A five-year probated sentence was handed Jose Gonzales, who entered a guilty plea to felony DWI. He also was fined $1,500.

After pleading guilty to criminal mischief over $750 and under $20,000, Manuel Mendez was given a 10-year probated sentence and ordered to pay restitution of $2,173.

A five-year TDCJ term was probated for Gilbert Murillo after he entered a guilty plea to a charge of delivery of marijuana.

Isabel Claudio was given a four-year probated prison term for tampering with government records.

Guilty pleas were heard by the court on two burglary charges against Scott Edwards. A third burglary charge was dismissed. He was sentenced to a pair of nine-year probated terms on charges of burglary of a building and burglary of a habitation.

Friends sign petition for pardon for escapee from Georgia prison

FRITCH, Texas (AP) - Residents of this Texas Panhandle town say they will join a petition drive to get the governor of Georgia to pardon a man who has been a productive citizen in the 17 years since he escaped from a Georgia prison.

James Sanders was arrested by FBI agents last Friday after they located him at Fritch. He was convicted on burglary and theft charges and was serving an 11-year prison term in the Jefferson County Prison on Aug. 23, 1975 when he escaped.

Sanders, 42, has been married for 16 years and he and his wife have an 11-year-old daughter.

Sue Middaugh, a Sanders family friend, typed up a petition on Wednesday that asks Georgia Gov. Zell Miller to pardon Sanders for his past crimes. About 40 petitions have been circulated at various businesses in Fritch and Borger, Middaugh said.

"We, the undersigned, feel that James R. Sanders has paid his debt to society by being a productive citizen for the last 17 years. With the current overcrowding of prisons and the legal costs involved, we feel that James Sanders should be pardoned," the petitions read.

Middaugh said the petitions will be given to Sanders' wife, Randy, and that she will deliver them to Sanders' attorney, who will present them to Gov. Miller.

Prison warden George T. Smith said Sanders was operating a bulldozer at a prison-operated land fill when he kidnapped a trash-truck driver at knifepoint and forced him to drive to nearby Burke County. The warden said the truck driver was released unharmed.

Sanders has lived in the Panhandle area for most of the last 14 years, spending four years in Amarillo before moving to Fritch 10 years ago. He is in the Hutchinson County Jail in Stinnett, awaiting extradition to Georgia.

It will not be a popular decision around here is Sanders has to return to prison.

"They send people to prison to rehabilitate them," Middaugh said. "Why send a person back to prison to rehabilitate him when he's already rehabilitated himself? He's paid taxes to the government, raised a family, been a good citizen.

"I'm sure what he did 17 years ago was wrong," she said. "But what purpose would it do to send him back after 17 years when he hasn't done anything else wrong?"

Hutchinson County Sheriff Lon Blackmon said Sanders, who has worked as a heavy-machinery operator for the county for 10 years, has no criminal record in the county.

"He was always at work on time and he did a good job," former County Commissioner Murry Jennings said. "He is an excellent heavy-equipment operator."

Jennings is among Sanders' more outspoken supporters.

"As far as I'm concerned, James is an upstanding citizen," Jennings said. "He's not a hell-raiser or a drunkard or a doper; he attended to his job and took care of his family."

Jennings said he is considering calling Texas Gov. Ann Richards to ask her not to send Sanders back to Georgia.

Fritch is located about 55 miles north of Amarillo.

DA to seek new indictment in death

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - A county district attorney said he hopes a filing error he made in a murder charge does not ruin a West Texas murder case dating back nearly a quarter of a century.

Crosby County District Attorney Tom Brian said Wednesday he will attempt to re-indict Artis Nelson Payne, who was indicted in 1991 for killing his wife 23 years after she was believed to have drowned.

State District Judge J. Blair Cherry granted a defense motion to dismiss the murder charge against Payne last week after it was discovered that Payne had been indicted under the wrong law.

"Basically it was an error on my part," Brian said. "The judge rightly quashed the indictment."

"I will have to go back to the grand jury and present the case again," Brian said. "It will be presented to the May grand jury."

Brian said he hoped having to start all over would not affect the outcome of the case.

"Every grand jury is going to look at the facts in light of the evidence," Brian said. "So I don't anticipate any change in their thinking. But you never know."

Payne was indicted in May 1991

by a Crosby County grand jury for the March 3, 1968, death of his 19-year-old wife, Laura Jane Bartlett Payne. According to the indictment, Payne held his wife under water until she drowned.

But Payne was indicted under the 1973 law that defines murder as intentionally and knowingly causing the death of another, Brian said.

"He should have been indicted under the 1927 law - which was in effect in 1968 - that says there has to be malice aforethought," said Payne's defense attorney Bill Wischkaemper, who declined further comment.

Brian said the defendant has to be indicted under the law in place at the time of the death.

Payne was arrested May 7, 1991. He was released after posting $100,000 bond.

Payne, whose Lubbock phone number is unlisted, could not be reached for comment Wednesday.

For 23 years Laura Bartlett Payne's death was ruled a drowning after she lost consciousness while

CED taxes ordered to court account

AUSTIN (AP) - A state judge in Fort Worth has granted a temporary restraining order that allows a group of Tarrant County businesses to pay their county education district taxes to a court account while they challenge the levy.

State District Judge Bruce Auld enjoined the Tarrant County Education District and 30 other CEDS from collecting school taxes from the businesses, which are mostly automobile dealerships.

"It is a challenge to the constitutionality of the county education district tax. It is also a challenge to the constitutionality of not providing a mechanism by which a taxpayer can protest the tax and preserve his or her rights," said Robert F. Andrews, a Fort Worth lawyer representing the businesses. He estimated that about $2.5 million worth of taxes is involved in the Tuesday order.

A Feb. 10 hearing has been scheduled in the case, which is similar to other lawsuits brought by businesses.

Although seven such lawsuits have been filed, this is the only one in which a temporary restraining order has been granted, said Ron Dusek, spokesman for the state attorney general.

The businesses say they want to protect their rights in case the Texas Supreme Court throws out the new school finance law.

The law, which is being challenged before the Supreme Court by a group of property-rich school districts, is designed to shift hundreds of millions of local property tax dollars from wealthy to poor school districts within 188 county education districts. Each CED is made up of one or several counties.

If the county education district tax is declared unconstitutional, the so-called voluntary payment doctrine in common law could prevent taxpayers from getting refunds unless they have filed a lawsuit protesting the tax.

Businesses that have sued have said that if another levy replaces the CED tax, they do not want to face double taxation.

Andrews said he was talking with CED lawyers to see whether the matter could be resolved.

CORRECTION

An article in Tuesday's Hereford Brand about cars near Hereford High School being burglarized had an inaccurate statement about parking at Hereford High School.

Betty Martin of the HHS office informed the Brand on Wednesday that students do not pay for parking permits at HHS. Students simply make a request and show their driver's license, and they are given a parking permit. Martin said persons parking off a campus lot are parking there on their own. There is no charge for the parking permit.

The Brand was relying on information obtained in a telephone call made to the HHS office on Monday. On Monday, a person at the office said she didn't know what the charge is, but it's $1 or $2, not much.

The Brand apologizes for the misinformation.

Obituary

EDMON KEESEE Jan. 29, 1992

Edmon Keese, 90, of Lubbock, died Wednesday.

Graveside services will be held at 2 p.m. Friday in City of Lubbock Cemetery with the Rev. Vernon Henderson, Methodist minister, officiating. Arrangements are by Rix Funeral Directors of Lubbock.

Mr. Keese, a retired farmer, was born at Valley View and lived in Hereford before moving to Lubbock in 1928. He was a veteran of World War II.

Survivors are a sister, Mary Delahunty, of Lubbock, and three brothers, Vernon Keese of Lubbock, Frank Keese of Oklahoma City, Okla., and Johnny V. Keese of Katy.

firing several shots from a pistol at two men in a pickup who were fleeing an altercation outside the bar.

The alleged victims, Seth Lopez and Rudy Garcia, contend they suffered minor wounds in the shooting.

The police chief said earlier this month that he simply fired a couple shots in the air to help break up a fracas.

Those who sought to "suspend all the way" wanted to fire Cargile, Dickerson said. The mayor, who does not vote except to break a tie, said he would have voted to terminate Cargile had there been a tie.

Cargile, a Democratic candidate for Hardeman County Sheriff on the March 10 primary ballot, declined comment on the council's vote to suspend him.

"I am not going to comment on anything," Cargile said Wednesday. "I just want this to die and get out of the papers. It has gone too far and just needs to be let alone."

As for his campaign, Cargile said, "I will continue to run."

Quanah is about 75 miles west of Wichita Falls.

Council suspends Quanah police chief

QUANAH, Texas (AP) - Police Chief E.M. "Skip" Cargile has been suspended for 30 days without pay after he pleaded guilty to a weapons charge in connection with a shooting incident outside a bar last month.

Quanah Mayor Butch Dickerson said Cargile, 53, was suspended Monday night on a 4-2 vote of the City Council.

"Our council could not get together" on the severity of sanctions to impose upon Cargile, Dickerson told the Amarillo Daily News. "We had some that wanted to suspend all the way and some that did not. This (30-day suspension) was a kind of compromise."

Cargile pleaded guilty Jan. 25 to an amended charge of carrying a firearm, a misdemeanor. The police chief paid a $50 fine and $77 in court costs and was placed on six months' probation, authorities said.

Cargile was charged Jan. 17 with recklessly handling a firearm, also a misdemeanor, in a shooting incident outside Tucker's Bar, 13 miles south of Altus, Okla., in the early morning hours of Dec. 29.

The police chief was suspected of

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I married a wonderful man (with no children) three years ago. We get along fine except for one thing, "Danny's" family.

His married brother, "Pat" lives down the street and is constantly asking us to baby-sit or help him work on his car. Danny works a night shift and I work a day job. The only time I get to see him is on Saturday and Sunday. I feel the weekends should not be spent baby-sitting or changing oil but should be our time.

Pat has three young children, so the requests to baby-sit are frequent. He makes a good salary and could easily pay a sitter. His wife doesn't work outside the home, but she never seems to get anything done except her hair. She also likes to shop. Their house and cars are filthy and the kids always have some virus which we usually end up catching because we're never told that the kids are sick.

Danny lived with Pat before we were married. I can't tell you how many times Danny canceled a date or was late because he was cleaning their house, cooking supper, or bathing the children while Pat and his wife were out eating dinner or taking in a movie.

We saw a therapist for several months but Danny won't go back. He says this is a family matter. Meanwhile I'm fed up and stressed out. Any advice, Ann? -- Tired of Being Used

DEAR TIRED: I'll bet things will change when you and Danny start a family. Until then, let him know he's being unfair to you and tell him Ann thinks you're getting the short end of the stick.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Thank you. These two simple words could never convey the gratitude I'd like to express on behalf of the volunteers and staff of the Arthritis Foundation and the millions of Americans we are working to help.

You recently printed a letter from Marilyn J. Cason, chairman of the Illinois Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation. The letter explained the pain faced by people of all ages with arthritis, and the disability and disfigurement arthritis often brings. The letter also explained that much can be done to help those with arthritis and you graciously included the foundation's address and national toll-free number.

So far, we have received more than 91,000 telephone calls and about 20,000 letters, and we continue to receive a steady stream of telephone calls and mail requests for information.

We have learned that over 98 percent of the callers had never contacted the Arthritis Foundation

LONDON (AP) - Comparing Andrew Lloyd Webber's work to good music is like putting a cement mixer in the same league as Michelangelo, says a man who was passed over in favor of Lloyd Webber to write music for Queen Elizabeth II.

Lloyd Webber has been invited to contribute to next year's 40th anniversary celebration of Elizabeth's accession to the throne.

As Master of the Queen's Music, Malcolm Williamson writes music for similar royal events. He's done so about a dozen times since 1975, but wasn't asked to take part this time.

Williamson said he doesn't mind, but doesn't think much of the selection of Lloyd Webber, whose musicals include "Cats" and "Phantom of the Opera."

"The difference between good music and Lloyd Webber is the difference between Michelangelo and a cement mixer," he recently told The Daily Telegraph.

Loving awarded certificate

Erma Lovings was awarded a certificate of perfection during the Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228 meeting held Tuesday evening.

The certificate was given from the Rebekah Assembly of Texas for a perfect semi-annual financial report.

Noble Grand Shirley Brown presided as reports were made of the sick. Twenty visits, 33 cheer cards and 11 dishes of food were reported.

Jo Irbeck, assisted by her husband, Tony, served refreshments to Brown, Loving, Susie Curtsinger, Ann Werner, Dorothy Collier, Stella Hershey, Rosalie Northcutt, Lydia Hopsons, Ocie Bolton, Mary Lou Weatherford, Irene Merritt, Peggy Lemons, Faye Brownlow and Leona Sowell.

W-2 deadline Friday

Wage earners should receive their 1991 Forms, W-2, "Wage and Tax Statement," from their employer (s) by Friday, the Internal Revenue Service says.

Employers are required by law to make these forms available to employees by Jan. 31, 1992.

To avoid delays receiving the form, the IRS suggests ensuring that the employer has the correct mailing address or make other arrangements for it to be picked up. If employees have not received their W-2s by Friday, they should contact the employer to see if the form is available.

If not received by Feb. 15, 1992, call the Internal Revenue Service for assistance at 800-829-1040 or find the local IRS telephone number in the local directory under "Tax Assistance."

Help for managing asthma

Treating asthma at the first sign of troubled breathing and wheezing is critical, but it may not be early enough, says the National Allergy and Asthma Network (NAAN).

Asthma is characterized by frightening episodes of breathlessness, wheezing and coughing, during which bronchial tubes in the lungs constrict and impair normal breathing.

A hand-held instrument called a peak flow meter can help detect narrowing and swelling of the large airways hours or even days before any sign of troubled breathing becomes evident. A low peak flow meter is inexpensive and small enough so that one can be kept anywhere, including home, work or school.

The meter estimates the openness of the lung's large airways by measuring the force of air blown through the meter's hollow tube. Peak airflow is measured by taking a deep breath and then quickly breathing out with maximum effort through the mouthpiece of the meter. A diary of the meter readings taken at different times during the day can provide doctors with the information they need to adjust a patient's asthma treatment plan and in this way, better manage the condition.

NAAN is a non-profit organization dedicated to the education and support of people with allergies and asthma. Two NAAN publications, The User's guide to Peak Flow Monitoring and I'm A Meter Reader, provide expert advice on how a peak flow meter can help detect when asthma attacks are most likely to occur.

I'm A-Meter Reader is written especially for children ages four through nine, with an easy to understand format and many colorful illustrations.

To order The User's Guide To Peak Flow Monitoring or I'm A Meter Reader, or to join NAAN's extensive membership of patients, doctors, parents and educators, call NAAN toll-free at 1-800-878-4403.

Hereford stays in District 1-4A

Hereford will stay in District 1-4A with Borger, Caprock, Dumas, Pampa and Randall, for the 1992-93 and 1993-94 school years, according to tentative realignments released today by the University Interscholastic League.

Of the the two changes that could have affected Hereford, only one happened. Plainview moved to 4A from 5A, but Canyon stayed in 3A instead of moving up.

Plainview moved into District 2-4A, taking the place of Lubbock Dunbar-Struggs, which dropped to 3A. Plainview joins Lubbock Estacado, Lambsa, Snyder, Levelland and Wolforth Frenship in 2-4A.

Dunbar enters District 3-3A with Lubbock Cooper, Lubbock Roosevelt, Brownfield, Denver City, Slaton and Seminole.

Several changes were made in area

2A districts. Highland Park moved to 1-2A from 2-2A, and 1-2A also gained Gruver, which moved up from Class 1A. Also moving up from 1A are Wheeler and Memphis, which both join Canadian, Clarendon, Panhandle and Wellington in District 2-2A.

Herd cagers look for more wins in Borger

The Hereford boys' and girls' basketball teams go for two wins in a row Friday in Borger.

Both teams won their first district games Tuesday with victories over Dumas. The boys' win made the Herd 1-3 in district (6-18 overall) and put Dumas alone in the District 1-4A cellar at 0-4.

Borger's boys also are 1-3 in district and are 10-14 overall. The Herd meets them at 8 p.m.

Pampa's boys, still ranked number one in Class 4A by the Texas Association of Basketball Coaches, are alone at the top of the district at 4-0 (22-2) overall. Pampa hosts Dumas Friday.

The other boys' game Friday will be an early showdown for second place as Randall and Caprock, both 3-1, meet at Randall.

The Lady Whitefaces' win Tuesday moved them into a tie for fifth with Dumas at 1-5. The Lady Whitefaces are 8-20 overall.

Borger stands at 3-3, good for third in district, but is 18-10 overall. Randall's Lady Raiders lead the district at 6-0, and, at 23-2, are ranked fourth in Class 4A by the TABC. They host Caprock (2-4, 5-16) Friday.

The other game has second-place Pampa (5-1, 15-7) hosting Dumas (1-5, 8-15).

Several of Hereford's sub-varsity basketball teams are in action today, but none in Hereford. The seventh grade girls have their district tournament today, Friday and Saturday in Pampa. Both the Maroon and the White teams play this afternoon and then again Saturday.

The freshman boys play Caprock in Amarillo tonight. The B teams start at 6 and the A game starts at 7:15.

The ninth grade girls also play this afternoon in a tournament in Plainview.

UIL shifts grid powers into 9-3A

DALLAS (AP) - Class 2A football powerhouse Farmersville was shifted into a 3A district with formidable 4A school Gainesville today as the University Interscholastic League announced its biennial realignment.

Class 5A, the classification for the state's largest schools, shrunk by one school as 11 were added, while 12 dropped to 4A.

The UIL, which governs high school extracurricular activities in Texas, realigns the schools every two years to compensate for changes in school enrollment.

UIL spokesman Peter Contreras said schools may protest their realignment with an appeals committee. They likely wouldn't protest a shift in classification, but many probably will ask the UIL to reconsider district placement, Contreras said.

The schools had a chance before realignment to request a higher classification than their enrollment merits.

"I would find it very odd if they didn't indicate that and then two weeks later change their mind," Contreras said. "Most of it has to do with protest over what district they're in because of excess traveling."

Moving up to 5A from 4A were: Allen, Crowley, Dallas South Oak Cliff, Katy Taylor and The Colony.

Schools that moved down to 4A from 5A were: Austin LBJ; Austin Lanier; Dallas Samuell; Fort Worth Eastern Hills; Kingsville King; New Braunfels; Plainview; and Houston schools Davis, Furr, Kashmere, Scarborough, Wheatley and Worthing.

Contreras said the Austin and Houston schools in years past have requested to play in 5A, which has enrollments of 1,510 students or more, but declined to do so this time.

Fort Worth Diamond Hill, Lumberton and Navasota all moved from 3A to 4A.

Class 2A Farmersville, which compiled a 14-1 record and advanced to the 2A semifinals last season, was moved into District 9-3A. The newly created district includes Bonham, Frisco, Possboro, Princeton, Sanger, Whitesboro and Gainesville, formerly in 4A.

Farmersville football coach Jim Wood, whose teams are 43-6 over the past four years, said he wasn't surprised by the shift.

"We knew we were going to be close," Wood said. "With Gainesville dropping down that would be a big adjustment. Everyone else I think we can compete with. We just have to deal with it and do the best we can.

"We're certainly not going to sit around feeling sorry for ourselves."

Seven schools moved from 4A to 3A, while 11 moved up to 3A from 2A.

The top four Class A schools in the final regular season Associated Press poll all were moved to 2A. Valley Mills, Wheeler, Rotan and Italy, which combined for a 38-0 record before the playoffs, were moved to 2A.

Thirteen schools, including 10-time boy's state basketball champion Snook, were bumped from 2A to Class A.

"With basketball the way it is at the Class A level, it's just as tough as Class 2A," said Snook middle school principal and former head basketball coach Donnie Victorick. "The difference is all the teams aren't quite as strong. We're looking forward to the move down."

"We were mostly concerned about the travel. The travel this year will be so much better."

Tigers sign King

NEW YORK (AP) - With three weeks left before the start of spring training, teams are trying to fill some problem spots.

The Detroit Tigers signed right-hander Eric King to a $1.2 million contract on Wednesday. The New York signed left-hander Allan Anderson to a minor-league contract and the Twins signed left-hander Bill Krueger, also to a minor-league deal.

Outfielder Herm Winningham, meanwhile, agreed to a $450,000, one-year contract with the Boston Red Sox. And the Chicago White Sox invited outfielder Brad Komminsk, pitcher Mike Dunne and catcher Nelson Santovenia to spring training.

At the same time, two players in salary arbitration agreed to one-year contracts, leaving 100 remaining. Infielder Junior Noboa and the New York Mets settled at $272,000, a raise of $132,000, while right-hander Luis Aquino and the Kansas City Royals agreed at $650,000, a raise of $490,000.

King, 27, pitched for the Tigers from 1986 through 1988 and was Detroit's top rookie in 1986 with an 11-4 record. He was 6-11 last season for Cleveland with a 4.60 ERA in 24 starts. He became a free agent Dec. 20 when the Indians declined to offer a 1992 contract. He made $1,487,500 in 1991.

Anderson, 28, slumped during the last two seasons. He was 16-9 in 1988 with an American League-leading 2.45 ERA, then went 17-10 with a 3.80 ERA in 1989. But he fell to 7-18 in 1990 and was sent to the minor leagues in the middle of the 1991 season. He was 5-11 with a 4.96 ERA for the Twins last year and 4-1 with a 3.06 ERA in five starts with Portland of the Class AAA Pacific Coast League.

Anderson, who made $785,000 last season, would get a $500,000 major league contract if he makes the Yankees and the chance to earn another $300,000 in performance bonuses.

Krueger, 33, was 0-2 with a 13.50 ERA against the Twins last season for Seattle. Against the rest of the league, he was 11-6 with a 3.00 ERA. The combined 11-8, 3.60 mark represented his best season.

He would get a $550,000 major league contract if he makes the Twins. He made $500,000 last season.

Winningham, 30, hit .225 last season with one homer and four RBIs in 98 games for Cincinnati.

Hawks' Willis responds to Wilkins' injury

By The Associated Press

Kevin Willis, who is replacing teammate Dominique Wilkins in the All-Star game, knows he will need help replacing him on the Atlanta Hawks.

"We've got to spread it around, distribute the ball and tighten up on team defense," Willis said after his 18 points and 17 rebounds helped the Hawks beat the Milwaukee Bucks 110-100 Wednesday night. "We just want to go out with a vengeance and try to win and pick up the slack. There is a lot of slack to pick it up. But I think we have the manpower to do it."

Wilkins ruptured his right Achilles' tendon Tuesday night and was to undergo surgery today. The Hawks won by one point at home against Philadelphia following the injury and made it two straight by defeating Milwaukee, only their ninth road victory in 23 tries this season.

Rookie Stacey Augmon scored a career-high 25 points, and Blair Rasmussen and Duane Ferrell, who started in Wilkins' small forward spot, had 17 each.

The loss was the fifth straight for the Bucks, who called a team meeting immediately after the game in which they shot 40 percent from the field and were outrebounded 59-41.

Moses Malone led the Bucks with 28 points and 13 rebounds. He also passed John Havlicek as the No. 5 scorer in NBA history.

Lakers 112, Warriors 99

Los Angeles outmuscled Golden State, with James Worthy scoring 21 points and Byron Scott 20.

Chris Mullin scored 30 points for Golden State.

The Warriors saw guards Tim Hardaway and Vincent Askew ejected 16 seconds apart late in the heated third quarter.

Knicks 101, Bullets 89

Gerald Wilkins had 22 points and seldom-used Kiki Vandeweghe scored nine of his 14 in the fourth quarter.

Tom Hammonds scored 31 points for the Bullets, who never led after the second minute of the game.

Vandeweghe, who has been used in only 28 of the Knicks' 42 games, doubled his average of 11 minutes per game.

Jazz 124, Kings 105

Karl Malone and Jeff Malone each scored 26 points for the Jazz, who outscored the Kings 46-27 in the second quarter.

John Stockton, who finished with 18 points and 16 assists, and Karl Malone scored 11 points each and Jeff Malone 10 points in the second period when Utah shot 75 percent from the floor to take a 73-52 halftime lead.

Lionel Simmons scored 25 points for Sacramento.

Cavaliers 95, Pistons 90

Craig Ehlo's short jumper with 9.9 seconds left broke a tie.

Ehlo took a pass from Mark Price and scored for a 92-90 lead.

On the Pistons' next possession, Isiah Thomas was called for charging and was ejected after arguing the call. Price hit three free throws to seal the outcome.

John Williams led Cleveland with 22 points, while Orlando Woolridge scored 26 points and Thomas 24 for Detroit.

Suns 128, Nets 95

Tom Chambers hit all of his six shots in the first quarter, leading Phoenix to a team-record 14 consecutive field goals against New Jersey.

Chambers finished with 31 points. Drazen Petrovic scored 17 points for the Nets. Kevin Johnson had 25 points on 9-for-11 shooting and 25 assists for Phoenix.

Spurs 108, Mavericks 93

Willie Anderson scored 13 of his 21 points in the third quarter when San Antonio took control.

The Spurs, leading 49-42 at halftime, outscored Dallas 37-16 in the third period while making 16 of 22 shots.

Randy White had a season-high 20 points and 12 rebounds for the Mavericks.

Pacers 115, 76ers 90

Indiana beat Philadelphia behind Reggie Miller's 24 points and a 13-2 start.

Charles Barkley scored 28 points for the 76ers.

Heat 119, SuperSonics 114

Glen Rice scored five of his 30 points in the final 1:22, leading Miami to its first-ever victory over Seattle.

USC spoils UCLA's perfect record

By The Associated Press

So much for that big battle of unbeaten Duke and UCLA.

Southern Cal made sure UCLA would not go into that March matchup unblemished, bouncing the No. 2 Bruins 86-82 Wednesday night.

"Even the great Bill Walton lost a couple," UCLA guard Gerald Madkins said. "It's how you regroup. I know we'll come back now that this undefeated stuff is over with."

UCLA (14-1) was off to its best start since 1972-73, when it went undefeated. The Bruins, trying to match Duke at 15-0, instead fell behind by 22 points to the No. 25 Trojans and could not catch up.

"I wish I could say it was the coach or the players, but I'm still trying to figure out how we won," Southern Cal coach George Raveling said.

In other games, No. 14 Kentucky beat Mississippi 96-78, No. 15 Michigan defeated No. 13 Michigan State 89-79 in overtime and No. 18 Oklahoma topped Texas Southern 110-85.

Southern Cal (14-3) matched UCLA at 6-1 in the Pacific-10. The Trojans are technically on top, though, because they beat their crosstown rival.

The Trojans won at UCLA for the first time since 1985, when they led on 80-78 in four overtimes. This time, the Trojans took a 41-19 lead with 3:20 left in the first half.

"When we were up by 22, it was very surprising," said Yamen Sanders, who scored 20 points for USC.

Duane Cooper added a career-high 23 points for the Trojans and Harold Miner struggled to get 22.

Miner, averaging 27.4 points per game, played only 10 minutes in the first half because of foul trouble and had just seven points. He played the last five minutes with four fouls, and helped Southern Cal by making seven of eight free throws in the final two minutes.

Southern Cal led 75-65 with two minutes left. UCLA pressed and pulled to 82-79 on Tracy Murray's 3-pointer with one minute to go and again to 85-82 in the final seconds.

Murray and Don MacLean each scored 21 points for the Bruins.

No. 14 Kentucky 96, Mississippi 78

Jamal Mashburn rebounded from a bad game with a good one, scoring 24 points as Kentucky stopped a two-game losing skid.

Mashburn, who had only four points in last Saturday's 105-88 loss to Arkansas, had three baskets in the first 3½ minutes.

John Pelphrey had 16 points for the Wildcats (15-4, 5-2 Southeastern Conference). Joe Harvell scored 29 for Mississippi State (8-9, 1-5).

No. 15 Michigan 89, No. 13 Michigan St. 79, OT

Reserve Rob Pelinka sparked Michigan in overtime.

Pelinka, who did not play in the first half, began the overtime with a 3-pointer as Michigan opened with a 7-0 burst. He scored six of his career-high nine points in the extra session.

Jalen Rose scored 26 points and Chris Webber had 21 for Michigan

(12-4, 4-3 Big Ten). Shawn Respert had 26 for Michigan State (13-3, 3-3). No. 18 Oklahoma 110, Texas Southern 85

Damon Patterson scored 23 points and Angelo Hamilton added 21 as Oklahoma, playing its last non-Big Eight game of the season, pulled away in the second half.

The host Sooners (14-3) led just 44-38 before beginning the second half with a 9-0 run. David Arceneaux scored 24 points for Texas Southern (8-11).

The Los Angeles Dodgers were held scoreless in the last 33 innings of the 1966 World Series against Baltimore.

Bob Gibson of the Cardinals won three games against the Red Sox in the 1967 World Series with an ERA of 1.00.

Broncos' Green feels he made his point

HONOLULU (AP) - Gaston Green, a bench-warmer for three years with the Los Angeles Rams and now a 1,000-yard rusher and All-Pro for the Denver Broncos, says he feels he's made his point. "I always thought I could play like that," Green said. "It feels good to show the Rams and their organization back in LA and coach (John

Robinson that I've been able to do it. "I feel redeemed."

Although the Rams made Green their first-round draft pick out of UCLA in 1988, he started just three games during his three years with Los Angeles and carried the ball a total of just 129 times, for 451 yards.

"I thought I was never going to get a chance to play," said Green, who is UCLA's all-time leading rusher with 3,731 career yards.

"I figured that no matter what I did, I wasn't going to impress coach Robinson enough to play. I don't understand what it was. I was performing in practice, in training camp and in the preseason games, but when the season started, he just wasn't going to play me."

When trade possibilities came up, Green said he still worried that he might never have an opportunity to show what he could do.

"The teams that were interested in me were Kansas City, Dallas and Denver and all those people had great running backs; Christian Okoye and Barry Word at Kansas City, Emmitt Smith at Dallas, and Bobby Humphrey at Denver," Green said. "I thought it might be the same thing all over for me, sitting on the bench."

"But then I figured anything would be better than the Rams. I was real pleased to finally get out of there."

Traded to Denver last spring in a deal that sent troubled tackle Gerald Perry to the Rams, Green got a break with the Broncos when Humphrey held out during training camp.

Green impressed the Denver coaches during camp and the preseason games, then went on to rush for 1,037 yards, second in the AFC, on 261 carries during the regular season, good enough to earn him a Pro Bowl spot.

Denver coach Dan Reeves, coach of the AFC squad for Sunday's all-star game, said he was surprised the trade for Green worked out so well.

"I wish I could tell you I'm that smart," Reeves said of the deal. "It was a situation where the Rams were interested in Gerald Perry, and Gaston wanted to go somewhere else.

"I looked at him in a preseason game against Kansas City and he rushed for 200 yards, and so you kind of asked yourself why in the world this guy's not playing. Something's got to be wrong."

Reeves was probably expecting an attitude problem.

"It was a tremendous surprise when he came in, to see what kind of attitude he had," the Broncos coach said. "He came in and really worked hard in the off-season and when Bobby Humphrey didn't show up, Gaston took advantage of the opportunity and just kept impressing us every day."

"Then as the season got started, he showed that he could break plays if he got a little daylight."

The Rams, meanwhile, got little production out of their running game this season, and, after going 3-13, Robinson resigned.

Magic may return to NBA

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) - Almost 12 weeks after retiring from pro basketball because of the virus that causes AIDS, Magic Johnson is talking more and more like an active player.

"I'm all right to play right now, if I want to play," Johnson told reporters Wednesday night during an impromptu press conference before the Lakers' 112-99 victory over Golden State. "The only thing that would keep me from playing is myself. If I want to come back, I could come back. I haven't ruled out coming back at all."

The NBA's three-time Most Valuable Player and all-time assist leader is scheduled to play in the NBA All-Star Game Feb. 9 in Orlando, Fla., and in the Olympic Games in Barcelona, Spain, in July. He is encouraged by his health, his stamina in daily workouts and his body's response to the drugs he is using to treat the virus.

"The key is staying healthy, and that's what I'm doing," he said. "I've been playing against people for a whole month - banging, hitting, driving, shooting, the whole thing. The way I'm going now, the way I feel, the way I've been playing and practicing, I feel great."

Johnson's remarks didn't surprise Lakers owner Jerry Buss.

"To tell you the truth, I don't think this is anything that new," Buss said. "I think Magic has always had in the back of his mind that he has felt terrific. He's been working out and looks tremendous."

Johnson stunned the nation and basketball fans world-wide Nov. 7 when he revealed his illness at a jam-packed Forum news conference, thus ending a 12-year NBA career that included five world championships with the Lakers. Since then, he has become a major voice in the fight against AIDS and was placed on a presidential commission to deal with the disease.

Off the court, however, Johnson has had difficulty educating everyone about those who are carrying the AIDS virus and the dangers they may or may not bring to society. Recently, a doctor in Australia suggested their national team boycott the Olympics if Johnson suits up. But the team

Mavs' Lever out for season

DALLAS (AP) - Dallas Mavericks guard Fat Lever will have to undergo arthroscopic surgery on his left knee and will miss the rest of the season, the club announced Wednesday.

A date for the surgery has not been set.

Lever missed 77 games last season after undergoing surgery on his right knee. The two-time All-Star was acquired from the Denver Nuggets in June of 1990 in exchange for two first-round draft choices.

The 31-year-old Lever averaged 11.2 points in 31 games this season. He injured the knee Dec. 5 against Golden State when he hit the basket support after a collision with Warriors guard Tim Hardaway.

distanced itself from those remarks, and Johnson has accepted an apology.

"Everybody is making opinions," he said. "But it's never been documented that anybody playing basketball has given it to a person because it's so hard to pass it on - even sexually."

Johnson was voted onto the starting Western Conference squad for the All-Star Game and is expected to play.

"If I don't play in the All-Star Game and if I don't play in the Olympics, then it's going to hurt a lot of people," Johnson said. "The AIDS virus is something that everybody has to get educated on, and I'm going to be the person to educate them. That's my main job."

Lever missed 10 games, then returned on Dec. 26 and played in 14 games. But discomfort returned last weekend in games against Orlando and Miami.

Team physician Dr. J. Pat Evans gave Lever a magnetic imaging resonance test and said that continued swelling indicated the knee required surgery.

"We feel that it is prudent to go ahead with arthroscopy at this time," Evans said. "Our goal is to have Fat back in the best possible shape for next season."

"It's a matter of taking care of it now as opposed to later," Lever said. "I want to get it done as soon as possible."

Memory loss can be related to stress

Remember when you thought memory loss was just a sign of old age, or an inevitable fact of life? That may not be the case at all. The real culprit may be stress.

Current research by Dr. Robert Sapolsky, associate biological sciences professor at Stanford University in Palo Alto, Calif., shows that "stressful emergencies" may damage or even kill nerve cells vital to the brain's recall and learning abilities.

Fear, rage, anxiety, depression and a host of other real or imagined crises trigger the release of a class of steroid hormones which when secreted in large amounts over a long period of time, interfere with the normal function of the neurons in touch with a part of the brain in charge of learning and memory.

Unlike adrenaline's quick release during a life-threatening event, these steroid areas secreted more slowly and remain in the body longer, Dr. Sapolsky said. "They are ideal for surviving short-term physical stress," he said, but he warned that continued high levels of the hormone speed up the aging of the memory and learning center of the brain.

The purpose of the glucocorticoids is to shut down non-vital parts of the body, like digestion and reproduction in favor of areas necessary for survival. They kick in a chemical reaction which draws extra energy from muscle tissue, increases heart rate, and prepares the body to "flee or fight."

Sometimes, though, things go awry. A particular brain site (or any other organ) might be particularly sensitive to a hormone such as glucocorticoids. When this happens in the hippocampus, damage is caused to the region of the brain which is most vulnerable to stroke and seizure. Glucocorticoids disrupt the ability of hippocampal neurons to absorb glucose. As such, the neurons are a little bit energy deprived. Thus, they are a little bit less effective at managing the movement of glutamate when it is used as a messenger between neurons. As a result of too much glutamate being around, the next group of neurons accumulates too much calcium. Again, cleaning up too much calcium takes energy, and the neurons are not as good at this after glucocorticoid exposure either. Too much calcium is the most likely route by which too much glutamate is damaging. Thus, glucocorticoids leads to less glucose transport which leads to too much glutamate being released, which leads to too much calcium inside the second set of neurons.

In his laboratory studies on rates and monkeys, Dr. Sapolsky found that the stress-related damage could be moderated by behavioral means or by removing the adrenal gland and substituting synthetic steroids to maintain a normal level. He said another way to decrease the damage would be to block the chemical reactions before they set in motion the disruptive chain of events, while at the same time give the cells more energy. In his studies, Dr. Sapolsky found that the effects of the steroids disappear if these steps are taken.

While his studies have been limited to laboratory animals. Dr. Sapolsky said he considers his work with monkeys an important piece "to testing whether stress damages the human brain.

Stress may be a fact of life, but it also may be an insidious way in which our memory and learning abilities become dulled and sluggish as we grow older. Dr. Sapolsky's current and future clinical studies may help the key to nurturing a keen mind for as long as we live.

Dispell myths about athletic performance

Whether a person is a professional football player or exercises only once a week, food is a key factor in athletic performance—but too many advertised products mislead and misinform, according to a registered dietitian.

"Everyone needs to eat a balanced diet, which provides energy to complete an exercise routine and all the nutrients necessary for tissue growth and replacement after a workout," said Dr. Mary Kinney Bielamowicz, nutritionist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "However, there are too many misleading advertisements and fad diets that can cause consumers to stray from the healthful choice."

Many people who put their hopes in health products that claim to build their muscles and give them stamina often end up with a diet that lacks some important nutrients but has an excessive amount of others, she said. Nutritional practices based upon half-truths and misconceptions can even be dangerous if taken to the extreme. Bielamowicz said some of the most common myths about how to get energy include:

-Eating more protein helps build more muscle—Protein is important in building and protecting muscles, but high-protein diets or supplements have not been proven to increase muscle mass. Without proper exercise, excessive protein is often converted to fat and stored. Excessive protein intake may also strain kidney function.

-Eat a lot of carbohydrates before each workout—A high-carbohydrate diet is not necessary for a regular workout. If preparing for a long-distance event (lasting an hour or longer) such as a marathon or bicycle race, a high-carbohydrate diet may be needed—starting several days before the event. For events lasting less than 90 minutes, a high-carbohydrate diet for one day can adequately fuel muscles.

-Drinking sports drinks before and after exercise is essential for replacing lost body fluids—During activity, perspiration causes loss of water and minerals such as sodium and potassium that are important for normal body function. Under usual circumstances, the average American diet contains more than enough sodium to make up for losses. Supplements are not needed unless circumstances are unusual, such as participating in a triathlon in intense heat.

-Consuming foods or beverages high in sugar before exercising provides extra energy—If you eat a food high in sugar 30 to 60 minutes before working out, it may actually have negative effects on your performance. The short-term energy boost could lead temporarily to hypoglycemia, which limits the brain's ability to use its fuel (calories) to boost muscular function and mental drive. Symptoms of hypoglycemia include feeling light headed, disoriented, shaky, sweaty and fatigued or having blurred vision and heart palpitations.

-Beverages that contain caffeine and alcohol stimulate the nervous system and provide energy—Drinks that contain caffeine and alcoholic beverages have dehydration effects, which offer no benefits to a person who works out regularly or an athlete in training.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I'm feeling pretty despondent and wonder if you could help me. I'm a 47-year-old male in very good shape, 6 feet tall, 175 pounds, who exercised frequently—mostly swimming and stationary cross-country skiing.

Two years ago I had an inguinal hernia repair on the left side and a year later one on the right side. Just three months later the left side recurred and I had it re-repaired with the mesh inserts. Exactly 10 weeks after the surgery the hernia came back out.

My surgeon told me she had never seen one pop through the mesh, but the only recourse was another repair, attaching mesh to the hip bone. Frankly I am worried about scar tissue and a real weakening of that area. The muscle that retracts the testicle does not operate now and I'm hoping you can advise me on possible alternative therapies available.

DEAR READER: Recurrences of hernias after surgery used to be rather common. In the past the recurrence rate was at least 25 percent. The technique used in doing the surgery is an important factor. Simply suturing the torn muscle area is not enough. A good repair is rather tricky.

Some surgeons today, such as Dr. Irving Lichtenstein, surgeon at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center in Los Angeles, now use a polypropylene mesh called Marlex. The trick in using the mesh successfully is to not try to close the hole with sutures, but to simply place the mesh patch over the hole that permits the hernia to occur. According to Lichtenstein, in over 1,200 initial hernia repairs over five years, his team has had only two failures. Remember that is for surgery for an initial repair, not for a repair of a recurrence.

I have explained inguinal hernias and the surgery in Groin Hernias—Inguinal and Femoral, and am sending this information to you. Others who want this information can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/36-03, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077.

I have no way of knowing what technique your surgeon used, but if you have a family physician—and you should have—after reading the report I'm sending you, discuss it with him and he can review the surgical technique with the surgeon. He may feel that you need a consultation with another surgeon to see what can be done. Don't give up hope. I'm sure the problem can be corrected.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

Cumpton welcomed into club

Linda Cumpton was welcomed as a new member when the La Madre Mia Study Club met Jan. 23 at the Hereford State Bank.

During the business meeting with Nancy Paetzold presiding, minutes were read by Mary Herring and members answered roll call with their favorite game. It was announced that the next meeting will be a husbands' party with the calling committee in charge of details.

Following the business session, members were invited to participate in several games challenging their memory, dexterity and verbal communicative skills. After scores were tabulated and prizes awarded, members were served refreshments by co-hostess, Merle Clark. Carolyn Baxter served as hostess.

Members present included Baxter, Francyne Bromlow, Merle Clark, Herring, Betty Lady, Barbara Manning, Gladys Merritt, Bettye Owen, Paetzold, Trudy Phillips, Lucy Rogers, Janet Schroeder, Tricia Sims, Mysedia Smith, Betty Taylor, Marline Watson and Mary Beth White.

Stress, anxiety common

Experts estimate 25 percent of the working population in America suffers from some sort of stress or anxiety disorder.

Most of these people however, don't do anything to relieve their problems. That can be unfortunate. Left untreated the condition can not only get worse, it can have serious physical consequences.

Fortunately, doctors now have anti-anxiety medications that can help relieve anxiety. If you're anxious out of proportion to what's happening in your life, see your doctor.
